

Raiders Can't Win SWC Title; Reuther Ineligible

By MIKE WALL and JIM DAVIDSON
Staff Writers

Texas Tech was voluntarily withdrawn from consideration for the Southwest Conference basketball championship Thursday when Norman Reuther was discovered to be scholastically ineligible.

Dr. J. William Davis, faculty chairman of Tech's Athletic Board has asked the Southwest Conference to withdraw Texas Tech from consideration for the basketball championship this season.

Davis made this recommendation after discovering that one of Tech's regular players, Norman Reuther, had become scholastically ineligible at mid-term.

Davis went on to say, "Reuther passed 19 hours of credit during the preceding two semesters and Conference eligibility rules require that 20 hours be passed during the two previous semesters. He passed ten hours last spring and 9 this fall.

"The lateness of this discovery resulted from several factors. Officially, grades for the fall semester are not normally available until mid-February. Our first Conference basketball game of the spring semester this year was with TCU on Jan. 30. To assure the eligibility of our players, I made preliminary checks with the Registrar's office between semesters and determined that all varsity players had passed the necessary semester hours for the fall semester and the cumulative hour requirements.

A player has to pass only nine hours in any one given semester to play.

Davis said, "In checking Reuther, I inadvertently did not total his combined hourly credits for the past two semesters." He continued, "Late last week when I received the official grades from the Registrar's Office, I had copies made and forwarded these to all parties concerned including the conference office."

He received a telephone call from Howard Grubbs of the conference office the morning after the Tech-Baylor game.

The call from Grubbs concerned the two-semester requirement and Reuther.

After returning to Lubbock from Waco, Davis said he rechecked Reuther's grades and found them to be deficient.

He said then, "I . . . advised them . . . that Texas Tech would voluntarily withdraw from any consideration for the basketball championship. I further stated that we would not entertain any invitations for post-season play.

Athletic Director Polk Robison said, "I regret very much that Texas Tech is in the position of having played an ineligible player. We have always made every effort to abide strictly by the rules and regulations of the Southwest Conference and the N.C.A.A. Upon the discovery of this error we acted promptly to make the matter known to the conference officials. I am particularly sympathetic to Coach Gibson and his fine Raider basketball team. They have done an outstanding job and we all are justifiably proud of the coaches and players."

Gene Gibson then commented on the situation by saying, "Speaking for the players and myself, we are naturally disappointed that this situation has come up. We learn in competitive athletics to take the hard knocks and come back fighting as well as to accept praise with humility. We will play the last three games with the same Red Raider fighting spirit that has become a trademark of our basketball teams."

Davis then went on to mention that the situation has only been submitted to the Southwest Conference office and that no official word has been received on the matter. Davis took complete blame for the error and expressed his apologies to all concerned.

Under conference rules, the conference race will remain the same as it is now, except that Tech will not be eligible for the championship.

Americans Don't See GOP Stand

Not what the Republican party stands for but what the American people thought it stood for caused the GOP November defeat, Frank Crowley told Tech Young Republicans Thursday night.

Crowley, Dallas County Commissioner, said the Republican party was not "down and out" and urged Republicans to "get off the ground."

He said Republicans recognize the need for regulation in many fields but wished to see the individual's rights preserved. "The Republican party was born arguing the right of the individual," Crowley said.

He reminded Tech Young Republicans that it was Republicans who set up the Departments of Agriculture and Labor and built the transcontinental railroads, Panama Canal and St. Lawrence Seaway. He said these accomplishments fit into the Republican concept of the functions of government.

Crowley pointed out that today the two parties vary more widely on issues than any other time since the Civil War. He said that these differences began in 1936 during Franklin D. Roosevelt's second term.

"I don't know any Democrat who is bent on leading the nation down the Communist road," Crowley said, "but neither do I know any Republican who would just walk past a starving child."

3-System Measure Prepared

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. John Connally said today his legislation re-grouping the 22 state colleges into three systems is ready for introduction.

Connally said there are no changes from his original proposal calling for a University of Texas System, a Texas A&M-Texas Tech System and a senior college system.

The proposal would place all colleges under one of three governing boards. There are now 11 governing boards.

Connally proposed the legislature in his Jan. 27 address, emphasizing the need for a broad geographic and population base for the systems.

The systems lineup: University of Texas — Austin campus, Texas Western, Arlington, North Texas, Texas Women's, University of Houston, Texas Southern, and Medical and dental units.

Texas State University System — A&M, Tech, Prairie View, Tarleton, Lamar, A&I, agricultural and engineering services and a new San Antonio Technical College.

State senior college system — Midwestern, Pan American, East Texas, Sam Houston, Southwest Texas, West Texas, Stephen F. Austin, Sul Ross and Angelo.

In other action today, senators finally passed and sent to Gov. Connally his No. 1 demand on the legislature — superboard to guide upgrading of Texas colleges.

After voting down five attempts to change the wording of the bill as approved by the House, senators gave the administration favorite measure a 27-8 vote.

The passage gave Connally a grand slam in today's lawmaking activities.

MUN MEETS — The Model United Nations met yesterday for its first session. Secretary General Zafer Centinkaya, President Lonnie Dillard, and Parliamentarian Dr. Paul Larson presided over the General Assembly. The business for the day was charter revision.

MUN Opens Sessions With Revision Motion

The Republic of Tanzania submitted a resolution for a charter revision in Thursday's opening session of the third annual Texas Tech Model United Nations.

The resolution recommended that the number of non-permanent members of the Security Council be increased from six to 10, and the number of members on the Economic and Social Council be increased from 18 to 20 and elected members be increased from six to nine.

John MacVane, veteran ABC correspondent to the United Nations will speak at 10 a. m. today on "Is the United Nations Doing Its Job?"

Approximately half of the delegates were in their seats for the opening session Thursday.

The Tanzania delegation suggested in its resolution that members of the Security Council be distributed with two member nations from Africa, Asia, and at-large, and one each from Latin America, Middle East, Eastern Europe.

The group proposed that the General Assembly elect Security Council members.

Sessions today will be from 10 a.m.-noon and from 1:30-5 p.m. Other resolutions will be placed before the General Assembly by Spain, South Africa and Yugoslavia before the three-day program ends Saturday.

About 360 students, comprising delegations from 77 countries are participating in the Model UN, which is patterned after the actual assembly.

MacVane Will Speak Today

John MacVane, internationally known commentator and veteran newspaperman, will speak at 10 a.m. today in the Union Ballroom for Tech's Model United Nations.

His topic will be "Is the United Nations Doing Its Job?" A seasoned United Nations correspondent for ABC News, MacVane has specialized in foreign affairs since serving throughout World War II as a political and combat correspondent in Europe and Africa.

At the outbreak of World War II, MacVane was in Paris and covered the fall of France, the government's flight to London, the first blitz, battles in North Africa, the re-entry into France and fighting in Berlin.

He has authored the book, "Journey Into War", concerning the African campaign, and a pamphlet, "Ambassador Extraordinary," written for the Public Affairs Committee in 1961.

MacVane's talk and all other meetings of the Model U.N. are open to the public.

Johnson Dumps Water On Negotiation Rumors

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second day in a row, President Johnson publicly dumped cold water Thursday on recurrent talk about negotiating with the Communists on Viet Nam.

And on the military side, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara defended on Capitol Hill the broadened American combat role in the Southeast Asian conflict.

McNamara said after testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee that the new U. S. jet bombings in South Viet Nam are a change of tactics and equipment, not policy. He noted the House and Senate had voted virtually unanimously last August for the Southeast Asia resolution giving Johnson broad backing for the use of armed force.

The congressional debaters again divided, with Acting Senate Republican Leader Thomas H. Kuchel of California defending Johnson while two of the President's own Democratic party members, Sens. Wayne Morse of Oregon and Stephen M. Young of Ohio, attacked administration policy.

Johnson's dim view of any negotiating with the Reds at this time was underlined again by presidential press secretary George E. Reedy when reporters wanted to know about U. N. Secretary-General U Thant's efforts. Thant said Wednesday he has made concrete proposals aimed at bringing peace to Viet Nam.

Reedy said he is standing on Wednesday's White House statement that, "There are no meaningful proposals for negotiations before our government." "The President has not authorized any negotiations," he added. "We are not contemplating any negotiations. There are no proposals before the President for negotiations. The United States has not authorized anybody to make any contacts."

The White House disclaimer applied also to other diplomatic probes by the British, French Russians, and others aimed at bringing the Viet Nam conflict to the conference table.

Reedy reasserted Johnson's position that the conflict would disappear if the Communists started living up to their 1954 Geneva conference commitment not to interfere in South Viet Nam. Since neither Peking nor Hanoi has shown signs of abandoning its drive to the south and the United States is not willing to pull out in the U. S. view, there is no basis for negotiations now.

Bureau Battles Magazine Swindlers

By BOB COCKRUM
Staff Writer

If something is too good to be true, it usually isn't. Battling the shysters in the business world is the Better Business Bureau. College students are not prime targets of swindlers, but there are those who cater to lightening a student's bankroll. Last week magazine salesmen were escorted off the Tech campus when they were discovered trying to sell magazines in the dorms. College regulations prohibit such selling techniques regardless of the legitimacy of the business.

According to Tom Watson, director of the Lubbock Better Business Bureau, there are salesmen, usually young men, who specialize in offering "hope chest material" to women students.

"Another method of taking students' money is to sell them dictionaries along with the feature of having the company do research for the student. The dictionaries are good bands but priced higher than they would be in a bookstore. The research work they do for the student is questionable."

Watson said there are no new methods of taking people for "suckers," just new products and services. Electronics is the "glamor baby" attracting people now. The bureau chief said, home study courses are a problem. The majority of correspondence schools are legitimate, but the trouble lies with the salesmen.

"Often they lead people to believe that a job is guaranteed to the prospective student upon completion of the course. This is not true, and the school will not stand behind the salesmen," Watson said.

"People are generally gullible because there is a touch of larceny in them—this makes them go along with some schemes, no matter how ridiculous."

The "model home" is an old shady sales technique. The homeowner is offered a discount on such things as aluminum siding if he will allow the salesman to bring future customers around to show off the siding in actual use. The siding has an artificially high price on it. The customer ends up paying more than the regular market price even with his "discount".

Another scheme coming into the Lubbock area which could affect Tech students is the "debt consolidation."

"These debt consolidators offer to take over a person's bill if he is swamped by payments. The shyster says he will get the creditors to agree to reduce the monthly payments or he will pay off all the bills. There is no guarantee that the creditor will agree to such a plan, and after his victim pays him an exorbitant fee plus additional interest, the consolidator still may not pay the bills.

Some operators concentrate on business firms. One method of bilking the businessman is with a "simulated invoice." It looks like an invoice for advertising bought in a city directory. Many times companies will authorize payment without a thorough checking.

Familiar to most people including students is request through the mail to send money to a charitable organization. Many times things such as key chains are included. Bureau records show that very little of the money sent in reaches the charity.

"No one is obligated to pay for unordered merchandise unless they use it, nor are they obligated to return it unless the sender has included postage for that purpose. No acknowledgement of receipt is required. If a person receives threatening letters through the mail saying he had better pay up or he will have his credit rating ruined, the letter should be turned over to the local postal inspector's office," said Watson.

Earn - money - at - home - or in - the - dorm—schemes should be avoided unless a complete investigation has been made.

Watson said he did not believe there should be more laws to curb these rackets.

Two Being Questioned In Sneed Hall Robbery

Two men are under questioning by the dean of men today in connection with a Thursday morning burglary of the Sneed Hall kitchen.

At 1:40 a. m. Traffic-Security officers responded to a call that some men were breaking into the dormitory kitchen. Entrance was gained through a basement window in a ladies' restroom.

Tom Green, wing supervisor, told officers he saw two men come out of a basement window with a box of food. According to Bill Daniels, chief security officer, the loot was a loaf of bread, a can of tuna fish, and a bag of potato chips.

Charles Cunningham, Sneed dorm supervisor, accompanied officers to the rooms of the boys Green identified as coming out of the basement window.

Neither boy was in his room, but a loaf of bread of the same brand used in the kitchen was found in one room.

Lewis N. Jones, dean of men, said he expects a decision in the case within a week.

Women Enrollment Jumps 192% During Past Decade

Close Circle To Traffic

THE PROBLEM IS TRAFFIC—NOT PARKING.
This observation by Wilmer Smith, member of the Board of Directors, has several possible solutions. Solutions which, if put into action, could help eliminate unnecessary traffic on campus.

The first, and probably the most necessary action, is to close the Circle to all traffic except faculty between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Obviously this would necessitate restricting the Science Quadrangle parking lot to faculty members only. However, faculty members parking in that area would not create much of a traffic problem.

Students cause most traffic problems around the Circle between classes. Many students are involved in car pooling—an arrangement whereby friends with cars take each other to class and jam up parking areas and the Circle.

After classes some students, waiting to pick up friends, drive around the circle several times until their friends get out of class. This creates an unnecessary excess of traffic in the area.

With the Circle accessible only to faculty members, the main cause of the traffic problem would be eliminated and accidents involving pedestrians would be lessened.

To avoid the objectionable military garrison appearance, portable ports of entry stations — such as sawhorses — could be used between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. only. They could then be removed from sight after 5 p.m.

A permanent, inconspicuous port of entry station could be built at the Circle entrance near the Traffic-Security Building. This station, operated electronically, could provide faculty members entrance to the Circle and Science Quadrangle parking lot.

Too, if ports of entry are necessary on all Circle entrances, they do not necessarily have to look like old guardhouses. The stations could be used as information points for campus visitors and could be architecturally attractive.

Another hazardous area which needs immediate attention is the block in front of the Tech Union.

According to Smith, the block of street in front of the Union is the most dangerous area on campus. This area should also be restricted to all traffic between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Or, it should be eliminated as a street entirely.

Until some action is taken, traffic remains a serious problem and pedestrians are in danger crossing the streets, especially around the Circle and in front of the Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the second part of an address made by Texas Tech's Dean of Women before the Board of Directors. This part deals with "The Program for Women at Texas Tech." We will publish the address in parts until completed. We feel it is of general interest to students and of particular interest to the coed.)

By FLORENCE L. PHILLIPS

Because the education of women has always been a major concern of Texas Technological College, there has been a remarkable growth in the enrollment of women students.

During the past decade, there has been a 192 per cent increase in the women's enrollment as compared with only a 102 per cent increase in the total enrollment of college and university women in the nation. Statistics descriptive of enrollments of women in Texas Tech and in institutions of higher education in the United States are included in the appendix.

Traditionally, women have been given a place of distinction at Texas Tech. Two women were on the original Board of Directors of the College. A total of five women have been board members and two women have served as acting presidents during the forty years of Texas Tech's existence. The original Librarian and the first Head of the Speech Department were also women.

Mrs. Mary Woodward Doak was the first Dean of Women. She served in this capacity for 20 years, 1925-1945, and as Professor of English, 1945-1949. When Dean Doak retired, the Lubbock-Avalanche-Journal commented that "she has been as much a part of Texas Tech as the Administration Building and even more essential to its well being."

Dean Doak was the founder of the Association of Women Students and the first dormitory association.

She organized Forum, the forerunner of Mortar Board; Junior Council, the honorary fraternity for junior women; and the social clubs that preceded five of our national sorority groups. Her organization of the Council of Women Graduates led to Texas Tech's affiliation with the American Association of University Women.

Dean Doak was a native Texan and she represented the finest qualities typical of the state. She has been described as a woman of wisdom, balance, breadth and charm.

She combined energy and enthusiasm with high standards and high ideals and scholarly and intellectual interests to build a most outstanding program for women on this campus.

Her significance to the institution which she inspired for a quarter of a century is reflected in the program to this day. Recently, the Southern Association for Colleges and Schools stated in their evaluation that the program in women's affairs at Texas Tech was comparable to some of the best in the nation. The strong foundation built by Mary Woodward Doak made this evaluation possible.

The Association of Women Students

All women students are automatically members of the Association of Women Students (AWS), an organization which is concerned with the special problems of women's education, women's standards, and programs of special interest to women.

The purposes of the Association are: to promote and maintain the highest educational, cultural, and social standards of collegiate life; to encourage high scholarship; to establish and maintain high ideals in matters of personal conduct and high standards that are conducive to living together on campus; to develop leadership and a sense of individual responsibility by encouraging participation in student government; and to serve as a coordinating body in all activities concerning women.

The governing body is composed of officers who have been elected by the women students, and representatives from each of the 38 organizations for women. The Texas Tech Association of Women Students was the first in the state to affiliate with the Intercollegiate Association of Women Students, a national organization made up of member schools throughout the United States.

At the beginning of the school year, the Association of Women Students assists in orienting freshman women to college life through the Big Sister—Little Sister Program, the Howdy Party, and orientation programs in the residence halls.

Other activities and projects include Women's Day, Dad's Day, Tech Tips—A Handbook for Women Students, Women's Residence Council, President's Hostesses, Town Girls' Club, Women's Service Organization, AWS Judiciary Council, and the Activity Point System. A description of these activities and projects is included in the appendix.

Residence Halls

Texas Technological College houses 3,305 women on campus in nine residence halls well designed for the purpose. The main objective of the residence hall system is to provide an atmosphere of living consistent with and conducive to the best academic achievement.

The college believes the experience in group living and the self-discipline inherent in dormitory life are important parts of the development of the mature person.

On our campus, the residence hall part of the collegiate way of life has not tended in the direction of a hotel business; rather it has been an integral part of the broad instructional program of higher education. The residence hall program was designed to add significantly to the individual's intellectual, personal, cultural and social development.

The philosophy of the college in regard to the educational benefits which accrue to students who live on campus has resulted in the recruitment of trained and experienced resident counselors who provide systematic and professionally oriented counseling for students.

Texas Tech is distinctive in the staffing of residence halls with Residence hall activities have been centered in a student government organization which has functioned in each of the nine women's halls. The hall officers and legislators are elected from among residents on the basis of qualifications in scholarship, leadership, and citizenship.

With the Resident Counselor, they conduct the business of the dormitory, maintain acceptable standards of conduct, enforce residence regulations, and promote intellectual, social, and cultural activities.

The Women's Residence Council has served as a coordinating body for all of the halls, and it is composed of the president and the vice president of each residence unit. The Chairman of the Council is the First Vice President of the Association of Women Students.

The members of the Women's Residence Council discuss questions pertaining to regulations and student government which arise in the individual residence halls, and they make recommendations to the Association of Women Students for changes and revisions. The major all-campus project of the Women's Residence Council is the annual Carol of Lights.

Tech Professors Have Unique Faculty Club

Tech professors have their own private world.

Located in the Tech Union, the Faculty Club was organized in 1954. Chairman Winfried G. Steglich said the only one he had seen to compare with it was the club at the University of Houston which was built from private funds.

In most schools the faculty is delegated to a dark corner of the Student Union. There is no place professors can socialize in peace and quiet. As one faculty member put it, "I appreciate the Faculty Club every time I walk through the juke-box area of the Union."

Membership in the club is limited to full-time faculty members and the administration. The only other people allowed in this private club are guests of the members and the Board of Directors when it has its luncheons and meetings. The hardest house-rule to enforce is the one which says that eligible members who do not join cannot be guests.

The ones who join by paying the yearly dues can enjoy reading and watching color television in the lounge. In the morning they drink coffee at a snack bar that doubles as a cafeteria at noon. There is also a banquet room with a dance floor for special occasions that can be rented for private parties given by individual members. Another convenience is the privilege of charging all meals and snacks.

Every year the club sponsors a coffee at the beginning of the year for new faculty members, plus a big Christmas party.

But what the professors seem to enjoy most is airing their gripes and ideas over coffee with those in their own field and those of other fields.

Universities Sign 'Pact'

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — An inter-university venture for research and public service — the Gulf Universities Research Corp. — has been established by Texas A&M and six other schools.

The concept of a multi-million dollar Gulf Coast marine sciences center with facilities ashore and afloat for varied, cooperative research in the Gulf of Mexico and adjacent waters was disclosed after the signing of documents creating the corporation.

Rice University Chancellor Carey Coneis was chosen president.

Funds for the center, yet to be located, are to be solicited from federal agencies, foundations and other sources.

Proposals call for a total investment within five years of $13,000,000 in facilities and $12,000,000 in basic research, engineering, and operational support functions and services.

Dispute Pertinent To MUN

A recent Syria-Israel border dispute is pertinent to the MUN topic, "The Jordan River Conflict."

An unarmed Arab commission was attacked last week by an Israeli force of undetermined strength at the proposed Mukheiba Dam site on the Syria-Jordan border.

The commission was considering the termination of plans for the erection of the proposed dam in an effort to achieve an "equitable solution" to the Jordan River issue. The dam would divert the Jordan's headwaters, so the Israeli government couldn't use Jordan waters to irrigate the Negev Desert.

Three persons were killed in the attack and a prominent Jordanian engineer is in critical condition.

An official from the Syrian government said, "The attack was without provocation and is indicative of the antagonistic attitude of those representing a state without legal or moral justification."

The official said his government would demand a meeting of the Security Council to consider the situation in the interest of world peace and security.

Israeli officials in Tel Aviv denied any knowledge of the attack.

Reds On Grill Again Indictment Dismissed In Meridian Murder Case

WASHINGTON (P) — The federal government renewed its long legal battle with the U.S. Communist party Thursday. A grand jury indicted the party again for failing to register as a Communist action group.

This time, however, the Justice Department took pains to avoid the loopholes that brought about an appeal court reversal of a 1962 conviction on the same charge.

Gus Hall, spokesman for American Communists, described Thursday's reindictment as "red smog, mixed with Texas dust."

He called it a move to silence opposition to American military involvement in South Viet Nam.

A federal grand jury in Washington reindicted the party for failure to register as a Communist-action organization under the terms of the Subversive Activities Control Act.

"We, of course, will go to court and fight it," Hall said. At a news conference at the party's headquarters here, Hall charged:

"This new indictment of the Communist party is to create an atmosphere of hysteria and emergency for the purpose of silencing all opposition to the conduct of an unpopular, undeclared and, therefore, unconstitutional and unjust war of aggression in South Viet Nam."

The 12-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury, have specified that the party not only failed to register, but did so in the full knowledge that a volunteer was available and willing to register on behalf of the party.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in reversing the 1962 conviction, ruled on Dec. 17, 1963, that the government had the burden of proving — but had failed to prove — that a volunteer, unconcerned about possible self-incrimination, was available to sign the registration form and statement for the party. The appeals court returned the case to the District Court here for either a new trial, if the government requested it, or a directed verdict of acquittal.

Thursday's indictment charges the party with willful failure to register on each of the 11 days from Feb. 13 to Feb. 23 this year.

MERIDIAN, Miss (P) — The tough felony indictment in Mississippi's case of the three murdered civil rights workers was dismissed Thursday—leaving 17 men facing a misdemeanor charge.

U.S. Dist. Judge Harold Cox, in granting a defense plea, said no federal law was embraced by the federal indictment and therefore his court had no jurisdiction.

In Washington, a Justice Department spokesman said the ruling will be studied before it is decided whether to file an appeal. There was no further comment.

A copy of the ruling was sent immediately to the department, which recently clashed with Judge Cox in blocking some perjury indictments he wanted against civil rights workers.

Maximum Punishment

The charge thrown out by Judge Cox carried a maximum punishment of 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

A second federal indictment against the men has a maximum of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine. The defense wanted it dismissed, too, but the judge did not mention it. It alleges conspiracy, involving law officers, to illegally punish the three men.

No charges have been filed by the state; the federal government cannot file murder charges in the case.

The Neshoba County grand jury had the case before it twice. Each time it was shelved on the ground that no investigation was possible without all FBI evidence. The Justice Department has been loath to reveal all such evidence before the federal trial.

All Freed

All of the men were freed on bond after their arrest — $5,000 on the felony and $750 on the misdemeanor. The defense was expected to seek reduction in bond.

Eighteen men were indicted. One of them — James E. Jordan — ranks as a government witness. His case was moved to Atlanta, Ga. The defense dismissal appeal was for 17 men.

"The indictment surely states a heinous crime against the State of Mississippi but not a crime against the United States," Judge Cox said.

"This is a court of limited jurisdiction. The indictment simply does not charge any of these defendants with any offense against the laws of the United States."

Among those indicted were the two top lawmen of Neshoba County — Sheriff Lawrence Rainey, 41, and Deputy Cecil Price, 26. They remained on the job, except for a brief intermission for indictment.

Viet Nam Story Has Weird Aid Of Fantasy

An AP News Analysis

A weird sort of unreality about discussions and maneuvers concerning Viet Nam would make it all seem comic if the situation were not so ominous.

Much of what goes on seems in the realm of fantasy: The latest developments in Saigon, the talk of French, Russians and some Americans about negotiations, and even Thant's efforts.

An example is the upshot of the latest South Viet Nam coup. The assignment of the deposed strong man, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, to what may be an empty mission to the United Nations, can add to the confusion.

Khanh is supposed to present Saigon's case against North Viet Nam. But the Americans do not want South Viet Nam taken up by the Security Council, contending it is not the proper forum for that issue.

Theoretically, Khanh could lodge a complaint and ask to be heard on the ground his country was aggressed and there was a threat to peace. But he cannot present a resolution. That must be done by a member of the council.

What about the talk of negotiations? This implies a ceasefire first. But Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai says there can be no ceasefire and no talk without complete U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam in advance. Obviously if the Americans withdraw completely they would have little leverage for bargaining.

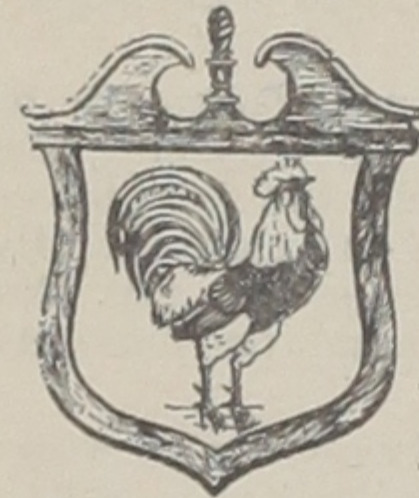

The Chinese, who are calling the shots so far as the Communist side is concerned, showed little interest in a cease-fire and negotiations.

Here again is a riddle. First, the Communists will do their utmost to prevent stability in Saigon. Second, the generals and Buddhists are likely again to contribute to lack of political stability. Third, Vietnamese in any event order the unless the Americans withdraw, Viet Cong to lay down their arms? the Chinese say negotiations are impossible.

That would imply they dominate the movement, something they

Would the Chinese and North deny.

Tech-TCU Battle Tonight; Raiders Out For Victory

By MIKE WALL
News Editor

Despite the discovery of an ineligible player on the Tech basketball team, play must go on for the Raiders and it does just that at 8 p.m. in the Coliseum, when Tech takes on the TCU Horned Frogs.

Besides costing the Raiders a possible conference crown, the ineligibility rule also deprives them of their leading rebounder and second highest scorer for the season.

Besides boosting the spirit of the Tech team, one of Coach Gene Gibson's main problems will be the replacement of Norman Reuther, the Raider who was taken from the team.

The Horned Frogs are having problems of their own. Sophomore Wayne Kreis, the Froggies second high scorer and playmaker for the Fort Worth group, was dropped from the team for extra-athletic activities.

TCU will probably go with leading scorer Gary Tuner (6-6), Rich Sauer (6-3), Rodney Chitsey (6-5), Stan Farr (6-9) and Jim Torbett (6-4).

Turner is averaging over 19 points per game, but the loss of Kreis will hamper the forlorn Frogs severely.

Dub Malaise, Harold Denney, Glen Hallum and Billy Tapp will occupy their usual starting positions, with Reuther's replacement likely to be Bobby Mealsels or Russ Wilkinson.

Thus far in conference play, Tech is averaging 87.7 points per game, while the Frogs have a 84.0 average.

Since Tech's previously played games count in final conference standings for all other teams, SMU now leads the conference with an 8-3 record. But both Baylor and Texas are lurking near the Dallas team with 7-4 marks.

Pep Rally Raiders Withdraw ... Tonight

During a special called meeting at 11 p.m. Thursday, the Saddle Tramps voted to sponsor a pep rally at 7:15 p.m. tonight in the coliseum.

The meeting was called immediately following the announcement of Tech's ineligibility for the Southwest Conference basketball title.

"We are still the champs as far as we are concerned," said Ken Snyder, ex-president of the association who attended the meeting.

Tonight's pep rally will include yells led by the cheerleaders, fight song led by Dean Killion, and a speech by Dr. Paul Woods of the athletic council. The rally will be climaxed by a yell to bring the Red Raiders onto the floor at 7:30 p.m.

The Saddle Tramps will place victory signs in the dressing room and will pull the Victory Bell around campus from 5 p.m. until the pep rally.

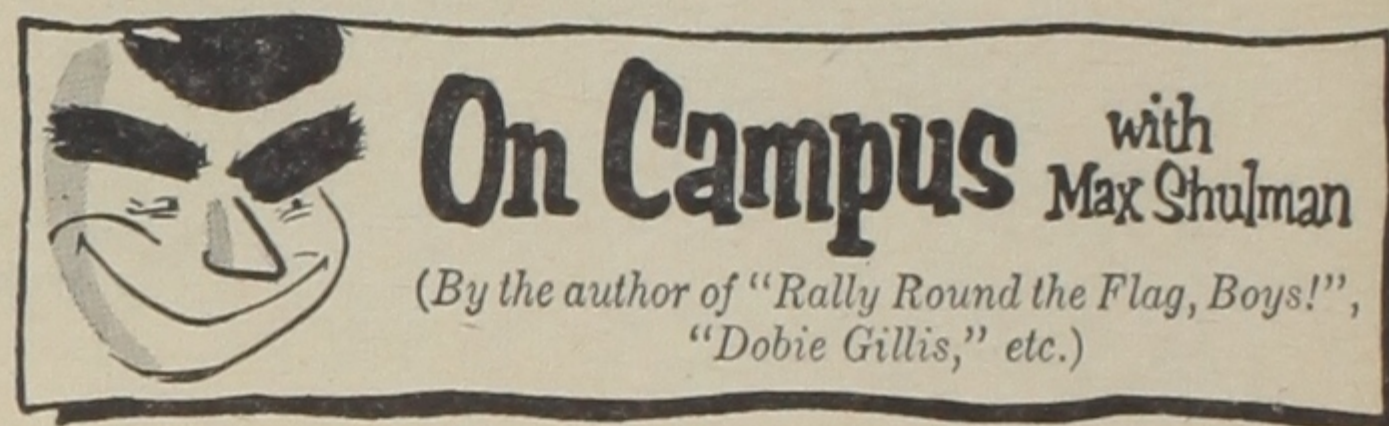

"We are asking all students and townspeople to stay on their feet during the entire game," Snyder said. "We can rest with the team during time outs. We would like to have 100 per cent attendance by both students and townspeople," he added.

(Continued from Page 1) shocking day for all of us. We would automatically disqualify Tech from the championship, Davis said, "The action is now in conference officials hands."

Davis explained that any action taken on this matter would be strictly by the conference, Texas Tech has nothing to do with it. Davis said, "This has been quite a shocking day for all of us. We have been in meetings all last night and all day today trying to figure the best way to handle this situation."

Davis closed the called meeting by saying, "I guess if we had been a last-place club and he had been a third string player it wouldn't have made any difference."

THE BEARD OF AVON

Topic for today is that perennial favorite of English majors, that ever-popular crowd pleaser, that good sport and great American—William Shakespeare (or "The Swedish Nightingale" as he is better known as).

First let us examine the persistent theory that Shakespeare (or "The Pearl of the Pacific" as he is jocularly called) is not the real author of his plays. Advocates of this theory insist the plays are so full of classical allusions and learned references that they couldn't possibly have been written by the son of an illiterate country butcher.

To which I reply "Faugh!" Was not the great Spinoza's father a humble woodcutter? Was not the immortal Isaac Newton's father a simple second baseman? (The elder Newton, incidentally, is one of history's truly pathetic figures. He was, by all accounts, the greatest second baseman of his time, but baseball, alas, had not yet been invented. It used to break young Isaac's heart to see his father get up every morning, put on uniform, spikes, glove, and cap, and stand alertly behind second base, bent forward, eyes narrowed, waiting, waiting, waiting. That's all—waiting. Isaac loyally sat in the bleachers and yelled "Good show, Dad!" and stuff like that, but everyone else in town sniggered derisively, made coarse gestures, and pelted the Newtons with overripe fruit—figs for the elder Newton, apples for the younger. Thus, as we all know, the famous moment came when Isaac Newton, struck in the head with an apple, leapt to his feet, shouted "Europa!" and announced the third law of motion: "For every action there is an opposite and equal reaction!"

Figs for the elder Newton, apples for the younger.

(How profoundly true these simple words are! Take, for example, Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades. Shave with a Personna. That's the action. Now what is the reaction? Pleasure, delight, contentment, cheer, and facial felicity. Why such a happy reaction? Because you have started with the sharpest, most durable blade ever honed—a blade that gives you more shaves, closer shaves, comfortabler shaves than any other brand on the market. If, by chance, you don't agree, simply return your unused Personnas to the manufacturer and he will send you absolutely free a package of Beep-Beep or any other blade you think is better.)

But I digress. Back to Shakespeare (or "The Gem of the Ocean" as he was ribaldly appellated).

Shakespeare's most important play is, of course, Hamlet (or, as it is frequently called, Macbeth). This play tells in living color the story of Hamlet, Prince of Denmark, who one night sees a ghost upon the battlements. (Possibly it is a goat he sees; I have a first folio that is frankly not too legible.) Anyhow, Hamlet is so upset by seeing this ghost (or goat) that he stabs Polonius and Brer Bodkin. He is thereupon banished to a leather factory by the king, who hollers, "Get thee to a tannery!" Thereupon Ophelia refuses her food until Laertes shouts, "Get thee to a beanery!" Ophelia is so cross that she chases her little dog out of the room, crying, "Out, damned Spot!" She is fined fifty shillings for cussing, but Portia, in an eloquent plea, gets the sentence commuted to life imprisonment. Thereupon King Lear and Queen Mab proclaim a festival—complete with kissing games and a pie-eating contest. Everybody has a perfectly splendid time until Banquo's ghost (or goat) shows up. This so unhinges Richard III that he drowns his cousin, Butt Malmsey. This leads to a lively discussion, during which everyone is killed. The little dog Spot returns to utter the immortal curtain lines:

Our hero now has croaked,
And so's our prima donna.
But be of cheer, my friends,
You'll always have Personna.

©1965, Max Shulman

Yea and verily. And when next thou buyest Personna? buyest also some new Burma Shave? regular or menthol, which soak-eth rings around any other lather. Get thee to a pharmacy!

Karnes Named Relays Referee

AUSTIN—Bob Karnes, veteran track and field coach of Drake University, has been named referee of the 38th annual Texas Relays slated for April 2-3 at Memorial Stadium on The University of Texas campus.

Karnes, a former distance star for the University of Kansas, has been Drake coach the past 10 years. His Bulldogs are an unusual highlight of the Texas Relays.

Jack Patterson, director of the Texas Relays, announced a 44-event schedule for the annual relays carnival which celebrates its 40th anniversary this spring. The meet has been held annually since 1925 except for three depression years in the mid-1930's.

Regular features of the Relays will be the seven baton events in the university division, six relays in the college division and 11 individual special events in the combined university-college class.

There will be four junior college-freshman class relays and five high school division baton races.

Rounding out the individual events will be five in the JC-fresh class, four high school events and two special girls' races—100-yard dash and 440-yard relay.

GIVE 'EM HELL RAIDERS!

An Editorial:

Our Champions — The Red Raiders

NEVER IN THE HISTORY of Texas Tech has a team worked so hard, so devotedly to bring honor and glory to their alma mater.

Never has a team suffered through so many trials and yet each time rallied triumphantly.

Today the Red Raiders are confronted with the most difficult test of their strength — to carry on in the finest traditions of outstanding sportsmanship.

Loss of an opportunity to win the Southwest Conference Basketball crown comes — no doubt — as a personal defeat for each member of the team.

To the Raider fans, this tragic discovery of the Raiders ineligibility to compete could give birth to disillusionment if it were not for our determination that such disillusionment never occurs regardless of what has happened.

Defeat can and must be turned to victory. If we can prove to the world the Raiders are still the champions in the real sense, then we shall have scored the greatest victory ever possible.

If we can withstand all these trials and unite ourselves, back the Raiders and win the remaining games, then everyone must admit the conference crown rightfully belongs to us.

If we can do these things, then history shall declare us the champions and shall record the 1964-65 Red Raider team among the greatest.

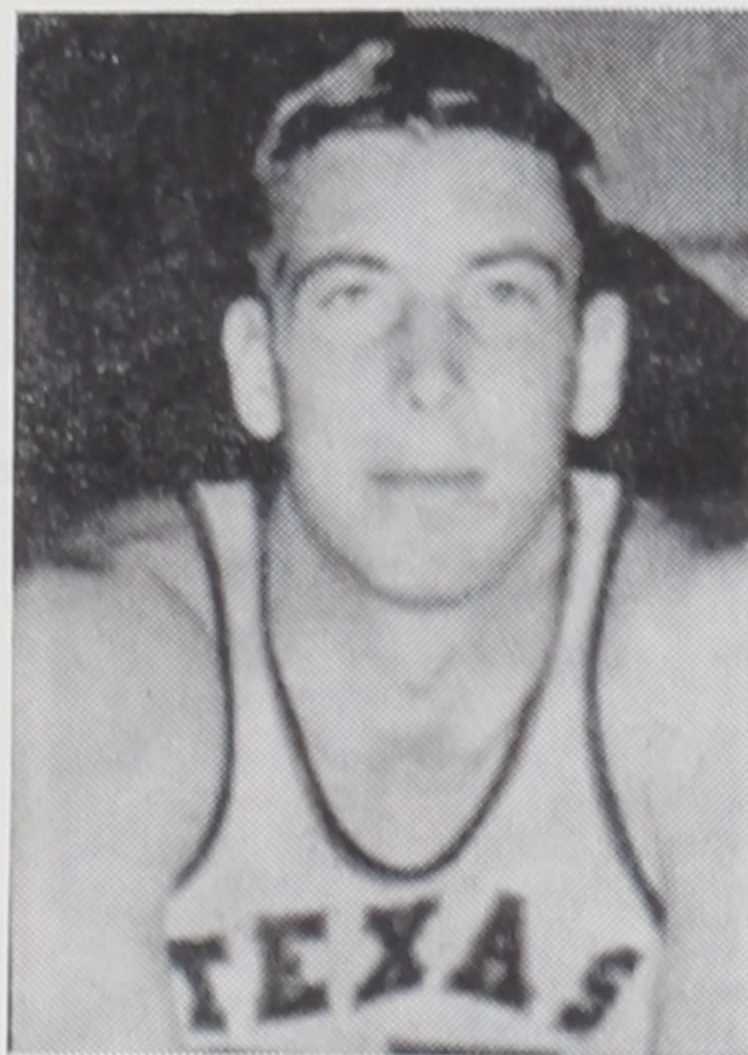

It remains for us — the loyal fans — to create tonight a school spirit unprecedented anywhere in the conference.

We must show our gratitude to the men on the team and their coaches that we have not forgotten their efforts.

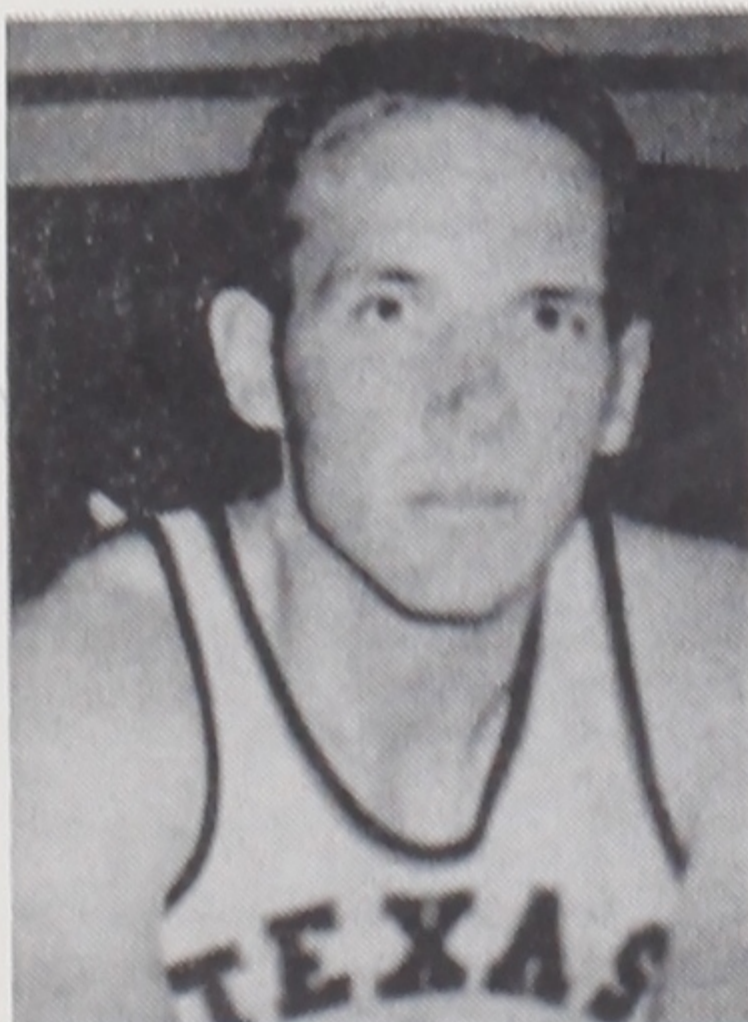

Coach Gene Gibson says the members of the team are among the finest individual athletes he has ever seen. He believes they are made of the material common only to the greatest sportsmen.

We feel the same. To us they are now the champions and shall ever be.

— New Co-Captains Set —

'No. 10' On Line Tonight As Raiders Battle Frogs

Texas Tech, leading the Southwest Conference race with no chance for the championship, tries for win No. 10 tonight by taking on the TCU Horned Frogs.

Tech withdrew from the conference title running Thursday afternoon when school officials disclosed that Norman Reuther, second highest scorer on the team, had been scholastically ineligible since the beginning of the semester.

As a result, the Raiders enter tonight's game minus a starter as well as incentive for a berth in the NCAA regional tournament in Manhattan, Kans., in two weeks.

Coach Gene Gibson is expected to start senior Royce Woolard tonight in Reuther's forward position, although he said Russ Wilkinson, Dave Olsen and Bob Measels will all see some duty.

Joins Other Starters

Woolard, who was a starter at the beginning of the season, joins seniors Glen Hallum and Harold Denney, junior Dub Malaise and sophomore Billy Tapp in the starting lineup.

The three seniors—Hallum, Denney and Woolard—will serve as team tri-captains for the remainder of the season.

The Horned Frogs have problems of their own, although not of the same variety as Tech's. They lost Wayne Kreis, highest scorer on the team, Wednesday when he was suspended from the team for playing cards.

TCU also suffered two casualties in the Tuesday loss to Texas A&M—center Steve Farr and guard Rodney Chitsey. Farr dislocated his elbow in the contest, but is listed as a tentative starter. Chitsey injured his ankle and is not expected to start.

TCU Starters Set

Froggie Coach Buster Brannon will start Gary Turner and Jim Torbett at forwards and Garvin Isaacs and Rich Sauer at guards, in addition to Farr at center.

Turner is TCU's leading scorer over the season, averaging 19.7 points a game. Farr scores at an 11.3 clip, Sauer at 11.2 and Chitsey at 12.9.

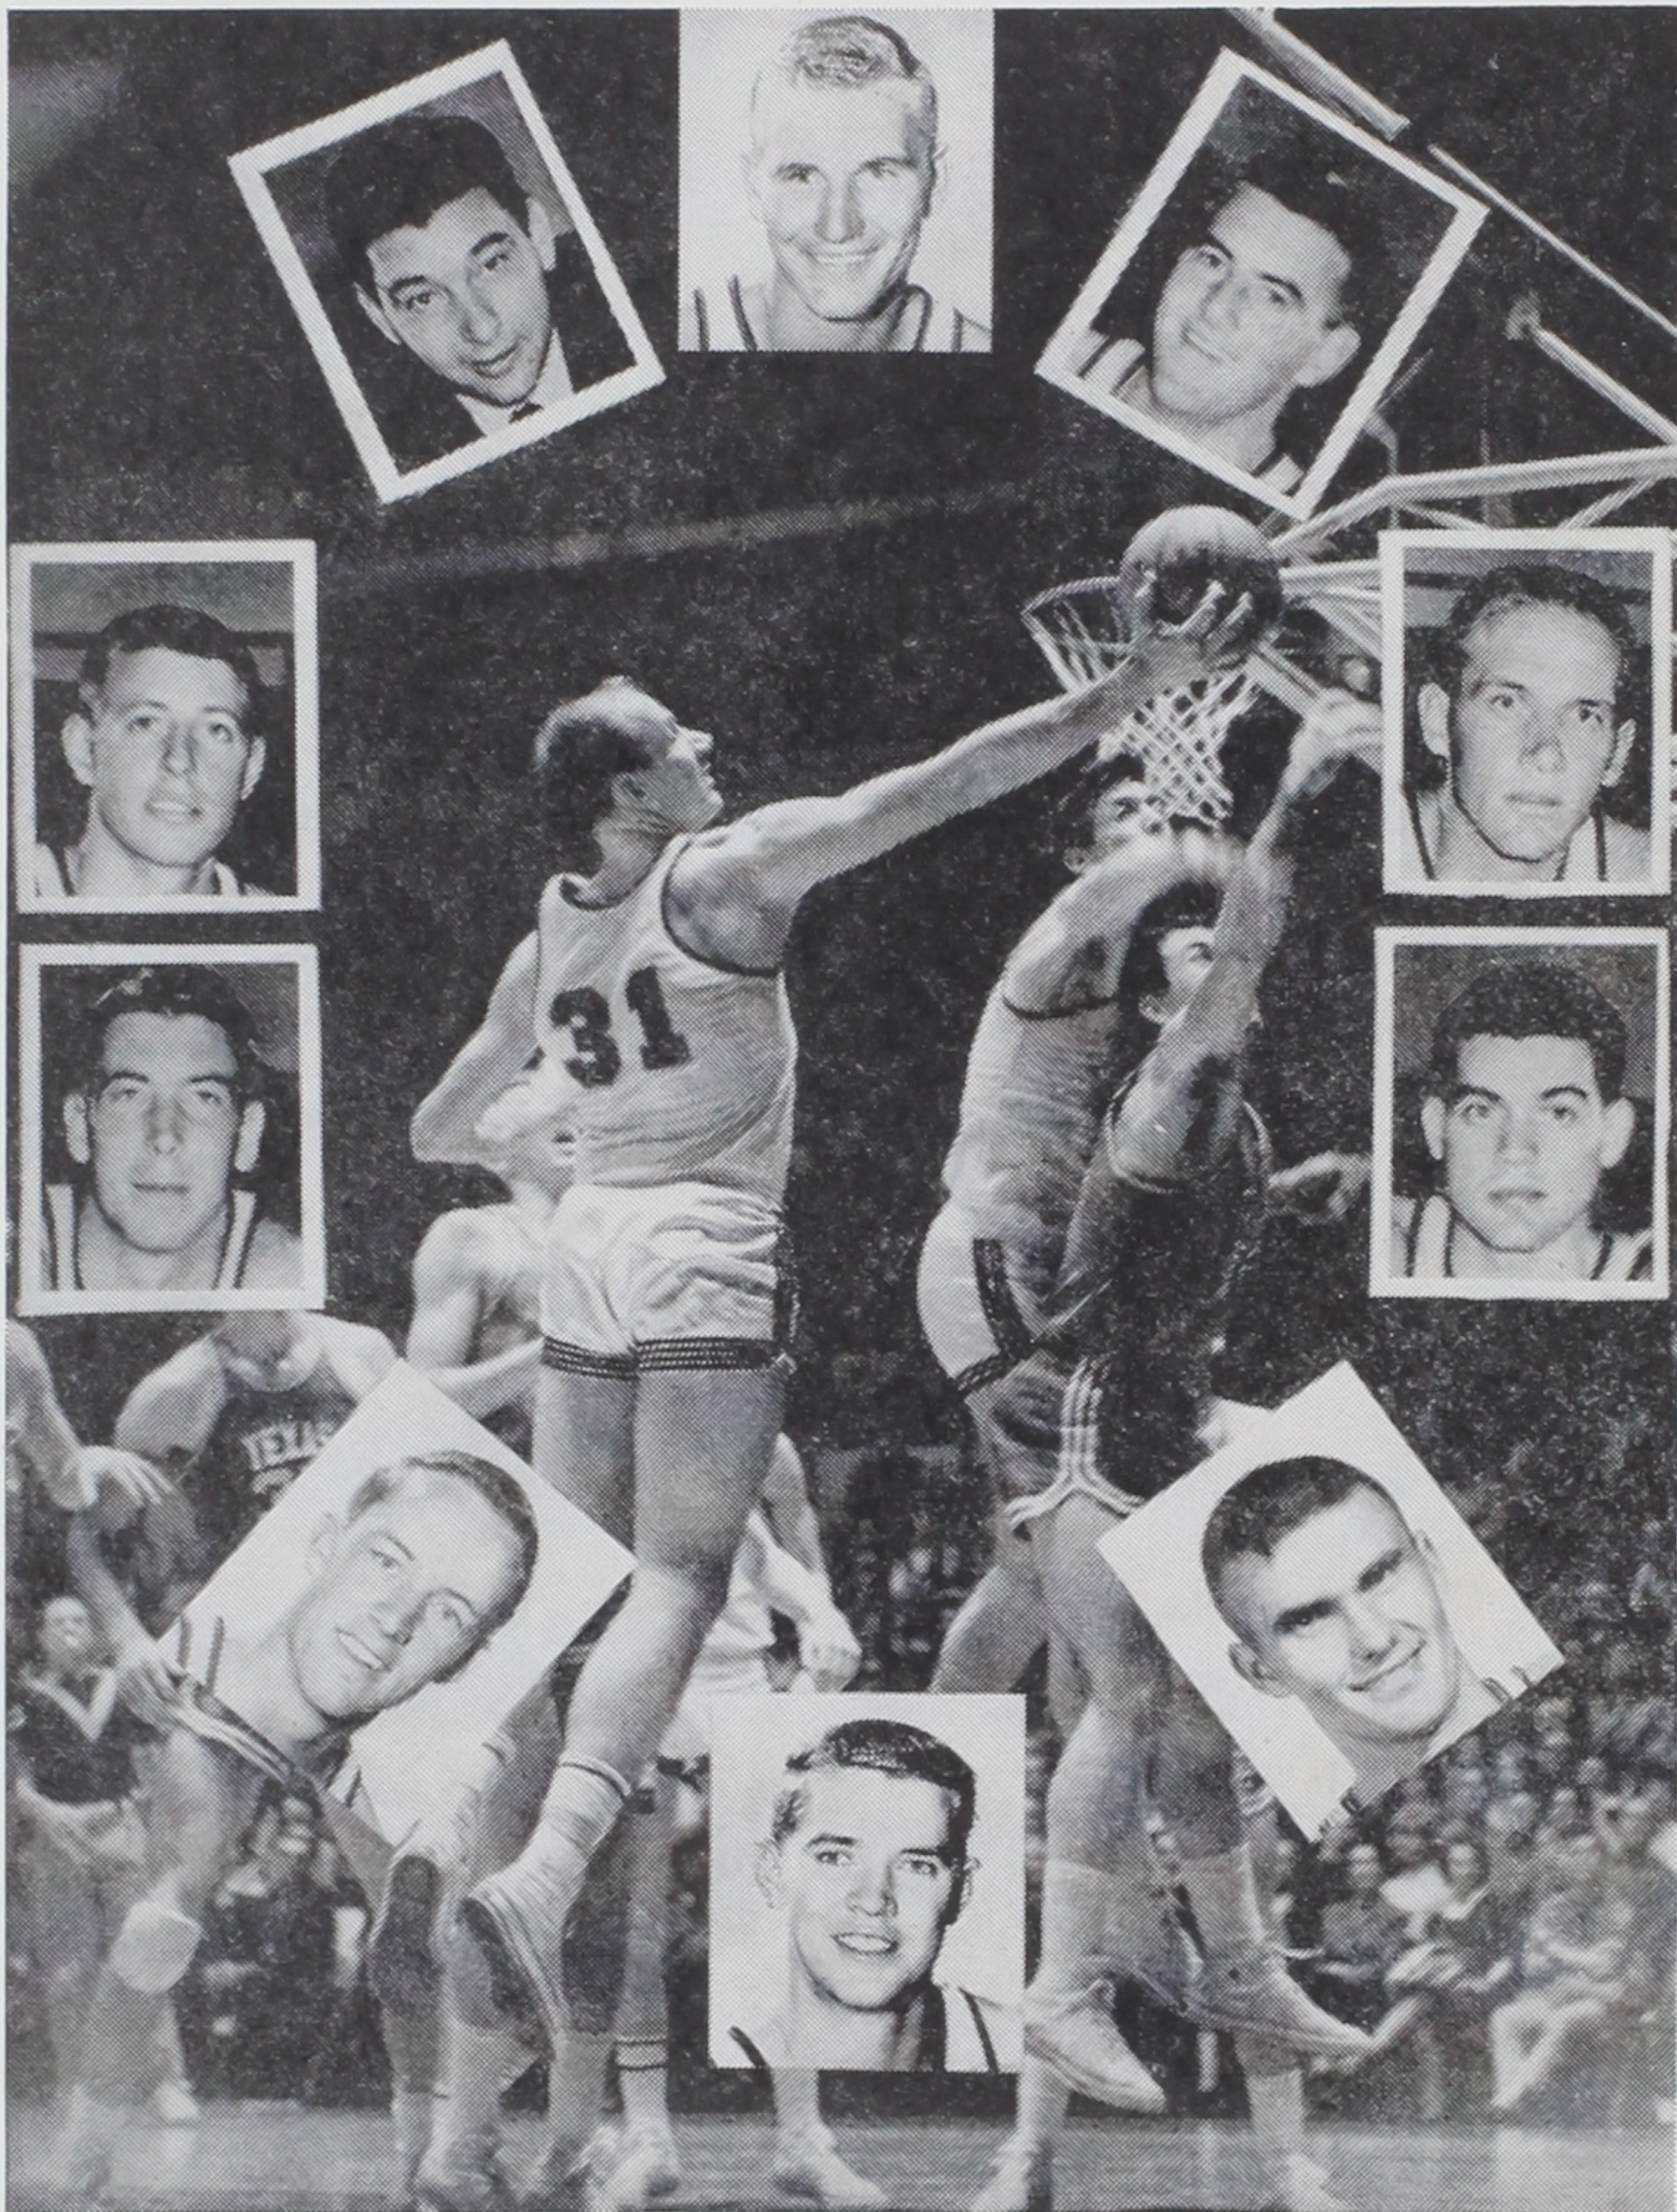

For the Raiders, Malaise tops the scoring over the year with a 23.8 mean, followed by Denney with 17.2 and Hallum with 11.2.

Tech defeated TCU, 108-94, in their first meeting this year at Fort Worth. The Frogs' point production represented the biggest output against the Raiders in conference play this season. It was also the Raider high. TCU is 2-9 for the season in conference play, good for seventh place in the SWC standings.

SMU On Inside Track

With Tech out of the running, Southern Methodist has the inside track on the play-off berth. The Mustangs stand 8-3 in conference, followed by Baylor and Texas with 7-4 marks. A&M has a remote chance at a tie with a 6-5 mark. There are three games remaining in the race.

All of Tech's games will count in the conference standings, but the Raiders are considered ineligible for first place.

'Unfortunate Error' Kills Crown Hopes

A combination of unfortunate circumstances forced Tech to end its competition for the Southwest Conference basketball crown this year, but fans still vowed to back the Raiders in the three remaining games.

Thursday evening in a press conference it was announced that Norman Reuther, a regular starter for the Raiders, was scholastically ineligible due to a lack of required hours credit.

The lack was not discovered until Wednesday by Howard Grubbs, SWC Association executive secretary. Grubbs contacted Dr. J. William Davis, faculty chairman of the Athletic Council, who checked and found Reuther ineligible to play.

Dr. Davis attributed the late discovery of the discrepancy to an oversight and "honest error" on the part of persons responsible for checking eligibility.

He, however, accepted full responsibility himself for the error. Another factor in causing the error was the lateness in the season in which grades became available, according to Davis.

Commenting on the situation, Ronnie Botkin, Student Association president, said, "Things like this happen no matter how much checking is done. I hope all students will continue to support their basketball team."

Mike Horridge, Saddle Tramps' president, said, "I hope that all Tech students will support them and not adopt the attitude all is lost."

B. E. Rushing, Jr., Red Raider Club president, commented, "I believe the Red Raider basketball team are champions regardless of the fact they have relinquished their right to compete. The next three games will prove them to be an outstanding basketball squad."

Scholastic eligibility rules require a player to pass nine hours of work in a given semester. Reuther did so.

The rules also say a player must pass 20 semester hours of work in the two preceding semesters, and Reuther passed only 19. A player of Reuther's classification is required to have accumulated 57 hours of credit; he has 63.

Davis said, "At mid-term, I checked with the registrar's office and learned unofficially that Reuther had passed the required nine hours. We checked further to make certain he had sufficient cumulative hours. It just didn't occur to me to check on the 20-hour rule for the last two semesters."

When the fall semester grades were posted officially this month, the mistake was still overlooked.

If Reuther passes the required number of hours this semester, he will be able to play basketball next fall.

Reuther, a pre-med student, started the fall semester carrying 16 hours of work. He dropped two hours and then failed a five-hour chemistry course. That left him passing nine hours, which was sufficient for one term but insufficient for two successive terms when added to the 10 hours he passed last spring.

Although Davis took responsibility for the mixup which led to Thursday's action, athletic director Polk Robison made the point that several other persons are responsible for checking on athletes' grades.
