Missy Moore

1985 Halloween Queen

Missy Moore, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Moore, was chosen as the 1985 Halloween Queen Saturday night, representing the Senior Class. Missy was escorted by Shawn Harper, son of Lois Ann Harper.

Melissa Buse, the 1984 Halloween Queen, crowned the winner during the Coronation Ceremony held at the High School Auditorium.

Princess from the Junior High School was Ruth Garza, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ike Garza Sr. Her escort was Alonzo Hernandez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Margarito Hernandez. They represented the eight grade.

Princess from grades one through five was Brianna Horner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dickie Horner, escorted by Chris Cheaney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Cheaney. They were from the first grade.

The coronation and carnival were well attended, with many events and activities held at the Civic Center (Armory) by the Junior Class and several other local clubs and organizations. It seemed the two most popular things to do was to throw shaving cream saturated sponges at school faculty members and to ride the ever popular hayride.

Amendment Election Scheduled on Tuesday

"They (the people of Texas) have at all times the inalienable right to alter, reform or abolish their government in such manner as they may think expedient."

Article 1, Section 2
Texas Bill of Rights 1876

The Texas constitution created in 1876 states emphatically that "all political power is inherent in the people."

Constitutional amendment elections give the voters of Texas the opportunity to assert that power.

Since 1879 a total of 436 amendments to the constitution have been proposed. So far 269 of them have been adopted, but only because a majority of Texans voted their approval of the amendments.

Fourteen proposed constitutional amendments will be on the ballot Nov. 5. Especially significant are the proposed water amendments. This is the third time Texas voters have been faced with a proposed solution to the state's water problems.

A number of other issues are also touched by the proposed amendments. The state of Texas prisons has been much publicized. Proposition 6 speaks to that issue.

Funding to continue established state programs and to create new ones is addressed in the proposed amendments, as is the use of permanent school fund monies and reap-portioning of judicial districts.

Information about voting in the Nov. 5 general election can be obtained by calling your county clerk office at 625-2889. Voting information is also available by calling the secretary of state's elections division at 1-800-252-VOTE or 1-800-252-8683.

The future of this state is in the hands of all registered voters. Make a tough decision. Decide to VOTE!

Texas voters will go to the polls next Tuesday, November 5, to approve or reject fourteen constitutional amendments.

In Santa Anna, the election will be held at the Coleman County Telephone Cooperative, Inc. building from 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. Rose Bass will be election judge.

All qualified voters are encouraged to study the amendments and go to the polls next Tuesday.

Letter to the Editor from Governor Mark White

Dear Editor:

Now that the first public school grading period is over and Texas are assessing the value of the new "pass-play" rule, I would like to take this opportunity to stress the gains we are making in the classroom.

Approximately 85 percent of varsity athletes statewide passed all their courses, while the overall pass rate was considerably lower. What this means is that our athletes are winning on and off the playing field. Why is their percentage pass rate higher than the average? Because the coaches, whose own performance is evaluated each week when their teams compete, worked with their players in tutorials and helped them make the grade. My office advocated this kind of teamwork in a "play book" mailed each Texas coach, and I think we have found a winning formula that produces results.

As parents, teachers, coaches and students, we can improve the pass rate during the second grading period if we extend the same attention and "scholastic coaching" given our varsity athletes to every child experiencing difficulty in the classroom.

Discovering this key to academic achievement is no less significant to Texans than the discovery of the Spindletop oil gusher. Educated minds are the "oil and gas" of Texas' future, and we must work harder—and encourage our young people to work harder—to better prepare for the challenging jobs of the future. The real issue for our children and grandchildren is not going to be "no pass-no play." The real issue is going to be "no learn-no earn."

This is no time to retreat from education reform. It took courage to raise the standards, and it's going to take courage to stick to them. I think the vast majority of Texans want this state to have the best schools, and I remain committed to seeing Texas achieve that goal.

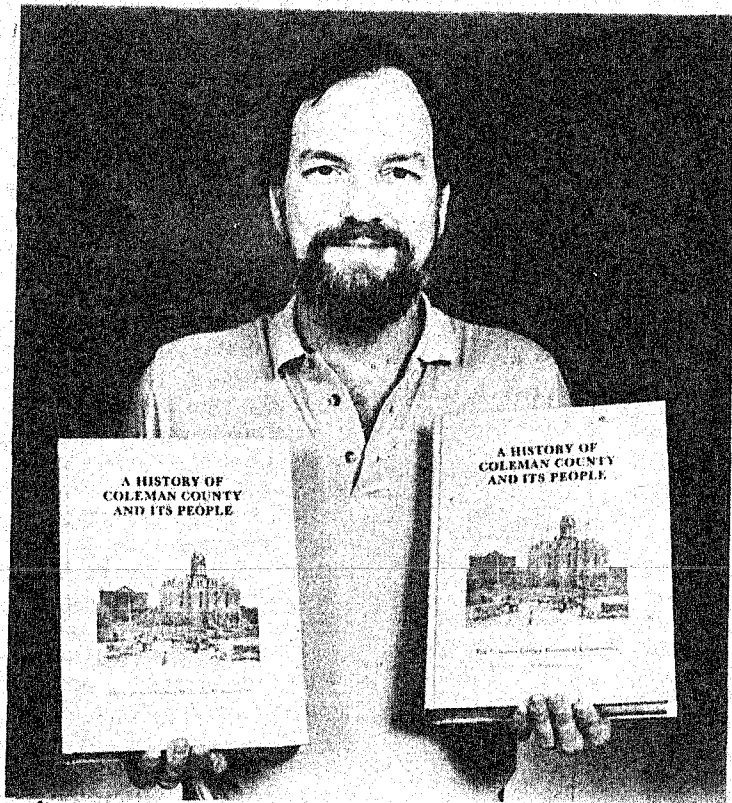

Yours truly,
Mark White
Governor of Texas

Halloween Precautions

Today is October 31, otherwise known as Halloween. The Texas Safety Association and the Texas Department of Health suggest sensible precautions to keep Halloween happy and safe for your children and home.

"When in doubt, throw it out," advises George Gustafson, Executive Vice President of TSA, when discussing Halloween treats. Children should not eat treats before bringing them home for examination by an adult. "If a food or candy item has no wrapping, or the covering is loose or torn, discard it. Wash and slice fruit before allowing your child to eat it. Concerned and considerate treat-givers might help by providing non-food items, such as pennies or nickels, snack food coupons, fun stickers or bright decals for the children's school binders," he adds.

Common sense and prior planning play a big part in assuring your youngster's safety and enjoyment, while still allowing them the thrills of this fall celebration. A few suggestions include:

- Pre-planning the route, staying in familiar neighborhoods and only visiting homes that show the trick-or-treat signal of a lighted porch or yard.
- Children should not enter the home of anyone they do not know.
- An older teenager or adult should accompany young children on their journeys and carry a flashlight to light the way and to make the children more visible to motorists. Older children walking their route with friends need to thoroughly discuss safety rules with parents beforehand.
- Children should stay out of the street, and never run between parked cars. They should not run through yards, or even on sidewalks. All too often, hard-to-see objects are lying in the grass, and slick surfaces can be invisible in poor lighting.
- Set time limits for their travels.

Some communities designate Halloween treating hours. Also, take into account that Halloween falls on a week night this year, which means that the costumed imps and aliens turn back into students early the next morning.

Costumes and masks should not restrict movement or eyesight, or trail on the ground. Face paint or normal make-up products can provide frightening effects while allowing freedom of sight. Use lots of light colors in costumes, or reflective tape, and pass out plenty of flashlights. Dark of night adds to the thrill of the celebration, but hides the dangers of curbs, stones and cracked sidewalks.

A tip for homeowners who expect trick-or-treaters: Make certain your yard, driveway, porch and sidewalks are free of obstructions if you are handing out treats to the tiny revelers. If you're driving, take extra care to watch for small, ghostly pedestrians.

Those attending and enjoying themselves for the two day event were Bradley Ross, Dan Benton, James (J.J.) Pickering, John Morgan and leaders, Jim Keeney and Scoutmaster, D. D. Wright.

Fannie's Funnies

By Fannie Gilbert

Once there was a lion tamer who said that his father had also been a lion tamer. "Did you ever put your head in a lions mouth?" he was asked. "Only once," said the fellow, "to look for Dad."

Father: "Did I hear the clock strike three when you came in last night?"
Son: "Yes, dad, it was going to strike eleven, but I stopped it so it wouldn't wake you up."

Wife to husband, "I wish you had the spunk the government has. They certainly don't let being in debt keep them from spending."

When you see the hand-writing on the wall, you can bet there's a child in the family.

The man who can smile when things go wrong has thought of someone he can blame it on.

A class reunion is where you get together to see who is falling apart.

Some men are henpecked because they don't give their wives enough chicken feed.

Oratory: Ability to make noises with the mouth that sound like they came from the brain.

The old fashioned man who had a good head for figures now has a grandson who has a great eye for them.

You are only young once, after that your have to think up a different excuse.

Class of 1950 Has Reunion

Members of the Santa Anna High School class of 1950 met on Saturday afternoon of the recent homecoming weekend, in the fellowship hall of the Presbyterian Church with Margaret McCoughan Karthaus and Polly Little Warnock as hostesses.

The group reminisced about school days and experiences as well as bringing each other up to date about what had been happening in their lives since graduation day. Pictures and stories of families were shared with each member giving a short history of their lives and families.

It was noted with sadness that two members of the class had been lost by death. Frieda Brookes a few years after graduation and Wanda Billrey Ward in 1982. Both were remembered with great fondness.

Information about classmates not able to attend the reunion was shared with the resolve to make a greater effort to increase attendance at the class meetings. Those present had such an enjoyable time that the group made the decision to try to meet each year rather than each five years as in the past.

Classmembers, other school friends and guests present were: Billy Joe Scott and Joyce Rowe Scott of Three Rivers; Margaret McCoughan Karthaus and David Karthaus of Arlington; Eddie Edmondson Learnard of Zephyr; David Hunter and Fay Dunn Hunter of Abilene; Julia Bailey Hartman of Odessa; Lea Mitchell Mock of Post; Polly Little Warnock and Derriel Warnock of Santa Anna; Alyn Brandon Jacob and Sam Jacob of Santa Anna; Glen Scarborough of Gouldbusk; Gene Rice and Virginia Day Rice of Duncanville; Linda Stewardson Slusher of Brownwood.

The class is looking for any information about R.L. Mackey who was last known to be in the Dallas area. Anyone having an address or any information about Mackey may contact Polly Warnock at Box 56, Santa Anna, Texas, 76878 or call 348-3167.

Class Reunion of 1934

The Class of 1934 met at the Methodist Church annex Friday evening, October 11, for a salad supper, prepared and served by the Blue Birds. There were ten class members present and their sponsor, Mrs. Olivia Land Carrell, who came the farthest distance to attend the homecoming. Before the meal, a moment of silent prayer for those that are deceased, three of them this last year, then a prayer of blessing voiced by Auby Fay Murrell. Immediately after the supper, our mistress of ceremony, Carmilla Baugh, took the floor. Our class history and will was read by Thelma Lowry. Quite amusing after 51 years. Then each class member told of when and what had happened to them since finishing high school. Some were lengthy and some quite short, but the one thing we did learn was that we have quite a humorist in our group. That is Richard Dillingham. His listings kept us bursting with laughter. After the supper and a short visitation, everyone departed expressing a good time. Another reunion is planned for 1989, so everyone be prepared.

Those attending were: Carmilla and Dick Baugh, Annie Louise Watkins Smith, Alton Brandon, Thelma and Bill Lowry, Auby Fay and Irma Murrell, Carroll Barton, Armenta and Durwood Hartsfield, mary and Daryl Lowder, Brownlee and Dorothy Hunter, Richard Dillingham, Garland and Betty Close, guests and Olivia Land Carrell, sponsor and Mrs. Henry Lee Land, guest.

Commission Adopts Rule

AUSTIN, TX., Oct. 24—The Railroad Commission has adopted a new rule to allow United Parcel Service to operate between points in Texas.

The Commission voted 2-1 for the rule. Chairman Buddy Temple and Commissioner Mack Wallace voted for approval, while Commissioner James E. (Jim) Nugent voted against it.

Last January, by the same vote, the Commission approved the UPS application for intrastate authority in Texas. However, the rule changes were a necessary step toward allowing full UPS operations in the state. Still pending before the Commission is a proceeding to establish rates to be charged by UPS. The rate issue is the last step that must be resolved by the Commission before UPS can serve customers between points in the state. A hearing on the matter has been concluded.

The new rule adopted by the Commission defines a "parcel carrier" and its operations. A parcel carrier is described as a "limited common carrier of general commodities providing service between all points in the area authorized to be served with no service being rendered on any individual package, parcel or article weighing more than 100 pounds."

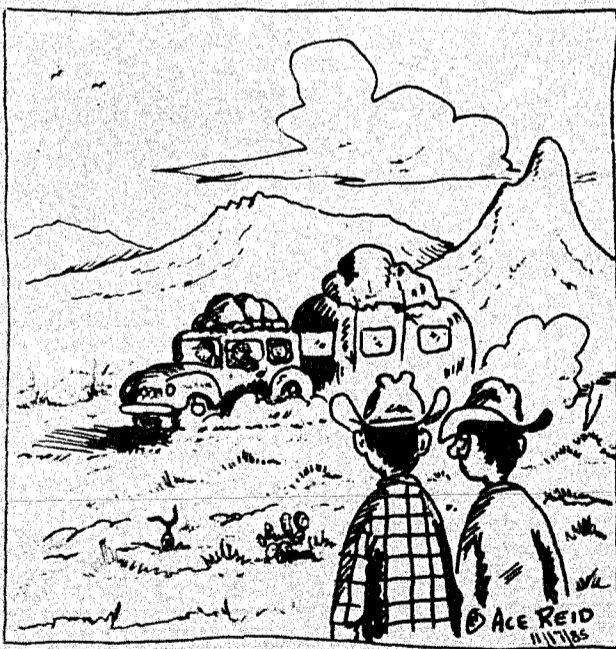

The rule says that each package, parcel or article will be considered a separate and distinct shipment.

Each shipment must be documented on a "pickup record" with the name and address of the consignee, the destination zone, the weight of the shipment, any declared value, any cash on delivery amount, and any other services to be rendered. It also must contain the name and address of the shipper and the date of shipping.

The carrier's driver shall sign the pickup record and keep one copy for billing. The shipper will keep a duplicate as a receipt.

They Came In Peace

by Leona Bruce

CHAPTER 18
40 SQUARE MILES OF GRASS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth book of Central Texas history by Leona Bruce. In preparation for the 1986 Sesquicentennial, Mrs. Bruce has waived her copyright and permits this series of Coleman County stories to be published. All her books are out of print except two. This book will be in a series, a chapter a week as space allows.)

After the threat of Indian raids was past, a great tract of Coleman County land was bought by George Mahoney, a red-haired Irishman, whose wife was from St. Louis. This land was roughly in a square, the northeast corner being about a half mile from the west Santa Anna mountain, and the southwest corner was across Home Creek, joining the Overall ranch. Almost every acre was covered with good varieties of grass, and there were several little clear creeks, Loss and Horse and the Santa Anna Branch.

Mahoney built his headquarters some eight miles west of the mountain, overlooking Loss Creek. The house was a typical fine one of its time, an ell-shaped building with the great front porch facing the valley. A wide hall divided the parlor and big guest room from the living rooms of the family; behind this hall was another porch inside the ell, enclosed with a beautiful lattice for shade and privacy. All the rooms were finished inside with beaded ceiling and painted in soft colors, the doors to the hall had transoms of glass and were three feet wide.

Inside the ell of the back porch was one of the huge underground cisterns which Mahoney liked so well, cemented inside and finished with a hand-cut sandstone curb. Rains on the roof filled the cistern with clean, good water, and a bucket with pulley and chain were used for drawing it up. A painted picket fence enclosed the large yard, and nearby were small houses for servants and workers. Across a shallow draw were the pens, barns and huge shed for sheep, closed on the north with a stone wall and open in front to a large rock-walled pen.

This was before the day of surface tanks, and Mahoney solved the problem of water by having enormous underground cisterns dug, the largest this writer has ever seen. A tenant on the ranch once remarked, "they are big enough to turn a horse and buggy around in." Like big jugs, they were walled with rock and cemented inside, as was the one at the house. Gutters on the big barn and on the sheep shed turned the rain water into two of them, and there is also another large one nearby where a building of some kind once stood. The hired hands must have hated the work of making the excavations, and then the many hours of drawing water with bucket and rope.

Near the rock sheep-shed, Mahoney built a barn which was the wonder of his men. Of best heavy timbers, it was planned so that there was a place for every rope and halter, the harness, the feed buckets, the grain. Several strongly built stalls faced the south, the feed troughs so sturdy that they were still in uses when the barn burned in 1944. Stout ladders led up to the large hayloft, which had outside doors into every pen adjoining.

Mahoney was high-tempered and blunt in his speech and in his relations with his hired men and neighbors. It is said that he had disagreements with most of them, sometimes quite serious, and in her detailed memoirs, Mrs. M. Tye Overall spoke only of "our neighbor to the east," never using his name. The story is told that at one time Overall asked Mahoney about building a fence between them and sharing the cost, but Mahoney was so rude in his manner that Overall would say no more. When the Irishman began fencing his ranch he went to Overall and mentioned a joint fence, but Overall declined and put up the fence himself.

Fence-cutters gave all ranchmen trouble and expense, sometimes cutting every strand between every post for miles. Overall and William Gould-Busk, the Englishman whose ranch lay several miles south, William Day and the Baughs and the Dibrells, all were enclosing lands which they owned, but the fence cutters were determined to use grass free. Some of the ranchmen said little, standing the loss the best they could, but Mahoney was furious, threatened the cutters, and said he would shoot to kill if he ever caught them. It was told of Mahoney and many others that the cutters, as a warning, hauled a new coffin and put it on his porch one night, and that he told everyone it was just what he needed, a good water-trough. If all these stories were true, there must have been a lot of coffin-hauling, and this writer would like to pin down even one case as a fact.

The Mahoneys had two small girls, Camille and Leona, both having long red curls. The two house-servants were Malcolm sisters, whose parents lived in Santa Anna; one had care of the kitchen, which in that day meant buckets of milk to strain and skim, hams and sidemeat from the smokehouse to slice, crocks of thick cream to churn, fresh corn and beans from the field to prepare for cooking, dishwater to carry out. The other was housemaid and laundress, her work never completed before other tasks came up. Mrs. Mahoney was never satisfied on the ranch, with what seemed luxury to her neighbors being too rough a life for her liking.

The family would drive in their two-horse buggy to Santa Anna for mail and supplies, the road being simply a ranch trail curving around trees and bushes and crossing the creeks on the gravels. The ranch gate was at the corner of the pasture, near the two big trees at the home of T. T. Perry, in the edge of the town. Perry was an artist at stonework, the architect of many of the beautiful rock store buildings in Santa Anna today, straight and true and good for another hundred years, and he may have been the builder of the rock pens and cisterns at the Mahoney ranch. At any rate, he did some of the rockwork there, and the Mahoneys became acquainted with the little Perry girls, about the ages of Camille and Leona.

"May Ida go home with us to spend the day? Mrs Mahoney would ask. "We'll bring her back this afternoon."

So the three little girls would play together, resting after the noon dinner, and make the long buggy ride back late in the day.

Mrs. Mahoney never really made friends with any one in Texas. A devout Catholic, she had not even the bond of religion with her Protestant neighbors; her upbringing had been far different from theirs, she envisioned the day when the little girls would go north to private schools, and the daily series of work and drouth and crises were not to her liking. If she had loved the ranch, Mahoney probably would have remained on it, though himself did not fit well into the community.

He began selling the east part of his land about 1890, and as the settlers swarmed into the county to buy farmland he sold more and more. In 1904 he had a final sale, advertised far and wide. Prospective buyers came by train, and he had hired wagons and hacks to take them along with the wagon of the auctioneer and clerk; as they stopped on this quarter-section or that, bids were made, Mahoney described the tract, and place after place was sold. A big free barbecue dinner was served at noon at the ranch headquarters, and as would be the case today, dozens of buggies and surreys of local people who had no intention of buying drove out for the meal, which was served under the trees near the empty sheep-shed, with cold water from the cistern or coffee from an iron wash-pot.

Mrs. Mahoney was indifferent to the crowd. She remained in the house, polite enough to those who wished to come in, but spending a good part of the time dressing and petting her little girls, whose long red hair she carefully combed into beautiful curls.

When the day was over most of the Mahoney ranch had been sold, chiefly in small tracts to farmers. The ranch headquarters and over two thousand acres around it were bought by Lee L. Shield, the merchant who owned several businesses in Santa Anna, and whose family own it to the present time. The big barn is gone, and the sheep shed, most of the smaller buildings, and a part of the house. Mountaineers Take Another Victory

The Santa Anna Mountaineers resumed their quest for a play off in predictable style last Friday night, as the defense pitched its fifth shutout of the season in a 35-0 romp over the Robert Lee Steers.

Santa Anna remains tied for the District 8-A West Zone lead with Irion County, who defeated Bronte 34-22. Both teams are 4-0-1 with two games remaining and appear to be shoo-ins to each make the playoffs.

Led by the passing combination of James Hartman and Johnny Herrod the Mountaineers got the game off to a good start with a 50-yard pass from Hartman to Herrod with 5:18 remaining in the first quarter. Ramon Vasquez scored the PAT, making the score 7-0. The with 3:05 left in the same quarter, Herrod again scored a touchdown with a 20-yard pass from Hartman, which was set up by a block punt by Craig Duquette. Again Vasquez scored the PAT, making the score at the end of the first quarter 14-0.

In the second quarter, with only 21 seconds on the clock, Hartman again connected with Herrod for 6 points on a 12-yard pass play raising the halftime score to 21-0 with the PAT by Vasquez.

The Mountaineers returned to the field in the third quarter with Russell Williams at the quarterback slot. With 1:04 left in the quarter, Williams scored on an 11-yard bootleg run, with Vasquez again adding the extra point.

The final score for the Mountaineers came late in the fourth quarter when halfback Craig Duquette ran the ball over the goal line from 21 yards out. The sure footed Vasquez tacked on his 5th PAT for the night making the final score 35-0.

Ramon Vasquez carried the ball 17 times for running his season total up to 1051 yards in 156 carries. Shelby Tuttle carried for 88 yards on 11 carries and Craig Duquette had 14 carries for 77 yards total. Hartman connected on 4 of 8 passes, all of those to Johnny Herrod, for 107 yards and 3 touchdowns. Curtis Puckett and Tuttle stood out defensively.

Robert Lee remains winless in district with an 0-5 record and 1-7 overall.

The Mountaineers will host the Bronte Longhorns at the Mountaineer Stadium on Friday night with a 7:30 kickoff. Next week will be the last district game and the Mountaineers will travel to Water Valley.

"Mystery" Boosters to be Announced

A representative from Frito Lay met with the Boosters to present a "Help Support High School Football" fundraiser. Frito-Lay will donate five cents to SAHS for every UPC symbol from any 6.5 oz. or larger package of Frito-Lay products. In addition five hundred dollars will be donated to the principal and superintendent to be used as they see fit.

Fans, citizens, students--everyone is urged to turn in these UPC coupons in containers which will be set up at H & H and the schools. The offer expires November 30, so time is short. Let's support this program which will give a financial boost to our school programs.

The film of last Friday's game between the Mountaineers and Robert Lee was reviewed. The Mountaineers stay in Black Magic Country this week to play the Bronte Longhorns who are currently running a close second to the Mountaineers. Friday night's outcome is of imperative importance to the Mountaineers in their bid for the district title. Put on your Black Magic clothes and be out to support the Mighty Mountaineers.

BSA Reaffirms Position On "Duty To God"

America on 'Duty to God.' Part of the resolution reads: "While not intending to define what constitutes belief in God, the Boy Scouts of America is proud to reaffirm the Scout Oath and its declaration of 'Duty to God'."

The national office of the Boy Scouts of America and its Stonewall Jackson Area Council located in Waynesboro, VA., announced that Boy Scout Paul Trout will continue as a member in good standing and will receive his Life Scout Award, according to Raul Chavez, communications director of the Boy Scouts of America.

"Paul Trout is eligible to receive his Life Scout Award because he subscribes to the Scout Oath with its 'Duty to God' as well as to the Scout Law that asks a scout to be reverent," Chavez said.

"Earlier this year, the 15-year-old Scout was not approved for his Life Scout Award because it was understood he could not support the Scout Oath and Scout Law," Chavez said. The Boy Scouts of America has made a thorough analysis of the matter. This involved contacts with members of the BSA's national Religious Relationships Committee, the young man and his family, and local Scouters. It has been determined that Paul Trout, indeed, does subscribe to the Scout Oath and Scout Law.

The full Board resolution reads as follows:

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA RESOLUTION: REAFFIRMATION OF THE POSITION OF THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA ON "DUTY TO GOD"

RESOLVED, that the following reaffirmation of the position of the Boy Scouts of America relating to "Duty to God" be, and hereby is, enacted and that the Bylaws, Rules and Regulations, and literature of the Corporation reflect this reaffirmation accordingly.

This year, America is celebrating the 75th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America. Since 1910, 72 million Americans have subscribed to the Scout Oath and the Scout Law which have stood the test of time.

The national Executive Board of the BSA proudly states, through its Mission Statement, that the values which the organization strives to instill in young people are those based upon the Scout Oath and the Scout Law. A Scout pledges: "On my honor I will do my best, to do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law..."

The first Boy Scouts of America "Handbook for Boys" which was published in August 1911 declares that "...no boy can grow into the best kind of citizenship without recognizing his obligation to God." (Page

Basic Pet Care Guidelines

By Kathy Pearce
Your pet, like yourself, has certain basic health requirements. By meeting these needs, you may assure your pet of a healthy, active life, and avoid expensive, emotionally draining treatments at the Vet Clinic for your pet and yourself. PREVENTION of illness is the key to trouble free ownership. To help you understand your pet's health needs, we have provided the following information:
PUPPIES: Puppies should be given a series of Distemper, Hepatitis, Leptospirosis, Parainfluenza and Parvo Virus vaccinations. All vaccines are combined in one shot. The pup should get its first shot at 6-8 weeks of age, the second at 10-12 weeks and the last at 16 weeks. Rabies vaccinations are given to puppies after 12 weeks of age.
ADULT DOGS: The Distemper,

Hepatitis, Leptospirosis, Parainfluenza (DHLP) and Rabies Vaccines should be given annually. Parvo shots should be given at least once a year for all age dogs and are usually given with the DHLP shot.
We recommend an annual check for intestinal parasites.
If your dog is not on heartworm preventative, it should be checked twice a year for early detection of the disease. Heartworms can cause severe damage to the heart, liver, lungs and kidneys. The treatment for heartworms is expensive, lengthy, and potentially toxic for your dog. The best means of avoiding this problem is to put your dog on heartworm preventative medicine.

KITTENS AND ADULT CATS: Kittens and adult cats should receive similar vaccinations and worm checks as puppies and adult dogs.

GET THE GAS ADVANTAGE.

You've got a right to better economy, greater efficiency and more convenience—found only with quality natural gas appliances. And that's what the Gas Advantage is all about. There's nothing like natural gas to save you time, money and energy. For the best in economy and convenience, a fast-recovery gas water heater provides hot water enough for a whole family's needs at half the cost of an electric water heater. And, a gas dryer dries three fast and fluffy loads for every one load in an electric dryer. You'll get perfect results every time with a gourmet quality gas range. With instant on and off and infinite temperature control, a gas range makes cooking easier and it costs less to use than electric. And, of course, there's a natural gas furnace that warms your whole house gently and draft free—more economically than a heat pump.
