Three Contracts Extended

ISD Board Meets

The Santa Anna School District board of trustees met on Monday night, February 17, in the conference room of the administrative building. All members were present except Terry McIver, who was out of town on business.

A letter was read to the board from a parent who had compliments for the special education program.

On the other end of the scale, the parents of two high school students approached the board with their recommendations for changes in the grading procedures and other matters of concern to them and their children. It was admitted that House Bill 72 was a contributing factor to the problem.

Judy Hartman was appointed judge for the absentee voting for the school board election and Rose Bass was appointed Election Judge.

After an executive session the board gave Judy Hartman a two year contract as business manager and extended the contract for Gaylen Privitt, who is athletic director and head football coach along with his classroom duties. The year extension provides a two year contract.

Other business included the payments of bills and the approval to sell an older school bus.

80 Percent of Taxes Collected

Tax Appraisal Board Meets

The Coleman County Tax Appraisal Board met Monday, February 10, in regular session at the Tax Office in Coleman. Barbara Kingsbery, chairman, presided at the session that included routine business on the agenda.

Minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved, and bills and accounts for the month were reviewed and approved for payment.

Chief Appraiser John Skelton gave an update on collections of the 1985 taxes, showing an approximate 80 percent collection which is average for this time of the year. It was noted that delinquent taxes will have larger penalties this year, with property owners encouraged to pay their taxes as soon as possible to avoid the extra assessment.

Bill Jones, the newly-hired assistant chief appraiser, met with the board and reported on his work during his first week in the position.

James Hunter, Coleman real estate agent and businessman, was reappointed to the Appraisal Review Board, to serve a two-year term. Other members of the ARB are Glen Copeland of Santa Anna and E. Dale Herring of Talpa, who each have an additional year to their terms.

Mr. Skelton was instructed to publish a notice for bids for depository contracts for the Appraisal District. First Coleman National Bank has had the contract since the District was organized, but other financial institutions have the opportunity to seek the contract.

It was announced that a large used safe has been purchased from the Geo. D. Rhone Company, having been in place in the building since the office opened in the current location.

The Board discussed an audit for the Tax District, and although not required by law, have voted to have an audit every two years. Mr. Skelton was instructed to make arrangements for the audit and get bids from auditors for the work.

Contracts with the county taxing entities were signed by the Board chairman, granting the county group authority to assess and collect taxes for the school districts, cities and county for the coming year.

Attending the meeting Monday were the ones mentioned and also board members, Billie Wright of Novice, Jake McCreary of Santa Anna and Dwight Nanny of Gouldbusk. Lang Martin Jr. was absent.

The Tax Appraisal District Board will meet again on Monday, March 10, at 5:00 p.m.

City Races Shape Up

The field of candidates for the upcoming school board election is beginning to shape up with several filing for seats on the board.

Donald Strickland has filed for reelection to his third term of office. Roddy Dean plans to run for a second term. Both Strickland and Dean are incumbents, whose terms are expiring along with that of Eddie Hartman. Hartman is at this time still undecided about seeking another term.

Others filing for election to the board are Gary Absher and R. E. (Dickie) Horner.

Absher is the local Postmaster. He and his wife, Teresa, are parents of two children, both of whom are students in the Santa Anna schools.

R. E. Horner is a local real estate agent. He and his wife, Gail, have two children in the Santa Anna Schools.

Deadline for filing to run for school board is March 5 and the election will be held April 5.

In the city race all the incumbents on the council whose terms are expiring have filed for re-election. Those include Stanley Hartman, Carmen Donham and Gary Fleerman.

Also filing for places on the City Council are John Pearce who is self-employed in oil related business, and Joe Taylor, a former city judge and now serving as interim police chief.

Deadline for filing for city council was Wednesday, February 19, with the election to be held on Saturday, April 5.

Mothers March Sunday

The Delta Omicron chapter of ESA International will be marching from door to door on Sunday afternoon to collect funds for the March of Dimes.

Be ready to greet them with a big smile and a generous contribution for a very worthwhile cause.

The citizens of Santa Anna have always responded greatly to this need and the ladies look for this Mother's March to be equally well received.

Teachers being assigned testing sites

More than 200,000 educators who will take the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers (TECAT) on March 10 are now being assigned to testing sites in 253 Texas counties.

Texas Education Agency officials say efforts are being made to assign test-takers to examination sites in their own school districts if at all possible.

No educator will be required to leave his or her county to take the TECAT, except in the case of Loving County, where no schools are located and no test site is needed.

Computer errors or mistakes made by educators on TECAT registration forms may cause some teachers and administrators to inadvertently receive assignments to out-of-county testing locations.

Those who feel they have been mistakenly assigned should call the toll-free TECAT hotline at 1-800-553-5553.

Thoughts From Our Pastors

By Rev. James Ford
Pastor of Assembly of God Church

EDITOR'S NOTE: Local Pastors have been contacted to take turns writing a weekly devotion for the News and our readers.

James 1:23-25. For if any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass; For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was. But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed.

Each time we look in the mirror we see an image of ourselves. It may not be like we wish to be seen by others and it may even be a surprise to us to see our image. Our hair may be a mess, our clothes may be crooked, we may have a smudge. If we don't like what we see we are quick to make adjustments. We reach for a comb, straighten our clothes or whatever we can to improve our image. After leaving the mirror we soon forget our flaws and continue our day. As we are concerned with our natural appearance so should we even more show concern for our spiritual life.

God's word is a mirror by which we can see our spiritual condition. Daily as we read and study God's word it reveals to us our flaws, faults and sins. If we are concerned to do something about them Jesus gives us power to change our lives and make us an overcomer. But if we forget the word we soon forget our real image. By the study of God's word we can maintain our spiritual life on a higher plane. Just as we daily look into the mirror and correct the imperfections of our natural appearance even so we should look into God's word and let it speak to, revealing our spiritual imperfections. Spiritual shortcomings are revealed to us in order that we can correct them. As the word of God speaks to us, do not be a forgetful hearer but a doer for the blessing of God is promised to the doer.

Grandson for Rendons

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rendon gratefully report that their infant grandson, Bryan Caleb Spivey, is doing very well and is a healthy baby after a rough beginning in life.

Bryan was prematurely born on November 23, 1985 to Mary and Jim Spivey of Beckley, West Virginia. He weighed 5½ pounds at birth and lost much of that in the first couple of weeks.

The family had not only the concern for his struggle in the first few weeks of life but also concern for his mother who was also quite ill following the birth.

Happily, both mother and child are now well, and according to grandmother, Carmen Rendon, they are "just great".

Other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Spivey, Sr. of Camdon, Tennessee.

Venino Vasquez of Santa Anna is great-grandfather of the infant. Joshua Spivey is the proud seven year old big brother.

Self Culture In Valentine Meeting

The Self Culture Club of Santa Anna met in the home of Mrs. A. D. Donham on Wednesday of last week. Co-hostess was Mrs. Joe Barnes, who assisted with serving refreshments as the members arrived.

The Valentine theme was used in all appointments. Laid with a white cloth with wide lace hem, the table was centered with a low white bowl of red roses and fern. Matching antique candleholders of white porcelain cupids had red candles and heart-shaped petits fours iced with pink and white flowers were served from a porcelain plate. Other appointments were of china. Valentine candies and Texas napkins were on the table, and Valentine posies were on the tables in the living room.

A special guest was the one month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill

Gustavus, and a gift to him from the club was a pastel Bambi nightlight.

Mrs. Oran Henderson presided and reports were made. Plans for a summer program for children at the city library were discussed. Roll call was answered with amusing names of Texas towns.

The Sesquicentennial program continued with talks by Mrs.

Henderson on the Big Bend of the Rio Grande and larger state parks of Texas. Mrs. Barnes told of the million-acre Big Thicket in east Texas and some of the more remarkable caves and caverns in the state.

Present besides those mentioned were Mmes. Hardy Blue, Fred Williams, Earlene Scott, C.D. Bruce, Gus Morgan, Jim Spillman, Grace Short, Frank McCary, Earl Simmons, Jane Gustavus, and Mary Clifford.

Who Was George Washington?

On Monday of this week a member of the news staff visited the school to talk with some of the children about George Washington and why we celebrate his birthday.

Upon arriving one could hear a class of youngsters singing happy birthday to the Father of Our Country.

The children we visited with were asked who George Washington was and to tell us something interesting they remembered about their study of him.

As usual, when talking with children, we received some expected and some unexpected answers. The children were not expecting our visit and were put on the spot at our arrival, but did very well in responding.

JOSHUA THROGMORTON is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Throgmorton and is a kindergarten student.

Joshua says that George Washington was the first president of the United States. He also fought many wars and wrote things.

AMY ELLERBE is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ellerbr, Jr. and is a third grade student.

Amy remembers that George Washington was a famous American. He also was a general in the Revolutionary War and wrote letters.

MITCHELL GUTHRIE is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Monte Guthrie III and is a fourth grade student.

Mitchell replied that George Washington was a president in fact...the very first president of our country. He was impressed by Washington because he did not lie.

BOBBY MALAER is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Malaer and is a student in the second grade.

Bobby replied that George Washington was the first president of the United States and was a good soldier.

Bobby should know as he will be portraying Washington in the P.T.O. program on Thursday night.

DARBI NEFF is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Neff and is a 1st grade student.

Darbi remembers George Washington from reading about him in her science book. She says that he was the first president and that he is remembered because he wrote letters. She wasn't too sure why he chopped down the cherry tree.

RUSTY FLEEMAN is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Fleeman and is a student in the 5th grade.

Rusty remembers George Washington as the "Father of Our Country". He led the country in many great things and was able to do many things for our country. He also stated that Washington was the first president of our country.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

by Austin Watts

He was a great president
Who treated everyone fair.
He never used make-up or Put color on his hair.

He cut down the cherry tree
But would never tell a lie.
I guess one tree didn't matter
For there is still plenty of cherries
For you and I.

He threw a dollar across the river
Just to watch it soar.
We may as well throw our dollars
In the ocean for it won't
Buy anything anymore.

He ran the country so that people
Didn't have to worry about taxes
For they could make a living
With their plows and axes.

When he was president, being fair
And honest was a great tradition.
Not a worry about taxes and
A bunch of rich politicians.

The Lord's Supper.

United Methodists are concerned about hunger. The spiritual, physical and emotional hungers so many people experience. And what's more, we're doing something about it.

Through a spirit of sharing and caring we reach out to feed and clothe the poor, comfort the hurting, bring hope to the disheartened and joy to the lonely. It's our way of celebrating the true meaning of the Lord's Supper--sharing with one another what we have received from God.

It's a spirit that's catching. Join us and catch the spirit, too.

THE STATES PATCHWORK QUILT PARADE

This is an interesting block for an odd pillow with a background of black or dark green silk for the living room or of pale blue or ivory for the boudoir. Or, with sprigged chintz calicoes on green checkingham about 15 inches square it would make adorable little padded cushion seats for the breakfast room chairs.

For a quilt we suggest blocks 12 inches square. Alternate the design squares with plain white, ivory, pale green or whatever your background tint may be, using a rather elaborate quilting pattern on these. A single tulip with stem and leaves as shown on the block would be interesting on a border slightly scalloped, the scallop planned 12 inches long like the block by about six inches deep.

Make up your set of cutting patterns from cardboard and trace around them on your material so the cloth will cut to the dotted line size, and crease back to the solid line size.

All appliques must be basted carefully in place. Creasing the block through on center folds both straight and diagonally will indicate spacing and direction of appliques.

Shadow Over Texas

by Leona Bruce

Why does nobody around you know anything about Texas History? You have heard of the Alamo, but you have never cared to go there; the prairie of San Jacinto witnessed a battle more important to the history of the world than Waterloo, or perhaps Salamis. But do you know where San Jacinto is, or who fought there. You have heard that there was one Impresario-who was he?-who brought settlers into Texas from the United States.

One reason for this appalling ignorance is the attitude of the school boards of Texas. Knowing nothing of the great past of our state, they assign the subject to the junior-high football coaches, who know nothing of it. The coach has probably never read the textbook, which is dull as dust anyhow.

Now I will tell you a little of Texas history in a way you can remember; as it really was, full of danger and disaster, hardship and fearless determination.

The basis for this treatise, the material from which the facts are obtained, is the History of Texas published by Thrall, in Austin in 1875. Besides this school text, Thrall amassed the great Pictorial History of Texas, now coveted by all the Universities but owned by few. Thrall wrote when thousands of the survivors of the Texas Revolution were still alive, and after the documents necessary for the truth were available.

Historians had been written before and many since, but because of Thrall's success and prominence, we are using his small edition for a few dips into the fascinating and horrible Shadow Over Texas.

We skip over the brief camps of the French on the Mississippi and on the Sabine, and accept the argument of the Spanish claim to all of Middle America from the Straits of Magellan to the mountains of Utah. We begin when the Mexican rebels defeated and routed the Spanish armies in 1822 and this fabulous land, an empire like no other in the world, was open for settlement.

The aborigines who had wandered here for hundreds of centuries were not counted as important. The humble tribes who lived south of the Rio Grande were defenseless and weak, easy to subdue by the armored Spanish and the demanding Catholic Fathers. But more warlike Apaches and Comanches provided a barrier to the Spanish spread northward.

Now far-seeing Mexican and American men saw the golden future of populating this empire which lay vacant, and began plans for bringing settlers here. Free land, they advertised all over the United States. Free Land! All a man can farm, free! Mild climate, fertile soil, good water, all free! Moses Austin's dream was not his alone. Moses Austin was careful; he went to Mexico, learned the conditions, the restrictions. The settlers must be of the catholic faith, of moral character, law-abiding and industrious. Some others besides Austin who were also called Impresarios, studied their problems. But there were scoundrels who had letterheads printed, such as the Galveston Land Company, who scoured the cities and towns of the northern states, taking money for lands they would never own or see, bilking investors far and wide.

The land was not exactly free. A league-4428 acres-cost $180 in Texas, while in Mexico it was priced at $15. The settlers could bring in their farm or trade tools free of duty, and the promise to accept the Catholic faith was lightly regarded.

Had it not been for the weak and capricious government of Mexico, with its greedy and cheating officials, Mexico today could have been the second greatest country in the world. But the grasping men in charge at Mexico City appointed ayentimientos to administrate the immigration, and these men saw the appointments both as a key to their own fortunes and as a lift into prominence where they could give or deny immigration to the despised Americans. After Austin and others had paid great sums for the immigration and families from the United States, Austin himself was one day rudely ordered out of Texas by some petty ayentimiento. Fortunately, he met on the street a friend, Baron de Bastrop, who was able to get the order rescinded. In all, about twenty-four empresarios were given grants of land, though as these were poorly defined and ineptly surveyed, some of these men returned to the States having lost everything they had invested.

Moses Austin, on his way back to the States, became ill and died. But he left the wish that his unmarried son, Stephen, would fulfill the plans of the men who had already paid their money. Stephen, with 13 companions, arrived in Texas on July 16, 1821.

They soon realized that Latin and Anglo were different and never the twain should meet. Mexico was governed by opportunists, with their own power in mind, and who would at a whim disregard the Constitution of 1824, the legal law of Mexico. They would join any rebellion which would enhance their power; no official was above greed or cheating. Appointed as ayentimientos were politicians or minor officers wholly unqualified by education, many had never been to Texas, but had the power to make decisions and give orders completely contrary to the agreements Austin and others had made.

Laws were changed without notice, the wise and diplomatic Austin was at times received with courtesy. He went to Mexico City to clarify some issues and was returning to Texas when he was arrested and taken back the weeks-long ride to prison in Mexico. Never charged with any crime, he was never able to get a hearing. He had money, and could easily have bribed some guard for a few pesos to obtain a horse for him and his escape. But he knew that this was just what the Mexican authorities wanted, to get him shot as an escaping prisoner.

A military coup had brought to the presidency an upstart named Antonio Loopez (please pronounce correctly the middle name as Lopolis) de Santa Anna. He was an opportunist, a person of pure Spanish blood with not a drop of Mexican in his veins. His father had a small estate in Eastern Mexico. Antonio longed for grandeur and took as his ideal the Corsican corporal in the French army who had postured and clawed his way to the French Army and to have seized the government of France, overrun other nations and plunge Europe into wars from which it has never recovered. If Bonaparte could do all this, so could Antonio. He would ride down his opponents! But when he realized that the Spanish army, which he had joined, was going to lose domination over Mexico, he saw his chance. He defected to the Mexican cause and with his knowledge of military maneuvers was able to assist the rebels. The treaty of 1822 gave Mexico her independence and Santa Anna took all the glory he was able to do.

Soon the hero of the Mexicans, he seized the presidency and declared himself dictator. Napoleon had had his Talleyrand, pitiless, atheistic and hating all mankind; Santa Anna never depended on anyone and seldom listened to his most experienced advisors. Defeated and deposed by other ambitious Mexicans, he gained power and lost it four times. His last despicable act, after the war with the United States in 1846, was to sell to the United States more than half the territory of Mexico, which included Texas and parts of several other states. The treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo allowed him, with his wife and daughter, to find exile in Nassau, with sixteen trunks full of fine uniforms, fabulous dresses and silver and gold money.

To this day there are prominent Mexicans who accuse the United States of "stealing" Texas. The truth is that England and France also were negotiating for the lands north of the Rio Grande and our Congress was wise enough to make the purchase.

Among the Eppresarios who brought immigrants to Texas was the noble Mexican Lorenzo de Zavala. Already living in Texas, he fought with Houston at San Jacinto. He held important offices in the Texas government. De Zavala was sentenced to death in absentia by Santa Anna, but eluded the Mexicans sent to capture him. A South Texas county bears his name.

Others Impresarios were Bell, Arredondo, Edwards, Bastrop, Burnet, Powers, DeLeon, Leftwich, Robertson, Thomas, Nelson, Filisola and more. All obtained charters which they believed to be legal, and all paid in cash to the Mexican authorities under the laws of 1823 and 1824. All spent their private fortunes for chartered ships and supplies, to bring the immigrants to Texas, and all demanded that the ones they brought be of honor and good character, and loyal to the Catholic faith.

Austin was assured that the term "league" meant 2248 acres. New laws made in 1825 regarding the restrictions were carefully obeyed by the Texans, though there were almost no local Mexican officials and only three Catholic priests north of the Rio Grande. The Land Commissioner appointed assistants who interpolated various instructions about labor, marriage and reversions to the Mexican government. All these were local, and in Spanish, more or less translated for the settlers.

Thus the seed was planted for disputes, disruptions and litigation. In some cases forfeiture of the lands was enforced, after the fields had been plowed, cabins and corn bins built, orchards were loaded with fruits and livestock bearing the brands of the Texans roamed the estates. But some of these people were evicted and taken back to Indianola for exile.

The unstable and capricious government at Mexico City wrote laws at will, the presidency was seized by this general or that. Coahuila was the legal capital of Texas, and there were no jails, or civil officers. The state legislature at Coahuila passed some amusing and ridiculous laws, including the taxing of cockpits for fighting cocks!

Comanches, Tehuacanas, Wacoas and whites were at war with each other at all times. In 1833 Josiah Wilbarger and two companions were hunting on Walnut Creek, when attacked by Indians. One of the whites was instantly killed, one escaped on a fast horse, but poor Wilbarger was scalped and left for dead. Rescued the next day, he lived for 12 years but died from his wound. During those 12 years, he wrote one of the most interesting histories of Texas. You may get your public library to get a copy for you to read.

My children, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rutherford from Concord, N. Hampshire and Mrs. Rick Wheeler from La Grange, arrived this Monday afternoon for a visit with myself and other relatives here. Mr. and Mrs. T. Rutherford came here from Vancouver, Washington, where they were weekend guests with their daughter and husband and where it was really cold.

Tencie Green and Juanita Minica of Santa Anna visited with Mrs. Darwin Lovelady there Monday.

Mr. Darwin Lovelady visited with his son, Mr. and Mrs. Randal Lovelady and girls in Brownwood Monday; he found out the baby girl had chicken pox.

Mrs. May (Tom) Berry and Mrs. John Berry and son, J. T. of Abilene were with Mrs. Berry's mother, Mrs. Nettie Vinson on Saturday; on Sunday Mrs. Nettie Vinson met the family on their farm in the Voss community and spent the day together.

Two out of three adults in the United States will wear glasses at some time.

Understanding Yourself

For The Birds

By Dr. Oswald Hoffman,
Lutheran Hour Speaker

Jesus Christ had something to say about worry, something very important and very helpful if we are willing to listen to what He says: "Look at the birds flying around. They do not plant seeds, gather a harvest or put it in barns; yet your Father in heaven takes care of them. Aren't you worth more than the birds?"

Faith in God can help you keep from worrying about the future.

Some of that sounds terribly impractical to some people. It is "for the birds," as they are accustomed to say. If I read His message correctly, though, Jesus is saying to all of us, "Worry is really for the birds. Worry is really impractical."

Jesus talked about worry in terms that are human and even humorous. He never suggested that anybody should live a shiftless or reckless life. He told people to do their duty with the intelligence and energy God has given—and to leave the rest to God.

"A dance is a measured pace, as a verse is a measured speech."

The Electricity To Cook Breakfast for One Week Costs...

Less Than One Dollar!

The Value of Electricity

Just $1 will buy enough electricity to light your kitchen ... make coffee in an automatic-drip coffee maker ... cook eggs on an electric range ... fix toast in a toaster ... and cook bacon in a microwave oven, and you'll have CHANGE LEFT OVER!

The price of electricity to do all these things every morning during a week for a family of four is just 67¢! These costs are based on a WTU average rate and estimated kilowatt-hour consumption.

Electricity is still one of the greatest values for the money. And, it's one bargain you don't have to go out and shop for.

West Texas Utilities wants you to keep in mind the value of YOUR electricity as you continue to use it wisely!
