

Off-Campus Dorms Get Go Ahead

FIRST OFF-CAMPUS DORM—Shown is the architect's concept of the new privately-financed dormitory to be built west of the campus near 19th St. It will house 968 students and will be expanded later to a capacity of 4,000. The one story center section will house administrative offices, recreation facilities, dining hall, lounge, and heated swimming pool.

Ground was broken Thursday afternoon for the first of several privately-financed dormitories to be built near Tech in future years.

The first part of the complex, with a capacity of 968 men is to be built on a 22-acre site west of the Brownfield Highway and north of 19th St. It is scheduled to be ready for occupancy by September, 1966. The completed project will house 4,000 students.

The ceremony, culminating months of work by Leroy Elmore, Lubbock realtor, and Solon Clements, Lubbock attorney, took place only two hours after the necessary zoning changes were approved by the Lubbock City Council.

First Phase

The first phase will consist of three buildings, with two housing 484 students each and the third to be used as a recreation, office, lounge, and swimming pool space. The two residence halls will be four stories, and the recreational-office structure will be one floor.

Each of the dorms will contain four student suites with two student rooms connected by a bath in each suite. Space will be provided in the dorms for floor lounges, laundry facilities, study and typing rooms, recreational and meeting rooms.

The dorms, which will be ready for the fall semester of next year, will be air conditioned year round. A parking lot for 518 cars and a dining room seating 630 will be constructed.

Each dorm will have a resident manager and four assistants. Daily maid service of each room and free bus service to and from the campus will be provided.

Elmore also secured permission to build a smaller dorm on College Ave. where the old Tower theater was located. No construction date was announced for this dorm. There are at least two other off-campus dorms in the planning stage, but none but Elmore's have been approved by the city.

The Toreador talked Thursday afternoon with Hugh Anderson, attorney representing Millard Seldin of Omaha, Neb. Seldin has submitted a proposal to locate a dorm on the south side of the street just East of 19th and College.

Anderson said that Seldin's plan was tabled by the zoning commission, and will not come up again until Nov. 4. After that, the City Council must approve of the request before construction can begin.

Elmore's proposal was accepted by the zoning commission on Oct. 7. There are reportedly other groups interested in building dorms, but have been waiting until the feeling of the council was known to be favourable for the projects.

The project is owned jointly by Clements and the O'Meara-Chandler Corp. of Houston. O'Meara-Chandler has built similar structures in 13 other states. It presently owns and operates 30 such dormitories.

January Attempt

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson disclosed Thursday an attempt will be made by January to orbit two manned spaceships a few days apart for an unprecedented no-contact rendezvous.

The crews may be able to see one another through the spacecraft windows. But there will be no attempt at docking or other actual contact and no space walks.

Queen, Game, Dances Highlight Activities

Ten girls will find out tonight and 40,000 Red Raider fans will find out Saturday how Tech's 1965 homecoming will appear in the history books.

The ex-students start the activities with the executive board of Ex-Students Association meeting at 10 a.m. today.

The Ex-Student Council gathers at 1:30 p.m. with representatives from all over the United States meeting.

The Ex-Students Association will have a reception from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Coronado Room honoring students and faculty of the first class of Tech.

The fifth annual Century Club Banquet will begin at 6 p.m. with E. F. Laux, vice president-marketing, Ford Motor Co., speaking in the downstairs ballroom in the Union.

Following will be the pep rally at 7:30 p.m. at the Southwest Conference Circle.

The crowning of the homecoming queen will be by Clifford B. Jones, president emeritus of Texas Tech, at the coronation at the Municipal Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

The homecoming parade, beginning at 10 a.m. opens Saturday's activities.

Trophies will be given for the best overall float; first and second place in three divisions—fraternity, sorority, and all campus; one trophy for the best float in the men's dormitories; and one trophy for the best float in the girl's dormitories.

Saturday the ex-student luncheon will be in the coliseum from 11:30 a.m. to 1:15 p.m.

And there's the little matter of the Texas Tech-Rice football game.

The contest at 2 p.m. should be good. Both teams need to win to stay alive in the Southwest Conference race.

Homecoming night at 8:30 p.m., the Kingsmen in the coliseum and Mark Anthony's Orchestra in the Union Ballroom will furnish the music for two simultaneous homecoming dances.

Tickets for the dances are on sale in the Union and may be purchased at the door.

Men Students Ask Support

Students in Men's No. 10 will send pamphlets explaining the proposed Amendment No. 1 to their parents Friday.

This action is intended to inform the parents about the amendment and its importance to the future of Texas Tech. The final objective is more votes for the controversial proposal.

In hall council meeting Thursday night, 500 residents of the dorm addressed the pamphlets and made plans to support the amendment. E. C. Bramlett, dorm president, said that he hoped other organizations on the campus would take similar action.

Office, Journalism Bldg. by 5 p.m. today.

Tech's Most Handsome Man will be chosen at Club Scarlet, mock nightclub sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, on Friday, Nov. 19 in the Tech Union Ballroom.

Candidates must have a two point grade average unless first term freshmen and must be enrolled for at least 12 hours work for this semester.

A 5x7 glossy photograph and a $2 entry fee must accompany the application.

Candidates' pictures will appear in The Daily Toreador and the most handsome man will be chosen by popular ballot at Club Scarlet. The winning candidate will receive a trophy and be presented in the 1965 La Ventana.

Organizations wishing to enter a skit in the floor show should also turn in their applications with a $2 fee by 5 p.m. today.

Club Scarlet is scheduled for Nov. 19 at 8 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. Tickets are $1 per person and may be purchased on Thursday and Friday, November 18 and 19, in the Union Ticket booth.

Tickets will also be available at the door.

Arnold Air Cadets Pick Officials

Andrew Kochis, cadet major, was elected commander of the Lewis C. Ellis Squadron of the Arnold Air Society at their first meeting.

Other officers selected were Mackie Curry, cadet captain, executive; Billy Lane, cadet first lieutenant, administration; Norman Schuessler, cadet first lieutenant, comptroller; Frank Figueroa, cadet first lieutenant, operation and Gary Graves, cadet first lieutenant, information.

The local squadron also has three national officers: Don Kennedy, cadet colonel, national publications; Winston King, cadet colonel, national archives and Tommy Singleton, cadet major, comptroller.

The Arnold Air Society, a professional, honorary, service organization made up of outstanding AFROTC cadets has five main objectives: to promote American citizenship in the air age; to advocate the support of air power; to further the purpose, mission, tradition and concepts of the Air Force as a means of national security; to aid in the development of Air Force officers and to create a closer and more efficient relationship among the AFROTC cadets.

OLD REMEDY

Ipeca cyrup, an old home remedy for poisoning, can now be bought without a prescription, the Food and Drug Administration rules.

AROTC AWARDS—Army ROTC presented awards to 46 cadets Thursday afternoon for the 1965 spring semester. Shown above receiving a Distinguished Military Student Award from Col. B. W. Paden, professor of military science, is Tom A. Austin of Dalhart, who also received the Academic Achievement Award. A complete list of cadets receiving awards will be published in Saturday's Toreador.

Tech Senior Excels In Dairy Competition

Gary Vaughan, senior from Winters, recently took two first places in national and international dairy judging.

Vaughan won first place in butter judging at the Southern Dairy Products Judging Contest at the University of West Virginia and three days later won a Gruen watch for his first place in ice cream judging at the International Inter-collegiate Judging Contest in Albany, N.Y.

The Tech team, composed of Vaughan, James Roberson, senior from Stephenville and Wayne Lemke from San Marcos placed fifth out of nine teams at the University of West Virginia where they judged milk, butter, ice cream, cheddar cheese and cottage cheese.

In Albany they placed 15th out of 26 teams. The Albany contest was in conjunction with the National Milk and Ice Cream meetings and the Dairy and Food Industry Supply Association.

On their 13-day trip the group also visited Mississippi State College and the Kroeger Food Plant in Cincinnati, Ohio. The team was accompanied by Dr. Juddie Willingham, dairy industry department head.

Engineers To Honor Past Head

Charles V. Bullen, Texas Tech professor emeritus, and Mrs. Bullen will be guests of honor at a coffee at 9 a.m. Saturday in Room 205 of the Electrical Engineering Building.

The brief dedication ceremony will be held for the purpose of naming the room the "Charles V. Bullen Seminar Room."

Speakers will include Dr. John R. Bradford, Dean of the School of Engineering; Jackie Hipp, senior electrical engineering student and chairman of the student branch of IEEE; and C. E. Houston of the electrical engineering department.

Presiding will be Dr. R. H. Seacat, acting head of the electrical engineering department.

Bullen served as head of Tech's electrical engineering department 23 years, from 1932 until he retired in 1960.

Bullen holds a B.S. degree from the University of Texas and an M.S. degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

AWS Offers Penny Rates For Tonight

Tonight is penny-a-minute night for women living in dorms. This allows women students to remain out of the dorms one hour after closing at the rate of a penny-a-minute.

Association of Women Students sponsors this event as their only money making project once a semester. Several dates are considered and voted on by the General Council of AWS.

Special permission for this type of event is granted only to AWS by Mrs. Dorothy Garner, director of housing for women.

Approximately $550 is collected each semester to apply to the functioning of AWS for that year.

An Important Amendment

IF WE HAD A PENNY for every word that has been written explaining Amendment No. 1, we could probably retire for life. As the campaign for its passage rolls into its final stages before Tuesday's election, the words are beginning to flow faster and more furious in news media in a whirlwind attempt to secure the voter's stamp of approval.

Most people take this vast amount of information made available to the public for granted, never wondering where it comes from. But there's always some motivating force behind the scene, someone or something that coordinates the campaign plans while remaining in the background.

In the case of Amendment No. 1, this force behind the scene takes the form of three separate groups of businessmen, all pushing for approval of the proposed plan. These are a steering committee, a statewide committee and a statewide group of campus representatives.

The statewide committee is the most active and well-known of the three among voters. Headed by banker Ben Wooten of Dallas, who is also chairman of the North Texas State Board of Directors, the committee is composed of 46 influential businessmen from around the state. Only four men asked to serve on the committee refused to do so.

Most of these men are not directly connected with higher education, but they are still willing to "stick their necks out" to back the proposed change. As businessmen usually don't like to venture into the unstable world of elections and politics, their great confidence in the amendment is apparent.

Lubbock businessmen on the committee are Roy Davis, president of Plains Co-op Oil Mill and Roy Furr of Furr Foods, also a member of Tech's Board of Directors.

The steering committee has seven members headed by John Carter, a vice president at North Texas State. Twenty are members of the campus representative group of which M. L. Pennington, vice president for business affairs at Tech, is a member.

Altogether, this makes 73 prominent men throughout the state who are backing Amendment No. 1. If it passes, they certainly should receive a big share of the credit.

The committees have organized a campaign of press releases, civic speeches, radio announcements, TV clips, phone committees, announcements over public address systems at football games and letters to alumni.

As encouraging as all this may sound, storm clouds are brewing on the other side of the fence, for many are against the amendment mainly because they say the ad valorem tax distributes taxation unequally. The opposition is reportedly gathering its forces in San Antonio, and you can bet they will turn out to vote against the amendment.

Whether or not those in favor of it will turn out to vote is another question. It's fortunate the proposition is at the top of the ballot, although this won't help bring out the voters. With no political offices involved, the turnout usually is light.

In the last analysis, it should turn out to be a question of whether the advocates of No. 1 are as much in favor of its passage as its opponents are against its passage.

An attitude of "the other fellow will vote; my vote isn't important" will never win this election.

THERE'S ANOTHER AMENDMENT that's vital to Texas Technological College, although it has been overshadowed by Amendment No. 1. That's Amendment No. 6, which will provide state funds for loans to college students.

This is especially important to Tech since the future of the National Defense loan program, which constitutes about 80 per cent of colleges' loans, is on the rocks.

In order to get monies from the federal government for National Defense loans, Tech must provide matching funds on a 1-9 ratio. As things stand right now, there's no money for matching funds. So there'll be no money at all, unless officials are able to locate some funds. They are still trying.

At present there are 386 Tech students on National Defense loans. Passage of Amendment No. 6 would guarantee they can continue to attend college, regardless of whether Tech locates sufficient matching funds.

The state loans would also open the door to many more students' receiving loans, since the academic requirement is to maintain the "minimum standards of admission and continuation" at the college. However, this is susceptible to change by the Coordinating Board.

The National Defense loan minimum grade-point requirement is 2.5. The new state loans would make approximately 30 per cent more Techsians eligible for loans. So you can see that passage of this amendment is important to a lot of Tech students.

The amendment authorizes the Coordinating Board to issue bonds for $85,000,000 to set up a loan fund. That's enough money to make a powerful lot of loans.

What with the future of the National Defense loans in doubt and the increased number of Tech students which would become eligible for loans, the passage of Amendment No. 6 is nearly as important to Tech as passage of No. 1.

Tuesday's voter turnout will tell the tale. A big turnout, and the amendments should pass. But a small turnout, and a lot of Tech students, or at least their little brothers and sisters, may soon find themselves enrolling in Caliche Corners Junior College instead of Texas Technological College.

And that, friend, would be quite a switch.

ON TUESDAY, the voters of Texas will decide the fate of 10 proposed constitutional amendments.

One of these, Amendment No. 1 is of vital importance to Texas Tech and 16 other state-supported schools. It is hoped that all Techsians will become acquainted with the amendment and the effect it would have on Texas Tech before Nov. 2 and will actively campaign for its passage.

In order to acquaint all Tech students and faculty members with the importance of Amendment 1 and to stress the need for its passage, the Daily Toreador is presenting a detailed account of the amendment.

Amendment 1 At A Glance

- This proposes to amend Article VII, Section 17 of the Texas Constitution to provide for 10 cents rather than five cents per $100 valuation from the state ad valorem tax for constructing instructional buildings at Texas colleges and universities. This would be done by raising the ad valorem tax five cents on every $100 evaluation of property.
- Five schools are added to the state college building program by Amendment 1. These are:
 - Midwestern University
 - University of Houston
 - Pan American College
 - Angelo State College
 - Arlington State College
- The only state-supported senior colleges and universities not covered by Amendment 1 are the five which derive their funds from the University Permanent Fund. These are The University of Texas, Texas Western College, Texas A&M University, Prairie View A&M and Tarleton State College.
- The method of allocating the building funds is changed. At present the division is based on enrollment over the five years preceding the date of allocation. Amendment 1 provides for funds to be distributed this way:
 1. Ninety percent of the funds allocated on June 1, 1966, shall be allocated on the basis of projected enrollment increases published by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, for fall 1966 to fall 1978.
 2. Ten percent shall be given to certain of the schools based on the number of square feet of educational and general building facilities needed by such a school to meet the average square feet per full-time equivalent student of all state senior institutions.
 3. A further fund allocation on June 1, 1972, will be distributed to certain of the institutions based 50 percent on projected enrollment increases to 1978 and 50 percent on the basis of need for additional square feet of educational and general facilities.

storm or earthquake. This type of replacement would have to be appropriated by the Legislature.

IN SUMMARY: With the student populations expected to double within the decade, Amendment 1 would bring all Texas public senior colleges and universities into a constitutionally provided source of building funds, providing all of them with more money than is now available, sooner than it is now available.

- By 1975, it is estimated that enrollment in public senior colleges and universities will have increased from the 1964 total of 146,673 to about 335,000, a jump of 120 percent. An assured source of income is needed to avoid turning away students because of a lack of instructional facilities.
- The Higher Education Coordinating Act of 1965 requires the public colleges and universities to develop long-range plans for campus development. An assured, predictable flow of building funds is needed to carry this out.
- Five Texas schools have no building income provided by the Constitution. Amendment 1 will free for other uses the special appropriations now made to these schools from the general revenue.
- Without Amendment 1, 17 colleges would be without state classroom building funds for two more years. Most would have no matching money for participation in the federal construction program during that period.
- With Amendment 1, federal building funds would be available to match the state funds. This sum could reach $50 million over a 12-year period.
- With the passage of Amendment 1, every one of the State's 22 senior colleges and universities would be placed on a long-range, constitutionally based building fund program.
- The method of distribution of funds provided in the constitutional amendment helps to assure that funds will go to the campuses where students need the facilities and that all state-supported schools will be treated equitably.
- Many Texas colleges are handicapped in the fall of 1965 by lack of classroom, laboratory and library space. Amendment 1 will relieve this critical situation two years earlier.
- Amendment 1 extends the state college building program on into the future when the population gains are expected to create continued great need. The present program ends with the decade starting in 1968.
- Amendment 1 guarantees that no added legislative appropriations will be made for buildings at these colleges and universities and that other taxes will not be levied for such purposes.
- Amendment 1 also guarantees that the funds realized can be used only for educational buildings. The funds cannot be used for Auxiliary Enterprises, such as stadia, dormitories, bookstores, union buildings, etc.
- Amendment 1 has been passed by the Texas Legislature and endorsed by the Committee of the Governing Boards of State Colleges and Universities, the Council of Presidents of State-Supported Colleges and Universities, the Texas State Teachers Association, Texas Association of College Teachers, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, West Texas Chambers of Commerce and a statewide committee of distinguished Texas leaders from outside the profession of education.
- Amendment 1 provides the only means available for equitable, systematic and immediate provision to meet the building needs of the 17 institutions named in the amendment.

Why Amendment 1 Is Vital To The Future Of Texas

- The expiration date of the five-cent tax for the 12 institutions is January 1, 1978. Amendment 1 removes this expiration date.
- Amendment 1 continues the existing provision that the colleges may not receive any general revenue funds for building construction except to replace a loss caused by fire, flood,

Marines, Navy Urge Reserve Volunteers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Marine and Navy appeals for reserves to volunteer for active duty in the Viet Nam crisis buildup have met with something less than a resounding response, it was learned Tuesday.

A total of 757 Marine Reserves—183 officers and 574 enlisted men—stepped forward in the two months since the appeal went out in mid-August.

The Navy sent out its bid in mid-July and so far only about 335 officers have responded. No figures were available on responses by enlisted reserves.

The Air Force, which has been hurting less than the other services for qualified volunteers to fill its regular ranks, said it has not issued any similar appeal.

The Army is taking a somewhat different tack.

It has invited younger officers—captains and lieutenants—to volunteer for active duty from the reserve but has made no special effort to encourage enlisted men to apply for active duty.

Army officers said there has been an increased interest among younger Army Reserve officers in possible active duty but that it is too early to give figures.

What the Army is doing is encouraging seasoned soldiers who have retired to come back into uniform if they possess a critical skill.

This appeal is aimed at men who have retired with between 20 and 30 years service. The Army does not want the older veterans, men with more than 30 years regular service behind them.

Officers said the applications from retired Army enlisted men are being screened carefully.

As of Sept. 1, there have been 1,290 applications from retired enlisted regulars—and only 129 were accepted for a return to duty.

U.S. Changes Voting Rules, Immigration

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 150,000 Southern Negroes who were not enrolled as voters when the 89th Congress convened now are registered to go to the polls.

The law that paved a path to the voting booth for Deep South Negroes may stand as one of the most far-reaching decisions in a year of legislative landmarks.

It holds the roots of change that already is altering the political patterns of the Old Confederacy. White office holders and would-be candidates are adjusting to bi-racial politics in areas where the Negro vote once was ignored.

"I think you will see more of the moderate type candidate," said Sheriff Zollie R. Compton of Jefferson County, Ga.

Americans may see changes, too, in the makeup of immigration rosters. Congress has ordered an end to the 41-year-old system of immigration quotas based on national origins. That system was designed to preserve the ethnic balance that existed in the United States 45 years ago. President Johnson called it un-American.

The new law will be of particular significance to Americans who have close relatives seeking to come to the United States. People with close family ties in the United States will get special preference in immigration, as will foreigners who have skills that are needed in this country.

Under the old system, Great Britain, Ireland and Germany supplied more than 75 per cent of the immigrants who came to the United States each year. Quotas for southern European nations were far smaller, those for Asians, smallest of all.

The new program, to take effect over a three-year period, sets an annual quota of 120,000 immigrants for Western Hemisphere nations and 170,000 for the rest of the world.

Klan Urges Austin Rally

MADISONVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Ku Klux Klan leader Royce McPhail has called on Texas Klansmen to help "improve the image of the Ku Klux Klan."

At a meeting near here Saturday night he discounted the congressional inquiry of the Klan now under way and called news media "a news machine that prevented the truth about the Klan from reaching the public."

McPhail and a reporter from the Houston Post estimated 125 to 200, some wearing Klan robes, attended the cross-burning rally in a field.

The Klan leader from Crockett urged all Klansmen to converge on Austin for a planned demonstration in support of U.S. policy in Viet Nam. He said the Austin rally, which will probably be held in two or three weeks will be a counter-demonstration against a student march Oct. 16 protesting American involvement in Southeast Asia.

McPhail called a meeting Saturday to set a date for the rally in Austin.

Christian Regains Position

NEW YORK (AP)—Ron Christian of Northern Illinois has regained the total offense lead and joined Eastern Washington's Mel Stanton Thursday in dominating the latest small college football statistics.

Christian, a senior quarterback, took over the top spot by rushing and passing for 286 yards in a 38-12 victory over University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee branch, last Saturday.

Figures compiled by the NCAA Athletic Bureau showed that Christian has 1,611 total offense yards. He is the leader, too, in passing with 132 completions.

Stanton, a senior halfback, also leads in two categories, rushing with 925 yards and scoring with 96 points on 16 touchdowns. Stanton carried for 184 yards and two touchdowns in Saturday's 20-7 triumph over Central Washington.

Dan Miles of Southern Oregon is the runner-up in total offense with 1,447.

The Gripe Bowl

No matter what the situation, there is always a certain dissatisfied faction that has to gripe. The following "doozie" appeared on the editorial page of Tuesday's Toreador.

Dear Editor,

This letter is written in regards to the situation of the football program at Tech. Theoretically Tech has the best collection of football material on campus in history. We have the first or second greatest number of lettermen back of any school in the SWC.

At one time or during one period in the Texas game, the Longhorns had an all sophomore defensive lineup that was giving our first offensive team fits. Is our material and depth that deficient relative to Texas or for that matter Arkansas? We doubt it. It seems that the material is not functioning in a coordinated or well disciplined manner.

Tech is a tremendous school at the present. Its band, physical plant and scholastic level will compete with the other state supported institutions of higher learning in the state; then why can't we field a superior football team?

The mentor at Tech indicated after the Texas loss that an 8-2 or 7-3 season was still possible—we had lost only one game up to that point; is he conceding a victory to Arkansas and putting a question mark behind Baylor? What a mental and morale boost this must have been to the players!

Think about this other point—how come since this is supposed to be Tech's big football year that the TCU and Texas A&M sophomores were able to make such a promising showing against the fine Red Raider material?

Sincerely

Gaston Hall Association

While opinions are fine, tut would suggest that the boys from Gaston check the record and abilities of Coach J T King and the Red Raiders who are currently in the middle of the most successful year yet at Tech.

Sauce Hurlled In Wrath Over Viet Nam War

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP)—Police say a restaurant patron became so incensed at a woman's comments on the Viet Nam situation he hurled a bowl of peppery chili sauce in her face.

Police booked Edward C. Shepard, 47, an insurance salesman, on suspicion of felony assault with a caustic chemical.

Lorraine Crawford, of nearby Burbank, told police she and a friend were discussing the war in Viet Nam when Shepard threw the sauce.

Officers said that after the incident Tuesday night in Sherman Oaks Shepard told them:

"They were talking about the Viet Nam war and I'm a red-blooded American. I picked up the small bowl of hot sauce and threw the contents into her face."

Police said Mrs. Crawford apparently escaped serious injury.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new bipartisan national student committee for the defense of Viet Nam was launched today by a group of students who hope to rally support on campuses across the country in favor of American policy and to counter-act draft card burnings and demonstrations.

Three student leaders—two Republicans and one Democrat—called a news conference at Georgetown University to launch the move with statements read from three other campus leaders.

Tom Pauken, 21, of Dallas, the national chairman of College Young Republicans, was among the spokesmen of the new group. A graduate student in political science at Georgetown, he said he was participating on behalf of more than 80,000 college Young Republicans across the nation.

Leaders of Georgetown University student bodies—Thomas J. Kane Jr. of New York, who described himself as a lifelong Democrat; and Frank Keating of Tulsa, a Republican, joined Pauken in the new committee.

A rally on the Georgetown campus was scheduled by the group Dec. 10, with Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., one of the speakers.

Statements backing the new effort were read from Jay Wilkinson, president of the Political Union at Yale University and a Young Democrat; Allen Williams, national president of the Association of International Relations Club, from Brigham Young University in Utah; and Jay Parsons, who served for two years in Viet Nam with the International Voluntary Services, and is now at Johns Hopkins.

'PAPER TIGER' COMMENT SLAMMED

(AP)—The vice chief of staff of the Army, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, said in a speech that the Red Chinese marshal who referred to the United States as a paper tiger should remember the words of a Chinese ancestor: "He who seeks to ride the tiger does not dare to dismount."

State Controls Names Of New Hybrid Seed

Dr. A. W. Young, agronomy department head, is an expert on seeds—and he says every time a new seed comes out, he has a new headache.

One person will breed a hybrid seed and call it TS103, then another person will find out the formula for that seed and he will get a patent, but he will call it another name.

This means the State Seed and Plant Board of Texas, of which Dr. Young is a member, has a job on its hands.

The duties of the board are to approve and issue licenses for foundation, registered and certified seed growers; promulgate rules and regulations governing the production of such seeds and prescribe the qualifications and approve appointments of inspectors who may be employed under the Field Certification Law.

Seed growers voluntarily apply for this certification.

In a recent board meeting which Dr. Young attended, much time was spent on bringing the closed pedigree hybrid sorghums under certified sorghum seed. This put a stop to the problem of two people having the same seed, but with two names. Texas is one of the few states that has now stopped this problem.

Dr. Young has been a member of the board since the late '30s. The members, who are appointed by the governor, meet three or four times a year.

Dr. Young is also associated with national seed certification.

Recently he was at Purdue for an International Crop Improvement Association meet.

Members are seed certification officials from over the United States, Canada, and other countries.

Their work is to correlate seed certification. Success of this work is the reason why foreign countries joined the association.

They want to gain ideas and carry them back to their countries.

The purpose of the international association are: to assist its members in promoting production, identification, distribution, and use of certified seed and other propagating materials of superior crop varieties; to establish minimum standards of seed production, storage and handling; to assist in standardization of certification requirements and procedures to the end that all certified seed will be as good or better than accepted, minimum standards of quality; to inform the public of value of certified seed and encourage its wide-scale use through approved educational media; and to develop cooperation with all individuals, groups and organizations interested in the improvement of crops.

Dr. Young has been a member of this association since before World War II. He was president of the association from 1961-63, and is now chairman of the sorghum production committee.

MARCHERS PICKET IN HUNTSVILLE

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Civil rights demonstrators picketed the Walker County Court House in downtown Huntsville Thursday.

The picketers, one on each side of the courthouse square, displayed banners reading, "Our Judge Needs Religion," "A Dram-Justice in Huntsville, Tex., in 1965," and "A Sheriff Who Hits Pregnant Woman Must Go."

Recruiters Set Exams

Recruiting officers of the Navy and Marine Corps will interview interested students Nov. 1-5 in the Croslin Room of the Tech Library.

Lt. Cmdr. O. D. Brown will interview men for the positions of pilot, navigator, bombardier, radar intercept operator, anti-submarine officer, and air intelligence officer.

An aviation information team from the Dallas Naval Air Station will also be on the campus to administer flight aptitude examinations. A ride in a Navy training plane is available to those taking the examination. Lt. Cmdr. Brown will also discuss programs for undergraduates.

Capt. James W. Sanders will explain the Marine program to interested men and women. Officer candidate courses, aviation programs and women officer programs are available to seniors and graduates.

A platoon leaders class is open to undergraduates. Tests will also be administered to students for the Marine program.

No appointments are necessary for the interviews.

Students Talk On U.S. Policy

Applications are available for students to represent Texas Tech at the 11th Student Conference on National Affairs. Students may apply at the Office of Student Life in the Ad Building.

The conference will be Dec. 8-11 at Texas A&M University.

The theme is "The Far East: Focus on Southeast Asia."
