BIRTHDAY OF GREAT OIL POOL

Ramsower No. 1 Began Rich
Flow Two Years Ago
Today.

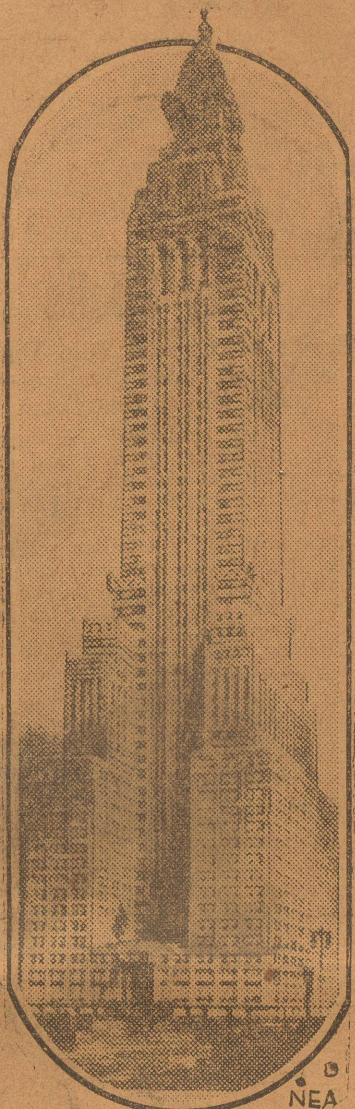

Today is a birthday.
It is the second anniversary of the discovery of one of the richest pools found in Eastland county in the past five years—a pool, northwest of Ranger, which despite the fact that it was opened on Oct.
29, 1926, still is one of the most attractive areas for drilling in this territory, for the limits are not defined and, only two weeks ago, a 550-barrel well was completed in that field.

Just two years ago today, Col.
Robert D. Gordon of Ranger drilled the Ramsower No. 1 into the Ranger sand and was rewarded with a 560-barrel flow in the first 24 hours. This well has been one of the steadiest producers in the county and has yielded probably in the neighborhood of $300,000 worth of oil and gas since that historic day.

The Ramsower No. 1 was followed by well after well until some 25 producers in all were drilled. A number of them came in for greater initial production than the discovery well. One or two wells owned by Jerome Mc-Lester of Ranger and associates and two wells owned by C. M.
Root of Eastland were ranked around 2,000 barrels, flush flow, and were the biggest wells the county had seen in several years.

Any estimate as to the vast value of this pool has proved would be little more than approximation. Considering the outlay for the 25 or more wells that have been drilled, the lease money to farmers, the laying of pipe lines and the building of a "booster station," it has meant an expenditure of far above a million dollars. The pool has yielded in return a great amount of oil and gas, and the ultimate recovery should be far greater during the pool's lifetime. One lease with two wells for a considerable period was reported bringing to its owner 1,500 a day. Another well which

Sky-Toucher

This architect's drawing of a $14-000,000 office building shows what, early in 1930, will be the world's tallest structure. Eight hundred and eight feet from street level to dome, and with three floors below ground, the Chrysler Building will tower many feet above the surrounding New York skyline. Excavation has been started.

MAN STILL AT LARGE IN WACO SHOOTING OF 2

Alleged Car Thief Slain, Associate Escapes—Police Chief Wounded

By United Press.
WACO, Oct. 29.—One man sought in connection with the theft of an auto was killed and Night Chief W. G. McDonald was wounded in a pitched gun battle between two alleged car thieves
and officers here last night.

The shooting took place a block
from the city hall as the two men left the automobile to enter a rooming house.

Officers McDonald and Abbott received word from Temple to be on the lookout for two men who had stolen a car there. The officers met the men at White City and followed them into town. As the men left the car to enter the rooming house, the officers attempted to arrest and the gun battle ensued.

McDonald was shot through the mouth and Abbott killed one of the alleged thieves. The other made his escape. Identity of the dead man has not been learned.

By United Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 29.— Winter came to sections of the southwest today and weather conditions were such that chilly rains were expected to turn into snow either today or Tuesday.

The first general snow fall over wide areas in Nebraska and Kansas and snow continued today to fall in central Nebraska and north central Kansas.

chilly rains were general over the southwestern states and with low

3 OTHERS ARE HURT SERIOUSLY

Blinding Headlights of Approaching Car Prevent Driver Seeing Truck.

By United Press.
GIDDINGS, Texas, Oct. 29.—
The bodies of two victims who were killed in a collision of an auto with an unlighted parked truck on the highway east of Giddings have been sent to Hemptstead for burial, and three other passengers of the same car are lying critically injured as the result of the accident last night.

Mrs. A. S. Fountain, 70, and Nemiah Calhoun, 17, were almost instantly killed when the auto crashed into the truck. Austin Buchanan, Gillis Schultze and Miss Estelle Wilson were severely injured and are being cared for here in an improvised hospital.
All victims are from Hemptstead.

The truck was said to have been parked by the roadside awaiting repairs and was unlighted. Blinding headlights from an approaching automobile are thought to have blinded Schultze, who was driving.

GRAF IS OUT OVER THE SEA

Homeward-Bound Zeppelin
Leaves Lakehurst Shortly
After Midnight.

By United Press.
ABOARD STEAMSHIP AMER-ICAN TRADER, Oct. 29.—The Graf Zeppelin was sighted at 12:15 p. m., eastern standard time, in latitude 42 degrees 55 minutes
north, longitude 61 degrees 14 minutes west.

A stiff wind was blowing from the northwest with rain and squalls. The wind was blowing 45.

In nautical terms "4-11" is a full gale. The Graf therefore was fighting a wind of almost half gale force at the hour she was sighted by the American Trader.
The position given was approximately 300 miles southeast of Cape Sable, showing steady progress since the dirigible was sighted
earlier in the day.

By United Press.
BERLIN, Oct. 29.—It was reported today that an American stowaway, aged 17, was found at 6 a. m. aboard the Graf Zeppelin while it was over the American coast en route to Germany.

The stowaway's name was not given. It was understood he was employed in a law office some place in the United States.

By United Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin was cruising gracefully along the New England coast early today en route home to Germany on her second trans-Atlantic voyage.

The Graf Zeppelin was taken from its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., shortly after midnight and at 1:45 a. m. its nose was pointed upward and it started its homeward flight. At 3:15 a. m. the big ship cruised over New York City.

From New York City the Graf Zeppelin's course was expected to coast line to Nova Scotia from where it will swing out over the open Atlantic on the Great Circle route to Europe—approximately the same route that Lindbergh opened between North America and Europe.

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Dr.
Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, sent the following radiogram to President Coolidge
after the giant airship had taken off on its flight:

"On leaving your great country,
we beg permission to express our feeling of sincere gratitude for the gracious reception which has been accorded to us by yourself
and by the American people."

AP's Wild Welcome in Boston

The greatest ovation Al Smith ever received was this one, in Boston. For that matter, it was the greatest demonstration the city ever staged, including the one for Colonel Lindbergh. At South Station, where this picture was taken, the multitude jammed the streets for blocks. Several persons were injured in the clamoring crowd; police reserves were almost powerless and cleared the way a yard at a time for the Smith parade to Boston Common.

Boys Hear Interesting Message From Leaders

Two messages were heard by Our Heroes Sunday school class of the First Methodist church of Ranger Sunday. The first was from George W. Olinger, founder and head of Highlander Boys Incorporated, a famous organization of boys in Denver ranging in age from 9 to 13. More than 4,000 boys are members of the Highlanders of Denver. Mr. Olinger's message was read by Walter Harwell who has visited the Highlanders and is acquainted with Olinger.
Mr. Harwell made a short talk regarding Olinger's work.

Kent Cooper's message was read by Mr. Peters, teacher of the class. Cooper is head of the Associated Press, famous news-gathering association.

Olinger's letter follows:
"Denver, Colo.

"My dear boys:
"It is a great pleasure for me to pass on to you a friendly word of encouragement as you climb
together the ladder of character to clean manhood.

"It has been my privilege to know and to touch elbows with a great many boys and some of the finest and strongest friendships of my life have come from these contacts. This experience has brought with it many lessons and I would like to pass one or two of them on to you for what they are worth.

"First, the great need for every boy and every man to have a spiritual foundation in his life, to make God a real, living, vital force, not only just for Sunday but for each and every day.

"Second, that conviction that knowledge is power, and wherever you find a boy or a man who knows how, you will find a boy or a man who leads. Responsibilities always revert to the shoulders that can carry them.

"I like very much the name of your class 'Our Heroes' and I sincerely trust that every one of you boys is accepting the name as a challenge because before any one can be worthy of being a hero, he must stand for things that are heroic. We must have a definite service element in our daily program.

"With hearts that love, with eyes that see, and with ears that hear, nothing can put out your light.

"With every good wish and with every encouragement for the march forward to manhood
and to clean character, I am,
"Sincerely yours,
"GEO. W. OLINGER."

Ticket Changes Are Announced

A change in the method of designating seats for the football games at Lillard field is announced by C. E. Shields of the athletic association.

Heretofore the tickets have borne section, row and number.
For all future games, reserved seats will designate the section and row but there will be no seat number. There are 20 seats to each row in each section and the ticket holders will seat themselves in any seat they prefer—within the section and row designated of course. This is the method in use at the games of the Southwestern conference, Mr. Shields stated.

Sections 6 and 7 will be reserved for the season ticketholders.
All tickets will have stubs and the purchasers are urged to retain these stubs. The co-operation of the public is invited so that the big crowds at the future games
may be handled as expeditiously
as possible.

It is also announced that the players' bench at all future games will be occupied only by the players, physicians, coaches and water-boys. This is the custom elsewhere and has been found to aid in the efficient direction of the game.

MOODY GRANTS REPRIEVE FOR NINTH TIME

Mexican, to Have Been Elec-trotuted at Midnight,
Will Live Longer.

By United Press.
AUSTIN, Oct. 29.—Juan Flores, sentenced to die after midnight tonight for the murder of Manuel Fernandez, 15-year-old San Antonio boy, was granted a 90-day
reprieve by Governor Dan Moody
this morning.

This is the ninth reprieve that has been given Flores to permit further investigation of entangling testimony and for further work in capturing another principal in the case. Fernandez was killed in his mother's parlor in San Antonio in January, 1927.

This case almost is a parallel to that of Bob Silver whose sentence was commuted to life imprisonment last week. Flores contends that another Mexican who has not been captured fatally wounded Fernandez.

Perhaps, as your years increase, you may sometimes be disillusioned; but you will find that, even so, you have gained a great deal by hero worship. DALLAS, Oct. 29.—Separate working rooms were provided for negroes in the Census Bureau of the department of commerce and that plan of segregating the white and negro races was adhered to until Herbert Hoover became a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency, it is alleged in a telegram given out at Texas State Democratic Headquarters. The telegram was from United States Senator William J. Harris of Georgia who declared that he, as Director of the Census Bureau under President Woodrow Wilson, put into effect the original segregation order. The telegram was offered by State Democratic Headquarters as proof of the abolition of segregation by Mr. Hoover as Secretary of Commerce and in answer to denials that have been issued by former Democratic National Committeeman Thomas B. Love and former Governor O. B. Colquitt. Both men have declared in published manifestos to the people of Texas that no segregation order was ever effected in the bureau.

WANTED TO Pay The Note on Home, Shot In a Bank Robbery (Special to The Times.) FORT WORTH, Oct. 29.—Funeral services were conducted in Mineral Wells yesterday for a Fort Worth man whose initial embarkation into crime ended in his death Friday at Addison, Okla. He is Floyd Coffey, 30, who with his wife, resided in a little home they purchased a year ago on Gordon street.

HE was shot over the heart as he fled from the First National Bank of Addison on Friday with $300. Police searched their files in a vain attempt to find a record of other acts which would style Coffey a "criminal" in the accepted sense of the word, but they concluded he had not been "handled" before.

ENJOYING the reputation of a respected oil field worker, Coffey was able to meet all the monthly payments on his little home except one due several days ago. And he promised the real estate agent he would be able to pay that one in a few days.

THE over-due note on his little home is the only known motive for his effort single handed to hold up the Addison bank. He entered the bank, where he knew there was more than enough money to pay off the note which might cause him to lose his home and all he had put into it.

WHILE a companion waited outside to drive him away in an automobile, he faced the cashier of the bank, as he had read it had been done before and succeeded in convincing the keeper of funds into allowing him to gather up the money.

HE ordered the cashier out of the vault into which he had backed him, but for some reason, possibly a suggestion of an amateur in Coffey's action, the cashier refused. Even a shot fired by the novice robber failed to frighten the cashier into obedience. But having the $600 in his hand and an even chance of getting away in the waiting automobile, Coffey fled.

HE probably would have made his escape if the shot fired at the cashier had not been heard by a deputy sheriff, who started in pursuit. After Coffey and his companion abandoned their car to safety on foot, the seeker of a home at the cost of being a robber was felled, mortally wounded.

COTTON PICKERS Are Needed Now (LUBBOCK, Tex., Oct. 29.—Feed crops in the South Plains section have experienced bumper yields this season. Maize and hegeira as well as other grain sorghums are averaging more than a ton and a half an acre.

THE grain harvest is well under way. Cotton is maturing rapidly, the maturity being several weeks earlier than was expected. A shortage of pickers has resulted from this fact and five thousand calls for pickers on file in the labor bureau office here.

Former Director Of Census States Races Segregated

(Special to The Times.) DALLAS, Oct. 29.—Separate working rooms were provided for negroes in the Census Bureau of the department of commerce and that plan of segregating the white and negro races was adhered to until Herbert Hoover became a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency, it is alleged in a telegram given out at Texas State Democratic Headquarters. The telegram was from United States Senator William J. Harris of Georgia who declared that he, as Director of the Census Bureau under President Woodrow Wilson, put into effect the original segregation order. The telegram was offered by State Democratic Headquarters as proof of the abolition of segregation by Mr. Hoover as Secretary of Commerce and in answer to denials that have been issued by former Democratic National Committeeman Thomas B. Love and former Governor O. B. Colquitt. Both men have declared in published manifestos to the people of Texas that no segregation order was ever effected in the bureau.

THROUGH all of the controversy and the printing in the Congressional Record of letters from white women employees of the department protesting at the Hoover order, the candidate for the presidency, the necessity and embarrassment of working side by side with negroes. This order remained in effect throughout President Wilson's administration, through all of President Harding's administration and all of President Coolidge's administration until Mr. Hoover became a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and contested for the Ohio delegation with the late Senator Willis.

AMONG those seeking election as Hoover delegates from Ohio was an influential negro who came to Washington and, at his earnest solicitation, Secretary Hoover abolished segregation in the Department of Commerce, putting negroes and whites together. Since that time, white women from the South and other sections of the country have been forced to accept as their desk mates and working companions, negro men appointed to the Census Bureau under civil service and who cannot be removed from office under the law.

IT is significant that Mr. Hoover made no effort to establish equality of the races in the Census Bureau until he became a candidate for president and sought negro votes in Ohio. During all of the time that the segregation order was in force there were no protests against it except from the negro editor of a negro paper in Washington. It is interesting to add that the Hoover negro delegate in Ohio defected Senator Fess, a white man for delegate at large to the Kansas City convention, Hoover's friends supporting the negro.

C. I. A. WANTS $2,000,000 (By United Press.) DENTON, Oct. 29.—Approximately $2,000,000 will be asked for the College of Industrial Arts from the State legislature for the next biennium, according to a recent announcement from officials.

INCLUDED in the requested items are the following: $200,000 dormitory for each year of the biennium; a new structure building costing about $250,000; a woman's activity building valued at $175,000; a $225,000 central dining hall; $200,000 for inside improvements and repairs; approximately $7,000 for the establishment of nursery school equipment and $515,150 for a general raise in salaries.

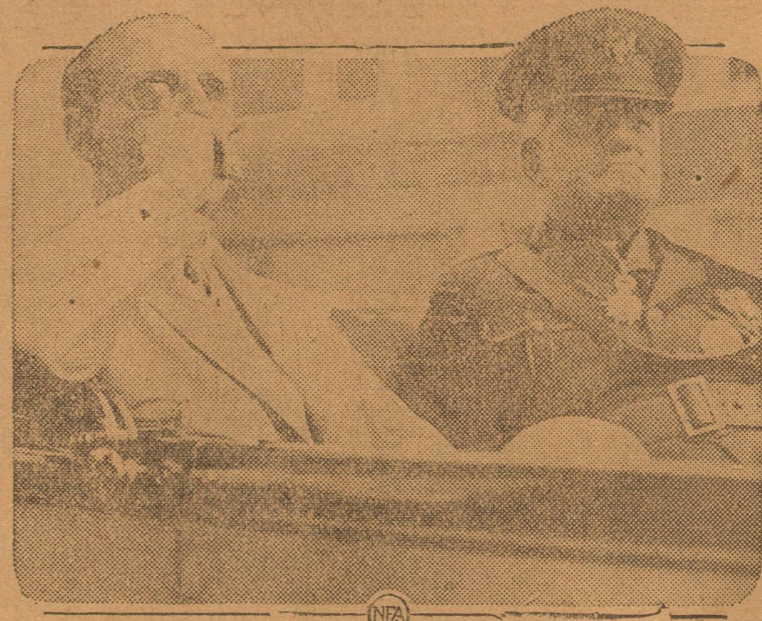

IF the legislature, which convenes in January, expresses favorable comment toward fulfilling the requests listed, President L. H. Hubbard, Dean E. V. White, and business manager W. M. Loveless will go to Austin and urge the granting of the desired appropriation.

French War Hero, Totally Blind, Is Poker Player

Maj. Georges Scapini, blind French war hero (left) riding in American Legion parade at San Antonio with Gen. Milton J. Foreman of Chicago.

By NEA Service. SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — He plays poker, has no objections to lighting a third cigarette on one match, doesn't like having birthday roses and simply has no time for the blues.

SUCH a man is Maj. Georges Scapini, totally blinded on the battlefields of France, now famous as one of the outstanding members of the French bar and a member of the chamber of deputies, representing the Paris district.

MAJOR Scapini, an honored guest at the American Legion's national convention here recently, will make a tour of principal cities of the United States before returning to Paris early in November.

"YOU do not believe I play cards?" asked Major Scapini. "Hand me that deck of cards and I will show you."

IN quick succession he turned the cards, correctly calling them throughout the deck, his sensitive fingers recognizing the Braille dots, language of the blind, as rapidly as the eye could follow.

"AND I play a good game of poker," he asserted. "This man, whose laughter is quick and spontaneous, whose four senses perceive so quickly that the absence of the fifth is not noticed, brought the American Legion veterans to their feet in rousing applause. He stood before them, and in English, a little hesitant at the big words, brought them a message from France."

SILENTLY they listened to him. More than one had tears in his eyes as they watched his quick quivering fingers trace the dotted Braille notes he held in his hand. At the closing word they thundered admiration for the man who has become great despite his infirmity.

"I dream speeches," he confided the afternoon before he made his address. "I have been wanting to go swimming all afternoon, but instead I'm telling the walls what I'm going to tell the Legionnaires tomorrow. When I see a big audience it makes me alarmed."

"DO you not believe I can see?" demanded this man. "No, not with the eyes do I see, but inwardly I see many things now that I never saw before I was blinded at the age of 20 years. And I see many things that others who have their eyes do not."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne, Boston society girl, has had a baby. And the whole town's talking. There are plenty of people who do not credit the story of Sybil's marriage. It was an unfortunate affair and at the time seemed advisable.

Sybil was married in Havana harbor to Richard Eustis, whom she met on shipboard, and who wooed her ardently for five days. The marriage lasted two weeks, when Sybil left her husband for justifiable cause and returned to Boston with Mabel Blake, a social worker, with whom she was vacationing at the time.

Weeks later she learned that she was going to have a baby. Then it became necessary to tell her family, and also Craig Newhall, who had been her sweetheart. The marriage was formally announced, and Sybil's child was born. She had fully expected to be indifferent to the baby because of the hatred she bore her father. But, to her own amazement, she worships her son with all her heart. She baptizes him Edward Thorne, in memory of her own father, and renounces for him his father.

Sybil's brother, Tad, is married to a quarrelsome little girl named Valerie. Valerie quarrels with the whole family, and leaves, in one of her tantrums, to visit friends in New Haven.

Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER XXXII

Tad breathed a sigh of relief, and reflected pleasantly, at weekly intervals thereafter, that he had Valerie's own word on the futility of going for her.

He went instead to Wianno, having sent his wife a check to ease his conscience. And there he found Craig playing on the sands with young Edward. Sybil had gone to Hyannis for a pink sport hat and taken her mother with her.

"They left me," announced Craig, "to mind the baby. Do you know," he enquired plaintively, "why they eat sand? Infantile roughage, I suppose."

Lady Elephant Trainer

Irene Ledgett trains the 16 Sells-Floto Circus elephants in Ranger Wednesday.

Mabel was to be married in the fall.

"I think myself," admitted Mab, "it's a perfect joke for old maids to get married in satin, and wear orange blossoms in their boyish bobs. But you know how it is with a sentimental gal like me. Lots of fireworks, Mendelssohn's wedding march, and a veil, a cascade of flowers, and trinkets in the cake. You only get married once, when you get to be my age."

Heart and soul, Sybil threw herself into the orgy of preparation. Dressmakers and caterers, florists and soloists.

"Mab's getting more kick out of it than a debutante," she told Tad. "I envy her her enthusiasms. Did you know I'm to be her only attendant? Dolly Weston asked Val which she supposed the society editors would call me—maid of honor, or matron?"

"Well, Sib, you let yourself in for that sort of being—insisting that the kid be called Thorne. You know how the wise-crackers ate that up. By the way, Tad was elaborately nonchalant. 'I wonder what Val sees in Dolly Weston's gang.'"

"Oh, Val's all right, Taddy." Sybil smiled, her voice reassuring. "Did you know she's helping me choose my dress this afternoon? And we're having tea together afterwards."

He heaved his approval. "That is great, Sis. I'd like to see you two playing round me together."

Sybil smiled. There were limits to everything, she reflected—and playing round with Valerie was one of them. Still, she would do a lot for Tad. And the girl certainly needed watching.

"Don't you worry, dear," she told him lightly. "Val's simply crazy about you—but she happens to be very modern. And it's dreadfully old-fashioned, among the moderns, to be openly devoted to legal mates."

She was at the wedding, so was a great success. Mabel's aunt wept, in the fashion of aunts, and Mrs. Thorne after the manner of old friends of the family.

Sybil was beautiful in velvet that borrowed the warm crimson of sparkling burgundy. The groom camouflaged his bald spot effectively, and wore a gardenia in his buttonhole.

Afterward Mabel cut her wedding cake in the vestry, and threw her bouquet from the stairs. There were more tears, and a great deal of confetti, and much meaningless laughter. Until, at last, she and Jack escaped in a closed car, loaned for the occasion, and drove to their hotel. They were taking the midnight for New York.

"I don't care if it is hicky," Mabel had defended her choice resolutely. "I'd rather see a lot of good shoes than a few mountains and lakes."

To typify interest this year and to knock sky high the belief that there's nothing new under the sun, the Sells-Floto show is offering three herds of telephants which open the circus tournament, presented by Sells-Floto circus, introduced lady elephant trainers Effie Bairden, Irene Ledgett and Bobby Cornett.

Sells-Floto's date in Ranger means a red letter day for the old as well as the young and they, too, welcome the excuse to accompany the children to the show grounds as they find just as much fun and amusement as the kiddies who make sure that everything is seen in the big menagerie tent before they settle down in their seats for the circus performance proper.

Common Colds Are Infectious and Are Communicable

In this season of sniffles and sneezes, music is not the only thing broadcast through the air. There are walking "transmitters" of varying power, who broadcast colds wherever they go. It may be impossible to keep outside the range of such "transmitters," but there are definite cleanliness precautions, health authorities tell us, that will minimize your chances of being a "receiver" of unwelcome "cold" germs.

The word "cold" is a misnomer. We use it because it was handed down to us, and not because it is the result of cold temperature. It may have had its origin, medical historians say, in one of the characteristic symptoms, chilliness, just as coughing and sneezing may have led the Chinese to say they have caught the "wind." A cold is really an infectious disease, although the causative organisms are not definitely known.

Most persons indulge in one to three colds a year. Colds are communicable, from person to person, just as typhoid fever, diphtheria, and a host of other communicable diseases.

"The victim of a cold," Doctor W. W. Peter, Health Consultant of Cleanliness Institute points out, "goes about his daily business mingling freely with people, at home, in public conveyances, in offices, stores, and workshops. Thus he multiplies his opportunity for spreading the disease. He coughs and sneezes his way through crowds. His hands, contaminated by frequent contact with nose and mouth, leave unwanted gifts upon everything he touches. He is a walking 'transmitter.'"

Here are a few rules of prevention which could infection as given by Doctor Peter.

Wash your hands before eating or handling food.

Avoid hand shaking with cold sufferers if you can; or at least wash your hands immediately afterward.

Keep away from common drinking cups, roller towels, and other objects that may possibly be contaminated.

Eat only from dishes thoroughly cleaned and sterilized in boiling soapy water.

The Panchan Lama, known to Buddhists all over the world as the "Living Buddha," and spiritual head of the great Buddhist church, has undertaken a peace mission into the heart of Mongolia in an effort to end recent hostilities between Mongolians and Chinese. Here is the most recent picture of the man who is sometimes called "The Buddhist Pope."

children are expected to participate in a torchlight parade and eat apples and doughnuts washed down by sweet cider, all to the music of a brass band.

The affair was inaugurated last year as a surprise party. Chief McDonnell's force arrested all the youngsters found on the streets and took them to police headquarters where the 400 children who were collected found plenty to eat and a band to play for them.

Pre-Election Fraud Charged In Texas

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Special department of justice agents have been investigating fraud there has been pre-election fraud there. Announcement of this followed today a flood of telegrams to the White House, some asking an investigation in the county without specifying the reasons and others asking supervision of the forthcoming balloting.

President Coolidge turned the telegrams over to the department for action and the department stated later that if any corruption evidence is discovered it will be turned over to the Federal grand jury.

AUTOS, MOVIES HELP AMERICA IN GOOD WILL

Ambassador Moore Cites the Causes of Friendship in South America.

BY HARRY W. FRANTZ United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON—The car that sings merrily over the long hill is an important factor in promoting good will between countries of South America and the United States, in the opinion of Ambassador Alexander P. Moore, home temporarily from his post at Lima, Peru. "United States automobiles are being shipped to South America in ever-increasing numbers," Moore explained in a United Press interview. "The man who, from his own choice, buys an American car naturally takes pride in it and feels a personal interest in the factory and indirectly the country which produced it.

"Such a person is likely to discredit criticism either of his car or of the country that it came from, and this tends to promote good will toward the United States. "The rapidly increasing use of the automobile hastens the development of good highways. I believe that the Pan-American Highway will be a reality far sooner than is generally believed. Some countries, including Peru, already have highways over half of the projected route. Completion of the Pan-American route will be hastened as each country appreciates the local economic advantages to be derived from highway construction.

"In Peru, President Leguia has given very hearty encouragement to the construction of modern highways. I understand that the construction of one short highway increased the delivery of potatoes to a city market from one thousand dollars in value to one hundred thousand dollars. In many sections there has been a prompt and large economic advantage.

TWO-DOLLAR PRIZE AWARD FOR ONE NUT

Heaviest Pecan Exhibited At Pecan Growers' Meeting In Stephenville To Receive Premium.

For the heaviest pecan, exhibited at the fall meeting of the Brazos Valley Pecan Growers' Association, which is to be held at the John Pantoon Agricultural College at Stephenville, November 23, a prize of $2 is to be given. This is a pretty good prize for a single pecan, but of course it will have to be quite large.

An exhibit of pecans is to be made at the meeting, but must be in quart quantities except for the single large pecan. The exhibit must be from the 1922 crop and nurseries may not compete. Prizes offered are to be:

For the best western pecan, $5; second prize, $2.50. Best native pecan, $3; second prize, $1.50. Best exhibit grown by one man, $10; second prize, $5.

County Agent J. C. Patterson said that the pecan growers about Ranger should begin to assemble their exhibits right now so as to be able to make a fine display at the meeting in Stephenville. He said that ways and means would be discussed at that meeting to have a special pecan exhibit department each year at the state fair, with appropriate prizes for the best displays.

D. C. Glenn of Granbury is president of the Brazos Valley Pecan Growers and J. C. Patterson of Eastland is secretary. The program for the meeting in Stephenville will be as follows:

Welcome address, Mayor Henry Clark; Response, W. J. Millican, Bend, Texas. "Looking Forward and Backward," D. C. Glenn; "Pecan Movies," Frank Willman, State Department; Agriculture; "Progress in Pecan Development in My County," led by J. A. Barton, Comanche.

12:15-1:15—Banquet at noon. "Teaching Students Pecan Work," Classroom, M. H. Brundrett, Talfoten College, Stephenville; Field Work, O. S. Gray, North Texas Agricultural College, Arlington.

Open Discussion of Varieties, led by A. W. Whitfield, vice-president, Breckenridge. Business session. Awarding Prizes Pecan Show. Tours, J. A. Brown Orchard, Wolfe's Pecan Nursery. The pecan show will be under supervision of James Rostorovich, College Station; A. I. Fabis, Brownwood; Andrew Winkler, The Grove.

WICHITA FALLS—Humble Oil & Refining company makes two locations for tests in Throckmorton county.

Why try to cover up unsightly pimples, rashes and other embarrassing skin conditions when it is possible to get rid of them completely? The sensible and easy way to have a clear, healthy skin is to go to your druggist, ask for Black and White Ointment and use it according to directions. It is pleasant to use, highly beneficial and scientifically safe. For best results use Black and White Skin Soap with Black and White Ointment. All dealers sell them at small cost.

Cardigan Suit Is Popular Among Women Golfers in England.

By FRANCES PAGET Copyright, 1928, Women's Wear Magazine. NEW YORK—What the other half of the world is wearing, as well as doing, is always of interest, and so the popularity of the cardigan suit among women golfers in England has significance for Americans devotees of the game.

Those noted recently generally endorsed a Scotch tweed of the homespun or nubbed variety in small indefinite patternings. Cardigans were mostly plain, sometimes banded with the predominating color in the tweed skirt. They were often worn with a silk shirt underneath, and completed with a silk handkerchief invariably knotted at the back of the neck to avoid any interference with their play.

All-tweed cardigan suits have had quite a vogue on the golf course recently. They are generally made of a lightweight 11 to 12-ounce cloth in small check or fancy designs.

Double-breasted worsted or saxony suits seem to have become a uniform with smart women at race meets. Exceptionally small checks and little fancy weaves distinguish the fabrics, and skirt styles are divided between the wrapover and two inverted pleats.

Some women endorse a less formal note by the addition of a fairly large patch pocket fastened with a flap and one button. At least 75 per cent of the women seen recently were wearing natural carnation buttonholes.

FANS STILL TALKING ABOUT THAT STRUGGLE

Tie With Abilene Is a Thriller for the Story Books.

By BOYCE HOUSE
Games will come and go but one game I know will live as the game of the year.

To paraphrase Gene Austin. It will be a long, long time, in all probability, before Oil Belt fans see such a thrilling struggle as marked the clash Friday between the proud Eagles of Abilene and the battling Bulldogs of Ranger.

When the Bulldogs gained a two-touchdown lead and then, within 10 minutes, saw that lead fade to nothing, that was a situation calculated to have the fans of both sides gasping and giddy. Then on the final play of the first half when Garland Hinman ripped through the line for seven yards but collapsed and had to be aided off the field, there was something to make Ranger adherents mutter gloomily throughout the intermission.

And, boy, can you recall that faint feeling when the second half was about to start—and Ranger's eleven was not in sight. The black-sweatered Abilene team, as confident as so many black-shirted followers of Mussolini, the mighty man of Italy, were in their places, smiling and eager. The Bulldogs came back, slowly, it seemed. All eyes scanned their ranks swiftly. Where was "Ole"? He was not there. And, just before the kick-off, down the sidelines came the big Ranger captain, helped along by two men. He was unable to go back in the game.

But what a pleasant surprise the Bulldog fans got when the team—minus their powerful full-back but with McLaughlin performing splendidly—fought on even terms till the quarter was half over. And then the Bulldogs actually made a 40-yard march. But affairs changed swiftly for a pass was intercepted and then the Eagles advanced steadily for a distance of 63 yards to score a touchdown and take a six-point lead—a lead that looked almost as big as Pike's Peak, it seemed.

Hinman Goes In. Those Bulldogs didn't give up though and Hammett's punting—one kick for 77 yards—and his far superior returns on punts as compared to Abilene's work in that department enabled the Bulldogs to look dangerous again. In the meantime, Hinman had started walking slowly up and down the sidelines, still being aided by two men however. Then he was able to hobble along by himself and at last a mighty cheer rang out as he limped back into the struggle—going into the line.

Hammett, on fourth down, with the ball on Abilene's 43-yard line, decided to try a long pass over the goal line. If completed, it was a touchdown and victory. If incomplete, it would be the same as a punt and the ball would be brought out to Abilene's 20-yard line. Unfortunately, the toss lacked a yard of sailing over the goal line so the Eagles were awarded the ball on their own 43-yard line. It looked as though this break would ruin the Bulldogs' chances. But a huge loss when the snarl back from center was missed forced Abilene to punt. The Bulldogs obtained the ball on the Eagles' 48-yard line and swept to the four-yard line—only to see opportunity fade on an incomplete pass over the goal line.

But, heart-breaking as this was, the Maroon and White did not give up. After Abilene had punted to the 50-yard line, the Bulldogs started again—and this time they were not to be stopped until that last white line had been crossed on Hammett's beautiful pass and run by Whitehall. The touchdown tied the score but a chance to win was lost when the kick for the extra point missed.

Even then those fighting Bulldogs were not through but actually swung down the field till the ball was nestling on the Eagles' eight-yard line. Here they were stopped so Hammett tried for an all-important field goal that would spell the difference between victory and a tie. The ball went barely over the crossbars. If it could have been two feet higher, it would have spelled three points. And the game was over a few plays later, leaving the fans limp from excitement.

Score is Unsteady. Yes, sir, the Bulldogs were ahead 6-0 at the end of the first quarter; they were ahead 13-0 early in the second quarter; they were tied 13-13 at the end of the first half; they were behind, 13-19 when the third period ended, and they were back in a tie 19-19 when the game closed. The price of cotton doesn't change any faster than that!

There was no fluke about the Bulldogs' tie. As far as playing was concerned, everyone conceded that Ranger proved itself the superior team. In first downs, the Bulldogs made 12, one more than Abilene. In ground gained from scrimmage, the Bulldogs' total was 290, which was 84 yards more than Abilene gained. Abilene had only three chances to score and made all three of them count. Ranger had five chances to score—six, counting that blocked punt that a Bulldog tried to pick up on the one-yard line instead of falling on the ball—and made only three of them count. Viewing the game by quarters, a team was never much more completely outplayed than Abilene was in the first quarter. The ball on almost the last play of that period was punted by Abilene to Ranger's 40-yard line, the only time it was out of the Eagles' territory. The second quarter was Abilene's, though not by a huge margin as the Bulldogs scored once to the visitors' twice. The third quarter likewise was the Eagles' though the Bulldogs fought them on even terms most of that period. And that fourth quarter was Ranger's completely. But it was A GAME.

Whoofus Whiffetree's Woozy Wonderings

What does it take to make a great football game? The clash of undefeated teams who are struggling for survival and a chance at the district championship or an even higher honor—yes, that would not be a bad ingredient. The conflict of teams who have built up a tradition of rivalry on many a hard-fought field in seasons that have flown—yes, that is another useful ingredient. Then, of course, the elevens should be evenly-matched and should be superbly coached and, therefore, likely to fling forth spectacular plays.

But one of the most important elements has not been named. It is something quite apart from the teams or the coaches. It is the CROWD.

Did you ever see a really and truly great game played in the presence of a hundred or two hundred fans? We never did. At least, the thrill was lacking.

On the other hand, if there is a big crowd, you are almost sure to enjoy the game. The noise, the color, the excitement, the roars of dismay, the shrieks of wildest enthusiasm, the yells of the pep squads and the blare of the bands—all these give the game a setting. Such an environment lifts an ordinary game to the level of sheer drama and, if the game is really dramatic in itself, it intensifies the game's thrills a hundred-fold.

The Cisco-Breckenridge game was not a great grid battle. It was too one-sided. Yet the presence of 5,000 made it seem a splendid spectacle until the score piled up and it became all too apparent that the Buckaroos had no chance. On the other hand, the Abilene-Ranger game the day before was a truly brilliant battle in itself—19 to 19—the score proves that. And the presence of a great throng made that game a never-to-be-forgotten one by all who were present. Each of the thousands of spectators almost felt that he was in the game and he clenched his teeth and unconsciously his form grew rigid as the attack of the rival team overcame Ranger's lead and then he was swept by emotion as he saw the successful effort to tie the count. And just before the curtain fell, the host from Abilene were nervous with dread and the throng of Ranger adherents were thrilled with hope of another score.

Football, on such an occasion, weaves a wondrous spell. Not only is the eye focussed on the field but every faculty of the mind is projected, as it were, out there. At a break of the game, the fan may shout, laugh, clap his neighbor on the back, leap into the air—all without his knowledge. Ask yourself what you did when Ranger scored that third touchdown and it's a 100-to-1 chance you can't remember. Ask yourself what the details were of the game from then on and all you can recall is excitement, action, Ranger on the offensive and on the verge of putting over a "knockout" momentarily.

These observations, vaguely perhaps, explain the popularity of football. They explain why every road leading into Breckenridge Saturday afternoon was choked with traffic. They explain why hundreds and hundreds of cars, after it was over, sped homeward bound to 20 towns through the velvet darkness in a chain of twinkling lights that coursed up hills, dipped into valleys and looped around curves—an interminable, glowing procession, like some mythical dragon of China drawing its enormous length over the landscape.

What An Abilene Writer Declares

(Abilene Reporter.)
If the boys don't quit throwing monkey wrenches in it, this oil belt football machinery will never get straightened out.

Just a little more than a week ago it was San Angelo that by its deeds informed the world that the dopsters had been away off taw in their calculations. The Bobcats tied the mighty Cisco Lobes 13 to 13.

Just two days ago, it was Ranger. Abilene had played under cover so long, that the Bulldogs proceeded to make it a point that the Eagles stay under cover. In fact, the Eagles went almost too far under cover, and were lucky to get away with a tie, said those many spectators who witnessed the battle. The score was 19 to 19.

And Saturday those same Cisco Lobes made it anybody's race by trouncing the Breckenridge Buckaroos 26 to 0.

Abilene's line was solid Friday, but the secondary could not solve the passing attack directed by Lee Hammett, he off and on ineligibly quarterback of Erk Curtiss' forces. Hammett threw three touchdown passes and kicked an extra point, the total effect of which equaled the successful scoring efforts of the Eagles.

"Block That Kick!" Fans Yelled, and He Did

This remarkable action photograph shows Ick Abernathy, star end of the Vanderbilt eleven, following the orders of Vanderbilt supporters to "block that kick!" during the recent Tulane-Vanderbilt game at New Orleans. Bill Banker, Tulane halfback, got his kick away nicely—but Abernathy, with body high in the air and hands reaching upward, barely managed to stop the pigskin, as you can see here. Dan McCugin, Vanderbilt coach, says Abernathy is a better end than Lynn Bomar and Flek Wakefield, former All-America stars. He looks good on this play.

Alton Marsters, half-back on Jess Hawley's Big Green football team at Dartmouth and Ken Strong New York University luminary, have topped the field in points scored in the East's early season football games.

Each player has figured prominently in victories for the two schools. Strong it was who practically defeated Fordham single-handed, scoring two touchdowns and adding four points from placement after touchdowns. Marsters led the Dartmouth attack against Allegheny with three touchdowns, after running wild against Norwich in the opening game of the season for the "Big Green."

At the beginning of the season it was predicted that Marsters would be Hawley's ace in the hole. Marsters was expected to earn a niche alongside those occupied by such open field wizards as Grange, Gipp, Slagle, Eckersall, Kaw and Mahan. If his present speed is indicative of what to expect throughout the season, he will undoubtedly live up to all expectations. Many conservative critics will tell you that Marsters isn't far short of Red Grange right now.

"Tight-Rope" Artist
No man that ever played football has anything on Marsters when it comes to "tight roping" down a sideline without edging out side the boundary line. He has an abnormally long stride almost a gallop, that carries him right over a tackler's dive. In order to stop him he must be tackled high, and hard.

The Dartmouth attack is built around the big half-back. He can throw off a tackler. With the speedy Hamm leading the way, Marsters is in no fear of running over his interference. Not since Walter Runga ran interference for Colgate has been seen such neat co-ordination between carrier and take-out man.

Playing as a sophomore last season, Marsters swept around the Harvard ends repeatedly and all but scored against Yale. He gained more ground last year than any man in the history of football, including Red Grange and Morley Drury. There was no record kept of Jim Thorpe's yardage, but it is doubtful if he got off so many long runs as the Hanover back.

Starred Against Niagara.
New York University opened the season with a 21 to 9 victory over Niagara. Strong carried the ball for most of the gains which culminated in his scoring all three touchdowns for the Violets. He gained almost half of the 213 yards credited to the New York team. Strong did the New York kicking and passing, in addition to his ball carrying.

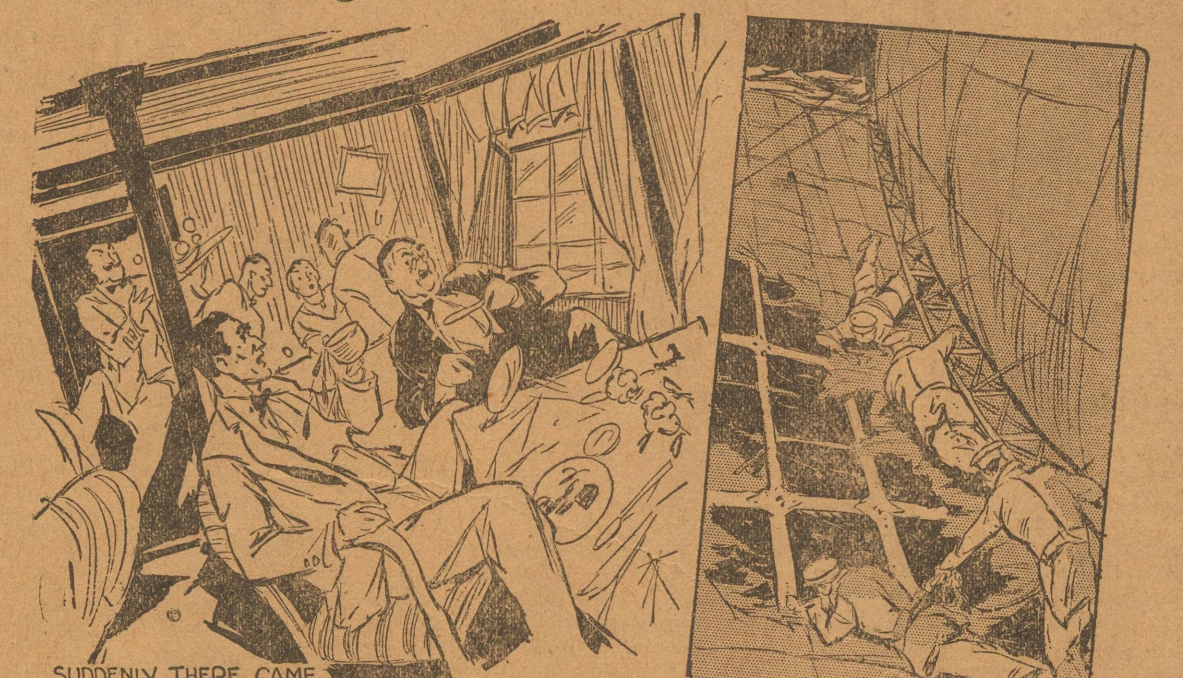

My, Such a Flop!
Wonder where all those fellows are who last winter said Lloyd Wamer would prove a flop in his second year in the majors? 'That, you may remember, was one of the things said pretty freely. The youngster had hit over his head, he wouldn't do it again, he would flop, he would be just another ball player—so they said.

Well, the season is over and the averages reveal that Wamer batted around .336 in 152 games for the Pirates this year. Only eight players who participated in more than 100 games had a better average.

It seems Donie Bush was right. He said Little Poison was a real ball player and he was this year for the Pirates.

Thrilling Moments Aboard Graf Zeppelin

SUDDENLY THERE CAME A TREMENDOUS JERK --- COFFEE CUPS FELL TO THE FLOOR—PASSENGERS WERE THROWN ABOUT

HIGH ABOVE THE TOSSEING-OCEAN, THEY CRAWLED OUT AND REPAIRED THE DAMAGED FIN.

THEY RAISED THEIR GLASSES AND DRANK "TO THE HEALTH OF EVERYBODY"

Thrilling moments aboard the great German air liner, Graf Zeppelin, as it cruised midway between sky and ocean during its history-making voyage across the Atlantic are pictured here by Joe King, staff artist for NEA Service. The sketch at the upper left shows how the passengers, at breakfast, were shaken and dishes hurled from the tables when a sudden squall struck the airship with terrific force over mid-ocean. Quickly they recovered their composure, however, and drank "a toast to everybody." The sketch at the upper right shows how four daring members of the Zeppelin's crew braved the raging storm to climb out on the port stabilizer, a thousand feet above the tossing ocean, and make temporary repairs on the damaged "fin" which had been ripped open by the fierce wind. The photograph shows the Zeppelin as it soared majestically over New York City, Brooklyn bridge being visible in the background.

Something New
If you're ever at the Northwest football field when Coach Dick Hanley's football squad is at practice, you will notice that the first team players run against dummies while going through signal drill. Hanley thinks that when running through signal drill, the conditions should be as nearly as possible to what they are in a game.

"It also gives the players confidence," he says. "When a player gets the idea that he is good, it takes an awful lot of batting around by opposing linemen to get that idea out of his head."

On each play against the dummies, the Purple players are supposed to go through the same motions that they would do in clearing the way during a regular game for their backs. In other words, the dummies must be taken out in realistic fashion.

Cop, Hubby, Griddler
Hanley thinks he has one of the best halfbacks in the Western conference in Bill Calderwood. Incidentally, Calderwood is one of the most colorful players on the squad.

When he finished his final exam last year, Calderwood rushed to the old home town and married the old home town sweetheart. Then he brought her to Evanston to live and went looking for a job. He took the civil service exam for the police department and led the field in his mark. He became a cop.

He stayed right on the job this year until football started and then got a leave of absence to help win some games for Northwestern.

And against Butler, he gained 95 yards in 13 bucks.

Well, What Next?
Pop Warner at Stanford and Jess Hawley at Dartmouth have furnished two interesting incidents this season.

Pop got tired of watching his players be every place but where the ball was and painted big circles on the seat of the trousers of his backfield players.

"You don't seem to be able to follow the ball," he cried, "so let's see if you can follow those circles."

Hawley also uses signs for his innovation. He has what really are guide posts for the backs. The guards on his team have the backs of their trousers painted white and the tackles have theirs painted black. It makes it much easier to locate where one is supposed to go.

FAIRCHILD, Wis.—Snakes have infested a rural school near here in such numbers that a school district meeting is contemplated to decide whether the building shall be abandoned or move, as state school authorities have recommended.

The snakes are harmless "prairie bulls." More than a score of them, 18 inches to four feet long, have been killed in the school building or on the front steps. The schoolhouse has no basement. It stands on a stone foundation raised about a foot from the ground and members of the school board of the Garfield-Cleveland joint school district, which supports the school, suspect that a nest of hundreds of reptiles exists in a hole under the building.

To support this theory, the story is told of a highway crew discovering several hundred snakes in a cavity in a clay bank near here.

The snakes have been getting into the schoolroom by crawling up through the walls and dropping out of holes in the plaster. The frequent sight of them wriggling out of bookcases, crawling among the children's feet on the floor and popping their heads through holes in the plaster during the first three weeks of school gave the teacher, Harriet Pomeroy, a strong yearning to abandon her pupils and flee.

When one fell and wrapped itself around her neck as she walked through the door she became convinced that was no place for her. The school board begged Miss Pomeroy to stay and she finally consented with the stipulation that she would leave the next time she

Family Menu

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST — Grapes, cereal, cream, eggs with cheese, reheated spinach, toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Bacon on casserole, baked potatoes, creamed cauliflower, apple sauce, molasses cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Corn loaf with tomato sauce, scalloped sweet potatoes, stuffed celery, honey dew melon balls, milk, coffee.

Since an unusually hearty luncheon is served a light dinner without meat is planned. If the corn is grated quite fine, children may be allowed to eat the loaf and they may of course have the sauce, sweet potatoes and celery. Children under six, however, should have their sweet potato baked, their celery unstuffed and the tomato sauce served with toast sticks in place of the corn loaf.

Eggs With Cheese
One tablespoon butter, 1-2 cup milk, 4 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, paprika.

Melt butter in small frying pan, add milk and bring to the scalding point. Carefully add eggs, one at a time, taking pains not to break yolk. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and cover pan. Keep just below the boiling point and cook until eggs are beginning to set. Sprinkle with cheese and finish cooking. Place an egg on each square of toast, sprinkle with paprika and parsley and pour milk around. Serve at once.

BREAKFAST — Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, baked French toast, sirup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON Liver and bacon French dressing, lemon sponge French dressing, lemon sponge, milk, tea.

DINNER—Stuffed pork tenderloin, cinnamon apples, sweet potatoes, delicious, buttered broccoli, frozen ginger pears, milk, coffee.

Clever planning often makes it possible to serve practically the same meals to both juniors and grownups. Children under school age should not be served the dinner meat, since they had specially prepared liver and bacon for their luncheon. An Irish potato could be baked while the meat is baking if sweet potatoes are not liked by children. The apples, broccoli and dessert are suitable for children as young as five years.

Sweet Potatoes Delicious
Three or four sweet potatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 cup hot milk, tablespoon brown sugar.

It will take from 1 to 1 1/2 pound sweet potatoes to serve four persons. Scrub and boil until tender. Remove skins and put through vegetable ricer. Add salt, butter, sugar and hot milk and mix thoroughly. Put again through ricer into a buttered baking dish. Put into a hot oven just long enough to make very hot and serve from baking dish.

BREAKFAST—Honey dew melon, cereal, cream, broiled fresh fish, sliced tomatoes, spider corn bread, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Noodle soup, ginger ale salad, brown bread and cream cheese sandwiches, caramel custard, milk, tea.

DINNER—Carp steaks in piquant sauce, parsleyed potatoes, buttered spinach, orange-banana ad lemon sherbet, nut cookies, Milk coffee.

Carp is now in season and is found almost generally throughout the fresh waters of the United States. The head and skin should be removed from carp to overcome what is known as the "muddy" taste of this fish.

The following rule for ginger ale salad will serve eight persons and offers a suggestion for a party salad.

Ginger Ale Salad
One and one-half cups ginger ale, 1 cup tiny seedless grapes or white grapes, skinned and seeded, white grapes, skinned and seeded, 1-2 cup diced pear, 1-3 cup shredded apple, 1-2 cup minced celery, 2 tablespoons minced preserved ginger, 3 tablespoons ginger sirup, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-3 cup lemon juice, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons granulated gelatine, 4 tablespoons cold water, 1-3 cup boiling water.

Combine ginger ale, sugar, salt and lemon juice. Soften gelatine in cold water for five minutes, add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add to ginger ale mixture and stir until thoroughly blended. Let stand until mixture begins to jelly and add remaining ingredients and let stand on ice several hours to chill and become firm. Serve on a bed of lettuce with a cooked salad dressing.

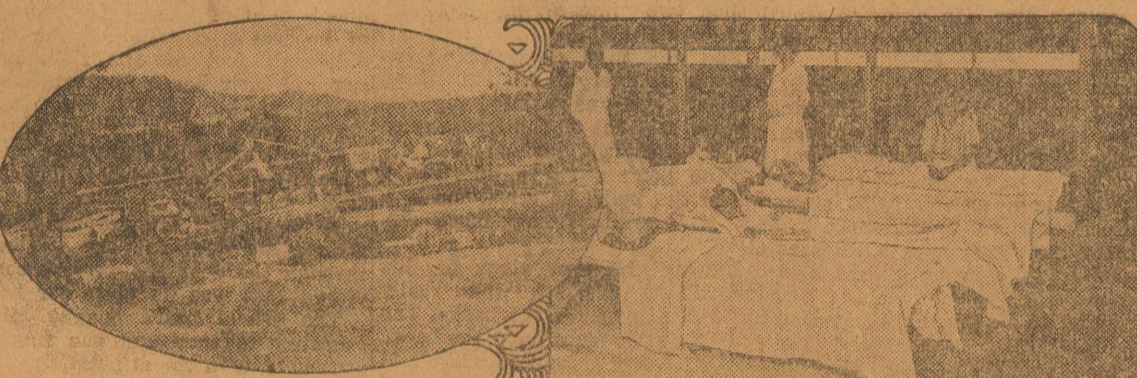

Casserole of Cauliflower and Cheese
One medium-sized head cauliflower, 1 cup milk, 1 cup water, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 1/2 tablespoons flour, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup fine dried bread crumbs, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 1 teaspoon paprika.

Trim cauliflower and divide into flowerets. Let stand in cold salted water for one hour. Drain and cook in milk and water seasoned with salt for 20 minutes. Drain cauliflower from liquid. Rub butter and flour together until smooth and stir into milk and water in which cauliflower was cooked and bring mixture to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Beat eggs and dip each sprig of cauliflower into eggs and then into crumbs and cheese thoroughly mixed. Arrange in casserole and add any left-over beaten egg to hot sauce. Pour sauce over cauliflower in casserole and bake fifteen minutes in a hot oven. Serve from casserole.

Red Cross Disaster Workers Fight Disease and Hunger in Porto Rico

All that is left of a rural school in Porto Rico

SEND an additional hospital unit. "We need food." "We need nurses and doctors."

Day in and day out these requests pour into the disaster relief headquarters at San Juan, Porto Rico, as the American Red Cross wages its fight against hunger and disease in the hurricane swept island.

More than 20,000 persons are ill with typhoid fever, influenza and malaria. Nearly 500,000 are homeless and destitute, without food or shelter except that provided by the relief organization. Sugar cane, banana trees, citrus groves, and pineapple plants, their chief source of food and livelihood, are gone. Medical authorities and the public health officials of the little island, known before the hurricane for its exquisite beauty, say there is grave danger of serious epidemics.

These are the conditions which prompted the people of the United States to send their Red Cross to the aid of Porto Rico which while speaking a different language fits the same flag, has the same institutions, and cherishes the same ideals. Not more than eighteen months ago conditions were reversed, and Porto Rico sent aid to the United States. While not as large or as wealthy, she was one of the first to come to the aid of Mississippi Valley flood sufferers with a substantial contribution of funds.

Like gaunt skeletons of shell torn villages stand more than fifty cities and towns in the central and southern section of the island. Tobacco factories and sugar cane mills are damaged, adding unemployment to the woes of the population.

Working night and day, the Red Cross is sending a constant stream of supplies into the interior. Three hundred tons of food, a thousand tents, five thousand blankets, six thousand cots, a ton of medical supplies are no unusual one day distribution. The United States, even with its Mississippi Valley flood, has never seen a disaster in which a fourth of its population were homeless and destitute and where for weeks they will depend for life on outside aid.

The officials of the Red Cross at Washington point out that the people of the United States will be given an opportunity to endorse the disaster relief work in Porto Rico at the time of the annual nationwide Roll Call between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving, when an appeal is to be made for five million Red Cross members.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON—There is just a remote chance that the result of the forthcoming presidential election will be seriously contested by the minority party. There has been no such contest since 1876.

There will be no contest unless the winning candidate's margin in the electoral college is very small, if then. Electoral college majorities are nearly always of substantial size, but the fact that many political forecasters admit the possibility of a close vote this year enhances interest in what might happen.

Failure of Congress to reappoint its membership, according to mandatory provisions of the Constitution, is responsible for the piling up of this question. Electoral college votes are apportioned in accordance with congressional delegations. Each state has an elector for every senator and representative. Congressional representation is supposed to be determined by population. The changes demanded by the Constitution have not been made since the census of 1920—the first case of such omission in history. Reapportionment was formally refused in a vote by the House during its last session.

Thus there has been a chance that some bright lad might raise the issue of whether or not any piece of national legislation passed in recent years could be considered constitutional. No one has quibbled about that, but the matter takes on added importance when it is recalled that the electoral college system, by which presidents are elected, is also involved.

The question already has been raised in responsible quarters. Congressman Barbour, after the House vote, said he could readily see how the correct interpretation of the Constitution might throw the 1928 election into the courts. William Starr Myers, professor of politics at Princeton and a historian of the Republican party, also has foreseen the possibility of serious trouble and has accused Congress of "utter recklessness" in failing to reapportion. He even suggests that the present House is not constitutionally formed. Pointing out the possibility of "even revolutionary action," he warns against the danger of another Hayes-Tilden contest.

Here's a possibility, based on the correct apportionment of the electoral college as constitutionally provided:

Assuming that Smith should carry Ohio, New Jersey, Texas, Arizona, Connecticut, Florida, North Carolina and Oklahoma, there would be 12 additional electoral votes which might be considered his, taking these states by themselves. The House Census Committee estimated that in 1930 Ohio would have three less representatives than she is entitled to, New Jersey and Texas two and the other states one each.

On the other hand, if Smith should carry Alabama, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia, Mississippi and Missouri he would have 13 electoral votes which might be questioned, as these states would lose from one to three representatives by reapportionment.

But counting in the Republican states of Kansas, Maine, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Indiana and Iowa, we would get eight probable votes for Hoover which these states would not cast in the electoral college if representation had been reapportioned.

There are scores of combinations which might be worked out in this manner to demonstrate the possibility of a contest. Ignorant of how the candidates will run in the various states, one cannot determine whether the present apportionment of the electoral college is likely to favor Republicans or Democrats.

WASHINGTON—The publicity organizations of the Republican and Democratic national committees are running a neck and neck battle as the campaign gets into its final month.

The Democrats hold a record for delivering eight news stories to your correspondent in a single envelope, but Republican messengers Whenever more than an hour boys arrive far more frequently, passes without receipt of mimeographed releases from Republican headquarters, correspondents begin to fear some accident to Mr. Hoover. whole morning passed in which no courier dashed breathlessly about town with G. O. P. news releases and correspondents regarded this astonishing phenomena as indicating great perturbation at Republican headquarters.

The Republican publicity machine operates here where it may be viewed in all its glory and efficiency, whereas the Democratic publicity office here is just a branch of the main show in New York. The latter issues most news propaganda release simultaneously with the New York office, together with some stuff of its own.

In addition to these mimeographed stories delivered during the day to all correspondents, the Democrats issue a weekly known as the "Democratic Campaign News" and also a weekly clip-sheet from which pro-Smith editors can make a wide choice of favorable items.

A few weeks ago one of the Democratic publicity products made a stupid break about Hoover's Quakerism, but the machine is now hitting on all six. Most of the mimeographed sheets which flood into the newspaper offices consist of predictions by visiting state leaders that the party's candidate will carry such and such a state by healthy majorities, announcement of somebody's bolt or declaration for the candidate, announcements of speeches and radio hoopups, all the latest blasts from national chairmen and other campaign leaders against the opposition and news stories of speeches to be delivered.

In both campaign organizations, the publicity divisions are among the largest departments. The Republican director of publicity is former Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas. His assistants are Alfred Kirchofer and Harry Brown, veteran correspondents, at the head of a small corps of trained news writers.

The Democratic staff in New York is under Mrs. Henry Moskowitz. There are two women on the Republican staff, Anna Steese

Richardson and Alice Fox Pitts of Buffalo. Between 50 and 200 telephone calls are received each day from newspaper and magazine writers.
