Some Happy Warriors

KILLER OF 11 TAKES OWN LIFE

Chinese Slayer in San Quentin Prison Cheats the Gallows.

By United Press. SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Oct. 23.—Preferring death by his own hand to hanging on the prison gallows for the murder of 11 of his countrymen, Leong Ying, young Chinese ranch hand, committed suicide last night in his cell in death row, penitentiary officials announced today. Ying took his life with a small towel which he knotted around his throat. He was found dead on the floor of his cell when guards came through the death house for the 11 p. m. inspection. Previously, at 9 p. m., the guard passed the cell and Ying answered to the call. The suicide cell was occupied by Ying and another Chinese killer, Leon Fook. Whether Fook was asleep and unaware of his countryman's act or whether he knew and decided to allow Ying to cheat the gallows had not been learned today. Fook, however, made no sign to attract the attention of death house guards, it was said.

5 DERELICTS DIE IN "FLOP HOUSE" FIRE

Will Go to Nameless Graves. Six Others Are Injured.

By United Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Fire swept through the Eagle hotel today, taking the lives of five derelicts who sought refuge from the cold in the flimsy bedrooms of one of the landmarks of South State street, "flop house" district. The five victims were trapped in tiny, cell-like rooms on the third floor of the four-story wooden structure. The bodies were charred beyond recognition and there was no hotel register to aid in their identification. Six other guests were burned seriously and were removed to a hospital. The hostelry's street sign, "Beds 15 Cents, Rooms 50 Cents," escaped the flames which gutted the entire building. When the fire was discovered at 3:40 a. m., approximately 100 men were in the hotel. Only the men in the more desirable front rooms were able to escape. The dead were found in the back of the building, where authorities said there were no exits available. Of the six in hospitals one is expected to die. The fire marshal said he would demand an investigation. The fire, he said, probably was caused by a lighted cigarette thrown on a trash-littered stairway.

Accident Victim Dies of Injury

Crash in Rome Flight Take-off

Roger Q. Williams, top, and Pietro Bonelle, his navigator and copilot, were in the air only a minute on an attempted flight to Rome when their heavily loaded plane crashed at Curtis Field, Long Island. They were flying Charles A. Levine's veteran monoplane Columbia, which will be repaired, they said, for another start.

CONVENTIONS, POULTRY SHOW ARE SUBJECTS

Airport Dedication, Methodist Conference, Legion Convention Discussed

The Oil Belt Poultry Show will be held in Ranger Thursday, Friday and Saturday, December 6, 7 and 8, it was decided at a meeting of directors and members of the chamber of commerce, held at the commercial organization's office last night. The directors voted to call the show the "Oil Belt Poultry Show" instead of the Eastland County Poultry Show, inasmuch as several out of county breeders will have fowls on display here. Ben Whitehouse, vocational agriculturist, told of the plans of the committee to print a program which will be sent out to all Eastland county poultry breeders, as well as poultry interests over the state. Cash awards will be made, as well as ribbons for the prize birds on display. Report on Airport. Charles J. Moore, general chairman of the municipal airport committee, reported that, in his belief, everything would be in readiness for the dedication November 11. He appointed four committees to work out the final details relative to completion. A committee composed of F. R. Yonker, L. M. Baze and E. H. Murphy, will have the chat hauled from the Thurber Earthen Products company's crusher at Tiffin to the airport. The chat (Continued on page 2)

SON OF A FAMILY OF PIONEERS

"I Am Going Home," Man Mourns as Life Ebbs.

Elmer H. Tuder, 26, succumbed this morning to injuries received Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock, when he fell to the pavement as he attempted to mount a moving truck from an automobile driven by his brother, Homer L. Tuder. Death occurred at the City-County hospital at 8 o'clock this morning. Tuder was fatally injured when his head hit the pavement as he slipped at the intersection of North Oak and East Main streets. He was an employe of the Humble Pipe Line company. He regained consciousness just before his death and murmured, "I am going home." Funeral services will be held Wednesday, probably in the morning. The services will be conducted at the Tuder church, and burial will follow in the Tuder cemetery. The church and cemetery are located in Eastland county, eight miles south of Strawn. The community was founded by a great-uncle of the accident victim. Mr. Tuder was the son of a pioneer Eastland county family, his father having been born in this section. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tuder; three sisters, Mrs. Bertha Yarbrough, Patricia, Texas, Misses Clara May Tuder, 12, and Olivia Tuder, 8, and one brother, H. L. Tuder of Ranger. He was one of a trio who escaped serious injury on October 12, when they jumped out of the way of two falling sections of the steel roof of a 55,000 barrel tank on the Meadows lease nine miles northeast of here. He was an employe of the Humble Pipe Line company and had been engaged in tearing down a number of the large oil reserve tanks in this section of the Oil Belt.

ZEP PASSENGER DIDN'T GET HIS MONEY'S WORTH

Was "Scandal" To Charge $3,000 For The Voyage, He Says

By United Press. PARIS, France, Oct. 23.—Frederick J. Gillilan, who was a passenger on the trans-Atlantic flight of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, returned to Europe by steamer today with criticism of the discomfort of dirigible crossing. Gillilan, who is an American resident of Switzerland, came from New York to Cherbourg aboard the Mauretania in 124 hours compared with 111 hours in the air aboard the Graf Zeppelin. "It was scandal to ask $3,000 for an uncomfortable voyage. It was dangerous because there was only one parachute aboard. If the crew had not succeeded in repairing the damaged fin, the passengers would have been doomed."

By United Press. SOUTHAMPTON. A record hole in one stroke—240 yards—has been achieved by George Kirby, professional, at the local Stoneham golf course. The hole was the ninth which Kirby holed out with his driver. The same player has previously done the 230-yard second and the 244-yard thirteenth in one. "AND 14 LITTLE TOES." By United Press. Applies For Job At Undertaker's; Comes Back Dead

By United Press. SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 23 A trust with death was kept by Glen Conley, Springfield youth, at the same time and place at which he was to see a prospective employer. Conley took his life last yesterday by taking poison in his coffee. A note addressed to his parents told of his love for two girls and deplored the trouble he had caused his parents. Until two weeks ago, Conley had been employed as an ambulance driver. Calling at the mortuary Sunday regarding a job, he was told to return late Monday. He promised he would. Late yesterday at the time when the youth was expected to make his appearance, one of the ambulances arrived with his body.

BULLETS DON'T DETER FLEEING RANGER YOUTH

Disappears Up T. & P. Tracks After Wrenching Loose From Officers. A Ranger boy didn't want to be arrested and taken to a cold jail. In fact he so abhorred the idea of choosing between parting with a fine of $15.70, or spending a night in close confinement, that he chose neither. As the only recourse, he "chose to run." About 12:30 o'clock last night, a rush call was received at the police station and Night Policemen Ricker and Vire were dispatched to the upper end of North Commerce street. They found a youth there whom hotel operators declared was "displaying a pistol and disturbing the peace." He didn't care about the intrusion of the officers and told them so. The march to the bastille was started. The trio—one law breaker and two law upholders—followed by several thrill-seekers, reached Main street. The youth balked. He jerked. He slipped and, as he slipped, the grasp of the two officers was broken. The youth gained his feet, ran out from under his hat and started down South Commerce with Vire a close second and Ricker bringing up the rear. He sidestepped Vire and retreated his steps. He gained the Texas and Pacific right of way with nothing but Mings ahead to stop him. One shot rang out and the boy gained speed. Another flame darted from Vire's gun and the boy disappeared in the shadows of numerous boxcars. A parting shot rang out as he passed the Banner Ice Cream Company. All of the shots were fired in the air.

BOOTLEGGERS SHOOT IN COURT ROOM

Escapes and is Being Sought, Wounded Man to Recover.

By United Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—In the former haunts of Silvio Colombo, bootlegger, police searched today for a man who said he carried his campaign of vengeance against the law through the portals of a United States district court. There, in the presence of 50 spectators, witnesses, attorneys and United States Commissioner K. Walter, he shot down Thomas Ryan, 55-year-old dry agent, and escaped. Police today believe that the attempted assassination was intended for Michael Shannon, a policeman, who had gone into court to testify in a prohibition case. Several months ago Shannon raided Colombo's home.

Disabled Veterans In Hospital Are For Governor Al

Special to The Times. WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23. Governor Al Smith will get the support of the disabled veterans of the World War, M. A. Beehan, judge advocate of the Disabled Veterans, pledged at a meeting of the Victory Smith-Robinson club, composed of World War veterans, at the democratic headquarters. Mr. Beehan reported on a personal canvass made of the disabled veterans in institutions here as follows: At the Naval Hospital, 162 of the 200 patients for Smith; at Mount Alto Hospital, 292 of the 300 patients for Smith; at Walter Reed Hospital, at least three-fourths of the patients for Smith.

"Cyclone" Picks Up An Auto Here

A miniature cyclone did small damage in the Gholson addition Sunday night. The cyclone hit in the field of the Hodges farm, traversed the open country to the R. J. Norman place on Travis street. An awning was torn from the Norman residence and the "cyclone" demolished a large garage in which two cars were parked. One of the cars was lifted out of the garage with slight damage. The other was not touched.

TRAIN BAGS COYOTE

By United Press. SANFORD, Conn.—A fireman and engineer turned their engine into a hunting machine here and killed a coyote. A quarter-mile north of this town, the engineer saw a coyote standing on the tracks. As the engine neared, the animal turned and ran ahead of the puffing machine. The engineer gave chase and ran down the animal.

Democrats Get Busy After Sen. Borah's Speech

By United Press. DALLAS, Oct. 23.—Regular democrats of Texas today planned to meet the invasion of Senator William Borah in their midst with an intensive campaign from now until election day. Borah, who is the first republican speaker of national note to invade Texas in an effort to win the Lone Star state's electoral vote for Hoover, addressed an audience of 5,000 here last night. An unseated audience of other thousands scattered throughout the vast area of Texas heard the distinguished republican over the radio. There was no telling what effect his speech had on the democratic vote, but party leaders, who feared a possible change in sentiment, planned to meet the bold offensive with an ambitious speaking program from now until election day. There was talk about democratic headquarters of enlisting the services of Governor Dan Moody for at least two addresses and the bringing in of at least one democratic speaker of national note.

WORK IS FLAYED IN OIL DEAL

Daniels Says Hoover Ought to Get New G. O. P. Chairman.

By United Press. WAYNESVILLE, N. C., Oct. 23 A demand that Herbert Hoover ask the resignation of Dr. Hubert Work as chairman of the republican national committee was made in a speech here last night by Joseph Daniels, former secretary of the navy. Daniels said if Dr. Work did not resign, the republican party in consequence must accept the responsibility of his renewal of the Salt Creek oil lease to the Sinclair interests. The contract was renewed last spring by Dr. Work who then was secretary of the interior. The latest exposure of secret leasing of oil land shows that Albert B. Fall is still in fact secretary of the interior and that the republican national committee must have a new chairman if that party expects to retain the confidence of even its most loyal standard-bearers, Daniels said.

Guns Fire In a Raid; 29 Arrests

By United Press. CHILDRESS, Texas, Oct. 23.—A sweeping raid by officers on a resort 20 miles from here netted 29 arrests. Those taken into custody were charged with gambling. A negro was reported wounded in gun fire which featured the raid.

"City of Condemned" Is a Place of Gloom

For the first time in the history of Eastland county, the jail at Eastland contains three men who have been sentenced to the electric chair. The cold winds of Monday—the first wintry blasts of the year—swept through the bastille, making prisoners understand that the grip of winter would soon be upon them. "It's going to be a hard winter, Thompson," a prisoner remarked to Clyde Thompson, under sentence of death for the double murder of Leon and Lucian Shook, near the "ghost" city of Leary last month. "Worse than that," was Thompson's reply. Thompson has been placed in the general cell on the second floor of the jail. He has accepted his fate, according to jail officials. "Don't spend any more money on me, Dad," he told his father when he visited the jail. "They have got me. If I don't get it in this case they have another against me just as bad. Sooner or later it's coming, so just forget it and let me go. I can't get out of it. I'll fight it to the limit," the father grimly replied. A dapper Dallas youth was brought to the jail handcuffed to Deputy Sheriff St. Bradford. He was a clean cut boy, stylish in his clothes, well-groomed and smiling. "What was it?" was fired at him from the prisoners of the second floor general cell, desirous of knowing what the jury had given him. Thompson got up and walked over to where the other prisoners were congregating around the young boy. He joined the circle. "They gave me a couple. I accepted sentence," the smiling boy said. The boy had been given two years for forgery. He is already under a four-year sentence for the same kind of offense. He has a wife and two children in Dallas. The group broke up and Thompson returned to his bunk. Two Condemned in Cell. Upon the third floor, E. V. Allison, sentenced to die for his participation in the robbery of the First National bank at Carbon and Thomas Davis, given the death penalty in the Leary murder case, were in the same cell. A card game was in progress. Davis was watching through eyes that seem half closed. A negro was laughing. Allen had the cards and was dealing. A penitentiary inmate, whose time runs out in April, and who was brought to Eastland for grand jury probe in connection with the murder of a train conductor near Tiffin in 1921, was the fourth member of the quartet. The game broke up as Jailer Dug Barton and a newspaper man walked past the cell. "Thanks for the writup," Allison said, "I meant to write you a letter." He referred to a statement he

PROSPECTOR OF DEATH VALLEY WINS MILLIONS

Court Awards Fortune For Patent-Will Keep On Working. By United Press. BEVERLY HILLS, Oct. 23.—The decision of the United States Supreme court declaring in effect that the Anaconda Copper Mining company must pay him millions of dollars will not change the life of George Campbell Carson, he said here today. The veteran prospector who for years sought pay dirt in Death Valley, expects to realize between $20,000,000 and $40,000,000 as the result of the ruling that the Anaconda company infringed on his copper smelting patent. "I guess I'll have plenty of money," he said, "but I can't think of anything I want to do especially. I think I'll go right on working on some new patents. "Getting that money from the copper companies seemed for a time to be just about as hopeless as my hunt for gold. My wife and child will receive about 20 percent of the money, which ought to total $20,000,000."

Abilene To Have A Special Train

It will leave here at 6:30 o'clock and reach Abilene at 8:30 on the return trip. R. D. Green, superintendent of the Abilene schools has authorized a dismissal of school Friday afternoon in order to allow as many of the students as possible to see the important district game.

GIGANTIC HIGHWAY PROGRAM

America's road building program this year involves an expenditure of $11 for each man, woman and child in the country. It is expected to reach the tremendous total of $1,360,025,776. Widening of old roads is an important feature, particularly the addition of shoulders on paved highways.

According to the American Automobile association, this means that the end of 1928 we will have more than 600,000 miles of surfaced highways. The federal aid system, consisting of 185,000 miles of important interstate trunk lines, will be about two-thirds completed.

Our highways are the arteries that give life to the nation. They take more money than almost any other item in the budget, and they pay it back more rapidly in social and industrial progress.

GUNMEN—ROMANTIC AND OTHERWISE

Mark Twain, in his "Roughing It," tells of the wild-eyed awe with which he witnessed a shooting affray that marked his first day in Carson City, Nevada, during the gold-rush days.

He had just been introduced to a tall, lanky westerner on the main street when the westerner excused himself, remarking that he saw a man who had recently slandered him. He strode away and confronted another husky westerner. Both men pulled out revolvers and began shooting at one another, carried off to hospitals. Mark Presently both fell wounded, to be Twain's eyes nearly popped out of his head, but the townspeople, after a brief flurry of excitement, paid little attention. It was all part of a day's events, to them.

In reading of this episode some are apt to feel a thrill of regret that the wild, picturesque days of the old frontier have passed. They were bad and lawless, but they were colorful.

But it happens that in the year 1928 we have incidents that almost exactly parallel that one described by Mark Twain.

In New York the other day, at 7 a. m., one Louis Weinberg stepped from a sedan to a busy sidewalk and spoke to one Joseph Noe, loitering by a building. "Morning, Joe," he said; and Joe replied, "Morning, Louie." Then each man jerked out a revolver and emptied it at the other.

Both men fell, badly wounded. Weinberg's friends pulled him back into the sedan and drove rapidly away; Noe was staken into a nearby hotel for first aid. In a short time the street had resumed its tranquility.

That affair is strikingly similar to Mark Twain's experience. But it does not, for some reason, strike us as picturesque. Mark Twain's gunmen seemed breezy, colorful, almost admirable; New York's are the reverse.

Why should that be? Perhaps it is because the old Nevada gunmen were the logical outgrowth of the free and easy times on the frontier, while the modern gunmen are the perverted exceptions to a rule of peace and order. In the old west a man could pack and use a six-shooter without being a criminal; today that does not hold good. We admire the colorful westerners of the gold rush days, but the city gunman of 1928 fills us with aversion.

LONDON CHEWS GUM.
 Chewing gum has become such a craze in London that cleaners in trains, buses, theatres and motion picture houses are complaining of the extra work of removing the "parked" wads from under the seats. Dealers say the demand for gum grew greatly during the summer, and they believe touring Americans were responsible for much of it. The Londoners then took up the habit from the visitors.

Crowds Pour Into Tulsa for the Big Petroleum Display

 Tulsa, Okla.—Here the earth is telling its secrets to untrained ears as well as to the initiated; gigantic and awe inspiring machinery strokes the ground, and scores of engine batteries using all types of motor fuel fill the air with a powerful undertone with thousands of muffled steel throats. The International Petroleum Exposition, October 20 to 29, is in full swing.

Already 50,000 people from all the states in the union and from thirty foreign nations have passed through the exposition gates. A threat of rain has failed to offset the appeal of the World's Fair of the Oil Industry.

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the boards of the Bethlehem Steel corporation and the Chicago Pneumatic Tool company, who opened the oil show Saturday afternoon, decided to prolong his stay two days to enable him to examine more closely many of the $10,000,000 worth of petroleum world exhibits.

Two men with their feet in rope stirrups kick a primitive drilling tool down into the earth at the spring-pole rig which is in vogue sixty years ago and they are working under the shade of one of the wings of a powerful monoplane. Just south is a modern cable tool outfit pounding hundreds of feet below the surface with a bit which would have broken the strongest spring-pole as a splinter. To the west rises a 122-foot rotary rig with its titanic pulleys, rotating drum and ponderous Kelly joint, sinking the fishtail, bound for strata never sought before the last half of this decade.

Among the most significant of the exhibits are the displays of the Oklahoma Geological survey supervised by C. L. Cooper, state chief geologist. The individual specimens range from the size of a pin point to the 500-pound, multi-million-year old remains of plant and animal life. The ammonites, largest known shell fossils, point to a time when Oklahoma was on the floor of an ocean.

Saved Canary And Set House Afire

HOUSTON, Oct. 23.—Her voice choked with sobs, Mrs. Etta Brendgen said on the witness stand in district court today that she "could not let the canary bird burn" when she and Mrs. Anna Parsons set fire to the Brendgen home Sept. 16. Both women pleaded guilty to attempted arson.

Mrs. Brendgen, who described Mrs. Parsons as a "spiritualist medium," testified that Mrs. Parsons in the course of a reading first foretold that the Brendgen home would burn and then struck the match which partly burned the structure.

"I told her I could not stand to live in the house any longer and that I would either have to take poison or burn the house down," Mrs. Brendgen testified.

Kerosene was sprinkled about the house, the canary bird taken out and the match applied.

Mrs. Parsons was given a five-year sentence and Mrs. Brendgen two years. Both sentences were suspended for two years.

J. H. P. Jones, Edw. B. Maher and O. M. Padgett, will see to it that the fence and telephone posts in the vicinity of the field are painted with black and yellow colors. The top of the hangar also will be painted black with "Ranger" written in tall yellow letters.

Wayne C. Hickey, Leslie Hagaman and Dick Elliott was appointed as a committee to see that the runways are put into shape and also to clear out the trees on the south end and otherwise clean up the landing area.

Another committee will be appointed to have the removal of any obstructing telephone wires that may traverse the field.

Moore reported that the hangar had been obtained for approximately $1,300. He added that the sale of lumber not used but which was contained in the building purchased for the hangar construction, would offset this amount.

The directors voted to continue the Eastland county agricultural exhibit at the Fat Stock Show, to be held at Fort Worth this spring. The exhibit took fifth place at the Dallas state fair. The money won at the state fair—approximately $185—will be used for the expenses of a second showing.

The Rev. George W. Shearer, pastor of the First Methodist church, appeared before the directors in the interest of the general conference to be held here next month. He thanked the chamber of commerce for any help they might give and told them that he did not think the organization would be called upon for financial aid.

He said that some 300 ministers, 200 laymen and unestimated numbers of visitors would attend the conference. It is the first time since the conference was organized in 1866 that a town has been given the conference without compensation from other places.

Plans for the entertainment of the many visitors who will attend the 17th district convention of the American Legion, also were discussed. The Dairy Dollar Day plan of bringing the rural trade to Ranger also was given consideration.

Those attending the session were B. H. Murphy, John M. Gholson, Clarence E. May, R. V. Galoway, J. H. P. Jones, W. N. McDonald, Harry Henry, Edw. R. Maher, Charles J. Moore, L. M. Baze, A. N. Larson, Boyd Davenport, Walter Harwell, Ben Whitehouse, Leslie Hagaman, Walter Murray, Wayne C. Hickey, W. D. Conway, J. C. Smith and Roy Gilbert.

WOMAN IN WANT RESTORES $450

Finding a dirty bundle near the fortifications of Paris recently, Mme. Lepouse, a rag-picker, took it home. Her 3-year-old son opened it and played on the floor with the contents. Later the mother noticed that the plaything was a bundle of money worth $450, and immediately took it to the police, although all she had in the world was 12 cents and her small children to support.

Atheist Jailed in Arkansas

Charged with distributing atheistic literature described as "calculated to provoke a breach of the peace," Charles Smith of New York City is shown as he appeared in jail at Little Rock, Ark. He was fined $25 and costs but said he preferred to go to jail as a protest against the Arkansas statutes which he said prohibited free speech. A closeup of Smith is shown in the inset. Smith is president of the American Society for the Advancement of Atheism.

TEXAS WOMAN IS RELEASED

By United Press
 SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 23.—Mrs. Lucile Inez Miller, 23, wife of C. J. Miller of Houston, held here since Saturday pending investigation, was en route home today.

Mrs. Miller was placed under arrest at Auburn when it was alleged her husband attempted to pass a bogus check. When police sought to question the pair, Miller fled. Mrs. Miller, who at first refused to divulge her identity, finally told police she and her husband left their ranch near Houston several months ago to take a motor trip and that they ran out of funds.

Search continued today for Miller. Meanwhile his wife, who was allowed to sign her own bond of $1,000, recovered the machine and started the long southward jaunt home.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their systems. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who need it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the Winner!

The artist friend who advised lovely Dorothy Cray, 254 West 12th St., New York City, to enter two recent beauty contests, is probably saying, "I told you so." She won both of them and a movie engagement into the bargain! Too bad, pictures can't show the loveliness of her skin and the gleaming beauty of her dark brown hair, points which, the judges say, swayed their decisions.

"When I consider how people admire my hair now and how different it was not long ago," says Miss Cray, "I can't help telling about it. Dandruff had nearly ruined my hair. It had gotten stringy, dull, and was falling out. My scalp was terribly uncomfortable. Then a friend got me started on this method of caring for the hair which is all the rage among New York girls. Now, I just put a little Danderine on my brush each time I use it. Since I have been doing this regularly, all dandruff has disappeared; my scalp has become perfectly comfortable and healthy; my hair has stopped falling out, and has become soft, gleamy and pretty."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair, restores its natural color, gives it more lustre than brilliantine. It makes the hair easy to dress and keeps it in place. It stops dandruff. It isn't oily and doesn't show. At all drug stores, 35c. A delicately fragrant toilet necessity for the well-groomed girl.

Great Boxer From Belgium Is a Hero Of The Great War

By HYPE IGONE
In N. Y. World

This is the strange sidelight of Rene De Vos's career.

De Vos, the middleweight champion of Europe, who has defeated since coming to this country in quest of the undisputed middleweight championship, faces K. O. Phil Kaplan tomorrow night, and when he stalks out to the middle of the ring you, who see him, will know that your eyes are resting on a lad utterly unafraid. And I'll tell you why:

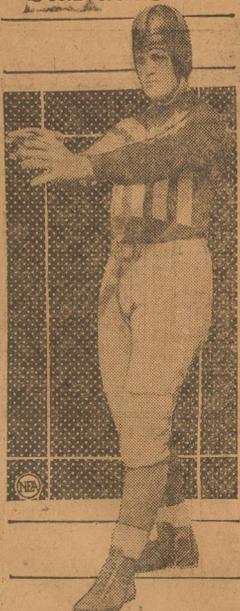

When the war broke out, Germany pounced on Belgium and made her citizens virtually prisoners of war. A Belgium lad, Francis Steyaert by name, fourteen years old, was commissioned by the German officers in Belgium to carry messages through the wire entanglement to Holland when there was occasion to communicate with the outside world.

Allision boy they called him. His efficiency, shrewdness and quick wit earned him the name De Vos, the little fox. He had no law for the Germans. Under Dutch rule, his heart was with the Allies. He carried the German messages through the electrified barbed wire entanglements, but only because it was a German command. When he passed through the barriers separating Belgium from Holland, the little fox was shut off to allow the little fox to pass through unharmed. He knew the key of the mesh and when he appeared the sentry looked over his list, asked for the password and the fox slipped through to fulfill his German commands. He delivered these messages to a little tobacco store in Holland, and German secret service men did the rest.

But there came a slip up. Strangely enough, when important plans for bombardments and attacks were sent through by the little fox, the Allies seemed to learn about it.

Small wonder. The little fox didn't always go on a bee line for the entanglements with his messages. He always disappeared for ten or fifteen minutes. Then the reason for the leak. He had a friend who could decipher German code messages. De Vos always saw to it that this friend got the message before they were carried into Holland. To duplicate in a little steel capsule, stuffed it down the throat of a homing pigeon and the Allies got all the information that the little fox was carrying to German officials.

Star at Iowa

Here's Maves McLain, the big 220-pound fullback around whom Iowa is building her football team this fall. He formerly played with the Haskell Indians. The young man is expected to be one of the best at his position in the entire country this fall.

Every time the Germans sent out their plans, the Allies were there to block them and then it dawned on the German officers that somebody was tipping off their innermost secrets. But who? There were a dozen who might well be suspected. The Germans had no illusions about the loyalty of Belgian subjects. They would eliminate all the possible leaks until they got their man. Suspicion settled about the little fox. He was entrusted with another message. His friend got it as per schedule.

It read somewhat like this: "This boy is under suspicion. His messages have been going wrong. He has been told that the juice will be shut off. It will be on when he goes through. If he is innocent, he will approach the barbed wire without suspicion. If he balks, then we know that he has been reading the code."

The little fox, of course couldn't read it but his friend could. He saw the danger. "You're not going through the entanglement, Francois," he said.

"Certainly," said the little fox. "It's death, they're double crossing you. They've told you that the electricity will be turned off for your ten-minute trip through. It will be on and you will be killed on the spot."

He replied: "Can't help that. Hesitation means death. I will take it mang the wires."

His friend pleaded for him to bolt into hiding. He wouldn't listen to it. He would see the thing through. It was the firing squad or death by an electrical shot, so, after all, there wasn't much choice and the brave front was the better gamble.

De Vos walked to his usual entrance. He was about to step through when the sentry held a gun across his chest. The challenge. His name? Francois Steyaert. The soldier on guard looked over his list of those usually permitted to come and go in the interest of the German Army. Yes, his name was there. The sentry had received his instruction. If the little fox came to go through without batting an eye, then he must be innocent. He wouldn't be fool enough to walk into entanglements that were death traps, death by burning without the chair. The sentry turned him back. He returned his message to the German officers and he was again sent back to the barrier. This time the juice was off and the fox passed through unscathed.

From that time on De Vos was never under suspicion. But later favorite brother was. He was tried by court martial and pitched on his face before a firing squad.

The war over, the little fox adopted De Vos as his name and added Hene to it. The liaison boy, the brave despatch bearer who risked his life for his beloved country and the Allies, laws into Phil Kaplan's thundering fists in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. He will be unafraid. He's that kind. He was bound to be champion somewhere, some time. He's Europe's best middleweight and he makes a bid for world's recognition tonight. De Vos, the little fox, looks back on his liaison duties as a boyish lark. Youth looking into the blazing sun, unafraid. Somehow, this lad who speaks and writes eight different languages is a somewhat different pugilist. His friends say that Gene Tunney, literary larper, had best not meet him in a debate on books and such.

Hooks and Slides

Two Cheers for Miller
Miller Huggins, it is the belief of a spectator at the late massacre, should get a lot of credit for the victory of the Yankees in straight heats.

It would seem that the expert manner in which the little fellow fiddled around with his pitching staff had almost as much to do with the ultimate result as the hitting of the Babe and Lou.

If the Yankee pitching had not held off the feeble Cardinal attack, the hitting of the busters would not have been enough and they couldn't have hit more if they had to.

Players Rebell.
Master Hoyt's first game was the only one pitched that was not a nerve wrecker for the Yankee players. In fact they were so insistent in a demand for a relief pitcher in Piggas and Zachary's game that an insurrection was imminent on the field. But little Hug waved them back to their places and worried through with his pitcher.

If he had made any changes in the second or third game he would have upset his whole staff, and there was no way to tell when the silent bats of the Cards would start whispering.

Huggins may not get any rousing cheers from the customers, but his ability is respected and appreciated by the managers of the other American league clubs, especially his skill in handling pitchers.

Not Needed at Michigan.
There was something singularly amusing in the recent announcement that Pop Yost had abandoned his Michigan football team and had gone to help his brother-in-law fix up the Vanderbilt team. After Michigan had started the season with two rousing defeats, however, it was learned that Pop wasn't coaching the team.

Another Year in Jail.
When he engineered the deal with St. Louis by which the Phillies got Tommy Thevenow for Heinie Sand and $50,000, But Shotton, manager of the Phillies gave evidence that he feels so long ago that Bill Baker, owner of the Phils, had to sell a good pitcher to get $7500 to meet a bill collector.

Press Agent's Art.
Molenda, a teammate of Benny Friedman at Michigan and now a professional player with the New York Giants, said he opened all the holes through which Benny walked and that he knocked down all the men that came through when Benny was tossing a pass.

But he said it on the day before the Giants were to play Benny's Detroit team and a big grudge fight was predicted when they met.

There wasn't.
DID YOU KNOW THAT—
Harry Heilmann calls Durocher the Yank rookie, "The All-American Out" . . . The Philadelphia writer on the jury named Fox as the most valuable American League player. The other seven voted for Cochran.

And the ball players say Cochran . . . Mike Gazella played a half-inning in three world series with the Yankees . . . And got $18,000 . . . The Yanks took wrist watches for their world series prizes from the Judge . . . Estelle wasn't mad at Belasco . . . She raved at the high-browed critics who said she couldn't act any better than Jack . . . Her Jack is still helping friend Tex . . . By saying that Kanute Hansen is a great heavyweight . . . Connie Mack won't quit baseball . . . Say's he's only 66 years old, and has 34 more years to get in there with a pennant winner . . . And the boys say it wouldn't take that long if his men had his heart.

Used to Punch Nicks.
There was a time when the New York Yankees had the reputation of being high mathematicians in the distribution of their world series loot. There were reports, at the time when they were new at the business of whacking up world series money, that they went to blows in the clubhouse as to what constituted a regular player and how few regular players there could be on a regular team.

Two or three of the stars, who have since departed, insisted that as there were only nine players on the field there couldn't be many more than nine regulars and that twenty fellows couldn't be cut in for a regular's share of the money.

There is a record that Mike Gazella, a utility infielder, doing his first year as a bench warmer, rebelled when he was cut in for a paltry five hundred bucks and that he got a regular player's full share when the Babe went to the front for him.

But No Longer.
But if there ever was such a thing as penny among the New York players it seems no longer to exist. Or perhaps all the misers have departed. Because in the cutting up of their money this year the Yankee players did a number of noble things.

TWO GAMES CREATING PLENTY OF EXCITEMENT

No Telling Who Will Win Important Battles This Week.

New attendance records for the 1928 football season in the oil belt district will be set this week-end when two battles that will go far toward simplifying the muddled condition of the championship race will be played.

At present, five teams have not lost a game. Only Brownwood and Eastland are out of the running. Cisco and San Angelo, who unexpectedly tied last week, are going to have to play desperately to keep from being eliminated as a tie counts half a loss and half a victory. The Bobcats do not play a conference game this week but play Winters in an unofficial affair.

But Lobos, Eagles, Buckaroos and Bulldogs will be mixed in a merry scramble.
The Abilene-Ranger game in Ranger Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock probably will draw a crowd of 5,000. A special train will be run from Abilene. Hundreds of fans from Breckenridge, Eastland, Cisco and other cities of this section will be here in the expectation of seeing a beautifully-fought game.

If the Bulldogs are to win, they must reach heights their playing has not attained this season. The Eagles, who are believed to have been "holding back" in preceding games, will "shoot the works" in the game against Ranger. Altman Smith, the 175-pound fullback who did all the scoring against Eastland last week, will be ably aided in his plugging, running, punting and passing by Phelps, a fast man, who was kept out of the Maverick game by injuries. It is doubtful, at that, whether the Eagles can place their full strength on the field as Hanna received a fractured collarbone two weeks ago and Hubert Baldwin, who was hurt in the first game of the year, returned to the grid wars last week only to be re-injured in the first quarter and retire to the sidelines. Hanna and Baldwin are halfbacks. However Smoky Allen, Dallas Murphy and Routh give the visitors' backfield reserves. Hale Ikknaid, regular quarterback, will be at that position.

The Eagles will be facing the heaviest backfield in the district Friday. Hinman at fullback weighs 185 pounds—a 10-pound advantage over Smith, Abilene fullback. Hamilton at halfback weighs 170, which would say was a 10-were to hold Brownwood there-after. Even so, the Buckaroos lost five chances to score by fumbles and other forms of loose playing.

An analysis of last week's Lobo-Bobcat battle shows that San Angelo gained considerably more ground—Cisco's total yardage being exactly 200 and the Bobcats' total being 250. "Red" Massey of the Bobcats reeled off 102 yards which was almost as much as Little and Van Horn combined. Baker, another Angelo back, gained 83 yards besides throwing passes. Hamberlin, fullback, advanced 19 yards while McCamey made five. The ends—Haley and Smith—gained the remainder of the total on pass-grabbing.
Little of Cisco made 62 yards; Van Horn made 55 yards, Edleman 51 and Kellogg 32.

Overconfidence is Greatest Enemy of T. C. U. Eleven Now

Special to The Times.
FORT WORTH.—Coach Matty Bell was waging one of the hardest battles of his career at the Texas Christian University Horned Frog camp this week against a foe that all football coaches know and fear. The demon Overconfidence has quite a field in which to work at Frogland and the Purple mentors are calling out all of their forces to combat the evil.

The 6-0 victory over the strong Aggies last Saturday is quite a feather in the Frogs' cap. Figures on the fray prove that the Frogs completely outplayed the Aggies and only the second period was the outcome in great doubt. The Frogs rolled up seven first downs against five of the Farmers, and no less than three of the Maroon ten-yard gains were registered via the air route. The frog line played the most sparkling defense seen on the Farmer field in a long time as the Purple forwards outcharged, outfought and outslashed the Aggie first defense.

That the Farmers were defeated at their own game of slashing offense can be readily seen by the tally of yards gained from scrimmage. The Frogs gained almost 100 yards more than the Aggie backs. In the third period A & M gained only one yard from scrimmage, while the Purple ball-toters were ripping through the Aggie line almost at will.

The Frogs came through the fray with only one injury and that a slight one. Clyde Roberson, crack end, suffered a wrenched leg on the first play of the game. Though the injury may keep him out of the game with the Texas Tech Matadors scheduled for next Saturday, it is certain that he will be ready for action by the time the Baylor Bears invade Fort Worth Nov. 3.

One of the most encouraging spots in the game Saturday was the fact that the Frogs now have a tackle that can play opposite Captain Jake Williams and hold his own against all comers. Robert ("Red") Moore, big Graham veteran, turned in one of the sweetest performances of the season, smearing Aggie offensive threats and opening holes for the Purple backs with deadly regularity. It was his kicking that featured the first period play and his control of punts was nothing less than marvelous.

STANDARD UNIT VALUATION TO BE MADE HERE

Eastland City Commission and School Board Act Jointly In Adoption of Better System.

(Eastland Telegram) Equitable real estate assessments for ad valorem taxes in Eastland county are contemplated by the Eastland City Commission and trustees of the Eastland Independent School district, which, acting jointly, have employed George C. Ehrenborg of Dallas, valuation engineer and an associate member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, to conduct a standard unit system of real estate valuation in Eastland independent school district. Eight men are to be employed in the work, which is to be finished by the end of the year. It was expected they would be here ready to begin today. The installation of the standard unit system will give to Eastland: Standard lot and block maps, standard units of land value, standard calculation tables for calculating all land and lot values, standard building valuations, standard record forms and cards describing every building, with standard value calculations, depreciation etc., and also showing calculations of land value. Local assessors and clerks are instructed in the application and operation of the system in all its details, making a permanent system which will be capable of being used indefinitely. Ehrenborg has just completed this work in San Diego, California, and Phoenix, Ariz. Standard unit systems were installed during the last three years in Dallas, Hillsboro, San Angelo, Sweetwater, McAllen, Stamford, Corsicana, Breckenridge and in numerous cities in other states. This system gives the actual value of real estate. In making assessments, the assessing board may either take 50 or 60 per cent of the real value as the basis on which to figure the rate, or the board may fix a lower rate of taxation on the total value of the property, which, in fact, is what the law directs shall be done.

Babe Ruth, home run king, and Lou Gehrig, slugging first baseman, of the world's champion, New York Yankees, dominated the spotlight in the 1928 world's series classic from the first game until the final out was made.

The hitting of the crippled Yankee stars featured the four successive victories of the New York team. Numerous records were made or equaled by the big guns of the Yankee artillery and now that the shouting has died down it is possible to compute them to wit:

Babe Ruth
1. Broke his own former record of 22 for runs scored in world's series by increasing his total to 31.
2. Broke his own former record of having played in eight world's series, more than any other player. His total is now nine.

3. Established a record for hitting in world's series. Has hit better than 300 in five world's series.
4. Increased his own record of world's series home runs to 13.

Those Three Homers
5. Equalled his record of two years ago by hitting three home runs in one game.
6. Increased his record for total bases in world's series to 85. It was formerly 83.

7. Increased his record for extra bases on lone hits to 48. It was formerly 36.
8. Broke own record for runs batted in with 26, bettering former record of 22.

9. Established record for bases on balls with 29.
10. Has been struck out more times in world's series than any other player, 27.
11. Set new record for batting in world's series with an average of mark of .545.

12. Tied mark for total bases in one series with 22.
13. Surpassed Hank Gowdy's record of 13. Created new record for runs scored in one series with nine. Held former record of eight runs scored jointly with Leach of the Pirates.

Lou Fared Well, Too
And now for Gehrig.
1. Batted in nine runs, breaking record of eight made by Bob Meusel.
2. Tied record of hitting four home runs in one world's series, held by Babe Ruth.

shouting newshoys, and silvery chimes from high up in a sun-kissed dome. It would be wonderful to be able to read from the hearts of all these folks. In some of them you would find tragedies and in others love stories as sweet as the Tale of Evangeline.

With a glance of the eye you can behold magnificent buildings that cost millions, and works of art in stone and wood, and noisy steam engines drawing loads of freight, and little steeples with crosses that point the way to glory. There are evidences of prosperity in spacious mansions, and of poverty in tumble-down shacks. The good and the bad, the rich and the poor, the learned and the unlearned all dwell out there, and above them on a lofty tower floats the flag of America.

Its red and white and blue glory the principles of equality, justice and independence. Its stars are the watchful eyes of Heaven keeping guard over the privileges of every one of those who walk beneath its folds.

Let it float there a promise from those who are here and those who are gone that the great con-

Let it float there, the glory-lit and star-crowned banner of patriots whose longing hearts and prayerful souls and dauntless courage gave us the Declaration of Independence and made it the living faith of the great people of this incomparable country.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne, home from a hastily honeymoon, is living with her mother in Boston. Nobody knows Sybil is married except Mabel Blake and Mabel's fiancé, Jack Moore. Sybil married Richard Eustis in Havana after a five-day courtship at sea. The marriage lasted two weeks. Sybil, after learning of her husband's unbelievable infidelity, returned to Boston with Mabel.

Craig Newhall, her old sweetheart, meets her at the pier, but his manner is strangely distant, and Sybil wonders if he could know anything of her romance. She is wretchedly unhappy because of her tragic secret, and also because of the recent death of her father and the marriage of her brother, Tad, to Valerie West, a frivolous and selfish little debutante.

Mrs. Thorne who is also heartbroken, takes up psychology at Valerie's suggestion and gets a new outlook on life. Valerie, in one of her tantrums, flings from the room because Sybil and Tad seem unappreciative of her efforts on their mother's behalf. Mrs. Thorne, always apologetic for Val, suggests that maybe she is going to have a baby.

Now go on with the story: Sybil surveyed her recalcitrant sister-in-law humorously. "Good Lord," she said, "you've a chip on your shoulder! Do you pop off at Tad every time he opens his mouth? Or do I get the brunt of your ladyship's ire?"

Valerie was very pretty when she was angry. Her soft skin flushed and paled like an exquisite rose when soft tints blend in perfect harmony. And her blue eyes flashed dangerously beautiful. Now she rumbled her yellow curls in characteristically angry fashion. And her slim shoulders in their little rose sweater drew together ominously. Tad knew all the danger signs.

"There, there, Val," he counseled. "Easy, old girl."

"I hate you," she shrilled at him. "Don't you talk to me like that. And you, Sybil Thorne! Finding fault with me all the time, you two. I won't stand for it, I tell you. I guess I don't have to. And I won't—so there. I won't!"

She flung angrily from the room, slamming the door after her. Mrs. Thorne laid her basket of roses on the hall table and crossed the drawing room to her son.

Valerie's so upset these days," she murmured. "I've wondered—"

She stopped nervously and glanced tremulously at Sybil.

CHAPTER XXVII
Sybil laughed shortly.

"Not a chance," she opined. "Valerie wasn't born yesterday."

Mrs. Thorne blushed painfully. "You shouldn't say things like that," she reproved her daughter mildly.

"Who started it?" demanded Tad, and catching her to him, kissed her roughly and laughed at her discomfort. "If Mother's got her heart set on a grandchild, I guess you'll have to get married, Sib."

Across his mother's head he winked broadly. "A girl ought to be willing to do that much for her poor old mother."

Mrs. Thorne pushed him gently from her.

"Freshie!" she murmured in the fashion of her girlhood and slapped him with a pink rose.

September was hot in Boston that year. Quiet, with hardly a breath of air; and the heat rising in little puffs from the cobblestones.

After school small boys swam in the Frog Pond and grownups patronized the swan boats. Firemen sprinkled down the streets. And the newspapers chronicled the temperature in screaming headlines with lists of prostrations in red print. Mrs. Thorne felt the heat painfully.

"If you'd had sense enough to say at Wianco!" Sybil reproached Valerie.

"That's right—blame it on me."

"Well, you dragged Mother home."

"Oh, of course—it's all my fault."

The girls had stopped speaking, when Valerie decided to visit friends in New Haven.

"You'll be glad enough to be rid of me," she remarked, which was so true that Sybil refrained from comment.

Tad was to make a western trip on business.

"And when I get back," he declared firmly, "Val and I are going to look around for a place of our own. It's an awful imposition—staying here. Val doesn't realize, of course—but Mother's not so young as she used to be."

It was Sybil who packed his bags and sewed his buttons on and drove him to the station when he went away. Valerie had an engagement that evening to play bridge. The next day she was leaving for Connecticut.

It was lonely for Sybil when she and her mother were there alone, since Craig had more or less effaced himself, and Sybil was rather avoiding her old crowd.

Craig had declared himself quite definitely.

"I don't like being a footstool," he told her. "And I'm all through bothering you, Sybil. I guess maybe you've found my protestations annoying. You know I love you. I'd do anything for you. But I don't seem to know how to make you care for me. So I'm going to drop out of the picture for a while."

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder," she parried lightly, half glad of the relief of promised solitude.

"So I've noticed," he retorted, "fonder of the other man."

She wondered if there was any significance in the remark.

"don't be silly!"

"Well, I just wanted you to know," he insisted awkwardly. "Any time you want me, let me know."

After that she saw him infrequently, and missed him more than she had thought possible. Occasionally he sent flowers and a box of candied fruits to Mrs. Thorne, who was pleased that he remembered her preference.

Munching a sugared pineapple or succulent pear she would contemplate Sybil gloomily over her sweet and remarks, as usual, that she could go further and fare worse.

Once after that Craig took Sybil to a road house. It was the first time she had done anything gay for weeks. She wore a dress of lilac chiffon and pinned a great bunch of silk violets on her shoulder. She wore a top coat of soft mauve and a little felt hat that matched.

Almost all men, she reflected, liked orchid and purple and all the royal shades between. Craig had often told her violet was his favorite color. She slipped a long string of amethysts about her neck and fastened gleaming quartz, fashioned like grapes, in her ears.

Across the candle-lit table Craig held her hand, desirously. He was nice and cozy, sitting across from each other like that. Impulsively she reached for his hand, and brushed it lightly across her lips. He smiled quietly and pinched her cheek; then gravely lighting a cigarette, studied her remotely through clouds of smoke.

"Rather nice, isn't it?" he remarked idly.

"Nice? Oh, Craig, it's wonderful—being together, I mean," she assured him. "I haven't enjoyed anything so far ages."

Through dinner he remained distantly affable and all the blessed little intimacies of long ago were like painful memories.

Sybil poured his coffee and when he had taken it from her fingers closed softly about his wrist. Then, swiftly, she sought her eyes and held them until she bent, confused, to finger her beads.

"Craig," she whispered softly. "Do you still want to marry me, Craig?"

He took her hands then, and held them with both of his.

"You know I do, dear," he said. "She was tempted then to tell him everything."

"Would you marry me," she asked, "if you knew I'd been a very bad girl?"

He smiled and inclined his head gravely, as one humoring a child.

"Yes'm," he told her seriously. "If you knew I'd been—oh, something dreadful—married, perhaps?"

Then he laughed, and musing his napkin mightily, threw it in a great heap on the center of the table.

"Come on," he invited heartily. "Let's dance! And lay off this marriage stuff, will you, Sybil? Pounding away on a sore spot's no good, you know."

"But I meant it!" she cried.

"Yes, you did!" he muttered. "You've got about as much intention of marrying me as I have about it. So let's stop talking about it. Do your theorizing with some other guy, because it doesn't get anywhere with me, Sib."

"Shall we dance?" she asked him stiffly.

He held her closely and looked grimly down on the little mauve hat that nestled on his shoulder. Her eyes, beneath its brim, were wet with tears. But of course he could not know that, nor guess when a big salty drop splashed on her violets. . . . And that was the end, for a while, of their romance.

Autumn followed on the heels of Indian summer; and November was cold and drear and gray. Dead leaves whirled in dusty spirals and a penetrating dampness made Sybil shiver as she set out one afternoon to call on Mabel at Wester House.

Jack was home again and Mabel had her ring now. Not the conventional engagement ring at all—but a delicate platinum circle, set with sapphires. With it she would wear her wedding ring, like a guard. And later Jack would give her a twin band, set with pearls. Sapphires—diamonds—pearls—it was the very latest idea. They were to be married in the spring.

Sybil was carrying a white tissue package, tied with satin ribbons. A nightgown of knife-pleated chiffon in palest flesh, with pink satin roses peeping through the sheerness of it. Her engagement gift to Mabel. And, primarily, her excuse for intruding on a busy Wednesday afternoon.

The telephone operator directed her to the third floor. Mabel was clinic director of a place called the G. Y. N. Sybil did not know what that meant, but apparently it was a clinic for women—the most depressing, distressful women.

They sat about on benches, their damp clothes odorously in the unpleasant warmth of the place. It was raining out, and slushy, and some of them had left rubbers on the register.

Now the rubbers smelled, and their cheap furs reeked with the loathsome smell of wet dyes. Children played about their knees, clinging to their skirts. They were unhappy, frightened looking children with running noses and ugly, misfit clothing.

Mabel looked up from the desk where she sat before a great card index. A woman who had been crying softly turned away, and Mabel wrote on a little card and inserted it in the index.

"Next Thursday then, Mrs. Brennan," she said. "And you mustn't be frightened."

Then she saw Sybil standing uncertainly in the doorway, her eyes shifting from one frowsy, wretched creature to another. In a second Mabel had crossed the room, her white clinic apron blowing out behind her like a starched sail. She threw her arms around Sybil and kissed her on the mouth.

"Sybil Thorne! I haven't seen you for ages. Only this morning I was saying to Aunt Emily, 'I simply must phone Sib—I don't know what she'll think of me.' My dear, I'm glad to see you. What an adorable jacquette. Sit down, honey. I've 40 people waiting to see me—but let 'em wait. What's the news, Sib?"

Sybil proffered her package. "I've been intending to get down with this for ages."

"Oh, my dear, it's lovely—perfectly exquisite!"

Mabel handled it rapturously. "I never saw anything so beautiful!"

"Well, that's not all that brought me down," admitted Sybil, and glanced apprehensively toward the X-ray room. "Can anyone hear us, Mab?"

"Not a soul, dear. What's on your mind?"

The night gown slipped from Mabel's fingers, and all the joy in her good plain face turned to misery.

"Are you sure?"

"I went to the doctor's yesterday. Next May, he says."

Sybil turned, suddenly faint, toward the window, and when Mabel had opened it, she leaned on the sill. Spasmodic dry chokings and horrible sounds came from her throat. She threw her arms over her face, to stifle the noise she made.

"It wouldn't be so bad—if—if—"

She could not say it. There were tears in Mabel's eyes, but Sybil's were hard and dry.

"Don't dear," she cried. "It will be all right."

Sybil shook her head. "It's—it's awful!" she gasped. "I hate him, Mabel—I hate him! His baby . . ."

She stood with her back to the window, and her head against the glass, moving it restlessly. Her eyes were wild and hunted.

DISTRUST SEEN IN FORTIFYING ALP FRONTIERS

Strained Relations Between Italy and France Sponsor Program.

By RALPH HEINZEN, United Press Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—The fortification building race that is going along on both sides of the lofty French-Italian frontier in the Alps testifies to the extent of the strained relations that have existed between Paris and Rome ever since Premier Mussolini came into power.

Fascist Italy holds France to blame for much of the lost Italian for much of the lost Italian influence and territorial concessions which Italian statesmen were obliged to make at the insistence of Clemenceau and later French statesmen in post-war peace conferences.

Fascist leaders also dislike France for having given dispiriting asylum to the hordes of Italian radicals, anarchists and other opponents of fascism who fled the country when it became apparent that fascism was in power to stay and meant to reverse.

France looks with distrust at Italy's colonial ambitions, her desire to figure largely in the Mediterranean basin and in her emigration policy as it affects Tunisia. The newspapers of the two countries have engaged in such biting and bitter malignancy that the wildest publications are shouting for war and holding threats.

Newspaper Protestants.

The French government recently made a protest against the activity of one of the Italian newspapers, the "Il Telegrafo Livornese" which is forbidden distribution in France. That paper loudly calls for the Italian annexation of Nice and the French department of the Maritime Alps, of the seizure of Tunisia and Corsica to provide outlets for surplus Italian population.

The Italian officials have proscribed the distribution in Italy of numerous French newspapers of strong anti-fascist tendencies. Less than half of the Paris newspapers are allowed to cross the border.

Italy started the border fortification race, building strongholds all along the border from the Mediterranean to Mt. Blanc, the highest peak in Europe where the limits of Italy, Switzerland and France come to a meeting point on the mountain's steep slope.

Now France is retaliating. Recently M. Painleve, French minister of war, told the United Press of the fortification plan which will include the bristling with cannon of all of the mountain passes to prevent the passing of any armies.

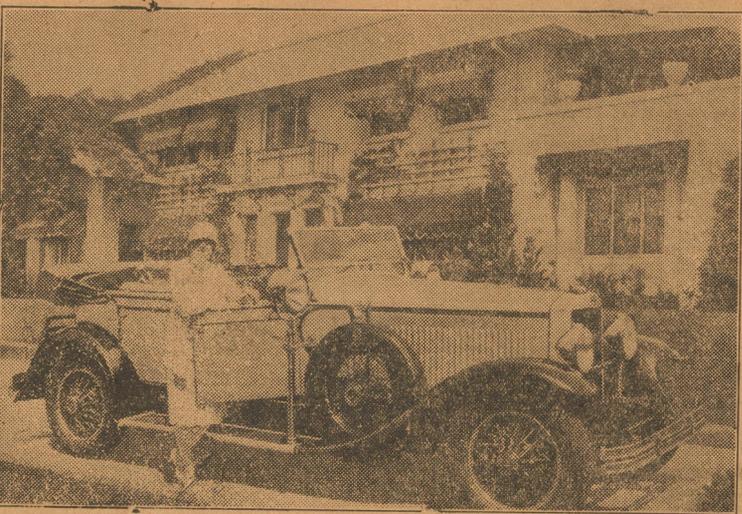

Gun for Gun.

M. Painleve declared that France will keep up with Italy and will match the Italian fortifications gun for gun. Thus the Alps race is on, at a cost of millions of dollars to the taxpayers of the two countries.

Her plan of border fortifications, which includes the building of a defense system from the channel to the Mediterranean, makes provisions for the protection of our Italian frontier," M. Painleve said.

"Our only ambition is to rest master of our Alpine valleys, for this frontier is far easier to defend than the eastern borders with Germany. Certain works have already been started to protect the region of Nice which is one of the

TWO BEAUTIES

PAULINE FREDERICK WILL TOUR THIS SEASON IN HER GRAHAM-PAIGE PHAETON
Pauline Frederick, who launched a new play, "The Scarlet Woman," in Detroit late in the spring, became extremely motor-wise during her ten weeks' run in the automobile capital. Before her departure for her home at Beverly Hills, California, she ordered this Graham-Paige eight-cylinder phaeton with special Le Baron body, finished in aluminum lacquer and black. Miss Frederick will drive her Graham-Paige back to Detroit this month for rehearsals of the "Scarlet Woman," which she will present in eastern cities this season. The actress plans to use her car exclusively in all her traveling. The photo shows the star and her car in front of her home. Rutherford Motor company of Ranger is the dealer in this territory for this beautiful car.

Don't Expect to Be Beaten

You will notice that both Bob Zupke, famous Illinois football coach, and Al Nowack, the Illinois captain this year, have broad smiles in this photograph. The smiles are caused, one assumes, from the fact that they don't expect to lose any football games this year. Nowack is at the left.

Proper Feeding of Cows Gets More Milk Fertilizers Increase Soil Production,

Six bales of cotton on five acres has been made by E. Whitmire of pounds of 9-6-3 fertilizer costing Madison county by the use of $500 $75.50. The six bales of cotton and two tons of cotton seed are worth $660, making a net profit above the cost of cultivation and fertilization of $542. At a field meeting on this plot arranged by the county agent and attended by 47 farmers, Mr. Whitmire pointed out that his success was due to deep breaking, proper cultivation and heavy fertilization. A five acre check plot, unfertilized, produced only 1-1-4 bales of cotton and 1-2 ton of cotton seed all of which was worth only $140.

Milk enough to pay for their own feed, food for a family of six and to pay the family gasoline clothing bill, is the achievement of 5 registered and 3 grade dairy cows on the farm of J. G. Sanderson in Cottle county, who told the county agent that with only a small cotton crop in view and a hospital bill to pay the cows are real lifesavers.

Cow testing associations for the purpose of weeding out boarder cows and increasing herd profits by the feeding of balanced rations, have been formed by county agents in the following counties: Wise, Bexar, Potter, Randall, Deaf Smith, Hale, Swisher and Hartley. Similar associations are contemplated or in process of formation in Denton, Tarrant and Galveston counties.

The net income from a Jim Wells county demonstration poultry flock of 190 birds has been increased $18 per month by culling and worm and insect pest control, according to County Agent L. A. Pierce.

Ground milo maize is worth considerably more than head maize for feeding pigs, so club boys of Mitchell county think after feeding both ways. The local record for the heaviest months pig has been broken four times this year by club pigs weighing 324, 310, 276 and 267 pounds each, the ration in each case consisting of ground milo maize, skimmed milk and commercial pig feed. The owners of these record breaking pigs are J. L. Galey, Vernie Prescott, Don Elasingame and William Griffith. The heaviest of four litter mates of young Elasingame's pig, fed 1 to 1-4 gallons of skimmed milk per day and head maize, weighed only 179 pounds. Most of the difference is attributed by the county agent to the use of head instead of ground maize.

To insure clean milk and cream in Hood county an organization for the testing of dairy cattle for tuberculosis has been formed by the county agent with owners signing up a total of 215 cows. Testing is to be done under the direction of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry.

By adding beets to the ration of dairy cows, O. B. McGuire of Tarrant county has increased the milk production of his herd 160 pounds daily.

Snake Story IS DIFFERENT

By United Press.

The Holy Snakes of Hulun Arshan predicted the Barga rebellion, according to lamas of the monastery at the Mongolian hot springs resort, who have reached Harbin.

Hulun Arshan is a famed hot springs resort in Mongolia and boasts a monastery of Monolian lamas who have charge of miraculous cures attributed to the Holy Snakes of the resort and its steaming mineral waters. This spring, the lamas report, the thousands of snakes which have inhabited the rocky walls of the baths suddenly disappeared.

One day the snakes, described as "very pretty and of a harmless variety" swam peacefully among the patients. But that night there was a rumor of rebellion against the Chinese authorities who have controlled the semi-independent Barga area for a decade, and the next day the snakes were gone.

When the rebellion finally is crushed, the lamas believe, the Holy Snakes will return and all will be well again in Hulun Arshan.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drugstore has the genuine, prescriptive product.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Okla.

That the holiday spirit is in the air these days, and it looks as if Christmas is going to be brighter and merrier than ever this year. Like the smallest village or town in the country, even those New York is a-flutter.

I strolled down Fifth Avenue the other day and was much impressed by the handsome displays of holiday cards arranged by several of America's leading jewelry stores. The book and stationery marts, the many quaint little card shops, and the greeting card departments of the mammoth stores in the shopping section, are all displaying new designs and people are making their selections early in order to get just what they want and have their names put on in plenty of time to avoid the holiday rush. More so than with most things, I understand you have to choose Christmas cards early to get the best selections.

The 1928 cards seem bigger and brighter than in the past, and there are more of them. Many of them reveal the modern art influence which has struck furniture and jewelry, and has turned kitchens and bathrooms into riots of color.

On the greeting cards it has not gone so far as to represent Christmas by two green triangles and three red circles, leaving the rest to the imagination. It appears, rather, in brighter colorings and bolder lines on the favorite old designs. The stage coaches dash more vigorously down snowy streets; the skies are black and have red sunsets to contrast the country scenes; purple ships boom over green oceans; Christmas trees blaze with big gold candles. They are all so cheerful and modern and full of American vigor.

The popularity of greeting cards, not only for Christmas, New Year and other holidays, as well as birthday and graduation day remembrance, is constantly increasing. I learned in New York from

R. W. Hicks, the genial secretary of the Greeting Card association. There are several explanations, Mr. Hicks said. Greeting cards are more desirable in themselves than ever before, as the foremost artists and writers of the day are at work on them through the year. And the habit of sending cards has grown automatically, helped materially by advertising.

The slogan, "scatter sunshine with greeting cards," which is seen so frequently in the newspapers, magazines and shop windows, is a constant suggestion to people to remember their friends. More people seem to be doing it more often.

BOY SCOUTS' MAINTENANCE NOW SOUGHT

Throughout Eastland County Drive Being Made This Week In Support of Better Boys.

EASTLAND, Oct. 22.—Plans for the Boy Scout drive to be held in Eastland this week were discussed by the Boy Scouts membership campaign committee meeting Monday morning at breakfast in the Comellee Hotel. There were present: Grady Pipkin, chairman; Scott W. Key, Dr. J. H. Caton, G. C. Kimbrell, Walter Hart, Gilbert W. Reineman, Alex Clark, president of the Oil Belt Boy Scout Council; Horace M. Condeley, John Mouser, Bobby Bates and Scout Executive G. N. Quill.

It was decided that $1500 be set as the goal, this being the amount fixed for the drives to be held this week also in Cisco and Ranger. A get-together meeting will be held later in the week to check up with the teams.

The Boy Scout membership committees has been organized to perpetuate the splendid service being rendered boys by volunteers who are being trained to promote the scouting program in the Oil Belt Council. It intends to extend the benefits of Scouting to other boys who are not now Scouts because of lack of finances to reach them.

"Remember when you were a boy." These boys travel in gangs, just like you did. They play very much as you did. Give the boys a better chance than we had when we were boys.

Help make the Oil Belt Council the biggest piece of scouting in the United States.

The cost of a boy gone wrong: Spends two-year term at reform school $750 (some repeat); spends five year term in penitentiary, $500; total, $1250.

377 boys per county were committed to the reform school during 1926.

High-powered automobiles and good roads have eliminated the idea that the boy problem is confined to a town's limits.

rafting on the Mississippi." (Century).

The story of the logging and rafting industry of the river's basin never, to our knowledge, has been put between covers before. It is an account well worth reading. Russell succeeds in bringing back the vigor of those rugged days on the river when men were men and were not the least bit ashamed of it.

A Prize Import! "Stone Desert," which won the $30,000 Argentine National Prize for Literature, has been published in this country by Longmans, Green & Co., and probably will be the introduction of most North Americans to Hugo Wast, who displays a remarkable ability to describe the out-of-doors.

The action of "Stone Desert" is laid in the heights on the western side of the Andes, where the herdsmen drive their cattle. The story concerns Roque Carpio, a freed prisoner who, once a landowner, is now a social outcast. His effort to win beautiful Marcela Ontiveros forms the basis of a lively plot.

To this reader, Wast's characters were not as convincing as his country. Never was the land of the bauchos made more livid.

Three New Volumes Of Unusual Type, Varied Themes, Good

By PAUL W. WHITE (United Press Feature Editor) Socrates to Scopes.

The censors may close theatrical performances but they can not close the courts and who is there to say that the richest of the world's drama does not take place before the bar?

Edward Hale Bierstadt, in his "Curious Trials and Criminal Cases" (Coward McCann) has selected 14 trials for quick but satisfactory dissection. They range in date from that of Socrates to the Scopes "Monkey case" in Dayton, Tenn. Choice of subject matter follows no particular order. Bierstadt merely selected the interesting.

As might be expected several have to do with the crime of murder. This is a highly enjoyable book and one that recommends itself for rereading.

The Father of Waters. The great river that all but splits this nation in half as it flows unceasingly and more than a bit muddily to the gulf is always a temptation to the ambitious author and particularly to one who has spent his youth on some portion of that restless stream.

Charles Edward Russell is particularly adapted to the task of translating the Mississippi and its men. He spent his boyhood in Davenport, Ia., at the foot of the Le Claire Rapids and from memoirs and diary now gives us "A-
