WHIRLWIND BY ELEANOR EARLY

CHAPTER XXVI It was difficult for Sybil in the months that stretched ahead. Mrs. Thorne devoted most of her time to quiet and systematic weeping. She sat in her dead husband's chair, his little hassock beneath her feet and the balsam pillow he had liked at her back, and there was something more piteous about her than there ever had been before.

Are You Run Down, Weak, Nervous?

To have plenty of firm flesh and the ability to do a big day's work and feel "like a two-year old" at night, you must eat three good meals a day, relish your food and properly digest it. If you can't eat, can't sleep, can't work, just take a teaspoonful of Tanlac before meals.

Mr. Crandon said that it was not at all wicked. Moreover, he insisted, it was quite natural and normal. So Mrs. Thorne sat down again, a bit reluctantly, while he explained how the Unconscious was like that. Finally he told Mrs. Thorne she had a sex complex. "Most people have, you know," he informed her reassuringly. "But, Mr. Crandon!" she expostulated. "At my age!" "Age, my dear madam," he told her suavely, "has nothing at all to do with it. Your age, as a matter of fact, is a specially dangerous time for women."
