'Election Fever' Storms Campus

ELECTION FEVER — Carl Cathey, Lubbock freshman, right, appears to be coercing Rob Freivogel, Dallas freshman, to vote for his candidate. Actually, it's all part of the annual election campaign that invades a campus before spring elections. John Semethko, Houston junior, left, stands by to speak up for his candidate. Elections will begin Friday after the week of campaigning.

Ten candidates for Student Council executive positions and nineteen candidates for cheerleader began official campaigning Monday. All candidates will visit the dorms today and tomorrow to give platform positions.

Candidates for Student Council president are Roland Anderson and Tommy Craddick. Vice presidential candidates are William Abraham, Scott Allen and Chris Hickey.

Sara Cox and Susan Waits are secretarial candidates, and Jerry Rawls, Gary Rose and Larry Strickland are in the business manager's race.

Those campaigning for cheerleading positions are Mickey Burnup, Connie Curry, Lonnie Dillard, Leslie Duckworth, Jan Fauske, Don Gilmore, Mary Carolyn Hall, Mike Hawkins, Joyce Kimmons, Mary Marshall, Macey Molen, Marshall Molen, Butch Moses, Ziggy Nicholson, Dick Otstott, Julie Parkington, Patti Perkins, Teddy Roberts and Tommy Thomas.

Today's schedule for dorm visits is as follows:

Losses Set At $312

Vacation Crooks Hit AROTC Rifle Range

Burglars took $312 worth of equipment from the Military Science Department's rifle range during spring vacation.

Bill Daniels, head security officer, says his department has been unable to determine how the burglars got into Bldg. M-1, the barracks northwest of the Architecture Bldg., where the equipment was kept. The cabinets holding the rifle equipment were smashed, Daniels said.

Missing articles include two Space Master sporting scopes valued at $95 each; three 12-inch chrome-plated extension rods, $3 each; two tripods for the scopes, $6 each; four right-handed shooting gloves, $18; two Freeland adjustable slings, $4 each; and 750 rounds of 22-caliber ammunition, $75.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is investigating the theft.

An attempt was made to break into the Architecture Bldg., where vandals broke a door lock. Daniels said the prowlers were unable to get into the building.

UN Letters Get Answer

Student Council President Ronnie Botkin requests that Tech students refrain from writing the Collegiate Office of the United Nations for information about summer jobs in Europe.

Botkin said a letter from the Collegiate Council said they have been receiving numerous letters from Tech students.

"They do not handle this information," Botkin said, "but they gave us an address to which students may write for such information."

Letters may be written to the Council on Student Travel, 777 United Nations Plaza, New York, New York.

Toreador Issues Platform Policy

All candidates for student body offices should read The Daily Toreador's statement of policy on publication of platforms and on advertising in the Toreador. See Page 2.

Entries Due For Fashion Competition

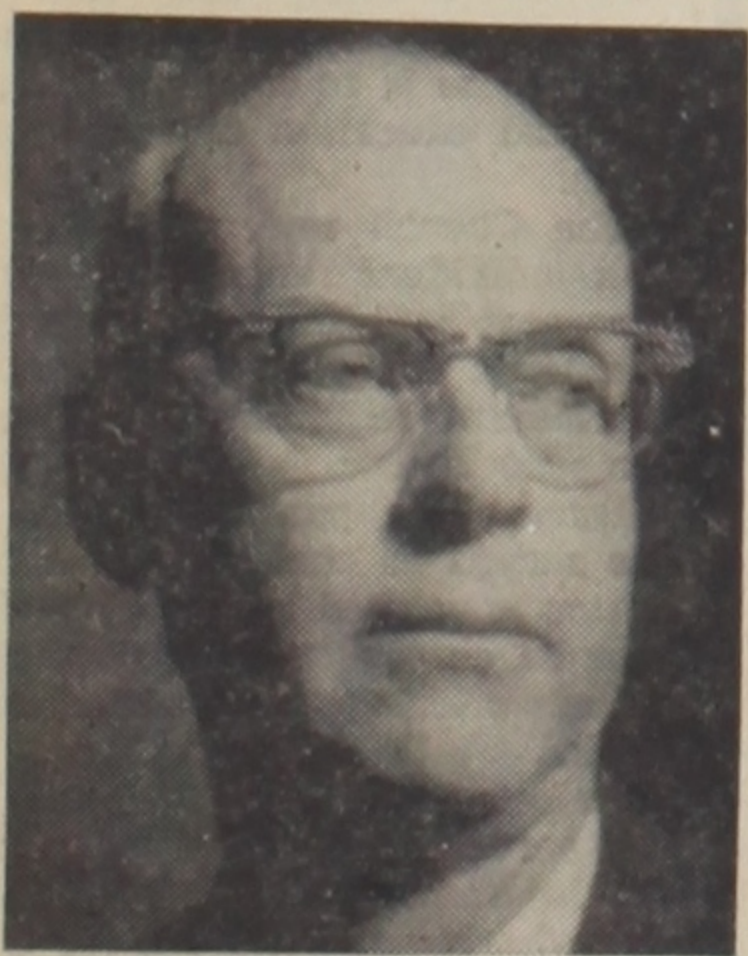

Deadline for entries in the "Best-Dressed College Girl" contest, sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary is noon today.

Contest judges, three local fashion experts, will decide Thursday night which Tech coed will win the title and be featured in the Mademoiselle section of the 1965 La Ventana.

Contest divisions include an on-campus outfit, an off-campus daytime outfit and a party dress. Judging will be based on ten points: good figure and correct posture, hair management, imagination in managing a clothes budget, good grooming, appropriate campus look, a clear understanding of fashion type, individuality in use of fashion color and accessories, a workable wardrobe plan, a neat way with make-up and an appropriate look for off-campus occasions.

A $2 entry fee and a brief resume of the three outfits should be addressed to Camille Keith, Box 614, Hulén Hall.

Each woman's organization is allowed to enter as many women as it wishes.

EXECUTIVE POST — Dr. Alan M. F. Gunn, professor of English, has been elected to a three-year term on the executive council of the Texas Conference of College Teachers of English. The nine-member council sets the policies for the conference of 750 members which meets annually to exchange scholarly papers on the teaching of English. Dr. Gunn has been a member of the Tech faculty since 1939. He attended Huron College and the University of Denver, receiving his Ph.D. from Princeton University.

Campaign Information Needed By Toreador

The Daily Toreador requests all candidates for Student Council executive positions to submit their campaign platform in writing to the paper no later than 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Candidates for any office in Friday's general election who desire to purchase advertising space in the election edition of the Toreador must do so by noon Wednesday.

If any candidate desires to advertise in Thursday morning's paper, they must purchase space by noon today.

Candidates advertising in the Toreador must make payment in advance. Publication of any photographs is an extra charge. Photographs must be glossy prints.

Advertisers must contact Jim Davidson, advertising manager, or Mrs. Jean Finley, publications secretary, at the Student Publications Office on the first floor of the Journalism Bldg.

Candidates for Council executive offices must submit their platform positions in the format of a column of comment on the campus issues. Columns must be typed and double spaced and not more than two pages in length. Photographs of candidates must accompany columns. Also, the columns must be accompanied with the following lists: qualifications for office and specific platform positions.

Materials from executive office candidates must be inclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the Editor, The Daily Toreador, and either given personally to the editor, placed in his mail box in the Journalism Bldg. or given to Mrs. Finley.

The Toreador assumes no responsibility for publication of a photograph and/or article about any candidate who fails to submit the requested materials by 5 p.m. Wednesday. Photographs will be returned on request. The Toreador reserves the right to edit all columns.

Wendlandt Selected To Speak In London

Dr. Wesley W. Wendlandt, professor of chemistry, will speak at the International Symposium on Thermal Analysis, April 13 and 14 in London, England.

Dr. Wendlandt is one of two United States chemistry professors selected to speak. His topic will be "A Survey of Miscellaneous Thermal Methods."

Dr. P. D. Garn, professor of chemistry at the University of Akron, is the other lecturer from the U.S. Other participants in the international symposium are Dr. L.

Erdey, Technical University of Budapest, Hungary; Dr. G. Gutochon, Ecole Polytechnique, France; and Dr. R. Harmelin, Laboratoire de Recherches Micro-Analytiques, France.

Dr. Wendlandt has been at Tech since 1954. He received his B.S. in chemistry from Wisconsin State College, his M.S. in inorganic chemistry and his Ph.D. in analytical and inorganic chemistry from the State University of Iowa. Since then, he has specialized in thermal research.

Summer Workshop In Mathematics Set

Applications for registration are now being accepted for Texas Tech's 1965 summer workshop in Teaching Elementary School Mathematics.

Scheduled June 21 through July 9 in Tech Union, the workshop will be under the joint sponsorship of Tech's department of education and the West Texas School Study Council.

Open to graduate students who are eligible for provisional or professional certificates, the course will offer three hours credit in mathematics programs for the elementary school with emphasis on new concepts, new material and new approaches to teaching.

Dr. Robert Houston of Michigan State University will be visiting consultant. Other members of the staff will be Dr. Olive K. Wheeler, workshop director, Dr. Robert Pate of Tech's education department and Mrs. Mary Jane Shipley of the department of mathematics.

Dr. Houston, author of "Extending Mathematics Understanding," a book widely used in teacher education programs, served as consultant for a similar workshop here last summer.

He also published a report on a two-year study of an in-service education program for elementary school teachers, "Improving Mathematics Understanding," and produced several audio film strips dealing with methods and materials for teaching elementary school mathematics.

Registration and tuition fees for the workshop will be $20 for residents and $75 for non-residents of the state, plus a $1 health fee and $5 laboratory fee. The laboratory fee should be sent in with requests for reservations, Dr. Wheeler said.

Requests for reservations should be returned no later than April 25 to Dr. Wheeler, Department of Education, Texas Tech, Lubbock. Enrollment in the workshop will be limited, she said.

Prof Named As National Secretary

Dr. Thadis W. Box, professor of range management at Texas Tech, has been elected secretary of the Range Management Education Council, a division of the American Society of Range Management at a recent conference in Las Vegas, Nev.

In this new capacity, Dr. Box will serve as secretary to the Council during 1965, move to vice president in 1966 and become president in 1967.

The Council is an association of representatives from 18 major universities offering full four-year programs in range management. Its purpose is to improve the professional education of range managers.

The Council reviews and evaluates individual range management programs and curricula and sets standards for course content and curriculum requirements at member schools.

During the past year, Dr. Box has served as chairman of a committee appointed by the Council to compile enrollment statistics at all schools offering range management work.

As secretary of the Council, Box will serve on the organization's executive committee and have charge of reviewing applications for Council membership.

Tech Gets Grant From Foundation

Texas Tech's chemistry department has been awarded a two-year $30,000 grant by the Houston-based Robert A. Welch Foundation.

Principal investigator on this project is Dr. Arthur Draper, associate professor of chemistry. He and two graduate research assistants will be concerned with measuring surface areas of inorganic powders.

To do this work, several new pieces of scientific apparatus will be added to the chemistry laboratory facilities. Among these new devices is an electro-balance capable of detecting changes of a few milligrams in weight under vacuum conditions.

'Chicken Sexer' Performs With Unerring Accuracy

PARIS, Tex. (AP)—A half-century ago, two Japanese doctors found a way to tell little boy chicks from little girl chicks—with unerring accuracy while the chicks were still less than a day old.

The discovery made history in the poultry world.

And it led to a unique profession for Katsumi Sakai, a Paris resident for the past two years.

Sakai is a chicken sexer by trade.

Nothing Mysterious

He contends that there is nothing mysterious about the talent with which he distinguishes the pullets from the cockrels—at a rate of 1,000 per hour, with better than 98 per cent accuracy.

The only secret is patience, Sakai explains, and the methods he learned in a unique American school that teaches the profession.

But whatever the secret, the profession of chicken sexing remains confined to a relatively small group of skilled craftsmen across the nation. There are approximately 25 in Texas, most of them Japanese-Americans, but a few Americans.

Sakai, who with his wife Rei and daughter Jeanne, lives in Paris, represents the Skeep Chicken Sexing Service in Dallas. He works primarily with hatcheries in Paris and Denison. He can handle 10,000 chicks per day by himself, but when the hatch exceeds that, he calls General Manager Gilbert Hirabayashi in Dallas for help.

No Secret

"There is no secret," explains Sakai. "You simply must know what you're doing. Each chick must be handled individually."

The sexers are paid a flat per-chick rate. They don't disclose their fee. And they guarantee 98 per cent accuracy.

Jake Osburn, hatchery manager for DeKalb in Paris, calls Sakai's accuracy phenomenal. "He seldom misses . . . I'd say his accuracy runs closer to 99 and one-half per cent."

Sakai chose to pursue the trade after completing two years in the U.S. Army, including Korean service. He entered the branch school of the American Chicken Sexing Association in Los Angeles.

Not Easy

A student can finish in four months—if he can reach a rate of 400 chicks per hour with a 98 per cent accuracy. Which is not easy. Sakai recalls that he could work 500 to 600 chicks per hour when he graduated. But that didn't assure him of immediate work.

"Normally, a young chicken sexer will work under an older professional after he completes school. Sometimes for nothing. You don't make much money until you learn to be fast and accurate. You're paid only for the number of chicks you work."

The field is limited. The toll of potential students is great. There were 15 persons in Sakai's class. Only four are in the business now.

Sakai's speed and skill have increased rapidly. Now 35, he has been in the business 10 years. Untill two years ago, he lived in Dallas.

Patience Required

The profession is largely controlled by Japanese-Americans, he explains, because they seem to have the patience for it and the interest in it.

Its history? Sakai recalls that Professor Ono and Professor Hashimoto developed the method of sexing the chicks 47 years ago in Japan. It was used successfully by their students, some of whom brought it to the United States.

Finally, a school was opened in the U.S. and Japanese-Americans seized the opportunity. Small and extremely agile hands, sharp eyes and patience were the major requirements. They must handle the chicks rapidly, and without injuring them.

The busy season is on for Sakai and his associates. This normally runs from February through June.
