Annual 'International' Show, Judging Today

MAKING A SHEEP LOOK AS WOOLY AS POSSIBLE—Richard Ramsey, Byers freshman, grooms the sheep he will show today in the 18th Annual Little International Stock Show. The event, sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club, begins at 12:15 p.m. in the Aggie Pavilion.

The Block and Bridle Club's annual Little International Show will begin today at 12:15 p.m. in the Livestock Pavilion with more than 60 participants.

Today's competition will begin with the Showmanship Contest, and will end at the conclusion of the Blue Ribbon Ham Sale which is scheduled to begin at 4:30 p.m.

Other activities include a Milk Maid Contest (speed-milking for girls) and Pig Scramble that will be reeled off during the course of the afternoon.

In the Little International Showmanship Contest, the top showman will receive a grand champion showman trophy, and the winners in each division will receive ribbons.

Competition is based on the trainer's showmanship, and not the quality of the animal. Livestock is furnished by the Tech farm, and have been going through a phase of training and grooming for the past month by the entering contestants.

There will be one division each for beef cattle, swine, dairy cattle, sheep and quarter horses. The show will be judged by the leading stockmen in the area.

One hundred hams will be up for auction in the tenth Annual Blue Ribbon Ham Sale, and will bring International to a close.

Kenneth Bozeman, auctioneer for the sale, will be in charge of the bidding which is open to any interested persons. Last year the lowest price of a ham was $15.

There will be no admission charge to any of the Little International events.

Board To Discuss Addition Of School

The Tech Board of Directors continues its two day meeting today to discuss the possibility of the addition of a School of Education and other items.

The Academic Programs Committee of the Board will consider a request from the Department of Education and Philosophy for a new School of Education. This request will go to the Co-ordinating Board, Texas College and University System, for consideration.

The committee will also consider a request from the department of Agricultural Engineering for a new degree program "Master of Science in Agricultural Engineering". This request must also go to the Co-ordinating Board.

The Board will hear a report from the Campus and Building Committee concerning the investment of certain endowment funds.

The Campus Planning Committee formulated recommendations yesterday which will be presented to the Board today for new buildings.

The Board will also consider the recommendations from the Campus Traffic Committee concerning campus parking and traffic. The Television Committee will hear a report on the operation and plans for the Educational Television Station.

WSO will host a luncheon for the members of the Board and administration and their wives in the Faculty Club today.

The Board members will attend the Tech-University of New Mexico game tonight.

Food Boycott Averted

Another possible dormitory cafeteria boycott was averted Friday by Student Association officers.

The proposed strike was to have taken place Friday night in the combined dining facilities for Gaston and Thompson Halls. Letters had been circulated in the two men's dorms Thursday and Friday calling for peaceful student participation in the boycott.

However, during Friday's noon meal, Student Association President Roland Anderson and Vice President Scott Allen spoke to the dormitory residents.

"There is no further need to boycott the cafeterias at this time," Anderson said. "The other recent boycotts have served to point out this problem and steps are being taken now to remedy the situation."

"Special 'complaint tables' will be set up in all of the dormitory cafeterias in the next few days," Allen said. Specific complaints and recommendations will be collected at the tables and used for information in a future meeting with administrators, student representatives, and dormitory and food service officials.

Earlier this week, men students in Wells and Carpenter Halls successfully boycotted an evening meal in their combined cafeteria.

Tech Brochure Goes On Sale

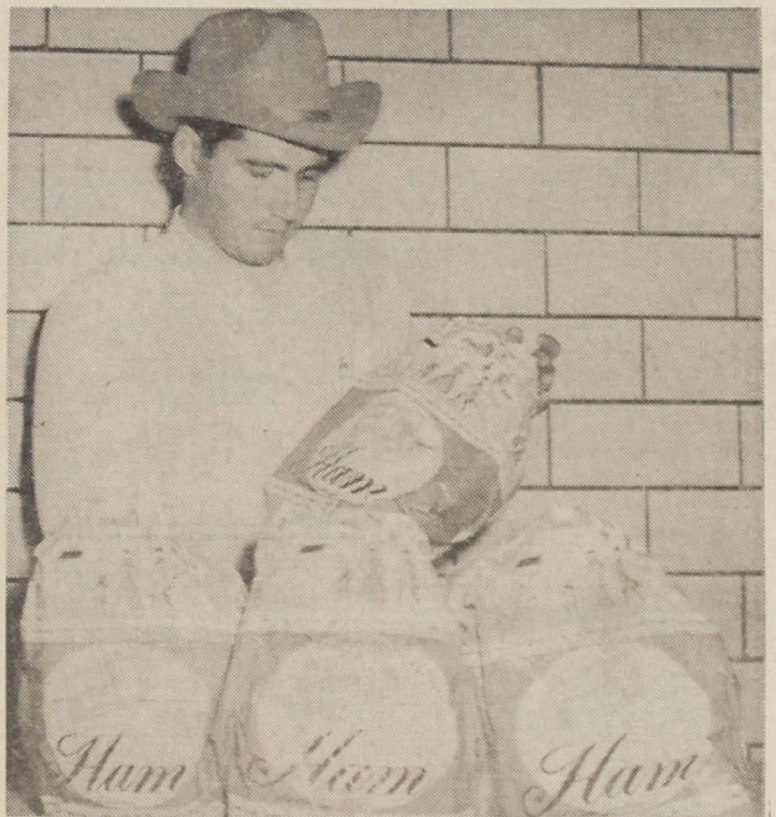

Due to heavy public demand, 5,000 of the colorful brochures highlighting Texas Tech's 40th anniversary celebration will be placed on sale at the Tech Bookstore beginning at 8 a.m. Monday.

"We have received so many requests for the brochure, it was impossible to accommodate everyone," a College spokesman said. The brochures will be placed on sale on a first-come, first-served basis. They will sell for $1.25, the actual cost of production.

The brochures, tracing the steady growth of Tech from its first graduating classes of 1927 to its present role as a multi-purpose university of the first class, should make ideal Christmas gifts.

The brochure, printed in four colors, has the theme, "Forty Years Forward, 1925-1965." The black cover features a cut-out of the Double T over the ruby red of a Tech class ring.

Pictures of the early day Tech are contrasted with the modern buildings and facilities of today. Stories outline the forward advance of the school where 40 years ago there were only six scattered structures. There now are 98 permanent buildings plus 65 others for special purposes.

Band-athon To Draw Large Talent Variety

More than 65 groups are booked for the Texas Tech Band-athon beginning at 6:30 p.m. today on KLBK radio-television. This number does not include the Texas Tech Band, which will serve as the backbone of the program.

A large variety of talent will appear, including a large number of high school students. Terry Stephens, 1965 National Baton Twirler, will perform. A few of the "rock and roll" groups are the Sessions, the Majestics, and Jerry and the Pledges. The Troubadors, a folk group will also perform.

Other performers are: David Moon, Karate expert; Betty Tolley, organist; Go-E the clown; the Slumtown Symfunny, from Lamesa. Richard Wresch will perform magic acts of the Great Houdini. Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity will sing. Various announcers of radio and television will serve as masters of ceremony.

Lubbock Citizens Band Radio Club will furnish 20 radio-equipped cars to pick up donations. The cars will be located throughout the city with band members in each in addition to a member of the club.

"The Big Red Band" is attempting to get $16,000 for a trip to the Gator Bowl. The trip will cost $32,000 with the College providing the rest of the funds.

"Most welcome" was the comment from the Gator Bowl officials when Dean Killion, director of the Texas Tech Band, called to inquire about the situation.

The band is scheduled to give a concert in the Jacksonville city park at 10 a.m., Dec. 31, just before the game. There will be three half-time shows. The Texas Tech band, Georgia Tech band, and the "Hi-steppers" from Mississippi will each perform for five minutes. The Cotton Bowl gives each band six minutes, and the Orange Bowl gives five minutes.

Dean Killion talked to Gene Braught, University of Oklahoma band director, about taking the buses to the Gator Bowl. University of Oklahoma went by bus to the Gator Bowl last year. Braught said that bus transportation on such a long trip is totally impractical.

This was the primary reason for the Raider band going by plane.

'Look Homeward Angel' Intensely Moving

By MARGARET EASTMAN
Fine Arts Editor

"Look Homeward, Angel," currently playing at the Lubbock Theatre Centre, is an intensely moving drama which shows Thomas Wolfe's portrait of his youthful self.

The story takes the audience into a few memorable weeks in the life of the Gant family. Ketti Fring's play adaptation captures much of Wolfe's pathos, and LTC's production reflects, once again, director Burt French's genius for putting together a first rate show.

The play is one of many moods. We see a boy's coming of age, his first love, his agonized struggle to escape from his family.

We see the disintegration of a marriage, the death of a beloved family member and we see fiercely intense characters who occasionally love one another, but who most often conflict with each other.

The play is focused on Eugene Gant (Thomas Wolf) his brother and his parents. Charles Benton turned in a brilliant performance as the sensitive young writer, a smoldering teen-age boy who displays a wide variety of strong emotions.

Eugene is romantic and compassionate, yet resentful and agonized. Benton's interpretation is intensely sincere, and he captures Eugene's youth perfectly.

Eugene's trials stem mainly from the nagging of his mother who is always advising him, "Throw your shoulders back and put a smile on your face." Dorris Smith (a Tech speech instructor) is magnificent in the role of the mother who is obsessed with land and money. Although she sacrifices the welfare of her family for her greed, she needs their love desperately.

Mrs. Smith portrayed the mean, yet pathetic, woman in an amazingly perfect Southern accent.

John Oldham as W. O. Gant, the crude, once poetic, alcoholic father, acts with a vigor that matches the role. His creative interpretation of Old Man Gant gave the audience laughter and tears.

Michael Connell, a Tech junior, as Eugene's protective older brother is tremendous. His characterization is extremely strong, and Ben Gant will long be remembered in the minds of the audience.

There are few scenes as unbearably moving as that in which Ben Gant dies. The whole cast contributed to the effectiveness of this scene, but laurels go particularly to Carol O'Connell for her portrayal of "Fatty" Pert, the drinking, bawdy woman who, alone, can give Ben comfort.

If there was a woman in the audience who wasn't crying during this scene, she must, indeed, be stronghearted.

Dinah Kerr as Helen Gant, the "teasing" old sister, was outstanding, as was Marcelle Mason in the role of Eugene's first love, Miss Mason, a Tech freshman, brought out the maturity and youthfulness of the role in just the right amounts.

Special praise goes to Andee Strong for her portrayal of the madam from the town brothel who is in the market for a tombstone. Her scene with W. O. Gant, a stone-cutter, is one of the highlights of the show. Both Oldham and Mrs. Strong are extremely effective in this scene.

The rest of the cast—the frowzy boarders and the townspeople—contribute to the success of the play, which has one of the strongest casts the Lubbock Theatre Centre has ever seen.

Pilots Near Half Mark

Houston, Tex. (AP)—Their noses stuffy and their spacecraft shutters sometimes closed against the hot sun, the Gemini 7 pilots Friday streaked toward the half-way mark of their 14-day orbital journey.

Flight surgeons tried to prescribe an antiallegry, decongestant pill for Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr.

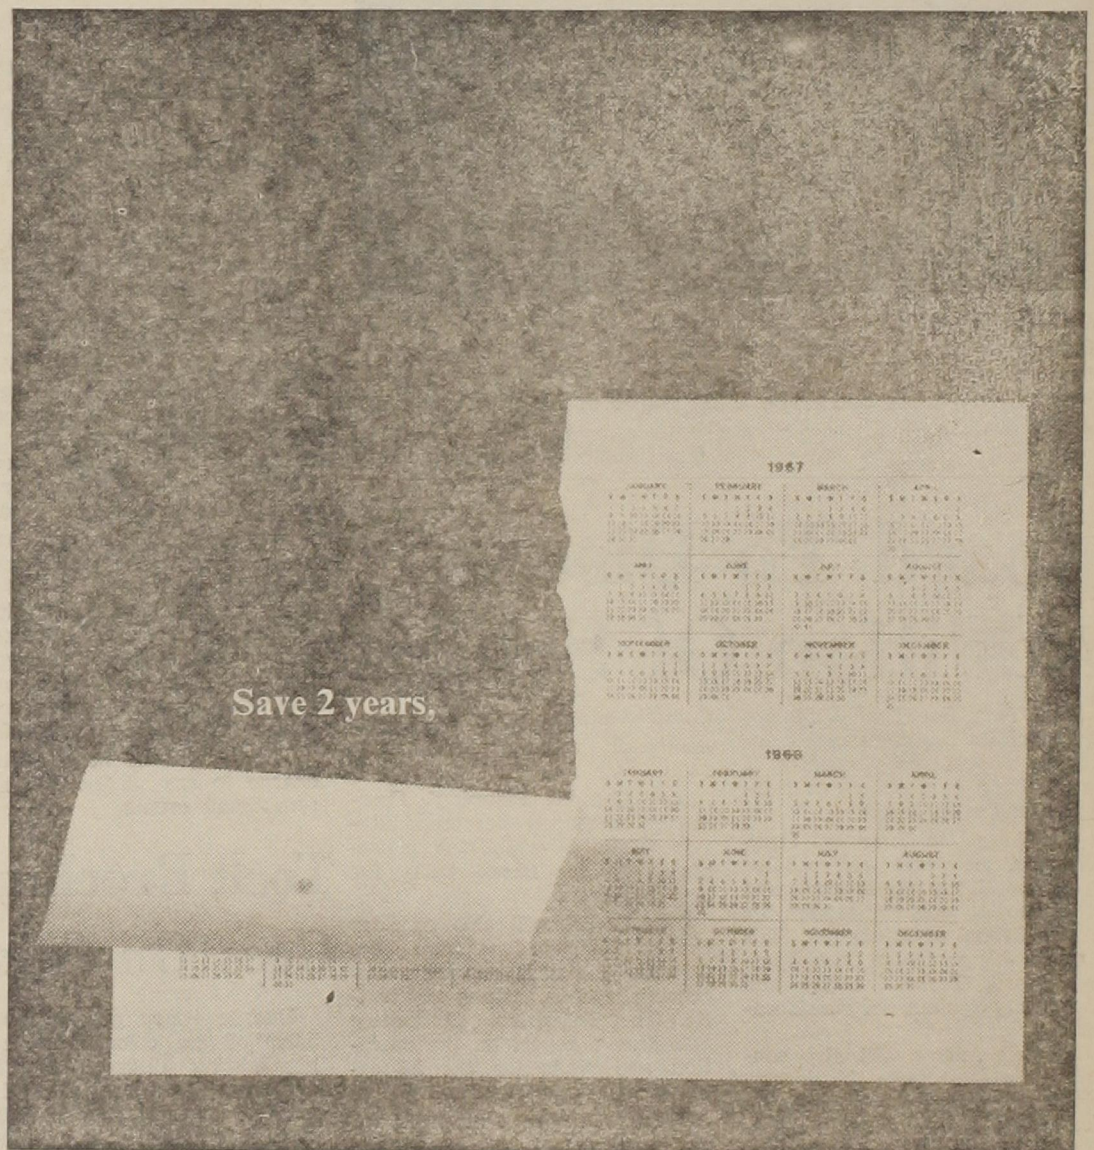

Unless it's "for medical research,

I'd prefer not to," Lovell replied.

Otherwise, both he and Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman were in fine shape as their Gemini 7 spacecraft clipped off the miles and minutes toward Sunday's date with a Gemini sistership.

Gemini 7 entered its 91st orbit at 2:24 p.m. EST.

Dr. Charles A. Berry asked if there was a dandruff problem in space, and the pilots said "No."

because now you can complete Air Force ROTC in just half the time!

Are you interested in starting a military career while in college—but afraid it will cut too deeply into your schedule?

Well, here's good news for you. Air Force ROTC now offers a 2-year program. You can start it any time you have 2 years of higher education remaining—whether on the undergraduate or graduate level.

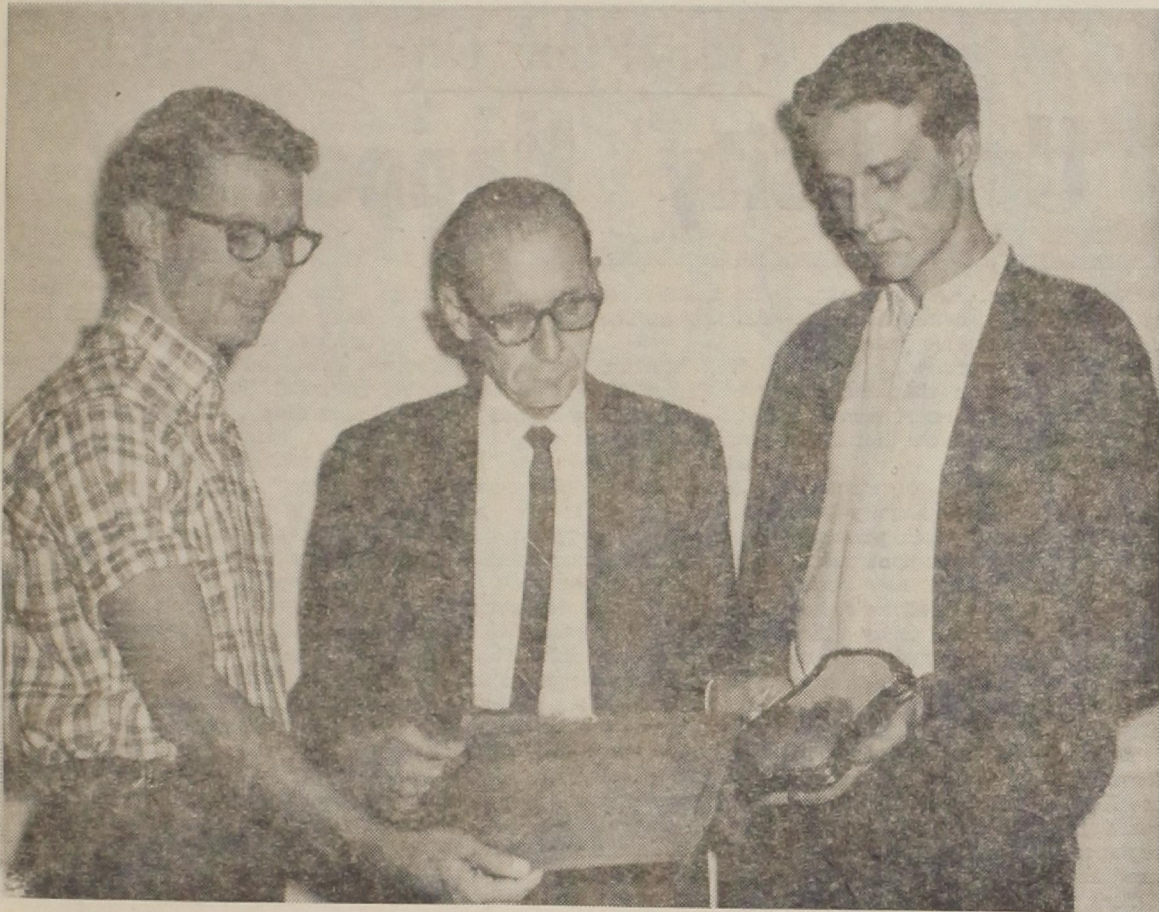

Here's another good thing about this program: you get a chance to "sample" Air Force life before you sign up. During a special summer orientation session, you get to make up your mind about the Air Force, and the Air Force gets to make up its mind about you. Only when both are satisfied are you finally enrolled in the program.

You'll learn a lot in Air Force ROTC. The curriculum has been completely revamped. The accent is on aerospace research and development. But of course the classes are only the beginning. The important thing is that you'll be taking the first big step toward a profession of great responsibility, as a leader on America's Aerospace Team.

Desire To Succeed?

A RECENT STORY from the New York Times News Service claims cheating is increasing among New York City high school students. It is most prevalent among the more intelligent competing for admittance in prestige colleges.

A high school principal was quoted as seeing a solution: "If every kid in this country knew he could get into a college that was right for him, there would be a tremendous decrease in cheating."

Maybe. Perhaps the pressures nowadays for young people to excel in school are having an adverse effect here and there.

But basically the problem is deeper: in the home and school, the emphasis on morals has not paralleled the emphasis on knowledge. The pressure to do the right thing is not as great as the pressure to succeed.

Too many of us Americans try to "go ahead" at any price. If we have to cheat—well, no wonder that it is discovered in the classroom.

Our View On:
University Happenings

Dormitory food is a popular topic at other campus communities besides Texas Tech this year.

At Hardin-Simmons University, the Brand reports that the second part of a three-part survey is being conducted in the dormitory dining halls.

The first part of the survey—the Food Preference Survey—was to get an idea of which particular foods the students enjoyed most.

The second phase now being conducted will tell officials how well the students enjoy their meals, based on such considerations as proper temperatures, careful preparations and attractive display.

The survey is conducted in the form of six questions on easy-to-use IBM cards. The cards are prepared by the national Saga Acceptance Survey and are being used at several other schools.

Tech will be trying a similar plan during the next few school weeks to acquire specific complaints and recommendations concerning the dormitory food problems here.

WRC and MRC will be conducting the complaint tables in each dorm here. We hope everyone with a valid gripe will make the specifics known so something definite can be done.

The Student Center at Pensacola Junior College in Pensacola, Fla., may lose their pool tables if gambling doesn't stop there, reports the Corsair.

A move was made recently by the Student Senate to curb further gambling. Although gambling has been prohibited for some time, it apparently has persisted.

The Senators later voted to remove the pool tables if there were any more complaints. The recreation room would then be furnished as an informal lounge for the student body.

The University of Texas Students' Association began an investigation this week of policy making in 28 areas of University organization.

According to the Daily Texan, 30 students were assigned to study formal planning and decision-making regarding academic discipline, the academic calendar, admissions standards, registration procedures, the operation of the University Co-Op, the Texas Union, student publications and housing and food service.

The survey will also include a study of athletics, loans and scholarships, public relations and fees.

The final reports are supposed to explain how policy is decided in each area, what part students should play in making the decisions, and how the policy could be changed to give students more voice in decisions.

An evaluation of the reports will be sent to the Board of Regents, who suggested the study in the first place, for their use and study.

Maybe it would be a good idea if such a survey were made into many of the student-faculty-administration boards and committees around here.

The African Interest Mission Group sponsored a "Sodza Supper" recently for all interested Abilene Christian College students.

According to the Optimist, "sodza" is a popular African food, eaten with meat and vegetables. Sponsors of the meal put out a special notice saying that all guests should wash their hands carefully before coming to the dinner.

No silverware was provided for the meal, in keeping with the African customs.

Food Committee Discusses Issue

Dear Editor,

Concerning the latest controversy on food and service in dormitory cafeterias, the student Food Committee would like to sum up the situation and, in doing so, "get the ball rolling."

Have you ever seen a full course dinner offered in a restaurant for only 20 cents? Well, that is the price Tech students pay for each of their meals.

As shown in the tables below, 48.7 percent of the total room and board of all dorms is spent on the food service. Of this amount 65 percent is spent for raw food. This percentage amounts to approximately $25.50 spent monthly per person, or 30 cents per meal for raw food. Fifteen cents is spent in preparation of the food.

The Senate food committee has been eating in each of the different dorms and talking with the students. From our observations, most of the complaints have been concerned primarily with handling, preparation and service of the food.

In defense of some of the things which have been said about the food preparation, let us mention that it is hard to take 1,000 steaks off the stove at the proper time.

It is hard to have food ready at the exact time it is needed for serving and still be hot as though it came straight from the oven.

Another point worth mentioning is that cooks do not get paid extra for economizing with the food.

If you, the students at Texas Tech, feel that you are getting such a bad deal, would you be willing to pay more for room and board so that more and better trained cooks and dieticians could be obtained?

What are your ideas concerning optional meal tickets where you would only pay for the meals you eat? Of course, with a meal ticket the price per meal would be greater than it is now.

As representatives of the student body, we would appreciate your comments, good and bad, on any phase of the food service. We are your representatives, and we would like to get something done.

Taylor Believes Band Should Go

Dear Editor,

I am a band member who will not go to the Gator bowl. The reason I'm not going is because I must go to California for an audition. Let me say that I feel my not going gives me a sense of guilt. That guilt is caused by feelings that I may be "letting down" my fraternity, Kappa Kappa Psi; my organization, the Tech Band; my school, Texas Tech; and my football team, the Red Raiders, by not going and doing my best to worthily represent these organizational units.

The main reason for this letter is to answer Mr. Phil Moser's and Mr. Roger Smith's letters in the Dec. 9 issue of the Toreador. Moser asks "Why spend $32,000 to send the band to Florida?" He then answers that question by telling why the football team is sent, . . . make Tech better known nationally . . . to enrich our prospects . . . arouse bigger gate receipts and better game attendance . . . pride in efforts and successes . . . many students are attracted to (our) school . . ."

It is true many bands are watched with passive interest but the Tech band has proven its ability to grab an audience, any audience, and hold its attention throughout a performance. Also, members of the audiences more often than not leave the game whistling or humming the tunes played even if the team lost the game.

Talking about "selfish, ego building interests," the band is an academic subject, required of music majors in band, and its support is a heck of a lot more important than a $60,000 fountain.

In answer to Mr. Smith, it is a lot of money. Has he stopped to consider all the efforts the band members put into backing our school and our teams, football and basketball? The gate receipts at a basketball game are tremendous and is not divided among other SWC schools. Yet their spenditure is minimum. What would happen to the teams and the attraction to the school because of loss of spirit if suddenly band members refused to give their best?

I must remind Mr. Smith the school is not a charitable organization and neither is the band. There are such organizations who have prepared to care for needy families; and such a sacrifice on the part of the band might bring the band honor but it would not support the school (which is the function of the band, anyway).

I'm willing to go, I'm wanting to go, I wish I could go, but I can't. To Mr. Killion and "Killion's Millions" I do want to say, "Go! Give them your all. Show the nation Tech is a great school with a great band as well as a great football team."

Mademoiselle Pageant Planned For February

Entry blanks are being mailed to organizations for their entries in the Miss Mademoiselle and the Miss Playmate contests.

The winners will be selected on Feb. 4 at the annual La Ventana Extravaganza, co-sponsored by La Ventana and Sigma Delta Chi, men's national journalism society.

Organizations can enter and sponsor as many girls as they wish. Entry fees will be $2.00 per entry. Deadline for entering will be 5 p.m., Jan. 28.

Preliminary judging of Miss Mademoiselle will take place Jan. 29, in the Agriculture Engineering Auditorium. From the entries at the preliminary, 25 will be selected to appear Feb. 4 in the finals. Miss Mademoiselle will be featured on the cover of "Mademoiselle" magazine in the La Ventana, and she and the nine other finalists will be featured in the Mademoiselle section of the La Ventana.

The contest for Miss Playmate is judged solely on beauty. The judging is done from photographs. In the past years, it was up to the organization sponsoring the girl to get a picture made; however Sigma Delta Chi now takes care of arranging a sitting, taking the picture, and entering it for the organization.

The entry fee for the Miss Playmate contest is $7.50. This fee includes having the picture made, supplying the organization with a copy of the picture, and a banner to wear bearing the name of the sponsoring organization. Deadline for Miss Playmate entries is 5 p.m., Jan. 13. Entry blanks and fees must be turned in to room 102 of the Journalism Building. Extra blanks are available in the same room.

For further information, contact Mike Ferrell, producer of the extravaganza, at Ext. 4252 or Ext. 4851 after 5 p.m. or Jim Jones, Ext. 4259 or SH4-17779.

HARBINGER ENTRIES NOW BEING TAKEN

"The Harbinger," annual literary magazine of Sigma Tau Delta, is now accepting contributions for publication. All submissions should be neatly typed and placed in "The Harbinger" mailbox in the English Dept. For further information, contact Ann Brewer, Ext. 2465.

Madrigals Carol At Union Party

The Madrigal Singers will present Elizabethan era and traditional Christmas carols at a Wassail party scheduled for 4-5 p.m. Sunday in the Tech Union.

The Madrigal Singers are composed of four boys and four girls chosen from the Tech Choir.

The Madrigal's sing traditionally around tables, and during Elizabeth's reign guests were not invited to dinner unless they could sing. They sing without accompaniment.

Public demand is so great during Christmas that they have little opportunity to perform on the Tech campus according to Susan Wilkinson, chairman of the Fine Arts Committee.

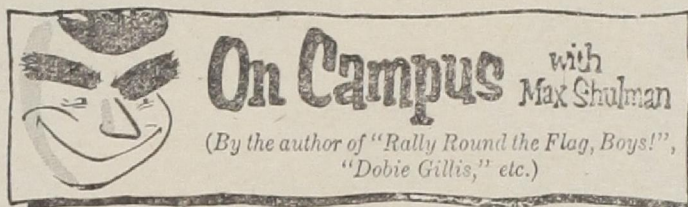

After caroling throughout the Union, refreshments will be served in the Piano Lounge at the Union.

Cadets Visit Missile School 26

Twenty-nine Tech Air Force ROTC cadets along with four college officials flew to Wichita Falls' Sheppard Air Force Base as guests of the Air Training Command's Technical Training Center.

Accompanying the cadets were: Major Henry L. Gantz, Jr., Tech's Professor of Aerospace Studies, disclosed that this base visitation was another in his department's yearly program of acquainting cadets and college officials with the inner working of an operational Air Force organization. Included in the visit were tours of the base's missile facilities, Strategic Air Command B-52 aircraft and command-post installations, and educational and training materials. Dr. Vincent P. Luchsinger, Associate Professor of Management; Mr. William L. Jenkins, Associate Professor of Industrial Engineering; Mr. Gerald B. Rogers, Executive Director of West Texas Cooperative Audio-Visual Services; and Captain Robert Dyer, Assistant Professor of Aerospace Studies.

THE BLUEBIRD OF HAPPINESS HAS FLOWN THE COOP

Can education bring happiness?

This is a question that in recent years has caused much lively debate and several hundred stabbings among American college professors. Some contend that if a student's intellect is sufficiently aroused, happiness will automatically follow. Others say that to concentrate on the intellect and ignore the rest of the personality can only lead to misery.

I myself favor the second view, and I offer in evidence the well-known case of Knut Fusco.

Knut, a forestry major, never got anything less than a straight "A," was awarded his B.T. (Bachelor of Trees) in only two years, his M.S.B. (Master of Sap and Bark) in only three, and his D.B.C. (Doctor of Blight and Cutworms) in only four.

Academic glory was his. His intellect was the envy of every intellect fan on campus. But was he happy? The answer, alas, was no. Knut—he knew not why—was miserable; so miserable, in fact, that one day while walking across campus, he was suddenly so overcome with melancholy that he flung himself, weeping, upon the statue of the Founder.

By and by, a liberal arts coed named Nikki Sigafos came by with her Barbie doll. She noted Knut's condition. "How come you're so unhappy, hey?" said Nikki.

"Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major," replied Knut peevishly.

"All right, I will," said Nikki. "You are unhappy for two reasons. First, because you have been so busy stuffing your intellect that you have gone and starved your psyche. I've got nothing against learning, mind you, but a person oughtn't to neglect the pleasant, gentle amenities of life—the fun things. Have you, for instance, ever been to a dance?"

Knut shook his head.

"Have you ever watched a sunset? Written a poem? Shaved with a Personna Stainless Steel Blade?"

Knut shook his head. "Well, we'll fix that right now," said Nikki, and gave him a razor, a Personna Stainless Steel Blade, and a can of Burma Shave.

Knut lathered with the Burma Shave and shaved with the Personna and for the first time in many long years he smiled. He smiled and then he laughed—peal after peal of reverberating joy. "Wow-dow!" he cried. "What a shave! Does Personna come in injector style, too?"

"It does," said Nikki.

"Gloriosky!" cried Knut. "And does Burma Shave come in menthol, too?"

"It does," said Nikki.

"Huzzah!" cried Knut. "Now that I have found Personna and Burma Shave I will never have another unhappy day."

"Hold!" said Nikki. "Personna and Burma Shave alone will not solve your problem—only half of it. Remember I said there were two things making you unhappy?"

"Oh, yeah," said Knut. "What's the other one?"

"How long have you had that bear trap on your foot?" said Nikki.

"I stepped on it during a field trip in my freshman year," said Knut. "I keep meaning to have it taken off."

"Allow me," said Nikki and removed it.

"Land's sakes, what a relief!" said Knut, now totally happy, and took Nikki's hand and led her to a Personna vendor and then to a justice of the peace.

Today Knut is a perfectly fulfilled man, both intellectually and personalitywise. He lives in a charming split-level house with Nikki and their 17 children and he rises steadily in the forestry game. Only last month, in fact, he became Consultant on Sawdust to the American Butchers Guild, he was named an Honorary Sequoia by the park commissioner of Las Vegas, and he published a best-selling book called I Was a Slippery Elm for the FBI.

MANNED ORBITING LABORATORY—This is the MOL, planned for launch by the Air Force in the near future. The lab is a vital step in the United States' quest for exploration of the moon. The lab will be one of the subjects discussed in "The U.S. Space Program," an illustrated program scheduled for Tuesday in the Union Ballroom.

Space Race Briefing By Aerospace Lecturers

Three space lecturers will tell and their rides in simulated space America's aerospace story at vehicles.

Texas Tech. The three lecturers are Colonel Richard B. Olney, Lt. Colonel Luther R. Myers, Jr., and Major James S. Wall, from the U. S. Air Force's Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama.

The program will be presented in the Union Ballroom, 3 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 14. The heavily scheduled Aerospace Presentations Team has been invited to brief the student body and faculty, Major Henry L. Gantz, Jr., Professor of Aerospace Studies said. The public is invited.

The team members trace the development of U. S. strides in space from the first efforts several years ago to the present. Motion picture films and slides illustrate the presentation.

The presentation outlines the efforts of NASA and the Department of Defense in the national space program. It gives the step-by-step process that the space program is following and relates the entire space effort to our national goal.

Current and future manned aerospace developments, including plans for placing American astronauts on the moon by 1970 will be discussed. The team will give their account of visits to space activities, talks with astronauts,

They will also recount their discussions with scientists who have envisioned the future aerospace activities, with the engineers who are designing and building America's space vehicles, and with the astronauts who plan to actually land a lunar excursion module on the moon in this decade.

Each program is adapted in scope, technical content, and length to fit a specific audience. Programs are given to high school assemblies, college students and faculties, and to civic, military, and industrial groups as well as to technical audiences attending various aerospace symposiums. New and updated material is added to the program daily.

Last year, the Aerospace Presentations Team filled 350 speaking engagements in 105 cities throughout the nation. For this record, the Air Force Association presented the team its top award, the Hoyt S. Vandenberg Trophy.

AFTER-GAME DANCE

Tech Union Dance Committee is sponsoring an after-game dance at 9:30-12 p.m. today. The "Sparkles" will play for the dance, for which there is no admission charge, in the Union Ballroom.

Red Raiders Tackle Strong New Mexico Quintet Tonight

Coach Gene Gibson and his Red Raider cagers will try to put the finishing touches on a perfect week tonight when they brace for the invasion of nationally ranked New Mexico in Municipal Coliseum at 8 p.m.

The Raiders started the week with a 77-72 victory over Arizona here Monday night, after dropping the first two games on its schedule to Colorado and the University of Kansas.

And if preseason prognostications are correct, tonight's inter-sectional battle will match two conference champions.

New Mexico, which received votes in the Associated Press poll released earlier this week, was the preseason pick to cop the Western Athletic Conference title.

Little has been done to disprove the Lobo's selection since they are unbeaten in three outings this season. Homecourt victims were Midwestern and Baylor and they nipped Iowa State, 56-52 as visitors.

The Raiders, notoriously slow starters, were tabbed to win the Southwest Conference crown and although they have lost two of three contests, Gibson remains confident.

"We've improved with every game and we'll improve even more as time goes on," Gibson said. "I definitely think we'll be ready by the time conference play begins."

Gibson described the Lobos as "one of the best teams we'll face all year."

New Mexico plays the game in a manner not too unlike Kansas in that it employs a slow, deliberate type of play, seldom using the fast break, although it has the speed to do so.

The Lobos operate from a high-low post offense and are strictly man-to-man on defense.

From a physical standpoint, the Lobos are big with the starting unit ranging in height from 6-10 Mel Daniels, to 6-2 Jim Howard.

Daniels is the center of New Mexico's scoring activity, hitting at a 20.6 per game average. Daniel's top scoring cohort is Bill Moran, 6-7 who's maintaining a 12.3 mean.

Rounding out the starting unit will be Ben Monroe, 6-3; Jim Patterson, 6-5 and Howard.

Gibson said he would "probably" use the same starting quintet as have opened all three previous games but that changes could be made "depending on today's practice."

If the usual group starts, it'll be: Norman Reuther and Russ Wilkinson, forwards; Dub Malaise and Billy Tapp, guards; and Bob Glover, center.

Gibson did not rule out the possibilities, however, that sophomores Vernon Paul and Jimmy Fullerton, or senior Bobby Measells would start the game.

After tonight's clash, the Raiders will host the University of Oklahoma in Municipal Coliseum Tuesday before visiting Kansas Thursday and Wichita Saturday.

The Raiders will kick off tonight's festivities when they meet the red shirts in a preliminary battle at 5:45.

CONTRACT RESCINDED

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—The University of Maryland and Tom Nugent were both looking Friday—the college for a new head football coach and he for a job.

The university announced that Nugent's contract would not be renewed when it expires Jan. 15.

Nugent, 51, who joined a growing list of mentors deposed by major schools, left a statement with the university before his departure.

It said: "This is satisfactory to me, under the circumstances. I do not have immediate plans. There are certain opportunities in Florida that I may look into, but right now for a few days I'm going to relax in the sun."

ROBINSON RECALLS

NEW YORK (AP)—Jackie Robinson says he was stunned by the first question Branch Rickey asked him when he was called into Rickey's Brooklyn Dodger office on Montague Street in 1945.

"He asked me if I had a girl," Jackie said. "I replied, 'Yes, sir.'"

"Tell me about her," Rickey said. "I did, and then he took off his glasses, looked at me solemnly and said, 'Then, marry her. You're going to have some trying times before you're through. You'll need somebody by your side.'"

Silence Is Not Always Golden

By MIKE LUTZ
Sports Editor

ANONYMOUS, UNOFFICIAL, not-to-be-quoted comments from around the coffee pot at the athletic office after yesterday's Toreador editorial concerning the Band's proposed trip to the Gator Bowl:

"I don't like the reflection it casts on the athletic department," said one, who preferred not to be identified. "The whole story should be printed. There are some facts that weren't presented."

"There's something that should be explained before this whole thing gets out of hand," another unnamed commentor said. "People are getting the idea that the athletic department doesn't want the band to go to Florida. Nothing could be further from the truth. The fact of the matter is my wife and I discussed this last night and decided to contribute something to the trip."

What Are The Facts

WE ASKED THE first individual, who is not the official spokesman for the athletic department, what additional facts should be presented.

"Well, for one thing, it was my impression that the Gator Bowl people weren't too interested in the band being present since they've only allowed them five minutes to perform."

"Also, the athletic department paid for two band trips to Austin and Fayetteville this year. Nobody has said anything about that. And the athletic department offered to help the band with some other mode of transportation other than flying to Jacksonville. If the football team had a traveling squad of 280, it might be riding a bus or plane too," he said.

But There's A Fallacy

BUT THE GLARING fallacy of the above statements lies not in the fact of whether or not they are true, but by mere admission that they are UNOFFICIAL. We know for a fact that the two persons we talked with have nothing against the band making the trip to Florida, because admittedly, it would help morale.

And we assume that to be the feeling of all concerned. But how can anyone be certain if all we can get in the way of comment is "no comment."

"I don't want to get involved," one conversationist said. "It's not my place." AND HE'S RIGHT. It's not his place to make any official comment for the athletic department.

Reasons May Be Good Ones

THE AD MIGHT have very good reasons for not parting with the money to send the Raider marchers to Jacksonville. But until the department comes from behind its cloak of secrecy and makes an official statement, (and it should come from the director Polk Robison,) there will always be room for suspicion.

THE DAILY TOREADOR has never accused the athletic department of any malfunction or misjudgement of funds and is not doing so now, but until it is willing to make its reasoning known on this and other matters (i.e. closed athletic council meetings), this corner says it should expect little better than adverse criticism to its procedure.
