NUMBER 25

- J -

It seems as though Summer Time has finally arrived in our neck of the woods. The temperature has really been soaring the past several days and the humidity has been overwhelming at times. And the weather man doesn't promise any relief in the near future. The big high pressure area that has been controlling our weather just seems to be sitting there and won't move. Ugh!!!

- J -

The work on the remodeling of the downtown buildings continues as workers fight the heat and humidity to get the work done. The remodeling on the buildings to house the new restaurant and dining rooms is progressing, but not as fast as first anticipated. With problems arising in remodeling old buildings, the completion time for the new restaurant has been delayed some. Workers are really working hard to get the job finished.

Other remodeling projects are underway and are coming along.

- J -

Have you noticed the appearance of the Gorman Oaklawn Cemeteries? It looks great out there with everything mowed and trimmed. Danny and Charlie Carruth are doing a fantastic job of keeping the cemeteries looking great. We really appreciate the Gorman Oaklawn Cemetery Association for the outstanding job they are doing to keep the cemeteries looking so good. I know it's not said often, but you are doing a great service for this community folks and we want to let you know we appreciate you.

- J -

Dear Joe

I am sending payment for renewal to the Progress for me and my sister. Dorothy Alsup of Princeton, La. We both look forward to it every week.

Thanks,
Georgie (Mauney) Hutson

Things are really brightening up in our town with all the renovating and dressing up. It's great to see folks so excited about the future of our town. Keep up the great work and continue with the great "shot in the arm" for our town and it's citizens.

And remember to smile - because God Loves You !!!

God's Garden

Ruby Rose
July 31, 1900
November 15, 1994

God looked around His garden and found an empty place. He then looked down upon the earth, and saw your tired face. He put his arms around you and lifted you to rest. God's garden must be beautiful. He always takes the best. He knew you were suffering. He knew you were in pain. He knew that you would never get well on earth again. He saw the road was getting rough, and the hills were hard to climb. He closed your weary eyelids and whispered, peace, be thine. It broke our hearts to lose you, but you didn't go alone. Part of us went with you, The day God called you home.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor

I'm researching the Fisher family. Martha Fisher Richardson was a half sister to my great grandfather, A.J. Fisher. She was married in 1884 in Coryell Co. to Jacob Smith Richardson and had the following children: Charles Allen, Otis Nash and a daughter Verdis N. who died in 1913 and is buried by her mother Martha F. Richardson in the Gorman Cemetery. Martha died in 1905. Her husband died in 1939 in Eastland Co. but he isn't buried by her. I suspect he remarried as Martha was only 36 when she died. If anyone living in the Gorman area knew anything about these families I would really appreciate their help.

Perhaps there are some descendants of Richardson's still living in the area.

Cattle Raisers Told To Expect Major Changes

Cattle producers attending Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association's summer board of directors meeting were told to expect major changes from the current session of Congress and from effects of the North American Free Trade Agreement. More than 250 TSCRA board members, committee members, spouses and guests attended the two-day meeting July 7-8 at the YO Ranch Holiday Inn in Kerrville, Texas. The group was also warned about rabies epidemics approaching metropolitan areas and told that "complete eradication of the imported fire ant is highly unlikely, if not impossible."

Tim Lindstrom, an attorney with the Piedmont Environmental Council in Charlottesville, Va., described the American Farm and Ranch Protection Act of 1995 (S 910 and H.R. 864) and defined conservation easements. TSCRA members adopted a resolution opposing conservation easements at their annual convention in March.

"The impact of the federal estate tax on rural families is unique in the entire tax code," Lindstrom said. "The only asset valued by the code differently from its actual use is rural land, which is often taxed at values representing its potential for development rather than the rural use to which it is actually being put by the owner," he explained.

Five Texas legislators were recognized by TSCRA for their efforts on private property issues during the recently completed Texas legislative session. TSCRA President Chaunce Thompson praised Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo; Sen. Bill Sims, D-Paint Rock; Rep. Bob Turner, D-Voss; Rep. Susan Combs, R-Austin; and Rep. Harvey Hilderbran, R-Kerrville, for their contributions. Issues impacting cattle raisers that are being debated at the national level were described by Greg Ruehle, director of private lands, water and environment for the National Cattlemen's Association. He told TSCRA members that "the beef industry has an opportunity to make some major changes during the current session of Congress, particularly with the reauthorization of the clean Water and Endangered Species acts."

Ruehle said that the 104th Congress has been busy reforming several areas of federal law, noting that the House has passed property rights legislation and regulatory reform measures and has reauthorized the Clean Water Act. In the Senate bills have been introduced to reform the Endangered Species and wetlands laws, as well as a comprehensive property rights bill.

Debate will also be heard on reauthorization of the Farm Bill. Ruehle told the cattle producers that "Congressional efforts to balance the federal budget are likely to have significant impacts on the 1995 Farm Bill, especially with regard to grain programs."

Information regarding trade with Mexico also commanded a lot of attention from TSCRA members concerned about a depressed cattle market. Dr. Raymond E. Dietrich, with the department of agricultural economics at Texas A & M University in College Station, Texas, reported on the results of a study to analyze the impact of the North American Free Trade Agreement on the competitiveness of beef fabrication, packaging and trade among 41 regions in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Dietrich said, "The study shows that the North American beef industry can anticipate major changes in regional competitive position, in location of optimal markets, least-cost distribution routes, and volumes of beef merchandized by fabrication/packaging systems as the beef industry adjusts to NAFTA and as economic, production and demographic factors undergo change."

The study revealed that the Texas-Oklahoma Panhandle and Colorado enjoy a location advantage for shipping boxed beef to Mexico and will likely enjoy the most immediate benefits from NAFTA, Dietrich said.

Alberta, Canada, which is located substantially closer to the deficit U.S. West Coast beef market, will be come a major competitor for the West Coast beef market, he added. Prior to NAFTA that market was supplied primarily by U.S. beef producers located in Colorado, nearby western states and the Texas-Oklahoma Panhandle, he explained.

Dr. Terry Beals, executive director of the Texas Animal Health Commission, reported on the June 28th public forum on Tuberculosis/Bruceellosis Programs with Mexico. He said, "TAHC will hold a meeting Aug. 30 to decide which Mexican states will be eligible to ship cattle into Texas after Sept. 1."

"The decision will be based upon the report of the binational assessment team headed by Dr. Bill Brown, TAHC's binational liaison, and Dr. Cindy Gaborick from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service," Beals said.

The team checked Mexican states to make sure that working groups have been organized among cattle producers, state and federal government, and that legal authority is in place to quarantine infected herds and enforce tuberculosis health standards.

The cattle producers were also warned that two ongoing rabies epidemics (epidemics among animals) which were declared a state health emergency in 1994 are now approaching large metropolitan areas and could pose a threat to humans if preventive steps are not taken.

Dr. Keith Clark of the Texas Department of Health said that an epizootic of canine rabies which began in in Starr and Hidalgo counties in extreme South Texas in 1988 has steadily moved northward, and now involves 18 counties. During the past seven years 216 dogs, 270 coyotes, 15 cats, 15 raccoons, seven cows, three bobcats, three horses, one goat and one skunk have been confirmed positive for canine rabies.

An epizootic of gray fox rabies which began in Sutton County in 1988, rapidly spread to 22 counties with 260 cases confirmed through 1993. There was a dramatic upsurge in 1994, with 13 additional counties becoming involved and 264 rabies cases being recorded.

Clark advised that more domestic animals should be vaccinated to help provide a barrier between rabid wild animals and humans.

The seemingly unstoppable spread of the imported fire ant is another major concern for cattle raisers, who were told that not only is eradication of imported fire ants "highly unlikely, if not impossible," but that effective chemical control is "not likely in the near future."

Dr. Lloyd W. Morrison with the "Fire Ant Lab" at Breckenridge Field Laboratory at the University of Texas at Austin said that they are looking instead for "highly species-specific biological control agents (i.e. other organisms which are natural enemies of the imported fire ant)."

Morrison said that since its introduction into the United States from South America some six decades ago, the imported fire ant has spread across approximately 250 million acres in the southeastern and south central United States, and now occupies approximately half of Texas.

"Despite millions of dollars spent on the development and application of chemicals, the imported fire ants persists and continues to spread westward over the state," Morrison said.

"Although pesticides can effectively control the imported fire ant over small areas (i.e. one's back yard), it is not cost-effective to apply pesticides over larger areas (i.e. range lands and wild lands)," he explained. "And once pesticide application is discontinued, imported fire ants usually return in greater numbers than before," he added.

The Brackenridge Lab is currently studying the phorid fly (flies of the genus Pseudacteon, family Phoridae), which are natural predators of fire ants in South America.

"Ultimately, if our research on phorids reveals them to be as effective biological control agents as they currently appear to be, we intend to mass-rear selected species in our greenhouse and release them over large areas for the purpose of controlling the imported

MAMMOGRAPHY CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE!!

If you are a healthy woman over 40 who never has had a mammogram, the American Cancer Society recommends that you have this simple life-saving procedure now. Since one woman in 10 develops breast cancer at some point in her lifetime, the urgency is real.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation (usually comparable to dental x-rays) and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination. These images are then interpreted by a Board Certified Radiologist, and a report is sent to your own doctor. It takes only a few minutes, and can detect incipient breast cancer as small as the period at the end of this sentence.

Early detection (18 months sooner than a lump can be felt) not only permits treatment before the problem becomes serious, but the cure rate is over 90 percent. Mammography cannot only save your life, but help you avoid the need for disfiguring surgery, too.

You don't need to have been a previous patient of ours to receive this screening, but you do need to make an appointment at a time convenient to you.

Sharp Announces Taxpayer Seminar For Abilene Area

Since taxpayers can't just pick up and come to Austin whenever they need assistance we'll hold a free taxpayer seminar in the Abilene area on Thursday, July 13, 1995," State Comptroller John Sharp announced today.

The seminar will be held at 1290 S. Willis, Suite 202 from 3:00 P.M. to 4:30 P.M. Bob Jones and Mike Brady from the Comptroller's Abilene field office will be available to meet and discuss any questions pertaining to state taxes.

Future Social Security Financing

If you've been reading the news accounts of future financing problems for Social Security, you've probably read that a major reason is the retirement of the "baby boom" generation. The large number of boomers retiring in the next century will mean that each worker will have to support more people on Social Security. That much is true - but there's more to it than that.

In their 1995 report, the trustees of the Social Security trust funds project that today's ratio of workers-to-beneficiaries -- 3.3 workers for each beneficiary -- will change by the year 2030 to 2 workers for each beneficiary. That spells higher costs for Social Security down the road -- costs that will be borne by tomorrow's workers.

But the trustees also point to a counter-effect: If lower birth rates since the baby boom indicate that the relative number of older people to younger people is increasing, should't we also consider society's overall dependency costs, including both the costs of the elderly and of raising children? The trustees' projections indicate the answer is "yes".

Let's look at the numbers. The trustees project that the ratio of persons 65 and over to persons 20-64 will increase from about 21 per hundred in 1995 to 35 per hundred in 2030, an increase of 65 per cent. If you add the number of children under age 20 to the number of aged persons, the total dependency ratio increases from about 71 dependents per hundred to 79 dependents per hundred, an increase of only 11 per cent. By 2070, ratios are projected to be 41 per hundred for the aged, and 82 per hundred for all dependents.

That might seem like a lot of dependents but it's less than the record high of 95 dependents per 100 working-age people in 1965 the height of the baby boom. What this means for future taxpayers is that our costs of raising children, such as school tax costs and child welfare costs, will decline as a percent of all dependency costs from that 1965 high.

This broader perspective of society's costs of maintaining both our children and our elderly might give us more confidence about our future ability to pay our national bills than does the narrower question of Social Security costs alone, the view we're used to seeing in news media. As one economist put it: "If we could afford to live through the childhood of the baby-boom generation, we can afford to live through their retirement."

That said, the fact remains that Social Security does face long-range financing problems. The Social Security trustees recommended that long range deficits in both the retirement and disability trust funds should be addressed. They said that the Advisory Council on Social Security should conduct an extensive review of financing issues and made recommendations to restore the trust funds to fiscal soundness. The Council is at work on those issues now and will make its report later this year.

State Board Of Education Apply's For Federal Funds

On July 7, the State Board of Education voted to apply for Federal funding under the controversial Goals 2000: Educate America Act, according to State Board member Richard Watson of Gorman.

Goals 2000, called by some Congressmen "a Federal takeover of education," requires participating states to submit a state education improvement plan to the Federal Secretary of Education. If the Texas plan called Academics 2000 is acceptable to the Secretary, Texas may receive approximately $27 million for which local school districts may apply in competitive sub-grants.

"In my opinion, Goals 2000 oversteps the bounds of jurisdiction of the Federal government," Watson stated. "Education is not among the enumerated powers assigned to the Federal government by the Constitution, and is, according to the Tenth Amendment, reserved to the states and to the people. Never before has the State of Texas had to submit 'lesson plans' to the Federal government for approval.

"Ironically on the same day that the State Board in Texas voted to apply for Goals 2000 money, the California Assembly (legislature) voted to REJECT Goals 2000 funds for their state. It is regrettable that Texas did not join California in sending a message that the two largest states will make our own decisions and not have educational standards dictated to us from Washington."

The fact will one day flower into a truth.

Save Time At S.S. Call Ahead And Make Appt.

With today's hectic lifestyles, it seems everyone is in a hurry. Whether visiting a doctor or conducting personal matters, people don't want to sit and wait.

"We understand that you don't have a lot of time to take care of your Social Security business," reports Ken Hargis, manager of the Abilene district office. "That's why we ask you to call and make an appointment so you will be waited on within 10 minutes of your scheduled time."

Hargis said to make an appointment, call Social Security's toll-free number 1-800-772-1213. An SSA representative will ask you a few questions. Depending on the reason for your call, the representative may be able to take care of your business immediately and save you a trip. For example, you can change your address or sign up for direct deposit by telephone.

"If you still need an appointment, the representative will ask for your name, Social Security number, address, telephone number and other basic information we need to prepare for your appointment," Hargis said.

You can choose an appointment by telephone or in person at the Social Security office or a contact station. The SSA representative will help you select a convenient date and time.

"If you make an appointment to file a claim for benefits at least seven days in advance, we will send you a confirmation letter," Hargis state. "The letter will include the time of your appointment and list the documents you will need to bring with you, such as a birth certificate or marriage license."

"If you selected a telephone appointment, you can mail the necessary documents to us when you return your application. We'll return the documents as soon as we finish reviewing them."

Center Point-Brown Cemetery is now taking donations to help care for the cemetery for the coming summer. Those of you which make donations each year we thank you, but you people that have love ones buried here and never donate anything, we need your help.

Vacation Health And Safety Smarts

(NAPS)—As you head out to enjoy your summer vacation, keep these health and safety tips in mind to help make the most of your fun in the sun.

- Driving to your favorite vacation spot? For safety's sake, buckle kids in belts or car seats. Avoid roadside trouble by having detailed directions prepared before you leave and by keeping car doors locked. If renting a car, get one that's not identified as a rental.

- Kids in day camp share toys and playground equipment that may expose them to germs that cause certain childhood diseases, such as the common cold and infectious diarrhea. To help prevent germs from spreading in your house when kids come home, encourage thorough hand washing and regularly disinfect commonly touched surfaces with LYSOL® Disinfectant Spray.

- If hiking, never hike alone. Always tell someone where you're going and when you'll be back, and stick to marked trails. Wear bright colors and don't hike after dark. Remember to take basic provisions, including a hat, food, water, sunscreen and an emergency whistle.

- Wherever you travel, summer's humid weather can increase the chance of having mold and mildew in damp spots, including the bathtub, shower curtain, and basement. As a quick and easy remedy, clean surfaces and use LYSOL® Disinfectant Spray regularly to kill mold and mildew.

- Make fitness a part of your vacation routine. Include appropriate warm-up and cool-down time, and don't over exert yourself. Drink plenty of fluids to avoid dehydration.
