Question:

Is Lone Star doing everything it can to hold down costs?

We're operating more efficiently than ever before. But our costs are go-cents per thousand cubic feet. Recently we paid more than 85 cents cost us about 19

for major new supplies. And the price is still rising. Costs like these are the price Lone Star must pay for your continuing natural gas supplies. It's important that you understand our need for adequate rates so we can continue to deliver clean gas energy to your home for winters to come.

We're doing everything possible to hold down controllable costs. But even with gradual rate increases, natural gas from Lone Star will still be your most economical and efficient nonpolluting fuel.

Lone Star Gas

What TESCO is doing to provide the electricity you'll need.

We're spending $700 million on new construction during the next five years.

We must have new plants that will permit us to diversify the types of fuel we use to generate electricity.

Natural gas is our major fuel at Texas Electric now, with oil used on a standby basis. But both these fuels are in increasingly short supply.

So Texas Electric, along with two other electric utilities, is building plants in East Texas that use lignite coal, a fuel that is not being used extensively for any purpose other than the generation of electricity.

One lignite plant already is in operation, and two others are being built. But it costs about twice as much to build a lignite plant as one that uses natural gas.

A nuclear-fueled plant is scheduled to be operational near Glen Rose by 1980, and this one will cost more than three times as much as a gas-fueled plant.

Financing the essential expenditure of more than $700 million in just the next five years is what makes an increase in electric service rates necessary.

We're working to supply the electricity you'll need, but it will have to cost more in the future.
