People power: Barbara Arber has it.

Whatever the problem, it's my job to see that customers get help—if their service has been interrupted, if they think a bill is incorrect, if they're moving or opening a new business. Even if someone just has a burned-out fuse.

"I like working with people. It's a challenge to me each day to see that different customers get the help they need.

"There are headaches, of course, but it's nice to work for a company that's really concerned about its customers."

Barbara Arber, and 2600 other people like her, provide the real power behind Texas Electric Service Company. It's people power... at work for you.
