Chances are he will be stuck for the price of an abstract, and if the title proves to be faulty, an additional expense for legal services. Women who cook electrically know...

Electric cooking SAVES WORK because it's flameless

There's less work keeping your kitchen clean when you cook with flameless electricity. An electric range makes this chore easier because it cooks with heat as clean as electric light. There's no fuel grime to soil pots and pans or settle on kitchen walls and curtains. Your kitchen stays bright and new-looking with a minimum of washing and care.

Flameless automatic electric cooking cuts down on needless hours of watching pots and clocks. With an automatic electric range, you just set the time and temperature controls and a complete oven meal cooks to perfection, unattended. And with the automatic electric surface unit, cooking temperatures remain constant, eliminating the need for pot-watching.

Electric cooking also is fast, cool, accurate and economical. See your dealer and change now to a 1963 flameless electric range. Electric cooking is one of the nicest things about living better... electrically.

Denmark Student Enjoys Seeing Doll Collection Here

Mickey Barker, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Rodgers, and her friend, Marlene Kalker from Nakshar, Denmark, visited Sunday with Mrs. George Blackwell. Marlene is an exchange student at Northwest Classen High School in Oklahoma City.

Marlene, who is so impressed with America, was so thrilled over visiting in the home of Mrs. Blackwell that she asked permission to make pictures of her doll collection and some of her antique furniture to send home to her parents in Denmark.

The camera she used impressed Mrs. Blackwell, as it was so different from our American cameras.

Marlene expressed her love for America. It's so different from her own country. The year she has been here has been so wonderful, she is sorry the school year is coming to a close.

The oil paintings and the French Estasha filled with German Bisque China, the doll collection and the Washington period walnut bedroom suite with the head of Washington carved on the high headboard of the bed and dresser mirror frame, were among the antiques most interesting to Miss Kalker, and these she photographed to send her parents.

Mrs. Blackwell began her collections of antiques 45 years ago when her late husband, Dr. Geo. Blackwell, was studying Specialized Medicine in New Orleans. Her first collection was dematess

How long can you expect to keep your new refrigerator or range?
About 16 years if you follow the pattern of the average owner. This means you may trade it in, sell it, or give it away before it is completely worn out.

Many things affect the service life of an appliance. One is how well it fits the owner's needs and preferences. Research findings show, for example, that a range acquired with the purchase of a home may be kept a shorter time than one the homeowner chooses and buys separately.

Here are estimates of the "service life expectancy," purchased new, under one "owner" of several other types of household equipment:

Electric washing machines, automatic and semi-automatic, 11 years; Dryer, 14 years; Wringer and spin-dryer washing machines, 10 years; Freezers, 15 years; Vacuum cleaners: upright, 18 years, tank, 15 years; Sewing machines, electric, 24 years; Toasters, automatic, 15 years; Television sets, 11 years; and living room wool rugs, 14 years.

These statistics should help the homemaker plan her budget. Some appliances will last longer than the average and some not as long, but if the homemaker is wise she will provide for replacement as items approach their average expectancy.

How do the new long-life light bulbs compare with the customary kind? In the amount of light they give? In their life span? And their cost?

Consumer specialists in the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Electrification Administration say the regular type bulb is still your best bet — if you're looking for a good, inexpensive light source. The regular bulbs give more light for the amount of current used than the long-life bulbs.

They explain it this way: The new bulbs — which actually are nothing more than a reversion to the early Edison bulb — have filaments that do not get as hot as those in regular bulbs. Consequently, they last longer — but give less light.

A regular incandescent light bulb costs about 25 cents. During the lifetime of the bulb (about 750 hours) it will use up 5 to 6 times its original cost in electricity.

This ratio, the experts say, is better than that of the long-life bulbs which cost consumers more both to buy and use.

Comment from the Capital —

STOPPING THE PRESSES

by Vant Neff

24 daily newspapers were struck by unions in 1962. Only 8 papers were affected in 1961.

The unions involved seem hellbent on putting publishers out of business and press people on unemployment rolls. Statistics show that the wages of newspaper workers rank at the top among employees in nondurable goods. Maybe this is why more and more daily newspapers keep going under.

Detroit, Cleveland, Milwaukee, and, recently New York, are some of the major cities where newspapers were strike-bound in 1962. (New York and Cleveland are still out at this writing). Detroit has the dubious honor of 8 newspaper strikes in 7 years.

Some big newspapers across the country make money. Most have been losing income to TV and suburban dailies and weeklies. As labor costs spiral, most of the big city papers go out of business or merge with one another to cut costs. 40 years ago, over 500 cities had daily papers. Today only 58 big papers remain.

It's not the wage increases and fringe benefits that hurt publishers as much as the restrictive union work rules.

One southern publisher estimates his paper could save $500,000 a year, if he could organize his mechanical department efficiently and not according to union work rules.

Ever hear of dead horse? Bogus? Reset? All these terms refer to setting unnecessary type. Union contracts require papers to set type for all ads. Most of these ads come to the paper in mat or plate form. A lead casting can be made without setting any type at all. The union demands that a printer set type anyway.

After he does so, a proof copy is made, checked for errors, and corrected. Then a correct proof is pulled, and the type is destroyed without being used.

When new equipment is installed, the union insists that the same number of men be employed at machines, even though far fewer workers are needed.

One midwestern daily has 17 men tending two new presses. Only 8 are required. The result is that the new presses cost more to run than the old ones did.

A southern pressmen's local won't allow the men to handle more than a single press.

Another daily — this also from the midwest — installed a chute to slide bundles of papers directly onto delivery trucks. The union beat this labor saver by cutting 8 feet from the chute. Three men are required to load each truck when one would be ample.

It took a strike to allow a Detroit paper to run its own mail room, according to the business manager. Prior to the strike, the union did all the hiring and job assigning. The publisher wrote the pay checks. This manager claims union work rules add 30% to hourly pay rates.

Out on the west coast, pressmen really have it made. They get paid for a full shift of 7 hours regardless of how few hours a run requires.

The New York newspaper row is over more money and shorter hours — a raise of $18.45 over two years, 35 hour week, higher night pay, increased sick leave and vacation benefits.

Recently, a Public Accountability Board of 3 judges, headed by Harold R. Medina, a Jurist of international reputation, respected by both labor and management alike for his impeccable character and strict impartiality, held Bertram Power, union head, responsible for the shutdown.

Judge Medina, who presided over the Communist trials of 1949, called the union demands "shocking".

His report accused the Printers Union of "An intention to shut down the papers and to postpone negotiations, until . . . the publishers were forced to surrender."

The report further stated that the union did not present its total demands until 15 minutes before the old contract expired.

In noting that the union's demands would cost publishers $36 a week per man, Judge Medina's report called this figure, "An amount which has exceeded the total benefits gained under all the contracts of the past 10 years."

These demands are several times above the Administration's 3% guideline. The White House is strangely silent. When and if a contract is signed, the money loss to both workers and publishers will run into hundreds of millions. Some of the papers may not survive.

Once again, a union has damned everybody, and struck. I predict that it is only a question of time before public opinion curtails the undisciplined monopoly of union power. But why not now?
