Odd, isn't it, that neither of the presidential candidates has thought of the scheme of carrying Iowa by corraling all the Iowa voters out in Southern California?

PLAN FOR CONFERENCE

WORKERS TO MEET THURSDAY

General Conference Methodist Church Will Bring Thousands Here.

The first meeting of the entertainment committee of the First Methodist church to plan for the general conference—which will be held here November 14 to 19, inclusive, when several thousand Methodist ministers will be the guests of Ranger—will be held at the church at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, general chairman of the committee, said that plans in regard to the conference would be formulated at the meeting Thursday.

The first problem to be considered by the committee is finding homes for the visiting ministers to stay during the five days' duration of the meeting.

Following this, the transportation problem will be worked out and the entertainment will follow. Representatives of other churches in Ranger will be solicited to work with the Methodist church in arranging the many details.

Mrs. Hagaman has made appointments for the committee work, but said today that others would be made.

Members of the committee are as follows: circle No. 1, Mrs. C. D. Woods, chairman; Mmes. A. S. Riddle, C. E. May, A. B. Conway, Mills Davenport, E. F. Rust, Harold Durham; circle No. 2, Mrs. A. J. Rath, chairman; Mmes. Walter Harwell, E. H. Mills, John M. Gholson, Fred Warren, Olden, M. F. Peters, F. C. Lewis, W. C. Niver; circle No. 3, Mrs. O. D. Phillips, chairman; Mmes. L. H. Wellen, Roy Jameson, J. T. Killingsworth, R. L. Hodges, R. R. Stafford.

More Publicity, But Less Pay for Women Attorneys

DALLAS, Oct. 3.—The disadvantages to a woman in the active practice of law far outweigh the advantages, according to Mrs. Sarah C. Menezes, assistant United States district attorney.

If a woman would be successful with a career she must be able and willing to fight her own battles with those who would impose upon her because she is a woman, she told members of the Dallas Women's Law Study club.

"You will find that the biggest men are the most willing to accept you, and the most gracious," Mrs. Menezes said. "It is the mental pee-wee, the two-by-four man who will not accept you."

Women lawyers have ceased to be a novelty, she said.

"That is a blessing, although even at the present time, the woman receives more publicity than the man and less pay for the same work," she added.

Every man, as well as every woman, should have a fair understanding of the structure of the United States government, Mrs. Menezes said. This understanding should include what efforts are necessary before an amendment to the constitution can be nullified, what powers states have, what laws congress can and cannot pass, and what the constitution provides.

BROWN VOTES ROAD BONDS

BROWNWOOD, Oct. 3.—The Brown county road bond election here Monday gave a majority of 4,181 for 1,425 against a bond issue of $1,050,000 for paved roads, figures Tuesday showed.

Mother of Five Has Disappeared

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 3.—Police were asked today to search for Mrs. Jennie Berry, 28, of Wichita Falls, Texas, the mother of five children who has been missing here since a week ago.

Bargains to Be Found on Dairy Dollar Day Here

Saturday will be Dairy Dollar Day in Ranger. The first Saturday of each month is so designated here. And the array of bargains offered by the merchants will draw an unusually large number of people to town on that occasion. The bargains will be told in Friday's issue of The Times.

R. C. ELEVEN WILL PLAY IN WEATHERFORD

Rangers Will Meet One of Heaviest Teams in State Friday.

With the exit of the Ranger Junior college eleven to Weatherford Friday football teams here will be out of the city for the week-end clashes.

The college eleven will open the season at Weatherford with the strong junior college team of that city, Friday afternoon. When the "City of Flowing Gold" representatives meet the Coyotes, they will run into a lone that averages 183 pounds and a backfield that hits the scales at an average of 175 pounds.

In the backfield, Harrison makes the scale indicator fly to 200. Gibson at quarter, the lightest man on the team, weighs 160. Thompson and Hughes, 170 pounds each, are filling the half back positions.

The Coyotes have played one game this year. They lost to Trinity University 31 to 0 last week.

Coach Trickey Ward of the Ranger aggregation will launch a team against the Coyotes that is made of football veterans for the most part.

In the backfield will be found Joe Taylor, veteran high school halfback, punter and passer, and Alfred Glenn, member of the 1925 semi-finalist football team of the Ranger high school.

In the Ranger line-up can be figured Boswell and Berry of North Side high school who enrolled here last month.

In addition the junior college team will be made up of Roy Wilson, member of last year's team, Bill Knight, Ray Knott, who measures to an average with the Coyote beef, and two recruits from Lanier college of Fort Worth.

The complete line up which will start in the game Friday has not been announced by Coach Ward.

A few years ago when Ward was starting on the once strong Weatherford high school team who played "side by side" with Jack Hill of Weatherford.

Friday afternoon Ward will launch a team against the teammates of the same Hill. The man after remaining out of school for a number of years, has returned to Weatherford and enrolled for this year's work and will see action in the game Friday, the Coyote coach said today.

ROTARY-LION MEET PLANNED

A joint banquet and meeting of the Rotary club and Lions club will be held at the Gholson hotel one week from Thursday night, it was announced at the regular luncheon of the Rotary club held today.

On account of the joint session, the regular luncheon of the organization will not be held next Wednesday noon.

The program for today was in charge of the boys' work committee, composed of Walter Harwell, C. E. May and J. C. Smith. The Rev. Bruce Boney of Cisco was the principal speaker, taking as his subject, "The Boy."

M. K. Collier made a short talk on Fire Prevention week, which is to be observed Oct. 7 to 13.

ACCUSE 2 CAPTAINS OF GRAFT

Big Bank Deposits of Police Are Investigated in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—The arrest of two more police captains who are alleged to have made fortunes by accepting bribes from bootleggers and saloon keepers, was promised today by District Attorney John Monaghan.

Monaghan refused to reveal names of the men who would be caught in his investigation but said records had been found proving that one had bank deposits and securities totaling $42,000 while another had assets of $81,000.

The district attorney said one captain had withdrawn his $42,000 from banks, presumably because the grand jury investigation had turned in his direction.

CARNES STARTS BACK TO FACE ATLANTA CASE

Former Church Treasurer Financed Movie Ambitions of Two Pretty Girls.

WINNIPEG, Canada, Oct. 3.—Clinton S. Carnes, former treasurer of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist church, left Winnipeg for Atlanta at 10:15 a. m. today to face charges of embezzlement.

The one-time churchman who admitted that he was the "angel" of two pretty movie apprentices, was said to be anxious to clear up the financial entanglement which involves from $150,000 to $1,000,000.

Humantarianism of Smith Lauded

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The humanitarian side of Governor Alfred E. Smith, as interpreted in terms of legislative enactments in the state of New York is presented impressively by Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, wife of the Missouri democratic senator, and recently notified by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of her appointment to serve on the women's advisory committee during the presidential campaign.

"One of the finest things that Governor Smith has done," Mrs. Hawes says, "has been the limiting of the hours of labor for women and children in industry and correcting many of the evils of such work. Another thing that has impressed me in his legislative record was the child welfare act he helped to place on the statute books of New York state, providing for pensions for widowed mothers, enabling them to keep their children in their homes instead of putting them in institutions."

"I understand he has sponsored many improvements in this act, which today makes it the most enlightened of its kind in the country. He has assisted in the children's code law of New York state which alone would be a fine monument to his kindness and wisdom—a thing which every woman will admire and understand."

School Children Will Hear Sousa

ABILENE.—According to advance information from over West Texas, high school bands and other students and children from this section of the state will gather here on the afternoon of October 18 to hear the special children's program to be given by the world's most famous musical organization, Sousa's band.

This special program, which is to be followed by the regular concert in the evening, will be given at the Simmons University auditorium under the local direction of the Simmons Cowboy band.

Definite announcement was made by the Cowboy band managers this week that the Eagle Band of Abilene high school will be led by the world famous Sousa in one march in a prelude to the afternoon program.

New York Republicans have nominated Attorney General Albert Ottinger for governor.

AMERICAN CAPTIVE IS SLAIN

Mining Engineer, Seized by Sandino Forces, Is Found Dead.

MANAGUA, Nic., Oct. 3.—George Marshall, American mining engineer, captured by Sandino rebels in April, died in the middle of Nicaragua near Mastawas, it became known today.

Officials identified the body of a man found near Mastawas, as that of Marshall, through a description furnished them by Mrs. Marshall who at present is residing in Porto Rico.

The identification cleared up the mystery that had marked the disappearance of Marshall after Sandino rebels raided the La Luz mine, on April 12. Marshall was manager of the gold mine and had one American assistant. The other American escaped but the rebels seized Marshall and took over the mine. For a brief time the rebels attempted to work the valuable gold deposit but finding this impossible, fled after burning most of the mine structures. Marshall was taken with them.

Bride, 13 Years Old, Vanishes

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 3.—William Edwards of Dallas, was held today for Dallas authorities. He is said to be wanted in connection with the marriage of a 13-year-old Dallas girl and faces a charge of swearing falsely as to her age in the marriage certificate.

Edwards told police he would waive extradition. The man claimed that the young girl with whom he eloped was kidnapped from him on the highway between Hot Springs and Little Rock. He said he came here hoping to locate his child-bride. He told police that an unknown man abducted his wife while their car stopped at a filling station.

DOUBLE-BREADED COAT WILL COST HERB VOTES

Mr. Hoover wears double-breasted suits. Governor Smith wears single-breasted suits. This means that all voting males who have struggled vainly with the intricacies of a double-breasted coat and who therefore resent same bitterly, will vote for Smith. This will mean 7,420,000 additional votes for the New York governor, which in addition to the votes from 41 other states he will carry, will make sure his election by a slight majority.

Never trust a man in a double-breasted suit. Smith comes frankly before the people in a single-breasted suit, with the coat left open. It is impossible to conceal a Teapot Dome lease in the pocket of a single-breasted suit when the coat is open. The people know that all Governor Smith has in his vest is a watch (his own watch, not one obtained by republican methods), a few cigars and a little address book containing numbers he has got at one time or another, for instance those of young Teddy Roosevelt, Ogden Mills, Tom Hefflin, and the New York republican legislature. Mr. Hoover, on the other hand, wears his double-breasted coat tightly buttoned. Open that coat, Herbert Hoover! The American people like to see their presidential candidates' vests.

LEGLESS ARE LEG-MAKERS

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia.—Artificial legs are manufactured by legless men in a Council Bluffs factory. Seven men are employed in the plant and they turn out more than 3,500 legs a year. Three of the employees are without both legs and the others have one leg amputated.

"These legless men," G. A. Johnson, owner of the company, said, "seem to understand the making of artificial limbs better than those who have never been without the use of their legs."

WINTERS PLAYS RANGER

BULLDOGS PLAY AWAY FROM HOME

Cars Are Needed Thursday Morning to Take Team to Winters.

Owners of Automobiles who desire to transport the members of the Ranger high school football team to Winters Thursday morning, are asked to be at the high school about 8 o'clock in the morning.

Coach Esker Curtis, in announcing the game today, said a number of automobiles would be needed and the number of men he carried through a stiff week's practice the other an inter-sectional affair—the Bulldogs will go to foreign territory to whip into shape for the first conference tilt.

While other teams in the Oil Belt are engaged in hard games—one a conference struggle and the other an inter-sectional affair—the Bulldogs will go to foreign territory to whip into shape for the first conference tilt.

A hard week of scrimmage with the junior college team has placed the Bulldog aggregation in better shape than heretofore. The members of the squad have gone through a stiff week's practice since the Central-Ranger game last Friday and are ready for the final invasion of Class B territory.

Coach Curtis said last week that due to the number of games in the Oil Belt this week, including the Breckenridge-Eastland, and the Cisco-El Paso and the Simmons-Texas Christian University games, his crew would remain idle over the week-end. He decided, however, that one more clash away from home wouldn't hurt the Bulldogs and he matched the game with the Winters team.

This game will give several of the prospective Bulldogs a second, and even a third, baptism of fire. They will put to a fine edge on those who have already cinched places on the team, and will bring out the results of a week's workout since the Central game, in which the Bulldogs showed up unfavorably without the aid of their captain, Garland Himmman, who was out part of the game.

The starting lineup which Curtis will launch against the Winters team will be practically the same as in other games: Hithell and Hamilton, halves; G. Himmman, full; Hammett, quarter; Mills and Bowden, ends; Bumpers and Mitchell, guards; P. Himmman and Love or Blackmond, tackles and Bohannon, center.

The Winters bunch is strong in its circle and is expected to give the class A representation a fight on its home territory.

The team will leave here Thursday morning. The game will start about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

HUGE GASSER AT PALESTINE HAS COME IN

Traffic is Stopped Mile From Well. Making 50,000,000 Feet.

PALESTINE, Oct. 3.—A gasser, flowing 50,000,000 cubic feet a day blew in early today. It is the Robert No. 1 well of the Humble Oil and Refining extension of the Anderson county field. It caused intense excitement.

The roar of the well could be heard at Meches, five miles away. Guards were placed on all roads a mile from the well and stopped all traffic as a matter of fire protection. Men are working around the well wearing ear pads and gas masks, endeavoring to cut off the flow with a packer.

The gasser is believed to extend the field about a mile.

Public Sentiment Aroused Against The Frat System

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 3.—Grave concern was felt today for the safety of the fraternity and sorority system at the University of Texas following the death of Nolte McElroy, student from Houston, who was killed by an electric shock during a fraternity initiation.

Elite members of Greek letter clubs openly express fear that the university board of regents or the next general assembly may legislate their clubs out of existence.

Public sentiment also was a factor to be considered. From every section of the state came protests against hazing of any kind and should public antipathy increase, drastic action against the fraternal system may result. Only three schools in Texas allow Greek letter societies, these being S. M. U., Southwestern and the University of Texas. The stand of the board of regents at the meeting this week indicated strong sentiment against social orders as represented by fraternities and sororities and the investigation ordered by the board may result in one of two things—namely, much stricter regulation of initiation or abolition of the fraternal system.

Oh, Woodman Spare That Tree Is Idea

AVIGNON.—The municipality of Avignon proved today that, in France at least, tradition is stronger than progress.

Navigating companies operating barges on the Rhone asked that the famous Saint Benezet bridge here, almost as well known in song and history as London bridge, be torn down because it was a hindrance to ships.

The municipal council met and decided that the bridge was a national monument and the ships must get under it the best they could. So French children in their nursery songs will continue to repeat:

"On the bridge of Avignon, All the folks dance round and round."

WILL SINK WITHIN 15 MINUTES

Is Message Sent by Ship Near Cape Cod; Aid Rushes.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—The American-Hawaiian steamer American reported to the tropical radio station this afternoon that she had reached the steam trawler Fillet at 1:15 p. m., and was standing by.

The American's message did not give the position of the sinking trawler but cross radio bearings indicated that it was about 100 miles off Nantucket.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The steam trawler, Fillet, was reported sinking rapidly with a heavy list today off Cape Cod, Mass. It sent an S. O. S. that it could not remain afloat more than 15 minutes.

At the same time the American Hawaiian steamer, America, flashed word to shore station that it was steaming to the Fillet's aid and would reach the distressed vessel in a few minutes. The Fillet's distress signal was picked up by two stations of the Radio Marine Corporation of America.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Radio reports received at the offices of the United States Steamship lines today said the Dutch freighter Celoeno was sinking in mid-ocean at a point approximately 1,160 miles northeast of Cape Race, Newfoundland.

The report came from the line's steamer America which said it was speeding to the ship's rescue although it was at that time approximately 280 miles northeast of the Dutch ship.

First reports of the ship's condition came from the White Star liner Laurentic, proceeding from Montreal to Liverpool. The message from the Celoeno was brief and said the ship was sinking and asked for immediate assistance.

Later a report from the America said it was proceeding to the Dutch freighter's assistance with all speed. It reported that the vessel was sinking in a northwest gale in a high rough sea.

TUNNEY WEDS IN OLD ROME

ROME, Italy, Oct. 3.—In a simple service before only a few friends, Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion, was married today to Miss Marie Josephine Lauder, American society girl and heiress.

The civil ceremony took place in a drawing room on the first floor of the Hotel De Russie. Only a few friends and Italian officials watched as Tunney, the former office clerk and Marine—was married to the girl who had been his inspiration when he started to amass a fortune as a boxer.

Those who accompanied Miss Lauder on her trip from the United States, with the addition of Thornton Wilder, the author, James D. Mahoney, Tunney's private secretary, and several others, numbering about 25 in all, were the only members of the wedding party with the exception of the Italian officials.

ROME, Oct. 3.—Gene Tunney and his bride were subjected to a hostile demonstration today when they left the hotel De Russie after their marriage.

The demonstration was understood to have been organized by disgruntled photographers who resented Tunney's persistent refusal to let them take pictures and threatened to break their cameras.

Grand Jury Will Hear Clark Story

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—Sanford Clark will appear before the Los Angeles grand jury today to tell his story of the Riverside county "murder farm."

Clark will appear as a witness for the state, which seeks indictment of Gordon Stewart Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Louise Northcott, held in connection with the murder of John Doe, a Filipino, the district attorney said.

Clark, who accused Northcott of crimes and murders, told authorities the Filipino was killed in Los Angeles and his head taken to Riverside county where it was buried. The headless body was found on a road near Puente.

Officials declared the case against the mother and son was complete and that extradition papers would be prepared to bring them from Canada where they are held.

Juror's Excuse Is Unsuccessful

DALLAS, Oct. 3.—Judge W. H. Atwell, presiding over Federal court, heard a novel excuse, when jurors were being questioned to sit before a case.

One man said that he had "nervous spells" and that he had had a spell only the day before.

"You may serve until you have an attack," Judge Atwell said. "Then we will excuse you."

The attacks on the character, conduct and manners of a presidential candidate are nothing unique in American politics.

Four of the greatest presidents in our history underwent similar ordeals.

"Every dissolute intriguer, looser liver, false coiner and prison bird, every hair-brained, loud-talking demagogue; every speculator, scoffer and atheist was a follower of Jefferson, and Jefferson was himself the incarnation of their theories," wrote Henry Adams. The author of the Declaration of Independence after entering the realm of politics was pilloried by New England parsons in stacks of sermons, says one writer who has delved into the matter.

Jefferson was pictured as telling boastful stories in his carpet slippers with his hair uncombed and his beard unshaven, his linen soiled, his corduroy trousers shabby and his waistcoat threadbare. Whigs referred to Andrew Jackson as the "Tennessee barbarian." They called him illiterate and ridiculed his spelling. He was assailed as a rowdy frontiersman of ungovernable passions, a duelist and a murderer.

And whom do you think this language, appearing in a newspaper something more than half a century ago referred to?—a slang-whanging stump orator of a class which every party has and of which every party is ashamed. None other than Abraham Lincoln. The New York Herald sneered at him as "a fourth-class lecturer who can't speak good grammar." An English writer visiting America said "Not what is called a 'gentleman.'" The governor of Massachusetts described Lincoln as a rowdy; another commentator said Lincoln's stories were vulgar, and "low" was an adjective freely applied to Lincoln. Charles Sumner, Massachusetts senator, said "the western barbarians had invaded the white house."

Nor did the wives of the presidents escape the poisoned arrows of hate and ridicule. Of Mrs. Jackson it was said that she smoked a cornob pipe and could not utter a grammatical sentence. Of Mrs. Lincoln the snobs said she was "impossibly provincial and crude."

Older members of the present generation can recall that Grover Cleveland was denounced as a coarse politician devoted to beer, pig's feet and poker.

If politics is not getting any better, at least it is not worse than in some of the other national campaigns when the dignity of the office was ignored in the blind zeal of detractors to ruin the name of great men.

Negro Gives Sen. Simmons Welcome To 'Party of God'

Special to The Times.

DALLAS, Oct. 3.—As a result of a Republican-Populist combine W. Lee Persons, a negro, was elected to membership in the North Carolina legislature about thirty years ago. Emboldened by that stroke of fortune Persons became candidate for congress but was soundly defeated by an aroused and outraged white electorate. Persons found Republican sympathy in Washington and since has been on the federal payroll but the "white folks" have heard from some "white folks" down South "has turned Persons' thoughts back to "Noth Cahlinah." All over the United States in the south by whippers and in the north in loud tones Republicans are telling the negroes that a "Hovah victory" will win equality for the negroes. The Republican candidate for president finally was compelled to rebuke those who pleaded for his election as a slap at Catholicism but he has not done anything to even indicate that his thoughts are not in line with those expressed by the North Carolina negro. The negro wrote a letter to North Car.

Tolerance Urged For Virginia By Sen. Carter Glass

Special to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—In his speech for the democratic nominees, delivered at Alexandria, Va., Thursday night, Sept. 20, Senator Carter Glass of that state, life-long member of the Methodist church of Lynchburg, had this to say respecting religious liberty: "If there are any two religious denominations on this hemisphere that ought to stand responsible and immovable for religious freedom it is the Methodist and the Baptist for no two men on earth ever had the meaning of persecution more than John Wesley and Roger Williams, or if some Baptist would prefer I could go back further in history to the founding of his church by John the Baptist—he had his head cut off because of religious intolerance."

"Here in old Virginia, the very cradle of civil and religious liberty, we should have this issue ejected. Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the democratic party, considered the greatest Virginian that ever breathed, was the founder of religious freedom, when he came to lie down and die with his own hand he wrote the inscription for his monument. Said nothing about being a great minister in this country to France; said nothing about being the greatest secretary of state of all times; said nothing about being the honored vice president of the United States and governor of Virginia, said nothing about two terms as president of the United States, but he wrote "Author of the Declaration of Independence and the Virginia Statute of Religious Freedom and the founder of the University of Virginia."

"My friends if we, in Virginia, have so far departed from the faith of that great man as a legacy as to defeat Al Smith on a religious issue, we had better send some of those vandals to Monticello on the seventh day of November to carve from his tomb the inscription which he wrote there with his own hand."

olina that was published in the Asheville Citizen and has been widely commented on editorially by such newspapers as the Nashville Banner and the Chattanooga Times. The Banner published an editorial under the caption "Black Cloud Grows." The letter of the negro Persons follows:

"I welcome the accession of Senator Simmons to our ranks. Conversion is better late than never. Long years ago we were antagonists, but we never struck below the belt. Today I welcome him with open arms to the grand old party of God and morality. After all these years of defeat and disaster for the black man's party in the south I can see us again coming into our own. Not a great many of us remain alive who can recall the days when black men sat in the chairs of state in the southern capitols. Those days have long been gone, but, bless God, I can see them returning. It is said that a house divided against itself cannot stand, and now I see the white people of the south dividing.

"I wish to use the newspapers of North Carolina to urge my people to get behind Senator Simmons and support him. What is true in North Carolina may be true in other southern states. Just let us get control of the state machinery this time and Mr. Hoover in the white house will give us such help as will wipe out all the laws in the south which will keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man."

Drowns In Pool In School Yard

By United Press.

M'ALLEN, Oct. 3.—Edward Nichols, 18, was drowned while swimming in a pool on the school ground at Schurer, Tuesday night. Artificial respiration was applied for almost two hours. The boy was said to be an expert swimmer. Witnesses said Nichols was probably seized with cramps.

GIRL'S LETTER FINDS MOTHER AFTER 2 YEARS

Town Postmaster Succeeds in Discovering Parent for Little Girl.

By United Press.
DES MOINES, Ia.—Thirteen-year-old Mildred Hewitt wanted to find her mother whom she hadn't heard from for two years. "Grandma don't want me anymore," she wrote to Postmaster Edwin J. Frisk here, explaining the situation at the home of her grandmother in Detroit and asked the postmaster to help her find her mother.

"I haven't any money but a stamp," Mildred wrote. "So I can't hire a detective to find her. Will you help me?"

Despite limited clues, the postmaster located the girl's mother. When told that her daughter was looking for her, the mother was overjoyed.

"For two years I have been writing to her and she never answered. I guess Mildred didn't get the letters," she said.

Mildred's father and mother were divorced several years ago and the mother is married again to a Des Moines man. Mildred has three half-sisters she has never seen who are anxiously waiting for their sister in Detroit to come to Des Moines.

Corpus Is Scene of Great Fishing

CORPUS CHRISTI, Oct. 3.—With the coming of the autumnal equinox and the consequent rising of the tide in the Laguna Madre and Corpus Christi bay, the fall fishing season in Corpus Christi is now well under way and the most experienced fishermen along the water front predict that fishing will be unusually good during the fall months.

Both red fish and speckled trout are being caught in large numbers near the Alta Vista reef which is located about three miles off the shore in Corpus Christi bay; they are being taken at Indian Point reef and along the many channels skirting Flour Bluff to the south.

Fishermen returning to Corpus from short trips across the bay to Shamrock Cove, the Bulkhead, Kate's Hole and the Packery channel report that trout and redfish are biting and that pike of the large variety are being taken in more limited quantities.

Concreting Canals For Irrigation In Valley Progresses

By United Press.

M'ALLEN, Oct. 3.—Another water district in the Lower Rio Grande valley has turned its attention towards the concreting of canals which are used to furnish water for the irrigation of Valley lands. The latest district to announce its intention of voting bonds for this purpose is known as the Donna district. Already petitions have been circulated and sufficient signatures have been secured to assure the call of the election.

The amount to be voted has been set by the board of directors of the district at $1,350,000. The first district in the valley to concrete canals was the McAllen district. This district voted $75,000 in bonds which have been sold and the money used in concreting a part of the canals. The next district was the Mission district which voted $1,500,000 for the work. Of this amount $800,000 in bonds has been sold and the remainder of the bonds will be sold near the end of the year. The Pharr San Juan district recently voted $3,000,000 in bonds for the concreting of the canals. Of the amount voted, the attorney general has approved $1,000,000

Six Thousand Pounds of Shark

"A whale of a shark!" said Captain Hugo Paladini, master of a Pacific Coast fishing trawler, when his crew hauled aboard this 6000-pound shark after a five-hour battle 250 miles off Point Reyes, Calif. Twenty shots were fired into its body and the fish leaped as high as 50 feet out of the water several times during the struggle.

One Masculine Job Women Can't Take Is Cartoon Work

Special to The Times.

NEW YORK.—The ladies—bless 'em—may spurn the home to become presidents of coal companies, governors, railroad engineers and transoceanic flyers these tosy-turvy days, but there's one male job they can't fill—they can't cartoon worth a hoot!

"There are some who make doll sketches to illustrate the comic ideas of others, but I do not know of a single one who may be classed as a cartoonist," declares Fontaine Fox, one of the foremost comic artists.

Oddly enough, Fox believes that women fail as humorists because they can't take humor seriously. "Where humor is concerned, men are the sterner sex and women the light-hearted sex," he asserts. "If a man tells a story or gets off a gag of any kind, usually he does it solemnly in the intense manner of an Indian trying to spear a fish through a hole in the ice. The man is thinking of the effect on his audience."

"But when a woman does this, she bursts out with gay little phrases before she is half through. 'You'll die when you hear this,' she will say. 'This is just screaming.' As she finishes she will challenge you by demanding, 'Don't you love it?'"

"Most women, I am willing to bet, laugh over their typewriters or their drawing boards when they do any humor. No male humorist does that. He is more likely to weep."

Moreover, a woman's sense of humor is spotty, according to a syndicate editor who sells the comic drawings of the foremost humorous illustrators. The home and married life are among the richest sources for comic material, he points out, "but no woman can see anything funny in married life. To women, it either becomes boring or tragic after a few years. And they cannot understand the lives of small boys well enough to transform their activities into daily laughs."

Fox maintains that being funny in pictures is one of the world's most serious callings. He admits that he cannot be funny day after day. Usually he tries to cram the week's work into three good days so as to escape the dull ones.

and this part of the bonds will be sold sometime before November 1. The remainder will be sold as the work progresses, according to the officers of the district.

The districts voting bonds for concreting of canals realize this is the only method by which the problem of seepage can be overcome and according to prominent engineers in the valley, unless the districts had taken steps to relieve the situation, it would have been only a few years until the lands which are poorly drained would have been water logged and unfit for the raising of citrus.

EL PASO WILL GIVE CISCO A GENUINE TEST

Game With Heavy, Experienced Westerners Friday Getting Attention.

"Just how good are the Cisco Lobos, anyway?"

This is a question that fans throughout the Oil Belt are asking and they are expecting their query to be answered Friday at 3:30 when El Paso invades the Big Dam city.

Now El Paso has a real football team, quite different from the light, inexperienced class B schools that Cisco has slaughtered in early season games. Fourteen of the El Pasoans are letter men and when it comes to weight, they will have an advantage of several pounds to the man, according to information from the far western city.

Consequently if the Lobos defeat El Paso, then it can be safely assumed that Cisco has an eleven that just at present is entitled to foremost consideration in the district championship race.

A great outpouring of fans, especially from the southern area—Gorman, Rising Star, Comanche, DeLeon, Stephenville, Dublin and Cross Plains—is anticipated for the game at Cisco and a crowd of 5,000 would not be a surprise.

—EL PASO, Oct. 3.—Approximately 10,000 spectators Saturday night saw the smooth-running high school Tiger football machine pound and batter its way to a 26 to 0 victory over the Sul Ross college Cubs from Alpine.

The huge crowd almost filled the big bowl to capacity, and hundreds of other fans stood on "Poverty Hill" during the evening to see El Paso's first night football game at reduced prices. The field was lighted perfectly and every play could be seen without difficulty.

The Bengals were in top form, and while the Cubs put up a stiff battle, the young charges of Coach Ed "Doodlebug" Wafer and "Kewpie" Clyde Wafer were never in real danger.

"Nig" Osborne, co-captain of the Tigers, grabbed the lion's share of the honors during the evening, crashing through the Cub line and skirting the ends for consistent gains.

The Tigers as usual, were offering splendid interference and "Wee Willie" Schreffler, at quarterback handled the team capably in addition to turning in several flashy runs.

By whitewashing the Cubs the Tigers managed to keep their slate clean this year, as no team has yet succeeded in scoring on them.

"Koots" Simon, Tiger half, started the fireworks with a neat 48-yard run on a "cut back" play soon after the first quarter was under way, being caught by the Alpine safety man after he had placed the ball within striking distance of the goal.

Osborne on the following play tore around right end to score the first tally of the game.

Schissler Won't Have a Captain For His Team

The Oregon Aggies, since the advent of Paul J. Schissler as head coach, have not had a regularly-elected captain of the football team and this practice won't be broken this year. Coach Schissler, above, appoints one of the seniors to the team captain for each game. He is afraid that college politics might enter into electing a captain as it has in many other schools with the direct result that the eleven would suffer.

Hooks and Slides

A Beautiful Friendship

Mickey Walker has become somewhat of a factor in the light heavyweight class since he flattened Armund Emanuel.

The publicity that attended his victory over the overly advertised Emanuel put him in line for a "nature" with Tommy Loughran.

Tex Rickard is fond of those "natural" things and as he is too much of a business man to permit personal prejudices to interfere with the prosperity of his board of directors it was thought that his feud with Jack Kerns, Walker's manager, might be settled amicably.

When Kerns was asked if he would bury the hatchet he said he would. But he added—"Right down in Rickard's skull!"

He said he had a better way of revenge than the commission a fassault and that he would halm his own sore spots by forcing Rickard to come through with 250 grand if the promoter wanted to use Walker.

A Slap at Sharkey

In spite of every good reason to believe that Walker is through he may go on and even become a person to be considered in the tangled heavyweight situation. There is one thing certain. If he can hold up his end he will get some great managing from Kerns.

Kerns knows how to pick spots for his fighters, spots that are the biggest blare of publicity.

There is no better judge of fighters in the business than Kerns and it can be taken as more than idle chatter when Kerns says he is interested principally now in luring Jack Sharkey into a match with Walker.

When it comes to holding up his end of the firm, Walker has done quite well since he hooked up with Kerns.

It must be that he is another iron man as Harry Greb was and that the ordinary rules of living do not apply to him.

Washington Church Victory Sunday To Be Observed October 21 In the Eastland County Christian Churches

Plans for the erection of a National City Christian church at Washington, D. C., are being brought before the Christian churches of Eastland county this week, looking forward to the observance of Washington Church Victory Sunday, on October 21. On this day, set apart by the International convention of the Disciples of Christ (Christian church) held at Columbus, Ohio in April, the erection of this representative church. A goal of $500,000 has been set for the day. Already more than one million dollars have been raised toward the fund.

The building of the National City Christian church is a part of a three-year program of the Disciples, anticipating the celebration of the nineteenth hundredth anniversary of Pentecost in 1930. It is the plan that the program of evangelization now being carried on by the communication will culminate in the dedication of this monumental building in the nation's capital at the World Convention of Disciples to be held in that city in 1930.

The site for the church comprises about 50,000 square feet of ground facing Thomas Circle, at the junction of Massachusetts Ave. and Fourteenth Street, six blocks from the White House. It is considered to be the finest available site for a down-town church in the city of Washington.

The general plans for the building, designed by John Russell Pope of New York City, have been approved by the building committee. The structure will be of the American Classic style of architecture and will be a fitting companion to the great government buildings and monuments of the capital city. The choice of the architectural style is also in keeping with the recommendation of the art commission of Washington that future buildings of an imposing character be of classic design. A tower, one hundred fifty feet in height rising beyond a colonnade of twelve classic columns, will be the most arresting feature of the building. The building group will include, beside the house of worship, a modern educational unit and a small prayer chapel.

Areal, state, county and local church organization is outlined for the observance of Washington Church Victory Sunday.

Joe A. Carson, associated with E. L. Day, director of the work in the southwestern area, composed of Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico is visiting local church leaders and forming the working organization for the movement in this county. The program in this state is sponsored by a state council with the following membership: D. C. Reed, Austin; Arthur A. Everts, L. N. D. Wells, Mrs. B. A. McKinney, Ben M. Edwards, Graham Frank, W. W. Phares, F. W. O'Malley of Dallas; L. D. Anderson, Van Zant Jarvis, E. M. Waiter, Fort Worth; Harry G. Knowles, Houston and C. A. Johnson of Brownwood.

The national movement is being directed by H. H. Harmon of Indianapolis. Associated with Mr. Harmon in the direction of the field activities are H. P. Shaw, of San Francisco, and A. D. Harmon of Cable, Wisconsin.

Fast Backfield to Start Saturday in Game With Simmons

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES.

FORT WORTH.—Hard scrimmage was on the program for the Texas Christian University Frogs the first part of this week. Coach Matty Bell is driving his charges through long hours of practice, whipping his team into shape for their game Saturday with the Simmons Cowboys at Breckenridge.

Reports from the Abilene camp show that the West Texas team will have one of the strongest combinations in years and with Coach Frank Bridges, former Baylor mentor, dictating plays and defenses, it is certain that the Purple will have a merry battle.

Emerging from their 21-0 victory over the strong Daniel Baker Hill Billies, the Frogs are anything but over-confident. The first quarter play of the Christians last Saturday was disquieting to Frog fans, and Coaches Matty Bell and Ed Kubale will put in some hard licks during the practice periods this week to iron out some of the difficulties.

There is still a great indecision as to who will start for the Frogs. Matty has several men for each position, and in most cases it is a toss-up as to which one will get the first call. It is probable that he will start his "fast" backfield, sacrificing some weight to speed and passing ability.

AUSTIN—Bids opened for construction of new unit to negro hospital to cost about $50,000.

CLEBURNE—Local Chamber of Commerce will erect two highway signs at road junctions here.

OIL BELT GAMES. Thursday. Ranger at Winters. Friday. Eastland at Breckenridge. El Paso at Cisco. Coleman at Abilene. Big Spring at San Angelo. Brady at Brownwood. Ranger College-Weatherford College at Weatherford. Saturday. T. C. U.-Simmons at Breckenridge.

LINE OF THE MAVERICKS IS ALL SAME SIZE

None Big But None Small; Will Clash With Breckenridge Friday Afternoon.

Two more different teams than the Breckenridge Buckaroos and the Eastland Mavericks it would be difficult to imagine.

The Buckaroos are big—the line from tackle to tackle averages 177 pounds. The Eastland team is one of the lightest class A teams in the state.

The Buckaroos are almost entirely a veteran team while Eastland has only three letter men.

But while Breckenridge gave an impression of strength in the only game that this writer saw the Green machine play, there was a lack of speed manifest. And it is in the possession of speed and spirit that Eastland excels.

The teams we are contrasting—as probably all our readers know—will meet Friday afternoon at Breckenridge in the first official game of the season in the Oil Belt district.

Despite the difference in weight, the Maverick line is going to show lots of ability, in the judgment of Eastland fans. While none of the men are giants, none of them are midgets either. In fact that line is composed of boys of a uniform size. They're all around 160—maybe a few pounds less but all about the same. There is Joe King at center. He's the captain and weighs 160. On one side is Moser, 160, and Taggart at the other guard, about the same. Daniel at tackle may weigh 165 and Mayo at the other tackle 170. Foster on end weighs 155 and Cheatham and Lobough not quite as much, we would guess.

That's not a heavy line but its fair-sized. Where most lines have exceptional weight, you will find that there are one or two fellows who weigh around 200 and this pulls the average up. Eastland's weight is spread out among seven men.

Tradition is going to help the Maverick line, too. For one thing, Joe King is going to try to uphold the great work of his brother who won three letters and was twice honored with the captaincy. Foster and Daniel were in the line last year and they know—and so do the others—that only seven first downs were made all season through the 1927 Maverick line. And last year's line was probably no heavier than the line was this season.

Something else: All of the Eastland linemen emerged from last week's game in good condition while two of the heavy Breckenridge linemen were in a crippled condition and could not be used in early season. If the Buckaroo coach throws them into the lineup against Eastland, he will be risking their re-injury and consequent absence from the crucial games against Abilene, Cisco and Ranger later on.

Perhaps you have been asking yourself, as you read this writeup, how can you classify Eastland as perhaps the lightest class A team in West Texas when the line is of reasonable weight?

The answer is of course the backfield. Allen, the fullback, is maybe 160 of this, but the other three are very light.

Corn Stalks, Peanut Shells and Other Farm Waste Found To Have High Value, Providing Food, Clothing and Shelter

American agricultural wastes, variously estimated at between 500,000,000 and 1,000,000,000 tons a year may eventually provide building material for our homes, part of the food we eat, cardboard containers to ship in, paper to write upon, clothes to wear and starch to iron them with, states Arthur Little of Cambridge, Mass., recently elected president of the British Society of Chemical Industry.

"The waste materials of agriculture," said Dr. Little, in an interview in Boston, "furnish an inexhaustible supply of raw material from which chemical research will develop an increasing number of valuable products of widely diversified use."

research to increase the industrial demand for farm products offers more promise to agriculture than any single proposal yet advanced," Dr. Little warns the farmers must not be led to expect that they will be made rich overnight.

Corstalks Gains Value

Chemistry has provided the processes, he said, but profitable mass production must yet be proved. Collection and transportation of waste materials, scattered as they are over wide areas, present a major engineering problem, he indicated.

"At the present moment," Dr. Little stated, "a very definite interest is concentrated on the processes involved in the profitable utilization of corstalks. It has, for instance, been demonstrated that from the stalks pure vegetable film is readily extracted in form available for papermaking and for such other cellulose products as rayon, photographic films and certain lacquers and finishes. The solution of the technical problems involved is relatively simple. The factors which will decide the commercial outcome, and which still require intensive study, are the economic ones of local supply, yields and costs."

Dr. Little pointed out also that several years ago his organization built a mill in Hawaii to manufacture from waste sugarcane the mulching paper used to cover the fields in the cultivation of sugar and pineapples. More recently, he said, a highly successful industry has been developed in Louisiana through the conversion of cane sugar bagasse to building board.

Even Peanut Shells Used

"What straw has been found usable for making corrugated board containers," Dr. Little continued, "Seed flax straw is yielding an excellent insulating material used in home building. Ground peanut hulls are providing fibrous fiber needed in building materials. Starch is being made from potato wastes with such profit that crop surpluses are being utilized. Fruit wastes are now converted into vegetable acids, oils and juices. Even their seeds are being used in industry. And vegetable fibers are at the present time being used abroad as binders for coal briquettes."

"True, waste materials which can be obtained from the farmer at a cost even as low as $1 a ton can hardly be handled economically in competition today with the vast piles of waste wood already available at the lumber mills, except by the most carefully worked-out transportation and handling systems. The cost of wood, however, is rising."

JOINT SESSION WILL BE HELD IN EASTLAND

School Teachers To Have Two-Day Meeting October 11 and 12. Program Announced.

(Eastland Telegram)

Eastland and Stephens counties will hold a joint school institute at the High School in Eastland, Thursday and Friday, October 12. It will be conducted by Mrs. Ula Brockman, county school superintendent of Stephens county, and Miss Beulah Speer, county school superintendent of Eastland county.

Dr. Musselman of Dallas, R. T. Ellis of Fort Worth, and Dr. Roberts, president of Randolph College at Cisco, will be on the program.

Meeting in general assembly at 9:30 a. m. Thursday, Oct. 11, in the Eastland high school, the Rev. F. E. Singleton, Methodist pastor at Eastland, will read a Scripture passage, and the invocation will be given by Pastor H. W. Wrye of the Eastland Church of Christ. Words of welcome will be delivered by Judge V. T. Seaberry and the response will be by F. H. Patterson of Parks. Music will be by Eastland home talent.

Beginning at 10:10 o'clock with an address by Dr. Roberts, the following program will occupy the attention of the institute: "Standard Tests," James F. Cox, Abilene.

Departmental: High School—directors, A. M. Linnert, Desdemona and T. H. James of Caddo. Address by Dr. D. Bittle, superintendent of Eastland schools, on "Correlation of Affiliated and Non-Affiliated Schools."

Intermediate—director, Mrs. Mae Underwood. Writing to be demonstrated by Mrs. Denman of Ranger.

Primary—directors, Miss Richardson of Caddo and Mrs. Fred Roberts of Rising Star. Writing to be demonstrated by Mrs. G. D. Holbrook of Ranger.

Luncheon at noon. General assembly with singing at 1 o'clock. Address, "Mental Hygiene and the Schools," L. T. Cook, superintendent of schools at Breckenridge.

Departmental: High School—(a), "Inventory of School Equipment," Mr. Ammon, Stephens county. (b), "Care of School Plant," O. C. Mason, superintendent at Gorman. (c), Round table discussion to be led by Lewis Smith of Olden.

Intermediate—(a), "Housekeeping and Beautifying the Grounds," W. W. Jarvis. (b), "Care of Free Text Books and Library," Mina Ayres, Red Gap.

Primary—(a), "How to Use Primary Equipment," Mrs. I. N. Poe, Ranger. (b), Round table discussion.

General assembly at 2:45, when Dr. Musselman will talk on amendments affecting education which are to be voted on in November.

Friday program. General assembly at 9:30. Responsive reading led by Rev. P. W. Walthall, pastor of the Christian Church, with invocation by the Rev. W. T. Turner, pastor Eastland Baptist Church. Music by Eastland home talent.

At 10:40 o'clock Dr. Musselman will talk on "Batting With the Latest 'Wrinkles' in the Educational Game." The concluding work of the institute will be: Departmental: Independent schools, round table discussion by W. H. Collins of Pioneer. Mrs. Brockman and Miss Speer will speak about "Rural Teachers Supervised." Lunch at noon, followed by a general assembly, when R. T. Ellis of Fort Worth, secretary of the Texas State Teachers As-

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Every one can read or failing that, knows what the words from the loudspeaker mean, must realize by now that this is a political campaign and that the candidates don't mean maybe.

Unless Al Smith loses his voice, it probably will figure as the hottest campaign since 1896. It is certainly eclipsing those of 1090, 1904 and 1908. The 1912 result was a foregone conclusion in which Taft and Roosevelt pasted each other while Wilson walked into the White House.

No one could have hoped for a hot campaign in 1916 with two austere intellectuals such as Hughes and Wilson leading the parties and the brave efforts of Coolidge in 1924, performing his defense of Wilsonism in 1920 brought no real fire from the Republicans.

In 1924 there was no attack at all insofar as the major parties were concerned and one candidate appeared about as colorless and conservative as the other.

On the surface, the present campaign seemed rather a disappointment from the standpoint of sensations up to the time Smith reached Omaha. It looked as if the candidates might act like Davis and Coolidge in 1924, performing like a couple of wedding cakes and inspiring nobody, while a lot of dirty work went on under the surface as usual. But suddenly things began to happen.

Within 24 hours, Smith had blown off the roof of all hopes that it would be a nice, sweet, respectable, impersonal campaign, the G. O. P. headquarters here was having convulsion fits. Candidate Charlie Curtis had been hoodled in Iowa—of all places—and had gone up in the air only to descend on Tammany with both feet and Big Bill Borah was rampaging into the lists to bombard Smith with the same kind of henfruit he had hurled at Hoover.

It was to be sure, a swell start and the hearts of Washington correspondents thrilled for about the first time this year.

Hoover headquarters here was not frightened, but was distinctly disturbed. Apparently the folks there had mistaken Smith for Little Lord Fauntleroy. They had supposed Smith knew that he had no business chasing the farmers, that it wasn't cricket to throw tin cans, rocks, eggs, bricks, vegetables and other such material in a presidential contest and that the Emily Posts of politics unanimously agreed as to the barbaric enormity of ever mentioning one's opponent by name.

Yet Smith had done all these things since the next day was one of the heavy conferences, personal and telephonic, at Hoover headquarters. Obviously, this new method of campaigning introduced by the irreverent Mr. Smith had to be met.

No candidate can remain long erect on a pedestal when the other fellow starts pelting him as Smith pelts.

Hoover probably received more advice in one day than he had ever had in one month of his life. Eastland conservatives demanded that he jump all over Smith for his radical promises to the farmers, while western agrarians urged that he go Smith one better.

The upshot was that the Republican board of strategy decided the best possible answer to Smith's Omaha speech was a counter-attack. Senator Borah, billed for a speech at Detroit was given the cue and presumably supplied with brickbats. It was an instance of fast, straight thinking, for no man on the Republican firing line was better fitted to lead off this offensive defense than Borah. And he did his stuff. His prepared speech as released to newspapers was merely a eulogy to Hoover; his real speech lambasted Al.

Of course Borah and the other brigadiers can't do it all. Commander-in-chief Hoover, in the opinion of most political observers, cannot ignore Smith and his tactics. There is danger that Smith will make the campaign his kind of a fight, which means that it is becoming a grand show and may soon become a straight-out battle of personalities in which Smith's experience will count.

FAST BACKFIELD TO START SATURDAY IN GAME WITH SIMMONS

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES.

FORT WORTH.—Hard scrimmage was on the program for the Texas Christian University Frogs the first part of this week. Coach Matty Bell is driving his charges through long hours of practice, whipping his team into shape for their game Saturday with the Simmons Cowboys at Breckenridge.

Reports from the Abilene camp show that the West Texas team will have one of the strongest combinations in years and with Coach Frank Bridges, former Baylor mentor, dictating plays and defenses, it is certain that the Purple will have a merry battle.

Emerging from their 21-0 victory over the strong Daniel Baker Hill Billies, the Frogs are anything but over-confident. The first quarter play of the Christians last Saturday was disquieting to Frog fans, and Coaches Matty Bell and Ed Kubale will put in some hard licks during the practice periods this week to iron out some of the difficulties.

There is still a great indecision as to who will start for the Frogs. Matty has several men for each position, and in most cases it is a toss-up as to which one will get the first call. It is probable that he will start his "fast" backfield, sacrificing some weight to speed and passing ability.

AUSTIN—Bids opened for construction of new unit to negro hospital to cost about $50,000.

Leading Lady

A leading lady in a successful Broadway production at the age of 20 is a distinction which comes to but few girls. Such, however, was the good luck of Berrice Claire, a little Western girl who started out as a dancer and in a few years reached the top round of the ladder of light operatic fame. She will head "The Desert Song" company, which comes to Fair Park Auditorium, Dallas, October 6 to 21, during the State Fair season of 16 days. She is said to have reached the top through sheer merit and the management feels that Texas will take her to its big heart as soon as it sees and hears her.

Cuba Will Honor 20,000 Americans Who Fought in the Spanish War

Here is the famous blockhouse on San Juan Hill, Cuba, captured by Roosevelt's Rough Riders, as it looks today. Inset is President Machado of Cuba, who will be honored by the United Spanish War Veterans at their coming convention in Havana.

By NEA Service.
HAVANA, Cuba.—Thirty years ago, while the gray battleships of the Atlantic fleet were pounding to pieces along the coast east of Santiago de Cuba, a great fleet of transports put out from the United States bearing an American army to Cuba to drive Spain from its last dependency in the New World.

This year, thirty years after, the invasion will be repeated, and 20,000 veterans of the Spanish-American War will visit Havana to celebrate their 30th annual encampment.

The convention will open on Oct. 8, to continue through Oct. 12. In the party will be soldiers and sailors of the war of '98, their families, veterans of the Philippine insurrection and the Boxer rebellion, and soldiers of the World War. All of the army corps and division commanders in 1918, and most of the field officers of the A. E. F., had served in the war with Spain.

Boats from Boston, New York, Norfolk, Tampa, Key West, New Orleans, Galveston and San Francisco will bear this second army of invasion. General John J. Garry of Chicago, commander in chief of the United Spanish War Veterans, will travel on the U. S. S. Texas, which has been placed at the disposal of the organization by the Navy Department.

With General Garry, as guests of honor, will be Admiral H. A. Wiley, commander of the U. S. fleet; Assistant Secretary of War Charles B. Robbins; Major General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the army, and Rear Admiral W. T. Cluverius, commander of the Norfolk navy yard. All of these men served in the war with Spain.

Entering Havana harbor, the Texas will pass over the spot where the battleship Maine was blown up on Feb. 15, 1898. At this point a salute will be fired by the Texas. Incidentally, Admiral Cluverius is a survivor of the Maine disaster, and is a son-in-law of the late Rear Admiral Sampson, who commanded the American fleet in the battle of Santiago.

Sessions of the convention will be held in Cuba's magnificent National theatre. On the opening day President Machado will be accorded the highest honor the U. S. W. V. can bestow—the "Trumpet Arch." An arch of 500 camp standards and American flags will be formed, under which the Cuban president will be escorted. Special excursions have been provided for visits to Santiago, San Juan Hill, where the Rough Riders gained fame, El Caney, and other points of interest to the invaders of 1898.

Internal Health by Nature's Own Methods

If you are sick inside you are sick all over. When the stomach fails to digest its food, you are standing at the threshold of a series of ailments that may end in a complete physical wreck. Internal health means health throughout the body. Keep your stomach and other digestive organs clean and vigorous by giving them the natural stimulation of the roots, barks and herbs contained in Tanlac.
Tanlac is wonderful for indigestion and constipation—gas, pains, nausea, dizziness and headaches. It brings back lost appetite, helps you digest your food, and gain strength and weight.
Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink. It contains no mineral drugs; it is made of roots, barks and herbs, nature's own medicines for the sick. For over 10 years it has been recommended by druggists who have watched its marvelous results. The cost is less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle of Tanlac from your druggist and give it a thorough trial. Your money back if doesn't help you.

PREDICTION OF EARTH SHOCKS HELD POSSIBLE

Survey Official Says Science Promises Forecast of Quakes.

By CECIL OWEN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, D. C.—Scientific study of earthquakes holds promise, Dr. William Bowie of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey told the United Press today, adding that within the next decade or two it will be possible to forecast where and when these devastating shocks are going to occur.
Although 8,000 large and small earthquakes are recorded annually on seismographs, scientists are unable to tell what region will be hit next or the approximate intensity of the disturbance.
"The earthquake," Dr. Bowie pointed out, "is one of the most mysterious natural phenomena, but it is only a question of time, and that time we hope is not far distant, when we shall know a great deal about earthquakes."
The foundation for the present knowledge of earthquake causes was laid more than 100 years ago when the theory was advanced that the earth's crust is a floating mass resting in equilibrium on a dense sub-crustal material. Experiments conducted by the Coast and Geodetic survey in recent years have confirmed this theory, now called the isostatic principle.
"With the proof of isostasy, we are now able," wrote Dr. Bowie said, "to make at least a fair guess and probably even an accurate one, as to the real causes of earthquakes."
From his studies along this line, Dr. Bowie has concluded that the most fruitful source of earthquakes is the breaking of rock as a new mountain system is being formed.

This, he declared, explained the many earthquakes in California, for the Coast Range is still in the process of formation; it is a new mountain system that has not yet attained maturity.
Every mountain system that exists today, he explained occupies an area that, in a previous geological age, was at or below sea level. In the uplifting movement to form a mountain, a tremendous amount of breaking and crushing of the crustal material, especially the cold and brittle rock near the surface, would occur.
As the resistance of the upper movement would be irregular, "where the movement is slow, the surface rocks will be distorted, bent and folded, while if the movement is rapid, rock will break and earthquakes will occur," Dr. Bowie added. This is not the sole cause of earthquakes, but Dr. Bowie believes it to be foremost.
Possibility of an earthquake so tremendous that the entire earth would be destroyed was discounted by Dr. Bowie, who explained that the thousands of small earthquakes every year lessen the chance of larger ones occurring. "The more earthquakes we have the safer we are," Dr. Bowie said, adding:

"The earth should be thought of as a weak structure, yielding to small stresses, never permitting them to accumulate to the point where tremendous disasters will occur from the shocks involved in the readjustment. We must become reconciled to the fact that we shall have earthquakes as long as we have rain."

Predictions Being Made in Regard to Southwestern Race

By United Press.

DALLAS, Oct. 3.—Scarcely has the 1928 football season in the Southwest got underway before sport dopsters begin predicting the winners, two months hence.

"Although there are no comparative scores upon which to base the prediction, Texas University is doped to win the Southwest conference title, with Southern Methodist University a close second. The Longhorn school is given the preference only because her schedule calls for the playing of her most important games on her home grounds.

Texas plays Arkansas, Southern Methodist and Texas A. & M. at Austin. She is conceded a win over Baylor at Waco and Rice at Houston. The probable outcome of the Baylor game at Waco might be questioned by other sport writers, however, because the Bears are known to fight and fight hard on their home field.

The week preceding the Texas-S. M. U. game at Austin, Texas plays Rice at Houston while S. M. U. plays Trinity at Dallas, a non-conference game. In former games with Rice, the Owls have upset the championship hopes of Texas and always there have been players sent to the bench because of injuries. The Owls are a tough bunch to play, at least Texas should think so. S. M. U. will invade the Longhorn stronghold with her full strength.

Texas A. & M., given third place in the conference standing, is conceded wins over T. C. U. and Rice at College Station and Arkansas at Fayetteville. Not much is known of T. C. U.'s potential strength and the Horned Frog might spring a surprise on the Aggies. Likewise, Arkansas, playing on her home field, will be hard to beat. Although Mississippi handed the Razorbacks a drubbing last week, 25 to 0, they were minus their star quarterback, the mainstay of the Arkansas backfield.

The probable outcome of the Southwest Conference race can be carried no further because the outcome of the remaining games is purely a speculative matter. Baylor might upset the dope and down S. M. U. at Waco. The Bears have the odds in their favor because they scored two or more touchdowns against Denton Normal than did the Mustangs.

In the Texas conference, predictions are made that the season does, the only kind that is available at the present time, favors the race to be narrowed to Simmons, Trinity, Southwestern and Howard Payne.

Howard Payne, Trinity and Southwestern have seen action against Southwest conference teams. Their performances were very creditable and the Southwest members were forced to use a "classy" brand of football to overcome them.

Simmons has the best outlook of the four because of the excess of material which Coach Frank Bridges has to choose from. It is said to be the best at the University in years. Bridges has hopes of getting into the Southwest conference in the event Arkansas is dropped. The possibility of this, however, is slight. If the Southwest conference is ever reduced to six members, the chances are that it will remain that way. The goal of the Southwestern members is toward a more compact organization. Admitting Simmons would not help the conference.

The race in both conferences is apt to be very close. There does not appear to be any outstanding team in either conference. One consolation, unlike baseball, the race is not over until the final games are played. Thanksgiving. Not until then can the preseason predictions be corrected.

Intersectional tilts which have been booked, coupled with conference games, promise this section the best program of football games ever to be seen.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne, beautiful and reckless, became engaged to Craig Newhall, who is quite all that a young man should be, in order to please her father, who she worshipped. But Mr. Thorne died before she could tell him. Shortly afterward her brother, Tad, married Valerie West, selfish and frivolous but inordinately pretty. Sybil goes to Wianno to open the family's summer place for the homecoming of the newlyweds.

And at night she wanders alone to the beach where John Lawrence first kissed her. It was shortly after that glorious night that John went away to war and never returned.

Craig finds her there, trying with the dead. They talk of love and life, and Craig urges her to marry him. She tells him she cannot make any decision because her life is so full of perplexities, and she asks if he would mind if she went away with Mabel Blake, to think things over. They have planned to go to Cuba together, but Sybil assures Craig that she will not go unless he is willing.

"The devil you won't!" he retorts. "You'll do whatever you want—and you darn well know it."

Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER X

"Don't buy a stitch," counseled Mabel. "The shops in Havana are next to Paris. You can buy importations for a song."

Their facetious friends besieged them with importunities to "bring home some liquor."

Valerie wanted a Spanish shawl. "White, or cream-colored, splotted all over with roses and awfully vampy looking." And a pair of Spanish pumps with red heels.

Mrs. West had heard that Cuba was a wonderful place to buy linens. She hinted largely for a luncheon cover, and suggested that Valerie's collection by supplemented by a few pieces that Sybil could surely pick up reasonably.

Tad shoved a handful of bills in his sister's bag.

"For Val's shawl and things," he explained.

"See here, Tad," exploded Sybil. "You can't afford to trick that wife of yours out like a circus rider. Lord, the girl got clothes enough in Paris to last her a year."

"Gosh, Sib, you don't think I'm going to be a piker with Val, do you? What's a couple of hundred, for 'tis' sake?"

"It's a couple of hundred that you can't afford to spend, Tad Thorne—and you know it."

"What's the difference?"

"Val's dreadfully spoiled, Tad, and you're pampering her like a baby. What does she think you are?"

"Lay off Valerie, will you, Sybil!" Tad spoke sharply.

William E. Rankin

"Oh, all right. It's your funeral." Quick tears sprang to Sybil's eyes. It was so tragically easy to cry those days. When people were sharp with her, or very tender, she felt the same absurd impulse to weep. Now she stooped to the roses on the library table, ashamed to let Tad see her foolish tears. She was idiotically jealous of Valerie. Hurt, like a child, because Tad championed his bride against her.

"Gee, Tad, I'm touchy. I didn't mean to pop off like that."

His arm across her shoulders made things right.

"You're shot to pieces, Sis. All tired out. This trip's going to be just the thing for you. Wish to the Lord I was going along."

"You could if you weren't married."

She looked at Sybil appraisingly—and they're not. Any time you see a good-looking man glancing in any way, read the decks for action. For Mabel'll get him if he don't watch out!

"I don't believe you're a bit in love with him, either. And I know girls who'd give their right eye for him. It's a funny old world."

"You said it," conceded Sybil, laconically.

They had their deck chairs moved under the awnings, and appraised their fellow passengers interestedly.

Sybil clicked them off on her fingers.

NERVOUS HEADACHE

Kentuckian Tells How Taking Black-Draught Relieved His Pains and How Well He Feels Now.

Waynesburg, Ky.—How a few doses of Theodor's Black-Draught brought relief to a man who had been suffering from frequent spells of severe headache, is told below in the statement of Mr. Charles F. Todd, of Estersburg, near this place.

"I was suffering with nervous headaches. About once a week I would have these headaches, and have to quit work, and go to bed for about twenty-four hours. I would have pains in my neck, and right behind my right ear.

"A merchant at Estersburg saw me one day when I was suffering, and told me to try taking Black-Draught, which I did.

"I took a package home that night, and took a few doses. It relieved me. From that time on, I would take Black-Draught as soon as I felt like I was going to have one of these headaches—and they wouldn't come on.

"Every few weeks, I take three or four doses of Black-Draught, and I feel so well, and do my work, and don't lose any more time with headache.

"I haven't had a headache in six months."

INNER MONGOLIA YIELDS FOSSILS OF HUGE BEAST

Creature, 25 Feet High, Reconstructed by Andrews Expedition.

By C. D. BESS

United Press Staff Correspondent

PEKING.—In the laboratories of the Central Asiatic Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, set far back in their Chinese court-yards in Peking, a little group of American and Chinese scientists is reconstructing monstrous animals whose fossilized bones were brought from the clay-beds of the deserts of Inner Mongolia.

These animals died millions of years ago. The explorers made rich finds last summer, recovering almost complete fossils of animals more amazing than any previously known. They returned to Peking in mid-August, and have not yet fully recovered from the hardships of their trip, more severe than in any previous expedition into Mongolia.

Sand-storms of fierce intensity endured almost continuously for six weeks, after which it became so hot that the thermometer registered 110 degrees in their tents day after day. But in spite of these difficulties the group headed by Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews traveled 5,000 miles in motor-cars through trackless wastes, and gathered fossils which filled 90 packing cases, carrying them laboriously on camel-back on the return to Peking. Even after reaching Kalgan, the outpost of civilization, their troubles were not over. The journey to Peking, ordinarily covered in 12 hours, required three days, and their motor-cars were almost washed away by a sudden flood.

Back in Peking, their hardships are over, but their work has really just begun. The precious fossils must be elaborately examined and treated, and mounted for exhibition in the museum.

The expedition set out this year in the hope of finding traces of pre-Dawn Man. They failed in this quest, but turned failure into success by uncovering a variety of species of the great monsters of ancient times hitherto unknown. The prize of the lot, in the opinion of the scientists, is the largest land mammal yet discovered.

This creature, which has not yet been named, weighed about 20 tons. He stood 25 feet high, and 40 feet long. His head-bones, fossilized, weigh 400 pounds, and the task of bringing the beast back to Peking was arduous. Visitors to the laboratories were amazed as they watched this great animal taking shape. Parts of 15 different specimens of the same beast were found, all of the essential bones, so that the laboratories are gradually piecing together the entire monster. The type has been found nowhere else in the world, and is distinctly Asiatic.

Another beast which is taking gradual shape in the laboratories here is more extraordinary, except for his size, than the other. His head was recovered complete—shaped almost exactly like an American cowboy's saddle, turned up at both ends and curved flat in the middle. But this creature's most amazing feature is his nose. His eyes are sunken low in his head, and his mouth is set far down. But the nose goes almost directly into the air—as long as the trunk of an elephant but rigid, of solid bone. The tip of his nose and his mouth are fully three feet apart.

The expedition covered much unexplored territory, all of utter desert, and mapped new lakes and streams. They learned that this region was once very densely populated, with perhaps four times the population of Mongolia today, richly wooded and watered, and are now certain that 20,000 years ago Mongolia was the center of much human life. They found ruins of towns that old, with an advanced primitive civilization.

COVERTS AND FOOD FOR GAME BIRDS

As this is "hunting time" throughout a large part of the United States, interest attaches to information furnished by one of the government departments designed to secure a greater degree of protection for upland game birds. It is pointed out by the Agricultural Department that birds frequently use coverts of rose, alder, bayberry, sumac and blackberry bushes, and dense banks of honeysuckle. These plants furnish food for the birds, but they should be supplemented by others more exclusively adapted for the purpose. The quail is especially fond of mulberries in addition to those previously mentioned.

Among valuable seed bearing plants are Japanese clover, beggar lice, buckwheat, sorghum, broom corn, kafir corn, millet, wheat, ratches, cowpeas, and any plants of the pea family producing small seeds. These are sown in large quantities in cultivated areas known as feed patches. The seeds of milk pea, partridge pea, hog peanuts, wild bean, and smart-weeds, are important natural foods of the eastern quail, but their growth should be encouraged only where they will not become weed.

Picks the Phlox

Dr. Edgar T. Wherry, chemist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, suggests that the phlox be made the national flower of the United States. It is almost exclusively a North American flower, he says, it blooms everywhere in the three national colors and can be easily cultivated.

IF THEY EVER EXTEND AIRMAIL TO RURAL ROUTE'S, HE'LL QUIT!

By NEA Service.

JACKSON, Miss.—The rural carriers' association of the sixth Mississippi district boasts the champion heavyweight mail rider in the United States.

Carrying Uncle Sam's mail on a rural route, while he makes a living at it, is one of the least things William E. Rankin of Columbia, Miss., does. He has to carry him self along, too, and that means 425 pounds.

If they ever install air lines for rural delivery he says he will resign. He does not believe it would be fair to Uncle Sam to have to transport so heavy a carrier.

Mr. Rankin, sometimes facetiously called "Little Willie," was born 38 years ago.

The little fellow has a wife and six children. He makes his rounds for Uncle Sam in an auto which had to be remodeled to allow him to get behind the steering wheel.

His waist measure is 5 feet 7 inches; height 6 feet; chest 58 inches; wears No. 12 shoe and 7-3-4 hat. If he could get a store-bought collar it would be size 22.

Mr. Rankin is a little shy in field sports, but can measure lances with all comers in aquatic maneuvers. He has vanquished six men in a ducking contest, and can dive and swim like a didapper duck. He is the only heavyweight in his immediate family, but had an aunt who tipped the scales at 520 pounds and another whose weight was a hundred pounds less.

Humor, Mystery, Biography and Science Themes of New Books.

By PAUL W. WHITE, (United Press Feature Editor) The Limberlost Lady.

The life story of Gene Stratton-Porter, popular authoress who died in 1924, has been published by Doubleday, Doran under the title "The Lady of the Limberlost, The Life and Letters of Gene Stratton-Porter." It is sympathetically written by her daughter, Jeannette Porter Mehan.

Many of the same qualities to be found in her well-known books, among them "Freckles" and "The Keeper of the Bees," are seen in the life of her author. She was a kind, gentle woman, beloved by her family and always eager to help her friends. The story of her life begins in the Limberlost cabin where she spent her childhood and follows her through marriage, motherhood and a literary career to the evening when an automobile accident ended her life. Most of the story is told through letters.

A Good "Thriller." "Werewolf" by Charles Lee Swain is a mystery story built to order for those readers who like baffling, gory, and more or less hair-raising tales. It is one of the most recent Crime Club offerings by Doubleday, Doran and in this instance justifies Mastermind's judgment.

What with eerie folk calls in the night, murders by a fiend leaving a strange mark on the throats of his victims, and a family course that is more than ordinarily blood-thirsty, there are thrills enough to go around. In addition the characters are likable, recognizable humans and the love interest is more plausible than in most detective fiction.

Gland and Glorious. Dr. Serge Voronoff, who claimed in 1919 before the French Surgical Congress that he had found a method for prolonging life, has explained his theories to the layman in "The Conquest of Life," which has been translated by Dr. George Bibler Rambaud, former director of the New York Pasteur Institute. The book is published by Brentano's.

Beginning with a comprehensible explanation of the functions of the various stimulative glands (thyroid, pituitary, parathyroid and suprarenal), Dr. Voronoff then goes on to tell of his various successes in gland transplantation in animals. The translator asserts that it is his opinion that the Voronoff method will soon become more generalized in human beings and explains that at present, owing to erroneous popular ideas about this operation, 98 per cent of those who have it performed want it kept secret.

Whether anyone wants to live more than a normal span of life is a question not to be decided here, but Dr. Voronoff has produced a fascinating story of his efforts to defy death.

"Our Favorite" If you are one of those who tear madly to the nearest bookstore as soon as a new P. G. Wodehouse is published you can appreciate this reviewer's feelings on reading "Money for Nothing" (Doubleday, Doran) which is, if anything, better than ever. Wodehouse can always provide chuckles and make us while reading him, extremely unpopular with the rest of the family.

For it's the sort of book that makes others want to slay you in cold blood because of your inability to read it quietly. There are parts that you feel you simply have to share with someone.

This is the story of Hugo, who wants to start a night club, of Mr. Lester Carmody, his stinky uncle who doesn't want him to; of John and Patricia, whose love affair is not helped by Hugo's effort to throw them together; of "Soapy" and Dolly Malloy who are not all they seemed at first; and of Emily, a dog who says just what she thinks.

It's a grand entertainment. A Matson Score. An unusually fine novel has been written by Norman Matson in his "Day of Fortune" (Century) which traces the history of a Norwegian-American family from its emigration to America to its final dissolution in San Francisco.

The book is really a series of comparatively brief sketches of different episodes in the lives of the Chezness' but in spite of this it flows along smoothly and leaves no impression of choppiness or disorder.

In this reviewer's estimation, the most remarkable part of the novel are those portions devoted to the childhood of Peter Chezness which are written with unusual clarity and sensitive appreciation of a child's observation of life. Peter's later years are recorded faithfully and with this same understanding. Matson has proved himself a writer of distinction.

OUT OUR WAY

In Strange Triangle

Here are the principal figures in West Virginia's strange legal triangle in which a man's life is at stake. At right, Clyde Beale, convicted by a jury of murder, whom Judge R. D. Bailey (upper left) fears may be innocent and refuses to sentence to death unless Governor Howard M. Gore (lower left) will agree to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment. Governor Gore is silent.

By NEA Service. PINEVILLE, W. Va.—Clyde Beale has been convicted of murder in the first degree, the penalty for which is death. Yet in all West Virginia no one is fighting harder to keep him from being electrocuted than Circuit Judge R. D. Bailey, the official who, under the law, must sentence him to the electric chair. Deeming that "the cruel and diabolical destruction of this human life" would be more than he could bear, Judge Bailey declares he will never pronounce sentence on Beale. It may be necessary for him to resign from the bench to avoid it.

As a result, one of the strangest triangles in the state's legal history is presented. Convicted 18 Months Ago. Beale was convicted some 18 months ago of the murder of Mrs. Rissie Perdue here. A change of venue was obtained and he was tried in Williamson, with Judge Bailey presiding. He was quickly convicted and sentenced, by Judge Bailey, to death. An appeal for a new trial was denied at the time.

A little later, however, Beale succeeded in carrying his case before the state supreme court, winning a stay of execution. This brought a delay of over a year. Not long ago the supreme court overruled his request for a new trial and sent the case back to Judge Bailey. Under the law, Beale had to be re-sentenced because the stay of execution had nullified the old death sentence.

In the meantime, however, Judge Bailey had been pondering the evidence on which Beale had been convicted. It seemed to him, he says, that the facts presented to the jury were, in the light of reflection, "beyond reason." In addition, new evidence came to him. One of the state's leading witnesses, he says, virtually admitted that she had perjured herself at the trial.

Judge Bailey, accordingly, became convinced that Beale should not be sentenced to the electric chair. But what could he do? He could not grant a new trial at this date; the supreme court had already passed on that, and had remanded the case back to him for formal re-sentence.

So, a few months ago, Beale appeared before Judge Bailey—and the judge sentenced him to 99 years in prison.

That might have ended it. But Prosecuting Attorney Lefe B. Chafin did not share Judge Bailey's views about Beale's possible innocence. He pointed out that when a West Virginia jury votes a first degree murder conviction and does not recommend mercy, the death sentence is mandatory, and the judge has no option. So the prosecutor went to the state supreme court and asked a mandamus writ to compel Judge Bailey to pronounce the death sentence.

Judge Bailey told the court what he had learned about the case since the trial ended. The court, however, confined itself to the question of law involved, and the other day it ordered Judge Bailey to bring Beale before him and sentence him to death.

And Judge Bailey says he will never do it. If he were sure that Governor Howard M. Gore would commute Beale's sentence to life imprisonment, he says, he would impose the sentence. But Governor Gore is maintaining silence. The only other courses open to Judge Bailey are: to send Beale to the electric chair, or to resign from the bench.

He says he will resign, if necessary, to avoid passing the death sentence. Beale is scheduled to come before him in November. Prisoner Carried Jail Key. Beale's case has been unusual from the start.

He and a companion, Levi Layne, were arrested for the murder of Mrs. Perdue, whose body was found in Tug river. Beale was transferred to Williamson for trial. Afterward, while his case was before the supreme court, he was brought to Pineville.

At the Pineville jail Beale was treated more like a guest than a condemned murderer. For months he was allowed to go and come as he pleased, even carrying a key to the jail so that he could let himself in and out when he chose. He kept faith with the authorities, spending every night in his cell and making no effort to run away, although friends offered to advance him money for train fare.

When the supreme court killed his last chance for a new trial and he was ordered back to jail at Williamson, Beale went there alone and unattended, reporting promptly to the Williamson authorities for imprisonment.

Beale often declared that he would never be electrocuted. "God in his mercy would not let an innocent man be executed," he used to say. "If the lies that were sworn against me at my trial were true, I would want God to take my life. But there is a just God, and he can't help but save me."

Levi Layne, Beale's alleged partner in crime, is due to go to trial next month.

Family Menu

BY SISTER MARY BREAKFAST—Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, scrambled eggs with bacon, oven toast cheese sandwiches, peach snowballs, lemonade.

DINNER—Roast chicken, mashed potatoes, fried winter squash, fresh pear and celery salad, chocolate ice cream, plain cake, milk, coffee.

The dinner menu is excellent for a family Sunday dinner or an informal company dinner. Heavy "springers" are delicious roasted and require little attention during cooking.

Peach Snowballs One-half cup rice, 2 cups boiling water, 1 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 large peaches, 4 tablespoons sugar, butter, 4 preserved or candied cherries.

Wash rice and dry into boiling water to which salt has been added. Cook until water is absorbed. Add milk and cook over hot water until kernels are soft. Pare peaches and remove stones. Put a cherry in the cavity. Cut four squares of cheese cloth and dip in hot water. Spread each square with rice and put a peach in the center. Sprinkle with sugar and dot with butter. Pull corners of cloth together and tie. Steam from thirty to forty minutes. Remove from cloth and serve with sugar and cream.
