MAN IS INJURED IN BIG TANK CRASH

Graf is Going Steadily Onward at 63 Miles an Hour

ZEPPELIN DODGING A STORM

Changes Course and Not Expected in N. Y. Until Sunday Night.

By United Press.
The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, flying far out of her course to avoid a storm north of the Azores, made steady progress toward the United States this afternoon across the South Atlantic.

The dirigible passed Maderia, 440 miles off the northwestern coast of Africa, during the morning. She was sighted from Funchal, Maderia at 8:30 a. m. Eastern Standard time and maneuvered over the city, spending an appreciable time over the island which is 35 miles long.

Because of the storm the dirigible was expected to continue her southern course, probably continuing to the United States by way of Bermuda and up the Atlantic coast to Lakehurst, N. J., her destination. It was uncertain that she would pass over the Azores, not only because of the troubled weather to the north but also because it would mean a wide northward detour instead of a straight line to Bermuda.

The Azores are about 800 to 900 miles northwest of Maderia.

When the Graf Zeppelin reached Maderia, she had covered 1,900 miles from Friederichshaven, Germany, which she left at 1:51 a. m., Eastern Standard time, Thursday. It took the dirigible approximately 30 hours to make the journey, or an average of about 63 miles an hour.

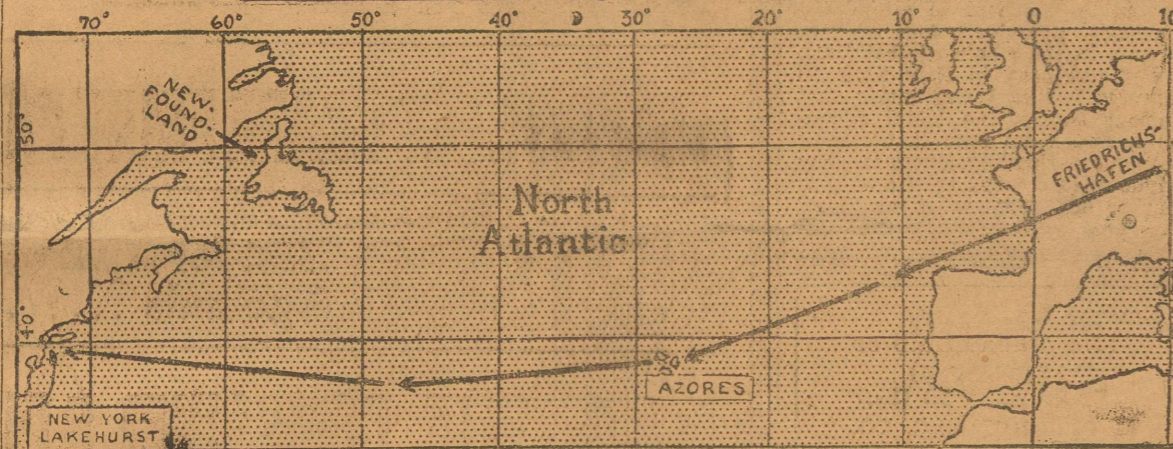

From Maderia to Bermuda is about 3,000 miles and from Bermuda to New York 681 miles. At her present speed it would take the dirigible nearly 60 hours to make the distance which would get her in New York Sunday night.

The Graf Zeppelin was likely to encounter cross winds and head winds, however, which might impede her progress, weather reports showed.

By United Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Graf Zeppelin en route to the United States from Friederichshaven, Germany, was reported in the South Atlantic off the coast of Africa in a radio message received here today. The message was from the British steamer Dymonic and was received at the Radio Marine corporation. It said the Dymonic had sighted the craft at a position that is about at Gibraltar.

The dispatch, if correct, indicates that Dr. Eckener had followed his intended course down the coastline of Spain and had proceeded on to Gibraltar. His plans had been to go out across (Continued on Page Two)

SUB WITH 42 ABOARD SUNK IS BELIEVED

PARIS, France, Oct. 12.—Georges Leygues, minister of marine, announced today that the submarine Ondine, missing with three officers and 39 men, probably had been sunk by a Greek steamer.

The steamer reported that on the night of Oct. 3 she struck a submerged object off the Portuguese coast. The submerged object was believed to have been the Ondine.

The Ondine left Cherbourg on Oct. 1 for an endurance test run to the north African coast. She has not been heard from since.

DOMESTIC TOSSING.

By United Press.
FRESNO, Calif.—The rolling pin as a weapon of offense in marital warfare has been superseded by a varied and more damaging set of utensils, according to Henry W. Nelson, local truckman.

In his application for divorce, Nelson charged that on a frequent occasions when his wife, Nettie, became bellicose he was made the recipient of a shower of coffee pots, electric irons and milk bottles. And her aim, he testified, was as true as that of Waite Hoyt.

A SERMON FROM LIFE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Two boyhood playmates met again in Bridge Plaza court, the magistrate leaning forward on his bench with sympathy in his face, the prisoner shuffling shamefacedly toward him, a ragged and nerve-wrecked picture of failure.

McAlinden, who now is a truck driver, said he remembered. "Fate switched things around, didn't it, Judge?" he asked. "It did, Tom. Don't call me Judge. I'm just Harry to you. I'm still the same Harry you saved from drowning one day when I fell into the water at the end of Grand street, chasing a dog. Now my time has come to do something for you.

Mother Hears Her Sons Described in Big Holdup

WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 12.—Mrs. John Hammel tuned in on Station WTAT of Worcester, Mass., and heard a description of three young men suspected of stealing $15,000 in negotiable securities from the home of Edward Phoenix of Webster, Mass.

The description fitted her sons, Eugene, 22, and Lionel, 19, and their cousin, Edward Duhaime, 19.

Mrs. Hammel questioned the three. They confessed and gave up the bonds. Police held the trio today for Webster authorities.

VAST THROG TODAY AT THE DALLAS FAIR

Is Children's Day, Also Editors and Publishers Day.

By United Press.
DALLAS, Oct. 12.—The Texas State Fair grounds today became a seething mass of children, celebrating Children's day at the exposition.

Officials were amply prepared to take care of them. No cars were allowed inside the grounds and all police officers had been instructed to be especially watchful over the youngsters.

The number of Boy Scouts on duty, whose job it is to find lost children and parents, had been doubled.

Texas newspaper editors and owners also were celebrating their day at the fair. Plans have been made to entertain 600 editors.

The famous Santa Fe band arrived at the fair early, coming in on a special train from Cleburne.

Football Weather Promised at Last

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—The first breath of winter was felt in the mid-west today from the slopes of Alaska.

Snow, hail and high finds already have enveloped the western plains and Rocky mountain states. The weather bureau here predicted that by the time the football games kick off for Saturday's games the temperature in this region will have dropped to from 40 to below freezing.

MAGNOLIA FORCE IS HONORED

Members Are Guests at Banquet Given by Lions, Rotarians.

Fifty-two officials and employees of the Magnolia Petroleum company were guests of the Ranger Rotary and Lions club at a banquet in the Green room on the mezzanine floor of the Gholson Hotel last night.

A chicken banquet was served the members of the two organizations and their guests by the Gholson Hotel Coffee Shop.

Raymond Teal, Rotarian, was master of ceremonies. The Rev. Randolph Clark gave the invocation.

Hall Walker, Lion, gave a welcome address, and Dr. Walter Jackson, president of the Lions club and Andy Anderson, president of the Rotary club made pleasing speeches.

Entertainment was furnished in individual and collective singing. Songs were sung by Raymond Teal, F. G. Yonker, Charles J. Moore and J. E. Meroney.

Short addresses were made by Leslie Haggam, past president of the Lions club, Marvin Collier, Joe Smith, Olden, F. G. Yonker, Harry Johnson, Olden, Ray Newham, Dr. L. C. G. Buchanan, J. E. Meroney, M. R. Anderson, Olden and Carl Boucher, Olden.

The guests of the two Ranger organizations were C. E. Lindsley, E. J. Granger, J. A. Lawrence, Charles Reasor, Alton Miller, L. M. Sharratt, V. O. Wyatt, G. D. Coe, C. G. Boucher, Fred Gertz, J. A. Play 'Tag' With The Authorities; Is Back in Jail

J. H. (Cat) Hodges, Ranger boy, is back in the Eastland county jail after an absence of several months.

Hodges is charged with embezzlement of approximately $70 from the West Texas Coaches here last spring.

After escaping from Odessa official and officer of McCamey, Hodges was apprehended at Ranger by Chief of Police Jim Ingram. He was taken to the Eastland jail. After three months in the jail, however, the youth escaped from Jailer Dug Barton.

Barton had allowed Hodges to go to the ground floor of the jail for supplies.

Weinaday night Barton went to Stamford where he found Hodges working in a small show. He was brought back to Eastland.

Heavier Rails Are Being Laid in the Ranger Rail Yards

Work of re-laying the tracks in the Ranger yards of the Texas & Pacific railroad has started, B. A. Tunnell, agent, announced this morning.

The 90-pound steel tracks are being replaced by 110-pound tracks. Distribution of the steel has been going on for several days and laying has started.

The re-laying of the tracks here is a part of a program covering the entire Texas & Pacific system. Heavier trains and greater volume of traffic has caused the necessity of the increase in track poundage.

ODDITIES IN NEWS OF DAY

RACINE, Wis.—A young hunter who killed six rabbits before the season for such activities was open, was brought before officials here. The defendant persistently reiterated, "They attacked me. I shot in self-defense."

Lawyers have been unable to penetrate this defense since there were no witnesses to the murderous assault.

IS INTERESTED IN VOLUNTEER POLICE

Denton county officials today were seeking information from Chief of Police Jim Ingram regarding the organization of the Ranger Volunteer Police department.

In a letter to Ingram, C. A. Williams, deputy sheriff of Denton, asked Ingram to forward information in regard to the purposes of the organization and method of mobilization. The force has been organized here for some months.

Her Letter Caused Row

Mrs. W. M. Caldwell of Roanoke, Va., republican national committeewoman from Virginia, is alleged to have sent form letters urging women to work against Al Smith and save the country from being "Romanized and rum ridden." The letter incurred the deep displeasure of Candidate Hoover.

COCKTAILS AID PURCHASES OF PARIS DRESSES

Bar Introduced to Keep Minds Of Customers Off of Their Expenditures

By RALPH HEINZEN, United Press Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Psychologists among the Paris dressmakers have discovered that their sales style is not so cramped if they can keep the customer's mind off the bill.

That led to the introduction of tea-dances and mannequin parades in the dressmaking salons, then a more daring entrepreneur brought classic dancers into his sales salon, and now Jean Patou has opened a cocktail bar, the last word of drinking elegance.

Not only will mixtures of the white coated barman keep the minds of his clients off the bills, but since he mixes his "sidecars" and "roses" cocktails better than the average barman outside he is even attracting a clientele which might be tempted to buy a dress on the side, somewhat as a "chaser."

The dressmakers have had to use their wits this season for there is no doubt that American women are being tempted less and less by foreign dress concoctions. That is the real reason why most of the famous style creators in Paris are framing their product to suit American women and are deaf to the protests of Spanish, English, French and other continental.

If Paris loses the American trade, her dressmakers might just as well shut up their shops for Russia was grabbed by the bolsheviks, France lost her best foreign clothes customer. Before the war royal families and court functionaries kept the dressmakers busy half the year, but the world took a turn towards democracy with the war and half of the royalty was made jobless. This important trade was lost to Paris with its 50,000,000 franc revenue.

LOTS WANT TO SEE DEATH OF HICKMAN

By United Press.
SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Oct. 12. Such a deluge of requests for permission to witness the execution of William Edward Hickman has descended upon San Quentin prison that Warden James Holohan announced today that the most drastic process of selection in the history of the penitentiary must be employed.

On next Friday, Oct. 19, unless executive clemency intervenes, the kidnaper and slayer of Marian Parker will pay for his crime on the gallows.

Since the day "The Fox" entered San Quentin, after he was convicted and sentenced in Los Angeles, each mail delivery received at the prison has contained letters from persons seeking to witness the final application of the law.

Although prison officials have not kept exact count, they estimated that 1,000 or more persons desire to file into the death chamber which can accommodate approximately 200 witnesses.

BOLD BURGLAR BEING SOUGHT

By United Press.
DALLAS, Oct. 12.—Police today launched a concentrated search for the "dawn burglar" who has been ransacking homes in Dallas the past few weeks. Last night he executed three daring robberies and escaped. He has been seen leaving the homes through the front door on several occasions. His robberies are committed just before dawn—hence his nickname.

NEW ORLEANS.—Fifty years ago Marie Felicie, 19, told by physicians she had but three days to live because of the ravages of dread yellow fever, married E. B. Peyronin so the young man could be with her at life's close.

Recently, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Peyronin celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, the diagnosis having been somewhat erroneous.

J. T. SIVALLS DIES; FUNERAL HERE MONDAY

Well-Known Automobile Dealer is Called By Death.

Jack T. Sivals, 66, well-known Ranger automobile dealer, and former member of the firm of Black, Sivals and Bryson, nationally known oil field tank construction company, died in a Hot Springs, Ark., hospital Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Sivals left Ranger for Hot Springs two weeks ago.

The body will arrive in Ranger Saturday afternoon on the Sunshine Special, according to advices received from Hot Springs.

Funeral services will be held here at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon at the First Methodist church the Rev. George W. Shearer, pastor, officiating.

Mrs. Sivals and Mr. Sivals' son Don of Cisco, were at the bedside when death came. Mrs. Lula Cox, niece of Mrs. Sivals, and Miss Mary Bonner Campbell of Ranger also were present.

Surviving are a son and daughter in Ohio, and a sister and brother in that state, another brother, Jim Sivals of Bartlesville, Okla., a son, Don, of Cisco and the widow.

Mr. Sivals had been in the automobile business in Ranger for several years and had the county agency for the Buick automobile, with the main office here.

Prior to entering business here, he was personally connected with the tank company. He had been in Ranger since the oil boom and was well known in this portion of Texas, as well as in oil circles of Oklahoma, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 12. J. T. Sivals, aged 66, died at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night at St. Joseph's hospital. The body will leave Hot Springs tonight, and will arrive in Ranger on the Sunshine Special Saturday afternoon. The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at the First Methodist church by his widow, niece, Mrs. Lula Cox, son, Don, and brother, J. A. Sivals.

Survivors are his widow, two sons, Don of Cisco, and Ralph of Cleveland, Ohio; one daughter, Mrs. Rae Sivals Bruns, Woodville, Ohio; one sister, Miss Mary Sivals, Woodville, Ohio; two brothers, Stillwell Sivals, Woodville, and J. A. Sivals, Bartlesville, Okla.

Causes Stir In G.O.P. Ranks

BEATRICE, Neb.—A new "rocket" was uncovered at the county fair here recently. Visitors were asked to pay admission to what had been advertised as a free fair, and complained. Officials disclaimed any knowledge of ticket selling at the gate, and state officers began an unsuccessful search for the man who had been selling the tickets.

The Parsons, Fox and other fields in that vicinity are yet not fully developed and operators believe that they will be proven to be the best and most prolific snail fields in this section. The Horn lease being adjoining, Stiles and Davis believes, will be equally as good, if not better, than any lease yet tested.

GONZALES, Texas, Oct. 12.—A father and his 16-year-old son were held in county jail here today on charges of assault to murder following the near-fatal shooting of Will Whitehead, 42, a blacksmith, late Thursday. Physicians declare Whitehead will not survive two shotgun wounds.

Lewis Enderle, 16, and his father, Emile Enderle, 50, surrendered to Sheriff Neighbors shortly after the shooting.

THREE MEN JUMP TO ONE SIDE

Thereby Escaping Injury When Heavy Steel Sections Fall.

One man was badly injured and three others barely escaped serious injuries when two sections of the steel roof of a 55,000-barrel oil tank, weighing several thousand pounds, crashed to the floor of the structure about 10:15 o'clock this morning.

The accident occurred on the Meadows tank farm of the Humble Oil & Refining company, about six miles southeast of Ranger.

About 25 men were working around the tank when the crash occurred. The tank was in the process of being torn down.

G. L. Alexander, 38, is in the West Texas Clinic and Hospital with his left leg broken, back injuries and a severely gashed head. He will recover. He was rushed to the hospital by workmen.

E. H. Tuder and H. L. Tuder and another workman whose name was not learned, and Alexander, had been sent back into the tank to fasten a chain, when the portion of the roof caved in.

Three of the men jumped out of the way of the falling steel but Alexander slipped on the oily floor and the end of one section fell on his leg. None of the other three men was injured in the crash.

NEW WELL IS BEING DRILLED ON HORN TRACT

Stiles, Davis and Others Will Develop 110-Acre Lease In Shallow Area Just East of Eastland.

Stiles, Davis and associates will develop 110 acres of land known as the J. W. (Jim) Horn tract, located four miles east of Eastland and which adjoins the Hoosier-Fox lease on which is a number of producing wells from the 1900 foot level. A well which offsets two other wells, is being spudded in.

This company, the principle interests in which are controlled by W. A. Stiles and W. E. Davis of Eastland, has drilled eleven wells this year. Four of which have been producers. They have great faith in the Horn lease, since it is so close to the Hoosier-Fox 40-acre lease, which sold some months ago for $105,000.

The Parsons, Fox and other fields in that vicinity are yet not fully developed and operators believe that they will be proven to be the best and most prolific snail fields in this section. The Horn lease being adjoining, Stiles and Davis believes, will be equally as good, if not better, than any lease yet tested.

DONAHEY QUILTS.

Gov. A. V. Donahey of Ohio, who has been the democratic chief executive of a republican state for a good many years, is retiring from politics. He says that he cannot afford to hold public office any longer; the time has come when he must make a little money for himself and his family.

It is almost impossible, says Governor Donahey, for an officeholder to save any money. If he is honest, he says, he has to stint himself constantly, wearing old suits of clothes and guarding the nickels and dimes with great care. Donahey has had enough.

This is rather a sad commentary on our system of government. Surely this prosperous nation could afford to pay its chief public servants enough to remove them from the need of forever worrying about their personal expenses.

MEET THE GHOST.

From sources which The Standard considers reliable comes word that a real, honest-to-goodness ghost has taken up his rendezvous on a farm, 15 miles southeast of San Angelo. The ghost, in fact, disturbed tenants on the farm until they took up the abode in the barn until the house could be moved to a different location on the farm. Now this Banquo is said to roam the former site of the house at night, carrying with it a weird light.

All this offers an opportunity and a challenge to those San Angelenos who hold no stock in the supernatural. It really isn't everyone who has a ghost so close to home. Furthermore, the owner of the farm is not at all averse to allowing anyone who wishes to meet the ghost a chance to do so. It is reported that many who have gone to see the ghost have left firmly convinced that it really exists; others have turned away disappointed in seeing nothing unusual. The venturesome blades of the community are hereby invited to solve the mystery, if any.—San Angelo Standard.

THE AIRCRAFT MAKER'S FUTURE.

Is the aircraft manufacturing industry going to become one of the giants of our business world, comparable to the auto industry—or will it remain relatively small, paying good dividends but attaining no great size? A good many people—investors, bankers, promoters and others—would like to know the answer. If the manufacture of airplanes is going to develop as the manufacture of automobiles did, some men are going to make tremendous fortunes.

The National Bank of Commerce, of New York, recently surveyed the situation in an effort to find the answer to this question. And its report predicts that the future of the aircraft manufacturing industry depends largely on the growth of private flying.

Commercial air lines will continue to grow. But when these get once established, their annual demand for planes will not be very large. Even today, with all the extensive network of air mail, express and passenger lines in operation, transport companies own less than 10 per cent of the total number of airplanes in the country.

Military demands, except in time of war, cannot be expected to boom the industry to any point much higher than it now occupies. There remains, then, the question of private planes, owned as automobiles are now owned, by individuals who look for pleasure and recreation.

If this branch of aviation once takes hold, then the aircraft manufacturer will begin designing new factories and hiring more workers.

Forecasts that have to do with aviation are notoriously uncertain. Yet there are signs that private flying is going to grow enormous-

Subject to Change Without Notice!

ly. Clarence Chamberlin recently predicted as much. Examination of the planes now being made, with their attention to such things as upholstered seats, window curtains, gay paint and paneled interiors, indicates that the manufacturers think so, too.

It won't all come at once, of course. But it is no longer a mere foolish fancy to picture a day when the average man nonchalantly steps into his plane at St. Louis, say, and flies to Denver for a week-end. It may never happen; but we at least have passed the stage where anyone can say definitely that it will not.

In Imitation Of Non-Stop Flyers

Friday, Aug. 26: Mr. Elmer Goforth announces to his wife that, weather conditions being favorable, he will mow the lawn on Saturday.

Saturday, Aug. 27: Upon taking the lawn mower for a test run, Mr. Goforth discovers a cog in the left wheel that misses occasionally, and postpones the start for a few days until the necessary adjustments can be made.

Tuesday, Aug. 30: With repairs made and the machine functioning perfectly, Mr. Goforth is regretfully compelled to make another postponement when he reads in the morning paper that unsettled weather with scattered thunderstorms is forecast by the weather bureau.

Wednesday, Aug. 31: Mr. Goforth decides, after an inspection of the lawn, that in its soggy condition, it would be inadvisable for him to take off with a heavy machine of his type.

Saturday, Sept. 3: With ideal weather conditions and a host of interested spectators, consisting of his wife, the dog and the boy next door, Mr. Goforth finds at the last moment that, owing to a regrettable oversight, he has neglected to replenish his oil supply, thus necessitating a further delay.

Wednesday, Sept. 17: His oil can refilled, Mr. Goforth is once more deterred from making a start by a violent windstorm accompanied by a heavy rainfall.

Friday, Sept. 29: Mr. Goforth issues a brief statement pointing out that owing to the lateness of the season, the growing uncertainty of the weather, and the fact that the finish would have to take place in the dark, the entire project would be postponed till next spring.—Exchange.

SEEK MEANS TO STOP DEPLETION IN OYSTER BEDS

Government Officials Face Task of Conserving Seafood.

BY HERBERT LITTLE
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON.—The oyster is confronted with the fate that has overcome the dodo, for the ocean beds upon which this edible mollusk spawns are being depleted.

The government is working on the problem through the Bureau of Fisheries and the Shellfish Commissioners will take occasion on September 7 and 8 to learn a lesson in seafood conservation. The association will hold its annual meeting on these dates at Woods Hole, Mass., where the bureau maintains an experimental oyster station.

Dr. Lewis Radcliffe, deputy commissioner of the bureau, told the United Press today that the annual catch of the entire Atlantic coast is close to the equivalent of the Chesapeake Bay catch back in 1880—about 17,000,000 bushels.

In this half century, however, the price has risen so much that the total price paid the fishermen for their catch is approximately the same as in 1880.

In recent years, the bureau has conducted surveys of oyster beds in Massachusetts, North and South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas, to devise conservation measures.

Means are also being sought to combat the drill, a pest blamed for much of the Chesapeake Bay oyster depletion.

A curious development in the bureau's work was the recent survey of Florida waters to determine pearl oyster systems could be grown successfully. The bureau found that Black Water Sound, Palmscola Bay, and Largo Sound, near Key Largo and Tampa, were suitable for experiments in artificial pearl culture.

The shellfish commissioners also will discuss problems concerning the economically important industries of producing lobsters, scallops, clam, shrimps and other seafoods.

Presenting New Fall Styles

We Do Not Really See Interesting Things All About

(By St. John Ervine, Noted English Dramatic Critic.)

The novelty of New York has not yet begun to wear off, and I find myself displaying an amount of curiosity and interest in all that I see and hear which must seem a trifle naive to my friends when I inflict my opinions upon them.

They listen with patient politeness while I tell them how I stood one day outside a greengrocer's shop in Sixth avenue and gazed with awe and wonder on the vegetables which were displayed outside it. To them no occupation could be more banal. There is this to be said for me—that many of the vegetables were of a sort and of a shape that I had never seen before, and if the greengrocer had not been busy with customers I would have asked him to tell me about them, their names, where they are grown, how they are cooked and eaten, and how they taste. Perhaps it is as well that I did not, for my motives might have been misunderstood. It would sadden me if, exercising genuine curiosity, I were to be suspected of attempting to be funny at a busy greengrocer's expense.

The trouble with all of us is that when we become very familiar with objects we cease to see them. There must be many faithful and devoted husbands and wives in every country who are so intimate that they have not seen each other for a dozen or a score of years. They will not recover their sight until they have been separated for quite a while. The New Yorker, to whom the display outside a greengrocer's shop is so commonplace that he never troubles to look at it, can only experience the pleasure I received from that sight by leaving America for several years.

I have lived in London for 27 years, during which time I have passed by the Tower hundreds of times. But I have never seen in the Tower nor have I ever seen the crown jewels. The horror with which a young American girl, who was on board the Leviathan when I crossed the Atlantic heard me make this shameful confession was immense. She would not believe me when I told her that I had lived for several years within a short walk of Westminster Abbey yet had not been in that lovely building, except to attend the memorial service for Thomas Hardy, in the whole of that time. I had not been in New York 10 minutes before I was inside that famous shrine, the Hotel Algonquin, and I am sure that I have seen more thrilling sights in shop windows in a week than any New Yorker has seen in a month of Sundays.

WHIRLWIND

ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne Boston society girl, concludes a whirlwind romance by marrying on shipboard in Havana harbor—a man whom she has known just five days—Richard Eustis, dangerous and fascinating.

With Mabel Blake a social worker, Sybil left Boston for a trip to the tropics, to try to reach a decision regarding Craig Newhall, to whom she has been engaged for some months. Newhall is a young and wealthy bachelor, but Sybil, years ago, fell desperately in love with a soldier, John Lawrence.

When Lawrence was reported missing in action Sybil took a solemn vow never to tell another man she loved him. It was to please her father, who was very ill, that she consented to marry Craig Newhall. But when her father died she began to question the wisdom of her promise. Then, after the marriage of her brother Tad to Valerie West, a frivolous and selfish girl, Sybil, utterly miserable, tells Craig she is going to Cuba for a rest and peace of mind.

Richard Eustis is aboard, and Sybil finds neither rest nor peace. Eustis makes wild love to her, but not until the last night of the trip does he ask her to marry him. He tells her that he does not believe in marriage, and that it kills love; but in order to have her, he would do anything on earth.

In a mad moment, Sybil consents. On their wedding night, strolling down the Prado, Richard offends his bride.

Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER XVIII.
Sybil drew her breath sharply. "Oh, Rich," she protested, "you don't want to drink any more tonight."

"Why not, darling?" Good-naturedly he coaxed. "We will just drop around to Sloppy Joe's. You've no idea how interesting it is, dear. Life in the raw—jockeys and gamblers and all their fancy ladies."

She shrugged distastefully, and her voice was cool and distant. "If you wish," she conceded icily, and they walked in silence down the gay promenade.

The crowd at Joe's was loud and boisterous, so that Sybil drew back as they reached the corner.

"Don't go in," she begged. "It's too noisy."

But Richard, pleasantly expansive, would have his way. "Just one little drink, dear. You and I together."

He pressed her arm persuasively. "Whoever heard of a honeymoon without a champagne cocktail?"

But it was bacardi he ordered when they had found seats at the crowded bar.

"Presidentes!" he called, and turned again to Sybil, "I want you to try these, dear. They're the kickiest things in Cuba."

And when the bartender shook them up and set them forth, frothing icily, he ordered, "Mix us up another."

"Richard Eustis, you said just one!"

"Well, dearest, I don't get married every day. I guess you're going to let me celebrate tonight, aren't you? You'll like this drink, Sib. Here's happiness, sweetheart. Fill 'em up again, boy."

Mabel had left them after dinner. "I've some letters to write," she explained.

"Oh, Mab, you're only trying to be tactful."

"Stick around," Richard urged her good-naturedly. "The night's young yet."

But she left them before 10 o'clock. Dinner had been served in their suite. Now it was after midnight.

"Rich," Sybil implored, her voice close to tears, "you must come now."

She clutched his arm, until, unsteadily, he gained his feet.

"If you say I must," he conceded, "I suppose I must. But Sib, ol' girl, I'd like 'nother li' drink."

It was only a few minutes back to their hotel.

"Now, darling," he suggested, as they reached the lobby, "you

Sybil turned. "I'll drop in later to see how you are."

go ahead, and I'll be up in a few minutes.

"You're not going to have anything else to drink, Richard," she demanded, and her voice was hard and sharp as he had never heard it before.

"My God, Sybil, you talk like somebodys' maiden aunt!"

He put his arm about her shoulders and laughed mockingly. "Only a nightcap, darling. It will make me feel better. I'll be right along."

"You needn't bother," she informed him huskily, and holding her head high, rang savagely for the elevator.

"Listen, sweetheart." Contritely he sought to detain her. "I'm dreadfully sorry, but I've a splitting headache. That's the only reason I want a drink. Sybil, you don't think I want to get drunk tonight, do you? Why, darling, I've been dreaming about this . . ."

"Here's the elevator," she interrupted and stepped into the little gilded cage.

Twenty minutes later there was a gentle knock at her bedroom door.

"The prodigal bridegroom!" cried a loud, glad voice, and Richard bent to kiss her.

"Darling! You've been crying!" He kissed her soft wet face. "Why, Sybil—Sybil dear—you you mustn't. Tears simply lacerate me."

He found his handkerchief, and tried to wipe them all away.

Shuddering, she turned from him.

"Please," she implored, "go away."

But he sat on the side of her bed, and stroked her forehead and her hair. When she had grown quieter, he put his arms about her. And so the night passed.

The sun was streaming through the broad windows that front the Prado when Richard, tossing restlessly, opened his eyes and groaned.

"Oh, my head!" Sybil, at the desk, turned and contemplated him remotely.

"You look," she volunteered, "like the wrath of God," and bent again to the paper on which she wrote.

Once the pen point stuck, and ink splattered on the whiteness of the Sevilla's crested stationery.

She murmured detachedly, and then he heard her pen go scratching determinedly on. Scratch. Scratch. Like tacks ripping his brain apart.

He raised himself on one elbow and surveyed her uncertainly.

"Please," he asked humbly, "pull that curtain, will you, Sybil? The sun's right in my eyes."

She adjusted it, and with her back to the bed, told him, "I'm going out for breakfast with Mabel."

"You're not going to leave me like this?"

Denounces "Checkbook Charity"

Dr. F. H. Kaubel, New York City, presiding at 6th Biennial Convention, Erie, Pa., of the United Lutheran Church in America, asked 1,500,000 Lutherans in that Body to couple Christian love with their works of mercy.

"I'll ask the clerk to send someone up."

"But I'm a sick man, Sybil." He moaned with great fervor. "God, I'm sick!"

"I am very sorry, Rich." He raised himself in bed. Put his head on his knees, and cradled his body with his knees, rocking back and forth.

"I don't believe you know how rotten I feel, dear," he moaned. "I begged you not to drink last night," she reminded him coolly.

"I know you did, darling." "You—you were horrid to me." Her voice broke on a sob.

"Was I, Sib? Oh, Lord!" He broke off to resume his rocking. "What a head! Ring for some ice-water, will you? And get me some more of that aspirin."

Dutifully she rang, and dutifully pried the tight little lid from the box of tablets.

"Will two be enough?" she asked dispassionately, and when he had taken them, she started to tuck the door.

"If you know how sick I am you wouldn't walk out on me like this," he objected miserably.

"Oh, yes I would. I know just what I'm doing."

"You're not angry, Sib?" "Angry? Oh, no,—there was a world of scorn in her tone—"I'm awfully happy."

"I'm sorry, dear. Honestly, I am." He tried to reach her hand. "It was a wretched thing to do."

She crossed the big room to the long mirror; powdered her nose from the vanity that hung about her neck, and touched her lips with a crimson stick. Poked a bit of hair up under the little pink hat she wore. And turned to look coldly at her husband.

"I'll drop in later, to see how you are."

"Sybil!" He jumped from the bed and held her by the shoulders.

"I've told you I'm sorry. What else do you expect me to do? Shed a lot of crocodile tears, and grovel at your feet? It isn't my fault that I'm sick, is it?"

She shrugged with dainty disgust.

"See here, Sib, you wouldn't go back on me the very day after we're married? Oh, Lord, darling—I'm crazy about you. You know I am. I can't tell you how sorry I am; sweetheart. I'm too sick to talk."

"Getting sick's nothing," she told him airily. "I'm not angry because you're sick. But getting drunk on your wedding night . . ."

She pressed her handkerchief to her mouth, and sought the mirror again, to hide her tears.

"It was beastly of me, darling." "Oh, Rich, you were horrid!" Suddenly she was in his arms, crying, struggling, caressing.

"Sybil—Sybil, darling!" "Oh, Rich! Let me go."

"Do you still love me, Sib? Say you love me, dear."

"I—I don't know." "Poor little girl!"

He kissed her tears, and rocked her gently. Her hat fell to the floor, and he smoothed her hair tenderly. In an agony of self-reproach he castigated himself.

"I ought to get shot! Sib, don't cry, dear. You break my heart. To think I made you cry! What a thing I turned out to be! Finest girl in the world. And I'm nothing but a low-down!"

She stepped to him. Put her fingers over his mouth, and drew his head down.

"All right, Richie boy. Give me a nice kiss, and we'll put you on probation."

In the mirror across the room Sybil glimpsed her red eyes, and shiny little nose. "See me!" she moaned, "all swollen and homely in front of my new husband."

"You're beautiful!" he contricted, and kissed her tears away. "Oh, darling, I'm not fit to touch you—not worthy to kiss your little feet."

She laughed at his humility. "When the devil was sick," she reminded him, "the devil a saint would be." When the devil was well the devil a saint was he! and laughing, she sat on his knee, and rumbled his hair.

"You're not going to have breakfast with Mab?" he questioned her anxiously, like a child begging for forgiveness.

"No, darling. I'm going to have it with my loving husband."

"Sweetheart!"

"And I'm going out now to buy a bouquet from that old flower woman over on the corner. See, Rich—isn't she precious? The one with the big-checked apron and the long earrings. I'll get a bouquet for you and a corsage for me, and some flowers for the table. And you be all bathed and shaved and everything by the time I get back. Hurry up now, or I might get mad again."

"Mrs. Legree!"

"So you feel better, dear?"

"Better? I'm on top of the world!" Gaily he hummed a snatch of song. "Sitting on top of the world—"

"Goodby, honey."

"Goodby, darling. Hurry back. When she had gone he crossed the room shakily and reached for the telephone. (To be continued)

2 BACKS ARE MISSING FROM LINEUP TODAY

Seay, Hamilton, McLaughlin and Himman Will Start In Today's Game.

The stock of the Ranger Bulldogs was on a downward trend just on the eve of the Ranger-Eastland game this afternoon, when it was announced that Ernest Whitehall, half back, had been declared ineligible to participate in today's game.

"Arkansas" McLaughlin, hard-driving backfield member, will be in the starting lineup against the Mavericks, filling Whitehall's shoes. Although an inexperienced punter, McLaughlin will do the booting for the Ranger aggregation.

Only one backfield substitute will be warming a given portion of a bench when the curtain rises on the district game. Caraway, who is still suffering from a bad shoulder, will be Coach Esker Curtis' only relief man for the backfield. Lee Hammett, quarterback, will be out of today's fray as his eligibility status has not been passed upon by the district committee.

Diminutive Clare Seay will run the game, Himman will be at full, and Hamilton and McLaughlin at the halves.

A large crowd of Ranger people were leaving here this afternoon to attend the first district game for the Bulldogs.

Race Horses New Texas Industry

SAN ANGELO, Oct. 12.—Racing horses that may lead on the tracks of the United States in speed and in price may shortly be raised on a 1,000 acre breeding farm near San Angelo.

Plans for such an undertaking are those of E. C. Crump, race horse owner and breeder. He decares West Texas to be logical place for the production of early horses sought by racing owners throughout the world.

Mr. Crump, who has been following the races for eighteen years, expects to put about fifty brood mares on the farm with two studs from the leading stables of the country. He is a former resident of San Angelo, having lived in this city in 1909 and 1910, learning during this time that West Texas is the best breeding ground in the world for thoroughbred horses.

The mesquite grass of this section rivals the blue grass of Kentucky he says, and the soil and climate go to make this section the greatest of all sections. Horses bred and raised in West Texas will possess more lung power and will be harder than those raised under the softer conditions of Kentucky, he added. It is a proven fact that horses raised in West Texas have the heart and stamina required of a good racer.

In starting the farm near San Angelo, backed by a million dollar corporation, as is his plan, Mr. Crump expects to get a stallion from Sinclair's Rancocas stables and another from Bradley's stables at the Idle Hour breeding farm. He is anxious to get one of North Star's sons. This animal sired "Eagle" Over, winner of the 1927 Kentucky derby.

Abilene Ain't Fooling Nobody

The scenes have been shifted on the Abilene football stage to prepare the fans of the Oil Belt for the Eagles to be defeated today—and then when Coach Mayhew's men pile up a good score, fans of rival cities will be shocked and alarmed.

"Curses," they will hiss between clenched teeth, "the Eagles are once more to be vastly defeated."

As a matter of fact, last year Abilene met the Howard Payne reserves and knocked 'em over, 64 to 0. This writer saw the game. A move motley crew—skinny, lanky, awkward—never represented the tiniest class B high school than wore the colors and bore the name of a college team. If the Howard Payne reserves that Abilene meets today are not better than last year's, then there is no limit to the score that the Eagles ought to make.

But the Abilene sports writer says: "The Abilene Eagles will play the Howard Payne second team on Parramore field Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock but with their invalid list piling up constantly, it begins to appear that the high school will have little better than its own reserves to put on the field.

"Wherefore it would not startle anybody should the Eagles come off Friday in their first defeat of the season."

Poor showing by Abilene in early games is not going to lull other Oil Belt elevens into overconfidence. Nor will any one-sided victories for Abilene against Joke teams strike terror to the hearts of district rivals. The Eagles will have a good team this year—not nearly as good as last season's entry however; while several elevens—notably Cisco, Ranger and Breckenridge—are stronger than a year ago. Consequently there is going to be a merry scramble for the district championship.

A dispatch says that shoe buckles can now be made partly of cow's milk. "Rest Your Feet in Shoes Buckled by the Product of Contented Cows."

The Golden Sandstorm

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Following one of the greatest seasons in baseball's history, batting supremacy for 1928 goes to Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Boston Braves, in the National League and Heinie Manush, of the St. Louis Browns, in the American League.

Hornsby finished the season with an average of .367, the leading hitter in both leagues. Manush's unofficial mark of .382 was barely sufficient to displace Goose Goslin of the Washington Senators, for the American League leadership. Goslin finished with an unofficial average of .379. It is possible that official returns will put Goslin in the van. Paul Waner, leading hitter last year, was second in the National League with an average of .370.

Neither Manush or Goslin came anywhere near the figure with which Harry Hallman won the 1927 championship with a mark of .393. The Detroit star is at his best in old seasons. His batting for 1928 fell off 74 points to .324.

Detroit fans grumbled all during the season over the trading of Manush to the St. Louis Browns. He had a perfect right to do so. Although Rice who came to the Tigers in the deal, hit near the .300 mark, Lu Blue, another player involved in the trade batted much better than Sweeney. Blue's successor at first base for Detroit.

Manush Led in 1927. In 1926, Manush led the American League in hitting, with an average of .377. Ty Cobb managed the Tigers that year and received considerable credit for Manush's development. Under Moriarty's direction last year, Manush played in 152 games and batted .299. In the belief no doubt that Manush had lost his skill at bat, he was traded to the Browns.

The value of his batting has shown in the standing of the Browns. Players capable of a .300 average are scarce on the club, and yet they finished in third place.

Hornsby, as manager of the Boston Braves, has merely enjoyed another successful year. A natural hitter, the former manager of the world's champions Cardinals, is always among the leading hitters in the game. Last season with the Giants, Hornsby hit for .361, only to lose the leadership to young Paul Waner, who had an average of .370.

The trade that sent Hornsby to the Braves did not prove the necessary stimulus necessary to make a contender of the Boston team. The Braves, with the individual brilliancy of Hornsby, could do no better than seventh place, with record of fifty victories against one hundred and three defeats.

Goslin's Best Year. First class material was lacking and Hornsby was handicapped in his attempt to build up the club.

At the beginning of the season it was thought that the big bat of Hornsby would be sufficient to make a contender of a seventh place club. There was, too, a psychological factor in having a player of the Hornsby type in the lineup. But it was not to be. The Braves were a doleful lot.

Lee Allen (Goose) Goslin had his best year this season in 10 years of professional baseball. He is a consistent .340 hitter and only once since he began playing baseball for a livelihood has he fallen below the .300 mark. In 1921, his first year in the major leagues, Goslin hit .260 for the Senators. He has been in two world's series while serving under Bucky Harris, hitting for .344 against the New York Giants in 1924 and for .308 against the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1925.

AMARILLO. — The Amarillo Golden Sandstorm, following the game with Roswell, N. M., Saturday, swings into its conference schedule in mid-season form, having completed the most ambitious pre-conference program ever attempted by a Texas high school. The Sandies beat Norman, Okla., 20 to 12. They were on the short end of a 7 to 6 score against the Oklahoma City Central High Cardinals after the greatest football game ever seen in Amarillo. Then they snowed Liberal, Kans., winner of the Western Kansas conference last year, under to the tune of 34 to 0. The Roswell game brings to four the number of the strongest teams produced in three different states that Amarillo has faced.

The Sandies are doped by most critics to win the District No. 1 title. They have many veterans back, and a vast reserve of new men who are developing into great material. They have a veteran backfield, built around Travis, quarterback, and Walker, halfback, with a world of material to choose from for the other positions. The line is powerful and fast. All in all, it is a much faster and stronger team than the District No. 1 champions of 1927.

The photo shows Coaches Smith and Mays to the extreme left. The boy punting is Bob Walker. Below him, tackling the dummy, is Larsen, an end. Next to him is Redder, center. Above, in the center, is the backfield squad. Next to the right is Ward Hudgins, carrying the ball. To the right right is Nunn, end. Upper right is Coach Smith again, and in the lower right hand corner is the first team.

FLASHY PLAYS ARE LIKELY IN LOBOES' GAME. First Official Game of Season for Cisco Will Be Played Saturday.

"The greatest backfield that Cisco has ever had," is the description bestowed upon this year's ball-carrying combination of the Loboes who will play their first class A game Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Cisco with the Brownwood Lions providing the opposition.

Reports trickling forth from the vicinity of the Loboes' practice field this week—whether said rumors are based on anything substantial or not is unknown—are to the effect that the Big Dam team has worked out fakes, delayed plays, lateral passes, double and triple passes behind the line and even a new form of the spin play.

The Lobo backfield has plenty of speed and therefore can lend itself to the deceptive style of play which is based on smartness, smoothness and swiftness. And it is expected that some of these spectacular plays will be tried out against Brownwood tomorrow.

Reverting to the declaration that the 1928 backfield is the finest Cisco has ever had: Eddleman, 175-pound fullback, who is captain, ripped into that heavy El Paso line in an impassioned manner last week.

Van Horn, halfback, is a passer and runner, and can hit a line. At the other halfback post is Little, perhaps the greatest scoring threat in West Texas due to his elusiveness in an open field.

The quarterback is Kellogg, a triple-threat man. This is one combination. Sometimes, Stovall is started. He is a husky lad of fair speed and quite adept on going through the line. Bedford who shines on runs, is another veteran. Then there is Cotton Pippet, passer and punter de luxe, who is unable to play at present but who should be in shape for the crucial games.

The Loboes are not regarding Saturday's game lightly. Brownwood's achievement last week in defeating Brady 25 to 0 indicates that the Lions can play football themselves. They have been working hard all week and have pointed for the game against Cisco. They have hopes of catching the Loboes over-confident after last week's hard-fought combat with El Paso, and profiting thereby.

Gilliam, star halfback for Brownwood, is rated as a dangerous performer especially around ends and those who have seen the Lions play declare that they run interference in an impressive way.

The game at Cisco tomorrow is the only official game of the day in the Oil Belt district and will attract a big crowd.

Hooks and Slides

He Don't Mean Maybe. Discussing the marathon abilities of ball players at the feed box, Mars Roth, traveling secretary of the New York Yankees, was quoted recently as handling the championship to Rip Collins, who once pitched for the New Yorks, the Detroitis and who has been hailed back recently by the Browns.

"Collins was the champ of all the champions I ever have seen, and I did give him the title," Roth said. "But he didn't win the crown by eating that 12-buck breakfast you told about. He got the championship by good serious and steady eating day in and day out."

"He had a little bit of strategy that became an art with him. He was so good at it that it required months to know he was doing it, and he was so clever we never caught him in the act."

"You know the ball club pays the fodder bill for the athletics when they are on the road, but the appetites of the warriors are curbed. They are allowed—on our club—to sign checks for not more than four bucks' worth of rations per day. And in some cases, like Rip's, four bucks' worth of groceries was a painful diet. But Rip beat the game."

Tough to Be Missing. "He knew every athlete on the club, of course. He would draw up a chair near the door to the dining room and count the eaters as they went in to put on the bag. Sometimes one of the boys, or maybe two, three, four or five of them would pass up a meal. Rip would make a note of the number and the names of all the missing feeders and just as the last meal gong was about to sound he would charge into the mess hall and eat for all the missing men."

If four of the heroes didn't feel like eating that particular meal, Rip would take care of it for them. He would order the rations that belonged to the missing men, eat them and sign their checks. And if he got a shot at the first meal of the day and there was only one missing breakfast guest, the messenger might find out later that his four bucks' allowance had been exhausted by the check for his breakfast.

Yes, sir, that Collins boy could eat."

Loose With His Change. The Cleveland boys tell a story about a big pitcher who, just for clarity, will be called "Big Jim." Jim was a tremendous eater when he didn't have to pay for it, and he always liked to go to Boston, where American plan meals were served and where one particular old waiter took a delight in bringing the ball players extra portions of the whole works.

The old waiter was very fond of Big Jim, and he knew that a great big fellow had to have plenty of victuals to go on. He would always bring Jim three or four orders of everything on the bill and when three slabs of pie and two nots of coffee had polished off the banquet he would ask:

"Anything else, Jim?" And Jim would always tell him: "Slip me a little half order of more pie." And while the waiter was going for the little hunk of more pie Jim would take the air leaving nothing behind him as a gratuity.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—Percy Williams, the Canadian kid who won the two sprint championships at the Olympic games, is under the direction of a committee of his home town business men. . . . And the committee decided that he should spend one year at the University of British Columbia. . . . And the next at the University of Washington. . . . Paulino Ooscrayumbay, the fighter, has a board of directors consisting of 14, in charge of him. . . . The Young Stribling fellow is said to be managed secretly by the Dempsey fellow. . . . Another fellow is running loose in Nebraska U. . . . He's a 210-pound tackle called Glenn. . . . And he's a brother of Monte, the fighter, and Wayne has a football player named Joe Stanczyk. . . . And another one named Remy Tys. . . . Earl Sande romps his own hosses in the morning. . . . And Steve Donoghue is riding other fellow's plugs for 15 bucks a ride.

WON TOO OFTEN. By United Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—For 13 consecutive weeks Ewell Shiflett won first prize at a charity bridge party in Foresters' hall. Then he wandered over to another charity affair looking for more bridge tables to conquer. And Ewell conquered. For eight more weeks he copped first honors.

It got so you could set Ewell after he "doubled and redoubled" time after time and still he came out ahead. One night they looked at his scorecard.

"Terrible," everyone said. And it was terrible.

Then the hostess wondered and so did the guests when the "star" turned in high score for the night. They went to the police headquarters.

When detectives visited Shiflett's room they found a complete outfit for faking score cards identical with those used at the tournaments. Ewell's secret was out and they took him to jail.

Campaign Does Not Go Well, He Makes Mistakes and His Managers Accentuate Them.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON—Senator J. Boomboom McWhorter, whose principal worry in life for several years has been the grave question whether his meat and potatoes would come out even, is now beset by trials and tribulations calculated to make most of his private speeches unfit for publication.

The senator's campaign for reelection is not going so well. The fact that McWhorter is himself no longer certain of victory was demonstrated the other day when, after his opponent had claimed the election by a majority of 80,000, the senator himself only claimed it by 75,000.

McWhorter's manager, of course, hastened to cover up his gesture of defeat by asserting that the senator hadn't seen his opponent's claim or he would have raised him 5,000 or 10,000.

When the national committee heard of Senator McWhorter's troubles they advised him that if he would avoid all national issues in his campaign and say nothing about the presidential candidates, he could have anyone he wanted to go on a stumping tour with him.

Senator McWhorter agreed and wrote back suggesting Clara Bow, but has had no reply. Of course, the McWhorter misfortunes aren't all his fault. Someone should have told him when he addressed an audience of Italian-Americans two weeks ago that the bulk of them were anti-Fascists. Then McWhorter wouldn't have launched into such fulsome praise of Mussolini and the meeting would have been concluded without the aid of the entire local police force.

It was McWhorter's campaign managers who suggested in advance of a great mass-meeting a few days later that it would be a graceful tribute if everybody should bring a flower or two to cast at Senator McWhorter as he strode down the aisle to the rostrum. The idea proved quite popular; quite a few brought cauli-flowers.

Indian Princess Greeted Curtis

While Senator Charles Curtis, republican vice presidential nominee, was in Chicago on his campaign tour, he was visited by Princess Tsianina, Cherokee and Creek Indian of Muskogee, Okla. The princess is shown shaking Senator Curtis' left hand, his right hand having been injured when a friend slammed an automobile door against it.

Perhaps the most painful feature of the campaign for McWhorter, however, has been the fact that he has been unable to attack his opponent's record. The man who aspires to his seat in the Senate happens to be the present state treasurer, who took that important job when Senator McWhorter left it to go to Washington. Of course, McWhorter knows a great deal about the other candidate, but the treasurer knows even more about McWhorter. He has the books and McWhorter hasn't. Thus the senator has had to put in considerable valuable time heading off volunteers who want to ask his rival embarrassing questions, which is a sad position for any candidate.

New York Scribe Vastly Impressed By S. M. U. Ability

Here's some of the praise showered on S. M. U. by the New York World:

"At West Point, in the other branch of the service, pandemonium cut loose. On closer inspection it was observed to be the Southern Methodist Mustangs. Maybe the word went around yesterday that Army was lucky to win from S. M. U., 14-13. Don't believe it. It's only hearsay. The Army earned its precarious victory by unloading everything in its caisson from the stratagems of double passing to the sheer force of crashing the line.

"Backed by 800 students, Dallas business men and the very president of their university, the Southern Methodists astonished the crowd by their display of ultra-modern music coming from their blue-capped brass band.

"The almost 2,000 mile trip in forty-eight Pullman cars of the S. M. U. students in early October raises the question as to what profits a man who sends his boy to study anthropology, calculus and Greek and then hears that he is far from the seat of learning raising football whoopee at no small expense. But let us not be old-fashioned.

"Not even Notre Dame nor Carnegie Tech in their prime could hand the ball around among the backfield men with so much deception as these Texans. And it is doubtful if a team has ever appeared that could make such a simple little thing as a forward pass look like apples falling off a tree.

"It is no wonder the Army defense in its not-knowing-what-to-do-next pounced on even the headgear that were torn from their owners in the scrimmage, rolling footballwise along the ground.

Those Passes. "Since what are said to be relative and there is nobody at this moment denying the value of the forward pass, a fairer idea of the direction can be had by watching the reaction of the Columbia spectators when the Columbia team throws as many as six forward passes, as it did in beating Union on Saturday. The fact that only half of them were completed is irrelevant.

"The Columbia game is highly aerial and has as many as five forward passes. If Southern Methodist would play for five minutes without throwing twice that many, we believe the State of Texas would join up again with Mexico.

"The Army spent the first ten minutes of the game adjusting its defense to the Southern passes. When once Biff Jones' lads got their anti-aircraft eyes trained, they managed to be on hand whenever a Methodist was reaching for a high one.

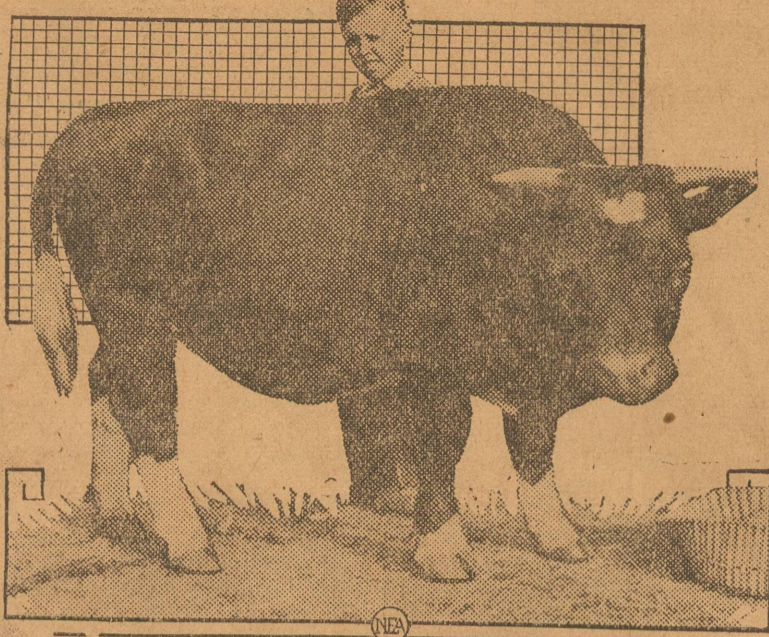

"But the Methodists were so skilful at grabbing the ball off the grasspots and getting it despite the proximity of two or three cadets that the Army was at its wits' ends trying to combat the nuisance.

"The Army never did secure itself against it. The game was fast fading, the sun was already over the hill, and still the Southerners passed the ball just as though they were starting the game anew. It is a frequent sight to see a fading game filled with forward passes flung by the losing team, but a rare sight to see them regularly caught as was the wont of the S. M. U. on Saturday."

AGES "How old are you?" inquired the visitor of his host's little son.

"That is a difficult question," answered the young man, removing his spectacles and wiping them reflectively. "The latest personal survey available shows my psychological age to be 12, my moral age 4, my anatomical age 7, and my physiological age 6. I suppose, however, that you refer to my chronological age, which is 8. That is so old-fashioned that I seldom think of it any more."

Here's Some Words For Spelling Tests

Special to The Times.
TULSA, Okla.—Millions of years ago, long before the thundering protosauri munched in primeval pastures, when Oklahoma was part of an ocean floor and the ancestors of the modern oyster sank in ooze where now rock strewn hills rise and pavel highways wind, the specimens to be shown in the geological section of the International Petroleum Exposition and Congress at Tulsa, October 20 to 29, came into existence.

Suites of specimens from the Cambrian, Ordovician, Laurentian, Silurian, Pre-Cambrian, Devonian, Carboniferous, Mesozoic, Quaternary, Tertiary, Recent and other formations will be shown. Dr. Charles Gould, director of the Oklahoma Geological survey, promises the largest and most representative geological display ever shown in the United States.

Alf G. Heggen, chairman of the scientific and technical committee, announces that the geological displays will be so arranged that the origin, methods and forming of deposits, general conditions relating to location, and the methods, old and new, of bringing petroleum into practical use, will be shown.

The six stages of geology as known in the oil fields are defined thus: primitive search for oil by following the seepages; spotting anticlines by looking at the surface; the plane table method—map making, following of rock formations and observations of outcropping; subsurface observations; core drilling, or prospecting by boring. The geo-physical method is the latest development in geology. Now the geologist categorizes and defines structures by use of the seismograph, the magnetometer and torsion balance.

Other scientific and technical exhibit pieces are: the chainomatic balance (weigh a sun beam), colorimeters, chronometers, astigmatic distance apparatus, cloud testers, aladades, microscopes, binoculars, glass models of the gas-lift, natural gasoline absorption plant towers, and other industrial equipment of interest to the laymen as well as to the expert.

A very costly map composed of more than twenty-five aerial photographs taken over the Panuco River in Mexico has been lent by the technical department of the Marland Oil company. The Fairchild Aerial Photography, Inc., will display a collection of maps and cameras used in this work.

PORT ARTHUR—Texas company will construct pipe line 590 miles long to connect Port Arthur refinery with West Texas oil fields.

FALFURRIAS—Establishment of local unit of Rio Grande Valley Vegetable Grokers' exchange at this place under consideration.

TRAINED CHORUS OF SIKHS LOSE COURT DISPUTE

All Testify in Unison Despite Repeated Admonitions.

By United Press.

SHANGHAI.—The American Consular Court was thrown into an uproar when 13 turbaned, solemn and bewhiskered Sikhs attempted to testify simultaneously. The Sikhs, all watchmen for a local steamship company, were in court charging the steamship company with discharging them without due notice and withholding their wages.

Sidney A. Moss, American attorney, represented the Sikhs and made a spectacular entrance into court at the head of the column of Indians.

Wazir Singh, chief of the watchmen, took the witness stand.

"Did the company pay you in full when you were discharged?" queried Moss.

"No, she did not," replied Wazir. At the same time 12 other Sikhs still wearing their turbans, replied in the same vein.

United States' Commissioner A. Krisel expostulated. So did the court stenographer, the United States deputy marshal and the attorney for the steamship company.

"One witness at a time," cautioned the commissioner.

Wazir Singh nodded agreement. An even dozen other Sikhs nodded.

"How much money does the company owe you?" asked Moss.

"Thirty-five dollars," replied 13 Sikhs in unison.

Commissioner Krisel rapped loudly on the judicial bench. The matter, he said, had gone far enough. From now on only one person was to reply.

"Yes, sahib," remarked Wazir. Twelve other Sikhs nodded their approval.

Moss put three more questions to Wazir. Thirteen replies were made to each. The exasperated commissioner cleared the courtroom of all but one Sikh—none other than Wazir himself. The case went peacefully on. The Sikhs lost.

MARRIAGES URGED. PEKIN.—Buddhist priests in China are urged to marry, in a manifesto issued by Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang. The fact that they don't marry show that Chinese priests are behind the times, Marshal Feng said. He cited Christian missionaries and Japanese Monks as evidence that religious workers can be "happy though married."

Family Menu

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Chilled cantaloupe, scrambled eggs with rice toast, waffles, honey, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Creamed oysters on toast, stuffed celery, apple crisp, milk, tea.

DINNER—Pot roast of beef brown gravy, mashed potatoes, baked succotash, head lettuce, grape, milk, coffee.

The baked succotash suggested in the dinner menu offers an excellent way to use up left-over vegetables. All green beans or all limas can be used if only one sort is at hand. Left-over corn-on-the-cob can be put off and used and a few tablespoons cooked tomatoes or one raw one cut in small pieces can be used in place of the bit of lemon juice.

Baked Succotash
One cup cooked lima beans, 1 cup cooked green beans, 1 cup cooked corn, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-1/2 cup milk, 1 egg, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-2 teaspoon lemon juice.

Combine vegetables. Beat egg until light and beat in milk. Add butter, salt, lemon juice and sugar and add to vegetable. Mix well and turn into a well-buttered baking dish. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve from baking dish.

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Orange juice, cereal, cream, broiled tripe, potatoes hashed in milk, corn muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—October vegetable soup, toast sticks, egg salad sandwiches, grape juice, milk, tea.

DINNER—Baked salmon steaks, baked rice and tomatoes, cabbage, and celery and green pepper salad, sliced peaches, white cake, milk, coffee.

It's quite worth while to bake more than one dish for a meal when the oven is heated. In this dinner menu, the fish and combination vegetable dish are cooked by the same heat, effecting a distinct saving of fuel.

Grape Sponge

One tablespoon granulated gelatine, 1-4 cup cold water, 1 cup grape juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon orange juice, 2-3 cup sugar, whites 2 eggs, few grains salt.

Soak gelatine in cold water for ten minutes. Dissolve over hot water. Add orange juice, lemon juice and sugar to grape juice and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add dissolved gelatine and place dish in a pan of ice water and stir frequently until mixture begins to thicken. Gradually add whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry, beating mixture constantly. Beat until very light and stiff. Turn into a mold to chill and become firm and serve with soft custard made with yolks of eggs.

To relieve the famine conditions as the result of crop failures, the government of Honduras has imported 2,000 sacks of corn for distribution in the affected area.

Charge He Used Auto as Weapon

HOUSTON, Oct. 12.—Charles Bohem, 44, today was in city jail charged with assault by auto, and his wife, 45, was in a hospital with a broken leg as the result of a disagreement as to who would drive the family auto. The charge against the man was filed when his wife sent police word from the hospital that she wished it done. He had walked into police station and told of the affair. He said they had argued over who was to use the car.

"I drove away and when I got back, she tried to chop a back tire off. I asked a policeman about it and he said I could use the car whenever I wished. Then the next time I drove out, she sat in front of the car and I could not keep from hitting her."

TWO COUNTIES HOLDING JOINT SESSION HERE

Eastland and Stephens Counties Join Forces For First Time In Institute For Rural Teachers.

(Eastland Telegram)
More than three hundred teachers from the rural schools of Stephens and Eastland counties registered Thursday morning at the opening session of the Eastland-Stephens Rural School Institute. The Eastland school, where the institute is meeting, was a busy scene Thursday, for classes were in progress while the institute was meeting. In order that the institute might go through Friday without any interruption and the best work be done, Superintendent R. D. Bittle announced that there would be no school classes Friday and the Eastland teachers will join in the institute classes.
The Rev. Frank E. Singleton, Methodist pastor, read the Scripture lesson Thursday morning, and the Rev. H. W. Wrye, Church of Christ pastor, gave the invocation. The welcoming address was given

SCOUT PATROLS TO ASSIST IN "SAFETY FIRST"

Will Watch Seaman Street To Discourage Speeding At School Grounds and Aid Younger Children At Crossing.

(Eastland Telegram)
Boy Scouts attending the South Ward school are to be enlisted to help stop speeding along South Seaman street adjacent to the school grounds and to aid the younger children when crossing the street. It is planned to be tried out works successfully a similar plan may be put into operation at the Bankhead highway where it is crossed by children attending the West Ward school going to and from their homes.

The plan was discussed Wednesday afternoon in the office of City Manager H. O. Tatum by Mr. Tatum, Superintendent of Schools R. D. Bittle, Boy Scout Executive Guy Quint, Chief of Police Elmer Lawrence, and E. E. Layton, principal of the South Ward school. The meeting was attended also by a number of the South Ward school boy scouts, who promised to do their best to carry out their part.

Warning signs reading "School, Slow," have been placed in South Seaman street north and south of the school property line. It is believed that a large majority of the drivers along South Seaman street will notice and obey the sign, but a danger exists when any disobey it and is desired to eliminate this danger. It is claimed that South Seaman street has recently become almost a speedway and that speeding by the South Ward school grounds has become altogether too common.

The plan to be tried out will require two boy scouts attending the South Ward school to report each school day in boy scout uniform, reaching the school grounds at 8 o'clock in the morning and taking stations on each side of South Seaman street at each end of a safety zone to be marked out to follow the south line of Garvin street across South Seaman. Each will be provided with a whistle and when a car is seen coming too fast, the driver failing to notice the warning sign in the street, the whistle will be blown and the scout will point to the sign. It is believed that few drivers will disregard, the scouts will note the number on the car and make report of it to City Manager Tatum and Police Chief Lawrence.

Aid At Crossing
In addition to this the boy scouts will assist the younger children crossing the street. Mr. Layton will instruct the children in the school to cross South Seaman at Garvin street when going to and from school.

The boy scouts will remain at their posts until school opens at 9 o'clock. They will resume their posts at the recess hour when some of the children go home to their lunch, and again in the afternoon when the school closes and the pupils start homeward. Each day the boy scout patrol will be changed. Ten scouts have volunteered for duty thus far, two for each school day, and others have expressed a desire to serve.

The speed limit in Eastland is 18 miles an hour, but this has not been enforced strictly except where reckless driving has attended it. Henceforth, however, it is stated, this limit is to be enforced on streets adjacent to school grounds.

Improved Performance

Every car filled at the Magnolia ANTI-KNOCK Gasoline pump drives away fuelled for superior performance. The knockless feature of the gasoline allows the use of full power in every gear, lessening the need of gear-shifting. It also reduces vibration in the motor, protecting the life of the machine and making smoother riding. The special refining process for Magnolia ANTI-KNOCK Gasoline puts extra power in every gallon. The result is pep that thrills, power that is smooth and quiet through added miles of luxurious motoring—achieved without using a compounded gasoline.

WANTS SOFT OMELET, TO JAIL FOR A PRINCIPLE

Judge Rules Customer Can't Take Omelet or Leave it Alone.

Special to The Times.
 NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—There are some people, and a noble breed they are, who, for the sake of a principle, will do anything, even go to jail.

Among these outstanding humans is John Cooper of the Bronx. John likes his omelets soft. In fact, he refuses to eat them any other way. Moreover, having been a cook for the greater part of his fifty-three years, he knows a soft omelet when he sees one.

Yesterday, with his jaw set in determination, he entered Bernard Smith's lunch wagon on Third Avenue, the Bronx, and ordered a Western omelet.

"Make it soft," said John.

Then he sat down to wait, and in his mind there appeared a succulent picture of the omelet which was about to be laid on the counter in front of him. He remembered some of the splendidly soft omelets he had cooked during his own career before the stove and his mouth watered.

Way of Man With Omelet.
 An omelet should be soft, he mused; that is the way an omelet should be. With him it is not merely a matter of opinion. It is a principle for the sake of which he would stake his all, as the Pilgrims staked their homes and their comforts for the right to worship God according to their own choice.

Meanwhile, the cook was putting around the stove, shaking the frying pan occasionally, attending to half a dozen different orders. Quite heedless he forgot John Cooper's meaningful words.

"Make it soft," John had said.

With a triumphant flourish, the cook flipped the omelet from the frying pan into a plate, and dropped the order on the counter. Back from the eminent softness of the omelets of his culinary past, to the more tangible omelet of his present, John Cooper dragged his mind, and his eye fell critically on the plate in front of him.

What was this? What was this! All around the edge of the omelet was a fringe of black. He prodded it with his fork. The fork bounced back as if from a slab of rubber. The omelet was hard!

And now John Cooper stood in the attitude of defiance and called upon Bernard Smith to observe the undeniable hardness of the omelet. Barney examined it closely. It looked good to him. He happens to prefer his omelets well done.

He asked Cooper what he was going to do about it. John tossed him a contemptuous glance, and announced he was not going to do anything about it. He wasn't going to eat the unsoft omelet, and what's more, he wasn't going to pay for it.

Now, Bernard Smith is also a man of principle, and the greatest of his principles is that what his cook serves must be paid for. Glaring across the counter at John Cooper, he demanded 45 cents.

Here, then, was a clash between two great principles—the principle of softness in omelets, and the principle of payment for what has been ordered and served. As usual when such Titanic clashes occur, something spectacular happened.

A plate was broken.

More might have been broken, if it had not been for the intervention at this point of the police. Loudly proclaiming his stand on the great omelet question, for he is no whispering campaigner, John Cooper was led away to Morrisania court.

Prefers Two Days Jail.
 Magistrate Bushel, whose omelet platform has never been made entirely clear, asked Barney how much the total damage amounted to, and was informed that the omelet was valued at 45 cents, the shattered plate at 15 cents.

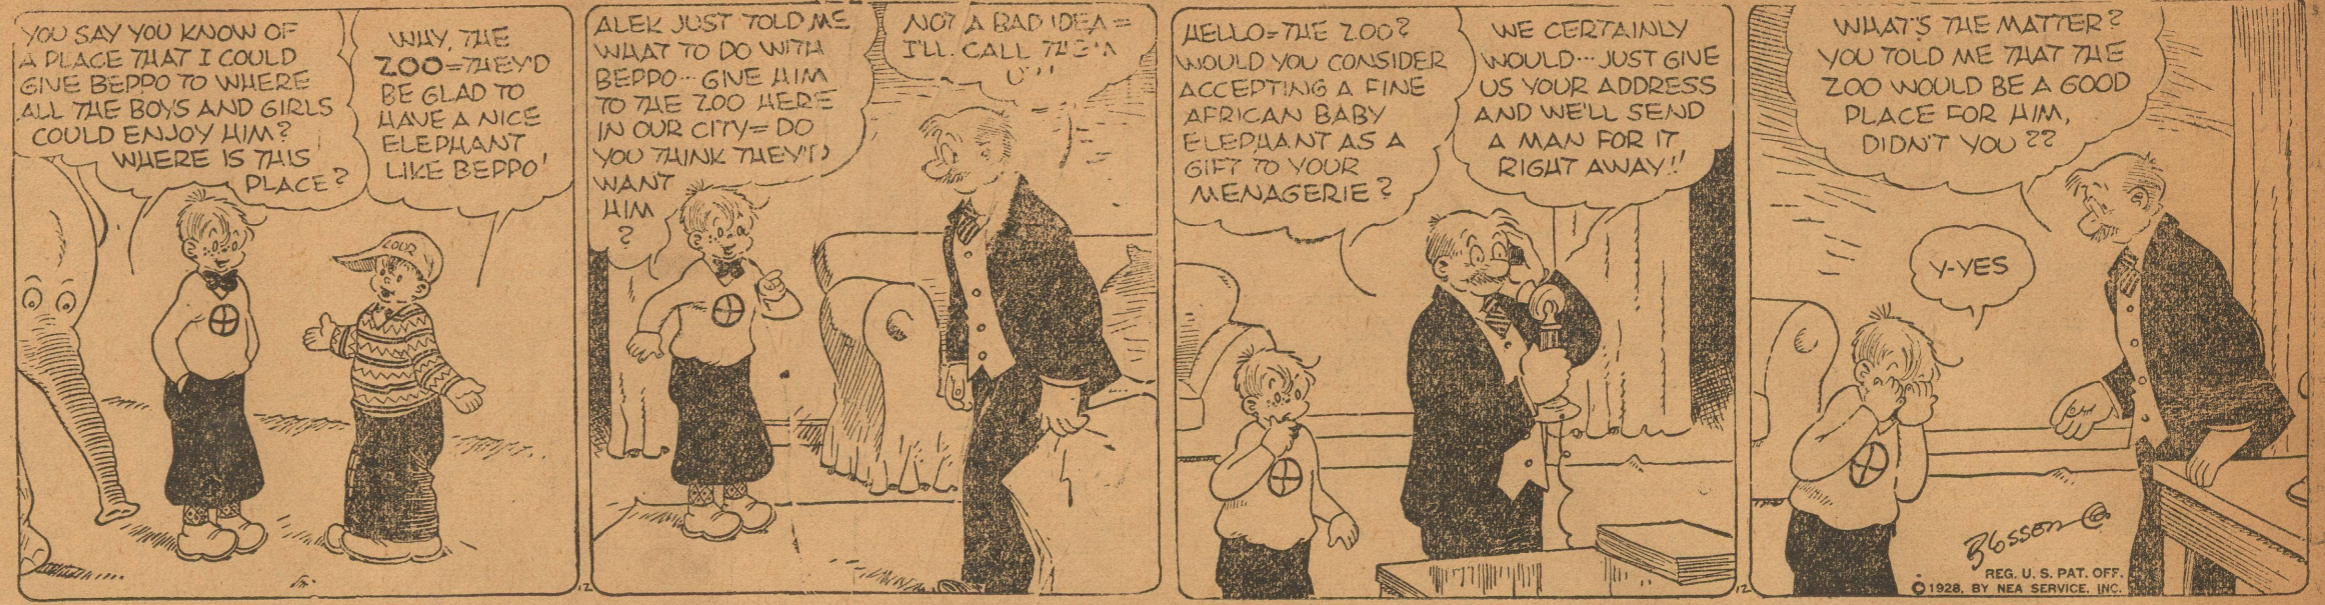

The Magistrate ordered Cooper to pay Smith the total 60 cents. Cooper refused. He had ordered a soft omelet. He had been given a hard one. No! No! He would not pay.

"Perhaps," the Magistrate insinuated, not knowing the calibre of the man who stood before him, "you'd rather pay a $5 fine?"

No! No! Cooper would not pay. A hard omelet is not edible. Accordingly, he was fined $5, with the privilege of going to jail for two days instead.

If, for a moment he faltered, he did not show it. Still proclaiming the holy principle of the soft omelet he marched proudly out of the court room to serve his jail sentence, a prisoner for a principle.

LACK OF SIGHT AN ADVANTAGE, REPORTER SAYS

By United Press
 BOISE, Idaho.—Branwell Peck news reporter on the Cache Valley Herald, Logan, Utah, has been blind for 15 years. Yet, each day, he covers a downtown news run, recognizes the people he wishes to interview by the sound of their voices, questions them, and returns alone to his office to write the stories he gathers on a typewriter.
 Peck walks through crowds with ease, crosses traffic-streets with confidence, depending solely on his hearing for safety.
 His employer, Leslie T. Foy, owner of the Herald, describes him as one of his most efficient men. Foy found Peck doing publicity work in Idaho and watched him long enough to satisfy himself that the man was a good reporter.
 Foy points out many instances of seemingly uncanny faculties Peck has developed to replace his sight. Peck's typewritten copy is orderly and free from errors, his employer says.
 Telling of his work, Peck said, "My memory serves me well. A good deal of my work is done over the telephone. I believe I can remember every telephone number I have ever called."
 "In the morning," he continued, "it is convenient to call many persons to get the trend of the news. Afterwards I go on the streets, stepping into this place or that, finding out through conversation what local and personal items are available."
 Peck tells of his day's work with a simplicity that seems to place him on the ordinary level, although to persons with perfect vision he is considered a marvel.
 "It is my opinion," Peck said, "that I have an advantage. I can ask questions without appearing ridiculous and since I do not see, people are always ready to explain even the most minute detail.
