

Top Students Hit 'No Talk' Tech Policy

By BARBARA WORLEY
Staff Writer

Problems of Texas Tech's Arts and Sciences honors program, poor relations with the administration and the worth of demonstrations were among major topics discussed by four student leaders in a public forum Sunday night.

Daily Treador Editor Bronson Havard acted as moderator for the group, which included Ronnie Botkin, Mike Stinson, Steve George and Steve Magee.

Magee, chief justice of the Tech Supreme Court, was first to criticize the administration for the lack of help it has given to the honors program on campus.

"We have no money to develop our honors program," he said, "because we have no administrative help. They won't even recognize the program."

'Sit And Watch'

George added that the attitude of the administration was to sit back and watch the program, to see if it was going to work. "They'll back it if it's a winner."

Stinson then went on to say the administration needed some sort of stimulation. "They know what is going on, but they won't talk," he said.

He recalled a story that described the administration as wanting to "run a school all right, but one without students."

He added, "They found out that there was no such thing as a school without students, so they had to condescend to let us come in so they could call it a school."

Botkin, in defense of the administration, said there is a definite lack of communication between the students and those people who are running the college.

"I'm responsible for part of it," Botkin said, "because I haven't encouraged the administration or the students either to communicate with each other."

Criticizes 'Speed'

Magee then criticized the administration for the speed with which it acts on some cases and the lack of speed it uses on others, saying, "It's pretty bad when it takes them four months to set up a screening board for speakers to come on campus, but it only takes five minutes for Valdez to get kicked off."

Magee referred to an incident last year when Peter Valdez, a Socialist leader, was barred from speaking on campus.

George, Tech Union president, answered Magee by saying that the cancellation of Valdez appearance was more a mixup in communications than an act of censorship.

"But," he added, "the reaction to the Valdez affair did help to get a speaker screening board. The anger the students demonstrated after this all happened helped to get this board through."

This statement brought up the question of demonstrations as a stimulation to results.

"I'll never defend demonstrations," Botkin said. "They are used when there is a lack of a better way to express something. They are a show of immaturity and one demonstration tears down two years' work."

On-College Matters

Magee disagreed and said, "We ought to raise the roof, if we have to, on matters which are occurring inside the college . . ."

He then suggested Tech should have a system of "stump-speaking" similar to such a system at the University of Texas, "where anyone can get up and say whatever he wants without fear of expulsion."

Botkin answered this by stressing the need for more public forums, "like this one tonight."

Havard then suggested a period of questioning from those present, during which the problem of communications came up.

Magee said he thought the rapid growth of the school was closing communication channels.

Then Botkin and Stinson both cited the Treador as a main problem here, saying that there was a lack of information in the paper because it was insufficiently staffed.

Go To Meetings

Stinson suggested that if students are sufficiently interested in what is going on, they will go to committee meetings and find out.

They were then asked if they thought the atmosphere around the school was a good one for the growth of a university.

The four agreed that Tech is at a slight disadvantage in West Texas, and Magee said, "This is a conservative area. The administration needs money from the people around here, and they just would rather have this money than have stimulating and/or controversial speakers like Valdez."

In their summations, each of the four expressed optimism in the future of the school, but each added, "if Governor Connally's plan does not go through."

Botkin ended the discussion by saying the school should "recognize its weaknesses and then move forward."

Writing Campaign Inaugurated By SC

The Student Council began work Monday on an extensive letter-writing campaign to oppose the expected proposal from Gov. John Connally calling for the realignment of state colleges and universities.

Ronnie Botkin, Student Council president, said students are urged to write letters to the state representatives of their respective hometown voting districts.

Sent Home

"In order to avoid having all the letters sent from Lubbock," Botkin said, "we ask that the letters be sent home to parents, who in turn should send them to Austin."

He also urged students to get their families and friends at home to write letters to legislators concerning the issue.

Members of the Council and other students were contacting campus clubs and organizations Monday to ask them to draw up petitions to send to Connally.

Sent Together

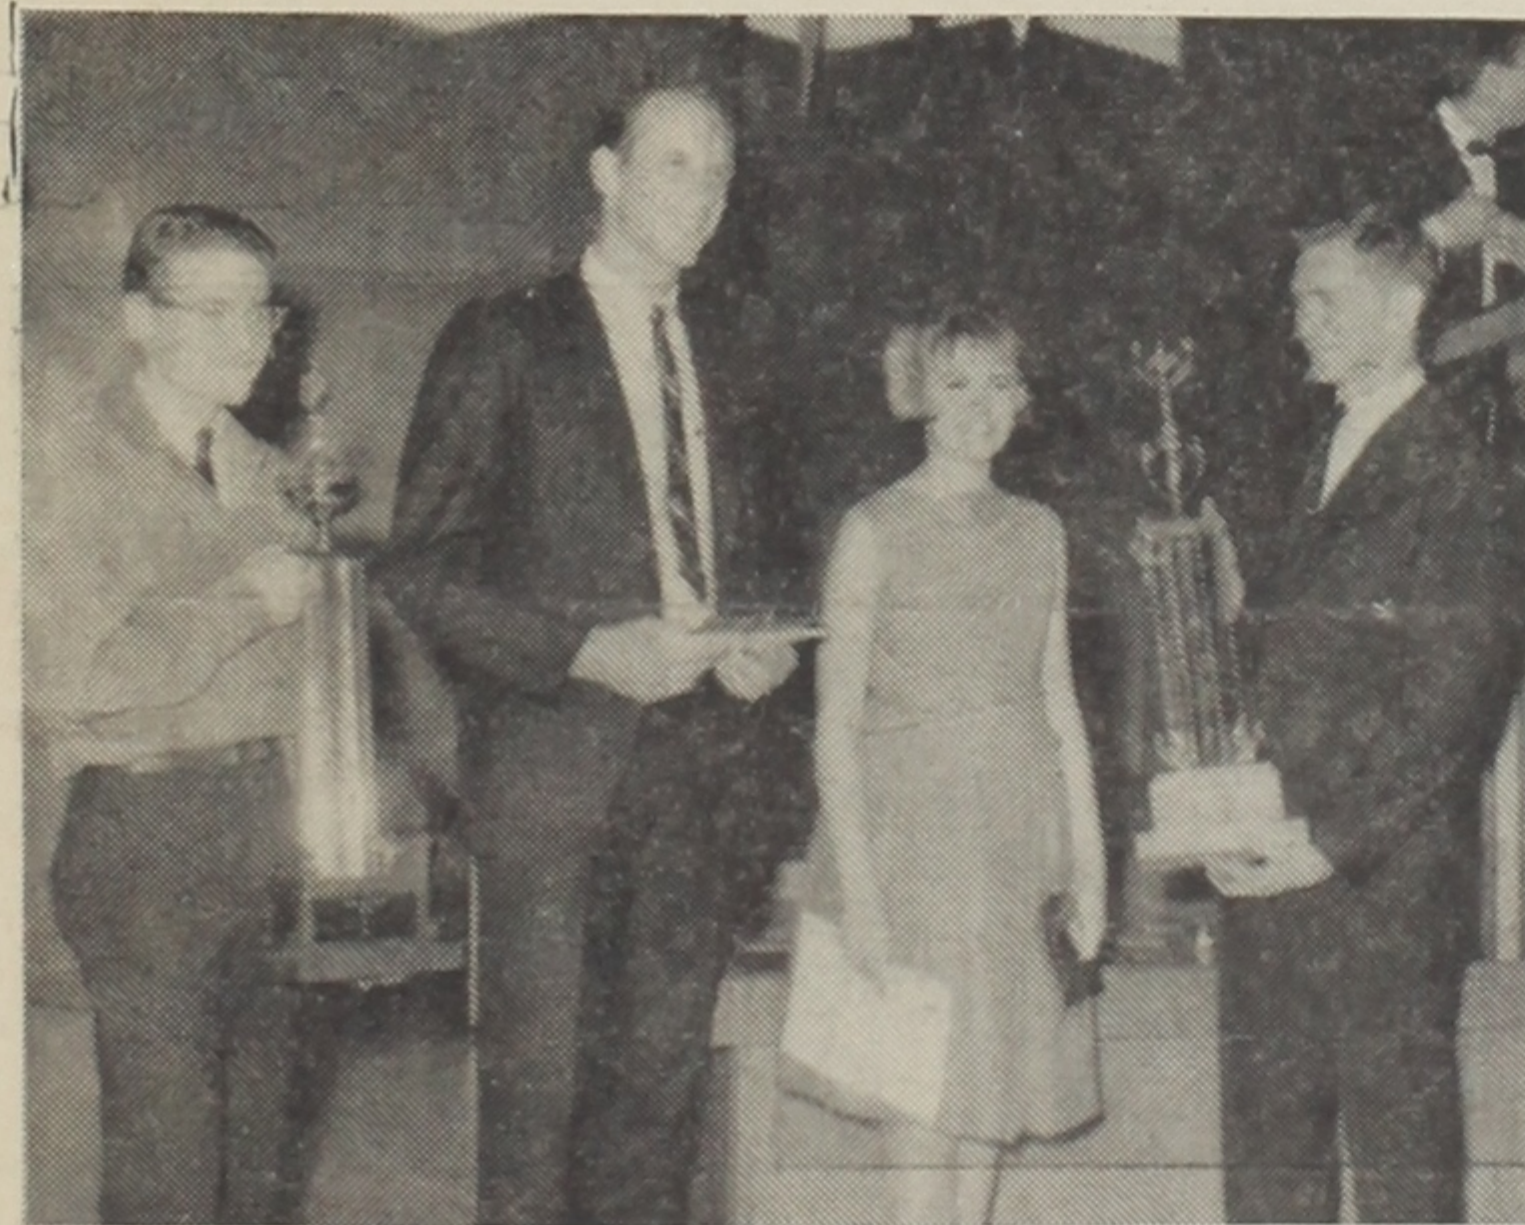

Botkin said it was hoped that these petitions could be sent the first of next week since the governor's bill may be introduced this week. He said organizations should turn in the petitions at the Council office, so they can all be sent in together.

Organizations which can't get petitions signed before then should turn them in later, he said.

Botkin urged students to stress the following points in all letters they write to their representatives:

- The educational system of the state needs revision, however, it needs extensive study.
- We do not feel that the governor's present proposals are the answer.
- Texas Tech is a multi-purpose institution.
- The inclusion of Texas Tech in a functional system stressing technology would ignore the educational needs of Texas.

Kay Burleson Crowned 1965 Miss Lubbock

Kay Burleson, junior from Friona, was crowned Miss Lubbock in competition with 27 other entries Saturday night in Municipal Auditorium.

First runner-up was Lynn Melton, sophomore, and second runner-up was Susanne Pichard, freshman.

Miss Burleson, an English major, did a soliloquy from Joan of Arc for her talent competition. Miss Burleson was asked what quality she felt was the most important for an ideal person to possess and why.

She said, "Understanding . . . not only yourself, but others. Look deeply into your own heart and find out what is there. Understanding is just one word, but it's a very big word."

Miss Burleson will compete for the Miss Texas title in Fort Worth in July.

Jan Fauske, Borger junior, was chosen "Miss Congeniality" by the other contestants.

MUN Lauds 'Superior' Delegations

Plaques for outstanding performance in Tech's Third Annual Model United Nations were presented to the United Arab Republic, represented by Forensic Union; Argentina, represented by the Baptist Student Union; and Israel, an independent delegation.

Awards were presented at the MUN banquet Saturday night in Tech Union.

Win Trophies

Spain, represented by West Hall, and the United Kingdom, Forensic Union, won trophies for overall excellence before the Security Council and General Assembly sessions, respectively.

Certificates of merit were given to Jordan, Channing Club; Mexico, Sigma Delta Pi; Albania, Thompson Hall; Venezuela, BSO; and Kuwait and Pakistan, independent delegations.

Bloc leaders Kathy Lodal, Rebecca Wilson, Linda McSpadden, Tommy Watt, Bill Lomerson and Peggy Brownlow won certificates of merit.

Near U.S. Air Base

Strikes Rout Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. helicopters and two battalions of government troops killed 10 Viet Cong and captured 10 Monday in a sweep southwestward from the Da Nang base, 380 miles northeast of Saigon.

This was one in a series of strikes to keep the Red guerrillas off balance and out of mortar range of the base, a roost of U.S. jet planes and Hawk missiles 80 miles from the frontier of Communist North Viet Nam. Ten captives of the Viet Cong were freed in the sweep.

A U.S. Army helicopter pilot and five Vietnamese soldiers were wounded. The pilot, hit in one hand, flew back to the base after providing rocket and machine-gun support for the ground forces.

The offensive southeast of Saigon, largely unopposed, for the first time drew Viet Cong mortar fire. Guerrilla shells killed two soldiers and wounded 15 in the bomb-pocked jungles.

The action showed at least some of the Red enemy held out under a rain of high explosives from U.S. Air Force 557 Canberra jets and propeller-driven Vietnamese sky-raidiers, whatever the effect on the main units in that region between the capital and the South China Sea.

AWS Urges 'Penny Pinching'

The Association of Women Students has designated Friday as "penny-a-minute" night.

On that night coed dorm residents will be able to stay out an hour later than the midnight curfew, provided they pay a penny a minute for every minute they exceed the usual limit.

That same night an all school dance, featuring the music of the "Astronauts," is scheduled in the Municipal Coliseum. Coeds will have an opportunity to stay to the end of this dance.

AWS sponsors a "penny-a-minute" night each semester. Proceeds from the night will go into the AWS budget, part of which will be contributed to the Tech Library this year.

BILL AFFECTS DROP-OUTS

AUSTIN (AP)—The House tentatively approved Monday a bill aimed at reducing high school drop-outs by raising the compulsory school attendance age to 17 from 16.

A 118-24 vote advanced the bill by Pasadena Rep. John Harrison after Rep. A. C. Atwood of Edinburg said the measure would merely keep in school a group of students who would disrupt classes. A final vote is needed.

Erick Relates Sound To Movement, Design

Erick Hawkins, who will dance at the Municipal Auditorium on Wednesday, will present a concert that is classical in its purity, relating sound to movement and design.

Hawkins, well-known among dance circles, has created with composer Lucia Dlugoszewski, and sculptor Ralph Dorazio a whole new poetic theater.

When only 15, Hawkins won a scholarship to Harvard where he majored in Greek philosophy and art. Also unlike dancers of the past his body was trained as an athlete, primarily in swimming, which somewhat predicted the "sensitive athleticism" of his later choreography.

The concert will be sponsored by the Special Events Committee of Tech Union as part of its regular series. There will be no admission charge.

PRESENTS BUST

AUSTIN (AP)—Rep. Neil Caldwell of Alvin, an artist and sculptor in his spare time, presented a bust of Gov. Connally to the governor Monday in a House ceremony.

"This afforded me an opportunity to shellac the governor and get away with it," said Caldwell, a lawyer.

Raiders Tackle Hogs Tonight

Texas Tech's Red Raiders travel to Fayetteville to face the Arkansas Razorbacks tonight at 8 p.m.

The Raiders, who are out of contention for the conference crown or a spot in the NCAA playoffs, still maintain a one-game lead over now first place Southern Methodist. Tech is 10-2 in conference action, while SMU is 9-3.

If Tech wins tonight it will mean little except in giving the players personal satisfaction that they still have the league's top performance, even though they can't win the official championship.

Arkansas enters tonight's game with a 5-7 conference mark and a 9-12 season record. In conference play they have beaten Baylor once and TCU and Rice twice.

Hog Statistics

In last week's games they lost to Texas, 74-72, and beat Rice, 77-64. In the Owl contest they played without three regulars but still had little trouble gaining the win. The Hogs sport an offensive average of 78.3 points per game in conference action while allowing opponents 77.5.

Ricky Suggs leads Arkansas in scoring with 309 points and a 14.7 average. In conference games alone he has scored 197 points for a 16.4 average.

Tech will likely open with Dub Malaise, Harold Denney, Glen Halum, Billy Tapp and either Russ Wilkinson or Royce Woolard.

Malaise Sets Pace

Malaise continues to pace the Raiders' scoring. For the season, the Odessa junior has tallied 495 points for an average of 23.6 points per game. He ranks second in conference scoring behind Texas A&M's John Beasley. Malaise has 270 points in conference play and a 22.5 average. Beasley has 330 points for a 27.5 average.

As a team the Raiders are averaging 88 points per contest in conference play while allowing opponents 78. In the first Tech-Arkansas game earlier this season, the Raiders dropped the Hogs, 93-78.

Four Cage Teams Battle Today For Intramural Playoff Berths

The all-college intramural basketball play-offs enter the semi-final round tonight with two games scheduled for 7 p.m.

Kappa Sigma will play the Hustlers in the Intramural Gym, while Phi Epsilon Kappa meets Bledsoe Hall on West Court.

In first round action Sunday,

Kappa Sigma beat Sneed, 61-56; the Hustlers dropped the Crusaders, 74-39; Phi Epsilon Kappa eased by Delta Tau Delta, 37-36; and Bledsoe beat the Right Five, 66-51.

Tonight's winners will advance to the final round which is scheduled Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Intramural Gym.

In other intramural action, a softball organizational meeting is scheduled for 5 p.m. today in the Intramural Conference Room. All club, dormitory and independent teams are requested to attend, and all rosters must be in at that time.
