Defunct Rodeo Assn. gives money

The Santa Anna Fire Department received an unusual and unexpected donation last week, when an account of $131.95 was found remaining in the Santa Anna National Bank in the name of the Santa Anna Rodeo Association, which was organized in about 1937. When C. D. Bruce was informed of the dormant account, it developed that he is the only living director of the Association.

Bruce was authorized to dispose of the money, which he gave to the Fire Department. He has a picture of the last seven directors, who besides himself were O. L. Cheaney, Rat. Guthrie, W. F. Barnes, Ben Yarbrough, Alpheus Boardman, and George Johnson.

Four community rodeos were held in the southwest part of town, with large crowds attending. The first two were staged by the local men, with calves, steers and bucking horses lent by stockmen of the area. The last two were managed by the well-known Sellers Brothers, who had their own rodeo circuit and livestock.

When the Coleman Rodeo Association was formed, the Santa Anna men decided to disband and to put their efforts behind the success of the new and larger group. Several of the Santa Anna men were charter members of the Coleman association, Bruce among them.

The Santa Anna Rodeo was the first in this area, another of the firsts in which our town has led. Others were the Santa Anna wading pool, the WPA system for unemployed which gave work to local citizens, the Christmas Queen program. The donation to the Fire Department is a poignant close for the chapter of the days of the Thirties.

VFD orders new truck

Santa Anna Fire fighters were called to two fires the past week and also ordered a new fire truck, according to Freddie Dodson, department spokesman.

A grass fire Thursday about four miles out on the Rockwood house resulting in the burning of about eight acres of grass.

Also the same afternoon, a mobile home received moderate to heavy damage with a fire which was started by a nearby barbecue grill.

In other fire department news, Dodson said there was a good response from citizens to the department's membership drive, and as a result, the fire department has been able to order a new truck.

In a meeting of the department Monday night, members voted to purchase a new one ton Chevrolet cab and chassis from Holley Chevrolet in Brownwood. The truck is expected to be ready in five to six weeks, and will be in operation within the next 60 days, if everything runs according to schedule, said Dodson.

One incumbent replaced

Only one of the two incumbent Coleman County commissioners was successful in Democratic Primary runoff races in Coleman Saturday.

Incumbent Jack Strickland won the party's nomination as Precinct 1 commissioner. He defeated John Sprinkles, 274 votes to 185, in unofficial returns.

In the Precinct 3 race, incumbent Howard Stephenson did not fare as well. Vernon Slate outpolled Stephenson 372 votes to 230 to win nomination.

Neither Democratic nominee has a Republican opponent.

City officials to workshop

Three local city officials will be in attendance at the West Central Texas Council of Governments workshop for city officials in Abilene Wednesday, June 13.

Attending from Santa Anna will be Stanley Hartman, Joe Guerrero, and Pat Rutherford.

The all-day workshop will be directed primarily toward newly elected officials, and will deal with legal and regulatory matters, ordinances and resolutions, budget and fiscal requirements, public official liability, purchasing procedures, and other topics.

Family Planning clinic set

A Family Planning Clinic will be held Tuesday, June 12 at Coleman Multi-Purpose Center, 800 E. 2nd Street.

Applications, blood work and counselling will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. that day. Patients will return to the Center at 6:30 p.m. for physical exams and medical services.

Those attending must bring income and current Medicaid verifications. The program provides free exams for Medicaid patients, and charges a co-pay fee to those who are income eligible, which can be paid out in payments. Private patients are also welcome to participate, according to Barbara Cagle, director.

New postmaster to take job here

Clifford Graham, officer in charge at the Santa Anna Post Office, invites the public to attend appointment ceremonies for the new Santa Anna postmaster.

The ceremony is scheduled to occur on the local Post Office front steps Thursday, June 7, at 3 p.m.

Gary V. Absher of San Angelo will be the new Postmaster here, assuming duties immediately after his Oath of Office Thursday.

Graham said he has enjoyed working with local citizens while at this Post Office. He added that the people in Santa Anna have been very friendly and cooperative, and he would like to thank all those with whom he has worked.

Rain report given

Our rain reporter, R. W. Balke, reports 1.10 inches of rain for the month of May, 1984.

He said he gauged .60 for May 18 and .50 for May 28 for the total.

Scant sprinkles fell here Monday, June 4, with Mr. Balke jokingly reporting six drops six inches apart.

Santana Quilt Club forming here

The newly-formed Santana Quilt Club held its first regular meeting last Friday at the home of Vicky Green, with four members in attendance. The group hopes to meet every two weeks, with tentative plans to meet on Saturday mornings. The next meeting will be Saturday, June 16 from 8 a.m. until noon.

Among projects for the new club will be a quilt raffle with proceeds designated for financing a Quilt Show, which is hoped to become an annual event, to begin here next spring.

The Quilt Club is encouraging all interested persons, whether beginners or experienced quilters, to join the organization. The group's primary goal is to quilt for their members, but they are hoping the quilt show will become an annual event with a large part of the proceeds to be donated to some of the city's civic groups. Besides members, the group is looking for a vacant building or room where they can mount their quilt frames.

The next meeting will be at the home of Delia Mathis, 801 S. Houston. Those wishing more information may contact Vicky Green at 348-3561 or Cindy Tuttle at 348-3279.

In police report

Two incidents here

In police activity this week, a Santa Anna man was fined $20 and $13 court costs early Saturday morning by Municipal Judge Joe Taylor following an altercation with his estranged wife.

Also, a five year-old girl sustained a broken leg when her eight year-old brother accidentally ran over her with his motorcycle. Kathy Cooper, daughter of David and Kay Cooper, is in the Brownwood Regional Hospital following surgery on her leg.

Bus driver sought

A revision to the story about summer swimming lessons has been reported by Debbie Dean, who said at this point there will be no bus transportation to the swimming lessons.

Mrs. Dean said that if anyone is interested in driving a bus to the lessons, they may contact her for information.

Off the cuff

by Jan Naron Henderson

I've had many compliments on OFF THE CUFF since I've been writing it, and I appreciate all the positive comments. Of course, there have been those who say my column is silly. I guess that's fair. Sometimes it IS silly, and I'll be the first to admit that. But then, Jack Cowan is silly most of the time, so this turns out to be a compliment in spite of itself.

And there are those who have said this type of material does not belong on the front page of the newspaper. I appreciate the honesty of that thought (aren't I open-minded?), but I figure if the Abilene Reporter-News thought the front page was good enough for Katherine Duff all those years, it is good enough for me. You have to start somewhere, and I figure the front page of The Santa Anna News is as good a place as any for me to start.

Word seems to travel fast in this little town, like most others, and the word is already out here that I have accepted a teaching position at Snyder High School in Snyder, Texas.

It is no secret to my friends that my loyalty and love for newspaper is exceeded only by my love for teaching, if it is exceeded at all. Since my sixth grade year in Joan Jones' English class here, I've known I loved writing and I wanted to be a writer. At the same time, I wanted to be a teacher. I liked the way teachers were so smart and kind, and I liked the way Mrs. Jones stood in front of the class and asked questions about the stories we were reading in literature. And another thing I liked about Mrs. Jones, which I hope doesn't embarrass her, was the way she would look at her pendant watch from time to time. I never knew anyone before who had a pendant watch, and I thought it was very cool.

I didn't even know what Journalism was until Boots Walker introduced me to UIL Journalism events in high school here. Since that time in my life, I've known journalism was for me. That was the kind of writing I wanted to do.

But I still wanted to be a teacher. The happy ending to this story was in learning that I could TEACH newspaper. That combines my two loves, and there is nothing so blissful as teaching a teenager to respect a field you love.

As a classroom assignment once in my journalism class at Ozona High School, my students had to interview someone in the class and present a feature story to the class. One girl interviewed me, and when she asked me what was the most rewarding facet of teaching journalism, I said it was hearing a student say, "Would you hand me that pica pole?" or "Ms. Henderson, can I do the headlines this time?" Knowing full well if it weren't for you, that student wouldn't know a pica pole from a fence post, and couldn't write a headline to save his life. And here he is throwing around newspaper lingo and WANTING to do things you have always wanted to do as well.

I can't be sure the kids understood my reasoning there, but I'm sure

June is Nat'l Dairy Month

In June, we observe Flag Day, Father's Day, and Midsummer Day.

We can even take a day to remember Custer's Last Stand, on June 25. But one celebration important to the health of people in the United States, and with particular local interest, is the annual observance of June Dairy Month.

The event has two purposes. First is to encourage greater consumption and enjoyment of milk and other dairy foods. Second is to salute the dairy farm families whose daily work assures the continued availability of these nutritious foods.

In this issue, we salute the dairy industry, but in particular, the local facility, Martin Jersey Farm, of Trickham.

While month-long celebrations have been established for many other foods (including soup, pickles, cherries, popcorn, hot dogs, potatoes and peanuts), June Dairy Month is one of the oldest.

This celebration began as a double-header. In the summer of 1937, grocer and drug chain store organizations sponsored National Milk Month and that fall an industry publisher set up National Milk Week. By 1939, the salute became a single month-long event promoting use of dairy foods and saluting dairy farmers. National Dairy Council (NDC) developed special materials and carried out the activities planned by a committee representing dairy farmers, processors and a leading dairy publication. Pioneer leaders were Milton Hult, National Dairy Council; Charles Holman, National Cooperative Milk Producer's Federation; R. E. Little, International Association of Milk Dealers; Charles Speaks, Milk Industry Foundation; and Lester Olsen, The Milk Dealer magazine.

In 1940, when American Dairy Association was organized, dairy farmers in many states selected the well-established June Dairy Month as the time for collecting ADA promotion funds. In 1955, organizational responsibility for June Dairy Month was moved from NDC to ADA. Sales promotion, advertising and merchandising were added to the strong public relations program.

Today, dairy products are promoted all year long. Dairy farmers continue to milk their cows at least twice a day. And American people enjoy dependable supplies of milk, cheese, butter, ice cream and other real dairy foods.

other teachers would, and maybe most parents.

Anyway, it is true that I will be moving to Snyder at the end of the summer, where I have accepted a position as journalism teacher, yearbook adviser, newspaper sponsor, and coordinator of the school district's public relations publication.

I may be a nut for taking on such responsibility in such a big school, but I'm excited, and I know my friends will understand this move in my career.

Now, if I can just find a place to live there.

And, finally, about this issue: June is Dairy Month, and we dedicate this issue to the Martin Jersey Farm at Trickham, which is featured in this newspaper.

Our visit to the dairy was interesting, and Felton and Bill Martin were very informative and quite patient with this semi-city girl who probably asked a lot of dumb questions and once stepped in at least one of the wrong places. My tennis shoes will never be the same.

But it was fun. Taking pictures of cows may not seem too exciting to the average guy, but it was the excitement of the field trip that got me going.

Anyway, I'd like to thank the Martins for their hospitality and patience, and I hope the feature story pleases them. I would like to make mention of the fact that I did already know the difference in a Jersey cow and any other cow before I went out there. I asked my mother before I left for the dairy. She knows all that stuff.

Thanks, Mom.

SELECTING A USED CAR

If you're in the market for a car, chances are you'll be looking at used vehicles. That's because the average new car costs about $11,000, while the average previously owned car costs only about $5,000. But used cars vary a lot. Do you know what to look for when buying a used car?

FIRST STEPS

Attorneys in my consumer protection division recommend that you check first with Consumer Reports, a national magazine found in most public libraries. This magazine gives you data on specific models and years of various automobiles. The authors will tell you which brands and year models to be careful about, based on frequency of repair records.

If you know exactly what kind of car you want, your best bet may be to buy from a private seller. You will want to ask the owner questions about the condition of the car, whether it has ever been involved in an accident, and why the car is now for sale.

CHECKING THE CAR

You should always take the car for a test drive and have the car carefully inspected by a qualified mechanic. There are some things you can check yourself. Check tires for uneven wear, which may indicate an alignment problem. If the tires are heavily worn, but the odometer reflects low mileage, something is probably wrong—maybe the dealer has rolled back the odometer. This problem is more common than consumers realize.

To check shock absorbers, push down hard on each corner of the car. If you see that it continues bouncing after the first rebound, it may need new shock absorbers.

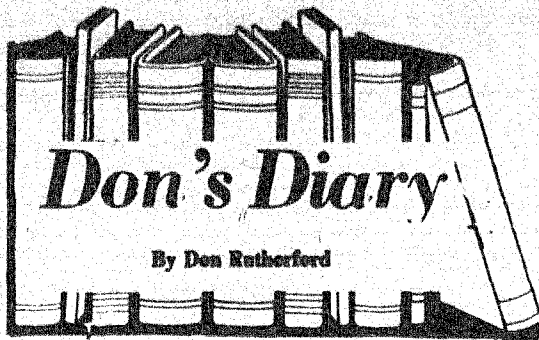

Also check the seat covers and seats. If the interior is extremely worn and the odometer says only 10,000 miles, again, there may be something wrong with the odometer reading.

WHAT THE LAW SAYS

Under state law, the buyer and the seller must sign a notarized statement describing the sale and the amount of sales tax due. This form includes a notation of the odometer reading. When this is filled out, the seller must give the form to the buyer, with the Certificate of Title. It is extremely important to remember to get the certificate. It is illegal to sell a car in Texas without transferring title to the buyer.

FOR MORE HELP

There are many other facts to consider when buying a used car. The more you read and look before buying, the more likely you are to make a good choice. We will be glad to send you our free brochure "Buying or Selling a Car," just one of many publications available at our Consumer Protection regional offices in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Lubbock, McAllen and San Antonio. The Attorney General's office is the people's law firm. We're here to help you.

A few years ago Mac Davis had a song out with these lines in it: "Oh, Lord, it's hard to be humble when you are perfect in every way. Oh, Lord, it's hard to be humble when you get better looking each day."

Humility is not seen in our self-made society as a strength, but as a sign of weakness. We live in a time of self-made people and self-made successes which, after a while, lead to self-made problems and heartaches.

Humility is a sign and a strength of happiness. The word found in Matthew 5:3 for the poor in spirit is ANI which means in the Hebrew humble and faithful.

So what Jesus is saying in this first beatitude is happy is the person who is humble and faithful for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

The first step in finding happiness is to cry out "God help me." There is nothing wrong in asking God to help us understand life's puzzles. We do not have all the answers and some things do not have pat answers.

When we cry out to God, we are not disobeying God; we are standing in the place where we can get some answers. Unhappiness is often found where self-sufficient pride demands that we make it in our own strength.

In our modern philosophy of self-made men, it has been said that God is for certain emotional people, but you can't beat a man who believes in himself.

But in our self-confident generation, there are more alcoholics, dope addicts, broken homes and suicides than any other past generation.

There is nothing wrong with confidence in one's self, but the rub comes when it becomes his god or idol. There is a thin line between self-confidence and arrogant pride. Pride is the opposite of humility, and often brings the opposite result of a humble spirit.

C. S. Lewis wrote in the book MERE CHRISTIANITY: "A proud man is always looking down on things and people and, of course, as long as you're looking down, you can't see something that's above you."

Being poor in spirit or humble means knowing our need for God, our asking Him to help us and our willingness to receive His blessing. Billy Graham has said: "In God's economy, emptying comes before filling, confession before forgiveness and poverty before riches."

The poor in spirit are those who are willing to sell out their stake in themselves.

Sometimes God's blessing does not come in the front row seat, but in the janitor who cleans out the place. A humble person is one who accepts his place appointed by God and does his best.

Verse of the week: "I can do all things through Christ who gives on strength." Philippians 4:13

Think about it: "Whom God would greatly exalt, He first humbles."

30 Years ago

The following excerpts were taken from the June 5, 1953 issue of The Santa Anna News.

The Community Chamber of Commerce voted unanimously to sponsor the annual city-wide beautification contest this year without the help usually provided by the city and other organizations. The contest is considered as now being underway and will end the later part of September. The chamber decided to divide the town into four sections, making the railroad the dividing line between the north and south parts of town and 2nd

St. the dividing line between the east and west part of town. Each of the four sections of the town will have a separate contest and first, second, third and fourth prizes will be awarded in each contest. The contest will be under the direction of the Chamber's Beautification Committee, composed of Miss Ruby Harper, Mrs. Maggie Culver, Mrs. Sam Collier and Mrs. Blanche Grantham. Other activities of the Community Chamber of Commerce at their regular meeting last Thursday was to request the City Council to build a swimming pool and playground park for children, pave all of the South 2nd Street from the railroad to the high school and to build a municipal golf course on the city property at the city lakes. Discussions were also held on a number of other projects that are workable in a small town.

The Home Demonstration Club will have an all-day meeting in the home of Mrs. W. E. Vanderford on Friday, June 5. The day will feature quilting for the San Angelo tornado victims, a covered dish luncheon and a 4-H Club program.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor;

In December, 1904, my mother, father and seven kids left Mart, Texas (18 miles east of Waco) in a covered wagon and came to Santa Anna.

I remember only one cold night in a wagon yard at Ogelsby, and we didn't always stay in shelter. We kids except the youngest did a lot of walking. After passing Gatesville we were amazed at the steep hills, the brush and goats. Must have taken a couple of weeks.

We lived at the south end of Jefferson Street and I think it must have been the old house on the east side of the street.

Two of the neighbors were Miller and Oliver. I saw my first auto, a buggy with a motor in back and a tiller to steer. It was in front of a blacksmith's shop located where the beauty shop is south of Wallis on the east side of First Ave. It belonged to a doctor and could have been the first at Santa Anna.

There was a well and water trough in the intersection of Third and Wallis streets and the southeast was the General Store of L. L. Shield.

John T. overby had a grocery store midway of the block between First and Second streets on the south side of Wallis.

I had my seventh birthday in June of 1905 and started to school in Santa Anna. We moved to Plainview, four miles southwest of Santa Anna and we were there on Home Creek in 1906.

Pruning the house plant is very important. It can make the difference in having tall, leggy plants or a bushy, full pot with heavy foliage.

It is very simple to do while the plant is small.

Consider a young tender colts plant. If you let the plant grow without pinching, it most likely will grow straight up on one stem, therefore becoming lanky and weak. If you nip out the growing tip, this will cause the plant to branch out.

After two or three weeks of growing, nip the bud out of these branches and you will soon have a bushy plant.

This method also works for stem plants like wax and angel wing begonias and young geraniums.

Pruning is the method to keep your woody plants under control. It is best to prune flowering plants after they bloom. If your plants have grown lanky, it is best to prune it in stages as not to have it go into shock. If you let your plant get tall before pruning and you have to cut off two to three leaf nodes or joints, use these cuttings to start new plants when leaves begin to shrivel or dry up. It is best to remove them from their plant as dying leaves encourage rot and fungus disease. It will also drain strength from the plant that should be going to healthy leaves.

Always remove wilted or dying blossoms since the leaf or flower has become limp and you may injure the plant if you try pinching them off by hand.

Remember that pruning is done to make the plant branch out so never prune none branching plants, such as bromeliads, spider plants, palms and other plants with a single growing joint.

However, plants such as the asparagus fern will be much fuller and bushy if you nip the runners.

The oldest grandchild of the deceased J. A. Estes and Fannie Estes, Mrs. Lena Howard, was present along with her three sisters, who had not been together in 55 years.

The original family consisted of 14 children, seven of whom were born at the Estes home north of Rockwood.

The first family reunion began in 1940 under a mesquite grove near the house on the home place. Later, in was in the Coleman Park, then in the Rockwood Community Center. Cows are milked by special vacuum-operated machines which are computer-controlled.

Local dairy is family affair

It doesn't make much difference at the Martin Jersey Farm at Trickham that June is National Dairy Month. The cows still have to be milked twice a day and the feed still has to be ground and mixed like always. About the only difference is that, this month, more people are paying attention.

The Martins know dairies, and they ought to, since they have been in the business since 1929, when A. J. Martin first brought Jersey cows to Trickham.

A. J. Martin, you could say, was the founder of the Martin Jersey Farm. Today, his son, J. H., now 82 years young; as well as J. H.'s son, Felton and Felton's son, Bill, are the backbone of the enterprise.

J. H. Martin, Baptist preacher, joined his father in coming to Trickham in 1922, and the Martins have been in the dairy business since. J. H. Martin's own son, Felton, joined the business in 1948, after three years military service, twenty years' teaching in Air Force reserves in Brownwood, and one year as a public school teacher.

Felton Martin and his wife, Bettie, have four children. They are Bill, who is also a partner in the business; Ann, Janice, and Paul. Janice's husband, Delbert Snow, is also a dairy employee.

"It's a family corporation," said Felton Martin, who added that all the work is done by family members plus employee Frank Ford and two other men.

Work includes milking at 1 a.m. and 1 p.m. each day, grinding and mixing feed, feeding twice daily, farming and raising calves, "tending to cows" and health care of the herd.

The Martins presently have 250 cows milking, and Felton Martin says raising dairy cows is different than regular farming because it is "more regulated" and the schedule is more rigid.

"The cows have to be milked twice a day, 360 days a year on time," said Felton Martin.

Concurred Bill Martin, "They have to take priority over everything else. If not, they'll lose production."

Out of 24 hours each day, about twelve hours are spent in milking, since it takes about six hours to run all the cows through the milking process, which is done twice daily.

The cows are milked by vacuum, and the milk is stored temporarily in glass containers, which are connected to a computer block which senses when the flow of milk stops. The milk passes to a central collection jug and then moves to a stainless steel tank, where it is stored until it is collected by AMPI for processing.

Milking all those cows is a lot of work, and in this fourth generation business, everyone helps.

"Granddad is 82 years old, and even he still helps by grinding and mixing rations," said Bill Martin. "Granddad and Daddy really started it, and then I came back to the business in about 1971."

With about 4,000 acres of grazing and confining land, the Martin's Jersey cows produce about 900 gallons of milk daily. That's enough milk to make about 14,500 school-size half-pint cartons each day.

The milk is sold to American Milk Producers Incorporated (AMPI), who in turn sells most of that milk to Gandy's in San Angelo.

That means the Martins' product undergoes rigid standardized Quality Control testing by Gandy's as well as by AMPI, with each listing as milk condition, milking barn construction and cleanliness, milking floor construction and cleanliness, wall and ceiling standards, lighting and ventilation, toilet and water supplies, utensil and equipment sanitization, milking conditions, transfer of milk, personnel requirements, cooling facilities, condition of vehicles, and insect control.

"The most important testing done is for bacteria and antibiotics in the milk," said Felton Martin. "We have to pull any cow that has been doctored

The Dairy Herd Improvement Association, of which Bill is president of the Central Texas branch out of Brownwood. Test results are gauged by computer print-out.

The Martin Jersey Farm is a member of The Dairy Herd Improvement Association by choice. Said Bill Martin, "It is a management tool. We use it because it increases our production by telling us about each cow, how much milk she will give, how much she's sold in milk, and it rates each cow by production."

In addition, the service keeps a running record of each cow's age, weight, vital breeding information, and other facts that must be kept current.

The dairy farm is now operated by J. H., Felton, and Bill, the second, third and fourth generations of the Martins in the business.

The fifth generation of children is here already, although they're still too young to really share in the business.

But chances are, they already know what a Jersey cow looks like.

'Granddad and Daddy really started it.'

Bill Martin

Milk package has changed over years

Milk is a rich source of calcium, protein and riboflavin as well as a good source of vitamin D and phosphorus. Because of its excellent nutrient composition, fluid milk is highly perishable and should be kept cold and protected. Proper handling, including packaging, can help milk retain its nutritional value, flavor appearance, and safety.

The year 1984 marks the centennial of the glass milk bottle, a giant step forward in making milk's quality readily available to consumers. Dr. Harvey D. Thatcher of Potsdam, New York, was the inventor of the glass bottle which could be filled with milk and capped to protect the product. Until then, milk was poured or dipped from cans or vats into customers' containers.

Dr. Thatcher was a druggist in Potsdam, New York. His first bottle was ten inches high and four inches wide at its largest diameter, with a glass cover held on by a wire hoop. He sold bottles for ten cents each.

For the next fifty years, glass was the only material used for milk containers. Today, less than one percent of the fluid milk sold in the United States is packaged in glass. This figure comes from the annual study of packaged fluid milk sales in the Federal Milk Order Markets conducted by the Dairy Division of the Agricultural Marketing Service of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Plastic and paper are the materials used most often. Paper is used for about 40 percent of the milk packages and plastic for over sixty percent. Twenty years ago, glass was used for 31 percent of the containers, paper for 64 percent and plastic for barely 2 percent.

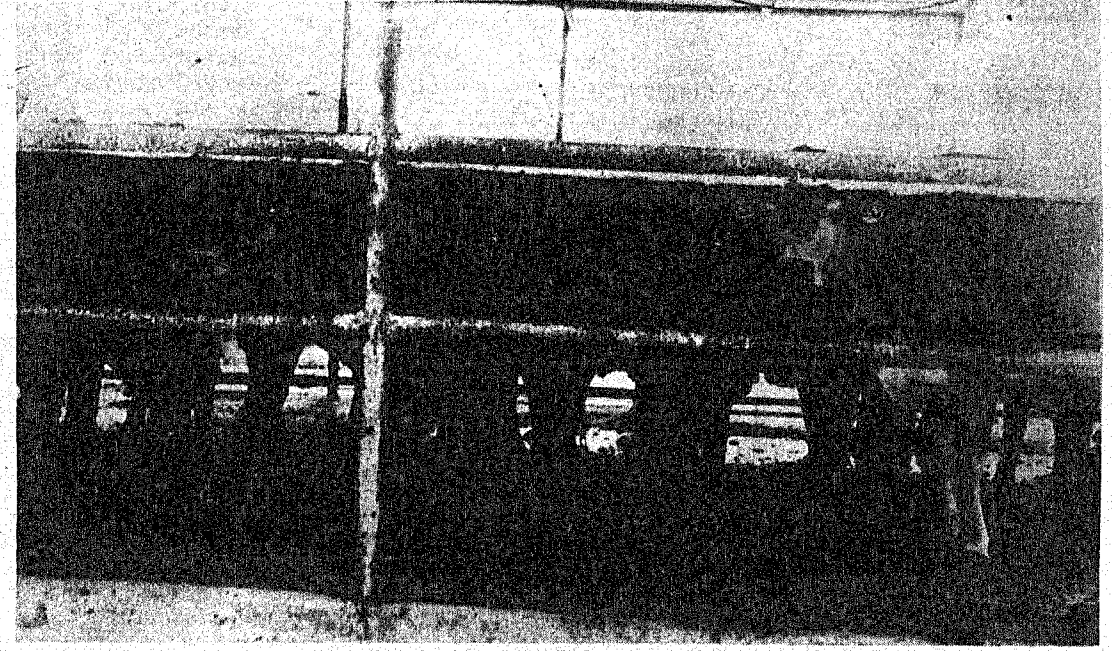

Sizes of milk packages have also changed. The original glass milk bottle held a quart of milk. Twenty years ago, only thirteen percent of the containers were quarts, and today, the number is less than five percent. In 1964, the most popular container size for milk was the half-gallon, but today, even more milk sales are in gallons. The growth in sales of larger containers matches changes in other shopping patterns - fewer trips to the store, larger refrigerators and changes in packaging.

The newest package for milk is the UHT container. It is pre-sterilized and aseptically sealed, so that spoilage and bacteria cannot enter the milk. This package is available only regionally and in quart or single-serving sizes.

Packing improvements continue to keep milk's taste and nutritional benefits available.

Jersey cows wait in holding pens to be milked at the dairy.

Fallout exercise planned

A radiological fallout exercise will be conducted June 27, 1984, throughout the state of Texas.

The Texas Department of Health, Governor's Division of Emergency Management, Texas Department of Public Safety, and State Department of Highways and Public Transportation will work together with local emergency management coordinators in this National Defense Exercise.

The exercise will allow local coordinators the opportunity to test their equipment and capabilities for reporting fallout problems and solutions from local areas to district, state and federal operating centers, according to Robert Lansford, state coordinator for the Division of Emergency Management.

In fulfilling Texas' role in the National Defense and Preparedness Program over the last two decades, the State Health Department has positioned monitoring sets statewide and conducted extensive radiological training programs. Local volunteers have been trained to advise citizens on when and how to take shelter.

The State Highway Department and the Department of Public Safety's communications systems will be used as the network for reporting. Four days of work will be simulated in one day. The exercise will begin at 8 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m.

Coordination for this exercise will be provided by state agency representatives from the underground Emergency Operating Center at the Department of Public Safety headquarters in Austin.
