

RECORD CROPS FOR EASTLAND COUNTY

MINERAL RUBBER PLANT IS ASSURED

OLD RANGER REFINERY TO BE REHABILITATED BY THE NEW OWNERS

Factory Will Employ Approximately 300 To Construct Cracker

A tremendous stride in the development of Ranger and what might mean the bringing of hundreds more workers to the city, will be decided at a meeting of the Petroleum Products Corporation directors, next week in Independence, Kan., following a visit to Ranger last Friday, of Charles C. Rodgers of Pittsburg, who in April last, purchased the old Ranger Refinery, southwest of the city. Mr. Rodgers is a vice president and director in the Petroleum Products Company and he stated Friday that he was in favor of opening the plant here right away.

Mr. Rodgers stated that the plant at present would cost $150,000 to replace, and that they would no doubt add a cracking plant to the refinery which would cost over $100,000. They might also put in the machinery for making mineral rubber, he said.

Touching on the number of men that would be employed in the new plant, Mr. Rodgers said that with the cracking plant alone they would employ about 75 men but if they added the rubber machinery the number of employes will reach over 300.

Enthusiastic
Mr. Rodgers was enthusiastic over the proposition of opening up here, and said that he was in favor of the movement, and also said that several of the major oil companies had promised them 2,500 barrels of crude per month for cracking.

DEMOCRATS WILL MEET ON MONDAY

Milburn McCarty, chairman of the Eastland County Democratic executive committee, has issued the following call for a meeting of the committee to be held in Eastland on Monday, June 21, at 3 o'clock p. m., at the city hall.

"The members of the Democratic County Executive Committee of Eastland county, Texas, are hereby called to meet at the City Hall in the city of Eastland, at 3 o'clock p. m., on Monday, June 21, 1926. This meeting of the committee is required by law, and it is the duty of each member of the Democratic County Executive Committee of Eastland county to be present. At this meeting a sub-committee of five members to be known as the primary committee is to be appointed, expenses of holding the primary are to be assessed against the various candidates, the order in which the names of all candidates for office shall appear on the official ballot is to be determined, and it will be decided whether a second primary shall be had for county and precinct offices. Other matters of importance will likely come before the committee at said meeting, and you are hereby urged to be present at the time and place stated."

Detective Saves Several From Instant Death

DALLAS, June 12.—Quick work on the part of Detective J. C. Garrison saved the lives of seventy offenders and two prisoners today. He felled a prisoner, later identified as "Chicago Shorty," an ex-convict, when he attempted to take a two-ounce bottle of nitro-glycerine from a policeman's hand.

Thell Adams, 15-year-old Van Buren, Ark., youth, was arrested with the prisoner. He admitted the robbery of a store at Willis Point, Tex., officers said.

GERMAN PRISON GUARD
By United Press.
BERLIN.—Imitating the example set by the New York state reformatory at Elmira, N. Y., limited self-government was granted the inmates of Plötzensee prison. This is first application of the American method in Germany.

Fined Selves

Major J. A. Tower (top) of Fort Madison, Ia., inadvertently drove past a boulevard stop sign the other day. So he opened court the next day by fining himself $1, along with thirty other offending motorists. Then Constable Henry Mueller (below) passed a stop sign. Mueller likewise came in voluntarily and contributed his dollar.

2 MEXICANS DRAW DEATH FOR MURDER

LAREDO, Texas, June 12.—Cruz Martinez and Herminio Williams were given the death penalty by a jury here tonight for the slaying of Sterling Huntley of San Antonio on May 26.

The jury deliberated one and a half hours. The case went to trial Friday morning. The prisoners were alleged to have made a written confession of the slaying, but entered pleas of not guilty when arraigned.

Alleged "Kluckers" Are Indicted On Serious Charges

CALDWELL, Texas, June 12.—The Burleson county grand jury has returned indictments against two men charging them with murder of Otto Lange and four men charged with theft of ballot boxes, and all are in jail.

The indictments grew out of a bitter Klan fight in this county, and all the arrested men are supposed to be former Klan members. The cases were worked up by District Attorney Cliff Lewis, assisted by state rangers. Kinch Shelbourne and Charles Balke, employes at the Santa Fe road house at Summerville were named in the murder indictment.

TRIAL OF FOUR MEN SET FOR WEDNESDAY

BASTROP, Texas, June 12.—Hearing for Kinch Shelbourne and Charles Balke, under indictment for slaying Otto Lange of Caldwell and J. M. Shelbourne, Sam Gaines and David Lauderdale for theft of a ballot box has been set for trial in Caldwell, Wednesday morning.

SHACKELFORD RETAINS LEAD COMPLETIONS

Stephens County Now Far Ahead In Total Barrels Of Production

Pipe line runs for the past week and the week before in the Central West Texas field show a gain for the past week over that of the previous week of 1,740 barrels. Shackelford county showed the greatest increase in production of any county in the district, while Brown county held the lead in completions for the week, having a total of 19.

Sensations for the week were Rosie & Pendleton's No. 1-B Cook, completed for 300 barrels, and same company's 8-B Cook completed for 700 barrels.

Production and completion for the past week and the week before by counties follows:

Supple Named Special Judge At Waxahachie

AUSTIN, June 12.—C. M. Supple of Waxahachie was appointed by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today as special district judge to try cases in which special district Judge Wide Kemble is disqualified.

Judge Kemble had been selected by the bar to officiate during the illness of regular Judge W. L. Harding.

John Davenport of Wichita Falls, was appointed special county judge of Wichita county, to try civil cases in which Judge E. B. Sartin, is disqualified.

FIRST CASE OF DENGUE APPEARS IN DALLAS

DALLAS, June 12.—The first case of Dengue fever reported this year was called to the attention of the medical officers today. A boy thirteen years old was the victim of the disease.

STARVING BABES ARE DISCOVERED BY THE SHERIFF

One of the most terrible scenes witnessed by sheriff's deputies in this county for many years was seen Friday when they proceeded to the home of Mrs. Babe Monahan, at Cisco where the officers found two tiny babies in the last stages of emaciation and dying for the want of food.

On examining the little bodies it was found that the arm of one child less than three months old had been broken and that the limb had grown with the hand reversed, while a huge knot had been caused by the unnatural growth.

Medical aid was called by passers-by who found the children screaming on a rough pallet of a bed, and with pillows on their faces, evidently it was alleged, placed there to deaden the cries. After the shrunken bodies had been given a little food the children seemed to revive and hopes are now entertained that they might live.

County Attorney W. J. Barnes, Eastland county, went to the scene to make investigations and arrested Babe Monahan and a man who claimed to be her husband. Both were brought to Eastland and placed in the county jail.

The woman, it is said, told sheriff's deputies that the children were hers, but one of the children does not appear to be more than six weeks old, while the other may be about three months.

Officers also stated that it was more than likely that the children belonged to other parties and the Monahan woman had been given them to take care of.

Howard and Babe Monahan held in the Eastland county jail are thought to be insane. They lost a little child Sunday, that was buried Monday, and recently had a child killed in an automobile accident near Hillsboro. No charges have been filed against them, and according to the jailer at Eastland, unless some are, the couple will be given their liberty today. The jailer knew nothing about the story about the two hungry children and doubted if it were true. He stated that he had known Mrs. Monahan for a good many years.

Grand Jury Ends Investigation Of Prison Brutalities

HOUSTON, June 12.—The grand jury today was closing its inquiry into the alleged irregularities and brutalities of the city prison farm, with the possibility of more indictments or at least a report on the conditions being returned during the day, before Criminal District Judge Love.

The volume of the affidavits taken during the week from fifty prisoners and former prisoners, may prove too great however, to summarize during the session and necessitate the postponement of the board's findings until next week.

MIDDLE WEST WELTERS IN SUMMER HEAT

Two Persons Overcome From Heat in Lincoln Nebraska, No Others

The Middle West suffered through the second day of summer heat today with the temperature climbing as high as 104 degrees. In some points the temperature recorded today were the highest for June 12 in the history of weather bureaus.

Nebraska found the sun beaming its hardest. At Omaha, two persons were overcome with heat on Friday. The temperature today was 98 degrees. Columbus, Nebraska reported 104 degrees and Lincoln, Nebraska, 104 degrees.

Chicago had an average of 86 degrees temperature with no wind to bring relief. Des Moines, Iowa, weltered under an 88 degree temperature. The Southwest again had summer temperature today.

Kansas City reported the highest temperature for June 12 in the history of its weather bureau, when the mercury rose to 95 degrees. Oklahoma City reported a temperature of 94 degrees, which was almost a record.

Dallas reported a temperature of 90 degrees. Other Texas cities reported from 85 degrees up. While it was hot here, it was not too hot, and the heat was tempered by a breeze.

West Texas did not feel the heat, although a few thermometers registered around 90 degrees and better.

SURRENDERS AFTER 2 DIE IN A FIGHT

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 12.—William Fletcher, 36 years old, of Astoria, today was in the custody of N. J. Craig, prosecuting attorney of Wright county, having surrendered after killing two brothers, "Doc" and Howard Neal, and wounding their father last night.

The killing was preceded by a fist fight by "Doc" Neal and Fletcher, at Astoria. Howard Neal seeing his brother bested drew his knife on Fletcher. A gun battle then ensued when Fletcher rushed indoors for his shot gun. It is said that the Neals took the aggressive in the fight, having armed themselves with rifles.

Fletcher escaped unharmed, although his home was riddled with bullets.

Yale Students And Two Women Killed In Crash

GULFORD, Conn., June 12.—Four persons, two of them Yale students, were killed in an auto crash near here early today. The couples were returning to New Haven in a roadster when the machine left the road while going at a high speed on a curve and crashed into a tree.

The dead are, Mrs. Edwin Reeser and Dorothy Kiernan, both of New Haven; William H. Cushing of Brookline, Mass., a sophomore at Yale, and George M. Kopperl of Galveston, a freshman at Yale.

FORMER GALVESTON BOY BUT MOVED TO NEW YORK

GALVESTON, Tex., June 12.—George W. Kopperl, a Yale student, killed in an auto crash was formerly a resident here. For the past three or four years he has made his home in New York City with his mother. His father Morita Kopperl was a well known real estate operator here before his death by drowning in the bay four years ago. Shortly after his father's death, he and his mother moved to New York.

BUSH RETURNS FROM AN INSPECTION TOUR OF EVERY TOWNSHIP

Fasting

Fasting in order that he might receive the Holy Eucharist as his first official act in Chicago, Constant, Comte Henri d'Yanville of Paris, secretary of the permanent committee of the Eucharistic Congress, has reached the city to prepare for the gathering of Catholics from throughout the world.

ADMINISTRATION WORRIED OVER FARM MATTERS

WASHINGTON, June 12.—With the West awakening to the subject of farm relief as never before, a member of the Coolidge cabinet, is about to make a swing through that region. Secretary Work, starts June 27 on an inspection trip. He designates his trip as a visit to the National Parks and Indian Reservations, but the political wise here claim there is something more significant in his journey.

The suggestion that missionary work for President Coolidge's idea of farm relief, is the real motive of his inspection. He will be able to predict the sentiment of the West on things governmental and political.

Work told the United Press he would have no speaking engagements on this trip he did not say, however, that he would not have private consultation with leaders and farm folks.

Revelations of his plans for his western trip came less than a week after Brookhart's victory in Iowa. The date was not lost on politicians, who suggested Work hopes to prevent a reported "corn belt revolt."

To do this, it was suggested that efforts should be made to "sell the West" on Coolidge's views on farm relief.

Four Are Killed In Auto Crashes Enroute To Races

ALTOONA, Pa., June 12.—Four persons were killed in an automobile accident while en route to the Altoona Speedway for the 250-mile automobile race.

Charles Bowles was killed in a crash, near Williamsburg. Three young men from Towanda, Pa., members of a party of five, were killed when their car failed to negotiate a turn on "Dead Man's Curve" about fifteen miles east of Bellefontaine.

HUGHES WINNER OF TENNIS SINGLES
FORT WORTH, June 12.—Hughes triumphed in the final tennis doubles here Saturday. Berkely Beal, 19, of Austin, and Wilmer Allison, 17, of Fort Worth, took a straight set victory from Brian L. C. Norton of St. Louis and Frost Gravel of San Antonio, 6-4, 6-2, and 6-3.

Norton will oppose John Barr of Dallas in the finals Saturday.

Educational Results Are Shown In Manner Hoppers Are Killed

A record crop for Eastland county looms for the year, according to R. H. Bush, county agent, who has returned to Eastland after a trip through nearly every section of the county, where he examined growing crops and took particular attention to advise farmers on the problems that continually arise during this season of the year, it was stated.

Cotton Condition Excellent.
Throughout the county, Mr. Bush found the cotton to be growing fine with good stands. Grasshoppers are effecting the plants in the most northern and northwestern parts of the county, but from first impressions the crops have not been damaged to any great extent.

Farmers are taking every measure to poison the pests and special preparations devised by the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college are being used to cope with the menace.

Harvest Oats and Wheat.
Oats and wheat crops are being harvested and at least 50 per cent of the crop has already been gathered and is turning out well. The corn crop is exceptionally good in all parts of the county, Mr. Bush emphasized, while the grain sorghum is late but growing fine.

Discussing the prospects of a big feed crop, Mr. Bush said that present conditions showed that this crop would be one of the largest if not the largest in the history of the county, and showed exceptional promise.

Tree Crops Good.
The truck crop situation still remains in a flourishing state and much of the crop has already been marketed at prices that are exceedingly fair, and present conditions show that this price tends to remain up until the crops have all been marketed.

Tree fruits set this year also show up good with very few losses through the young trees dying off, while the peanut stands of which many hundreds of acres have been planted for the first time this year are thriving well on the land. This crop according to farmers in the Gorman territory will be a big money maker.

Educational Showing Results.
This excellent condition in the farming industry in the county has been brought about, it is said, by the ceaseless educational work done through the extension department of the Texas A. & M. college, the county agent, Mr. Bush, who has never let up for one minute on the job, and the efforts of the various committees that are advocating all the time the new methods of safe and sane farming.

Farmers, it was said, have now (Continued on Page Two)

Police Raid On Rooming House Nets 30 Bottles

The old days when saloons flourished on Main street, Ranger, were lived again, when officers raided the Texan rooms, over the Crest store, on Main street, Friday night and emerged with 30 bottles of beer and some more unbottlled in a jar.

The proprietor was later brought to the police station and put under bond to await the action of the grand jury, charged with having beer in her possession.

Dave Lewis Wins Altoona Race In Break Neck Time

ALTOONA, Pa., June 12.—Running the 250 mile, without going to the pit, Dave Lewis today won the 250 mile race on the Altoona speedway. It was the sixth annual event. Time made by the winner was 2 hours, 13 minutes and 24 seconds.

Lewis was fourth behind Frank Elliott, Batten and Hill at the end of the 200 miles, but he came from behind in the last 50 miles. Batten, who also started out as fifth came in second, F. Duff was third and Hill fourth. The cars averaged 112 miles an hour.

THE ICE IS BROKEN.

The establishment of a mineral rubber plant in connection with the rehabilitation of the old Ranger refinery by the Producers Petroleum company breaks the ice of what may be expected to follow. It is the pioneer of the approach of the establishment of other mineral rubber plants in the oil belt of Texas. The plant will bring with it a payroll of 300 or more workers. It will mean much to Ranger.

Ranger should prepare and make a fight to get others. Ranger has a number of advantages, cheap fuel, natural gas and fuel oil, good railroad and other transportation facilities and a climate that is second to none.

The establishment of a mineral rubber plant here is a big thing for Texas as well as Ranger. Auto tire and manufacturers of other rubber goods have been compelled to find a substitute for the gum rubber that is imported. England seems to have a strangle hold on the supply of crude gum rubber in the world and is using it to pay America back the debts she owes her for money loaned her during the world war. There is no reason why Ranger should not be the center of the mineral rubber industry of the world. Ranger can become that center if co-operation will make it.

However, ample supply of cheap fuel, cheap factory sites, good climate, good schools and good churches are not all that are needed to attract them. Ranger must have good homes for the newcomer to live in. The mechanic of the north and east does not live in a shack. Good homes can be furnished through the building and loan association.

Ranger must have good streets, either paved or graveled or macadamized with chat. The supply of material for good streets, chat, gravel and crushed rock is right at the door of the town and can be had for the asking and hauling.

Neat cottages and bungalows on paved and graveled streets are civic assets and help to attract capital. They can be had if steps are taken to secure them. There is not a property owner in Ranger but who will pay his share of graveled or macadamizing the street if the city will do its part, put down the material, grade the street and crush the rock. These are necessary.

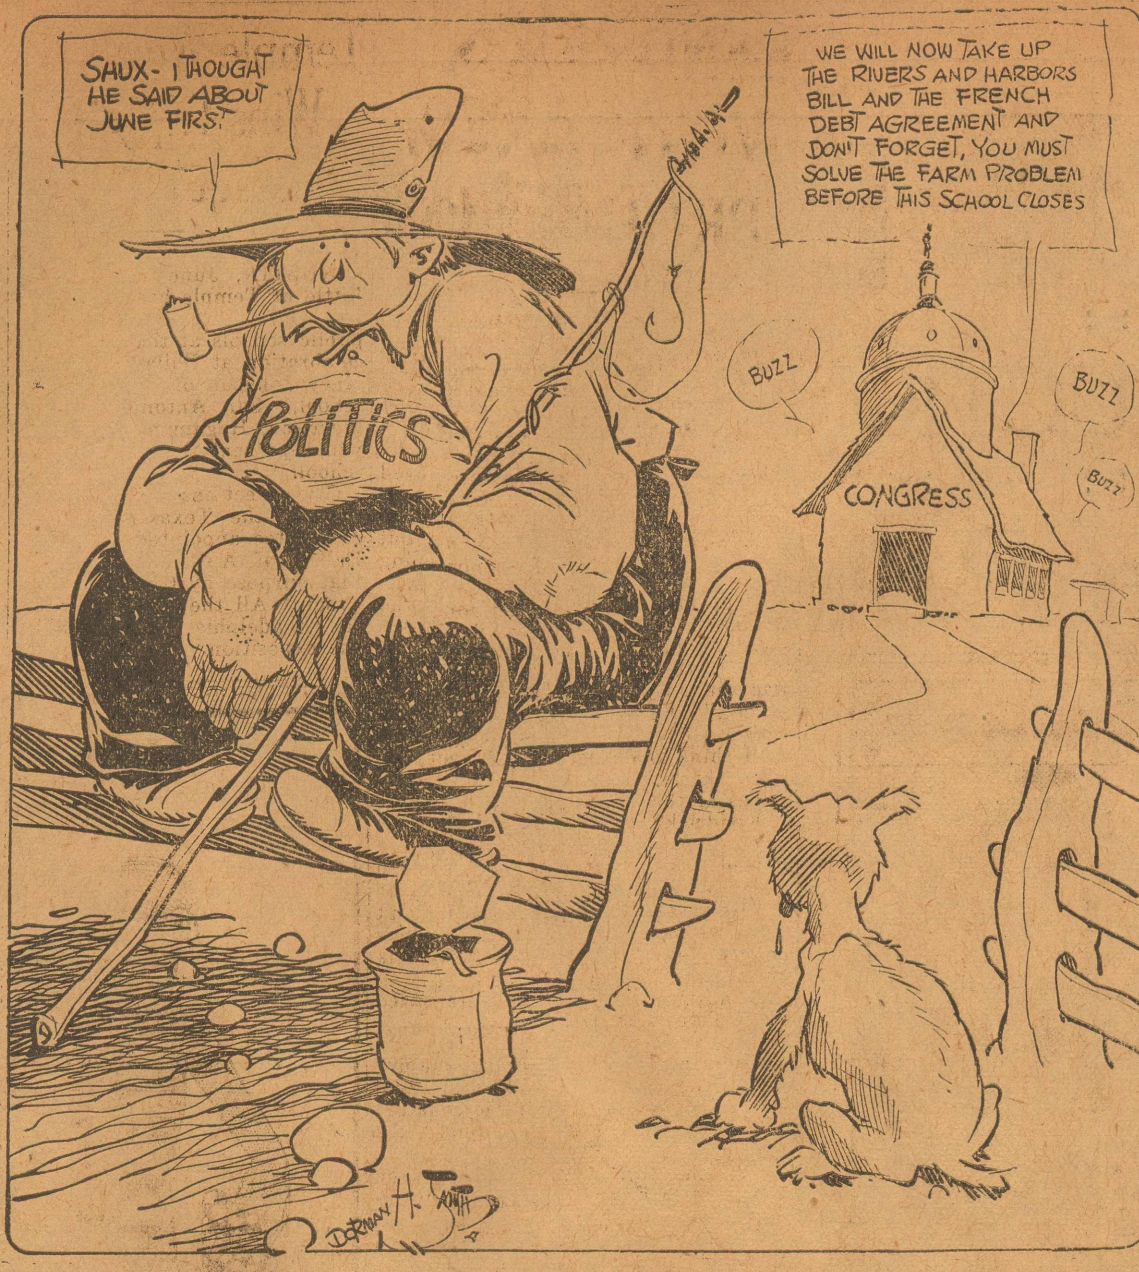

Street lights are needed and must be had. The day of the lightning bug furnishing the light for pedestrians to go home in the dark is past. The day of the gas light at the corner is past. Long ago the tall dip gave way to progress as did the kerosene lamp. Electric lights are needed. An arc light, or a high powered large incandescent light on every other corner would answer the purpose. They could be used on the moonlight night basis. That is, they need not be used on moonlight nights.

These are the big things. But something else is needed. A system of parks and playgrounds. Ranger has parks and playgrounds, such as they are. They can be improved. Recreation and park centers are fundamentals in town building. There is not a town in the east or north half the size of Ranger but what has recreation and park centers.

Fort Worth now is spending money she could have saved years ago, by buying parks. Now is the time for Ranger to install good lights, sidewalks and paved and graveled streets. The streets of a town or city should be as good as the highways that radiate from it.

Ranger needs the new manufacturing plants, especially the mineral rubber plants as much as they need Ranger and if Ranger don't get busy, other towns will get busy, and then it will be, Oh, what a difference in the morning.

The Fun Is Temporarily Postponed

 realized that one crop farms spell disaster to their farms and homes and that the only way to make farming pay and pay well was by sound diversified crop growing, with lots of fertilizer and plenty of hard work.

From some sections of the county reports show that the cotton crop will exceed the crop of last year by nearly as much again and that this amount is being grown on fewer acres and with spare acreage left for the growing of other produce.

Big Chicken Industry.
 Further the interest shown on the farms in the chicken and cattle development has also aroused the curiosity of bankers and others with the interest of the county at heart and hundreds of farms that only carried along enough chickens in former years for home use have now some hundreds of the birds that in the fall of the year will be laying and bringing in a substantial income to the farmers. On some farms over 1,000 chickens are seen scratching around all lustrous birds that were the pride of the farm.

George Briggs, secretary of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, stated that Eastland has only just started in the chicken business, and that in a few years he prophesied it would be one of the main industries of the county. He said that the secret of the success of the venture was the co-operative marketing of the products, and that no farmer could afford to attempt to market his produce except through the channels now operating in the county.

World Record Is Smashed In Chicago Meet

(By United Press.)
CHICAGO, June 12.—The world's record was unofficially broken, four National College Athletic Association marks were shattered and the University of Southern California, piled up the highest team score in the annual National College Athletic Association field meet here today.

Alvin Miller, studying at the Northwestern University to become a Methodist minister, was the man who set what may become a new world record. He was time in the eighty-yard run in one minute and six and seven tenths seconds, which is five seconds less than ever was plucked in that event.

Former Ranger Woman Purchases B & L Assn. Stock

Mrs. Emma Terrell of Fort Worth, but a former citizen of Ranger, and at present a large property owner here, evinced her faith in Ranger recently when she bought $2,000 worth of Ranger Building & Loan Stock, it was announced at a meeting of the board of directors Friday afternoon.

Two loans, both for the improvement of Ranger real estate were passed on and approved.

Everything looks favorable for the association, as not only have a number of large purchases of stock been made but a number of lesser sales have helped to swell the volume.

2 BODIES TAKEN FROM TUNNEL

REDDING, Calif., June 12.—Rescuers late today recovered the bodies of A. Patrick, 28, and J. Frank, 41, from the Black tunnel at Hornet mine where they had lain beneath 30 tons of rock since Monday. The men were caught 3,000 feet from the tunnel's mouth, when timbers gave way and crushed beneath tons of stone and earth. An ore train was buried and demolished. Two other miners were injured.

STORY OF DARK ROOM POLITICS TOLD PROBERS

WASHINGTON, June 12.—A story of dark-room politics, infernal vote buying and corruption in acting was related to the senatorial primary investigation committee today by T. Henry Walnut, chairman of the Philadelphia committee which acted for Governor Pinchot in the May Pennsylvania senatorial primary.

Walnut charged that the republican organization of Philadelphia and the system it had built up are responsible for the unusual actions in the Quaker city. Citizens there are satisfied to let organized politics become unrestrained in "buying elections, through money and promises," he claimed.

Pittsburgh Man.
 Frederick K. Duttie of Pittsburgh, chairman of the Pinchot "speakers and meeting" committee discussed the method of paying off watchers and workers at the Pepper-Fisher headquarters in the Hotel Henry at Pittsburgh.

There was a constant line of 150 or 200 feet long, in front of the paymaster's window, Duttie said. "They paid from 200 to 300 men an hour under the system. I saw them paying actively on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. On Saturday, the line wasn't so long."

DONORS OF 11,000 ARE MADE MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE
WASHINGTON, June 12.—Everybody who was good for $1,000 for the George Wharton Pepper million dollar campaign fund was put on Pepper's senatorial finance committee, Robert Clendenning, a Philadelphia banker, who organized the committee told the senate investigating committee today.

Clendenning said that when he started Pepper's preliminary campaign, he went to everybody, he thought was good for a thousand. "I got thirty or forty," he said.

'Bird Dogs' Begin Trek To Amarillo To Lure Suckers

AMARILLO, June 12.—A trek of blonde and brunette bird dogs is feared here.

In case you are not familiar with this species of the canine family here is the explanation. The "bird dogs" originated during the Florida land boom. They are clammy young women who "point out prospects for promoters of various lines to work on. They inhabit hotel lobbies and are the "hail" used by promoters to get their prospects lined up.

"Bird dogs" are usually girls from 16 to 30 years of age whose business it is to hang around hotel lobbies and station lobbies and be present at the night clubs and country clubs. They are the keenest of salesmen and strange to say are inflexibly moral, except to smoke and drink and taste expensive dinners. They are reported to have made hundreds of dollars a week in the tropics, depending on their beauty, personality and cleverness.

The methods are simple. The prospect is lured into inviting the "bird dog" to accompany him to a dance or dinner and it is her business to interest him in whatever project she may at that moment be boosting. A glance in Bradstreet's tells whether the prospect is worthwhile or not and then when the prospect is turned over to the promoter that is the end—except the big slice of cash that is handed over to the "bird dog."

One of these "bird dogs" has already arrived in Amarillo and it is reported that 500 of her sisters are enroute from Florida to join her.

REVOLUTION THREATENS IN MEXICO

(By United Press.)
SAN ANTONIO, June 12.—A revolutionary attempt to overthrow Calles government in Mexico will be launched in the near future, according to Adolpho de La Huerta, former provisional president, here today.

Huerta was a leader in the revolt of 1923. The former provisional president, declared he was in San Antonio on business and denied that he had anything to do with the predicted revolution, however, he declared he was willing to accept the leadership for the predicted revolution.

SPIRITED ARLEN STORY SCREENED

The story of a man's relentless pursuit of a woman and the spirited manner in which she fights back will be unfolded on the screen of the Lamb Theater next Tuesday, when the first Michael Arlen story to reach the screen, "The Dancer of Paris," is presented.

Conway Tearle and Dorothy Mackall have the leading roles in this production which is presented through First National by Robert T. Kane. It was produced under the direction of Alfred A. Santell, who is responsible for "Bluebeard's Seven Wives" and "Classified."

The story is laid against a series of rich backgrounds. Starting in Florida, the scene quickly switches to Paris, where, in settings picturesquely revealing the night life of the famous capital, the plot moves on to its climax.

Supporting the stars are Robert Cain, who has the "heavy" role; Paul Ellis and Henry Vibart.

Working Students In Oregon Varsity Earned $50,000

EUGENE, Ore.—Fifty thousand dollars isn't much money when Henry Ford and Andrew Mellon are figuring their income tax, but it is a lot of money for the working students of the University of Oregon to earn in one school year, says Mrs. Charlotte Donnelly, in charge of the Y. M. C. A. employment bureau.

According to her report, 129 students having regular employment earned $13,003 during the fall term and partial employment brought in $3,000 more. During the winter term the same 120 students earned $12,486 while the odd job workers earned $900. The spring term earnings show $10,763 for the regular workers and $1,000 earned by part-time workers.

LAW-MAKERS ARE BUEY

An oleomargarine bill was recently introduced in congress proposing to tax margarine as follows:
 Manufacturers—$1,000 per year.
 Wholesalers—$1,000 per year.
 Retailers—$1 per year.

Taxing uncolored margarine 10¢ per pound; retaining the tax of 10¢ a pound on colored margarine.

And many fair-minded people immediately asked this question: If margarine is a wholesome food why do we need such a tax any more than we need a tax on sugar, canned soup or any other grocery product?

There are millions of pounds of butter made from rotten cream by a chemical treatment known as a neutralizing process. This, says The Progressive Grocer, is adulterated butter and is subject to a tax of 10¢ a pound. Yet it is all marketed as "absolutely pure," avoiding any tax, whereas margarine, made from pure ingredients, is already taxed and is threatened with even greater burdens.

NEXT ELECTION MUST PASS ON WINE AND BEER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, June 12.—There is no question in my mind but that both Republicans and Democrats will endeavor to write a wet plank into their national platforms in 1928, says Senator L. D. Taylor, dry Democrat of Tennessee.

His statement made after the Illinois, Pennsylvania and Oregon primaries had brought national attention to prohibition as a political issue, may be taken as the representative view of those in congress cognizant of political developments.

"The drays have a real fight on their hands," he said.

Many senators and congressmen wish that the prohibition issue could be taken out of national politics. They do not believe that a man should be elected to national office because of a stand either for or against the national prohibition act. They feel that economic issues should predominate. For that reason they believe that referendums should be held in various states so that the will of the people could be expressed once and for all without affecting any candidate. But the stolid drays are opposed to referendums and there is considerable dispute over the constitutionality of congress authorizing a national referendum on any subject.

The Democratic National convention of 1924, however, adopted a plank endorsing a national referendum on the League of Nations issue. Defeat of the party in the election which followed prevented a test of the legality of national referendums or working out the problem of federal machinery to hold such a contest.

Democrats who favored the plank contended that the previous election in which James M. Cox of Ohio, standard bearer of the party, was defeated over whelmly by Warren G. Harding, Republican, on the League of Nations issue was not a final judgment of the people. They contended that other factors entered the campaign which made the election anything but a referendum on the particular issue.

Republicans during the campaign twitted the Democrats for their referendum plank, saying nothing of the kind ever could be held and asking how the Democrats proposed to go about it.

In the senate recently during debate over the prohibition question, Senator Ashurst, picturesque Democratic dry from Arizona, arose and told the wets:

"If the wets want a referendum in Arizona let them put up a wet candidate. They'll get all the referendum they want."

The only proposal thus far made for the proposition is the joint resolution introduced by Senator Walter E. Edge, leader of the senate beer bloc. His resolution would merely express the sentiment of congress that the various states should set up the machinery for local referendums with co-operation of the postmaster-general.

LOSES LIFE TRYING TO SAVE BOY

(By United Press.)
WACO, June 12.—J. F. Bowers, 56, lost his wife near Mart, today, in an attempt to avert an injury to an injury of a 5-year-old child who had fallen from an automobile.

Bowers slipped as he leaped from the car and received a broken neck. The child escaped without serious injury.

 shallow bore that shows such a wonderful promise in and around Eastland county, Mr. Rodgers said they had that phase in view when it was decided to open up the new plant and that the prospects of the new pool looked very promising.

Altogether their plant will cost, when completed, without the old plant already in, would be more than $250,000 and that this would be added to from time to time as the business grew.

Big Demand
 There was a great market for mineral rubber, he said, and the company would no doubt devote most of its energies in that direction. Science would lead them along the right track, and as development in scientific investigations progressed so they would go with it.

The history of the old Ranger Refinery is one of the sad stories of the oil boom that broke out in this section of Texas six years ago, when all the world cast its eyes on Eastland and Ranger, and after oil well came in with its black flowing gold, and the people went mad with a lust for wealth unsurpassed in the history of the state.

Old Company
 The company that built the refinery was capitalized for $15,000,000, but the plant was built to later go into bankruptcy following a long series of legal actions.

Four years ago the referee in bankruptcy seeing that the plant was likely to rot for want of work decided to sell it by auction, and C. C. Rodgers of Pittsburg, bought the whole thing, lock, stock and barrel for a mere $13,000. To the average person this looked dirt cheap but it happened that the Ranger Refinery owed the Petroleum Products over $110,000, so it was not so cheap after all, he said.

The Pittsburg firm are determined to get the money back they lost in the plant at Ranger. Mr. Rodgers said, and emphasized that with the present shallow oil boom, and the increased demand for mineral rubber, the prospects looked exceedingly bright, he said.

Directors
 Three of the leading directors of the firm were in Ranger Friday looking over the plant which has lain idle since C. C. Rodgers purchased it in 1922, but watchmen have been employed from that time to guard the property and keep it clean.

The present plant is only a skimming plant and much remodeling would have to be done before work would open up.

Mr. Rodgers comes from an old oil stock, his grandfather, Captain Rodgers, being one of the original directors of the Standard Oil Corporation, and he was a member of Rodgers & Rodgers of Pittsburg.

That the opening of the plant will be a tremendous boost for Ranger and Eastland county is already shown by the willingness of business men to assist in the preliminary work, and further Mr. Rodgers stated that they would employ all local help, the only outsiders that would come would be the mechanics that would care for and install the machinery.

Chemists Dye Growing Trees For Experiment

MACHIAS, Me., June 10.—Touched by the magic wand of science, trees in the forests near here have turned from their native colors to lavender, yellow, blue and orange.

These extraordinary transformations, which have amazed woodsmen, are results of experiments being conducted by Fritz von Behr, German scientist, assisted by Carl Switzer and Gerald Wheeler, University of Maine students.

The secret of the dye that has made possible the creation of the multi-colored trees is known only to von Behr, inventor of the process which may revolutionize the hard-wood lumber industry of the world.

From their outer surfaces to the hearts of their trunks, trees have been indelibly colored by the use of the new dye. Neither acid nor water affects the artificial coloring, according to von Behr, who said the question was whether the process could be practiced economically.

Birch, beech and maple trees are being used as the bases for the experiments. Already, buttons, umbrella-handles, cigarette cases and candle-sticks have been made from the dyed wood. Once carved, such articles have only to be polished, for the wood has been colored as a tree.

According to von Behr, the dye neither kills nor injures the tree. Tests have proved that the artificial coloring has a tendency to harden the wood, but he insists the tree would continue to grow if it were not cut.

"It is a comparatively simple process," said von Behr. "We think we have convinced folks around here that we can dye trees. In the near future we are going to experiment with some larger trees, merely to convince people that there is no limit to this thing."

Work begins by boring five or six holes at the base of the trunk. This is to create a reservoir for the dye, into two of the holes we put gas jet plugs. We use ordinary garbage cans, suspended in the trees, as dye reservoirs.

"The dye flows down into the trunk, the sap takes it up through the tree, and in two days on the smaller trees and about four days on the larger trees, the process is completed."

With the dyeing process, von Behr claims beech can be made in "rose wood" and yellow birch into "mahogany" which have defied detection by expert lumbermen.

Alfred Ames, a local lumberman, who is keenly interested in von Behr's experiments, sees infinite potentialities in the project which is now on test.

"It appears," he said, "that we have at last found a use for our hardwoods, which were fast becoming a drug on the market. It is simply a question now of how much it will cost to dye the trees. If the cost of injecting the dye into them is not prohibitive, we shall start within a short time on the dyeing of trees on an extensive scale and put the dyed lumber on the market."

Summer Sours Dispositions Of Men and Women

Summer, the off season for oysters—is at hand! Winter, with its north winds, rains and bursted water pipes, is disagreeable in its way, but the low temperatures prevent few long lasting discomforts.

Summer, on the other hand, with its heat, hot winds and lack of rains, is the season of ill tempers, suicides and divorces—besides being the off season for oysters.

Coys and stenographers get lazy with the approach of the hot months and dispositions in general turn to a dark shade of sour. Business men who find their offices too hot to endure take off to the golf links—which is hotter. Few herald summer with delight except the ice man and the soda fountain man.

"The only one that is sorry around our house when summer is over," one man said, "is the dog. The only pleasure he gets out of life is making the ice man think he's going to bite him, and when the ice man qui's coming regularly he looks disappointed the rest of the year."

Newsboys and bootblacks declare that their businesses show a marked decrease during the summer months. "People don't have anything else to do in the evenings during the winter but stay home and read," one newsie said. "In the evening when it is pouring down rain in the winter I sell ten fast," he said. A dusky shineboy declared that "they's a heap harder to please in the summer time."

Hotel owners say that their greatest problem is to please their summer guests. "If we have 250 applicants for rooms in one day, 240 of them deamed a "southeast corner" one manager said. Records show that there are more divorces, suicides and murders during June, July and August than at any other time of the year. And then the fat men are bothered with keeping cool and "shooing" the flies and mosquitoes.

But summer time is the season of vacations and picnics which helps to counteract all of its disadvantages. Then there's that great American institution—Saturday afternoon off.

Sheriff Edwards Does His Work, In Quiet Manner

That quiet unassuming work will make a man popular and well liked among his friends, is shown by the increased confidence placed by the citizens of Eastland county in Sheriff Bob Edwards, who has carried on without fuss or trouble and has maintained his office at its duty that of preventing crime.

Some people think that all the sheriff's office has to do is to arrest offenders, but it happens that this is the last part of the work. Primary the work of an officer is to prevent crime and maintain a law abiding community.

It is freely stated in the county that Sheriff Bob Edwards has attained law and order without much expense and with a medium of officers. Sheriff Edwards said that a multitude of arrests never made a law-abiding city and that the law could be enforced without throwing people into jail every five minutes. People are made to obey the law by good example and not through arrests on trifling matters, he said.

No Politician.
Sheriff Bob Edwards came to Texas 43 years ago and can rightly be called one of the pioneers of Eastland county. He has watched it grow through all its troubles and trials. He was engaged in stock raising and has accumulated enough money to keep him from the wiles of the professional politician class. He has one of the finest farms in the county and his other holdings are very valuable.

When he invited the favor of electors at the last elections, he was elected with an overwhelming majority and there is not a shadow of a doubt that he will be elected again, since no man in Eastland county more truly deserves the honor, citizens say.

Favors Home Rule.
He believes that the towns should take care of themselves with their own officers and he never interferes with officers of such towns.

Sheriff Edwards has made himself extremely popular with the citizens of the county by his thoroughness and the tact he has displayed in dealing with matters that have come up in his office, while his courteousness and gentlemanly manner when dealing with women folk has fostered the admiration of those that would be his enemies.

It is not every county, responsible citizens say, that can boast of a thorough gentleman in office as sheriff. Usually they are of the tough hard boiled element, ever looking for trouble while their deputies show their guns at the first sign of what might appear a good chance to use them. Further a sheriff is not known by the kind of gun he carries, it is said, but by the kind of man he is to the people in his community. The sheriff should not inspire fear at his approach.

Bob Edwards has shown that kindness and real friendship is the stuff that wins, and that explains his popularity.

Farmers Reach Agreement About Running Gin

At a meeting of farmers of the Eastland trade territory together with representatives of Eastland business men and owners of the Eastland gin, at the Eastland Chamber of Commerce Saturday afternoon, it was agreed that the owners of the gin would put in four new gin stands, new motor and otherwise put the gin in first class condition for ginning cotton this coming fall. It was also agreed that the farmers and business men of Eastland should name the manager for the gin.

KENDRICK'S VOTE SAVED PROHIBITION

By JULIAN SNYDER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—How one vote decided the fate of the Volstead act in 1917 and brought prohibition is revealed.

It was a senator who cast this deciding vote—the quiet, keen-eyed Kendrick, democrat, of Wyoming.

In voting as he did, Kendrick disobeyed the late President Wilson but he saved the Volstead act from being shelved in the agriculture committee.

"I disobeyed President Wilson who did not think it was fair that congress should enact the dry law while our men were overseas, but I thought it was the only way to get rid of the saloon," Kendrick told the United Press in an exclusive interview.

"I think that the Volstead act was wise legislation. We have rid ourselves of the saloon."

Kendrick said he did not favor a national referendum, although he admitted the "wetness" of eastern states offered a grave problem.

"However," he added, "I don't think we have given prohibition a fair chance yet. It is too early to talk about modification."

Kendrick then told how he saved the Volstead act in 1917.

The agriculture committee was considering whether to report the dry law to the senate. A vote was taken. The result was a tie. Three senators voted for and three against the measure.

"At the time the vote was taken I was attending a session of the finance committee," Kendrick said.

"Senator Sheppard called me and told me the committee vote on the Volstead act was a tie which would have shelved the bill. I was a member of the agriculture committee, so I hurried to the committee room. At first they refused to permit me to vote, saying the vote had already been taken."

"Finally they agreed to my arguments and I voted to report the bill. The Volstead act was thus reported favorably by a margin of one vote."

Luscious Cherries Are Grown Here By C. S. Gallagher

A bunch of cherries, many in number and luscious in color and size, was brought to this newspaper office Saturday morning by C. C. Patterson, secretary of Chamber of Commerce, who always exploits home grown products. The cherries, which were really unusually large, were grown by C. S. Gallagher, at his home at 720 Foch street, Ranger.

According to Mr. Gallagher, the tree was planted three years ago and bore two cherries the first year he set it out. This year he probably will gather a gallon and a half of the red ripe fruit from this tree. The tree was planted as an experiment to see how cherries would do in this climate. Mr. Gallagher feels that they can be grown most successfully and is very proud of the size and quality of the fruit.

West Point Grads Are Advised How To Take Training

By United Press.
WEST POINT, N. Y., June 12.—West Point graduates, who became full-fledged army officers today, had the novel experience of being told that they must now go to school under enlisted men.

"You will serve under men and with men, particularly the old non-commissioned officers who know more about the army than you will know for many a long year," Assistant Secretary of War Hanford MacNider informed the graduating class of the U. S. Military Academy.

While advising the young officers to learn from older men in the service, both officers and enlisted men, MacNider indicated that the army needs new ideas to meet new conditions.

"Absorb all you can from them, but leave room in your mind for your own discoveries. The world is always in a state of flux and strange history is being written every day. Stay pliant, and remember that most battles—not military ones alone—have been won by common sense," he continued.

Rivers and Harbors Bill to Be Brought Up Before Senate

Weekly Sunday Concert By Band This Afternoon

Ranger High School band will give its weekly Sunday program this afternoon at 6.30 at the usual place, on Main and Marston streets. This is said to be the best program ever arranged for a band in Ranger and the public is invited to come out and enjoy this hour of music.

With the rolling around of the annual meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the Ranger High School Band, is getting very anxious to know if they are to number among "those present" at Amarillo this year.

Last year, after four months intensive training, the Ranger Band won second prize in the two-year class at Mineral Wells, which was a remarkable record. This year the band is six months old and will be entered as a high school band and should stand a splendid chance of winning first honors. The boys hope to make the trip and plan to go by truck loads to Amarillo for the event.

This afternoon's program: "True and Faithful" march; "Sun-kissed" Mazurka; "Hail Columbia," patriotic; "Admiration," waltz; "Alo-o-o," Hawaiian melody; "Cupid's Charms," serenade; "Ruby Red," march; "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," popular; "Star Spangled Banner," national anthem.

The program should suit every individual taste, as it includes every kind of music except jazz.

Chicago Is Hit By Destructive Storm, Many Hurt

CHICAGO, June 12.—Wind, rain, and electric storms centering about Chicago subsided early today after more than twelve hours in which more than a score of persons were injured and huge property damage suffered. The storms reached their climax in Chicago within a half an hour of the electrical display during which 22 persons were hurt and 45 fire alarms sounded.

Some of the injured were struck by bolt of lightning and stunned, others were hurt by falling debris from buildings that were struck by lightning. Two women and several men were hurt in a panic on a street car when lightning hit the roof and set the car afire.

NEW MEXICO'S FIGHTING EDITOR GOES TO TRIAL MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

By United Press.

LAS VEGAS, N. M., June 12.—Carl Magee, famous fighting editor and for seven years the storm center of New Mexico politics, goes on trial here Tuesday on a charge of manslaughter, the culmination of a series of trials for libel and contempt of court without parallel in the history of American newspaperdom.

Magee was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of John B. Lassetter, a state highway department employee, on August 22, 1925. Lassetter was killed by a stray bullet from a 22 caliber pistol in the hand of Magee at a moment when the editor was prone on the floor of a hotel lobby during a physical encounter with his bitter enemy, former Judge D. J. Leahy.

System Attacked

The shooting of Lassetter was the tragic climax to Magee's repeated attacks on features of New Mexico's political system which he considered reformation. Magee entered New Mexico journalism in 1915 when he purchased the Albuquerque Morning Journal through the intermediation of Albert B. Fall, then just elected to the United States Senate.

The new editor's first important move in New Mexico politics was a sharp criticism of the administration of the state land office. He charged that politicians instead of school children profited most from the public revenue. Fall promptly warned him against this editorial policy and threatened to crush him if he persisted in it, Magee declared.

Instead of ceasing his criticism Magee widened it with an attack on other state officials with the result, as he charged, that two banks holding his notes refused to renew them and a local bank started foreclosure proceedings. Magee appealed to his readers to aid him and succeeded in selling $75,000 worth of bonds to keep his paper going.

Brought to Trial

It was shortly after this that Magee announced his decision to join the ranks of the Democrats, declaring that the old Republican organization was beyond reform from within. Six months later he was brought to trial for criminal libel as a result of his increasingly plain-spoken editorial utterances. The judge directed a verdict of guilty and fined him one dollar in damages to the plaintiffs who were members of the banking interests Magee charged were trying to ruin him financially.

Meanwhile he had found it impossible to maintain his ownership of the Morning Journal and some time after the first libel suit was compelled to sell it. In June, 1922, he started Magee's Weekly Independent to continue his editorial policy and operated the weekly until April, 1923, when he made it a daily and named it the New Mexico State Tribune. In the fall of 1923 the new State Tribune became a Scripps-Howard newspaper the management having been attracted by Magee's political crusade and from this point on Magee was backed with the resources of that organization.

First Clash

In the spring of 1923 Magee had his first court clash with Judge Leahy, the first striking outbreak of the hostility between the two which culminated three years later in the death of Lassetter. Magee was taken before Judge Leahy's court in Las Vegas and convicted of criminal libel of another judge who testified he himself did not consider the comment in issue libelous.

Leahy sentenced Magee to 12 to 18 months in the penitentiary. While the trial was in progress Magee continued to comment editorially on Judge Leahy's methods and after the first conviction he was again convicted and again sentenced to a year in jail and a fine of $4,000.

The militant editor's struggles had ages to local bankers on criminal libel charges.

Pending abatement of court charges in Judge Leahy's court were brought to trial again in Las Vegas in the summer of 1924. Leahy found him guilty of indirect contempt on two charges. When asked if he had anything to say, Magee replied: "I deny I am being accorded due process of law and I deny this is a court."

Leahy thereupon found him guilty of direct contempt and sentenced him to three months in jail. In this trial the editor refused to plead and withdrew the appearance of both his attorneys.

As on the previous occasion the governor pardoned Magee promptly but this time the sheriff for a time refused to honor the pardon and Magee spent two days and nights in jail while some of his friends urged the governor to call out the National Guard to release him. He was released, however, to the jurisdiction of the state supreme court on habeas corpus proceedings. Some time later the supreme court ruled the governor had power to pardon in direct contempt cases and all charges growing out of Judge Leahy's citations were terminated.

Upon his release, Magee took the stump in the 1924 campaign in behalf of the Democratic ticket in Judge Leahy's district. Leahy was defeated in the fall election. His next personal encounter with Leahy occurred in the hotel lobby the following August when during a physical attack the editor's wildly aimed shot killed Lassetter.

Throughout his active career in New Mexico Magee has conducted a column of comment on current news called "Turning on the Light." In it he has not hesitated to attack in the most deliberate terms practices which he considered corrupt or inimical to the best interest of the state. His plain speaking incurred the bitter enmity of many while at the same time it gained him friends who believed implicitly in his policies.

Magnolias Ready For the Dynamos; A Double Header

There are two sides to every question and from the rival camps, of the Dynamos and the Ranger Magnolias, come two diverse reports as the correct "dope" on today's double header game at Nitro Park. Reports from the Dynamos camp says that they are determined to gain leadership, as the following exchange from the Breckenridge Americans will show:

"Seeking revenge for the defeat suffered at the hands of the Rangerites two weeks ago, the Breckenridge Dynamos will invade the Magnolia grounds Sunday afternoon for a double header game.

"The double header will be played to make up for the game that was rained out at Ranger three weeks ago. Both games will be official.

"After redeeming herself by defeating the Thurber Miners in a 12 inning game here last Sunday, the Breckenridge Dynamos feel all the more determined to defeat Ranger Sunday for the trouncing received at her hands, here two weeks ago."

Magnolias Talk

Now the Ranger Magnolias who camp at Olden, say, through their official spokesman, Manager McGarvey, that they can tell the world that the Dynamos chances to win the big double header, are powerful slim. The Mags, have only been beaten twice this season, and if they get licked this afternoon, it will be at the end of one of the mightiest battles ever played on the local diamond. And, another thing, the Mags have a new card up their sleeve, that they will spring this afternoon. They have a new pitcher, one Ollie, who comes straight from Texas University and who has a record of 9 games won and none lost, to start off his pitching in the second game today.

McGarvey, who is some dopster, says his team is in fine shape and are prepared to turn back the invaders and gain the leadership for Ranger's team.

Big Crowd

A record breaking crowd is expected not only because it will be a double header between two of the strongest teams in the Oil Belt League, but because it seems a foregone conclusion in both camps that

To Defend His Title

PAUL BERLENBACH

Paul Berlenbach, light heavyweight champion, will defend his laurels against Young Stribling, the Georgia schoolboy, at Madison Square Garden June 21. In Stribling the title-holder will meet a worthy opponent, a scrapper who has been stepping up the pugilistic ladder at a fairly steady gait. Against Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, Berlenbach was lucky to escape a knockout, while Stribling easily outpointed him. If the Risko fight can be taken as a criterion, Stribling seems to have a good chance of becoming the next light heavy king.

today's winner will have very good chances to hold the leadership at the close of the season. Everybody in Ranger is expected to come out and "fan" for the Magnolias, their almost invincible team. Breckenridge is coming strong—and its pretty good dope, tried and true that the team that gets the most support from its home town is the team that cops the honors.

The first game will be called at 2 p. m. promptly.

In the first game Browning and Cox will pitch for the Ranger Mags and in the second game Ollie, the new star will pitch with Chas. Kock as left fielder.

Here is the lineup for Ranger Magnolias: Harbison, 2b; Dean 3b; Rainey 1b; Jarrett ss; Roberson cf; Ollie p; Campbell rf; Griggs c; Browning p; Kock p.

Golfers To Give Jess Sweetser Great Reception

By PAUL W. WHITE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 10.—When Jess Sweetser, bond broker and golfer, comes rolling home on the Aquitania in a few days he will receive the plaudits of every able-bodied divot digger in Westchester County. It was only a few minutes after the cables from Muirfield announced Sweetser's victory in his quest for the British amateur championship that the officials of the Siwonoy Club, of which the 24 year old title holder is a member, began arrangements for a rousing reception as a young golfer ever got.

Jess is popular throughout the New York district and the other clubs weren't satisfied when they heard that Siwonoy was going alone on the jubilee plans, so the Westchester County Golf Association took over the celebration and the sky will be the limit.

Even in the clamor of congratulation when Sweetser arrives there are likely to be comparatively few "I-told-you-so's." Sweetser's club mates were not at all sure that he would come home with the championship and Jess himself was extremely dubious.

Since Sweetser captured the American amateur in 1922 he has been less and less interested in golf. He played frequently, but as he told his friends, "Now that I'm married I'm going to devote more time to business. I can't be just a golfer all my life."

It is well known that if the young Mrs. Sweetser hadn't insisted Jess would not have joined the Americans on the invasion of England. She alone was confident that he would win.

Sweetser is a smart player. He carries himself confidently and there are a number of golf fans who are misled by his apparent air of nonchalance.

But at bottom Jess is a bundle of nerves. His particular golfing merit is that one or two bad holes do not spoil his style of play. He can come back even when his opponent is shooting in sensational luck, and that is the test of any golfer.

The three-quarter swing that Jess has employed for several years has been almost unanimously condemned by students of form. But Jess believes that his stroking makes for greater accuracy than the full swing and if there is anything to that proof of the pudding aphorism, the Westchester bond broker is about right.

Virtually every leading athlete in this country will compete in one or more events in addition to heavy foreign representation. Among the latter will be Stenroos, of Finland, Olympic marathon winner; Charley Hoff, Norway, pole vault star; Myyra of Finland, Olympic javelin champion; Paulen, the Belgian half-mile and Borg, Norwegian swimming ace.

The challenge round of the Davis cup tennis matches will bring together Bill Tilden, Vincent Richards and Bill Johnston of the United States; Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra of France. The Intercollegiate Championships and an international world court championship are also on the program.

Golf will include the women's national championship; the Women's Eastern Championship; the interstate matches for the Leslie Cup and the Army, Navy and Marine Corps tournaments.

In addition, fencing, polo, cricket, soccer, boxing, rowing, canoeing, bicycling, archery swimming, gymnastics, rifle shooting, surf casting,

Tariff Increases Cause of Riots In Streets of Prague

PRAGUE, Austria, June 12.—A four-hour battle between the police, communists and socialists was staged following a demonstration against tariff increases.

Four policemen were seriously wounded, 56 were injured in varying degrees, and 60 rioters were injured in the conflict in which the demonstrators fired shots, threw stones and bottles and used knives.

The crowd captured a mounted police charge by driving autos brought into the square for use of the speakers as platforms against the police horses, seriously crippling many of them. Rain beat down on the heads of the struggling throng. Eighty-five persons were arrested during the demonstration.

Republican Plan Tour Of This Section

DALLAS, June 12.—Republican leaders of Texas will undertake a pilgrimage through the heart of West Texas this week, responding to a long-standing invitation of leaders in that great section of the State.

Headed by R. B. Creager of Brownsville, national committeeman; Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, State vice chairman; P. Lee of Houston, member of the headquarters and executive committees, and Leonard Whittington, director of organization, the party will leave Dallas and Fort Worth immediately after the meeting of the state executive committee Monday, June 14.

The principal stops will be: Monday, June 16—Plainview and Lubbock; Thursday, June 17—Sweetwater, Abilene and Cisco.

Suzanne Lenglen Retains Laurels On Hard Courts

PARIS, France, June 12.—Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, won the hard court championship today in straight sets from Miss Mary K. Brown of California, 6-land, 6-0.

The victory was expected, the American player was only holding the place which Helen Wills was presumed to have taken, had it not been for her illness. "The substitute herself was not confident of a victory.

Hodges Heirs Well Now In Process Of Being Cleaned Out

Hodges Heirs well, drilled in by the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Company early Wednesday morning, and subsequently shot, has been in the process of cleaning out since that time. Its production is still rather a matter of conjecture, but will probably be determined by Monday. The well has attracted wide interest and publicity on account of it being near the discovery McCleskey well.

Sound of Hearts Beats Recorded On Phonograph

BOSTON, June 12.—After eighteen years of study, physicians have recorded the sound of hearts beats on phonograph records.

The task was accomplished by Dr. Richard C. Cabot of this city and Dr. Clarence Gamble of Philadelphia, assisted by electrical and phonograph company experts.

Harvard Does Rare Feat

Harvard University didn't win the annual eastern intercollegiate track and field meet this year, but it performed a rather unusual feat by coping the three long running races, the half, mile and two-mile. In the above layout we find "Red" Haggerty (left) breaking the tape in the mile, with Willard Tibbets (right) taking the two-mile. In the center, "Soapy" Watters is winning the 880 in a thrilling finish.

Americans Defeat French In Doubles On the Hard Courts

PARIS, June 12.—Today America triumphed over France in the semi-finals of men doubles of the hard courts championship matches, when Vincent Richards and Howard Kinzie, beat Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste, 9 to 7, 9 to 11, 3 to 6, 6 to 5, and 7 to 5.

England had her turn at victory when Evelyn Colyer and Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree defeated Elizabeth Ryan, and Miss Mary K. Brown in the women's doubles, 5 to 7, 6 to 4, and 6 to 2.

Crosby Well On Smith Lease Near Hogtown Looks Like Producer

The Crosby Well No. 4, on the South Lease, seven miles south of Desdemona, was drilled in late Saturday at 2,960 feet. The well's log shows eight feet of lime and twenty feet of black shale, and is looked in most favorably as a producer.

Things are looking up a bit in Washington. The senate has authorized 1614 new airplanes.

Famous Estate Of Leweston Will Be Sold For Taxes

LONDON.—Another famous estate the Leweston, near Sherborne, is going under the hammer shortly because taxation and post-war social conditions prohibit its maintenance. The Leweston estate has the distinction of having been owned by three different families only in the course of a thousand years.

"In William the Conqueror's time, and long before," the Lewestons of Leweston were held in high esteem. The manor house was rebuilt in Georgian times and stands in a delightful park.

LEADER OF AN ORCHESTRA ANALYZES AVERAGE DANCER ON THE BALLROOM FLOOR

By CAPTAIN W. H. SCOTT

To the ordinary individual the dance orchestra is merely an incident of the evening; like the chairs and other necessities it is just a fixture. Every dancer knows what he thinks of the musicians and his music, but no one stops to think or wonder what the musicians think of them.

But the musicians have fun at the expense of the dancers for while they are for ever casting side glances at those on the floor and if they are students of human nature the fun is all the more real and enjoyed.

Jack Gardner, and his Adolphus orchestra, of which the genial Jack is manager, director, and the biggest part of the cheese, coming to Eastland for the Elks dance June 22, is a man of this type. He gets the finest kick in the world watching the crowds at his dances. Jack without question is the most popular music peddler in Texas.

From his observation and experience in the dance business Mr. Gardner has arrived at the startling belief that only about fifteen percent of the persons who attend dances go because they enjoy them.

"Fifty per cent of them are there because the girl or fellow wanted to go, or one didn't want to be left out, or have to go without the other. Thirty percent for want of something better to do. They don't get any kick out of the music. I can tell that because they don't keep time to the music, and their faces are expressionless."

About one half of one per cent of the fellows go to meet a girl whom they know or hope to see. The remaining four and one half per cent are there for miscellaneous reasons which it would be hard to classify."

It is interesting to know the system that Gardner uses in sizing up his crowd. He sits sideways to the piano, half facing the floor, so he can look out over it while he is playing. The other musicians are grouped on either side so as not to interfere with his line of vision. The feet and lower limbs of the dancers are the chief objects of his gaze. Sometimes he will not raise his eyes above the waistline for several numbers.

"By watching the movement of the feet and legs I can tell whether the crowd is enjoying the music, and whether I am playing the stuff they want," Mr. Gardner said.

"I can follow any one person or any couple, and by watching their feet I can find out whether they are enjoying the dance."

"After watching in this way for some time it is interesting to look up and see the faces. You get some surprises. Of course it helps a lot in sizing up a crowd to observe the expressions on their faces. Lots of people take on a blank look when they are dancing, and their feet alone express their pleasure or displeasure at the music."

Mixing It Up

"For every crowd the music must be different. No two sets of persons want the same kind of music. It has to be mixed up and I try to furnish the kind of music that most of the crowd wants. The big idea is to please everyone as much as possible, and please most of the majority."

"A young crowd wants slower music than the older set," Mr. Gardner continued. "The demand today is for 'easy music,' a rhythm, and an air that is easy to dance to. The dancers today want to dance and enjoy themselves with the least possible exertion. To older persons it is easier to dance to faster time than to slow music."

"About two years ago there was a trend to the faster time, but now there is coming a demand for slower music. There have been no new steps or dances for some time, but the changes have been in the time."

"Changes in styles of dances change in the East, and take about six months to reach this section of the country."

Biggest In Country

Jack Gardner's orchestra with its nine members, is the largest traveling orchestra in the United States, it is claimed by Mr. Gardner. He has journeyed all over the Southwest, playing for dances. He does no contract work, but plays only on jobs, almost entirely single night stands. The longest trip the orchestra ever took for single night playing was to Roswell, N. M., to play for a dance at the New Mexico Military Academy. In taking a trip requiring a night journey, the orchestra is paid for its time just as if it were playing at night, as it is missing a job by being on the road at night. The services of Jack Gardner's orchestra was then rather expensive to the students putting on the dance at military college. On these trips over the country, and at dances in the smaller towns, many amusing incidents occur. The fame of Jack Gardner has spread over the country, and in the smaller towns he is even more of a personage than he is in Dallas. Jack and his orchestra are always the center of an admiring group of youths, who want to gaze on the famous "Jack Gardner."

Rubber

Mr. Gardner's practice of looking out over the floor and at the feet and lower limbs of the dancers always attracts the attention of the boys and girls in the smaller towns. They will stop in front of him and try to see what he is looking at, and get in his line of vision until he has to motion them to get out of the way. Crowds to whom he has played frequently know that he does not want them standing in his way and do not group around the orchestra during a dance.

This hero worship that Jack gets in the smaller towns leads to some amusing happenings, one of which Mr. Gardner relates as follows:

"We were to play in a small Louisiana town one night. During the afternoon a young man walked up to me and asked: 'Is there a dance in town tonight?'"

"I told him that there was and he then asked who was playing. I told him Jack Gardner of Dallas."

"Sure enough," he replied, 'Is old Jack over here? Well, well, old Jack. One of the best friends I ever had in my life. Guess I'll have to go over and see him.'"

"I asked him if he knew Jack very well and he said: 'Me? Why Jack and I used to go to parties together. I'll say I know him.'"

"He then related several escapades that he said Jack and he were on together, not only to prove to me how intimate he was with Jack, but for the benefit of several other listeners. I told him I was sure Jack would be pleased to see him, and suggested that he go up to the ball room to see Jack. I never saw him after that, nor before, to my knowledge. Nevertheless I got quite a kick out of the incident."

"Another time I went to a small town in Central Texas to play, and a little while before time for the dance to start, I dropped in a drug store to get a drink. The soda jerker asked me if I knew anything about Jack Gardner's orchestra and if it was any good."

"I told him that I had heard Jack play and that he wasn't so much."

"That's what I thought said the soda jerker. 'All I've heard round here is 'Jack Gardner,' and I'm sick of it. I told the other fellows he wasn't any good. Say, California is where they have real music. They've got sure enough orchestras out there.'"

"I paid for my drink and told the soda jerker that I thought I would go out to the dance, and told him he had better drop out later. He got suspicious then and yelled out after me: 'You're him, ain't you? You're Jack Gardner, I know you are.'"

"I told him I wasn't but to come out to the dance. He did, and stayed around and told me that Jack Gardner's orchestra was not so bad after all. He's a good friend of mine and always comes round to see me when I play in his town."

An Ear for Discords

"One of the funniest things I ever had said to me was by a lady in a small town. We were stopping at the little hotel and the lady in charge asked me to try her piano and see if it needed tuning."

"I tried it and told her it was in very good condition. Her reply was: 'I knew it. I knew it. My little daughter Anne when she practices on the piano makes bad notes and tells me, 'Mamma, the piano is out of tune,' but she can't fool me, for I have a wonderful ear for discords.'"

"I had never before heard of an ear for discords, and it struck me as extremely funny."

Jack Gardner was born in Toronto, Canada. His father kept a music store. His family started him on a classical music education course with the popular stuff barred. Young Jack liked the music with rhythm, dance, and swing, as played at dances.

When he was a small boy, still going to school he had his first professional experience.

"I was with a three piece combination," Mr. Gardner said. "A man about 70 years old played fiddle, a big negro played cello, and I played organ. We used an old church and they used me when they needed any one to play the organ."

Jack's First Job.

"I mopped up financially on that job. Got $1.50 a night for two nights. Then my father found it out and that ended my dance music career for the time being."

Young Gardner had had his taste of dance music, however, and was not content to follow the career his father had planned for him. He ran away and joined a theatrical troupe, which reached Texas and got stranded. The manager of the troupe left the company out on a railroad track not far from Dallas. Gardner made his way to a North Texas town, which he prefers to leave unnamed, and got a job playing the piano for a dancing teacher.

"I thought I was pretty good then, and told the dancing teacher I was the best piano player in the world. He listened to me and then told me 'how rotten I was. He said I didn't know anything about playing dance music, and then he gave me his ideas. I profited a lot by his instruction. One idea I gained, which I know is true is that the music for a dance should be played so it goes out over the floor and spreads outward and upward."

"If you can get the dance orchestra" tra to play that way it is a good orchestra. The music doesn't go into the air in a jumbled mass of noises. It slides out easily and smoothly over the floor and gets to the dancers that way."

Cisco Grid Star Blown To Pieces, Nitro Glycerine

J. E. (Chiggers) Brown, well known Cisco grid star was instantly killed Friday afternoon when a truck loaded with nitro glycerine exploded nine miles South of Breckenridge, just after it crossed the bridge on the Crystal Falls Road.

The truck was demolished while a hole was made in the ground like a big shell crater. The remains of Brown was picked up in minute fragments, some of it hundreds of yards from the spot.

Brown left Cisco about 7 a. m. with 220 quarts of nitro, and was bound for Burkburnett. Oil men say that the explosion was caused by the jar of the truck at the bridge, coupled with a slight leak from one of the vessels containing the explosive.

Rubber Market Works Three Shifts Daily

"If a rubber manufacturer wants to keep up with the market, he should stay up day and night," declared William O'Neil, president of the General Tire & Rubber company, in a recent address to national association of bankers. "Rubber is the only commodity I know of in which the market works on three shifts a day. First, we have the London market to deal with. That opens at 5 o'clock a. m., New York time. Next comes the New York market, closing at 5 o'clock New York time. Then, at 7 o'clock Singapore market opens—and that is the wildest market of them all, at Singapore, the place where rubber comes from. So, when New York suddenly becomes excited and sends rubber prices up, Singapore catches the news before 7 that night—and Singapore merely makes any muddle worse. The dealers there see to go way, way up in the air. One reason for Singapore's activity is that very little rubber is in storage there, at the source, at any time."

Growers Must Sell Rubber.
"Here, we could keep crude rubber for years in good condition, if we used proper methods of protection against light and heat. But they can't keep rubber out there at the source, close to the equator, and they simply have to get rid of it promptly. So when they get excited, at the source of supply, prices go away up and the rubber market is just as sleepless when prices go down. There are three shifts to work it down."

"Next to rubber, the commodity of which we buy the most is cotton, but, though cotton prices vary considerably they never can equal rubber in that respect—and we buyers could have a chance to sleep if cotton were our only concern. The cotton market opens in London at 5 in the morning, New York time, and closes in New York about the time New Yorkers usually quit business. Then the market is really closed for that day. It may run an hour or so longer in Chicago or farther west, but about 12 hours constitute a cotton market day. So, if a rumor of a change in cotton arises during the day, people have a chance to get quieted down that night, to consult each other and their banks, and usually are able to prevent radical, sudden changes in cotton. If the crop is short, that is known months in advance and price advances due to crop disaster can be discounted to a certain extent. But the rubber market—that is the elastic, bouncing market of them all, because a whole season's success may be involved in a sudden decision whether or not to buy—at what figure and how much."

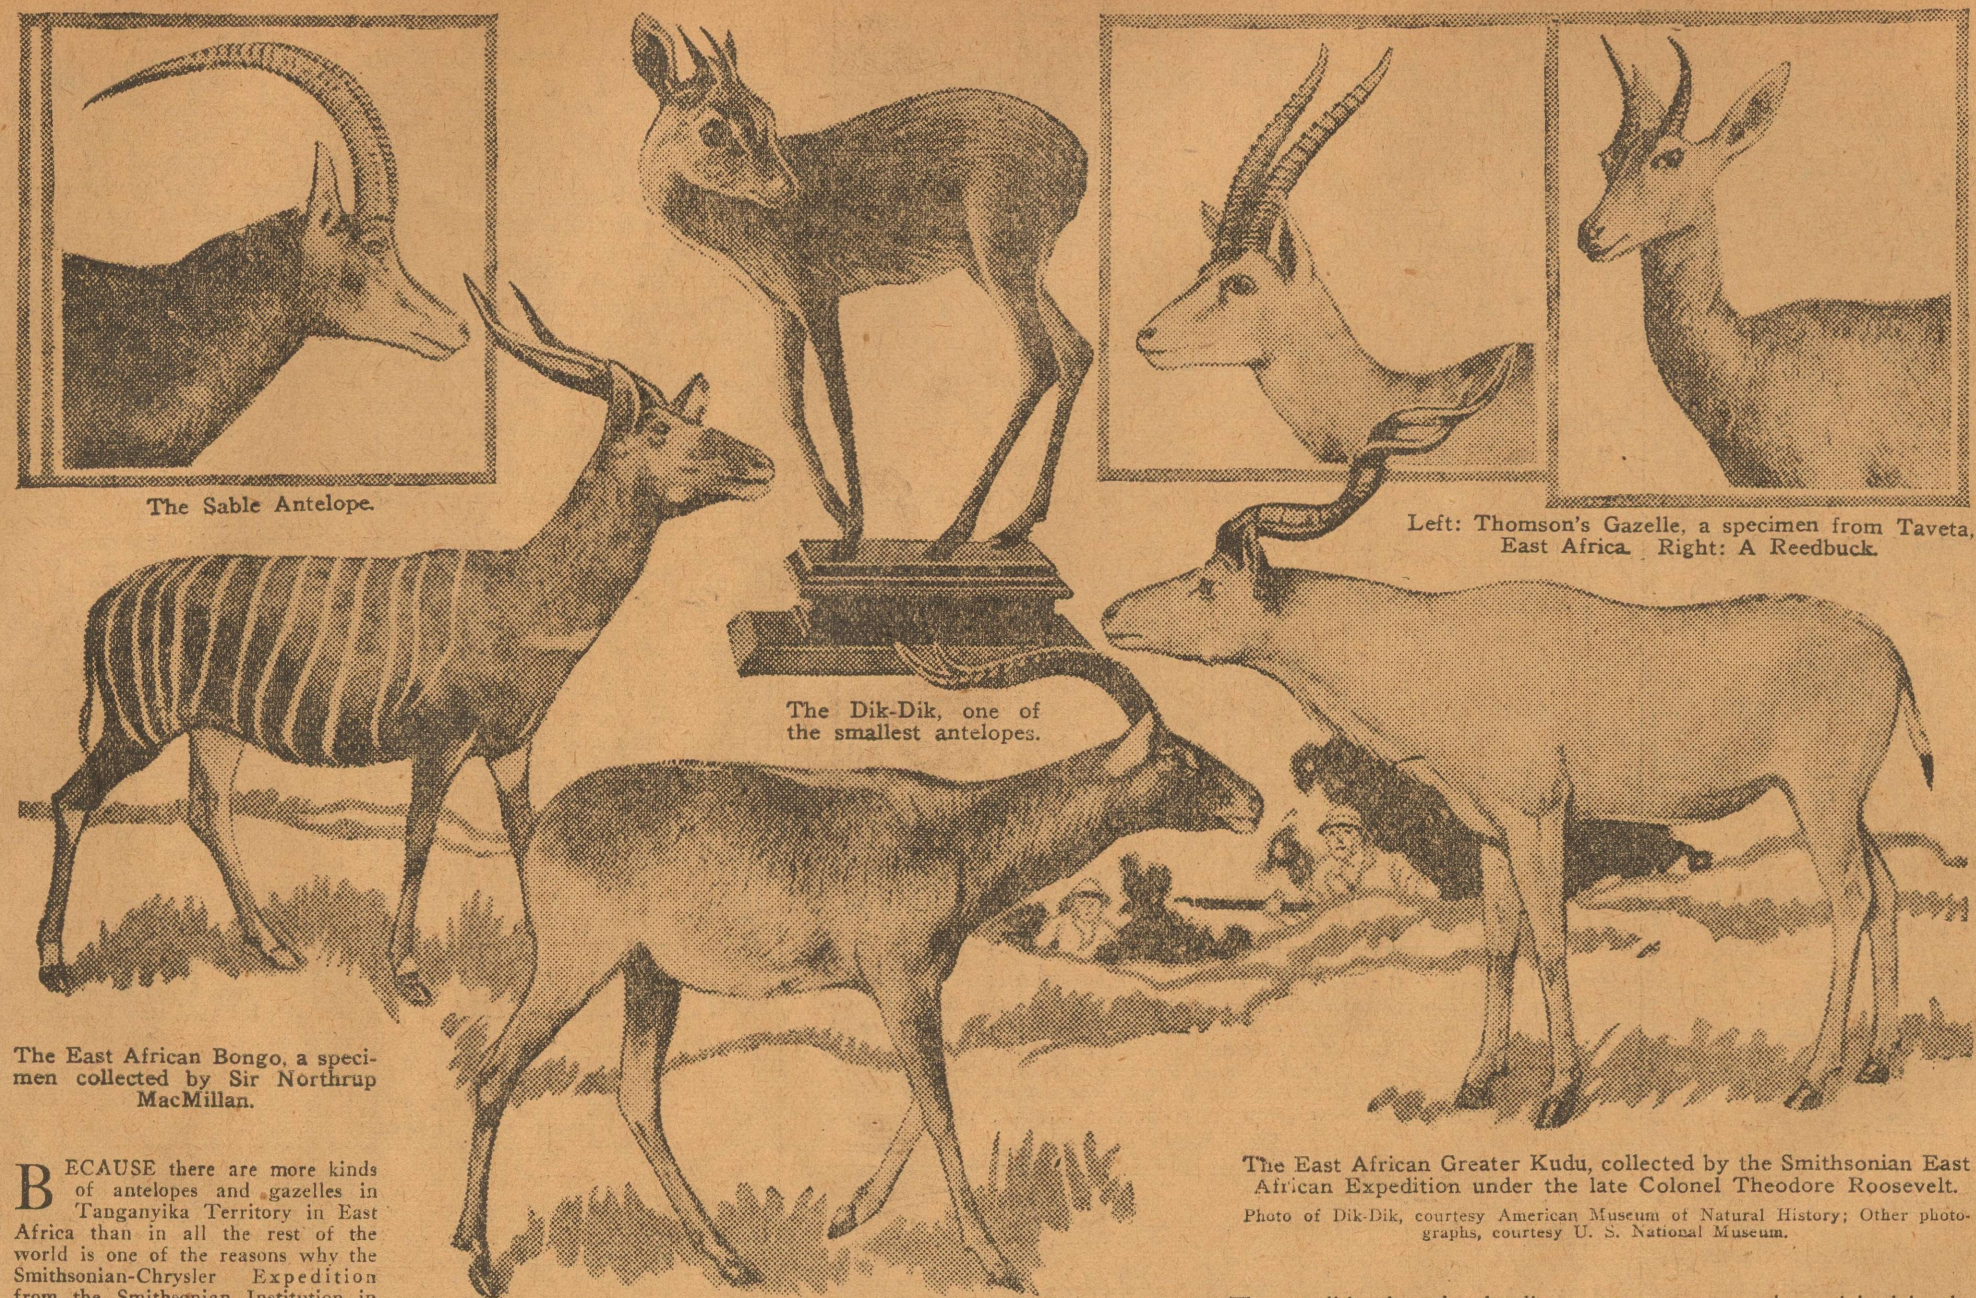

"It may be news that a great deal of our cotton for cord tire fabric is a British colonial product, as well as rubber. Most of the long staple cotton required for high grade tires comes from Egypt. We do not grow in this country anywhere near enough long staple cotton for American tires. The ideal American long staple is known as Sea Island, and was actually developed on some island in the Atlantic off the coast of Georgia. But the boll weevil gets in its work, the acreage devoted to Sea Island is small and the annual American crop now does not exceed 10,000 tons."

Cannot Restrict Cotton.
"There is little chance that Great Britain will ever try to restrict our supply of Egyptian cotton, because Great Britain is among our very largest customers for the short staple cotton grown in our southern states. England needs our cotton for her cotton goods as badly as we need her Egyptian cotton for our tires."
"All these things are in proof of our contention," says Mr. O'Neil, "that no matter what may be our political attitude about participation in world affairs, the successful American rubber manufacturer must and does take a very active interest in the natural resources of many countries, and he is keenly alive to every political development that may affect the availability of those natural resources to the American public."

Smithsonian-Chrysler East African Zoological Expedition Trapping Numerous Varieties of Antelopes and Gazelles

The Sable Antelope.

The Dik-Dik, one of the smallest antelopes.

The East African Bongo, a specimen collected by Sir Northrup MacMillan.

The East African Greater Kudu, collected by the Smithsonian East African Expedition under the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

The Nile Lechwi, obtained by the Smithsonian East African Expedition under the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

BECAUSE there are more kinds of antelopes and gazelles in Tanganyika Territory in East Africa than in all the rest of the world is one of the reasons why the Smithsonian-Chrysler Expedition from the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, is today in that Territory.

Antelope is the name given to numerous kinds of deer-like ruminants—animals which chew their cuds—intermediate between the deer and the goat, with cylindrical ringed horns. Gazelle is the name given to the smaller antelopes.

Antelope in Tanganyika Territory, which is under British mandate, are protected, but permission has been obtained from the British authorities to trap a number of antelopes to be transported to the National Zoological Park in Washington, which is under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution.

Of the antelope and its kindred

there are some 16 or 18 kinds in Tanganyika country ranging in size from the great and stately eland, the bulls of which have been known to measure more than six feet at the shoulder, down through all gradations of size and color to the diminutive dik-diks, barely topping 15 inches in height.

A study of the horns of antelopes and gazelles is a study of the versatility of nature. The oryx, for example, has semicircular horns; the kudu, spirally twisted horns without rings; the hartebeest, sharply an-gulated lyrate horns; the sable antelope, imposing horns that sweep backward in a semi-circular curve; while the reedbuck is distinguished by the pronounced forward curve of its horns.

The object of the Smithsonian-Chrysler Expedition is to bring back alive, for exhibition in the National Zoo in Washington, approximately 100 species of wild animals, some of which have never before been seen in America, and others at present rare in this country and not now found in the National Zoo.

The expedition is under the direction of Dr. William M. Mann, director of the National Zoological Park. Members of the party sailed from New York to Southampton and from there to Dar-es-Salaam, seat of government of Tanganyika Territory. From Dar-es-Salaam the party proceeded to Tabora which is about halfway between the coast and Lake Tanganyika, one of the largest bodies of fresh water in the world. At Tabora a base camp was established.

The trip from Dar-es-Salaam was made over the Central African Railway which is probably the world's crookedest railroad. The road winds over a rolling country in a descent of about 4,000 feet to the sea. Its many turns can be explained by the way the Germans let contracts for its construction. The contractors were allowed so much per kilometer, with no total distance named, between two points. The result was that many contractors put as many miles as possible into each section.

The Smithsonian-Chrysler expedition is using a safari of 150 men to capture animals. No killing will be done except to supply fresh meat for food.

The expedition was made possible by Walter P. Chrysler, motor car manufacturer, who has interested himself in the National Zoological Park which attracts more men, women and children in Washington than anything else of public interest.

Swiss Scientist Believes Dogs Have Conscience

By FREDERICK KUH, United Press Staff Correspondent.
LEIPZIG, Germany.—Animals not only capable of thinking, but also possess a sensitive conscience and clear-cut moral standards, according to Prof. Richard Herberz, well known psychologist of Berne university, Switzerland.

Writing in "Die Gartenlaube," Dr. Herberz describes numerous incidents, illustrating the ethical qualities of animals.

He describes his arrival at home to find the dog with its tail between its legs. As the murderer instinctively returns to the scene of his crime, so the dog edged his way toward the sofa. Dr. Herberz noticed that a spot on the couch was still warm and realized that, contrary to orders, the dog had been lying on the sofa.

"The dog," concludes the professor, "had suffered conscience pangs."

Indeed, the animals appear to have their own commandments, though nobody knows whether they include the classical ten. At any rate, Professor Herberz declares that the dog's life is replete with "thou shalt's" and "thou shalt not's."

The same author has witnessed a dog, alone in the kitchen, sniff at a choice piece of meat, hesitate, sniff again and finally overcome with a sense of morality, abandon the spot and leave his master's lunch intact. Again that still small dog's voice!

Similarly, Dr. Herberz depicts the mother-swallow which, after an inner struggle, decided to desert her young and fly from Germany far to the south. But upon seeing strange, baby swallows in Africa, her memory quickened and it was evident that her abandoned infants were pricking her conscience.

"There is reason to believe," declares the psychologist, "that animals' ethical behaviour must be interpreted like man's."

In this connection, the Swiss scientist asserts that animals are also capable of independent thought. He questions the accuracy of the popular theory that animals learn only by the trial-and-error system. As evidence, he discusses German scientists' experiments with baboons in Tenerife, Spanish Northwest Africa.

Thus, he relates how a caged baboon unable to reach a banana with its arm, finally spun a lasson out of straw, poked this through the iron bars and thus grasped the coveted banana.

Reverse Decision Eastland County Legal Wrangle

The Eighth Court of Civil Appeals at El Paso has handed down a decision reversing the 42nd District court in the case of the State of Texas vs. Eastland county in which the lower court held the Eastland county Court at Law unconstitutional. The case was styled State of Texas vs. F. B. Gillett, estate.

F. B. Gillett, a citizen of Eastland county, died some years ago and an administrator for his estate, which included 60 acres of land in Taylor county, was appointed by Judge Tom J. Cunningham of the Eastland county Court at Law. The State, through the district attorney of Taylor county, filed escheat proceedings at Abilene, alleging that the land in Taylor county had escheated to the State in that the appointment of the administrator was illegal, the court appointing same not having been a constitutional tribunal.

Milton Lawrence of Eastland, attorney for the administrator of the Gillett estate, assisted by other attorneys appointed by the Eastland county bar, tried the case before Judge Ely at Abilene, who held against the defendants. The case was then appealed to the higher courts, the appeal having been taken June 6,

QUARANTINE ON MEXICAN CATTLE OFF

FORT WORTH, June 12.—The Texas Livestock Sanitary Commissioner, in session here voted late yesterday not to extend the hoof and mouth disease quarantine, now in effect against the southern and southeastern parts of Mexico. In a statement made after the meeting, Leo Callan, San Antonio, chairman of the committee, said:

"Personally I am of the opinion that it may be necessary soon to place an embargo against the entire republic of Mexico on account of the prevalence of the hoof and mouth disease in that state, and the commission will take this drastic step if the disease spreads and becomes a menace to the cattle industry in the United States."

Callan said no foot and mouth milady was in Texas nor any part of the United States at present.

and the man was fined $15 for negligent collision.

Ranger-Chaney Road Undergoes Extensive Repairs

The Ranger-Chaney road is undergoing some extensive improvements, according to Commissioner V. V. Cooper. The work extends from the Sid Mahan place toward Chaney south to Hunter School, a gap that has been in need of road work. The road machinery was moved to this section of road from the Thurber section, between the curve and the last bridge beyond the railroad, which has just been put in splendid shape.

Man and Woman Autoists In Crash Both Are Fined

By United Press.
SAN ANTONIO, June 12.—A collision resulted in lots of trouble here when the drivers of the wrecked machines got into an argument as to blame for the crash.

A man, driver of one machine tried to argue with the woman driver of the other machine. The woman slapped him. Both finally had to appear in city court where the woman was fined $5 for slapping the man 1925, just one year to a day before the decision was handed down.

The case was a very important one and attracted much attention, as a decision by the higher courts against the defendants would have meant that a large part of the acts of the Eastland county Court at Law would have been invalid and litigation involving millions of dollars would necessarily follow.

and the man was fined $15 for negligent collision.

Interest Growing In Church Revival Preacher Says

The revival being conducted at the Church of Christ in Eastland is growing in interest and spirituality as well as in attendance. The crowd on last evening was an increase over Thursday evening. Evangelist A. R. Holton at the morning service, talking for his subject, the Life of Moses, presented three phases of this most wonderful character. It was shown that Moses was directed by providence from his infancy throughout his life.

Next it was shown that Moses connected his life with a worthy cause, the Children of Israel. This was given as an example of how we can achieve greatness of the right kind. Too many lives are given for unworthy causes.

It was next shown that Moses lived for two worlds,—this world, and the world to come. This was also pointed to be a characteristic worthy of all of us. For these two great considerations of life,—this life and the life to come.

At the night service the speaker took for his subject, the Life of Paul. It was shown that Paul was honest before and after his conversion. Honesty was given as the one fundamental characteristic of the man who could be influenced by Christianity.

Next the speaker showed that Paul in presenting Christians was acting upon the wrong authority. It was pointed out that there were three authorities that men have held in religious matters. The first two authorities were pointed out as insufficient. The first insufficient authority was the authority of the human conscience. The next was man-made authority, including papal and creedal authority. The only real authority as was pointed out by the speaker, was the authority of the Holy Scriptures. The speaker pointed out that a great storm is raging around the acceptance of the Bible as authority in religion.

The time of the services is 11 a. m. and 8:15 p. m. The song service is being conducted by Ernest Witt of Abilene, Texas. Brother Witt is a splendid song leader as well as an excellent singer. Everyone is invited to come and assist in the song service.

SUPERIOR EGG MASH
SUPERIOR HEN SCRATCH

Good egg production and profitable returns from laying hens are largely the result of properly balanced feeds composed of high grade ingredients. The egg is made up of lime, protein, carbohydrates, fat and water, and unless these elements are supplied in the proper proportion the hen cannot manufacture a large number of eggs. Lactic acid and vitamins are essential for a healthy flock and it is therefore important to supply these elements in the feed to insure healthy, vigorous hens that will produce strong healthy chicks.

SUPERIOR EGG MASH, together with SUPERIOR HEN SCRATCH, and some form of lime (either oyster shell or limestone grit), and plenty of pure water furnish all the elements that go to make up the egg and will keep your hens in a healthy condition at all times.

Rogers Shallow Field At Olney Getting Big Play

OLNEY, June 12.—The Roberts Oil Corporation, of Breckenridge, and associates, who brought in the discovery well in Rogers shallow field four and one-half miles southwest of Olney, are continuing to score. This is the company that was highly successful at Olney.

They now have three producers in the Rogers pool, the Nos. 2 and 3 coming in during the past week. The No. 3 is making 150 barrels. The No. 2 is an 85-barrel well and the No. 1 came in for 100 barrels. All are producing from the 860-foot sand.

Hamilton and Martin own the only other producer in the pool, the No. 1 Whitehead.

Several sensational wells have been completed in the 1170-foot level in the M. & V. pool two and one-half miles northwest of Olney during the past week. Estimated at 1,000 barrels, the Atlantic's No. 4-A Rachuig is the biggest well completed recently. It is the furthest west in the pool. The No. 2 Rachuig of Chemnitz, Palmer and Burch was completed in the same pay for 400 barrels and the Sun's No. 2 Kunkel is making 100 barrels.

In the Markley pool where production is struck at from 550 to 610 feet, there were several good wells brought in, the best being the Lewis Oil Corporation's No. 2 Pridoux.

7,000 Kiwanians Reach Montreal For Convention

MONTREAL, June 12.—Seven thousand Kiwanians from the United States and Canada arrived here today for the formal opening tonight of the 10th annual convention of Kiwanis International.

Thirty bands, accompanying more than 1,000 musicians, will be in a parade tonight when all the assembled delegates and Montreal, organization will march through the city to be reviewed by Dominion government officials and the Kiwanis president, John H. Moss, of Milwaukee, Wis.

The opening session in the city's auditorium, the "Forum," will start at 7 o'clock, eastern standard time, and the program will be broadcast over the United States and Canada from Station CHYC.

The 150 clubs on the continent will gather in their respective cities tonight for simultaneous meeting with the convention session here for unified expression of good will and friendship which has existed between the two countries for more than a century.

"The past year has been productive of great results," Moss told an audience of Kiwanis officials and Dominion dignitaries that greeted him on his arrival from the United States. "The field of unselfish service has been shown to the world by what Kiwanis has been and is accomplishing in civic and many other ways," he said.

Moss mentioned the furthering of the work of aiding the underprivileged child, the efforts of creating a better understanding between the town and country people, vocational guidance, and the dedication of the President Harding International Good Will Memorial in Stanley Park, Vancouver, Canada, last September, as among the outstanding accomplishments of his administration.

"Kiwanis is attracting attention because of its accomplishments," he said. "Its appeal has always been to public opinion, and this appeal has been for activities of the highest social type. What Kiwanis is doing in every department of human endeavor shows that its service has been wide enough to include the many needs of humanity."

Pay Your Fines, Or Cut Weeks New Order of Chief

Accused of being too easy, Chief Davenport has had a change of heart and from now on is going to be hard-boiled when it comes to collecting fines. He says, "All who owe fines to the police court at Ranger, men or women, white or otherwise, are to come to my office not later than the 15th day of June, 1926, and pay those fines. I have done my best to treat you right about it, but the fines must be wiped off my books. If you don't come before the time expires, I assure you that you will be brought in with a capias pro fine and then it will be pay out, work out or stay locked up."

Inasmuch as the city needs men for cleaning streets, and vacant lots, there will be plenty of work for the non-payers to do, the chief said.

"When you come in to the police court and plead guilty I am supposed to keep you until your fine is paid, but I don't want to be too hard on anybody, but I do want the money you owe the city and that is due my office, so this is my warning."

And you can tell by the set of the chief's jaw that he means every word of his warning.

Veteran Grocer Retires To Farm To Raise Chicks

E. C. Shipp, veteran grocer in Ranger, recently sold his business to his son, Leroy and has retired with his family to a 17 1/2-acre farm in the Hill crest Addition. This is a very beautiful place, topping a hill, and an ideal place for chickens, hogs and gardening, however, the Shipp's expect to raise hogs and feel that they will be very successful in their efforts. The house is a large, well built one, as it was built during the boom days when money was no object, and its location is ideal.

Housewright Leaves To Attend Denver Rotary Convention

W. W. Housewright, active vice president of the Citizens State Bank, Ranger, and Ranger delegate to the Rotary International convention at Denver, which opens next Monday, left Ranger Friday night for Fort Worth on the first leg of the trip.

At Fort Worth Mr. Housewright met delegates from Fort Worth and other parts of West Texas, and the party boarded a special train from that city to Denver.

Ranger To Send Delegation To Breckenridge

A number of Rangerites will attend the dedication service of the First Baptist church at Breckenridge, today. Among the number will be Patterson, Longley and Morris from the First Baptist Church choir of Ranger, who will assist in the music furnishing one special number on the program.

The morning service will begin at 10:45 and the evening service at 8:30.

One notable feature of this dedication, entirely different from most church dedications will be that no collection will be taken for the building, as the entire debt on the church property has been paid in full.

Dr. E. G. Routh of Dallas will preach the dedication sermon. An excellent program, which includes talent from Strawn, Abilene and Breckenridge will prevail at both services.

SOCIETY AND SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Mountains and Seashore Bacon: Vacation Time

Vacation time. Wardrobe trunks being brought down from the attic, and packed. Railroad schedules and rates being studied. Where to go, the eternal question, with the mountains answering the question for some, the sea for others, and the cities for still more.

Its lazy time. Hostesses are worn out with a round of former activities. The fish are biting, the "sketchers" are humming a nocturne as they wait for the chiffon and silk clad offering that are sure to come their way, and the world awaits the summer tourist.

Ranger people will go divers ways. Three are summering in Europe, namely Mrs. W. D. Conway, who will sail soon, Mrs. Mary Blair, and Mr. Saule Perstein, who have already sailed.

Of course the Jameson girls with their parties go over every year. But while vacations are being planned events move on not so speedily perhaps, and not in so large a way, but last week chronicled a number of small events, each a treat in itself.

The Acorn Acres tea room was favored with a majority of these events, beginning Monday, when Mrs. Walter Cash entertained at lunch in honor of Mrs. Walter Brahaney's guest, Miss Casey of Los Angeles, when covers were laid for those two, Helen Brahaney and Thelma Jameson. On the same afternoon Mrs. J. E. Lewis of Eastland entertained at dinner with a party of six. Tuesday Mrs. Howard Gholson at a dinner for 11 at 7:30, and Wednesday, Mrs. W. D. Conway was hostess to the Wednesday Bridge Club. Mrs. Craig's breakfast on Thursday was another event out there. On Thursday afternoon of this week, the Red Fox Club of Eastland will meet there and on Friday afternoon, Mrs. Frank Champion will entertain the Twentieth Century Club there at 9 a. m.

MONDAY.

St. Mary's guild meets at the church at 3 p. m. Christian Missionary society meets with Mrs. W. P. Reeve, on Pershing street, at 3 p. m. Missionary study at 4 p. m., W. M. S. of Methodist church. All circles of Central Baptist W. M. U. meet at church, special consecration service, at 2:30. Rev. Hamblen will speak.

TUESDAY.

Child Welfare luncheon at the Gholson at 1:30 p. m. Rotary luncheon at 12:15 at the Gholson. Prayer meeting at all churches at 7:45.

WEDNESDAY

Rotary luncheon at 12:15 at the Gholson. Prayer meeting at all churches at 7:45.

THURSDAY.

Lions luncheon at DeGroff at 12:15. Twentieth Century Club meets with Mrs. Champion at Acorn Acres at 9:30 a. m.

FRIDAY.

Public library open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

SATURDAY.

PERSONALS. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Kilpatrick left last night for their new home in Panhandle, Texas. They were accompanied as far as Dallas by Mrs. Gus Coleman. Mrs. Kilpatrick has been Mrs. Logsdon's house guest for the past month.

Aubrey Harkrider and Mr. Ashton, dancing master, left Saturday for Dallas where Mr. Ashton goes to bring back his racing car.

IN HONOR OF MRS. BEN OWENS. Mrs. Walter Harwell entertained with five tables of bridge, Thursday afternoon at her home in the Sinclair Camp, in honor of her house guest, Mrs. Ben Owens of Texas.

Shafta daisies, sweet peas and snap dragon were used elaborately in house decorations and harmonized perfectly with the tally card and other bridge table appointments. Much of the afternoon's pleasure was occasioned by the former friends of Mrs. Owens having an opportunity to greet and renew their friendship with this charming woman.

The high score prize, a lovely pair of silk hose, went to Mrs. Walter Cash, and the hostess presented the guest of honor with a voile "nightie." Following the game a two-course luncheon of chicken salad, sandwiches, potato chips, sweet pickles and iced tea, and angel food cake and sherbet were served to the following guests: Mmes. T. M. Coombs, B. A. Tammell, J. L. Wheatley, Claude Stewart, H. B. Wilson, Roy Jameson, O. L. Phillips, Bob Porter, W. P. Lacy, Walter Cash, Earl Brewer of Eastland, Boyd Davenport, R. J. Norman, Abe Shaw, J. R. Tolland, Richard Phillips of Fort Worth, B. F. Grainger and J. F. Warren of Olden.

She Fills in for Husband

When her husband, who paints steeples and flagpoles for a living, was hurt in a traffic accident, Mrs. F. C. Ensminger of Bay City, Mich., looked up his contracts and set out to fill them for him. She soon learned that by calling on her nerve she could do the job almost as well as he could. Above she is shown painting a 100-foot flagpole at Dallas, Tex.

A PICNIC FOR VISITORS

Mattie Ben Shipp entertained with a picnic in the grove near the suburban home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Shipp, Friday afternoon in honor of Josephine and Pauline Lash. Other guests present were Hubert, Howard and Norma Hinton, Lillian Dunaway, Juanita Covington, and Mrs. E. E. Paxton of El Dorado, Arkansas.

CHILDS WELFARE CLUB

The Childs Welfare Club will meet Tuesday at the Gholson in regular monthly session. Members who want reservations for lunch please notify Mrs. Roy Jameson not later than Monday noon.

PERSONALS

Mrs. E. E. Paxton of El Dorado is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Shipp. Mrs. Paxton was formerly Miss Clara Shipp. Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Lash and daughters, Pauline and Josephine, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Covington, at the Lone Star Plant. Mrs. Edith Fletcher is attending a summer course at Texas University. Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Lanier who have been living at the Frank Brown house on Pine street, and Mrs. Lena Hight and family have moved to the house vacated by the Laniers.

THURSDAY BRIDGE ENJOYS BREAKFAST

Members of the Thursday Bridge Club enjoyed a delightful innovation in the time and place of their meeting, when their hostess, Mrs. C. C. Craig, invited them to meet with her at Acorn Acres Tea Room at 9 o'clock for a breakfast-bridge.

RECENT BRIDE IS SHOWERED

A number of friends of Mrs. Otho Jordan, met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. E. Mitchell and went from there to the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. E. T. Walton, where Mrs. Jordan had been decoyed by her sister, Miss Zada Wilson. Naturally the whole program centered around the bride. There were several clever contests, and a poem of best wishes to the bride was given. Some of the poems were very clever, but Mrs. H. B. Johnson won the prize for the cleverest one. The next contest was "Proverbs for the Bride" or "Truth for Married Women," caused a lot of fun. The gifts had been left in a suitcase, and in the midst of the jollity, a "lady salesman, with a suit case appeared at the door, bent on getting in and showing her wares to the bride and her mother. Her entrance was a great surprise and her intrusion considered very rude, especially to Mrs. Jordan, until the lady opened her suitcase and she "tumbled" that it was a joke on her. The saleslady was Mrs. McCullough.

A number of beautiful gifts, the kind that gladden any bride's heart were found in the suitcase. Those who formed this happy party were Mmes. Velma F. Brimberry, Tom Mills Abney, Elizabeth Cooper Cough, Lois Walker Johnson, McCollough, H. B. Johnson, W. E. Mitchell and Misses. Ruth Shirley, Cuban Swoveland, Geraldine Williams, Olga Mitchell, Willie Matthews Catherine

OLD CHINESE FAMILY SYSTEM DISRUPTED BY NEW "FREE LOVE" AND DECLINE OF CONCUBINAGE

By RANDALL GOULD (United Press Staff Correspondent) PEKING China.—"Free love" has come to China. But the term "free love" like every other term imported into the perplexing Orient, when defined, turns out to mean something else than in the West. Free love in China, while no less shocking to the conservative Chinese mind than to the conservative (Occidental) mind, actually means freedom to see one's future mate before marriage, and to exercise a voice in the selection. In China this is revolutionary. For centuries it has been the practice in China for the parents to pick mates for their offspring. Often the vows were plighted, through the proxy of parents, as soon as the children were born. For prominent families to join thus as a matter of policy, or for old friends to consolidate their friendship by engaging their boy and girl babies, was not only a matter of course but the very highest social practice. Occidental Ideas. New China, the China of the Republic and other Occidental ideas, sees the matter differently. New China wants to jazz at the foreign hotels, to spin about in motorcars, to "net." Free love in the Occidental sense has not come in, but free love in this new sense of picking one's own wife or husband has come in most decidedly. Often most distressing situations are caused by the transition. Bright young Chinese boys show talent as scholars and are sent away to Europe or America for higher education. Presently they return, always with new ideas and often with a wife—either another foreign educated Chinese student, or even an Occidental. Then the youth discovers, probably for the first time, that his parents had provided a wife for him many years before. There is a grand crash. Talk, more talk, heated words, possibly vituperation. One must not overlook the fact that there is another factor which, to the unformed Occidental observer, seems to savor far more of "free love" than what has just been outlined—the concubinage system. Concubines seem to most foreigners in China as a highly spicy and important part of Chinese life. From a Chinese point of view concubines are nothing of the sort. They have their place in the world and there is nothing exciting about it at all. Any Chinese is entitled by Chinese law to have one wife and any number of concubines. The status of the latter is very clear. Their legal status, in fact, is almost on a par with that of the first wife. Concubines may not be discarded at will, but only for the reasons for which a wife may be divorced; they are entitled to financial support; the estate of the father is shared among children by concubines as well as by the "No. 1 Wife"; and if the wife is childless, a concubine who is a mother may precede the wife in settlement of the estate. Ancestors Worship. Concubines are a result of the tremendous urge, born of ancestors worship, for every male Chinese to have male progeny. A one-wife system would be an inadequate guarantee of sons—and without sons who will keep up the ancestral graves and worship at them? To a Chinese the argument is unanswerable. And since concubines are a part of the regular Chinese life, they are not considered in any way immoral but quite the contrary. The man who, from poverty, is unable to have more than one wife is considered unfortunate and even somewhat lacking in sense of duty to his ancestors.

Open Eastland Lyric Theater Friday Night

Friday night, people were turned away from the doors of the pretty little Lyric Theater at Eastland, a cozy and comfortable family show house, as neatly, sweetly, pretty, and compact, as my lady's jewel box. A splendid electric sign in molten fire of green and gold on black, "Lyric" and beckons the patron to the plate glass enclosure, where Miss Lillian Williams smilingly dispenses tickets from her vantage point. A passage way on either side leads to the entrance of the auditorium, partitioned in slatted panels, the up-to-date ventilating system. The doorway guarded by the charming Miss Ouida Williams, tucket taker. Our own young Jimmie Golden is the successful operator, and we are told that Louis Corbill draws the publicity end of the game. The house will seat 450, and is lighted by cluster of rose lights, two groups to each side, and soft hued ceiling domes. There is no stage as the playhouse is not equipped for stage purposes though a temporary stage can be adjusted at any time desirable. The orchestra pit is sufficiently ample to hold ten to twelve people. The floor pitch is much greater than that of the Connelley. The little house was built by Campbell Bros., Inc., and is something that is a credit to the town and a joy to the patrons. Especially noticed were the good looking hangings in silk brocade, in lamrequin effects over the openings from the foyer to the theater proper, a Manager, D. D. Bowen-touch, easily recognized. Manager Bowen was here, there and everywhere, greeting the friends of the new theater, and with pardonable pride, displaying its attractions. At last there is a place for the colored people in a show house in Eastland, which they can call strictly their own, and this is the balm of the Lyric. A complete and attractive ladies restroom opens off the lobby in which is an ice water standard with fountain bubbler is placed for refreshment of patrons.

Summer Sours Dispositions of Men and Women

Summer, the off season for oysters—is at hand! Winter, with its north winds, rains and bursted water pipes, is disagreeable in its way, but the low temperatures prevent few long lasting discomforts. Summer, on the other hand, with its heat, hot winds and lack of rains, is the season of ill tempers, suicides and divorces—besides being the off season for oysters. Cows and stenographers get lazy with the approach of the hot months and dispositions in general turn to a dark shade of blue. Business men who find their offices too hot to endure take off to the golf links—which is hotter. Few herald summer with delight except the ice man and the soda fountain man. "The only one that is sorry around our house when summer is over," one man said, "is the dog. The only pleasure he gets out of life is making the ice man think he's going to bite him, and when the ice man gulls coming regularly he looks disappointed the rest of the year." Newsboys and bootblacks declare that their businesses show a marked decrease during the summer months. "People don't have anything else to do in the evenings during the winter but stay home and read," one newsie said. In the evening when it's pouring down rain in the winter I sell 'em fast," he said. A dusky shibeby declared that "they's a heap harder to please in the summer time." Hotel owners say that their greatest problem is to place their summer guests. "If we have 250 applicants for rooms in one day, 240 of them demand a "southeast corner," one manager said. Records show that there are more divorces, suicides and murders during June, July and August than at any other time of the year. And then the fat men are bothered, with keeping cool and "shooting" the flies and mosquitoes. But summer time is the season of vacations, of picnics which help to counteract all of its disadvantages. Then there's that great American institution—Saturday afternoon off.

FASHIONS

By HEDDA HOYT (Written for the United Press) NEW YORK.—The "bird on Nellie's hat" can't compare with the bee in her bonnet. Bees, little glittering ones of rhinestones, act as the sole trimming for some of the Summer bonnets. Often as many as three little bees of graduating sizes are rimmed at intervals on the crown. And although there are bees, flowers are conspicuously absent. Butterflies, dragonflies, and rhinestone insects are also used as hat ornaments. Batik has been so successfully used as scarf material that it is now being fashioned into jumper frocks. Mottled effects and diamond-shaped designs in blended pastel colors are those most attractive. Blatant designs on white or dark backgrounds which were effective in scarfs are not used for dresses, where the subdued design is desired. Since handbags are designed to harmonize with frocks we find a great assortment of them in the shops this Spring. Because each gown demands its own particular handbag manufacturers are making bags which sell in the shops for $2.95. At this price one can have several colorful and effective bags for the cost of one better class bag. At a counter, we saw heavy silk bags with gold tops in such shades as sunny, blue-green, well-flower brown, topaz and rose-beige. White backgrounds with colorful designs were also to be had for $2.95. Pastel-hued leather bags in rose, yellow and light green are much in demand since they harmonize with the season's frocks. One doesn't buy an expensive bag these days but buys several inexpensive and colorful bags to harmonize with one's various frocks. These costume bags last through the Summer season without cleaning since they are not in constant usage.

FAMOUS STARS PLAY IN "KING OF THE TURF"

Straining thoroughbreds in the stretch! Jockeys in flaming colors, crouched over their mounts! Laboring lungs and taut muscles! Flaring nostrils. Great hearted horses, expending their last ounce of courage, their last gasping breath, in a neck and neck finish as they flash past the judges stand! That is the opening of "King of the Turf," the F. O. B. production which will come to the Lyric Theater on Wednesday. And the climax, even more exciting than the "race on the flat" which begins this stirring classic of horse-drama, is a steeplechase—the most sensational of races! Louis Joseph Vance and John Brownell have turned over great material in this story to J. Grubb Alexander, for transportation to the screen. James Hogan has taken Mr. Alexander's scenario and put into vivid relief the characters and situations. Eleven per cent of all the fruit and vegetables sold in New York City is retailed from push carts.

SPIRITED ARLEN STORY SCREENED

The story of a man's relentless pursuit of a woman and the spirited manner in which she fights back will be unfolded on the screen of the Lyric Theater next Tuesday, when the first Fichal Arlen story to reach the screen, "The Dancer of Paris," is presented. Conway Tearle and Dorothy MacKail have the leading roles in this production which is presented through First National by Robert T. Kane. It was produced under the direction of Alfred A. Santell, who is responsible for "Bluebird's Seven Wives" and "Classified." The story is laid against a series of rich backgrounds. Starting in Florida, the scene quickly switches to Paris, where, in settings picturesque revealing the night life of the famous capital, the plot moves on to its climax. Supporting the stars are Robert Cain, who has the "heavy" role; Paul Ellis and Henry Vibart. Joys do not stay, but take wing and fly away.

California's Very Prettiest

FIVE MILLION AUTOS ARE ON THE ROAD

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Approximately 5,000,000 automobiles or one-fourth the total registration of motor cars in the United States will be found touring the nation's highways this summer, according to estimates today.

Motorists are reported preparing for their annual invasion of the national parks and forests in larger numbers than before.

Weather conditions which have been favorable thus far this year have held back the tourist season which usually opens the last of May.

Factors considered by the national automobile chamber of commerce as the basis for an increase of at least 20 per cent in automobile touring this year, are:

1. Increase of 10 per cent in passenger cars, out of a total registration of 19,954,347 automobiles Jan. 1, in the United States.

2. Greater mileage of improved highways now aggregating more than 3,000,000 miles with less detouring.

3. The opening of 5,000 motor camps in every state of the union and the encouragement of campers and motorists to visit the nation's playgrounds in parks and forests.

The American Automobile association reported today that it has increased volume of road information to prospective tourists by 25 per cent over last year. State highway commissions and other local agencies have improved their facilities for aiding the automobile tourists and this information is reported in greater demand than before.

Eastland Business College Attracts Many Students

Among those who have recently entered the Eastland Business College are: Ina Mae Vaught, Sallie Hatten, Opal Myers, Gordon Griffin, Robert Garrett, Esma Miller, Marvin Green, Everette Grisham, Beth Overby, George Brogden, Rob Roy Sparr, Bessie DeFee, Ula Mae Simmons and Cap Carter.

Several have set Monday the 14th to enter. Inquiries are coming from out of town. Strawn has five seekers after practical training that will fit them to be earners.

Houghtons Plan To Move Into New Embassy Soon

LONDON—Ambassador and Mrs. Houghton expect to move into the new American Embassy at 13 and 14 Prince's Gate—the building given by J. Pierpont Morgan—toward the latter part of July.

The two buildings have now been converted into one; the decorators have come in to carry out the architect's plans and the Ambassador expects to give up Crewe House the last of July.

The offices of the Embassy—including the Chancery and the quarters of the naval and military attaches—will remain at 4 Grosvenor Gardens.

THE FOLKS BACK HOME

a single tire change and was all set to go the entire 500 miles on the same set of tires. It is a noteworthy fact, too, that the 1926 Indianapolis race was the ninth on the Hoosier speedway in which Firestone gum-dipped tires carried the winners to victory. The performance of Firestone tires at Indianapolis this year certainly out the effectiveness of gum-dipping, the exclusive process employed by the Firestone company, which builds extra strength and endurance into the cord fabric by impregnating and saturating every fiber of every cord with rubber. This special process minimizes friction and heat, keeping the tires comparatively cool under a continuous racing strain. The performance of Firestone tires at Indianapolis this year certainly was remarkable when the terrific speed at which the cars traveled over the 15-year-old rough brick track is taken into consideration.

Traveling Tips For Journey To Mojave Dtsert

By ERWIN GREER
President Greer College of Automotive and Electrical Trades, Chicago, Ill.

There are probably few motorists but hope at some time or another, to take a trip in their car out into the Mojave desert and see some of the little known, but very wonderful sights that delight the traveler in this region.

To those who plan a trip of this nature, here is a bit of advise that may prove exceedingly useful. The man who drives on city streets and paved boulevards is apt to be careless about his driving in the deeply rutted desert roads. To those not familiar with the technic of desert driving, accidents often happen.

It is well to realize that it is practically impossible to turn out of a desert road to pass another car and do it with the same facility that can be done on a broad, paved highway. The accepted procedure in the desert is for one car, on seeing another approaching, to turn out and let the other pass and then turn into the road again. This is a custom that has been established through experience gained over a long period of time. It pays to be safe, no matter where you drive, and particularly so out in the wastes of the Mojave desert, where assistance is sometimes a long way off.

Head-on Collision on Desert Road.
A photograph was recently taken of a traffic accident occurring forty miles from the nearest settlement on a sandy desert road, where one car, not realizing that it was a hard job to turn out of the rutted track that formed the road, collided practically head-on with another coming from the opposite direction. Fortunately but one of the cars were damaged so that it could not continue on its way.

Most motorists who get stuck in the sand in trying to pass other cars could avoid it if they went at it in the right way. The average inexperienced driver tries to run around the other car in a circle, so that he is pushing a great deal of sand with the sides of his front wheels.

His car then stalls against this bag shoveling job, and the surprised autoist often makes matters worse by burying his driving wheels in a pit made by spinning them.

Only one car should leave the road in passing another machine, and that one should leave at an easy angle with as little cram of the front wheels as possible. The driver should return to the road by backing in his own tracks. The car will then have made its own road, and a car usually may go where a car has gone before.

Always have plenty of gas and water and an extra can of oil in desert traveling. Then the worst that can happen is the breaking of springs through lack of luck in crossing the washes.

When it is considered that at some points in the desert the midday heat is often as high as 120 degrees in the shade, it can be seen that the driver of the luckless car had a long, hot wait.

Will Build New Light Car Auto Experts Declare

(By George W. Sutton Jr.)
Something new and radically different is impending in the automotive field and the general opinion of those who are closest to the situation is that we shall soon see an entirely new type of light motor car, built in quantity production, which will incorporate many of the features of the European built light cars with radical American adaptations and changes to suit them for our requirements. It is known that certain tire manufacturers are equipped to turn out balloon tires of a smaller diameter than any which are at present in use in this country. These tire builders do not go to the expense of developing new tire sizes unless they see a demand for them looming up in the near future.

There is distinct impression that the Peugeot brothers left something more than casual interest back of them in their recent invasion of our shores with a minutive open car. Fiat is reputed to have been negotiating with manufacturers in this country for the building of the small five-horsepower Italian car.

Several American manufacturers are accredited with having light cars already on the road for testing and experimental laboratoes are reputed to be working feverishly on a type of car which will bring us an entirely range of performance in automobiles of somewhat the dimensions of our present light cars but with far greater speed, greater climbing ability, vastly increased fuel economy, and materially improved body lines.

The market for light cars is shifting. General Motors with the Chevrolet, and Willys-Overland with the Overland, have made substantial production gains in the past two years in the low-priced car field.

Today these cars occupy a high percentage in the 50 per cent of our total motor car output which is held by the light automobile.

Ten Winners In Auto Race On Firestones

Firestone full-size gum-dipped balloon tires again made a remarkable showing in the Indianapolis speedway classic on Decoration day, when all 10 winners participating in the "money" rode on these dependable tires.

This is the second time balloon tires were used in the great speedway event, the first being last year when Peter DePaolo on Firestone full-size gum-dipped balloons made a new world's record at an average speed of 101.13 miles per hour.

Smaller motors of 91 1/2 cubic inch displacement, compared to 122 cubic inches in 1925, combined with rainy weather and a slippery track, slowed up the time of the 1926 winner, Frank Lockhart, who won this year's race at 95.88 miles per hour.

This year's grueling battle of tires was called at the end of 402 1/2 miles because of the downpour of rain. Lockhart, who captured the grand prize, drove the full distance without

CHIEF OF POLICE DAVENPORT ACTS AS JUDGE AND ADVISER TO YOUTH OF RANGER ASTRAY

By RENA B. CAMPBELL

The fame of Judge Ben Lindley as a juvenile-court officer is known throughout the world, but few people know that in Ranger there is a man, who can look right into the heart of a boy or girl, counsel with them and tell them to "go sin no more." Chief of Police O. V. Davenport, is that man. His heart is big enough to father a lot of boys and girls, and he has a juvenile criminal gang of boys and girls, forming his court that would perhaps stagger the Denver Judge.

Few people know just what the night life of many of Ranger's young people is, Chief Davenport said, growing reminiscent, after the arrest of two young boys in connection with the theft of horses lately. "I often wonder if all the children of Ranger that are brought into us for first offense are orphans," the chief said. "If they are not, what are their fathers and mothers doing that they let them stay out all hours of the night without knowing where they are?"

Little Girls Case.

Since Chief Davenport has been in office at least six boys have been sent to the reformatory, but no little girls. "There was a little girl who almost went," the chief said, and his eyes filled with tears as he told the incident. "This little girl whose father and mother were separated lived here with her mother, who ran a rooming house. The mother had married again, and from time to time there were complaints about this little fourteen-year-old girl, who was as sweet looking as any little girl could be. Finally a watch was taken from a guest at the rooming house and the blame was placed on the child and in view of the fact that a number of merchants had charged her with shop lifting little things, it looked as though she was guilty, but the matter was adjusted and the mother sent the child to a married sister in another state.

While the child was away the mother left Ranger and went East, but in the meantime the little girl had had a letter from her mother that she would be here at a certain time, so she left her sister's and came back here to find no one here to whom she could go. She did locate some former friends and went from bad to worse. First one thing and then another coming up until we were forced to do something. So Judge Jones and I decided that the only thing to do was to send the little girl to the reformatory until she was twenty-one. After the judge had sentenced her, I took her over to Eastland and turned her over to the sheriff who was Dug Barton, and his deputy, Bettis. I talked to her and told her the trouble she had been to me and how disappointed I was in her and that she would not listen to my advice, but that I was still her friend and would help her again.

touched by her crying, had taken her to his home until she could be sent to the reformatory, so I drove to his place at Olden, and told him and the girl what had happened. She stayed there until the next morning, and in the meantime, I had wired the father and the express company soon notified me the money was there, so we put her on the Sunshine East and sent her to her father.

"I was confronted with much criticism. Some said that it would do no good, and that a girl like that would not get any further than Fort Worth, that she would be back here in a few days—some more charitable, gave her to Kansas City, but nobody seemed to think she would go straight—except the Judge and me. I finally got mad and told them there was a lot worse people than that little girl right here in this town and that if she came back, I'd help her again. —But she did not come back. She went right straight to her father and I have had a number of letters from her telling me how grateful she was to me and how well she was getting along."

father's interest in these wayward children, only recently keeping one little strayed away from home at his own home until her parents came for her.

Ranger Night Life.

The Chief says that at night the boys swarm around like rats. They are in the ball park, shooting craps, parked in cars on lots or on the streets, often with girls, they are roaming around back alleys and will steal anything they can lay their hands on. They are insulting, ugly and hardened and some of them are steeped in crime which will eventually lead them to some terrible crime. They drink and swear and steal.

And its not boys altogether, for the girls sometimes run with them, and the police often pick up drunken girls and bring them to the station. And not all these boys and girls belong to a lower strata of society, the chief said, "some of them are boys and girls that you and I both know and doubtless their parents are thinking they are at picture show, or at some private party.

"Where is my boy or girl tonight" ought to be a question on every parents lips and should not be answered until they find that boy and girl, for mark my word, Ranger's boys and girls are headed toward the reformatory—a lot of them. They are unrepentant, "don't give a dam" and if they are not all orphans, a lot of parents are not doing their duty, and the good chief toying with his pencil looked up and said, "but the little girl was the saddest case of all."

Auto Fatalities For Four Weeks Period Known

Special Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The department of commerce announces that reports of automobile fatalities for the four-week period ending May 22 have been received from 79 large cities in the United States. The total number of such fatalities in these cities was 487 as contrasted with 426 for the corresponding four weeks of 1925, and the daily averages for the two four-week periods were 17.4 and 15.2, respectively. The numbers in 14 periods of four weeks were as follows:

Four weeks ending:

- May 22, 1926, 487.
  - April 24, 1926, 424.
  - March 27, 1926, 350.
  - Feb. 27, 1926, 378.
  - Jan. 10, 1926, 434.
  - Jan. 2, 1926, 558.
  - Dec. 5, 1925, 632.
  - Nov. 7, 1925, 616.
  - Oct. 10, 1925, 528.
  - Sept. 12, 1925, 531.
  - August 15, 1925, 469.
  - July 18, 1925, 495.
  - June 20, 1925, 492.
  - May 23, 1925, 424.
- Eight cities showed no automobile fatalities for the last four weeks, while 11 showed no fatalities for the corresponding period of 1925.
- For 55 cities in the last four-week period, automobile deaths where both the death and the accident occurred within city limits totaled 312, as against a total of 353 for all deaths from automobile accidents regardless of whether the accident occurred within or outside the city limits.

Chautauqua Will Open With Fine Show On Monday

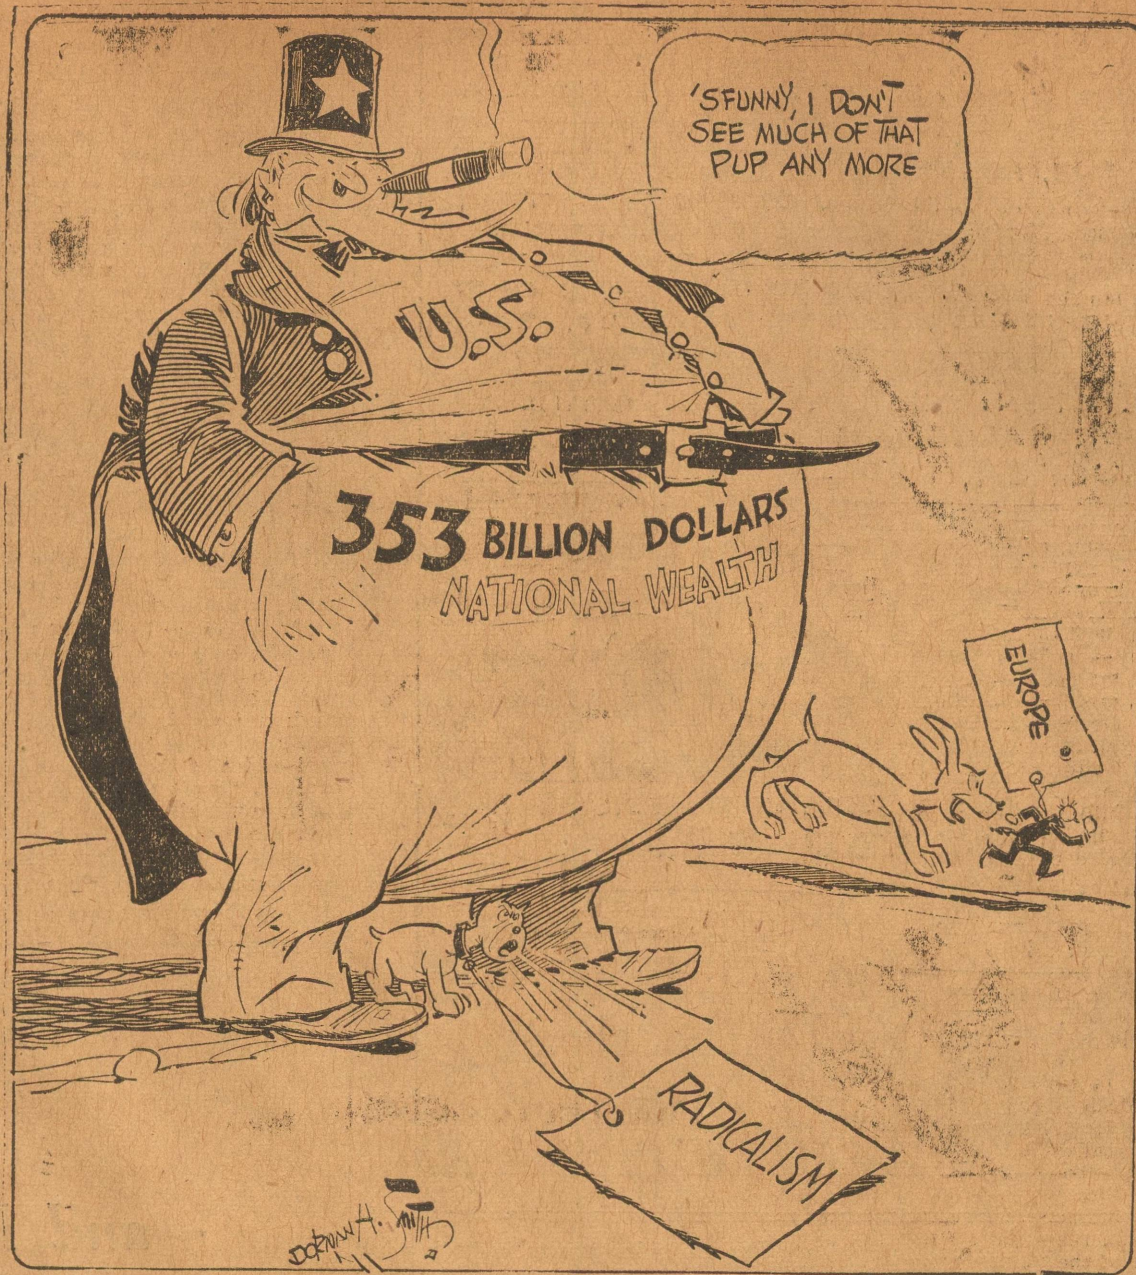

The Radcliffe Chautauqua which opens in Eastland on Monday will be featured by a children's parade through the streets in the evening before the night performance. Miss Lois Martin, director, who arrived in Eastland Saturday, will meet East-children at the courthouse square at 10:30 Monday morning and arrangements will be made for the costumes that the children will wear during the parade. Children having the best costume will be presented with free admission tickets to the show, it was said.

The performances will also vary special numbers directed especially for the benefit of the children, and other features will be of special interest to adults. The show comes with a good reputation from the places it has already visited and altogether from the advance notices the acts are very interesting.

The program for the three days that the chautauqua will be in Eastland are as follows:

First Day
Afternoon—Elias Tamburitzta Serenaders, entertainment; W. C. McCullough, lecture, "Utilized Corners."
Night—W. C. McCullough, lecture, "The Thinker"; Elias Tamburitzta Serenaders, concert.

Eastland Elks Getting Set For Annual Dance

The Jack Gardner dance to be given under the auspices of the Eastland Lodge No. 1372, in the nature of a house warming for their new home, is being eagerly looked forward to by all the patrons of the famous one and only Jack Gardner Orchestra. Guests are expected from all of the surrounding towns, and will, no doubt, have to be handled in shifts, if all make the grade on Wednesday evening, June 23.

The floor is being sanded and planed so that it will be in extra good shape for the frolic, and in as much as it is one of the largest and best dance floors in the country, everyone will appreciate the time and labor that is necessary it expend on making it a perfect one.

The entertainment committee promise tasteful decorations, and the glad hand of welcome will be thrust forth by all the Bills in this neck of the woods.

Declare Roadside Advertisements Must Disappear

The following article on the removal of the highway signboards appeared in a recent issue of the San Francisco Examiner:

"It is axiomatic that all advertising is directed toward creating buying impulse and the good will of the buyer public.

"That being the case, why is it that the automotive industry has so persistently neglected to foster and encourage the good will and plaudits of the people of the United States by not aiding in the removal of the huge advertising signs that obstruct the view along the highways?"

"For years there has been a steadily increasing sentiment against the signboard evil along the scenic roads of the country. Of those who, in their mad scramble for a few dollars, have offended the automobile industry is not the least.

"One needs only to make a Sunday journey down the Peninsula highway to have it forcibly brought to the attention of how seriously the automobile industry has offended in this respect. Then another journey into the hills and along the scenic highways in Marin county will bring the matter even more forcibly to the attention of the seeker after information.

"In justice to the automobile industry it must be conceded that others are far more to blame and are far greater offenders against both good taste and the desire to please the public.

Abolish Road Signs
"The time for the abolition of the roadside signboard has come. And it is time that the automobile industry realizes this and takes advantage of the trend of the times.

"With the ever increasing number of automobiles on the highways and the increase in touring from end to end of the country there is also being aroused a sentiment against the highway signboard with its blatant vulgarity and its obstruction of scenic spots.

"In this very sentiment there is a germ of an idea that if worked out properly will obtain for the motor manufacturer and dealer the everlasting gratitude of not only the motoring public but of the public generally.

"And the idea is simply this: Let the automobile manufacturers and dealers get together on a comprehensive campaign in which they will use their signboard space along the highways in a final educational effort for driving safety to be followed by the announcement that hereafter no road side signboard would be used for any purpose whatsoever by the automobile industry."

WINNIPEG.—Honey production has now become a recognized phase of mixed farming in Manitoba.

She Has Four Great Grandmothers

Saturation Point Not Yet Reached In Auto Sales

Ten years ago it was believed that the saturation point in America's automobile industry was just around the corner and, according to the Electric Railway Journal, it was then thought that "soon there would be one car in every family, and surely that would be the saturation point."

"Now," continues the Journal, "There seems some basis for thinking that perhaps there is no saturation point."

"Instead of one car it is getting so there is a whole 'gasoline alley' for each family. Father has his limousine. Mother has her coupe. Brother has his playboy and sister her brougham. Junior has his flivver—and no one stays at home.

"While this vanishing saturation point has been flitting just over the horizon, we are now suddenly given the final blow when we read in Henry Ford's new book that with our present capacity of 2 million a year we are able to meet the needs only of our present owners if they should each buy a new car every six years.

"Ponder that! The miracle of it all is that the total number of riders on the street railways is higher every year—at least the trend is upward. There is also a natural stabilizing force working against the increased use of individual cars. You may keep on multiplying the number of automobiles sold, but the amount of parking space available is practically fixed. As this becomes less and less adequate to take care of the demand and as the streets and highways become increasingly congested, more and more of the automobile owners tend to revert back to common carrier agencies. But to build regular patrons from occasional riders, it certainly does behoove the railways to concentrate on improving service. More is expected of them than was ever the case before the advent of the automobile."

Auto Industry Advised To Heed Speed Warning

"Unquestionably drastic legislation is ahead unless the automobile manufacturers shoulder the responsibility (for the automobile hazard) and show that they can and will do something about it."

"This unqualified warning was recently voiced by the director of the safety committee in an eastern city. It is apparent at once that he knew whereof he spoke," comments an ardent advocate of less speed and greater safety.

"Daily the deaths due to automobile accidents increase. More and more are seriously injured and maimed for life due to motor accidents on city streets and country highways. Daily the cry for more and more speed is heard in the land of motordom, and faster and faster become the cars that are being turned loose upon the highways.

"Thus the warning issued by the easterner is timely. There already are ominous indications that state legislatures are taking cognizance of the increasing highway hazards. Dimly the writing on the wall can already be discerned. Soon it will be legible to all and then it will be too late; the automobile industry will be saddled with a problem that will be hard to solve.

"It is only necessary to look backward to a time when the railroads of the country were in the position of the motor industry of today. They, too, failed to heed the warning as railway deaths and injuries increased in number.

"And then came the flood of drastic legislation which saddled the railways with a mass of what experience has shown to be impracticable so-called safety appliances. The cost to the railways has been enormous. And much of this could have been avoided had the railways taken such safety precautions in the early days as were plainly indicated.

"The automotive industry stands today in the place of railways of an earlier decade. Will it take heed and take timely action to prevent a mass of indiscriminate legislation that will seriously hamper if not virtually cripple it for years to come?"

"It is clearly indicated that the automobile manufacturers must heed the example of the railways and adopt such construction methods that will make motor cars safer, will aid safety campaigns and other educational methods that will materially reduce the number of deaths, and thus forestall many of the predicted drastic and ill-considered laws that already appear on state horizons."

A Used Car is only as Good as the Dealer who Sells it

In buying a Used Car you are forced to depend upon the reputation of the dealer who sells it. He alone is in a position to know the history and present condition of the cars he sells.

Dodge Brothers Dealers are business men, operating permanent establishments under valuable franchises. They look upon every Used Car purchaser as the ultimate buyer of a New Car, and they value his good will accordingly.

Buy a Used Car of any Dodge Brothers Dealer and you will receive honest value for your money. And right now is a particularly good time to buy.

Increasing sales of new Dodge Brothers cars—following radical improvements in beauty and performance—have everywhere brought in an exceptional selection from which to choose.

Circus Adopts Chevrolet For An Advance Car

Described by veteran circus men as "the most novel advance car ever sent out by a traveling show," a replica of a railroad locomotive on a one-ton Chevrolet truck chassis, hauling a miniature railroad coach is on a tour of 12 states with the Morris & Castle circus.

The passenger coach also serves as a ticket and band wagon and is a feature of the parades in every town where the circus exhibits.

Plans supplied by the Kansas City Southern railroad enabled Brownlee Wells Motors, Inc., Chevrolet dealers in Shreveport, La., headquarters of the circus, to build the locomotive over the Chevrolet truck chassis. It is an exact duplicate of one of the big road's "moguls" and is strikingly realistic.

The locomotive was christened "Shreveport" by the request of the Shreveport chamber of commerce. The advance man of the show, press representative, contract man and a band of 16 men find accommodations in the passenger coach during their travels. Ample room, assuring riding comfort on the long tour, has been provided. After leading the parade preceding exhibitions, the train is set up as the official ticket office at the great grounds.

Members of the party assert no circus ever sent out a more economical "railroad" car. They have found their tour can be arranged with more convenience, as their schedules can be altered to suit varying conditions, and no delays result from awaiting train orders.

Due to the weight of 12 tons carried and drawn by the one-ton truck, careful tests were made previous to the start of the trip. It was found the truck had ample power to handle the load efficiently. Economy of operation was the determining factor in selecting the Chevrolet as the power unit. Chevrolet service stations act as "round houses" for the locomotive in each city visited.

Another Miracle of Chrysler Quality

The New Lighter Six

CHRYSLER 60

Now comes the new lighter six, Chrysler "60"—one more accomplishment added to the roll of Chrysler achievements.

All the superiority of Chrysler quality has upset prior standards in the lower priced six-cylinder field and has established in effect another new standard for the whole industry to follow.

60 miles—and more—per hour (Chrysler model numbers mean miles per hour); lightning acceleration; Chrysler symmetry of line—in all its striking beauty; Chrysler phenomenal riding ease; the coveted safety of Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes, impulse neutralizer, oil-filter and air-cleaner, seven-bearing crankshaft, full pressure lubrication; roomy, luxurious bodies; and that sound substantial engineering construction which in every Chrysler car insures long life.

Never before in the history of the industry have you been offered so much value for your money.

We are eager to prove this to you. See the new lighter six, Chrysler "60"; drive it;—and you won't be satisfied with anything less than it.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

John and Fay Milburn buy a home of their own shortly after their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is a partner and copy writer lands a new contract.

Previous chapters told how John, a romantic individual, was fascinated on meeting Nell Orme, of whom Pat Forbes, one of John's best friends, hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

Dr. Dick Menefee marries Margaret Wayne and John is best man. Margaret's younger sister, Clara, runs away and marries Clifton Lane, whom John cordially dislikes.

A party is given by Noel and Vera Boyd, and Vera shows an interest in John which he does not return. Nevertheless, Fay Milburn notices it and there is a quarrel between her and John.

During a poker game in a hotel, Noel Boyd, who is playing with Paul Davidson, Menefee, John and Pat Forbes, gets drunk and makes the statement that most married men are liars and inclined to be untrue to their wives, and brags of an arrangement between him and his wife, Vera, whereby each has the other's permission to do as he chooses. The others, excepting Davidson, who is a bachelor and something of a roue, are a little shocked and Noel calls them hypocrites.

John and Fay and their baby, Judith, go away to their home, for a visit, and John leaves after a week and returns to Jacksonville.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV
It was a new John Milburn that returned to Jacksonville and threw himself into his work. A little rest, a little change, had done wonders for him, and even Nat Graham, his uncommunicative partner, noticed his enthusiasm and made some terse comment on it.

There were a couple of new accounts—small ones, it is true, but good business, nevertheless. John found himself nearly swamped with work, but feeling as he was, he rather enjoyed it.

He remarked one afternoon to Nat Graham, "Well, things seem to be coming our way pretty nicely."

Graham grunted, "Uh-huh."

John, pulling his battered pipe out of its place in his desk drawer, puffed himself for a minute with a can of tobacco and a match.

"Nat," he said, leaning back in his chair and expelling a huge cloud of smoke, "don't you think it's time we began expanding a little?"

Graham looked up with an expression of annoyance. "What do you mean?"

"You know—here we are growing right along now. We really ought to have another artist. Briggs is full up now, and some of our art work has to be done on the outside as it is. Why not take on someone else—someone for a small salary? We could keep him busy, between our work and the stuff we could throw his way."

He was being greeted by Nell Orme, and thrilling to the sound of her voice and the touch of her hand.

"I don't see what's to prevent us from going it right away," said John, a little nettled. "We've got a lot more business than we had when we took on Briggs—and we're making that much more money. We're growing, Nat, can't you see it? Why are you pickers all our lives? Why not show the world that we're getting along?"

"Well, I'll tell you," Nat answered. "Of course, we've been getting new business, but now do we know some of that business isn't going to slip away from us? We want to consolidate our position first. See what I mean?"

"Yes, I see what you mean," retorted John, "and I think you're arguing like an old woman."

"Of course," Graham said coldly, "if you're going to get nasty about it."

"Oh, hang it, Nat," John burst forth, "I don't mean to be nasty. It just seems to me, though, that every suggestion I make you disapprove. We need a new artist and we ought to have one. If you think we ought to wait—all right. If Briggs can stand it, we can. But we need somebody to give me a lift with copy, too. I've got more on my hands now that I want to carry after Fay gets back. While she's away I don't mind working nights, but it's not fair to her to keep it up."

Graham seemed concerned. He looked at John with a positively pained expression, and his heavy eyelids fluttered as he said, "I'm sorry, John, I really didn't realize you were working so hard."

"Well," and John was a little mollified by the other's conciliatory tone. "I don't mean to say that I'm breaking my back." He was a little annoyed at this partner of his, who refused to fight back when the challenge was thrown at him.

"I can stand it for a while, I guess," he went on, "but it's just in line with my general contention that the business should expand. Why, we're not in a position to go after more business. With our present set-up, we have about all we can handle."

"Never fear," put in Graham, "we're not apt to be bothered by too much business." He said nothing further to John's suggestion for another copy writer, and John brought forth the idea in his mind.

"This Eleanor Mason," he said—a little hesitantly, for he knew of the other's prejudice against her—"is a pretty clever woman. She writes well and she's indicated to me that she wouldn't object to doing a little ad writing on the side." He waited, to observe the effect on Nat.

Graham pursed his lips again. "Nothing doing." And for once he seemed absolutely determined.

"Why not?" John questioned. "In the first place, it's not a woman's job. In the second place, I don't like her."

"Just because she drinks?" John got to his feet. "I don't know of any other reason why you should dislike her."

Graham shrugged and said nothing more, and John walked away, raising his arms and letting them drop, to indicate his disgust. . . . He would let the topic go for the present, he thought, and bring it up later.

Several mornings later John, as he was leaving his house, encountered Henry Blodgett, the funereal-looking mate of the woman who Fay termed the guardian of the neighborhood's morals.

"Good morning," he called to John pleasantly enough, the other thought, "I understand Mrs. Milburn and the baby are away."

"Yes," John smiled, "enjoying a much needed vacation. Hop in the bus and I'll take you downtown."

"And you're keeping bachelor's hall?"

"Call it that if you want to," said John.

"I've often had to do it myself," Blodgett stated pompously, "Frankly, Mr. Milburn, I don't fancy it very much."

"Oh, I don't mind it, Mr. Blodgett. That is, if the wife doesn't stay away too long. This bachelor business is all right for a while but after a while it begins to get monotonous."

"Do you cook your own meals?" Blodgett asked, and John thought, "Well, you're curious, aren't you?"

But he answered, laughing, "Not on your life. I take all my meals out."

Blodgett frowned. "Well," he said, "I certainly couldn't do that."

John, a little uncomfortable, said, "Oh, I can cook an egg and get some bacon in shape and brew a pot of coffee, but frankly I don't like the idea of a lot of dirty dishes piled up in the sink. I can't bear the sight of them."

"They don't bother me," Blodgett declared. "I wash them."

John felt there was nothing more to be said, and a little later he was glad to drop Blodgett off at his destination.

"You're a bunch of heels, anyway. You're as orthodox as a flock of flivvers."

"What a killjoy you are," he grumbled to himself as he watched the other turn in at the door of the bank where he worked.

Pat Forbes called him up at noon. "Hear you're baching it," he laughed. "I'm in the same fix. Marian and the kids are away on a visit. What do you say we get together and share our sorrows—or drown 'em?"

"Fine, Pat," John felt heartened at the prospect of company—nights were getting lonely for him.

"Well, I'll see you after work and we'll have dinner together and maybe take in a show."

"I'm on," John hung up and turned back to his work. And that evening he and Forbes went to a burlesque show—the first time either had been to one in years—and wound up, drinking at a roadhouse, where both of them felt that their evening was incomplete, for nearly everyone was dancing and none of the girls they fancied responded to their silent invitations.

Once Pat got to his feet, a little unsteadily, and was for going over to a table where several women and men sat, and asking for a dance. John had considerable difficulty persuading him to stay where he was. "Looking for trouble?" he asked Forbes. "Well, you'll get it if you don't mind your own business."

"I want to dance, darn it," Pat grumbled. "What's the good of listening to this music? We have to sit at this table and do nothing but drink ginger ale highballs?"

"You ought to be thankful it's not plain ginger ale," John told him. "Sit down, I tell you. Those guys over there are beginning to look you over. First thing you know you'll be nursing a bump."

"I don't care—bring 'em on," Pat mumbled, but when John pushed him back in his seat he remained there and was quiet thereafter.

They stayed until the place was nearly ready to close, and when they left Pat was so unsteady that John decided not to let him go home alone.

"Better come home with me," he urged, and Pat was so argumentative about, insisting that the other finally took him by the arm and dragged him.

"Don't wanna go over to your house," Forbes kept repeating all the way home. "I've got engagement tomorrow for dinner."

"You can keep it, Pat. I can give you a clean shirt and collar."

"Don't want your shirt."

"All right, I'll take you home tomorrow and let you wear your own. Tomorrow's Sunday, ain't it?"

They climbed out of bed very late Sunday morning, both of them with headaches that caused them to complain to each other very loudly.

They went downtown for breakfast, the main course of which consisted of several cups of black coffee, and then to the Forbes home, where Pat changed his linen.

The telephone rang while Pat was dressing and John answered it. It was Howard Orme, wanting to speak to Pat.

John summoned him, and when Forbes was through talking he turned to John and said, "That was Howard calling to remind me of my dinner engagement at his house. They've taken pity on the poor bachelor—and you're invited along, John. What say?"

John started to protest, but Pat silenced him. "No, Nell was very insistent, and so was Howard. They're expecting you."

John was very glad, somehow, to say yes. Two hours later they were being admitted to the Ormes' home, and he was being greeted by Nell Orme, and thrilling to the sound of her voice and the touch of her hand.
