We're building power plants that use lignite coal.

It's our answer to the rising price of natural gas.

This power plant is being built in East Texas at Martin Lake near Henderson. It will make electricity by burning lignite coal.

We have to build lignite plants because we're running out of low-cost natural gas, our main fuel today. New supplies are hard to get and very costly.

Lignite plants cost more than twice as much to build as comparable gas-fired plants, and that means electricity will cost more. But expensive as they are, lignite plants will still make electricity more cheaply than plants using high-priced gas.

That's because our large lignite supplies, acquired many years ago, are much cheaper than new supplies of gas. And using cheap fuel is one way we're keeping your electric bill as low as possible.

The average bill for Texas Electric customers is already 27 per cent below the national average, and we're working to keep it that way.

HIGGINBOTHAM'S

Senior Citizens

We played 84, I believe it was thirteen nights or a little less last week. Murel really eats that up, too. One good thing, she has her bluff on Granny Kent now. I really believe that Granny is afraid of her as Murel threatened to throw some of her snuff in her eyes. I really believe that she would have done it if Granny had said one more cross word to her. All that Granny could say was Ah!

Big Foot has a new breathing machine now. So he really does sass Mama at times now. He rears up to his full height then (7 feet). I wish I could talk to My Boss as he does I know that I would get an ear knocked down. Pood Fat's just has to stay with his cats night after night.

Cat Fuzz and Double Six were in Odessa in a three day tournament of bowling the last of the week. I sure hope they came out on the winning side.

The "Reaper" visited our community Saturday night. Rex Yarbrough was called to his final resting place. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved.

Remember some one else's name is on the next page. So be prepared, as no one on earth knows whom it will be.

Our office is still going strong. Doe has quit seeing after his next door neighbor. Lover Boy is still all smiles. Luke is Gassy Jack's side coach. He really helps him out. Luke's quiet neighbor can use some ugly language. Tater is still chewing vines. Speck is still afraid to argue with Bud, as Bud blew smoke in his eyes and said "watch my smoke." Slim Pickens can hit the table very hard at times. Uncle Sam and Floyd have finally settled their difference and settled down. I make more mistakes than anyone there at times, as I fail to see the right play. Though I help Marcy coach at times.

When I was teaching that first school in Menard County we had a box supper the first month of school. They were to move all seats out of the school house and have a dance. The boys that I had thrashed the first of school knew that some of the cowboys that came would also bring whiskey. Menard had open saloons. The boys hid out and watched where the whiskey was hidden. Four of them really got tanked up. The dance lasted until 3 a. m. It was fairly peaceful though.

In the early part of 1917, I sent two boys out to cut and bring in some wood. It was snowing some at the time. All at once a rock about the size of a baseball hit the roof. When they came in, I asked what happened. One of the boys said "I threw a rock at a snow bird." I asked him if he hit it. He said, "The rock just barely touched him."

Three of the boys that were in trouble the first week of school were in a gang of young men or boys that rounded up 25 registered Hereford bulls that the rancher they had trouble with. The bull yearlings were gentle. So they took their lariats and made a pen. They made 24 steers out of those bulls. So you can see the kind of boys I had in that little school. That rancher had just 13,000 acres of pasture. It was bordered on the north by the San Saba River. We went to the river one Sunday for a picnic. They showed me a hole in the north side of the river in a thirty-foot bluff. A person could cram in that hole. The bees were a solid stream going in and out. I did not have any desire to explore it though. On the ground just above that cave was a bumble bee nest. I would swear it was at least twenty feet square. They had holes all through that space and bees going and coming.

The boys and girls in that community learned to ride before they learned to walk. They used little mexican ponies or at least that is what they called them.

Look up and smile. A smile will win. Remember that the sun is always shining just behind the darkest clouds at all times.

German MD's Report Fantastic Chiropractic Result

Medical Journal Reports Successful Use of Chiropractic In Cases Orthodox Treatment Had Given Up.

(A public service bulletin by Salyer Chiropractic Offices Dublin, Texas).

Scientific facts have a way of winning out ultimately over deep-rooted prejudices. In the case of chiropractic, a 80-year old science has fought an uphill battle against the entrenched medical men of all countries who view with suspicion anything new or different from their own approach.

In Germany, long a respected citadel of scientific and medical progress, chiropractic has been investigated by leading men. So amazing have been the results that recently a leading medical journal, Die Medizinische Zeitschrift, ran an article explaining to M. D.s that they had better look into this remarkable method of healing. Following are some of the statements made in this magazine:

"We originally adjusted a group of patients, mostly women, suffering from headaches, shoulder-arm syndrome and lumbago. We were amazed to find that abdominal pains of various types - of which these patients had complained for many years - had disappeared without trace.

"We then took patients who suffered from specific internal diseases and adjusted them in the involved dorsal area.

"So far we have not found one case which failed to respond to some extent.

"The results often are so fantastic that the patients believe in a miracle, and one can understand this after having been under medical care for years without results. "We believe out of personal experience that good Chiropractic must have an influence over the entire vegetative system above and beyond

As It Looks From Here

OMAR BURLESON, M. C. 17th District, Texas

WASHINGTON, D. C. — WISHFUL THINKING SELDOM PAYS off but there are indications that political and economic conservatism is manifesting itself across the Country to a greater degree than has been the case in recent years.

AT THE MOMENT IT IS WIDENING THE BREACHES IN both political parties. In the months ahead this division may become more evident and highly visible.

NATIONALLY, MOST LIBERALS CONTINUE to talk in favor of big government, bigger spending, with no turning back. But some liberal Governors and Mayors are seemingly beginning to respond to public sentiment against massive bureaucracy, uncontrolled deficit spending, and government intervention.

ONE EXAMPLE RECENTLY SURFACED WAS A STATEMENT of the Governor of Wisconsin, a liberal in an historically liberal area. He said, "We are beginning to recognize that there are limits to what government can and should do. The day is past when a Wisconsin governor can present a budget which is nothing more than a catalog of goodies offering a little something for everybody." The Governors of California, New York and Massachusetts are saying things similar. The Governor of Colorado has been quoted recently as seeing the

the local influence."

"Almost all nerve interference produced by the spinal column leads to functional disturbances in the viscera, which we cannot detect immediately with our present diagnostic procedures.

"Only the heart presents the opportunity for a thorough functional diagnosis by the electrocardiograph, but it is also possible to correct heart disturbances by adjustment of the cervical vertebrae."

"We must remind ourselves of our tasks as physicians not to lose sight of all the therapeutic potentials, because it is clear that internal medicine does not pay enough attention to variations in the spinal column."

GORMAN PROGRESS, Eastland Co., Texas, NOV. 20, 1975

U. S. heading for an "economic Dunkirk" if it doesn't return to economic prudence.

IT WILL BE INTERESTING TO SEE IF AND when this grass roots stirring takes hold in Washington. There is some discernment that the liberal element in the Congress may be showing a concern for fiscal condition of the Government. A few days ago a U. S. Senator addressed the Liberal Party of New York. He is quoted as wanting to know from that group why liberals aren't doing something "about a government so big, so complex, so expensive and unresponsive that it is dragging down every good program we've worked for?" "Yet," Senator Muskie, who has pretty good liberal credentials, warned, "we stay away from that question like it was the plague - we know that government can do much to improve the lives of every American. But that conviction has also led us to become the defenders of government, no matter its mistakes."

A TOP ADVISOR TO BOTH SENATORS HUMPHREY AND McGOVERN gives this unorthodox liberal advice: "The first 1,000 days of a new democratic presidency should include a ruthless re-examination of every federal-funded administrative agency and program."

STRAWS IN THE WIND? — YES — ONLY THAT they are where they haven't been in a long time. There is plenty on the other side, too. For instance, Republican Senator

McC. Mathias of Maryland said last week that he may become a Presidential Candidate to give liberals in the Party a choice they will not have otherwise.

AS MENTIONED IN THIS SPACE LAST WEEK, THE PRESIDENT has thrown out a challenge which this Congress can not ignore. The procedures for reaching the goal of reducing taxes and cutting Federal spending by an equal amount, are admittedly a problem but a lot of people want it done. Maybe the Congress is getting the message. Reduction in expenditures should come first and then a tax cut but this is not the specific point here. The point here is - have we reached the time when people are ready to choose between more government spending and high taxes or less spending and lower taxes? The issue might even be more dramatized by the question as to whether we want independence - freedom - the right to choose - or a paternalistic government heading to a socialistic system.

IF THIS FORMER PROPOSITION DEVELOPS across the Country there may well be a clear issue in the elections next year - the competition could be over which candidate and which party can best be trusted to carry out such a policy.

THEN & NOW!

In 1872, British master plumber Thomas Crapper earned fame and fortune when he tackled a pressing problem head-on: fixing the water-wasting toilets that plagued 19th century London.

At the time, toilet tanks flushed when a crude plug was pulled out of a drain opening—the same basic principle used to this day in America. Unfortunately, these early plugs did not form a proper seal with the opening, permitting valuable fresh water to be lost down the drain.

Crappier's ingenious invention eliminated the plug, using instead the principle of syphoning to move water upwards in the tank and into a flush pipe, from where it cascaded down into the bowl.

Crappier's principle is still used in England, but his idea was never adopted in America, probably because the device was complicated and cumbersome. It was more than 100 years later before this country finally tackled the leaky toilet.

Today, inventor Adolf Schoepe, head of the Fluidmaster Company, Anaheim, Calif., has another—and many believe a better—answer.

But instead of going to a new principle as Crappier has done, Schoepe perfected the old one—re-designing the basic flush valve stopper. Schoepe developed a non-corrosive vinyl flapper-style plug. By design, it cannot become misaligned with the drain since it is rigidly hinged to it. For installation, a stainless steel replacement seat is cemented directly on top of the old drain pipe, using a newly developed sealant which actually uses water as a catalyst in curing.

Called the Flusher Fixer Kit, it can be installed without tools and without removing the tank from the toilet. It even replaces the old lift wires with a stainless steel ball chain which can't catch, kink or cause leakage.

For more information, you can write for a free pamphlet: "Troubleshooter's Guide to a Noisy Toilet" to Adolf Schoepe, Fluidmaster, Inc., 1800 Via Burton, Anaheim, CA 92803.

It can tell you how to stop costly water from going down the drain.
