Winant Named Legislators Dig Ambassador To England

Republican From New Hampshire Takes Important Post

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. (49) John G. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be ambassador to Great Britain, succeeding Joseph P. Kennedy.

The nomination of the 51-yearformer republican governor of New Hampshire was sent to the senate along with several other matic appointments.

Winant's appointment to the London post had been expected for several weeks. Its announce-ment was believed to have been delayed because the president wanted to give Harry L. Hopkins, his personal representative, time to wind up his work in London. Hopkins went abroad as a sort of unofficial envoy to serve until ambassador was named. Although a republican, Winant ecame associated with the new deal several years ago. President Roosevelt chose him to be the first chairman of the social se-curity board, a position which he resigned in 1936 to defend the agency against republican attack during the presidential campaign. Since 1938 he has been chairman of the international labor office, a research branch of the League of Vations which now has headquarters in Montreal, Canada.

Winant is married and there are three children in the family, two sons at Deerfield (Mass-J Academy and a daughter at the University of Lima, Peru. The family home is at Concord, N. H.

The will of the late Mrs. Molly Phillips, which instrument was executed December 14, 1938, was drawn entirely at her direction and without any suggestions from him, S. H. Morrison told a jury in 70th district court Thursday morning.

His testimony occupied considerable time in the bearing on a contest of Mrs. Phillips' will, filed by relatives who were excluded from bequests while considerable sums were left to local and West Texas Baptist institutions.

Mr. Morrison, pioneer attorney and legal counsel for Mrs. Phillips before her death, told the court he put into the will "just what she told me to." He reiterated during lengthy questioning that no suggestion was made by him-or, so far as he knew, by

He said that Mrs. Phillips came to his office on several occasions during the drafting of the doc ment, always alone, and that the was rewritten two or three times to satisfy the prominent West Texas church woman, widow of Hart Phillips, rancher and land owner.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of stories about the Big Spring library, written by the present librarian and describing the early struggles to maintain service.)

Early in 1931 the City Federation asked me to take over the Big Spring library, stating with more than tact that no one else would undertake the task. I immediately obtained the key and open-ed the then practically closed li-brary for a brief survey. What I saw sent me back home with something like a nervous breakdown and a keen regret that I had accepted the job.

My predecessor was seriously ill and the management of the books had been turned over almost entirely to school children who were doing what they could with it. With no adequate record of books lent, a great number of the desirable an all-American function. The shops are filled with clever, nexpensive novelties just right for invitations, decorations, name and tally cards. Such things are easily nade at home, too.

Of course, you should go strong on favorite American foods. Stars, shields, flags and other symbols can appear in crutons, sandwiches, pastry cases, pudding toppers, salads and desserts.

SPICED CHERRY RELISH WILL nd a gay note and pungent flavor o hot or cold meals, fowl or salads. immr 15 minutes 2 cups seeded ed cherries, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 cup cherry juice, a 2-inch stick of cin-namon, 6 whole cloves, 1-4 teaspoon nace and 1-3 teaspoon baked loaf with stars cut from flattened pi-mentos. Now for the sait. Discard the cinnamon and cloves and pour the cherry mixture into a package of cherry or lemon flavored gelatin dissolved in 2-3 cup boiling water. Add a tablespoon lemon juice. Mold individually or pour to the thickness of an inch in a shallow pan ringed in cold water. Chill until firm and cut out small stars, flags, shields, hearts, or what have of chopped parsley, celery and onions, cup milk and 1-3 teaspoon paprika. Pour into a greased mold. To make a basting blend: Boil 2 minutes 2-3 cup dark brown sugar, teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-3 cup vinegar and 1-2 cup water. Baste the loaf every 15 minutes while baking 1 1-4 hours in a moderate oven (350).

STAR SHORTCAKE is a lusclous dessert for family meals or parties. Make up a rich biscuit dough and cut out star shapes. Bake, then split, butter lightly and fill with CHERRY FILLER. Replace the tops and cover generously with more filling. Here is the cherry part: Mix 1 cup seeded canned cherries, I cup sugar, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 cup cherry juice, 1-2 cup water, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon and 1-8 teaspoon salt. Cook-slowly, stirring constantly, until creamy. Add 2 tablespoons butter. Serve this filler warm for best flavor. Any other red fruit or berry can replace the cherries.

The simplest party achieves dis-tinction when it ends with this dessert: Fill tart cases with slightly sweetened strawberries (fresh, canned or frozen). Cover with starshaped lids of rich pastry. Add a amail ball of vanilla ice cream or a swirl of whipped cream.

AUSTIN, Feb. 6-State supervision of the electrical industry this week was proposed in a bill introduced by Rep. Roger Q. Evans of Denison which would create a state electrical board under the wing of the fire insurance com-

"Our fire insurance rates are being kept high in many instances because we have imperfect control over electrical work, as to the persons engaged in it, the type of materials used, and the methods employed. This is a vital question of safety, and the state should properly exercise a supervision over the entire field," Evans declared.

Denison legislator's bill would create a five-man board composed of the state fire insur ance commissioner and four mer appointed for four-year terms by the governor to represent electrical contractors, electrical public serv ice companies, journeyman trical workers organizations, and city electrical inspectors.

This board would set minimum standards for installation of wiring, appliances, and equipment in line with regulations suggested by national safety and electrical organizations. ### Area Has Half Representation At Austin

This section of West Texas is only about half as well represented in Austin as it should be.

That is not to be taken as a declaration that Mr. Dorsey Hardeman, our representative, is not doing all right. The trouble is that Mr. Hardeman has twice as many persons to represent as he should have.

It has been 20 years since the state was redistricted as to representatives in the legislature. The local district includes Howard, Tom Green, Glasscock, Sterling, Reagan and Irion counties, all of which have shown marked growth in population

According to the current census, Texas has a population of 6,414,824 persons. Dividing 150-the number of representatives-into this, we find that each representative should serve approximately 42,-

But in the 91st district, we find that one county

East Texas legislators, now often serving districts of relatively small population, are in position to block almost any effort of West Texas solons to correct this situation. But if West Texans see any opportunity whatsoever for blackmailing, log-rolling, or otherwise convincing the East Texans on this point, the sandstorm country would really appreciate couple dozen more delegates to the biennial tax-many years of batting around in the news game, I have found a lot of people in the theater who have no business there and darn-ed few who should have been on the stage and aren't-but George H. O'Connor certainly is one of the latter.

From President McKinley to Roosevelt II, probably more people have called O'Connor 'George" than ever called all the nation's Pullman porters by that name. For the purposes of this little story I'm going to join the fond parade.

George is a portly gent, with whiting hair and a Muldoon map. His father's name was Patrick and his mother's maiden ame Mary McCarthy. Born thus in the shade of the shamrock, he held trumps to start with. He has played them right and probably given laughs to more Washans than any other native.

He is, by vocation, a title insurance executive—but it is his avocation that has made George O'Connor one of the greatest toastmasters and after-dinner entertainers that your banquetridden capital ever has known. George is the composer of number of melodies, including
"He May Be a Bayarian on Broadway," and "He Ain't No Relation of Mine," which was a great favorite of the late Presi-dent Taft. Add to that a throaty baritone, which wouldn't neces-sarily make Lawrence Tibbett take off his topper, and a footlight personality which probably yould and maybe you are beginning to get a picture of George on a banquet program with another native Washington boy, who had done quite a bit of wandering-Al Joison. Will Rogers was in the audience and when the two finished their littele numbers. Will turned to his neighbor and remarked, "Looks to me as if the wrong boy stayed home."

Not so long ago, George was in top form at the White House correspondents' annual dinner, He sang "Little Tommy Murphy, and a mournful ballad called "Saloon." When he had finished, a waiter handed him a card. On it was scribbled, "Dear George— Like rare old wine, you grow better with age." It was signed, "F.D.R."

The story goes that George was one of the few men-if not the only-who could always get a hearty laugh out of Calvin Coolidge. George first met President Coolidge at a Massachusetts Society reception. The President looked a little puzzled. "Are you from Massachusetts?" he asked. "No, I've been sick," answered George, "that's what makes me look this way." The story has been kicked around every vaudeville stage in the land in half a dozen forms, but it was fresh enough then to make the unsmiling Mr. Coolidge guffaw.

NUMEROUS STORIES

A few months later, at a banquet Coolidge attended, George sang his viriolic lampoon, "Cohen Owes Me $97." As the applause died down, one recalci-trant guest "boohed." The President turned to his dinner partner and asked, "Who's that? Cohen?" George's life is full of stories like that. There was the time at the Lambs club in New York, when Witton Lackaye, the actor, introduced him this way: "Gentlemen, you think you're good. But I want to introduce you to a man who plays New York as a

Then there was the time the dejected President Taft attended a party shortly after his defeat Woodrow Wilson, George got up, took the notes in his teeth, and sang, "If He's Going In, I'm Going Out." Some who were there will insist today that Taft laughed so hard he cracked the dining room plaster.

WILSON THANKED HIM

For President Wilson, just after he had taken office, George sang "My Cousin Caruse," When he had finished, President Wilson came over and put his arm around O'Connor's shoulders. took him over to a corner and thanked him profusely. It was three months before George could fight his way out of the flood of jobhunters who be-seeched him to say a word to the President in their behalf.

At one party some years ago, George and the late veteran speaker of the House, "Uncle Joe" Cannon, put on an act to-gether. When they had finished, an excited theatrical agent in the audience rushed up and offered them a contract at $1,000 a week to tour the country. They turned him down, of course. Probably they were right. But you still can find a lot of banquet habi-tues around Washington who would have been glad to put it on the line and see that the agent came out on top.

Man About Manhattan-Fertilizer Tablets Rescue Woman In Theatre

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK - One day not long ago, not more than a week ago-on a Wednesday afternoon, a matinee afternoon-the secretary of an advertising man I know went to the theatre.

It was a terrible afternoon. It had been anowing, and it turned to sleet, and then the rains came, changing the side streets to slush, and everybody got wet, including the heroine of this tale. Yes, she was wet to her knees, and cold.

But it was too late to turn back. She had been waiting weeks to see Ethel Barrymore in "The Corn Is Green," and so she went inside and found herself sitting directly behind a young woman with one of the worst coughs she had ever heard,

This cough tore up the aisles and rattled against the walls of the theatre. It sounded as if men were ripping planks from an attic floor, and even the actors on the Apparently these tablets had the answer, for the young woman was able to sit through the rest of the play in comparative comfort. As the curtain fell and the lights came up she nodded gratefully once more, and then the theatre emptied, and the young woman with the wet knees boarded a subway for home.

It must have been about ten minutes later that she experienced a minor flurry of coughing want to marry a girl who was restless, who was always wanting to break away - go places, do things."

"But didn't you ever want to go places, David-do things?" It Might Have Been

"Certainly," David replied. "Like all boys and very young men, I had wild dreams of going to sea, of be-coming an explorer, of being an architect and designing magnifi-cent houses. I was a perfectly normal boy, Margo. But now that I've grown older, and I see that dreams never got anybody any-thing, I'm perfectly willing to toss those dreams into the discard and make good in Ardendale. Being a fair-sized frog in a not-so-large puddle isn't so bad. Or that's the way I feel about it now." "You mean you're content to go on working for Dad?"

"No, not that. I'd like to be able to take hold of the Inn, and make it support me and my wife, and at the same time bring aid and pleasure to a lot of folks. You know, people who want to come to a quiet spot, where they can swim, thrive on mineral water, and-well, that sort of craziness If you call it craziness, and you probably will."

"No, David," said Margo. don't think it's crary at al."
