

Homemaker's Hints

By Janet Meyers
County Home Dem. Agent

Roses are now available in many stores throughout the county. You know, roses are probably one of the most popular of all garden plants, and anyone can grow them. However, the most common error made by many gardeners is to attempt to grow too many varieties or too many plants.

There are many different types of garden roses. The shrub roses can be used as shrubs in landscape plantings in the same manner as any other flowering shrub. The most popular types, however, are the tea roses, hybrid teas, hybrid perpetuals, floribundas and climbers. The hybrid teas and the floribundas are the most important garden roses today and are the ones with which the home gardener is primarily concerned.

When planting, select a location in the garden where the plants will receive a minimum of 6 hours of sunlight a day. In Texas, a location that is lightly shaded in the afternoon is ideal.

Roses should not be planted too close to trees which form matted roots near the surface, such as your elm or poplars. Any well-drained garden soil, mixed with peat or other organic matter, that is well fertilized, can produce good roses. The soil should be slightly acid to neutral. Highly acid or highly alkaline soils are unsuitable for growing roses successfully. Also, good drainage is the most important consideration.

In Texas, roses may be planted in the fall or spring. When plants are set out in the spring, cut the canes to 6 inches above the ground at the time of planting.

Mulching the rose bed with granulated peat moss or some other loose material, such as cottonseed hulls, ground corncobs, sawdust, sugar cane pulp, etc. is a satisfactory practice to retain moisture and keep down weeds.

Mulches should be about 2 inches thick. Mulching is better than cultivation.

Water plants thoroughly. Don't apply fertilizer to newly-planted bushes until the root system is well established, then feed at least twice a season, and do not fertilize late in the fall.

The Extension Service has two excellent publications on the growing of roses for the home, and are available from the County Home Demonstration Agent's office in the courthouse.

Ranges with self-cleaning or easy-cleaning features are coming into the 1967 market with prices low enough for many consumers. This information comes from recent equipment research which also notes that removable teflon coated panels for easy oven cleaning are being offered by manufacturers. One manufacturer has introduced a "counter that cooks" — a range with an opaque glass cream top. The surface, which is smooth and even, reduces the chore of cleaning to a minimum. The price? $350.

While much has been done in the area of electronic cooking, many problems still exist — servicing, use education, and price. Manufacturers predict that consumer prices for electronic ranges will be in the $500 to $600 range.

Common features to be seen on many lower priced models of 1967 ranges include: Lift-off doors; hinged and life-off range "stirrers" and automatic temperature controls that maintain pre-set temperatures which don't allow food to burn.

Before this happens again, get an electric dryer. They're flameless, clean and fast. And they cost up to $40 less to buy.. cost less to install and maintain. See your dealer.

Give your children real security...

We don't mean the nicest house in the best neighborhood... the newest, sleekest car... the right schools, the right camps.

We're talking about the kind of security they can't do without... the kind that comes from inside.

Faith. In God, in life, in themselves. For life is no game for spiritual sissies. Only Faith... the armor of the spirit... will give them the stamina to meet it courageously, no matter what it brings.

You can show your children where to find faith... how to build it day by day, if you make praying a family affair.

Build a stronger, richer life

... worship together every week
