TRYING TO MAINTAIN BALANCE — Shown above is Ray Bond No. 40 trying to maintain his balance and make extra yards in game action in San Angelo with the Wink Wildcats.

did a superb job, the best they had done all season as they held the big senior laden Wildcats and stunned them for almost all the first half. However, with most all the Gorman players going both ways, they got wore down a little in the last half. One thing for sure though, all the Panther fans are proud of their Panthers and for their accomplishments this season. It has truly been a great season. Jimmy Johnson had 92 yards on 25 carries to lead the Panthers. Scotty Mauney got 16 on 10 trips. Jeff Seaton, Eddie Pettit and Toofer Bond each had 6 yards and Jacky Johnson had a -3 on two carries up the middle. So our congratulations go out to the Panthers for their outstanding season they had this year.

Mrs. C. Hall Laid To Rest Wednesday

EASTLAND—Mrs. Clyde Hall, 96, a longtime resident of Carbon, died Monday evening November 23, 1981 at Resort Lodge Nursing Home in Minerals Wells. Services were at 10 a.m. Wednesday at First Baptist church of Carbon, directed by Edwards Funeral Home. The Rev. Delbert Smith officiated. Burial was in Oakwood Cemetery in Comanche.

Born August 16, 1885, in Arkansas, she later moved to Fort Worth. She married Harry Hall October 11, 1905, in Comanche. They moved to Carbon in 1919 and operated a mercantile business from 1923 to 1957, and she had been a correspondent for the Eastland Telegram for 30 years. She was the oldest member of Frist Baptist Church of Carbon and was a charter member of 38 Study Club. She also was a member of the Woodmen Circle.

She was preceded in death by her husband in 1963, and a son, Abe, in 1967.

Survivors include a son, Harry C. of El Paso; a daughter, Mrs. MacBee Claborn of Mineral Wells; seven grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were A. M. Claborn, Morris Claborn, Keith Claborn, Mike Claborn and Luell Allison and Richard Greenhill.

Energy cannot be created or destroyed. It can only be changed from one form to another.

"Since the hunter cannot control all factors which affect deer meat quality—for example, age of the animal harvested and the like—the treatments were designed to look at only those things which the hunter can control," says the Texas A&M University specialist.

Of the tests run on the carcasses, one of the most interesting was the taste panel test. A panel, consisting of five to eight people, was trained to evaluate meat quality, then give samples of venison from the various treatment groups.

"Only ham and backstrap muscles were used for testing and each sample was cooked to uniform internal temperature. At no time did panel members know what sample or samples they were evaluating. The panel rated each sample on the basis of flavor intensity, flavor desirability, juiciness, tenderness and overall satisfaction," Shult points out.

Based on evaluations by the panel, following general recommendations can be made for Texas conditions, says Shult.

1. Whenever a choice is available, select a female animal for less flavor intensity (gaminess). This does not mean that male animals provide undesirable meat, but rather that most consumers may prefer the less intense flavor of the female.

2. Whenever possible place the shot in the neck or head to insure a clean, rapid kill. This prevents post-shot stress and also reduces tissue damage considerably.

3. Field dress the animal as soon as possible. If contents of the intestine or paunch have been spilled, the carcass should be rinsed with water. A publication, L-634, entitled "Field Dressing Big Game" is available from local county Extension offices and provides more information.

4. When weather permits, leaving the skin on the car-ass will help conserve moisture. However, a little common sense dictates that carcasses should be skinned and covered with a fly proof bag in hot weather if a cooler is not accessible. Also, a male in the rut may have a strong urine odor on the hind legs and probably should be skinned prior to storage.

5. If the family prefers a somewhat more intense flavor which is similar to aged beef, the carcass may be hung in a locker for about a week before final processing. Again, common sense dictates storage in a clean locker which eliminates contamination of odors from poorly handled carcasses.

These recommendations are not the only way to handle carcasses, Shult emphasizes. For the hunter who has a preferred method which differs somewhat from these recommendations, but whose family is very satisfied with the venison brought home,

CARD OF THANKS

Thanks to Dr. L. Aguila, the good nurses and hospital staff for the good care I received during my stay in Blackwell Hospital. Also to friends and neighbors, for the cards, visits and phone calls. Your thoughtfulness and kindness meant so much to me.

change is unnecessary.

"If a hunter has no experience in handling deer carcasses, or has had a bad experience with deer meat, these suggestions may provide a means of increasing the utilization of the deer resource. Further suggestions on care and cooking of venison can be found in the publication MP-1333, "Big Game Cooking Care" which is also available from the county Extension office," Shult reminds.

Deer Season Now Open

Deer season opened Saturday, November 14th and Eastland County hunters were ready. By Monday afternoon the Frozen Food Locker in Ranger had already prepared 52 deer and Fred Brown of Eastland had prepared 15.

As of press time, Eastland County Game Warden, Kenneth Payne, could not be reached to report on the county's activities this past weekend.

Deer hunting provides many hours of outdoor recreation for Texas sportsman each year. Besides providing recreation, deer harvested also yield a huge resource in terms of table fare—venison.

The potential yield runs in the neighborhood of 11 million pounds of boneless deer meat annually, points out Dr. Milo Shult, wildlife specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Quality of venison is not determined solely by the culinary talents of the homemaker, Shult emphasizes. "The entire process of handling the carcass from field to table can add or detract from the desirability of the final product. The hunter, plays an important role in determining whether a deer steak is tender and tasty or tough and bad-flavored," says Shult.

A result demonstrator conducted by a group of specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service emphasized the effects of handling on deer meat quality. Thirty-six deer were collected on a permit obtained from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. These deer were treated in several ways with each group of six deer receiving the same treatment.

USDA CONSERVATION PROGRAM OUT FOR PUBLIC VIEW

The Secretary of Agriculture has invited the public to comment on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's proposed soil and water conservation program. The Secretary's preferred program features expanded roles for local and state governments and the targeting of USDA dollars and personnel to conserving critical resource problem areas.

People who are interested in the program, or potentially affected by it, are urged to comment. Responses will be accepted through January 15, 1982, and can be mailed to State Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service (SCS), P. O. Box 648, Temple, Texas 76503.

Ron Bailey, district conservationist for SCS at Eastland said the Secretary's proposed program would concentrate more USDA assistance in areas where soil erosion and other problems threaten to reduce agriculture productive capacity and to increase agriculture production costs.

The program would use local and state conservation coordinating boards to identify critical problem areas, set priorities, and develop program for local and state action to solve the problems.

Bailey said the program is the Secretary's proposed response to the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 (RCA). It is contained in a RCA Program report and a summary leaflet with response form that can be reviewed at the local SCS or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

Save energy with a heat pump.

If you're planning to install a new heating or cooling system, consider a high-efficiency heat pump. It's an energy-saving, year-round alternative.

The heat pump provides year-round heating and cooling, using only electricity. During the winter, it extracts heat from the outside air (even very cold air contains heat) and brings that heat inside where it's needed. In the summer, the heat pump is a regular air conditioner, removing unwanted heat from the inside air.

The heat pump is the most efficient combination heating and cooling system that can be installed in your home today.

To learn more about the heat pump, call your air conditioning contractor or Texas Electric. And when you call, ask about our conservation incentive program.
