Will Resume Practice Of Law In Amarillo He Announces

SLAYER OF YOUNG SON-IN-LAW FREED QUICKLY BY JURY AFTER LENGTHY WEATHERFORD TRIAL

R. H. HAMILTON

The noted attorney and former jurist, who was acquitted of a murder charge growing out of the slaying of his 21-year-old son-in-law, Tom Walton, Jr., was a free man today following a quick verdict by a Weatherford jury.

Embraces Father

He dressed quickly, however, when his son and brother rushed to the hotel and came to the lobby to meet his friends. Theresa, his 18-year-old daughter, whose secret marriage to Walton while the two attended the University of Texas was indirectly responsible for the shooting, threw her arms around his neck.

States Contentions

The state in the trial sought to show that Hamilton, knowing or suspecting his daughter had married Walton, whose home was in Amarillo, deliberately shot the young man when Walton came to his office to make a clean breast of the affair.

Defenses Pictured Hamilton As A Kindly Father, Aware Of Walton's Intentions

The defense pictured Hamilton as a kindly father, aware of Walton's intentions toward his daughter and willing to bless the couple, since he was satisfied of Walton's desirability as a husband. Defense testimony painted the young man in a sinister light, however, a number of witnesses testifying Walton had uttered dark threats against Hamilton, who, he felt, disapproved of him and hindered him in his efforts to see Theresa. One witness testified Walton had boasted a past as a Capone gangster and said he was more deadly than a rattlesnake. Several witnesses testified they had heard Walton threaten to kill Hamilton.

Tom Walton, Jr.

Weatherford, which for the past 10 days had been crowded with witnesses and attorneys connected with the trial, took on a normal appearance once again, the courthouse being nearly vacated. A case scheduled for today was postponed yesterday when it looked as if the Hamilton case would not be completed until this morning.

FARMERS TO STANDARDIZE SEED

Farmers' Committee Selects Variety Of Cotton Seed

ATTEND CONFERENCE TUESDAY

More than 100 farmers from 25 counties are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Seed Standardization Committee at Big Spring, Tuesday afternoon.

The committee will review the progress of the standardization program during the past season. It is expected that the committee will select a variety of cotton seed to be grown in the entire region and to be distributed to the farmers to be grown in a standardized manner.

Mr. Reagan introduced his friend, Mr. Stufflebin, formerly of San Marcos, who he was associated with Ed. Kasch, noted seed breeder, and now of Ennis, where, with another specialist, he is engaged in improving production through standardization and development of seed strain, for a 5,000-acre cotton farm.

Ennis Man

"The man with whom I am working, two of them, were faced not only with heavy land taxes, but with a $2.35 per acre levee tax and they either had to make more money or get out of the cotton farming business," said the speaker. "They toured large plantations of other southern states and found that those which retained their own seed breeders were the ones that were making money. They returned and retained myself and another man."

"We combined the entire farm of 5,000 acres, pulling up stalks that were off type and burning them. In four years of selection and breeding, starting with the seed on the farm and 3,500 bushels of pure seed which we bought, the farm has developed a uniform product. This year 2,700 bales have been picked and not one has sold for less than 19 cents. We have increased the staple premium 50 per cent."

In Liverpool

"Our cotton now is a recognized type on the Liverpool market, known as 'Texas special.' They buy it at a premium without sampling. A Dallas cotton firm has a standing bid for our product at 109 points on the basis price, sometimes 125 points. Our first year with this farm the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association bought our entire seed crop, which produced enough money to pay the breeder. Since then sale of seed has more than paid the breeders' salaries. We own our own gin. The staple of our cotton averages an inch to 1 1/8 inch."

"If you will go ahead with a one-variety plan, adopt a particular kind of seed and stick to it you can establish Big Spring on the Dallas market as a distinct type."

"If you standardize, be sure to use a state certified seed. Then, when you have developed your own type, the state can come in and certify it. Don't go into specialties. You can't raise 1 1/8 inch staple and, if you could, it would not pay. An exhaustive survey recently made for the state association of seed breeders shows that for staple of 15-16 to 1 1/8 inch the demand is 25 per cent greater than the supply. This is not so in the cases of longer and shorter staples."

Mr. Robinson told the gathering of the cooperative gin will be doubled in capacity for another season, so that cotton grown from standard seed may be ginned on one side and the other cotton from the other side, so that it cannot be mixed."

White your State seed analyst or Department of Agriculture for a copy of the seed laws and the regulations of the department concerning the enforcement of those laws. In general terms the five States named have similar laws, but there are some differences which will be noted in another article.

All of them require that seed offered on the general market shall be properly labeled, and it shall be well for those who have seed to sell to learn just what the State law requires. Seed laws were passed for the protection and benefit of farmers, but also for the protection of the honest seed grower or seed dealer who wants to sell his goods for what they are—not what he thinks they are, or what they look like.

Remember that the life and productive character of the seed are wrapped up inside its coat, and nothing but a germination test will tell whether it is dead, weak or strongly value.

Your oven can bake small popovers much better than Great big ONES

It's the same in roasting coffee. That's why Hills Bros roast only a few pounds at a time by their patented continuous process—Controlled Roasting. The small popovers turn out better because the oven heat bakes the small quantity of batter much more evenly than it could a large amount. And there is no other way to roast coffee as evenly as that originated and patented by Hills Bros. By a continuous process that controls the flavor, only a few pounds at a time pass through the roasters. No bulk-roasting method can produce such matchless uniform flavor as this process—Controlled Roasting. You get every bit of the aroma, flavor and strength developed by Controlled Roasting, because Hills Bros. pack their coffee in vacuum tins. Hills Bros. Coffee is sold everywhere. Ask for it by name. And to be certain that you get the genuine, look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.
