Joe Bennett, Publisher

Well the rain sure was appreciated by everyone in the area. Reports were from 1 1/2 to 2 inches. Whatever we received was greatly appreciated and we thank the Lord for every drop we got.

The better half and I were out driving around on Sunday afternoon looking over the country on a beautiful day and decided to drive out to Tommy's and Michaelyn Clarks place to see the progress on the new home.

Well anyway, while we were driving around we noticed something new on the Mears place. A new home had been constructed by the Ronnie Weehunts and we had not noticed or heard of it as we were not out that way while construction was going on.

The Gorman Lions Club is still having their Light Bulb Sale and will continue the sale this Monday night until they cover the entire town. Sales have been pretty good but not as the club anticipated.

Noticed where the other auto makers are in the process of talking with the auto workers about the auto manufacturing and selling business which the bottom has fallen out of the past year or so.

Congratulations to the fine basketball season the Panthers have had this year. They are a super bunch of young men and deserve all the praise we can give them.

And remember to smile - because God Loves You!

EASTLAND CO. STOCK SHOW NEWS

The 4-H Adult Leaders Association is in charge of the concession stand at the Eastland County Stock Show, March 18th, 19th and 20th. This is the Adult Leader's main money making project and if you have a child in 4-H you need to actively participate. Remember that all of this money goes to sponsoring 4-H's to County Camp, District and State events, County Awards Banquet and other 4-H events.

Each club is responsible for two different 3 1/2 hour shifts so that working parents can show their support on the evening or Saturday shifts. The work schedule is as follows: THURSDAY - 9:00 to 12:30 - Eastland; 12:30 to 7:30 - Gorman (6-8 workers). FRIDAY 8:00 to 11:30 - Nimrod and Carbon; 11:30 to 3:00 - Rising Star and Cisco Country Kids; 3:00 to 6:30 - Ranger and Cisco - Good Times Gang; 6:30 to 9:30 - Carbon and Eastland. SATURDAY - 8:00 to 11:00 - Cisco - Good Time Gang and Rising Star; 11:00 to 2:00 - Cisco County Kids and Nimrod.

Each club needs to provide three to four adults for each shift. 4-H's from each club will be needed to operate the coke dispenser. Remember that each 4-H family is asked to bring baked goods to sell at the concession stand.

The Adults Leaders would like to thank Mrs. Stansell for all her help in ordering the food and providing us with a place to store the frozen goods.

4-H is strictly supported by volunteer work, so let's all pitch in and work together to support 4-H.

The 4-H Adult Leaders Association will meet Monday, March 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Production Credit Association meeting room. The main topics of discussion will be the County Livestock Show and the new 4-H rifle club. All 4-H parents are encouraged to attend.

Cisco Junior College is now accepting applications for the August 1982 Licensed Vocational Nursing program at the main campus in Cisco.

In accord with certification requirements, applicants must make application in advance and pass a pre-entrance physical and examination. Pre-testing for the class to begin in August will be held in March.

The twelve month program will hold classes on the campus with clinical work in the E. L. Graham Memorial Hospital in Cisco and the Eastland Memorial Hospital in Eastland on a rotating basis.

Satisfactory completing of the program entitles the student to a certificate from the college, and qualifies him/her to take the State Board of Vocational Nurse Examiner's examination.

A prospective student must be at least 17 years of age and must be in good physical and mental health. Students must be high school graduates or have successfully taken the GED examination establishing high school equivalency. The GED examination is given on the CJC main campus in Cisco.

For America's Forests

Facts From the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Forest Service

The Wood Basket Of America

Do you know where our wood comes from? If you're like most Americans, you might have guessed the Pacific Northwest.

In fact, that area is declining as a tree producer. Roughly equal shares of the 1976 softwood supply, used mostly in building houses, came from the Pacific Coast and the South, with smaller amounts from the North and the Rocky Mountains.

A rise of nearly 50 percent is predicted in softwoods from the South in the next 50 years—an estimated six billion cubic feet per year. In contrast, supplies from the Pacific will drop to around three and a half billion by the turn of the century.

The major cause of this decline is the inability of the forest industry lands in the West to maintain current cut levels. The inventory of older trees, most easily converted into lumber and plywood, is being rapidly depleted and new growth will not be adequate to offset the loss in the short run. At the same time, large areas on National Forest lands and those of other public ownership have been taken out of commercial timber production for use as wilderness and parks. It is expected that some additional commercial timberland will be withdrawn for these non-commercial purposes in the future. The result will be a substantial shift in economy for timber producing areas—a boom for the South—with its good tree-growing conditions and large private ownership—and a drop for the West—with its large publicly-owned forests. Despite these geographic shifts in timber supply

America will need more wood than ever in the years to come. Some of it will come from foreign countries, an increasing amount from our own Southern states.

newsworthy trends

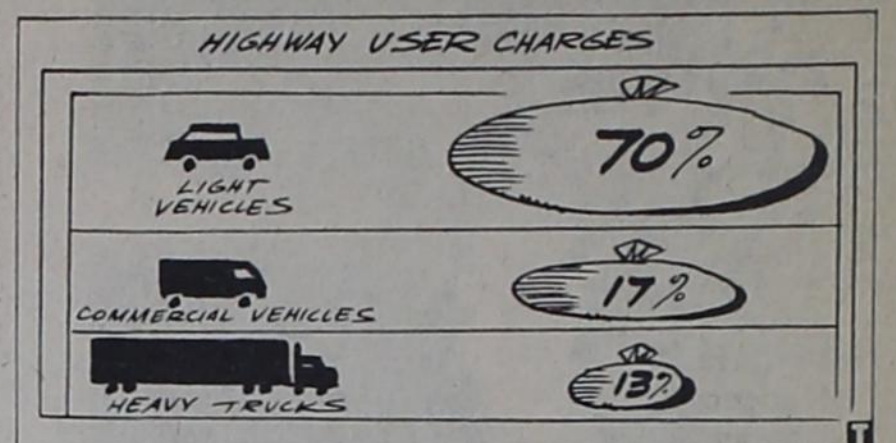

Some experts may have a way to avert a trend toward deterioration in our roads. America's roads are deteriorating fast. Almost three-fourths—some 28,000 miles—of the 40,000 mile Interstate Highway System is already obsolete by modern road standards. The government says it will cost billions to fix.

The pavement is deteriorating faster than originally expected, because when most of our roads were built, trucks seldom exceeded 50,000 pounds.

Now, trucks weigh as much as 80,000 pounds. A typical vehicle carrying that additional 30,000 pounds of load spread over the same number of axles causes an astounding 500 percent increase in the damage per mile.

A study conducted by the State of Oregon has determined that 80 percent of all highway deterioration is directly attributable to heavy trucks.

As either the weight of a vehicle or the total miles it travels rises, total road damages increase, too.

Unfortunately, the user charges assessed on large trucks do not increase in proportion to the damage done by the increased weight and mileage.

There are two basic ways of raising money for roads: fuel taxes and user charges. Fuel taxes don't readily affect large trucks in the proper proportion, because 50,000 pound trucks use almost the same fuel as 80,000 pound trucks. Registration fees don't vary with the number of miles traveled.

The result is that lighter vehicles—automobiles and light trucks—pay about 70 percent of all user charges, with commercial vehicles paying the rest. Nationwide, heavy trucks—trucks in excess of 50,000 pounds—pay only 13 percent of all highway user charges. The transportation experts at the Association of American Railroads, where members have a competitive stake in this issue, suggest that a tax based on both weight and distance, would be the answer. The recent decision by the Arizona legislature to enact such a weight-distance tax suggests an endorsement of the approach as the best way to finance road repair.

sources, the nation need not suffer economically if it begins taking steps now. A Forest Service study has shown we can grow more trees in all our forests and we can make better use of the wood we have. The answer, it says, is more efficient management of forest land and wood products.

LION news and notes

Armadillos Join Lions to Fight Leprosy

Once mainly the subject of jokes and zoological curiosity, armadillos have recently joined with a group of Texas Lions in the search for a cure to one of the world's most misunderstood and feared diseases: leprosy. The Lions of the Ballinger Noon Lions Club have teamed with Sam Lewis, a local armadillo enthusiast, to provide the armor-clad critters for research at the University of Hawaii. Lewis, who raises the animals and trains them to eat in captivity, gives them to the Ballinger Lions, who then arrange for their shipment to Hawaii.

After being alerted to the need for armadillos by a fellow-Lion from Hawaii, the Texas Lions contacted Lewis and the partnership was formed.

Researchers say that armadillos—common in West Texas and other parts of the Southern United States—have a natural characteristic that makes them ideal for leprosy research: a lower than normal body temperature that enables them to carry the disease and develop antibodies. Researchers hope to extract the anti-bodies and develop a vaccine. The World Health Organization estimates that a million new cases of leprosy occur each year. The disease can be found in 90 countries, and in 70 is a major health problem.

In addition to supplying armadillos, Lions have given a research grant to Johns Hopkins University through the Lions Clubs International Foundation. And Japanese Lions have built and equipped a modern hospital in Agra, India to aid those already stricken by leprosy.

Other Lions' programs in developing countries include provision of pure water supplies, nutrition programs, health screenings, and vocational training.

Water spiders live underwater in airtight nests. There they eat, molt and raise families.

SENIOR CITIZENS NEWS

Hil! I am starting this note on Saturday morning. It was a nice summer week, then old man winter crept in with a windy blast with a little sleet, snow and rain.

In the winter of 1900, Dad owned a sow and she found about 10 pigs. When the pigs were about a month old they began to disappear one each night. Dad thought someone was stealing them. Then he saw fresh blood on the ground. So he decided a bob cat was getting them. Dad and two others were clearing some ground. That night when they quit they sharpened the axes. Two double bits and a poll ax. We were at the well watching and heard a pig squeal. Dad grabbed an ax, thinking he had the single bit. So he ran up beside the sow and was going to hit her. He had the double bit and cut just behind her ear clear thru to the throat. So grandad and all made a fire and cleaned her. The pig died.

This is the final episode I will tell of happenings at granddads. One night grandma skimmed the cream off clabber and put clabber in slop bucket. After supper she put some biscuits in the bucket and pushed them down. John Scott, about 12, had the measles and they would not "break out". So he was being starved. That night grandma yelled "John, what are you doing." It made me wake up. John told her those biscuits were sure good and the next morning he looked like a guinea egg. I was sleeping with him so I could get the measles before school days. I took the measles just after Dad married Sally Layton. We moved just above Shinoak Springs. I remember getting on a pallet under the porch as it was cool there.

We moved to Staff in January, 1906. Stayed there 5 years. I bought the place from Scott heirs in 1921. We moved to Flatwood in January of 1912.

I started to school at Shortsville and at recess Clifton Horn said "this school is not for old folks." I told him I was 15 years old and 6 ft. tall and weighed 150 pounds. Then the third day he asked me how I knew all the answers in class and I told him concentration and retaining what you read. His brother, Roy, and I were the same age. Roy and I always were on the same side in spelling matches, debate and baseball. Clifton could throw an out drop that would fool many. One day I saw the catcher signal an out drop so I placed myself in position to hit a home run. They changed signals for an "in". So I just stood there and it hit me under the heart. I fell and for a long time I was out. Getting even I guess.

In the 1913-14 winter I was off at school. In January, 1914 a man came to school after me. Told me my Dad was hurt bad and they wanted me to come to Eastland and drive the team home. He came to get a load of corn. The mules were 2 and 3 years old. Had never seen a train. Dad had his feet on the dashboard. He was sitting in the spring seat. He fell just as the right front wheel hung on a sapling. The mules just went out of traces and the tongue was over his heart and a sapling at his back. It broke four ribs. Dr. Johnson carried him home in a car.

When they came for me they said I did not have time to go get more clothes.

When I arrived in Eastland there was three men handling our team. The mules mouths were bleeding. They had bits wrapped with baling wire and a rope to each mules bit. The first thing I did was take the wires off bits and rope. I told them I was not afraid of them. There were 10 wagons headed to Flatwood. I told them to look

ACTIVITY DIRECTOR

We are truly hoping this Thursday night is a beautiful night for lots of reasons, but one especially and that is, it is Singing night in case you've forgotten and these people here who are your friends and loved one's need you and want you very much.

We had Singing last week in spite of the weather and we will have Singing again this week and every Thursday night at 7 P.M. Everyone in the north. A blue norther was coming and my clothes were thin. I sat in the seat and buried my feet to brace myself. I told them the mules wanted to run and I was ready for them to go. After we crossed the Leon I pulled to one side and yelled "I am going home". So they got all the running they wanted. I drove in the barn just as the norther hit. I pulled gear off and told Arthur to let them drink some and wallow, then drive them in their stalls. I went in to see Dad. He was very sore. I changed my clothes and went out and unloaded corn and rubbed shoulders of mules down. Looked half a mile west and saw two men walking and driving their teams. It was freezing then. I went down to see Ed Scott to come and work for a month.

Do you know that a horse gets up with his front feet? A cow by the back feet.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to the family of Mrs. Sam Yancey. Also Earl Files family. May you look to the master in your time of mourning.
