PHONES NEEDED.

More telephone lines connecting the cities and towns of Eastland county with the rural communities is one of the crying needs at this time. The fact that there is a splendid highway system connecting all parts of the county does not eliminate the need of telephone connections. Neither the man in the country nor the man in town can afford to drive several miles every time he wants information or some little item of merchandise that he could order over the telephone and have his merchant send it out to him.

The telephone companies and the chambers of commerce in the various towns of the county are willing to co-operate with the people in the rural communities in building rural telephone lines, so if the rural residents want these conveniences it behooves them to do what they can to assist in the matter.

Judge Jones May Run For County Attorney

Judge Joe H. Jones of Eastland, former judge of the Eastland county court at law, will, in all probability, be a candidate at the coming democratic primaries for county attorney.

"I have been urged by many citizens from over the county to enter the race for county attorney and have promised them that I would do so. I shall not make a formal announcement until late, however," Judge Jones said.

RANGER C. C. WILL CONSIDER PAVING EASTLAND HILL

Organization Also Contemplates Employing Vocationalist-Agriculturist For School

The first definite action on paving the stretch of rock and dirt road that intervenes between the Ranger-Breckenridge highway and Main street, Ranger, will be instigated Monday night at a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

At that time W. E. Burke, who is paving the streets recently designated by the city commission, will submit estimates of the cost of paving the stretch of road that has been the base of quite a bit of criticism towards Ranger ever since the highway was opened.

The road will be paved in accordance with the other streets that are now under construction. Paving will start at Sue street and go up Eastland hill and join the highway at the city limits. The Eastland hill portion of the road has been in almost impassable condition for many months, due to washing and the number of rocks that just out of the road.

The project will in all probability be taken up with the city commissioners at their regular meeting Tuesday night. Definite action, however, will be taken at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors tomorrow night.

It is the opinion of several of the directors that the time to pave the stretch is now, since Burke already has his machinery in the city due to the fact that he is paving the other streets. In addition to the important project of finishing the Breckenridge highway, the directors will have two other major problems to work out.

A president of the Chamber of Commerce will be elected at the meeting to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Marvin Collie.

The directors will also discuss the installation of a vocational agriculturist in Ranger.

The government pays one-half of the wages of a city agriculturist and the state also gives substantial aid. The remainder of the salary would have to be divided between the school and the city.

The agriculturist, who must be a graduate of an agricultural school, in reality, takes the place of the county agent in the towns where the county agent does not maintain headquarters. He divides half of his time with the high school, teaching there one-half of the day, and the remainder of the time he gives to the Chamber of Commerce to put forward its agricultural projects.

One and one-half credits are given by the universities for work done along this line in high school.

In all probability the directors will engage a man to start work in Ranger. Cisco already has a vocational agriculturist at work and Eastland has the advantage of having the county agent's headquarters in the city.

Seiberling Fight To Regain Fortune Is Interesting Story

Broke at 39, after he had built up a fortune, and again broke at 61 when a second fortune was swept away in the rubber business, but a millionaire at 69 when he paid off his debts, amounting to more than $5,000,000, in cold cash, is the history of F. A. Seiberling, manufacturer of Seiberling tires sold in the Eastland and Ranger territory by the Green Filling station at Eastland, owned and operated by James Horton. Seiberling's fight to regain control of his fortune lost when big rubber manufacturing concerns in which he was interested passed from his control to that of Wall street bankers, is one of the greatest dramas in American finance. This fight came to a close when Seiberling stacked more than $5,000,000 in cash on the table in his office in Akron, Ohio, and from this huge pile of money paid his creditors off. Edgar B. Davis, developer of the Luling, Texas, oil fields, and a close personal and business friend of Seiberling, played a big part in Seiberling's fight to regain his lost fortune.

Paving Contractor Has Torches Stolen

W. E. Burke, Ranger paving contractor, is having trouble that doesn't pertain to getting paving contracts signed by property owners. He can't keep any red torches on the streets on which he is working. He has had six of the torches stolen in the last three nights and is afraid to put any more out. Burke stated that the torches are worthless and that they can be used for only one thing and that is to act as danger signs for streets that are being worked on. He believes that youths are stealing the torches.

"Tomorrow" and "When I Find It Convenient" are too mighty poor days on which to an important job.

Oakland And Pontiac Introduce New Idea For Supplying Fuel

Continuing the policy of keeping its engines up to the latest developments in engineering, the Oakland Motor Car company this year has equipped the new series Pontiac six with the pump-feed type of fuel supply. This with the G. M. R. cylinder-head, a new carburetor and improved manifold, brings to the Pontiac six new advantages in economy, reliability and performance.

Flooding of the engine is guarded against, fuel supply is conserved and easy starting is insured. Maximum power with a high degree of economy has been worked out to bring to the motor car owner that enviable combination—economical and dependable transportation.

Exactly the amount of gasoline needed is provided by the new fuel pump, which is driven directly from the cam shaft. Thus, when the starter turns over the motor, just the required amount of gasoline is forced into the carburetor. Then in the carburetor an ingenious device automatically shuts off the gasoline when the proper quantity has been injected, preventing flooding. The gasoline pump is of exactly the same type as was introduced by the Oakland all-American six.

The carburetor is of an entirely new vertical type, built especially for the Pontiac six, and embodies two distinctive features—the venturi choke and the internal economizer. The venturi-choke develops high velocity at the carburetor nozzle, making starting easy and reducing crank case dilution. By means of a new interconnection between the choke and throttle levers the speed of the motor is raised automatically when the motor is started to an idling speed corresponding to a road speed of 15 miles an hour. The internal economizer, by means of a sleeve valve inside of the carburetor and operated by the throttle valve, gives a lean mixture at average driving speeds and increases the mixture as the foot throttle is depressed.

Club Women Protest Meeting In Cisco

At a meeting of Eastland county club women held Saturday morning at the high school auditorium, Cisco, a resolution of protest of the removal of Mrs. J. U. Fields as Texas Biennial chairman was passed.

Mrs. Day Mills, member of the general federation board and the biennial board of Texas, who is visiting a number of towns in West Texas, in the interest of the removal of Mrs. Fields, was the principal speaker of the session. Mrs. Mills went clearly into all the phases of the action that brought the rift in club circles, the removal of Mrs. Fields.

Mrs. C. H. Fee, Cisco, and Mrs. McGlamery of Gorman, were appointed by the chairman to draw up the resolution voted and forward same, as the protest of the assemblage to the general federation board.

Mrs. Fields was asked for her resignation several weeks ago at a meeting of the board of directors of the general federation held in Washington.

It's possible to live very economically in Austria. A pugnacious husband is required by court to pay only fifty cents for the privilege of beating his wife, and that's cheap enough for any reasonable man.

COL. ROBT. STEWART BEGAN AS REPORTER

By NEA Service. WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Six years ago, when Robert W. Stewart was basking in the acclaim that had been accorded his rise from a penniless newspaper reporter to chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, someone asked for his formula for success.

"It's up to you," replied Stewart. "You can go just as far as your ambitions will carry you. Ignore any code which condemns the making of money, or teaches that wealth is a disgrace, that success is a sin.

"That is not idealism, but plain, arrogant nonsense." In Oil Scandal Now. Today Stewart awaits possible punishment for his refusal to tell a senate committee what he might know about the alleged profit-taking in a deal with the now infamous and defunct Continental Trading Co. (Ltd.) of Canada.

"Colonel Bob" followed his formula for success not only by making money for himself, but by materially aiding the thousands of employees of his company. For years he has been identified as one of the staunchest advocates of "democracy and humanity in industry."

Gave Them Representation. He was one of the first executives in industry to introduce an employees' representation plan. All the workers were made members of councils; there were higher councils attended by the delegates they chose; at still higher councils, employers and workers were equally represented.

A stock-selling campaign was put on among the stockholders by Stewart. He increased the list of stockholders from 4,600 to more than 12 times that number. He made it possible for the $14-a-week office boy to purchase several shares.

Stewart used to take his directors to the 666 is a prescription for Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria. It kills the germs.

Picture Story of His Rise From Farmer-Boy to Millionaire

Man Whom Senate Wants to Jail Had Humble Beginning But Now Business Leader And Millionaire

with him on tours of the states where the company operated. At meetings of employees, he would inquire: "Are there any tank-wagon drivers here? If there are, stand up."

There always were tank-wagon drivers there, so they would stand, looking sheepish. "Just wanted you to meet T. J. Thompson, your general manager," Stewart would say. "He used to drive a tank-wagon 40 years ago."

"Now, are there any mechanics' helpers here?"—and Stewart would introduce a director who used to be a mechanic's helper. It was all very stimulating to the imaginations and ambitions of the workers.

They liked Colonel Bob's methods, and they liked Colonel Bob. They enjoyed the idea of being stockholders and gloried in the solemn council meetings which his humanitarian genius had created.

For some reason yet unsolved they have never filed an accounting suit to determine what became of the much discussed $3,080,000 in Liberty bonds. But perhaps their restraint may be interpreted as a symbol of loyalty to the "big boss," who actually has bettered their financial condition.

Colonel Bob, of course, never was a tank-wagon driver or a mechanic's helper, but his rise was no less meteoric than if he had been. He was born on a farm near Cedar Rapids, Ia., in 1867. He educated himself mostly by reading and night-time study until he entered Coe college, from which he graduated in 1886.

Worked His Way. Ambitious for more education, he journeyed east and entered the law school of Yale, where he worked his way by reporting for a New Haven newspaper and doing small jobs for a law firm.

"The greatest training school in the world is the newspaper business," said Stewart. "That's where I learned to be persistent—and anyone can be successful if he is only persistent."

Soon after he got his diploma from Yale he read a newspaper story to the effect that the town of Pierre was about to be made the capital of South Dakota. He reasoned that the young capital ought to hold many a money-making opportunity for a bright young lawyer. So he pawned his watch, bought a one-way ticket and landed there without a dime. Stewart stayed in Pierre 17 years. After a struggle, he became a successful attorney, finally a politician. Twice he was state senator from his district, once state's attorney at Pierre and for a time was clerk of the supreme court. He was, of course, a staunch republican.

His first job with the Standard Oil company came when he acted as its counsel in a South Dakota case. Soon afterward began the military career which was to bring him the title of "colonel." He joined Roosevelt's "Rough Riders" in the Spanish-American war, became a major and commanded the troop at San Juan Hill.

After the war he reorganized the South Dakota national guard and was appointed colonel of the fourth regiment. In 1907 came an offer from the Standard Oil company, so he went to Chicago to become its general attorney. Two years later he became general counsel and in that capacity made his first appearance before a senatorial investigating committee.

Recently, under fire of the public lands committee, Stewart was so up-stage with his questioners, so sharp in defining what he considered their legal rights, that he was promptly arrested by an irate senate.

He Made Friends. But in that first investigation, and a second in 1923, he was so earnest in his co-operative testimony, so outspoken in his progressive ideas, that he left Washington a national figure. It is said that in 1918 directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana created the position of chairman of the board of directors just to give Stewart a chance at the executive side of the business. Whatever the circumstances, Stewart got the job and has held it ever since.

In the natural course of his career, Stewart has become a millionaire. Whether any of his wealth originally was part of the $3,080,000 "slush fund" said to have been raised by Harry F. Sinclair, the investigating committee intends to find out.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN WAS SPORTSMAN OF HIS DAY

Students Declare He Bowled With Gusto, Liked Wrestling And Was Extremely Fond Of Races And Cock Fights

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—If the young man of the house spends some of his evenings at the bowling alleys, don't discourage him. He is merely following in one or two of the footsteps of Abraham Lincoln.

Those were the days when Lincoln was only a congressman. He served in the house from 1847 to 1849 and apparently wanted to continue, but there was no overwhelming demand for him in his Illinois district.

While in Washington for those two years, however, he took keen delight in hurling the old cannon ball down the alley and he was fairly good at it, judging from the meager accounts of his prowess now available.

He bowled match games with other members of congress at the alley in James Caspari's hotel, known as the Congress Hall Refectory, on Capitol Square, opposite the house of representatives. The hotel has long ago disappeared and its site is now a part of the capitol grounds.

Always Watched by Crowds.

"He played the game with great gusto," according to the only account of Congressman Lincoln's sporting activities here that this writer can locate. "Whether he won or lost, it was all the same to him. His gaunt figure added to the bystanders' entertainment. When he played a crowd gathered, especially to hear his jokes; some of which were reduced to the appreciation of a mere man."

The records don't seem to disclose whether Lincoln learned to bowl here or at the Illinois state capital while a legislator. Lincoln had prodigious strength and in his early Illinois days was fond of physical recreation of the simpler sort such as wrestling.

"In sports requiring either muscle or skill, he took no little interest," wrote Herndon, his law partner and biographer. "He indulged in all the games of the day, even to a horse race or a cock fight."

Had Faith in His Decisions.

Lincoln's reputation for fairness and ability to enforce his decisions caused him to be selected as umpire when there was argument about the outcome of a cock fight, according to Herndon. Townsman of New Salem looked up to him for his prodigious feats of strength. Once by an arrangement of ropes and straps, harnessed about his hips, he was enabled one day at the mill to astonish a crowd of village celebrities by lifting a box of stones weighing near a thousand pounds.

"There is no fiction either," adds Herndon, "in the story that he once lifted a barrel of whisky from the ground and drank from the bung; but in performing this latter almost incredible feat he did not stand erect and elevate the barrel, but squat ted down and lifted it to his knees."

At his first stump speech, in Pappsville, near Springfield, Ill., a free-for-all fight broke out and when Lincoln noticed one of his friends getting the worst of it, he stepped down and threw the assailant some 12 feet.

Lincoln was a popular congressman here, but he was not regarded as presidential timber. In the Thirtieth congress, through which he served, there were such senatorial giants as Daniel Webster of Massachusetts, John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, Jefferson Davis of Mississippi and Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois. Among his colleagues in the house were Alexander Stephens of Georgia and Andrew Johnson of Tennessee.

Bill Never Reached Floor.

Legislatively, Lincoln's two main distinctions were his bill to abolish slavery in the District of Columbia and his opposition to the Mexican war. However, the bill couldn't be forced onto the floor.

The Lincolns lived at a boarding house very near the capitol, along with several other congressmen. Dr. Samuel C. Bussey, who sat nearly opposite Lincoln at the table, wrote:

"I soon learned to know and admire him for his simple and unostentatious manners, kindheartedness and amusing jokes, anecdotes and witticisms. When about to tell an anecdote during a meal he would lay down his knife and fork, place his elbows on the table, rest his face between his hands and begin with the words, 'that reminds me.' Everybody prepared for the explosions sure to follow. I recall with vivid pleasure the scene of merriment at the dinner after his speech in the house of representatives, occasioned by the descriptions by himself and others of the congressional mess, of the uproar in the house during his delivery."

One Washingtonian used to tell how when Lincoln borrowed some law books from the library of congress, he wrapped them in a bandanna handkerchief and ran a stick through a knot in the handkerchief carrying them away on his shoulder.

No Military Aspirations.

Allen Clark, a Washington lawyer who has studied Lincoln's life here, supposes that Bussey meant the speech Lincoln delivered in July, 1848 against the presidential aspirations of General Cass.

In this speech, during which he ridiculed the general's pretensions to a valiant military record, Lincoln expressed the hope that if the opposition democratic party ever made him a presidential candidate they would "not make fun of me, as they have of General Cass, by attempting to write me into a military hero." Probably no one, including Lincoln, had the slightest idea that he would ever run for the presidency.

Mrs. Chitwood Ends Cooking School, Big Success Women Say

On the closing day of the fifth annual cooking school, which was held all last week at the American Legion hall, under the auspices of the Ranger Times, Mrs. Chitwood the director, told the many women how to prepare the really important element of the meal—biscuits.

She told how to bake the new discovery biscuit, baking powder biscuits, cheese biscuits, butterscotch biscuits and orange biscuits, and she told how to make them correctly.

"The principal requirements in making biscuits, as in the preparation of other foods, is to be sure to use the best ingredients possible and to follow a good recipe in a systematic way. If the recipe is followed carefully and measurements are made accurately, only a little experience is required to produce most excellent ones. Good biscuits, I think, are light and flaky with a crisp brown top and under crust and with a delicious flavor."

Her recipe for the new discovery biscuit is: 2 1/2 cups of flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons shortening, 1 cup slightly sour milk, 4 teaspoons baking powder.

Sift flour once. Then add salt and sift again into a round bottomed bowl. Cut the shortening into the flour with two knives. The mixture should have somewhat the appearance of popcorn grains. Then mix baking powder with buttermilk and cut into flour with two knives. Turn dough onto a well floured board. Pat and roll until three fourths of an inch thick. Cut with a biscuit cutter. Place biscuits close together on a greased baking sheet, brush top if desired, with a pastry brush dipped in a little melted shortening and bake 10 to 12 minutes at 475 degrees.

Mrs. Chitwood also told of the food value of fish and outlined the correct method of preparing the food. She told how to bake, fry and broil the seafood to derive the best flavor and gave a complete list of accompanying dishes.

The school especially from the standpoint of attendance was very successful, the crowds showing an increase daily.

The politician divides men into two classes—members of his own party, and fools.

OPTIMISTIC VIEW TAKEN BY HUDSON AUTO PRESIDENT

An optimistic view of 1928 as an automobile year is expressed by R. B. Jackson, president of the Hudson Motor Car Co., in his remarks to Hudson stockholders which accompanied the annual report. He said, in part: "We are now beginning our 20th year, with our factories well rounded out, both as to personnel and physical equipment. Our dealers throughout the United States have been increased in numbers and strength, affording us one of the best distributing systems in the country. "We have appreciated the value of export business and have persistently developed it for years. Our foreign distributors are well organized and financially capable. To encourage them and at the same time offer our product at competitive prices, we have established assembly plants in several strategic locations. As a result, regardless of the great drive for business, we have maintained our position. During this period, we have increased this export trade from nine to fourteen per cent of our total volume. "It is our belief that 1928, the 20th Hudson year, will bring marked results in our further growth and success. The company's history supports this confidence. "Nineteen years ago the total cash investment of the Hudson Motor Car company was but fifteen thousand dollars. The expansion since then has been entirely through earnings—not a cent has been added from outside sources. "Our operating group has been developed largely from within, is responsible for the company's advancement, and has participated in its results; always proving capable of meeting the emergencies of a fast growing business. This development is bound to continue with the energetic urge represented by the present organization. "In addition to the foregoing healthy expansion from within, so important to any corporate success, we believe our automobile offering to the public this coming year to be of unusual appeal. The 1928 Hudson and Essex models measure, in their present progress of design and manufacturing quality, alongside the growth of the company."

OUT OUR WAY

Ninety-One Year Old Automobile Driver Prefers An Oakland

Ninety-one years old and still driving an automobile! Aiden Ward Chase, a resident of White Pigeon, Mich., who says he will still be driving a car nine years from now when he attains the century mark, is a surprisingly spry and alert exponent of "keeping up with the times." The hand that 80 years ago snapped a bull whip during an ox-team trek from Indiana to Michigan has acquired and retained the art of guiding a motor car in modern traffic. He was 82 years old when he obtained his first driver's license and proudly exhibits the document to any one who may question his age. In the last four years he has driven his Oakland touring car a distance of 13,000 miles. During a recent visit to Detroit he borrowed an All-American Sport Roadster and drove it around for an hour "just to see whether they still make 'em as good as my old car." "When I came to Michigan by ox-team, ten miles a day was good traveling," he said. "Now we toot anybody off the center of the road if they loaf along at ten miles an hour. The modern 'covered wagon' is fine—but for a real 'kick' I like the open cars best. I was brought up on fresh air and I never got over the fresh air habit."

NEW ORLEANS READY TO GREET KING REX

By United Press.
NEW ORLEANS.—Plans for Mardi gras—famous New Orleans carnival season, were taking form gradually as January drew to a close. Preparations already are being made to make this year's celebration one of the most elaborate in the city's history. Several preliminary balls already have been held or are scheduled for the near future. Society of the Crescent City turns out to these to honor the different royal rulers of the carnival organizations. The concluding climax to the his-

Car Hits Man Hole, Woman Is Injured

Mrs. J. T. Pickel, El Reno, Okla., is in the City-County hospital, Ranger, suffering from injuries received Friday night when the car she was driving hit a man-hole just off the pavement on Marston street. She is suffering from a wrenched knee and other bodily injuries. Her husband received slight cuts on the head from flying glass. A three year old baby in the car was uninjured. The man-hole is located on the beginning of the stretch of dirt road that goes past the Presbyterian church. Water has washed the dirt from around the manhole and it sticks up out of the ground about a foot. Mrs. Pickel will probably be released from the hospital Sunday. First sense, then dollars.

Defer Action Until Fort Worth Meeting

BALLINGER.—A trio of Heart of Texas towns, who are members of the West Texas chamber of commerce, have deferred action on a proposal submitted by a committee of Brownwood citizens until after the recommendations of the West Texas chamber of commerce special water rights committee is given February 15. The proposal presented to the towns by Brownwood urges that the proposition offered by the Syndicate Power company be accepted. Brady, Ballinger, and San Angelo are the towns that have refused to act upon the matter until the West Texas chamber of commerce position is clarified and settled at the special session to be held in Fort Worth Monday. Concurrent with this development has been an awakening in the Bronte section where citizens are planning a revival of the old Coke county water project. Bronte will be joined by Winters in seeking to take up the permits that have lapsed for some time.

BRILLIANTLY Different

Dodge Brothers Victory Six is not only a new car but an entirely new and better kind of a car. For the first time in history, body and chassis are a single, integral unit. The wide, deep Victory chassis frame, flush with the body lines, eliminates the body sill and the customary body OVERHANG. Major body parts are reduced from 367 to 8! 175 pounds of useless weight are cast off! The gravity center is radically lowered—without head-room and road clearance unaffacted. The results can not be expressed—they must be experienced. No unpleasant skidding or sidesway at the corners. No back-wheel "chatter" when the Lockheed Hydraulic brakes are quickly applied. A smoothness over cobble roads that you have never imagined possible. A swift car that is safe—a moderate-priced car that is unsurpassed in smartness and individuality.

New Chevrolet Cars Replacing Old Ones At Rental Stations

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 11.—Whole sale replacement of former Chevrolet models with the new 1928 line is now under way by the Hertz Drivarsel corporation, one of the largest fleet users of passenger automobiles in the world, which controls the operation of automobile rental stations in more than 300 representative cities in the United States and Canada, according to advices received here from Shas. W. Litsey, operating vice-president and general manager of the Hertz organization, with headquarters at Chicago.

"Replacement of old models with new ones is a regular periodical event with us, made possible by the extreme popularity of our Chevrolets," said Mr. Litsey. "This means that they are almost constantly on the road, and as a result they pile up a tremendous mileage total at the end of a year. In addition, their low initial cost and economy of operation enable us to pay out in Hertz mileage our full investment within twelve months, despite the fact that our Chevrolet rental rates are lower than on any other make of car in our service."

"During 1928 practically all former Chevrolet models will be replaced with the bigger and better line in order that full advantage of the added features in the new car may be available for Hertz patrons. More than 3,000 Chevrolets are now in use by Hertz stations, and this number will be considerably augmented during the year because of the insistent calls for this make of car."

"We have used Chevrolets in the Hertz organization consistently since our inception. They now make up approximately one-fourth the total number of cars in our service."

"The Hertz stations now have on hand the complete line of Chevrolet passenger models to meet the demands of our customers. The sport cabriolet and the coupe are overwhelming favorites among business and professional people. The rear deck passenger or luggage compartment on this type of car plays a big part in their selection."

"The large types, combining beauty with performance, are in high favor for evening engagements and week end trips, while those who take advantage of our weekly rate plan for extended out of town business or vacation tours select the type best fitted to their needs."

"Our organization has immensely impressed with the many points of advantage of the bigger and better Chevrolet line over the 1927 car, and we feel assured that a substantial growth in our 1928 business will be effected by reason of the country wide enthusiasm which I understand the new car is commanding."

GRAFTS BONE, REPAIRS BROKEN BACK, WALKS

By United Press.
WATERTOWN, N. Y.—A narrow five-inch strip of bone taken from the shin and grafted to the spine has enabled Richard Deveraux, 33, of Pelts Mills, who suffered a broken back, to walk again.

Deveraux fell from the roof of a building here and for several weeks was completely paralyzed below spinal fracture.

Dr. Murray M. Gardner and Dr. Howard N. Cooper removed the piece of shin bone and grafted it to Deveraux's spine. He improved to the extent that the paralysis disappeared and he is able to walk a bit now.

LONDON VETERANS OF CIVIL WAR, THEIR RANKS REDUCED WILL HONOR LINCOLN

(Editor's note: W. Frazier Smith, secretary of the London branch of the American Civil War Veterans, who wrote the following article, is nearly 81 years old. For the past 11 years he has devoted himself entirely to the furthering of the interests of this organization whose membership is rapidly dwindling. Smith is still very active and, despite his advanced age, sat up an entire night to write this article.)

By W. FRAZIER SMITH
Secretary London Branch American Civil War Veterans.
(Written for United Press)

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Tomorrow the little handful of survivors who belong to the London branch of the American Civil War Veterans will celebrate their greatest anniversary of the year.

To our little band the anniversary of the beginning of the Civil War, or its end is just another day in the year, but the birthday of Abraham Lincoln—"dear old Abe"—as we all know him, is different. Since our organization was first formed 18 years ago, we have never failed to gather together on this date to pay homage to his memory. During those 18 years our original 137 members have dwindled to only 11. Two members who were present at last year's celebrations have since died.

Just twice a year the few who are able to get about gather together and salute the flag that is not theirs, but the flag for which they fought. This is on Lincoln's birthday and Dec oration day.

The foundation of our organization was unique, in fact it might be described as a mere chance. The prime mover was the late Ensign John Davis, a London City missionary, who, upon receiving his own pension from the American government, thought of the other comrades who might not have fared so well. Comrade Davis visited many of the poorer lodging-houses along the docks and several poor houses. Gradually he gathered the little band of men together. His little mission hall became the headquarters of the organization and many meetings were held for it can readily be seen that the 18 years' difference in the men's ages between then and now, made it possible for

THE STORY THUS FAR
 It was the jewel case that puzzled Vance. It was found in the apartment not far from the strangled body of Margaret Odell, the beautiful stage star known as the "Canary." The case looked as if someone had first tried to open it with a poker and then had succeeded in opening it with a chisel. Vance, Markham's friend, and a student of crime psychology, thinks it most peculiar.

CHAPTER VI
 Deputy Inspector Conrad Brenner was one of that small army of obscure, but highly capable experts who are connected with the New York police department, and who are constantly being consulted on abstruse technical problems, but whose names and achievements rarely get into the public prints.

His specialty was locks and burglars' tools; and I doubt if, even among those exhaustively painstaking criminologists of the University of Lausanne, there was a more accurate reader of the evidential signs left by the implements of house-breakers. In appearance and bearing he was like a withered little college professor. His black, unpressed suit was old-fashioned in cut; and he wore a very high stiff collar, with a narrow black string tie. His gold-rimmed spectacles were so thick-lensed that the pupils of his eyes gave the impression of acute bedadonna poisoning.

When Heath had spoken to him, he merely stood staring with a sort of detached expectancy; he seemed utterly unaware that there was any one else in the room. The sergeant, evidently familiar with the little man's idiosyncrasies of manner, did not wait for a response, but started at once for the bedroom.

"This way, please, Professor," he directed, enjoining, pointing to the dressing table and picking up the jewel case. "Take a squint at this, and tell me what you see."

There appeared the impression of a human hand distinctly registered in saffron. taking the jewel case, went silently to the window and began to examine it. Vance, whose interest seemed suddenly to be reawakened, came forward and stood watching him.

"For fully five minutes the little expert inspected the case, holding it within a few inches of his myopic eyes. Then he lifted his glance to Heath and winked several times rapidly. "Two instruments were used in opening this case." His voice was small and high-pitched, but there was in it an undeniable quality of authority. "One bent the lid and made several fractures on the baked enamel. The other was, I should say, a steel chisel of some kind, and was used to break the lock."

"The first instrument, which was blunt, was employed amateurishly, at the wrong angle of leverage; and the effort resulted only in twisting the overhanging lid. But the steel chisel was inserted with a knowledge of the correct point of oscillation, where a minimum of leverage would produce the counteracting stress necessary to displace the lockbolts."

"A professional job?" suggested Heath. "Highly so," answered the inspector, again blinking. "That is to say, the forcing of the lock was professional. And I would even go so far as to advance the opinion that the instrument used was one especially designed for such illegal purposes."

that! Still, don't y' know, if one were inside the closet, one couldn't reach the outside knob."
 "The people I know don't shut themselves in clothes-closets," Dubois tone was ponderously sarcastic.
 "You positively amaze me," declared Vance. "All the people I know are addicted to the habit—a sort of daily pastime, don't y' know."
 Markham, always diplomatic, intervened.

"What idea have you about that closet, Vance?"
 "Alas! I wish I had one," was the dolorous answer. "It's because I can't for the life of me, make sense of its neat and orderly appearance that I'm so interested in it. Really, y' know, it should have been artistically looted."

Heath was not entirely free from the same vague misgivings that were disturbing Vance, for he turned to Dubois and said:
 "You might go over the knob, Captain. As this gentleman says, there's something funny about the condition of that closet."
 Dubois, silent and surly, went to the closet door and sprayed his yellow powder over the inside knob. When he had blown the loose particles away, he bent over it with his magnifying glass. At length he straightened up, and gave Vance a look of ill-natured appraisal.
 "There's fresh prints on it, all right," he grudgingly admitted; "and unless I'm mistaken they were made by the same hand as those on the table. Both thumb-marks are ulnar loops, and the index-fingers are both whorl patterns. Here, Pete," he ordered the photographer, "make some shots of that knob."
 When this had been done, Dubois, Bellamy, and the photographer left us.

A few moments later, after an interchange of pleasantries, Inspector Moran also departed. At the door he passed two men in the white uniform of internes, who had come to take away the girl's body.

"I say, Captain Dubois," interposed Vance, "did you take a good look at the inside door-knob of that clothes press?"

The man swung about abruptly, and gave Vance a glowering look.
 "People ain't in the habit of handling the inside knobs of closet doors. They open and shut closets from the outside."

Vance raised his eyebrows in simulated astonishment.

Holland Orders Big Shipment Erskine, Studebaker Cars

SOUTH BEND, Indiana, Feb. 11. The increased demand for American automobiles in Europe was most forcibly indicated here when a transatlantic telephone order for 74 Studebaker and Erskine cars was received from the Hague, Holland, by H. S. Welch, manager of export sales of the Studebaker Corporation of America.

The telephone order—which was for approximately $100,000 worth of automobiles—was placed by L. W. Manson, Studebaker-Erskine distributor at The Hague.

During the conversation between the Hague and South Bend, a distance of approximately 4700 miles, Mr. Manson explained that the urgency of the telephone call was necessitated by the unprecedented demand for Studebaker's New President eight and the New Erskine Six.

The Hague order, combined with the many wire and phone orders which have been received by the Studebaker from distributors all over the United States, indicates the widespread acceptance of these new models in the Studebaker line.

Auto Owners Warned Against Shifting the Weak Tires To Front

"We join in warning car owners against shifting weak, worn tires from rear to front wheels," says C. P. Simmons of Simmons Service station, distributor of General tires in Ranger. "Conditions change. Originally, that was pretty good advice. Tires on rear wheels usually have the hardest work to do, and such a shift meant that one might get some additional mileage out of a worn rear by giving it an easier job to do on the front. But traffic is much more congested than formerly and cars are made for quick pickup and more speed than was formerly the case. So that the last few miles, gained by shifting crumples to front wheels, are mighty dangerous.

"The best way to avoid danger, of course, is to use new, dependable rubber at all times. In these days of fast driving and crowded highways it is actually much less dangerous to have a blowout on a rear wheel than on a front.

"In the event of a rear blowout, a car can usually be kept under control until it can be brought to a stop. If a front tire blows, at the usual high speed, many cars are instantly out of control, and the driver is on his way over the curb, into another car, on a new journey that may end at the undertaker's.

"Much the safer usage is to change tires around, beginning while they are new, from wheel to wheel at stated intervals, so they obtain even wear. Then, when old age or accident overtakes them, they should be traded in under the modern merchandising plan and new tires obtained.

"Spare should also be kept at work, whether there are accidents or not. A spare will actually 'live' longer in service than if left riding in the spare position till the regular working tires are worn out.

"However, tires are now so much cheaper than they have ever been before that no user is justified in risking his own life and those of his family and friends by inviting front-wheel blowouts, or any blowout at all, with worn tires. Motorists who regularly shift their tires before they become worn, and also keep the spare busy, are pleasantly surprised at the additional mileage they obtain per set, not to mention the sense of security they enjoy. New tires at reasonable intervals of time, are the best insurance of all."

Two Edgar L. Marston Fellowship Awards

AUSTIN, Feb. 11.—Since no award was made last year, the Edgar Lewis Marston Fellowship which is offered to an outstanding graduate student of the University of Texas for further study in Brown University at Providence, Rhode Island, two scholarships will be offered this year, according to Dr. H. Recommendations must have been made and applications filed at Brown University by March 1, according to Dr. Harper.

Tax Collector Gives Statistics Showing Condition of Schools

The true predicament that the Ranger schools are now in is not known by the majority of those who have children in schools, is the opinion of E. A. Ringold, city tax collector, and collector of taxes for the Ranger Independent school district. In making an audit of the books of the school system, Mr. Ringold finds that this year there will be a deficit of $5,500.

Mr. Ringold stated that the cost of the 1927-28 school term would amount to approximately $80,000. When the interest on outstanding bonds, amounting to $20,750 and bonds to be paid off, amounting to $7,500, is added to the cost of running the schools, the total amount is $108,250.

Mr. Ringold's figures show further that the taxes due for 1927 amount to $70,000. Approximately $2,500 has been received as tuition; the delinquent tax prorated amounts to $4,000 and the state apportionment amounts to $26,250.

With everything collected the schools will still show a deficit of around $5,500 this year.

With Mr. Ringold's figures as a base it is found that it is costing the school system $50 per pupil for a nine months' term. This represents the salaries that are paid to the superintendent, principals, teachers, janitors, upkeep of buildings, tax office and public utilities payments.

If the bond and interest account is added to this amount it is costing the school system $64 per pupil, as the average on that account is $14. Any patron who is paying less than $50 for taxes for each pupil is getting more in schooling than they pay for in taxes. The difference is made up by those who do not have children in school.

Seventy per cent of the tax money is paid by corporations and owners of property who do not live here. The remaining 30 per cent is paid by local people, according to Ringold.

It is the opinion of Ringold that either the property values must be raised or the schools will be cut short.

"It is the low valuations that is placed upon Ranger property that makes the deficit. These bonds must be paid. We have an outstanding amount of bonds that aggregate $402,000, and these are valid liens on all property in this district."

Ringold is of the opinion that unless the valuations are raised still higher and the accounts paid promptly, Ranger will have trouble in supporting the nine months school term that is required by the universities for affiliation.

AMONG THE NEWEST BOOKS

"LITERARY BLASPHEMIES"

Reviewed for United Press
By ALICE ROHE

"How to be Humorous Tho' High-brow" might be the sub-title of Ernest Boyd's "Literary Blasphemies." Harper's—if that erudite gentleman recognizes such inexact terms as highbrow. Of all the thoroughly and genuinely cultivated persons in our midst Ernest Boyd—at least in the opinion of this reviewer—is the most authentic. In fact Mr. Boyd knows so much that whenever his name is affixed to a literary utterance a sense of helpless intellectual inferiority starts in fussing up a complex. One admires and desires to be enlightened.

But let no sense of defeatism or futility deprive one from reading his new book. "Literary Blasphemies" has all of the authority of this informed writer but it is so amusing and so entertaining that the first thing you know you have become so engrossed in what he has to say that you forget all about being awed by super-knowledge.

"Literary Blasphemies" is a real tonic. After reading it you feel terribly braced. It is exhilarating to have some one who knows, say some of the things you think. For instance his essay on Shakespeare isn't really a blasphemy. But he strikes joy to the heart by removing a lot of the academic bunk which has obstructed an appreciation and enjoyment of Shakespeare for so these many years. So obscured has he been by annotators and commentators that "people will hardly believe Shakespeare can do anything that their favorites of today can do. He can offer humor as healthily elementary as the Marx brothers; he can wave the flag—British, it is true—with the effective gusto of Mr. George M. Cohan; he can psychoanalyze as subtly as Marcel Proust. He can portray girls as sweet as any in the pages of Ethel M. Dell and more fascinating wild than the flapper heroines of the jazz age.

Walt Whitman is put in his place as a literary exhibitionist—the herald of ultra-violet literature—a writer of graceless, banal English—whose letters read like the communications of a farm hand when compared with Emerson and others. "Whitman," he says, showed the efforts of an essentially illiterate mind to lift itself by prolonged verbal gymnastics into literature."

Of Henry James he says, "Through his writings runs the plaint of an intellectual hypochondriac with a grievance."

John Milton, Jonathan Swift, Lord Byron, Charles Dickens, Edgar Allan Poe, Thomas Hardy are other subjects of Boyd's "Literary Blasphemies." Then there is an Address to the Indignant Reader and an Epilogue.

Though there may be a few words that send you in search of a dictionary, there isn't a line you can afford to miss. It is one of the most discerning and stimulating of books.

"PRIZE STORIES OF 1927"

"The O. Henry Award"

Reviewed for United Press.

During the nine years that the Society of Arts and Sciences has sponsored the O. Henry Memorial Award Prize Stories the collection has come to be regarded as an authoritative appraisal of the short story work of the year. The 1927 edition, just published by Doubleday, Doran & Co., is especially rich in material.

Fifteen stories were culled from more than 600 considered and are presented by the judges as the finest American stories appearing during the past 12 months. Roark Bradford's "Child of God" was voted the first prize, with "The Killers," by Ernest Hemmingway, ranking next. Louis Bromfield was awarded the special prize for the best short story of 1927 with "The Scarlet Woman."

Other short stories selected for the book are: "Jukes," by Bill Adams; "Fear," by James Warner Bellah; "Night Club," by Katherine Brush; "Singing Woman," by Ada Jack Carver; "With Glory and Honour," by Elisabeth Cobb Chapman; "Bulldog," by Roger Daniels; "He Man," by Marjory Stoneman Douglas; "Done Goe Over," by Alma and Paul Ellerbe; "Monkey Motions," by Eleanor Mercein Kelly; "Four Dreams of Gram Perkins," by Ruth Sawyer; "The Little Girl from Town," by Ruth Suckow; and "Shades of George Sand," by Ellen du Bois Taylor.

The stories of the collection almost without exception are strong and serious, practically devoid of humor. It is significant that from the wave of war stories which now floods the magazines, only "Fear" was chosen. This, however, is such a powerful tale that it would be hard to find its equal. The theme of "Fear" and of "He Man" is that fear vanishes when courage is demanded, regardless of a man's cowardice in moments of safety.

Four negro stories are included in the 15, all sympathetic interpretations of the southern country darkey. "Jukes" is a man who could conquer everything but the drink habit. Katherine Brush and Elisabeth Cobb Chapman chose night clubs as the settings for their stories, with admirable results. "Four Dreams of Gram Perkins" and "Singing Woman" are highly localized tales, the former about Maine farmer folk, while Miss Carver's story deals with customs of the French mulattoes of Isle Brevelle.

Ernest Hemmingway's "The Killers," said to be "the most talked story of 1927," is told almost entirely in dialogue. A gripping, dramatic situation is pictured in the most commonplace words. Two gunmen are waiting for their victim. He has heard of it, so on that particular night they do not get him. But they know, and he knows that some other time they will succeed. Miss Suckow utilizes the same type of writing to describe a city child's visit to a farm in "The Little Girl from Town." "Shades of George Sand" tells of the reactions of a girl, descended from a French coquette, to the monotony of her drab North Dakota home.

In "The Scarlet Woman" Louis Bromfield has told of a great love, a thing of beauty in which the town could see only sin. In less than nine pages Vergie Winters' life is reconstructed by means of fragments, scraps of information that all the town knew, though not once does the author force her to break through her "colossal solitude" to speak for herself. It is a delicate, tragic little story, told with stark simplicity.

The bad deeds of today build a leaning tower that casts its shadow over all the possibilities of tomorrow. There are a lot of toll bridges on the road to success.
