Red Split Gives Hope For Free Countries

By DAVID SNYDER
Copy Editor

The greatest hope for the free world is the internal split of communism, and its own greatest danger is an internal split of the free world, Dr. Walter Judd said Tuesday night at Tech Union.

Dr. Judd, who spoke to a 500-plus audience consisting of mostly townspeople, was a U.S. representative from Minnesota 19 years and a member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs 16 years. He served as a medical missionary in Red China for 10 years.

Three main conflicts dominate today's world: Communist-free world, Communist-Communist and free world-free world.

Temporarily Losing

In the Communist-free world conflict, Dr. Judd compared the recent Russian conciliatory movements to those of a clinching boxer. They are temporarily losing the fight, holding on for the present, and intend to win at a later time.

The so-called Sino-Soviet split, he said, is a result of a difference of opinion on how to win the fight as well as who is to be the boss.

"Mao Tse-tung wants to use force. Khrushchev, and now Kosygin, want to use deception," Dr. Judd said.

He cited one of the chief misunderstandings of communism to be a belief that it is a national, rather than international, movement.

"Communism does not meet the needs of the people—it meets the needs of the movement," he said.

Communism tries to further the free world-free world conflict by dividing the strong and subverting the weak. He said varied backgrounds often permit the free world from uniting.

The United States compounds conflict by pursuing its enemies and losing its friends as a result, Dr. Judd said.

He cited French President Charles De Gaulle as an example. De Gaulle has criticized the United States for making too many concessions to get along with the Soviet Union.

"If we're trying to get along with Russia, what's wrong with De Gaulle trying to get along with other communist nations?" Dr. Judd asked.

Viet Nam, he said, is a test case for President Johnson, just as Lebanon, the Formosan straits and Berlin were for previous Presidents.

Communist Threats

"The communists made threats then just as they are now," he said. "Every time we have stood up in a test case it has reduced world tension."

The United States has made concessions with the idea that it is "better to be a Red than dead." "If we give in completely, we are both Reds and dead," Dr. Judd warned.

The United States has five alternatives in fighting this "war called peace." It can (1) ignore the cold war, (2) imagine it as an economical phenomenon that will disappear, (3) take the offensive, (4) panic and yield to the communists, (5) face up to the situation.

To achieve the latter, Dr. Judd said, the United States needs military, economic and moral power.

"Military defeat is not fatal, but moral defeat is," he concluded.

New Post, Idea Switch Passed By Committee

The approval of a new Daily Toreador paid staff editor and minor changes in philosophy concerning the role of a student newspaper were among actions taken at the first open meeting of the Student Publications Committee Tuesday.

The committee voted unanimously to budget a paid assistant sports editor position for 1965-66. Salary changes will be presented later in the budget report.

A paid assistant sports editor was recommended by Phil Orman, director of student publications, and Bronson Havard; Daily Toreador editor.

"The sports department is our weakest. The sports editor needs an assistant," Orman said.

The committee also voted unanimously to have the written philosophy concerning the role of a student newspaper changed in order to emphasize the paper is a student publication and not an official publication of the college.

Dr. E. A. Gillis, chairman, read a letter from Dr. R. C. Goodwin, Tech president, praising the committee's policy statement and suggesting the emphasis on the paper being a student operation.

The committee met in open session to Toreador reporters. The members voted earlier to open the committee to reporters to help improve communications on campus.

"It is hoped that the precedent established by this committee is followed by all committees on campus," the members announced in a statement.

In other action Friday, the Toreador and La Ventana budget reports were accepted. Approval was given to the Bike Race Committee to sell advertising for programs on a non-profit basis.

A subcommittee headed by Steve Magee was appointed to make proposals for a policy statement on permitting non-handbook approved organizations to sell ads.

Voting Rights Draws Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern opposition exploded in the Senate today to President Johnson's proposed voting rights bill. Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., threatened to filibuster against it "as long as the Lord gives me breath."

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., attacked the proposed measure's constitutionality. Both said Johnson was following recommendations of Martin Luther King, the Negro preacher.

"I am sorry to note," Ellender told the Senate, "that the President of the United States has fallen to the will and the actions of Dr. King in providing for this legislation."

FOOD INSPECTION — Tommy Craddick, committee member, and Tom Edwards, committee chairman, go through the food serving line at Wells Hall to check out complaints made by the students. The Student Council has received many complaints from students in the various dorms about the food service. The members of the Food Committee have eaten in several dorms in the last few days.

Professor Attends HE Workshop

Dr. Mina W. Lamb, professor and head of the food and nutrition department at Tech, is attending a March 15-19 workshop on working with low-income families at University of Chicago's Center for Continuing Education.

Dr. Lamb is one of approximately 200 leading home economists invited to participate in the workshop, sponsored by the American Home Economics Association.

The program's purpose is to increase home economists' understanding of the problems of poverty, to identify the contributions of home economics in breaking the poverty cycle and to further home economists' knowledge of various organizations and agencies serving low-income families.

Dr. Paul A. Miller, president of West Virginia University and a national authority on problems of low-income families will be the workshop's keynote speaker.

Other speakers who will address the workshop are Mrs. Esther Peterson, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs; Dr. Frank Riessman, author of "The Culturally Deprived Child"; Dr. Allison Davis, University of Chicago; and Dr. Oscar Ornati, New School of Social Research.

Block And Bridle Sponsors Speaker

San Angelo rancher-attorney Penrose Metcalfe will be guest speaker at the March meeting of Texas Tech's Block and Bridle Club today at 8 p.m. in the Tech Agriculture Memorial Auditorium.

Metcalfe's topic will be "Opportunities in Texas Livestock Production," according to Bill McInnis, Tech senior from Brownwood and president of Block and Bridle.

Metcalfe is past president of the National Wool Growers Association and is currently a member of the Texas State Board of Education.

"He has long been a supporter of agriculture and agricultural education in such areas as Future Farmers and Future Homemakers organizations," McInnis added.

WUS To Solicit Funds Friday

The World University Service (WUS) will solicit funds here Friday and Saturday.

This international organization was originally set up to aid students in bombed-out countries following World War II. It calls on students in high income nations to give financial aid to students in poverty-stricken areas, Davis Berry, campus drive director, said.

Berry said that 20,000 students in India live in doorways and bathe in water from fire hydrants. In Japan, 15,000 students suffer from tuberculosis but cannot afford medical aid.

Money collected by WUS is used in five basic areas: lodging and living, student health, educational facilities and activities, individual and emergency aid and program implementation. The organization now works in almost every country in the free world, Berry said. Theme of the drive is "World Peace Through World Education."

He said WUS hopes to raise $700 at Tech. The money will be used to buy library books for the University of Saigon, Viet Nam.

Each campus organization is asked to donate a maximum of $15 and a minimum of $5, Berry said. Individual donations can be placed in the red cans marked WUS which will be set up around the campus, or can be sent to WUS in care of the Student Council.

The WUS will also wash cars for funds Saturday.

Duncan Answers Northern Criticism Mauldin's Letter Draws Rebuttal

Dear Editor:

I read Mr. Mauldin's defamation of Tech's Ag majors in the Toreador today (March 9). I also happened to read Mr. Gore's similar article on Feb. 20. It bothers me to see these two individuals have no more to do than run down the Ag majors who don't particularly care to conform to every little thing deemed necessary by these two "big city" boys.

It seems to me that Mr. Mauldin's insulting letter is directed toward every person who is enrolled in the School of Agriculture. By his characterization of the average Ag student, one would believe that the Ag major was little more than an average, ignorant savage imported from the rainforests of Brazil or Peru.

Mr. Mauldin, you could probably convince a few people in favor of your point of view had they never heard of Tech's Ag School.

I believe that I had much rather be seen in the Union with a 10 gallon hat, boots, and a plug of tobacco in my jaw than have my shirt tail hanging out and wearing ratty-looking tennis shoes. I can almost guarantee you that these "cool" characters are not Ag majors. Mr. Mauldin, I suggest that you clean your own house before you decide that our's needs cleaning.

If you still find it unbearable to be around any Ag majors, I'd advise you to lock yourself in your room or attend one of your two schools in Abilene that don't teach Ag.

I'm sure they would accept your credits gained at Tech and apparently you would be much happier to leave this school to people who know the Ag students and don't consider them savage simply because they attend the Library to study while you sit in your room and try to find something nasty to say about them.

Yours truly,
Joe Duncan

Clover Glad No 'Direct Reprisals'

Dear Editor:

It's reassuring as hell to read that there will be no "DIRECT reprisals" against students who speak out at the Food Committee hearing. The generosity of the administration concerning this matter is almost overwhelming.

Respectfully yours,
Carl E. Clover, Jr.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The statement concerning "direct reprisals" was made by Tom Edwards, chairman of the Student Council committee, not the administration. We believe he did not mean to imply there may be any kind of reprisals.)

Dear Editor:

In the past few days there has been a heavy barrage of criticism of the South. There has also been increasing pressure and threats of sending federal troops into the South.

This has always happened when there is trouble in the South! How come? The riots last year that took place in Harlem, in Chicago's suburbs, and in Philadelphia, and that is not Philadelphia, Mississippi, were much worse than those in the South.

There was more violence in the riots in the North, yet there was little mention of sending troops into these areas.

It seems to me the North has been hypocritical in its attitude on this problem. The continual and habitual condemnations of the South has not helped the situation any.

If we can get people of this nation to get off their backs and try to understand the situation then things will improve. Those people in the deep South have held their views for a long time and you can't change this view overnight.

One of the main reasons they are fighting so hard is the fact that they are being forced. It's just human nature to have resentment and a little rebellion when someone is forcing you to do something.

The violence that took place was regrettable but it was generated by the northern agitators who by their presence incurred and generated hatred and resentment among some of the people.

Let's quit condemning them all the time and try to understand that there is a serious problem in the South and that as long as the agitators (who come in from other parts of the country) continue to go about solving the problems the way they are then they will have a fight in almost every city in the deep South.

You would think that with all the crime and divorce in this country that ministers ought to be on the job where they are needed instead of going to Alabama.

Reader Disagrees With Coed Article

Dear Editor:

I read the article on Tech coeds in the March 10 issue of the Toreador. It was very interesting, but, in my opinion, did not reflect both sides of the issue. It made us sound like headhunters out only to bag a husband.

Granted there are many girls on this campus only to get their M. R. S. Degree, but there are just as many boys here for equally frivolous reasons.

Mr. Vick stated that "they've been brought up to think of marriage," but this is not necessarily so. Because of societies double standards a girl does not have the sexual freedom that the male enjoys. To satisfy the same biological urges found in the male, and to maintain her reputation, she is forced to marry.

Therefore, it is more predominant in her mind than in that of the males. Statistics show, however, that 50% of the married people in America are males, so it still takes two to tango. As a rule, I've heard, it is the man who proposes—not the woman.

It was also stated that "they won't fight for what they think is right against a man because they're afraid of alienating him." Well, it does alienate him. The first time you want to stop making-out and discuss something intelligent, he gets disgusted and is ready to take you home. He is overcome by his would-be superiority that he can't stand intellectual competition.

And about individuality. We are just as individual as the males—if that is saying anything. Most boys say "you are so different from most of the other girls on campus," as they drive you back to the dorm for the last time. Men don't know how to handle females who are not run-of-the-mill, so they convince themselves we don't exist.

True, many females are as you describe, but why take only a negative approach. Don't let a few rotten apples ruin the whole barrel. There are just as many women with ambition and goals walking this campus as there are males.

You might also try asking our opinion of the "stereotype" man.

Announcement of Dr. Harlow's pending visit surely could have warranted half an inch in last Saturday's paper or Tuesday morning's edition.

As it was, there was not even a write-up of his two lectures. Many more students could have profited from his visit if they had known of his coming.

Disappointed,
Barbara Roxley

P.S. The Texas Observer reprinted partially your editorial on the Welborn articles.

The Wednesday, March 10 edition of The Daily Toreador ran a picture of Harry Harlow, a renowned psychologist who had visited the Tech campus Tuesday. Why was there not an announcement in your paper previous to his coming?

Proposed SC Constitution

We Shall Overcome...

ALL THE VOICES IN the South may shout opposition to the President's voting rights proposals, but they cannot defend states' rights while denying the rights of individuals.

For too long have we trampled upon the rights of the Negro. For too long have we said he has complete equality under the law, yet denied it to him. For too long have men of good will remained silent while the Negro carries his cross.

Too many Southerners must wear the letter of Guilt because we have done the very same thing in this country as many Germans did in Nazi Germany.

We either sit and watch while innocent people are brutally beaten and denied their rights, or we turn our head and pretend not to see what is happening.

Look at ourselves here at Texas Tech. There were no audible voices of protest against the tyranny in places like Selma, Ala. We are caught up in our own little world, securely isolated from human suffering.

And now the nation must do what we in the Southern states would not. The price will surely be great to the states, but individuals are of greater worth than the states. No new law would ever have to be made if all men would recognize the rights of others.

It would be best, of course, if the South would voluntarily take the action that the President proposes. But there is no evidence the South intends to do so. The Southern electorate continues to allow tyrants like George Wallace to rule. And we are Southerners and we are responsible.

The only hope left for the South is with the new generation of students. If we are not already too late, we must join with the Negro. Together, We Shall Overcome.

Vote New Government

TODAY MEMBERS OF THE Student Association have an opportunity to form a new student government here that will make Texas Tech more similar to a free class university.

On today's editorial page, we have published the proposed new constitution for the second time in compliance with provisions of the current constitution. Read over the proposal.

As has been pointed out before, the new constitution is very unlike the current one. First of all, three distinct branches of student government are outlined: Executive, Legislative and Judicial.

The executive branch will consist of the elected president of the student association in addition to a number of appointed cabinet and department officials. The president has no direct relation to the proposed Student Senate other than he may recommend legislation and veto any bills passed.

The legislative branch will consist of the senate with the student association vice president as its chairman. The senate will concern itself with legislation rather than the daily affairs of student government. Presidential veto may be overridden by a two-thirds vote in the senate.

The judicial branch proposals pave the way for an extensive student judiciary system here. The Student Supreme Court will become the final authority on senate legislation and lower court appeals.

If passed the new constitution will form a better student government by making it more efficient.

It is in the best interest of everyone to vote for the new constitution.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following proposed new Student Association constitution will become effective this year if approved by a two-thirds majority of students in Wednesday's referendum. The proposal is published here in its entirety in compliance with election requirements.)

Max Morath Scheduled For Union Performance

The ragtime era will live again Friday when Max Morath brings his one-man show, "Ragtime Revisited," to the Tech Union Ballroom at 7:30 p.m.

Morath's journey through the ragtime years is peppered with songs and piano solos lovingly recreated in the authentic styles of the period and is paced with a brand of humor and satire strictly of the present. He has performed everywhere from Colorado ghost towns to New York's Blue Angel and from Stanford University to N.Y.U.

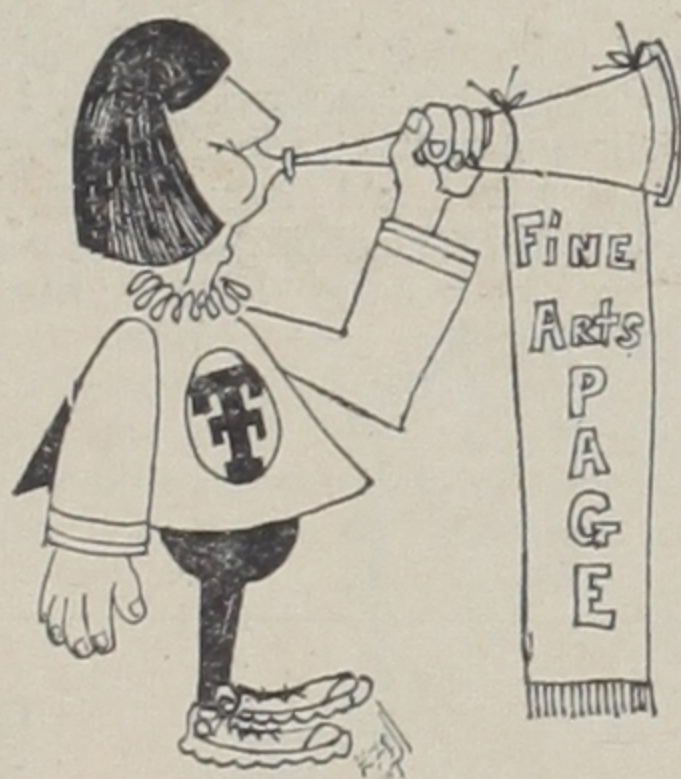

Morath was born in 1926 when ragtime was supposedly dead, but his mother was a silent movie pianist and he was raised on "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Maple Leaf Rag." He studied music while he was growing up and organized his first barber shop quartet two weeks after his voice changed.

Tickets to "Ragtime Revisited" are $1 and are on sale in the Tech Union.

JOSE GRECO — America's leading flamenco dancer will appear in concert at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium Thursday at 8:15 p.m. Greco and his troupe will present flamenco and Gypsy dances from Spain. His company is headed by prima ballerina Nana Lorca, who is returning to America for the first time after her introduction two years ago, and features a number of artists being seen here for the first time. Tickets are $2, $4 and $4.50 and are on sale at Varsity Book Store.

— In White House, That Is —

Liz Gives Inside Track On Life

By PAULINE EDWARDS
Assistant Managing Editor

With all the dignified, diplomatic aspects of Washington, most Americans tend to forget the family side of the White House—that is, they forget until they are reminded by someone like Mrs. Elizabeth Carpenter.

Mrs. Carpenter, Press Secretary to Lady Bird Johnson, made a short visit to Lubbock recently as the featured speaker for the annual Theta Sigma Phi Matrix Table Dinner. During her speech and the coffee reception following the dinner, Mrs. Carpenter painted a vivid, if not humorous, picture of the White House and its very able occupants.

Mrs. Carpenter obtained her position as press secretary to the first lady somewhat by accident. Shortly following the Republican Convention in 1960, the then Sen. Johnson, who had been nominated to run as vice-president on the Kennedy ticket, asked Mrs. Carpenter to "take off for two months travel with Lady Bird and the Kennedy sisters." However, those two months probably stretched into the longest two months in history since Mrs. Carpenter is still serving as press aide to Lady Bird.

Her job doesn't involve "worrying about Viet Nam, Kosygin or DeGaulle." As she says, "I'm in charge of women, dogs, and old brocades."

Airplane Misgivings

When asked to take the job, Mrs. Carpenter was at first reluctant since she had always had misgivings about riding in airplanes. But one of her children reassured her. His reasoning: "Never has there been a bird that crash landed, and you'll be riding with Lady Bird."

Besides, Mrs. Carpenter enjoys reporting and public relations work. "It gives you such a good license to ask questions," she said, and then added with a laugh, "One little girl wanted to know if all I did, was go around to people's houses asking questions."

In her work at the White House, Mrs. Carpenter has learned that "the mail bags always bring a laugh or two."

One sweet old lady wrote in very concerned about the dryness of the Pedernales River. She'd driven by the LBJ Ranch and noticed that the water was down. Although she didn't have any solution for the problem, she did want the Johnsons to know she was worried.

In another letter, one not-so-sweet-old lady wanted to sell the President a stage coach for $6,500. "However, we sent her to Barry Goldwater," Mrs. Carpenter said. "We thought he'd be a better prospect for stagecoaches."

According to Mrs. Carpenter, "the President is a challenging man and if you have good health and a surplus of thyroid, you can almost keep up with him. He's the kind of man who two days before the first Christmas in the White House woke up, saw it snowing, and declared, 'Let's invite Congress down this afternoon. Arrange it.'"

"Frankly, I like this kind of challenge and anytime you get more than 24 hours notice, the President feels you're angling for a soft job," she said.

Not Always Laughs

Not all of the incidents that come from the family side of the White House are humorous, however. Some are more likely to bring tears rather than laughs.

Doing her part for the War on Poverty, the First Lady has taken on Operation Head Start as honorary chairman. The purpose of the program is to take the one million five year-old children of poverty families and try to give them some pre-school attention this summer so they will not be completely lost from the second day of school on.

"Many of these children," said Mrs. Carpenter, "have never left their neighborhoods. They have never seen a book. They have—in many instances—never sat in a chair. Some of them have a vocabulary of only 100 words because they have never heard more than 100 words."

Started With 100 People

To launch the program, Mrs. Johnson invited 100 women—interested in the field of child training—to the White House. "Within 12 hours after the invitations went out I knew it was a success because my phone started ringing with calls from Congressmen and Senators, urging me to invite someone from their areas who wanted to help," she said.

"Four days later the gathering had grown from 100 to 400 and ran the gamut from Donna Reed to Gina Lollabrigida, who, incidentally, made a radio tape in Italian, urging Italian mothers to let their children attend the program."

Outstanding Students To Be Honored Sunday

Texas Tech will honor more than 650 outstanding students and organizations during the annual All-College Recognition Service at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Tech Union Ballroom.

Dr. R. C. Goodwin, Tech president, will address the group, which will include scholarship holders, scholastic leaders, student leaders and scholarship leaders.

Goodwin will introduce students with college honors, 10 students who have been recognized scholastically at three previous ceremonies.

Dr. S. M. Kennedy, dean of Arts and Sciences, will present 37 students with school honors for having been recognized at two previous services, and 69 students, receiving class honors for being recognized once before, will be introduced by Dr. Gerald W. Thomas, dean of Agriculture.

Individual honors will be given to 282 students who are being recognized scholastically for the first time. Dr. John R. Bradford, dean of Engineering, will present the students.

Dr. George G. Heather, dean of Business Administration, will present the top-ranking students within the respective schools.

Ronnie M. Botkin, Student Association president, will present 28 students for leadership recognition, and 173 scholarship holders will be recognized by Dr. Willa V. Tinsley, dean of Home Economics.

Scholarship recognition of 20 organizations will be made by Thomas P. Stover, of the dean of student life office.

Dr. J. William Davis, government department head and Athletic Council chairman, will recognize Tech athletes who have earned varsity letters during the past year.

Bill Lee Gunnin, College Awards Board chairman, will conclude the presentation ceremony with recognition of teams, organizations and individuals whose performances have brought distinction to the college during the spring and fall semesters.

Dr. William M. Pearce, academic vice president, will introduce Goodwin, and James G. Allen, dean of student life, will be master of ceremonies.

The Tech choir, directed by Gene Kenney, will sing during the intermission.

All students being recognized and their relatives and friends are invited to the informal tea in the West Lobby of the Union, after the services.

Toby Y. Kahr
B. S., Columbia University

The road to management is a two-way street at Ford Motor Company. On one side of the street, the college graduate brings to us his talents, abilities and ambitions. Then it is up to us to ensure that he realizes his full potential.

There are several methods we use in guiding his development. One method is periodic evaluations. These reviews measure performance and—more importantly—chart the best route for an employee to pursue in developing his capabilities. These performance reviews are prepared at least once a year by the employee's immediate supervisor, reviewed by higher management and discussed with the employee.

In addition, there are frequent reviews and analyses of individual performance in which promotions, salary increases and developmental moves are planned. These programs are so important that each division and staff has a special section responsible for administering them. One of the people who helps oversee these programs is Toby Kahr. His experience is also an example of how a college graduate benefits from these programs.

In 1963, Toby completed our College Graduate Program. During these first two years, he gained a depth of experience in Company policies involving all aspects of employe relations. Currently he supervises the Personnel Planning and Training Section of our Steel Division. In essence, Toby is helping to implement the program that led to his own career development.

Programs such as these are intended to make certain that your performance at Ford Motor Company will be recognized and will determine how fast you'll move ahead. The development of future managerial material is one of our fundamental goals. See our representative when he visits your campus. Something good may develop for you.

20 Of World's Top Ropers To Enter Roping Contest

Approximately 20 of the world's top ropers have indicated that they will enter the Fourth Annual Lubbock Jaycee Championship Calf Roping set for Sunday March 21, 1965.

The roping will begin at 2 p.m. at Auffer's Sports Arena, south of Lubbock on the Tahoka Highway.

The roping is one of the few indoor calf ropings in the nation, and is one of the richest. With a $100 entry fee and an added $300, it draws the top ropers from across the country.

Bill Norris, chairman of the project, said that the roping is held indoors each year to eliminate the possibility of bad weather affecting the performances of the cowboys and causing any discomfort at all for the roping fans.

For ropers who would like to enter early, fees will be taken by Ken Gardner at the Red Raider Barber Shop, 1113 College Ave., each day from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. through Saturday and then at Auffer's Sports Arena from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. on Sunday March 21.

Some of the ropers expected to enter are Dean Oliver, Boise, Idaho; Jim Bob Altizer, Del Rio; Don McGlaughlin, Fort Worth; Clifton Smith, Tell; Glen Franklin, House, N.M.; Sonny Davis, Kenna, N.M. and Olin Young, Albuquerque, N.M.

Norris also related that "after this roping is over, there will be other smaller jackpot ropings until every roper has had his fill."

Tickets are $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children and there will be no advance sale.
