AL SMITH'S FORCES WIN OVER HEARST

Tammany's Sweeping Victory In Primaries Eliminates Mayor Hylan

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Governor Alfred D. Smith today emerged from the bitterest battle of his career, victorious, having reduced to shreds the influence of William Randolph Hearst in this state.

In the November election he will be opposed by Frank D. Waterman, fountain pen manufacturer who won the Republican nomination.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—With the final vote counted and State Senator James Walker victorious over Mayor John Hylan, in the democratic primary by a margin of 95,542 votes, New York city had warning of fresh warfare between Gov. Al Smith and William Randolph Hearst.

Hearst sounded a warning in his evening paper by declaring that Mayor Hylan will run independently in the fall election.

Smith and Hearst had their first tilt in 1919. At that time Hearst began to attack Smith for his agricultural policy especially where applied to New York's milk supply.

MID-WEST BUILDING.

From Ohio to Nebraska and from Missouri to Texas building reports indicate more construction, with heavier financial outlays than last year.

In the nine largest cities of Ohio—Akron, Canton, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Springfield, Toledo, and Youngstown—building permits for the first six months of this year aggregated $11,053,267.

Michigan's 1924 figures totaled $174,984,044, and building permits this year indicate an increase.

Indiana during 1924 spent $65,863,156 upon construction, and permits for the first six months of this year show gains.

Increase of 50 per cent above last year is forecast for Illinois by builders.

Thirteen of Iowa's largest cities reported increased figures for construction this year as compared with last year's totals.

Nebraska promises a 50 per cent increase in construction figures this year.

Kansas reports the biggest building boom since the war.

Oklahoma indicates an increase so far this year of nearly $8,000,000.

Fifteen Texas cities show substantial increase. Reports also indicate that single residences and double apartment buildings were the chief items.

STYLE DEPLORED BY THE POPE.

His holiness Pope Pius XI has made a plea that the women of Italy shall modify their styles. Low necks, bare arms and short skirts are taboo in all the churches of Italy, and the crusade launched from the Vatican has assumed serious proportions. The pope condemned the present modes as immodest and indecorous. He gently but firmly admonished the pilgrims and women resident in Rome not appear at the Vatican or the churches displaying arms, legs or neck. Women preparing for mass now look for their most sombre frocks, and some have even had dresses made for the occasion. Many of them solve the problem by carrying a coat or cape which is donned at the church door.

IGNORING THE LEAGUE.

M. Tardieu, former French high commissioner to the United States, does not entertain a very high opinion of the League of Nations as a world power. He says the league council has been debating the security problem for three years and today the subject is taken out of its hands. Everything that it has voted in the past has been speedily demolished by one member or another almost before the ink had dried.

Although security is being discussed, it is not at Geneva. It is being discussed by the jurists' conference sitting at London and the ministers' conference at Lausanne. It is putting the cart before the horse, and there is nothing left for the Geneva assembly but speech making.

 Lions Club Luncheon at De Groff Hotel.

CHILDS WELFARE CLUB

The members of the Childs Welfare Club held their regular monthly luncheon and business meeting yesterday afternoon at the Gholson Hotel. Luncheon was served at 1:30 and the luncheon hour was the social hour. Afterwards the members adjourned to the greenroom for a business meeting. At this time Miss Joyce Connolly gave her monthly report, which was most gratifying in its scope, showing clearly that Miss Connolly has a vision of her work and the ability to take care of it. Mrs. G. C. Craig, chairman of the Investigating Committee reported some very interesting things in regard to cases that she had found and the work the committee is trying to do. One case is that of a little girl, who has tuberculosis of the bone and the committee is trying to get her in the proper place for treatment. Another is that of an old couple without any people, who are in need of food and clothes. They are both past 70 years old. A report that the committee was still supplying milk to a child whose parents could not furnish it with the necessary amount of milk needed, was also given. Mrs. Craig stated that more clothes were needed for school children, that while a number of garments came in from their recent appeal, still there was a sad lack of clothes. A few other business details were brought before the assembly, after which they adjourned.

1920 CLUB CALLED MEETING

The 1920 Club had a called meeting yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Gholson Hotel, at which time the resignation of Mrs. Rex Outlaw, as president of the club, was accepted, and a new president elected. Mrs. A. L. Duffer, who was second vice president was elected president and Mrs. C. C. Patterson, who elected second vice president. Mrs. R. H. Hodges was elected Press Reporter. After the re-election of officers was over a brief business session was held, the object of which was the discussion of the opening reception of the 1920 Club, which was left with the hospitality committee and the date will be announced later. Another feature that is of interest to all the club members was brought up, that is the obtaining of credits on their course, which is a University course, being a Survey of Early Art, and credits can be obtained from the University if desired. Those wishing to work for credits are asked to get in touch with some members of the Year Book Committee at once.

ALTAR SOCIETY.

The Altar society had a very profitable meeting Monday afternoon at St. Rita's school. They were favored with a visit from Father Gerkin who gave them some splendid advice for their fall and winter work. Plans were completed for the bake sale, Saturday, at Stafford's. On Tuesday the society will meet with Mrs. W. N. Bourdeau, in a social meeting, at which time Mrs. C. I. Bourdeau will assist in entertaining.

JOINT MEETING OF CLASSES.

There will be a joint meeting of the Boethian and Fideles classes of the Central Baptist church on Friday evening at 8 p. m. Plans for social activities and class competition and development for the ensuing year will be made and discussed. After a joint session, each class will retire to itself for a discussion of the business pertaining only to that class, which will include in the Boethian class the annual election of officers. A representative gathering of both classes is desired.

NEBRASKA CORN HUSKS FORECAST HARD WINTER

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 16.—It's going to be a hard winter—if the word of the Nebraska corn growers can be taken as authority. The corn husks this year are thicker than usual, which means a long, winter, according to the proverbs of the great American corn belt. Another indication, the old timers point out, is the fact that the corn is "making" early this fall.

ON THE RANGE AT RANGER

By THE FENCE RIDER.

The new radio set in the Smoke House Cigar store caused a number of people to stop and look for a tragedy when it let out some unearthly screeches after its recent installment.

Rusk street pedestrians who thought somebody was in death's throes and giving out unearthly screeches and moanings yesterday were informed that it was only the new radio at the Smoke House, which, like other 'animals' of its kind, is wont to make itself heard in sundry ways. "Just getting ready to take the screeches from Wednesday's game," a wise radio bug was heard to remark.

Should the Dallas Steers fail to win the first play-off series, and make a noise about it, there is danger somebody might call them a "bawl" club.

School days are here—time when every kiddie wishes he was grown up and most grownups wish they were kiddies again.

That's the way of it. Nobody ever is satisfied. Even The Times, after printing that eighteen page paper Sunday, wishes it had been a twenty-four page affair and that the city instead of being the best and most up-and-coming city in the oil belt, had Dallas beat. Still, there's time to grow.

That's how it is with us human animals. Hardly anybody ever satisfied. Why some Ranger grazers the Fence Rider heard talking, were not satisfied with his statement that Ranger has enough cows, hens, hogs, and pretty women to supply milk, butter, eggs, hams and happiness. They say it was not stated whether it was the cows that laid the eggs, the hens that furnished the hams or the hogs, the happiness, etc.

All of which caused one Ranger grazer to burst forth in poetic measures as follows:
 "As a rule, a man's a fool.
 When it's hot, he wants it cool.
 When it's cool, he wants it hot,
 Always wanting what is not."

Exports Records Are Broken By Studebakers

More high-powered motor cars were exported by Studebaker during the first six months of 1925 than by any other automobile maker in America.

In most countries, this achievement was won against the penalty of a horsepower tax, which makes ownership of cars more costly in proportion to their rated power.

In England, for example, the buyer must pay a yearly tax or one pound per rated horsepower, or about $171 on a Studebaker big six, on which the power rating is 36.4, the smallest of the Studebaker cars, the standard six, carries a tax of $129.

On the other hand, the tax on cars which compete with the standard six runs from $81 to $100 each, ratings being from 17.3 to 23.4 horsepower.

In spite of this handicap, the demand for Studebaker cars grew during the first half of the year to such an extent that exportations exceeded those of any other American maker of high-powered cars. Many high-powered cars which enjoy significance in the American field obtained almost no foothold in the foreign market.

In much of this territory, the Studebaker big six enjoys a reputation similar to that which a $12,000 English-made car enjoys in America among the more well to do.

To such an extent has this developed that export of big sixes during the period mentioned almost equaled the sum of all other American cars with an S. A. E. rating of 30 horsepower or more.

Rupert Murphy, son of Fire Chief and Mrs. Murphy, is visiting in Wichita Falls, Electra and Fort Worth for a few days, but will attend school in Ranger.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton © 1925 NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY SO FAR:

Gloria Gordon, beautiful flapper, marries Dick Gregory, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes, but no work or children.

She refuses pointblank to do her own housework, and hires a maid. But Dick has to let the maid go, because he can't afford her wages. Gloria has swamped him with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

She becomes infatuated with an out-of-work actor, Stanley Wayburn. When he leaves town to go to New York, Gloria follows him. But he spurns her. Then she tries to find a job as a chorus girl and fails. It is then that Gloria realizes how lonely she is for Dick. But she is afraid to go home.

But at last she does go. Dick takes her back, but not as his wife. Gloria suspects that he is in love with his secretary, Susan Briggs. While Dick is out late one night, the house is robbed. Gloria is sure Dick spent the evening with Miss Briggs. But next morning she learns that he was at the home of Dr. John Seymour, who had killed himself because of his wife's love affair with Jim Carraway.

The breach between Gloria and Dick widens. Gloria learns that Miss Briggs is in love with him, and begs him to discharge her. He refuses. Finally Gloria makes up her mind to leave Dick. She goes home to her mother, who tells her to return to Dick.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

The doorbell rang loudly through the little house.

"That must be your Aunt Dorcas," said Mrs. Gordon. "She said she'd stop in for me on her way to the hospital to see Lulu's baby."

Gloria groaned.

Aunt Dorcas was a born gossip. She told everything she knew for the pure joy of seeing the look of surprise and interest dawn in her listeners' eyes.

"Now, Mother, please don't tell her anything about this trouble between Dick and me," Gloria begged. "If you do, it'll be all over town by dark!"

But she knew it was useless to ask her mother not to tell Aunt Dorcas anything. She was wax in the hands of Lulu's mother.

Aunt Dorcas was large and blond. She had the nose of a Roman senator, and the blue, inquiring eyes of a child. She turned one of her cheeks to Gloria to be kissed.

"Well, my dear!" she said briskly. "Lulu beat you to it, having a baby! And she's a year younger than you are, at that!"

Gloria laughed. "She's been married for two years, though," she said. "And I haven't been. And anyway I should think you'd be furious with her for making you a grandmother at your age—only 44! And you don't look a minute over 35, does she, Mother?"

Aunt Dorcas beamed. "Wouldn't you like to come along with us to see the new baby, my dear?" she asked, flattered.

"I would. I'd love to," fibbed Gloria, "but I've got to go home."

She ran upstairs to get her hat and over-night bag.

"Been here all night?" Aunt Dorcas asked sharply. Her eyes were fixed on the little bag.

"No," Gloria answered reluctantly. She shot a warning look at her mother.

"Gloria and Dick had a little quarrel," Mrs. Gordon said blandly, "and I've been talking her into going home. 'Bear and forbear' I say. That's the only way to get along with a man, isn't it?"

Aunt Dorcas shook her head. "Well, I don't know whether it is or not," she replied. "I never did think much of this young Gregory. I may as well tell you I always thought he was something of a snob—and if I were Gloria I wouldn't take any back-chat from him! She's just as good as he is any day in the week!"

"I haven't taken any back-chat from him," said Gloria. "The whole thing's been my own fault. And it isn't anything that matters, anyhow. A tempest in a teapot!"

Her aunt snorted. "No, I guess nothing's the matter when you pack up and come home!" she exclaimed. "I should say that something was very much the matter! Well, are we ever going to start for the hospital, Libby?"

Mrs. Gordon hurried upstairs. "There's a pie I baked, all wrapped up for you on the pantry shelf, Gloria," she called downstairs. "Tell Dick I sent it to him."

Gloria tucked the pie carefully into one side of her bag. "I'd love to stay here and visit with you, Aunt," she said, "but I've just got to go home."

"I think you're very foolish to go home. If you've quarreled with your husband make him come here after you!" Aunt Dorcas spoke her mind. "You take my advice—I'll bet your mother's been telling you to buckle down and go home. That's the way she's been all her life—afraid to say 'Boo' to a goose! But what's it ever got her, eh? Nothing, so far as I can see!"

She tapped her foot angrily on the floor.

"She thinks she has a great deal," Gloria said softly. "And she and Dad really are happy in their way."

She kissed her aunt on her flared cheek where a tiny network of veins was beginning to show. She drew a sigh of relief when she escaped, at last, from the house and from Aunt Dorcas.

On her way home Gloria stopped in at a store and bought herself a housedress. It was a soft, pretty thing with frills around the neck and sleeves.

She had a sudden vision of herself in it when Dick should come home that night. He would think that she had gone—and there she would be, with dinner ready, the table set, the house clean! Wouldn't he get the surprise of his life, though!

"Here's where the house goes up in smoke!" Gloria thought with terror.

Unless he had a heart of granite, that certainly ought to melt him.

And let's see, what would she have for dinner? Dick liked lamb chops and fresh peas. She'd have them, she guessed. No, even Mother Gregory had said that it was quite a job to shell peas.

Gloria bought canned ones and a can of beef. And she saw some potato salad in a delicatessen she passed. So she bought that, too. It would save her going to the bother of cooking potatoes.

Then there was the pie her mother had given her. Why, she wouldn't have anything to cook but the meat! Anybody could warm up canned vegetables.

"How long do you fry lamb chops?" Gloria asked the butcher as he wrapped them up for her.

"Bout 15 minutes, lady," he said. "Depends on how you like 'em, rare or well done."

How did Dick like his meat cooked? Gloria didn't know. Well, she guessed she'd take a chance and fry them slowly for 20 minutes.

At 6 o'clock that night she put them on the stove. The peas and beef were in their kettles. The potato salad was heaped high in a bowl on the dining room table.

Gloria's heart swelled with honest pride as she looked around the house. It was in what she called perfect order. There was a roll of dust, like a grey mouse, here and there in a shadowy corner—but no one would notice that, she was sure.

She went upstairs to her room to put a little powder on her nose. She decided that she needed some more rouge on her cheeks—and more gloss on her fingernails.

Suddenly Gloria sniffed the air. What was that queer smell? The meat! The chops were burning!

She flew down to the kitchen. It was filled with smoke. The sputtering fat in the pan had caught on fire. It was blazing.

"Here's where the house goes up in smoke!" Gloria thought with terror. She lifted the red-hot pan from the stove in her bare hands.

Then she ran out doors with it, and threw it down on the grass. It hissed fiercely as she turned a spray of water from the garden hose on it.

Gloria was so excited that she did not hear Dick drive into the yard. It was only when she turned to go back to the house that she saw him watching her from the driveway.

"What have you been doing—having a bonfire?" he asked.

Gloria burst into tears. She ran over to the car to show Dick how she had burned her hands.

"No," she sobbed. "I just burned up all the chops—and I'm all blistered, too! Oh—oooh, I meant to have such a good dinner, too."

"I didn't expect to find you here at all," Dick said calmly. "You said you were going to leave me, last night, you know."

Gloria hung her head. "I know I did," she said in a tone so low that Dick divined rather than heard her words, "but I changed my mind."

Dick studied her for a moment with half-lowered lids. Gloria thought she even detected a gleam of amusement in his eyes.

"Well, never mind about that," he said. "Run upstairs and get your hat, and I'll take you downtown for dinner. I'll wait here for you. Hurry."

Gloria put the fire out under the vegetables on the stove, and took the potato salad away.

She made a paste of baking soda and water to smear on her burns.

In the old days Dick would have done it for her, without doubt. He would have been filled with distress and pity—and he would probably have kissed the blistered hands.

Now he didn't seem to care. He was utterly indifferent to her. And the thought was all the harder to bear because Gloria knew that she had brought all this on herself—Dick's indifference and aloofness.

She had helped to build the wall that rose between them, mountain high.

She put on a sage green sports hat and went out to the automobile. "Darn shame about your hands," Dick muttered as she got in beside him. Gloria said nothing.

Where do you want to go to eat?" he asked.

Some demon in Gloria's brain prompted her answer. "Let's go to the restaurant where you and Miss Briggs eat," she said wickedly. "By the way, how is Miss Briggs behaving herself these days?"

"As usual—perfectly," Dick said. "Flash! she told you she loves you yet?"

Gloria raised her eyebrows in feigned surprise and aloofness. "I thought that would be the first thing she'd do!"

Dick didn't answer. But he drove the car down to the little restaurant.

It was a silent meal that they ate at the little corner table where the two of them and Susan Briggs had dined only a few days before.

The waiter had set their coffee down before them before either spoke.

"What's become of your rings?" Dick broke the silence that had hung, like a smoke-screen between them. "Your wedding ring and your diamond?"

Gloria felt herself redden. "I— sold them when I was in New York," she faltered. "I had to have money."

Dick looked down at her hands, curiously, but said nothing.

"I hated to do it," Gloria went on, feeling that she ought to say something. "But I didn't have a dollar to pay my hotel bill. I don't suppose I'll ever have another diamond like the one in my engagement ring, will I?"

"Not from me," Dick answered shortly.

Gloria leaned across the table toward him. Her eyes were soft and bright with unshed tears. And her voice trembled when she spoke.

"What difference does it make that the rings are gone—when the marriage they stood for is gone?" she asked. "You don't love me any more."

What We Have Learned

In the past few weeks since we opened our doors to the public regarding Buick Automobiles and used cars handled by a Buick agency has been a revelation to our firm.

The public loves a square deal and is quick to appreciate and reward a firm with their business when such a policy is protected by a new firm.

Dealers all over the country are talking about THAT USED CAR PROBLEM. They seem to regard it as a nightmare. We have learned that the biggest part of the problem consists of getting people to realize that all used cars and dealers aren't alike. And it isn't a problem at all.

No suits will be filed against delinquents for personal property taxes only, as the tax collector will make levies on such property and proceed to advertise and sell same by virtue of his tax rolls, Judge Chastain said.

FORD SEES COMBINED PLANE AND DIRIGIBLE AIRCRAFT OF FUTURE

HENRY FORD DEARBORN, Mich., Sept. 16.—Henry Ford believes the aircraft of the future will be a combination of the dirigible and the airplane. "A combination of the types probably will fly better than either type alone," says the automobile manufacturer, whose factories and engineers are now aiding in the development of aviation research and commercial flying.

Might Avert Disasters

If a combined dirigible and airplane had been developed both of the recent naval air disasters might have been averted, experts say. They point out that the greatly increased pressure in the helium bags of the Shenandoah, when the dirigible was suddenly shot to a higher altitude by a line snapper, caused the framework of the craft to give way. A dirigible with airplane wings might have been able to either nose down and prevent the "skyrocketing" or if the dirigible part of the craft had collapsed, the wings might enable it to volplane safely down to the ground.

If such a craft had been available for the Hawaiian flight, instead of the PN-9, No. 1, the dirigible part of it would have kept it in the air after the gas supply was exhausted and it might have drifted back over one of the patrol ships. The necessity of landing in rough sea and the possible smashing of the plane would have been averted.

Engine Is Big Trouble

The Ford Motor company has just gone into both ends of commercial aviation—operation and manufacture. It has agreed to carry the airmail for the government from Chicago to Detroit. But Henry Ford smiles dryly at the suggestion that this signifies complete success for commercial aviation is near.

"I wish I could see it," he comments. From the Ford airport at Dearborn, all-metal "sky trucks" daily sail away to Cleveland and Chicago, carrying a thousand pounds of freight.

Ford thinks these are the best airplanes that engineering talent has yet developed. But he thinks the machines are still crude, costly, inefficient, measured by his vision of what the sky carrier of the future will be. "Aviation is in its infancy," Ford puts it.

"What's the trouble with the airplane?" he is asked. "The engine," he replies. The Ford Motor company built thousands of Liberty motors for the government during the war. Now it is buying back these same motors to install in its own planes.

But whatever happens in aviation, Henry Ford has no desire to fly. He has never ridden in an airplane or airship, and never intends to, despite reports that he planned a trip on the ill-fated Shenandoah when it soared over Detroit on its return from the middle west.

"I can imagine what flying is like to my perfect satisfaction," says Ford.

Will Ford Retire?

Henry Ford may administer a knockout blow to the confidence of his Ford Motor Company business associates some of these days. Ford may retire.

"You can never tell," says Ford. "Henry Ford retire? Never!" say the men whose names top the Ford company's payroll.

Edsel Ford is president of the Ford Motor Company now. Relieved of many responsibilities, Henry Ford gives time and thought to such semi-philanthropy as the revival of old-time dances.

Will he desist altogether, in his later years, from direction of the Ford industrial affairs? "You never can tell," Ford smiles. "But do you expect to retire?"

"If I expected to, then I could tell. I don't expect to, but you never can tell."

Talks on Reincarnation No retirement by Henry Ford, however—even the final one—will be for all time, Ford holds. He is a believer in reincarnation. "You believe that Henry Ford will return to earth, reincarnated, after death?" he is asked.

Ford gazes out a window, and drums his fingers on a table top. "Well, nothing is ever destroyed, is it?" he responds. "Do you believe in a Deity?"

"The trouble about discussing those things is that nobody ever knows just what he is talking about."

At 62, with the Ford fortune measurable only in ten figures, Henry Ford's chief ambition for the Ford Motor Company is— "To keep it going."

A friend of Ford, he is reminded, quotes him as saying, "Our job is to make work for more people at better wages. "It's the same thing," says Ford. There are no fine distinctions in the Ford reasoning. "Do you get more personal satisfaction out of making more jobs for people, or making more automobiles for them?" he is asked. "It's all the same," is Ford's answer.

FIRST IMPROVED FORDS ARE NOW ON DISPLAY HERE

Cars Most Attractive, Longer, Lower Bodies—Many Other Refinements

First of the improved Ford cars to arrive in Ranger went on display today in the show rooms of Leveille-Maher Motor Company, local authorized Ford dealers, and immediately attracted the attention of everyone. To say that people who saw the cars were surprised at their appearance would be putting it rather mildly. The new types exceed all expectations in improved appearance and more comfort and convenience. For the most part the bodies have been completely redesigned and conform in every respect to the most advanced features of body construction. Not only have bodies been built lower, but they are set on a lower chassis frame and with larger, low hanging fenders impart to the complete car a striking suggestion of riding and driving ease.

While the Leveille-Maher Motor Company have been able so far only to show the touring model, other types will be shown as quickly as they can be obtained from the Ford Motor Company branch at Dallas, where because of their popularity demands on production are somewhat delaying immediate delivery of all types of cars.

40 Bales Today Brings Total Up Large Figures

The ginning of 40 bales of cotton in Ranger is reported today by H. L. Stewart, ginner. This brings the total up to within a few bales of 140, it is stated notwithstanding the crop is late and the picking has only been under way for a short time. That the Ranger vicinity is fast becoming a real cotton growing section, is evidenced by this increased output of the gins. Ginners report that grades are holding up well and the staple is long, as a rule.

RANGER BOYS' CAMP EXPERIENCE AT BEAR LAKE IN THE ROCKIES

WITH SIDE LIGHTS ON THE ORGANIZATION AND NATIONAL CONVENTION

By JACK GALLOWAY
(Jack Galloway, Master Councilor Ranger Chapter De Molay and Jack Sanderford, local Scribe of the organization, having gone as delegates to the national convention at Bear Lake, took advantage of the occasion to make interesting notes on their life in the mountains, which young Galloway has been induced to set down in serial form. The story is of such interest The Times gives it to its readers for their pleasure. The story will run through several daily issues to its conclusion.)

The Order of De Molay was organized at Kansas City, Mo., in September, 1919, by Frank S. Land, and grew out of an organization called the De Molay Council, which consisted of nine members. It was organized with the aim to assist boys who needed help in their various problems, the first member being Louis G. Lower, who had come to Mr. Land for advice after his father's death. In six years the membership of the order has grown to 150,000 active members, 50,000 others having reached the age limit of 21.

The Ranger Chapter was instituted in November, 1924 by the Breckenridge Chapter, beginning with 28 members. Thurman Gholston was first Master Councilor. Master Councilors who have held office since then are Robert Warren and Rex Thomas, and present Master Councilor. The Chapter now has 56 members and is steadily growing. The order is sponsored by Masonic bodies but it does not in any way assume member future membership in any Masonic order. The Ranger Chapter is sponsored by the Royal Arch Masons, with an advisory council from that organization.

In July, 1925, Jack Sanderford, Scribe, and I were selected by the Chapter to represent Ranger at the De Molay Leaders' Training Camp, at Bear Lake in the Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado, part of our expenses being paid, the money having been raised by the advisory Council by subscriptions from Masons.

We left Ranger Saturday, August 22, for Fort Worth where we stayed for a visit until Sunday, leaving Fort Worth at 10 a. m. we reached Colorado Springs Monday morning and immediately went on a sight-seeing tour of South Cheyenne Canyon, seven Falls, North Cheyenne Canyon, High Drive, the Garden of the Gods and Cave of the Winds.

Tuesday morning we arose at five o'clock, ate a light breakfast and took a car to Manitou, at the foot of Pike's Peak. We then started to hike up the Peak at 7 o'clock. We reached the half-way house at 10:30, where we expected to get lunch but found the place closed. We had brought no lunch, but kept going up a 25 per cent grade. The night before, we had been so busy that we ate no supper, and with the light breakfast we had had, found it very hard going. We finally reached the top at 4:30 in the last stages of hunger. We got something to eat which made us feel worse, so we decided to stay all night on the Peak.

It is very rocky and barren on the summit, and I might add, very cold. By 7 p. m. it was sleeting, and the next morning the ground was covered with snow and sleet and the thermometer stood at 26 degrees. A train came up with a load of passengers to see the sun, which is an attraction to all visitors. From the Peak we looked down on clouds far below. In the East was a long band of orange. When the sun rose it gradually lit up like a red disc, lighting up the barren summit. We took the cog train down to Manitou (then a car to Colorado Springs, and left at once for Denver, about 100 miles away. We were met at Denver by the Molays who took us to the Kenwick hotel, De Molay headquarters. Many of the delegates were already there. In the afternoon the Denver Chapter hired a buss to take us over a 60-mile drive, seeing the beautiful scenery about Denver, including Lookout Mountain, Buffalo Bill's grave and the museum which contains all the personal property of Buffalo Bill, such as guns, knives, saddles, etc.

PAINS ALL OVER

Lady Says She Took Cardui and Never Saw Such Improvement—Was So Weak Couldn't Stand.

Weathersby, Miss.—Mrs. James M. Hall, of this place, writes that she was "getting weaker all the time" when Cardui, the woman's tonic, was first brought to her attention. After she had taken Cardui a while, she writes that she "never did see such an improvement."

"I suffered all the time and had pains all over," says Mrs. Hall. "I was so weak I could not stand. My skin was cold and flabby. I did not have any color. I had always been a very active woman—used to outdoor exercise, walking and going where I pleased, and to get down, not able to get myself a drink, was indeed a hardship.

"Nothing seemed to help me, till I began on Cardui. The first bottle seemed to strengthen me, and I sent for five more. By the time I had taken these, I was on my feet, going around, doing my work, gained in health and strength.

"I took two more bottles, and I am well and strong. Can work my garden. I haven't had any more sickness."

The Art of Cooking NOW CLASSED AMONG THE SCIENCES

Back to the days when primitive man first cast the ruddy glow of firelight on his cavern walls through the rubbing together of sticks—on to the era of flint and steel, when venison turned over the glowing coals of a kitchen fireplace, to the present day when a world's attention is centered upon the nutritive value of various foods and the matter of their preparation—the art of Cooking has kept steadily apace with the Spirit of Progress.

MRS. CHITWOOD

All Foods Are Not Proper Foods

It all depends upon those who consume them. What is nourishing food to one may prove greatly detrimental to the well-being of another. What to one person may prove to be a builder of rich, red blood and strengthening tissue, may succeed only in creating a series of woeful physical conditions in persons differently constituted.

These are subjects every housewife should be interested in

Did You Ever Think of This?

That the human being—man, woman or child—is after all merely a natural product of a highly organic nature—a product of that which he or she absorbs? This is obviously true. And knowing this, is it not then easy to understand that a properly functioning organism must be maintained through foods in which organic substances still predominate?

In proper food preparation only can this be made possible.

MRS IDA CHITWOOD LECTURER AND DEMONSTRATOR

Will tell you all about these important matters during the course of her five-day lecture. She prepares foods as you watch and listen to her; tells you just how to prepare them to make them the most healthful and palatable.

Tells you how to budget your household finances in order that you may derive the greatest possible amount of benefit from your income. This in itself is a subject of vast material benefit to every woman in Eastland County.

Mrs. Chitwood is a lecturer and food expert of international prominence. Her experiences during the war, on the great plains, in the wilds of India, among the Chinese and people of other nations, have given to her an education in food values and food preparation that falls to the lot of but few.

PEOPLE DON'T ADMIRE ROUGH, PIMPLE SKIN

Before you can impress some one of the opposite sex enough to get them to share the happy state of love with you, you certainly must keep your appearance pleasing and attractive. Pimples, blotchy, eczemic skin seems ten times worse to strangers and new acquaintances. And even husbands, wives, parents and kin feel sorry for loved ones who suffer from such skin diseases.

The way to get rid of all these drawbacks to affection and devotion from dear ones is to use Black and White Ointment, and Soap, like thousands of people are doing. They are economically priced, in liberal packages. The 50c size Black and White Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap.—Advertisement.

ANTI-BOB HUSBAND IRATE
 DALLAS, Sept. 16.—A hard-boiled husband that is no modernist gave the welfare director a job the other morning.
 He became so enraged when his wife bobbed her hair without his knowledge that he ran her and the children off from home and she sought help and advice at the welfare department.
 It was only after the most careful and insistent persuasion that the welfare worker was able to convince the irate husband that his passion could cool and that his wife's hair would grow out in time. He took her back.

AMARILLO EXPORTS OIL
 AMARILLO, Sept. 16.—Amarillo as an oil producing city is a realization. With enough gas to supply several cities of her size, and with a production of refined oils that already supplies a large domestic territory, Amarillo has now entered the foreign market.
 An Amarillo refining company shipped a solid trainload of gasoline, refined from the Amarillo crude, a few days ago to a Louisiana port for export to Europe. The 31-car train carried a quarter-million gallon of gasoline, valued at $50,000.

LOCAL TRACTOR MAN RETURNS FROM TRAINING

Is Impressed With Amazing Number Jobs Tractor Will Perform.
 The city of Ranger was represented in the Fordson tractor training school, held in Dallas all through last week by Mr. W. J. McFarland of the Leveille-Maher Motor company, who returned home recently. The Dallas branch of the Ford Motor company conducted the school and was assisted by engineering experts, inventors, and sales representatives of some 25 nationally known manufacturers of equipment designed to work with the Fordson. Fifty tractor specialists from as many retail Ford dealers, scattered all over the lower half of Texas, attended the school.

"The thing that impressed me most," said Mr. McFarland, in discussing his experiences with Fordsons at the school, "was the amazing number of jobs a tractor will perform, the low cost of doing them. Of course, I've made a study of Fordsons before I went to Dallas and was thoroughly familiar with it, I thought, but I found there, that there was much I could learn—and before I left, you can take my word for it—I learned everything about a Fordson tractor and the variety of jobs it can do with the proper equipment. This school was not a long-winded theoretical affair. It is true that we were privileged to hear wonderfully inspiring lectures pointing out how the Fordson tractor today is measuring up to Henry Ford's ideal in producing it—to lighten man's burden—increase productivity and lower costs on the farm and in commercial uses; and we also heard a number of constructive sales talks pointing out our opportunity to serve our communities by placing more Fordsons at work, but ninety percent of the time we were out on the grounds of the Ford Motor company where the field work was done, and we were actually hitting the ball.

I wish some of the people of Ranger could have been there to see what we did. Each man had to assemble and operate the different machinery to the complete satisfaction of the Ford Motor company and the equipment specialists. Some people will doubt probably when they hear of the number of tasks I did with a Fordson, but all the men there including myself—did them. We plowed, cultivated, did heavy hauling, pumped water for irrigation, built and graded streets, dug and filled ditches, sawed wood, mowed lawns, baled hay, hauled cotton 50 bales at a time, pulled stumps from the earth three feet in diameter, unloaded carloads of gravel, mixed and hoisted concrete, ground feed, terraced land, pulled down trees and unrooted them, excavated earth and loaded it into trucks and a lot of other things I can't think of now.

The school attracted so much attention nationally that the Ford Motor company produced a complete moving picture showing all of us in our work.

A news cameraman "shot" us during the middle of the week and on Saturday before we left, we were the guests of the Ferris-Dunlap Equipment company who handle all the lines of the manufacturers' representatives.
 "My friends know," he said in conclusion, "that I've been a Fordson booster all along, but at Dallas I really saw the vision of what power farming can do to help the farmer and what the industrial Fordson can do to lower the cost of doing commercial or business jobs—and I realize now more than ever that the Leveille-Maher Motor company is rendering a real service every time another Fordson is sold."
 The Leveille-Maher Motor company is particularly elated since Mr. McFarland passed his final examination Saturday afternoon with flying colors.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By E. R. Waite, Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.
 That people who persistently buy from door-to-door peddlers help to scuttle the home city, which makes it possible for them to prosper.
 That it does them no good and they usually get articles inferior to what can be bought at the stores of the home city.
 That quality and price go hand in hand. Local merchants aim to handle only merchandise of standard quality, and if any manufacturer puts over inferior quality on them and they pass it on to you, they are easy to find and will make quick adjustment. When you look for the peddler for adjustment, he is usually gone to "no-one-knows-where."
 That people, by buying from peddlers, admit their lack of faith in their home city.
 That they brand themselves as a failure as a home-city-builder.
 Citizens who persistently buy from peddlers serve notice to their neighbors that they are helping to wreck the city they should love. They admit their failure as good citizens.
 Buy from the merchants of your home city. Don't pull down the business of your city by sending your money away to build up business for some other city.

FAMOUS WOMAN TELLS WHY WOMEN DEPEND ON G. F. P.

Health and Happiness of Women Returns So Quickly With Use of St. Joseph's G. F. P.
 If only everyone of the several hundred thousand girls and women, in the south alone, who are now using St. Joseph's G. F. P. could tell you right now all they know about its merits, how much pain and sickness would be spared you. They would do so gladly. They are proving this by the enthusiastic way in which many of them are coming out in public and telling their fellow-women what G. F. P. is doing to relieve them of pain and restore them to health and happiness.
 "The phenomenal success which St. Joseph's G. F. P. is now enjoying wherever it is being introduced," says the representative of the discoverers of G. F. P., herself a recognized authority on the health of women, "is due to its now proven power to overcome and stamp out catarrh of the generative organs—that dreaded malady which is the cause of nine out of every ten cases of those distressing headaches, pains in the sides, cramping spells, etc., which are commonly called 'female troubles.'"
 "The failure of so many medicines which promise relief from 'female disorders' is due to the fact that they do not rid woman's system of this malady which has been shown never to 'work itself out' of the body of its victims, but to grow and spread through the inflamed mucous membrane, causing intense pain and sickness, and if neglected long, resulting in kidney, liver or bladder troubles of the most serious nature."

Women Now Depend on St. Joseph's G. F. P. To Restore Their Vitality
