

Roasting Ears In October Is New Thing In Ranger

At least one family in Ranger today won't count its calories, for Chas. Moore, wife and mother-in-law, of 436 Pine street are going to eat roasting ears, well buttered, grown in their own back yard garden.

Now these butter consuming roasting ears, disprove all theories of old timers that corn planted in late summer won't produce roasting ears.

Mrs. K. Hall, Mrs. Moore's mother, planted corn in July 20, remembering way back yonder when her father who had just came to Texas, did the same thing and raised a big crop of fall corn, and the fruit of the late planting will today grace the Moores' table.

Mrs. Hall, incidentally, has been gardening round quite a bit since she came to Ranger and intends to make an investment here, saying she thinks Ranger real estate the best investment she can make.

Ranger Man Urges Annual Flower Show at Ranger

Happy Heath, who lives at the Tee Pee Bobo Camp, north of Ranger, has some asters and dahlias that he is very proud of on account of their color and size.

A hardy blue aster plant is three feet tall and is a mass of blossoms and a number of fine dahlias, some with yellow centers and pink and white in color, are also very fine specimens of that hardy plant.

Mr. Heath really specializes in peonies and wishes that every flower grower in Ranger would stock beds with these beautiful flowers, which grow more valuable each year.

When seen Saturday Mr. Heath was bewailing the fact that Ranger had not had a flower show this year and thought that it ought to be an annual event so as to stimulate the raising of fine plants.

Eastland County Soaked by Heavy Rains Saturday

Eastland county was soaked Saturday. A rain estimated to be at least two inches fell during the day and put all streams and gutters on the rampage.

The hardest part of the rain fell Saturday morning, paralyzing business for the greater part of the day. Rain coats and rubbers were the most salable things on the market. Yellow slickers were in evidence everywhere and were favored by men and women, boys and girls.

In Ranger the prospects of sitting in the rain to see the game between the Mountaineers and the Bulldogs, caused men to rush down and buy a slicker so as to be ready for a ducking if a downpour happened.

Canal street, as usual did its duty as a depository for the storm waters of Ranger, and held up traffic at the dip on its southern extremity, proving a mecca for sight seers who never tire seeing the flooded street, rain after rain.

High School And College Pupils Put on Schedule

A camel going through the eye of a needle is an easy matter compared to the possibility of Ranger high school or junior college pupils to chuck classes or continue to be tardy.

Here is the law and the gospel that these students will have to meet during the coming session of school, and while they are drastic it is imperative that all pupils should be present and on time at each recitation.

If a pupil has two tardies or one class cut charged against him during a single month the parents will be notified, and no pupil will be admitted to classes on being tardy the third time or cutting class, study hall or advisory the second time during the month until the parents make a visit in person to the principal and give satisfactory explanation showing that such tardiness or absence from classes was unavoidable. If a pupil is absent from more than two classes on a single day he will not be admitted to class without a written excuse from parents. These rules apply to all cases not excused by the attendance officer, Mrs. Mae Healer, assistant principal and only absolute unavoidable cases will be excused.

Only morning and noon tardies are included in this regulation; other tardies in class attendance will be disposed of by the respective teachers.

High school pupils are requested not to come before eight o'clock and not to enter the building before 8:25 in good weather. If they come in before this time, they must go to their respective study halls and maintain quiet. Similarly, at noon no one is permitted to remain in the building during good weather between 12:15 and 12:55 except for purposes of study.

The high school periods are forty-five minutes in length, and the college has four periods. The ten minute advisory period is for the purpose of checking up on attendance and conduct on the part of pupils during the day. In case of delinquency, any pupil may be kept in after the advisory period or assessed any other penalties at this time, according to the discretion of the teacher bringing the charge against him.

The program outlined below will prevail during the school sessions:

Opening of building—7:45 a. m.

Opening of junior college schedule—8 a. m.

Opening of high school schedule—8:30 a. m.

Chapel exercises (Tuesday and Thursday)—10-10:45 a. m.

Advisory period (high school)—3:15-3:25 p. m.

To keep mud from soiling the backs of women's shoes, a French shoemaker has introduced a guard that is quickly attached to the rear of the heel and may be removed before entering the house. It is made of transparent material so that it is hardly noticeable, and is shaped to keep the mud down off the shoe even if the heel sinks in. The guard is also adaptable to men's shoes and helps keep the trouser bottoms from becoming soiled and, consequently, worn out quickly.

Work that ordinarily requires several men in quickly and efficiently done with a pavement-finishing outfit, recently introduced. It is pulled along on rails, tamping the layer of concrete below with electric-driven pounders and smoothing off the finer mixture that rises to the top.

Soot and rubbish accumulating in the stovepipe elbow are usually removed only with considerable trouble and constitute a fire hazard but can now be quickly taken out through a safety flue, an opening in front of the elbow. It eliminates the necessity of lifting the pipe out and also serves as a check damper for use in case the pipe becomes too hot. In addition, by insuring a constantly clean opening, it saves fuel.

Water Supply In Ranger Shows Up Good Under Test

Dr. J. B. Stackable, Ranger city health officer, on his own initiative sent a sample of the city water taken from the faucet in his office to the board of health at Austin and asked for a report on it. The report has been received and reads: "This water shows no contamination."

Dr. Stackable sent the sample to Austin without knowledge of the water department, wishing to see how water that was delivered from the water system to the city consumers tested out.

Within the next few days samples of water will be obtained from all the water carriers in the city. These samples will not be taken directly from the wells or springs which supply the water wagons but from the wagons and if any contamination is shown the source will be traced.

U-BOAT HAD ITS FIRST BIG TRIUMPH 13 YEARS AGO

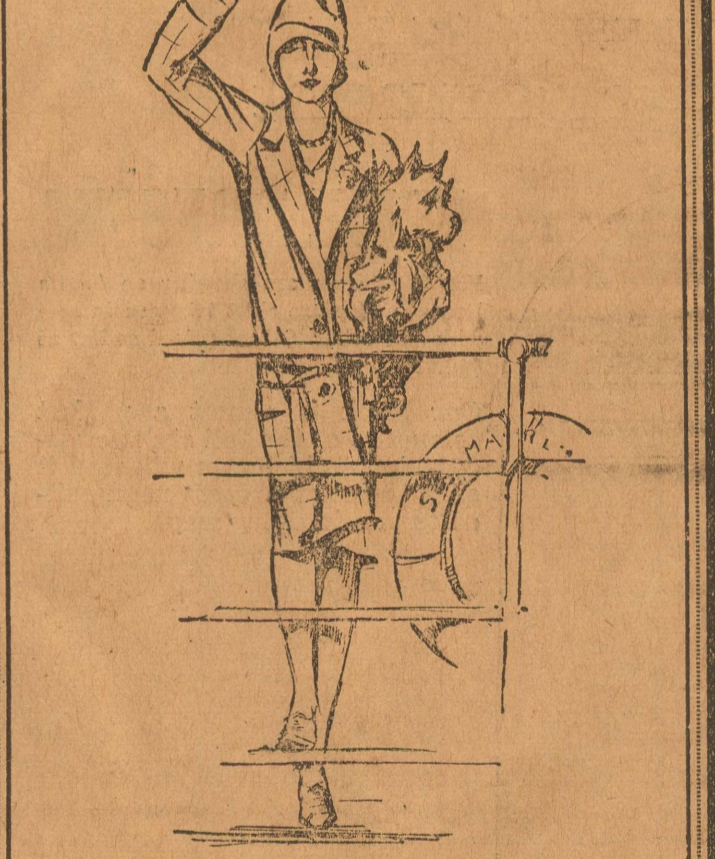

By United Press.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Thirteen years ago the British navy sustained its first serious loss through German submarine warfare.

Early on the morning of Sept. 22, 1914, the three British armored cruisers, Cressy, Hogue and Aboukir were on patrol off the Dutch coast, when they were attacked by a single German submarine. Within an hour the submarine, the W 9, had sunk the three ships with a loss of 60 officers and 1,400 men.

Although several days before the obsolete patrol leader Pathfinder had been sunk off St. Abbs Head when torpedoed by the submarine U 21 the British admiralty did not consider the loss of the Pathfinder more than a single off-chance happening. The loss of the Cressy, Hogue and Aboukir, on the other hand, was regarded differently, for where the submarine previously had been reckoned a means of coastal defense, it had now to be regarded as a serious factor in offensive work on the high seas.

Eastland Boy Is Cut With Knife, Father Charged

Charges of aggravated assault and drunkenness were filed in Justice of the Peace Jim Steele's court in Eastland Saturday against Bill Robinson of Eastland following a difficulty between Robinson and his son, Truman, Saturday night in which the latter received a knife wound 14 inches long in the back. Charges of drunkenness and fighting were filed against Truman Robinson in Justice Steele's court also.

The trouble between the elder Robinson and Truman, officers stated, arose at the Tindall horse barn in the northwestern part of the city. Truman Robinson is said to have not been seriously injured although the wound was an ugly one.

Ordinary canoes can be quickly transformed into "unsinkable" boats by attaching inflated rubber supports to the sides. The bags are of cloth and rubber, about four feet long and six inches wide and can easily be blown up with the breath. When deflated, they fit the pocket.

RANGER PLANS AUDITORIUM TO COST $40,000

Incomplete Plans Call For Building on Main Street to Seat 1,800 People.

Tentative plans have been drawn up for the erection of a Ranger auditorium which will cost around $40,000. The plan is backed by several prominent Ranger business men but no definite action will be taken on the matter until after the Jubilee as everything in Ranger that can be deferred until after that event, is being deferred.

The auditorium which will seat 1,800 people will be of fire proof construction. It will have a large auditorium, with a stage large enough to accommodate big New York shows, which can then be brought here and shown at normal prices.

It will be available to the Little Theatre, conventions, civic clubs, style shows, indoor circuses, concerts, automobile shows and in every way fill all the needs of the community in the way of an auditorium.

A large lobby, will be flanked on one side by a confectionery, and on the other by a club room, which can be used by civic clubs and by the women's clubs of Ranger. A kitchen and dining room and janitor service, would make this quite adaptable to needs of that kind.

The auditorium will have hardwood floors, so that it can be used as a ball room and will be so arranged that the entire auditorium can be used for a large play or half of it for a small play or tabloid shows.

It will be so constructed as to be an all year round auditorium, as plenty of windows will furnish light in the winter and air in the summer.

If the plans are carried out it will be built on Main street.

Rain Fills Lake Eastland, Leon River Bank Full

One of the biggest rains that has fallen in this section for some time was indicated by reports from over the county early Saturday afternoon.

The fall at Eastland was much heavier than for several months. Lake Eastland was filled and just ready to run over the spillway. Both the north and south Leon rivers were bank full.

Reports from Cisco and other sections of the county were that the fall was equally as heavy there as at Eastland.

HUSBANDS DEMAND VERY LITTLE AND ARE EASILY PLEASED

Husbands Lap Up Attention Which Costs So Little

By RENA B. CAMPBELL

Are husbands neglected? Yes, often. Women don't mean to neglect their husbands and husbands are too proud to remind them that they are neglecting them, but it is often the beginning of a rift in the life of marital happiness.

Some women cease to look after the comfort of their husbands after children come into the home. They feel that they have their hands and heart full and it is not long before husbands begin to take notice that his bath water is not drawn, his clothing folded and put away as it used to be, or the things that he loved most to eat no longer feature the meals.

Everything centers around the baby. He loves the baby and would not want it neglected, but he is just a big boy grown up and he wants some of the maternal attentions his child is now getting. A woman should never forget the little things that her husband loves for her to do and feels that only she can do, for even though she is tired, those little things bring a reward later in life that is worth the effort.

A man who has lots of attention at home is apt to stay more or less tied to his wife's apron strings. The wife that reminds a man of his mother and follows in the footsteps of that mother in coddling that mother's son, is never apt to face a divorce court.

A woman should look after her husband's wardrobe, if he has been accustomed to it and see that he keeps fit in every way. If she neglects his interests and forges ahead in her own, after a while he arouses to the fact he is neglected at home and wanders away there from.

A woman should not neglect her husband by neglecting her own appearance. She is his property. He is proud of her looks, just as he is his home, or his car or his horses. He keeps those things up-to date and smart and he expects his wife to keep herself so that no matter if they stand before crowned heads, he need not be ashamed of her.

Many wives feel that they are neglected and perhaps they are, but at the root of the thing, as a rule, the woman lost interest, forgot the little things that her man loved, and started rolling the sequence which she has no power to control.

A pleasing breakfast was served late Saturday morning to the members of the party who were: Elizabeth Davernor, Alysne Stroud, Kenneth Weir, Marguerite Adanson and Mary Ruth McDonald.

DELPHIAN CLUB WILL MEET ON WEDNESDAY.
 The Delphian club will hold its second meeting of the year on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 at the Gholsen Hotel. Mrs. W. W. Housewright will be the leader and the program will be on the subject of "The Early History of Music."
 Early church music, Mrs. Leta Cox; Origin of the Liturgy, Mrs. J. A. Pitcock; Plain Song, Mrs. Ralph Keeran; Musical Notation, Mrs. J. H. Turner; Counterpoint, Mrs. Andy Anderson; Medieval music, Mrs. J. B. Stackable; Early Protestant music, Mrs. B. E. Rigby.
 Some of the salient points of the program that will be discussed are: what musical instruments were known to the ancients; show the relation of Christian music to that used in heathen temples; why is Latin the accepted language of the Catholic ritual; outline the high mass and tell when it was completed; how did chivalry foster music and so forth.

CALLING MEETING H. O. P. F. T. A. QUITE INTERESTING.
 A called meeting of the Hodges Oak Park Parent-Teachers association on Friday afternoon resulted in a most interesting meeting. A membership contest was launched among the different grades of the school and promises to be quite peppy.
 Discussion of plans for beautifying the school grounds were made.

Arthur Clifford Wadley, Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Wadley of Ranger, was only five months old when this picture was taken. He is now quite a little man of seven months and can stand up by a chair.
 He weighs eighteen and one-half pounds and is the only baby in the Wadley family. His expression in this picture denotes that he'll be a good listener when he grows up to be a real beaux. His father is manager of the Marion Supply company here.

and committees were appointed to carry out these plans. A discussion led by Prof. Holloway on ways to improve at least one street leading to the school was participated in by all present.
 The members accepted with regret the resignation of Mrs. G. D. Cheslain as treasurer and Mrs. Eric was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy. There were 37 present at this meeting.

EASTLAND COUNTY FEDERATION EXECUTIVES HAVE MEETING.
 The meeting of the Eastland county federation executive board, held at the community club house Thursday afternoon, was well attended and much business was brought before the board and passed. Mrs. W. W. Housewright, Ranger, presided over the meeting.
 Mrs. William Langford, field representative of the Texas Public Health association, spoke to the meeting in regard to selling Christmas seals for relief of tubercular patients. She asked the board to assist her in placing the campaign in this county.

It was decided to select the First National bank of Cisco as the official bank for the board's funds. Mrs. G. B. Kelly of Cisco, treasurer of the federation requested that this be done.
 A committee consisting of Mrs. J. M. White, Mrs. Tipton and Mrs. G. B. McClelland, all of Ranger, was appointed to decide upon what aid would be given the county hospital at Ranger.

Those present were: Mmes. G. B. Kelly, A. J. Olson, P. Pettitt, Sherman Roberts of Cisco; W. W. Housewright, J. M. White, Tipton; G. B. McClelland, of Ranger; W. S. Carter, Tyler, D. Breeding of Rising Star, C. U. Connelley, Earle Johnson and Joseph M. Perkins of Eastland.

JIMMIE NORTH AND MISS MILDRED BRYANT MARRIED SATURDAY

The rain did not interfere with the plans of J. R. North and Miss Mildred Bryant yesterday, as to their wedding, for Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the apartment of Rev. H. B. Johnson, they were united in marriage.
 Witnessing the simple ceremony that made this young couple one, were the brides mother, Mrs. R. J. Taylor, Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Johnson and Mrs. Lois Johnson, a chum and school mate of Mrs. North's.
 After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. North left for points unknown for a short honeymoon trip, leaving their destination strictly to themselves.
 Mrs. North, who has resided in Ranger for the past eight years, is a beautiful young woman and looked very lovely yesterday as she stood with her dark clothed young sweetheart and took the solemn vows of matrimony. She wore a navy blue Elizabeth crepe frock, a gold lace hat, and dark slippers and hose.
 Only this spring Mrs. North graduated from the Ranger high school, where she was very popular and has always been considered one of Ranger's most attractive girls.
 Mr. North came to this county about two years ago and has been connected with Chestnut-Smith company with his headquarters at Carbon where they will make their home.

MRS. FRANK BRAHANEY HOSTESS TO BRIDGE CLUB
 Mrs. Frank Brahaney, entertained the Thursday Bridge Club and a few other guests substituting for absent

Of Interest To Motorists

What's Happening in motordom

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Turner are expected to return to Ranger the first of the week after their honeymoon trip. "Red" Turner is a salesman for the Oibelt Motor company and was married recently to Miss Mildred Clark of Waco. They will be at home at the Murray apartments on East Main street, Ranger.

Rutherford Motor company finds itself in the unusual predicament of being absolutely out of used cars. The last one was sold to a Fort Worth man Friday.

Clarence Love of the Love Motor company, says that the storage and washing business in his new storage garage is far exceeding his first expectations. The place is full of cars every night and the colored laundryman is kept busy with the washing machinery practically all the time.

H. T. Graham of Dallas representing the General Tire and Rubber was in Ranger Friday conferring with C. P. Simmons, local dealer. Mr. Graham has just returned from a big sales convention held in Akron and is very enthusiastic over prospects for a big fall business.

Hodges Motor company received a carload of new Chrysler Friday, consisting of two "72" coupes and one "72" royal sedan. While Mr. Hodges would not positively commit himself it was plainly evident that they will be delivered to their new owners without even being put on display.

If you want a quick drink of water you might drop into Simmons Service Station and get your glass filled quickly with the trick faucet. Mr. Simmons says that he has to have a fast running stream so as to keep his driveway from becoming blocked.

According to the Automobile News a daily published in New York, it has been announced by Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company that there will soon go into effect a 27 percent reduction in the prices of automobile lamp globes. This will mean a drop of about ten cents on headlight globes and five cents on side, rear and instrument board lamps. It may be a few weeks going into effect locally on account of stocks already on hand having been bought at the higher prices.

G. E. "Bob" Robinson has now settled down in his new location and reports that he is doing a big business.

ness. Bob is always up to the minute on everything, including the latest stories and if you are in a hurry you better tell him so when you go into his place for he does like to be friendly and talk to his visitors.

Billie Wallace of the Sivalis Motor company has been in Amarillo on business the greater part of the week.

Jimmie Gibbs of Gibbs Battery station and Shorty Houghton returned the first of the week from Chicago where they attended the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

S. A. Green, formerly mechanic with the Boyd Motor company is now with Sivalis Motor company in a like capacity.

Miss Velma Marshall who was temporarily employed in the office at Boyd Motor company has returned to her home in McKinney.

Charles Moore of the Oibelt Motor company, in addition to being a salesman of rare qualities is a musician of rare accomplishments. He plays the harmonica in a most doleful manner and has lost quite a little sleep the last week figuring out a program to broadcast over WBP in the interest of Ranger's Home Coming Oil Jubilee.

Ed Maher of Leville Maher Motor company is putting most of his time to the furtherance of plans for the Jubilee while waiting for the new Ford. Morris Leville is a regular daily visitor at Lillard field to watch the Bulldogs work out and furnish matches for the railbirds.

J. L. Chance of the Ranger aBtery and Tire company says no news ever happens around his place. He is one of the best collectors in the world as anybody that will admit owning him will tell you. He is also a firm believer in Goodyear products and sells his pro rata share of them in his territory.

As told to Gordon Hines

ALL RIGHTS RESERVED - IMPERIAL PRESS - SUGAR LAND, TEXAS

Raises More Money.
On the 20th of November, I again started for home to raise $25,000, which was to be my part of the $80,000. Spencer was to go to his home in Salina, Kansas, and mortgage a farm there for $30,000. Stetson said he would raise the balance.

On my arrival at home, I explained to my wife the position in which I was placed and told her that it would be necessary for me to get $25,000 to prevent the loss of the $20,000 I had already borrowed. After some difficulty I managed to borrow the money from my brother-in-law.

Then I returned to Fort Worth and registered in at the Westbrook Hotel, with Spencer, who had already returned with his money. Stetson was still at the Terminal Hotel, and when we got together, we found that we had $70,000. Spencer said he could get the balance by running down to Austin and selling some Liberty bonds which his aunt had deposited there for him.

Stetson had received word to transfer his operations back to the Dallas Exchange and it was agreed that Spencer was to wire the $10,000 to me in care of the Cadillac Hotel in Dallas. Stetson said he succeeded in getting all of our business transferred to Dallas and that we could collect our winnings over there. He said that he must leave at once and suggested that he take the money which we had raised and have it credited on the $30,000, taking a receipt for the amount. Then, he said, we would have only to take Spencer's $10,000 when it arrived from Austin and make our final settlement with the exchange.

This plan did not meet with my approval. I wanted to hang onto my money until the full amount was raised, when we would go to the exchange and effect a full settlement.

Early that morning I had missed my overcoat from the room. A 32-caliber automatic was in the pocket and both were gone. I did not mention the loss, but, because I was accustomed to always having a gun with me, I had gone to a friend in the F. & M. Bank and borrowed one.

Stetson took the money and rolled it up in a newspaper. Putting it under his arm, he started from the room saying that he must. Returning to catch the interurban for Dallas, as he must attend to urgent business for his company. He would take the money to the Dallas Exchange and deposit it for credit on the $80,000.

I made it plain that I did not approve of the plan and that when we arrive at a more satisfactory understanding. Upon his refusal to change his intention, he started down the hall and I followed him to the elevator. I tried to reason with him and as he punched the bell for the car, I stuck my gun in his hand.

"You are going back to the room and settle this matter, or I'll settle it right here and now!" I threatened.

He was aghast. "Don't do anything rash! Don't for God's sake! I'll go back to the room!" We walked together back down the hall to his room.

As we re-entered the room, he threw the money on the bed, exclaiming "Take the money and go to hell with it, if you can't stand by the agreement we made."

He flung himself across the bed. Spencer was badly excited when he saw the gun. Surprised, also, I imagine, for I suspect he thought he had disarmed me when my coat was taken. It did not occur to me at that time that he might have taken it. He stepped behind a chair and took hold of it with both hands. I thought he intended to strike me. I aimed the gun at him and he dropped to his knees, grabbing a Gideon Bible from the table and placing it over his heart. I mentioned that I thought they had schemed to double-cross me, that they were partners and a pair of crooks.

Spencer began to wail and, still on his knees, raised the Bible high in his right hand and cried out, "Before my angel mother, on my benedicted knees, with this Bible uplifted to my God in Heaven, swear to you that I have not the least idea of deceiving you and that I never saw this man before I met you."

I glanced at Stetson, the perspiration was pouring down his cheeks, and his movements were very nervous. He suddenly rolled across the bed and got his feet on the other side, turning toward me. He then gave me the distress sign of a master Mason. His hands were trembling and his face twitched.

I calmed, thinking I might have misjudged the man, and placed my gun back in my pocket. Stetson smiled and walked over to me.

Norfleet's Brain Storm.
"You came very near having a brainstorm, didn't you, Brother? Don't that satisfy you? You know I have trusted you with sixty and seventy thousand dollars at a time in your room overnight and never once did I question your honesty. When I started away with this money, I thought I was only doing what we had agreed upon."

We all sat down and talked the matter over. It was agreed that Spencer should leave for Austin to raise the $10,000 and wire the amount to me at Dallas. Upon its receipt, Stetson and I were to confirm our bids and collect the $80,000 on the Exchange the next day.

Spencer instructed Stetson to pay his part of the money to me in view of the fact that he had just received a wire from his office advising him to close the deal with me on my ranch. He said this could apply on the purchase price and the balance of the deal. He also said his company was expressing $30,000 more to be paid to me, pending full settlement, which would be made soon.

I went to the express office with Spencer, where he received the money. He came out of the office carrying a small suit case. When we returned to the hotel, he counted out $30,000 in currency, which he replaced in the suit case, together with a sale contract we executed. He was to take it all to the bank and place it in a safety deposit box, pending the examination of the abstract of title to the land.

Spencer left for Austin that afternoon to dispose of the Liberty bonds. Stetson took the $70,000 and left for Dallas asking me to be sure to meet him at the Cadillac Hotel, in Dallas at ten o'clock the following morning. This would give him ample time to attend to his company's business and to confirm our bids at the Exchange.

I went to Dallas that same day and passed the time attending to business of my own and visiting friends.

Next morning, I went to the Cadillac Hotel at nine-thirty, preferring to be early in order that I might not miss Stetson if he came before the appointed hour. I inquired of the clerk if Stetson was registered and my heart turned a flop-flop when he said that he had no one by that name.

I waited. Ten o'clock. No Stetson. Ten-thirty—ten forty-five—eleven o'clock. No Stetson.

I was alarmed. I left the hotel, telling the clerk I would return shortly and asking him to tell Stetson to wait for me if he came in.

I went hurriedly from one hotel to another, endeavoring to locate him. I failed. Returning to the Cadillac, I was advised that Stetson had not been there.

Then I was convinced that I had been swindled out of a lifetime's savings. I was bewildered and befuddled. Hardly knowing why, I boarded an interurban car for Fort Worth. I was entirely flabbergasted. I wanted to think and couldn't. I moved vaguely, hardly knowing where I was or what I was doing. Figures brushed dimly past me. I was of another world and not content with them. I heavily remember the conductor of the interurban car shaking me and leading me to the door of the car. I must have been put off near the Westbrook Hotel in Fort Worth, for I got there somehow.

Forty-five thousand dollars gone! Ninety thousand dollars in debt! Fifty-four years old!

These three facts crashed on my brain. I could not speak. I couldn't think. These piercing realities drummed away, over and over, in a deathless monotone, blasting my senses.

Forty-five thousand dollars gone! Ninety thousand dollars in debt! Fifty-four years old!

That poignant, drumming, re-echoing overtone paralyzed my mind, shook me like an earthquake, crumbling my castles into dust at my feet. The dust of fallen castles—it stifled me—choked me—I could taste its dusty nothingness and my tongue rolled feverishly.

I staggered through the lobby. A surging mass of humanity swept back and forth. They were not people to me—just—chaos—masses of chaotic bewilderment.

It sickened me. I felt like the pivot of a huge merry-go-round. The orchestra on the mezzanine blared a jazzy tune. People rushed to and fro, jostling me against others and I was too dazedly indifferent to care.

I gazed dully into passing faces. Trying to collect my thoughts, I was conscious of looking for Stetson, Spencer, Hamlin, Ward and Gerber. When I tried to recall what they looked like, I could not summon recognizable likenesses to my mind. Some one would pass and I would search his features, certain that he must be one of my men. And I had the horrifying sensation of not knowing why he was not.

I was terrified.

Was I going insane?

Mentally I tried to place Stetson in the crowd. I tried to visualize what he would look like if he were there. My senses spun like a whirling top. I could not remember him!

I wandered to the desk where we had sat together so many times to write an talk. I spoke to myself.

"Now sit right down there, Stetson. I want to have a good look at you!"

But his face would not even come to my mind. I wondered if I should fixed itself in the dark room of memory, never to fade.

Then he appeared in full figure and I studied his physique from every angle. I was conscious of speaking to him, commanding him to turn around—to stand quietly—to turn again—that I might study his every movement. He stood six feet and weighed two hundred. His manly, swinging carriage, his chestnut hair, with a line of pink scalp showing from the middle of his forehead to the crown; his round, smooth face that radiated health and vigor; his greenish blue eyes and their magnetic attractiveness.

As a crystal gazer peers into the mysterious glass ball, so I peered into those eyes of Stetson's.

In their depths, I saw a serpent coiled. Never since have I looked into them without feeling the spell of that serpent and seeing its dripping fangs. Stetson's mouth sagged at the corners and, from the side looked much like a cod's. He was always immaculately groomed.

fade from my mind and tried to recall Spencer. My head throbbed and it was a dim, vague image that first appeared on the ceiling. Then it sharpened and Spencer stood before me, clearly outlined. As he approached, I noted his military carriage. Like a well-trained officer, he advanced upright, with measured, confident tread.

Of his features, his crooked nose, bent slightly to the right, was the outstanding mark of identification. His hair was medium light and his eyes were blue, with a suggestion of an oriental slant. Keeness, alertness, a wide-awakeness and up-to-dateness characterized this young man. He was well-under six feet—probably five-eight or nine—and weighed about one-hundred. Like his accomplice, Stetson, he was athletic and took pride in his fine skin and elastic muscles. He was thirty-three years of age—so he had told me.

In my near delirium, I called out to the image, ordering it to turn about, stand and walk as I had done with Stetson. I scrutinized his every movement and filed away every slight peculiarity in my mind's index. Finally, I noticed his smile. His lips were thin and his smile, superficially attractive, was, I decided, far from a sincere one. It left a very noncommittal expression upon his face. An expression that refuted what I had believed about his youthful frankness. Why hadn't I noticed it before, I wondered? Then the image faded away.

Reno Hamlin! There he was, smiling grimly down at me.

His name conjured up a romantic gambler or soldier of fortune—a whimsical wanderer. Perhaps, even, a checked vest of timber of the old frontier gambling shacks that moved along with each new step of white civilization in the old west.

But he was none of these. He had posed as a mule buyer, and a mule buyer type he was; of medium stature and built like a burro, his glossy black hair streaked with gray. His eyes were searching ones, of a peculiar brown; they gazed out under overhanging lids and flaring brows. His neck was deeply furrowed and weather-beaten. Surely this fellow had roughed it many a time. He wore a close-cropped black mustache. I suspected that he touched it up a little to conceal its tendency to gray. He had none of the city-bred manners of Stetson and Spencer. He drewled and, at times, seemed to search for simple words to express himself. I would never forget him. I thought, as I lay there.

Next came Ward. Ward had a certain something about him—it was peculiar but you felt it. He dressed a little more carelessly and was not quite so affected in his manners as Stetson and Spencer, but you sensed better breeding in this man. He was far from handsome. His face was square and his eyes were a grayish-blue. His hair was roached straight up and close cropped. Like many of the noses I've since noticed in the "profession," his, too, was slightly inclined to crookedness. Perhaps such fellows do get battered up occasionally. His brows arched into half-moons over his eyes and a loose bag of flesh hung from his chin. Looking him squarely in the face, his mouth seemed strong but, in profile, it slanted sharply downward to his weak chin. Massively built, he had probably been a fine specimen at one time but now he inclined to pouchiness and flabbiness. I learned later that he came from a highly respectable family.

Gerber's image appeared and he slouched toward me in a manner that clearly told what niche he filled in the organization. Undoubtedly, he was the killer. He was kept conveniently near to prevent his more fastidious brethren from soiling their lily hands in any sort of dirty work. He was about the same size and build as Ward, but he lacked the suave complaisance of the other man. His hair was parted and brushed high over his helmet head. His headlike eyes were piercing and revealed little that would interest another person in the character behind them. His nose was thick at root and end; his mouth looked like a slit cut in a stretched surface, his lips tautly refusing to condescend to mobility. Peculiarly—remember, I was imagining things—I saw, in his eyes, the reflections of six dead men.

If I were to be disposed of, this man would be my murderer. That was his place in the organization and his face indicated that he accepted his responsibilities with little reluctance. My mind fogged. All five of the swindlers, paraded before me vaguely—out of focus. Then they all came at once and seemed to be arguing with Gerber about what should be done with me. They became a blur in a moment, and I fell back, too drowsy to think. I must have fallen asleep again.

I awoke with a start. At first, I did not know where I was, but I finally collected my thoughts. I touched my brow and the fever was gone. I felt better. I lay a while, then remembered the parade of swindlers on the ceiling. I tried to recall their faces which had so oddly deserted me a while before. They were as vivid as life itself. I knew, this time, that I'd never lose their images, if I did not find them for years. I got up and staggered weakly to the telephone.

"What time is it, please?" I asked the operator. "Ten-thirty," she answered. "Ten-thirty?" I questioned. "Why I have been here more than half an hour." "I don't know what time you

Chrysler Outruns Fast Train From Buffalo To Albany

From Buffalo to Albany 18 minutes faster than the time of the New York Central's crack train, the Twentieth Century, is the latest feat to be credited to a Chrysler car equipped with the new Chrysler "Red Head" high compression engine.

Driven by its owner, A. J. Eckert, Jr., and a mechanic who accompanied him, the Chrysler, a 1926 roadster with more than 23,000 miles already registered on its speedometer, was checked out of Buffalo by Western Union officials at 11:52 p. m., September 12, and into Albany the next morning at 5:35, making an average speed of 56.24 miles per hour for the 305.4 miles traveled. The time is the more remarkable in view of the fact that the first ten miles was inside the limits of Buffalo and the last four miles over Albany streets, while no fewer than 14 cities and towns were passed through on the run. A drizzling rain during three hours of the night also tended to make fast running difficult.

"The time was possible only because of the mechanical perfection of the Chrysler," said Mr. Eckert after the run. "It could never have been done but for the roadster's capacity to operate at sustained high speed, combined with its unusual acceleration and braking features, which enabled us to keep perfect control every minute. The 'Red-Head' also played an important part in the fast time through its addition to the car's normal speed, while the new zip it gives to driving by its wonderful effect on acceleration and on hill-climbing ability makes driving a constant joy for the man at the wheel."

1. By what it does 2. By what owners say

All around the great world, the unequalled performance of Studebaker's Erskine Six is winning new records—and thousands of happy new owners.

APR 16. London to Land's End Reliability Run—Erskine Six sedan won highest gold medal award $17.5 mile competition under supervision Royal Automobile Club.

JUNE London-Edinburgh Reliability Run—Erskine sedan won highest gold medal award in 1,75 mile competition supervised by the Royal Automobile Club.

JUNE Spanish Performance Test—Three Erskine Sixes won gold medals in the maximum specifications of a competition held in Barcelona under supervision of Royal Automobile Club of Catalonia. Distance covered, 437 miles.

JUNE 22. Cross Aires—Erskine Six sedan captured the genuine endurance run after running continuously for 5 days, 5 nights and three hours. 4 miles were covered. Supervised by Santa Automobile Club.

JULY 20. St. Fe to Buenos Aires—Erskine Six sedan set speed record for 347.5 mile distance between Santa Fe and Buenos Aires—under supervision of Santa Fe Automobile Club.

JULY 24. Hung Driving Tournament—Erskine Six touring car to successfully complete all 12 trials determine speed and flexibility of cars competing. Won first place from field of 23 competitors. Tournament supervised by Allgemeine Deutsche Automobil Club and Automobile Club of Deutschland.

AUGUST 14. Sierrita Run—Erskine Sedan completed gruelling 744.41 miles over five high mountain summits in record time of 17 hours and 45 minutes. Every conceivable road was encountered.

Now judge the Erskine Six for yourself—by what it will do with you at the wheel. For six months Studebaker has designed and built into this smallest car all the character and quality gained from 75 years of honest manufacture—at a new low price made possible only by Studebaker's $100,000,000 of manufacturing facilities. Come in today!

Ask the owner of any Erskine Six what he thinks of it. His reply will do more to convince you of the unusual value built into every Erskine Six by Studebaker than any amount of sales talk. Here are the comments of a few Erskine owners:

FORD EMPLOYEES RETOOL PLANT TO BUILD CAR

More Than Million Dollars Is Spent In Making New Ford Car Possible.

(By JOHN J. LEARY)
(From the New York World)

DETROIT—Before the first of Henry Ford's new cars is exhibited for sale the man who more than any other person made America motor-conscious will have expended more than $100,000,000 in the greatest reconstruction job ever attempted in any industry.

In addition he has planned to use many millions more in expansion of the big plants in this city and its suburbs to provide for the demand he believes will follow appearance of the new car and further reduce his costs of manufacture by producing more of his "raw" materials.

For years Ford efficiency and the extent to which machinery has been substituted for human labor in Ford plants have been known the world over. Nowhere has the labor content of a piece of machinery been so low as in Ford plants. In the reconstructed and retooled plants the amount of human labor required to turn out a car will be even less than in the old.

Old Models Sold.
This is made possible, a tour through the works shows, by the designing of new machines to take the place of machines that of necessity had to be scrapped, and by a closer "tying-in" of machines, made possible by improvements in the conveyor or endless belt system, first brought to a high state of efficiency in the Ford plants.

Of the old Model T car 15,000,000 representing a cost to the public of $10,000,000,000, have been sold. For the new car Mr. Ford, at 65, has as great hopes as he ever had for the old. Into it he is putting all his energy and experience.

"It is not," his lieutenants say, "any adventure with him. It is not an uncertainty to him. He intends it to be the capstone of what most men would consider an extraordinary successful career.

Out Our Way

Just when the new car, described by some as "a miniature Lincoln," will appear no one in the Ford organization is prepared to say. It may appear next week, it may be next month, all dependent on getting the big plants in condition for the quantity production synonymous with the name Ford.

On this work of preparation 10,000 tool and die makers, the largest group of expert machinists ever assembled in one organization, have been at work several months under the direction of Charles E. Sorenson, general manager of the company, Mr. Ford's chief lieutenant. Assisting them are some 8,000 semiskilled and unskilled men.

The magnitude of their task is entirely based on the situation that the Ford plans were equipped for one purpose only. Where, for example, another manufacturer, dealing in smaller quantities, could afford to have two or more drill press operations on a part but could not afford to have special presses built to reduce the number to one, Ford could not afford to do without the special presses.

"Because of volume and turning out millions of one thing a year Ford can afford to spend $500,000 developing and building a special machine," has been the story of engineers for years in explaining why his final costs were so low.

So the plants were filled with special lathes, special drill presses, special grinders, built on lines unseen in other plants and useless except for one purpose—making parts for the T model. Further, these machines, or many of them, fitted into one another. The scrapping of one meant of necessity the scrapping of others.

Warned of Changes.
Likewise the dies and pigs and furnaces built for making parts for the old model, which men who knew Ford say he confidently expected would be in demand long after he had gone to join his fathers.

"You are," one of the Fisher brothers is reported to have said to Ford once, "making a mistake in building everything on the T model. Some one of these days you will have to change, and the cost of changing will be all you've made."

"Nonsense," Ford is reported to have replied. "The T model will live longer than you and I. It will live forever."

The story may or may not be true, but it is true that when the work now under way is finished the Ford plants to all intents and purposes will have been retooled.

Mr. Sorenson says frankly he does not know when the construction work will be completed.

"In a task of this size," he explains, "predictions are impossible. You must remember this is the biggest retooling job ever attempted by anybody."

"We are back where we were 18 years ago—getting out a new car. We are starting fresh. The only difference is that we have had 18 years' experience in building cars. We have these wonderful plants and we have what Mr. Ford did not have then—ample capital."

"What will the retooling cost—$50,000,000?" he was asked, repeating figures ventured by a lesser Ford executive.

"Yes, all of that," he replied. Then after a moment's thought he added: "Yes, all of $50,000,000. I hope to heaven we will get out of it for that."

Discussion of the new car is taboo in the Ford works and with Ford executives, by order of "the chief" himself is inadvisable. Even within the plant it is the great mystery. Few there know much about it, and these to quote a lesser executive, "are fearful of talking in their sleep, lest their wives learn something and tell."

Performance Of Oakland Delights Its Builders

The whispering quiet and smooth operation with which the new G. M. R. Cylinder head has endowed the engine of the Oakland All-American Six, is a tribute to the tireless research workers who are striving constantly to bring the automobile to its ultimate peak of perfection.

The G-M-R cylinder head, which is an exclusive feature of the Oakland All-American Six, was developed during several years of painstaking experimental work by General Motors Research engineers. Their goal was an engine head that would provide economically and with ordinary gasoline the silent power and performance previously believed obtainable only with high test fuel and hand-made laboratory engines.

In order to succeed in their quest it was necessary to achieve three major results: First, reduce the tendency toward "detonation" or spark knock, the familiar "ping" which ordinary engines develop especially when pulling up grade; Second, eliminate the rough "thump" which results from an uneven explosion against the piston; third, obtain greater power from a given charge of gasoline. The last result was primarily dependent upon their success in solving the first two problems.

It is well known that up to a certain point the more a fuel charge is compressed, the greater will be the resultant power. But beyond that limit spark knock and roughness develop, both of which reduce power. The research engineers, building one cylinder head after another, each slightly different from its predecessor and checking the results with scientific precision, finally made some surprising discoveries about the effect which the shape of the combustion chamber exercises upon engine performance.

They found that spreading out the combustion chamber in the cylinder head and thus giving the explosion a greater and unobstructed area in which to "work" produced a smooth push upon the piston head instead of a violent and ragged blow.

Again they discovered that thorough cooling that portion of the gas charge farthest away from the spark plug, which naturally explodes last, practically eliminated spark knock. The actual result of this discovery is seen in the new G-M-R cylinder head which narrows down the space directly above the piston on the opposite side of the head from the spark plug. The explosion, starting at the spark plug, spreads across the cylinder head and ends in a final flash that burns a narrow layer of gas that has been so well-cooled by the water of the enveloping water jacket that it does not "ping." It is unconventionally true that coffee cools more quickly when placed in a saucer. The new G-M-R cylinder head on the All-American Six figuratively "saucers" its gas for the final stage of each explosion by spreading it out in a thin layer where it can cool quickly.

A third discovery which has been incorporated in the new G-M-R design appears in what is technically termed a "reverse curvature" of the edge or profile of the cylinder head chambers. In the conventional types of cylinder head this profile follows the curve of the cylinder itself. It was found that the half-circle curve of this profile farthest from the spark plug bounces the burning gas back against that which has not yet become ignited, squeezing it together in the middle of the cylinder head where cooling of the unburned mixture is least effective. The solution was found in the "reverse curvature" which divides the flash with a blunt wedge and guides the force of the explosion around the edges of the cylinder head profile where cooling is most effective. The operation of this new cylinder head contour has been likened to the difference between catching faucet water in the hollow of a spoon which throws the liquid back at itself as in the conventional type of cylinder head and reverses in the spoon, the back of which spreads the flow evenly off toward the sides as is the case in the "reverse curvature."

With the conventional type of head the spark is ordinarily advanced to a point where the best efficiency can be obtained, usually the point where a spark knock begins to appear. From this point, the spark must be retarded to eliminate the knock. With the new G-M-R head on the Oakland All-American Six, the spark is advanced to the most efficient point where it is permanently set by the distributor control on the side of the motor. The knock being eliminated by the unique design of the head, this setting, because of Oakland's automatic spark control, remains right under all driving conditions.

Of course there are other important factors in the revolutionary design of the Oakland All-American Six, but B. H. Anibal, vice-president in charge of Oakland engineering, attributes to the G-M-R cylinder head a large portion of the credit for the gratifying reception which has been accorded the new car.

Chevrolet Dealers Getting Ready For Sales Contests

CHEVROLET dealers all over the country will start their second annual turkey bean contest at once. On Monday night salesmen of the Old Belt Motor company, Ranger, will hold a meeting and outline their tactics for winning the turkey part of the menu this year instead of the beans as they did last year.

The wager in the contest is turkey versus beans, the winners dining on that toothsome bird and the losers on plain beans.

J. E. Grimm advertising manager of the Chevrolet Motor company has been elected an honorary member of the program committee and is going to do his bit in stimulating interest in the turkey-bean contests.

Unique Traffic Squad Works In Cleveland, Ohio

Traffic accidents are being effectively reduced at Cleveland, Ohio, by a newly organized and unique homicide squad that is doing much to insure the safety of that city's streets.

The plan, which is being studied in other localities in the hope that by adopting it traffic fatalities elsewhere may be lowered, consists in maintaining a squad of trained investigators competent to secure evidence that will hold in court and fix blame on the person responsible for the accident.

Two police officers—a sergeant and a patrolman—compose the working crew. As soon as a traffic accident is reported these officers hurry to the scene in their Chevrolet used expressly for this purpose and secure all available data. One man is a skilled photographer and takes pictures of the scene from a number of different angles. The other carries a typewriter and makes out a complete report right on the spot.

The names of all parties to the accident are taken, as are those of all witnesses, and statements from every body are typed. By getting statements immediately, as well as photographs to introduce into court at trial, the police can compile and accurate information on which to base a prosecution if anyone is shown to be at fault.

In addition to its Chevrolet which has the essential speed and snap to get the investigators to the scene quickly, the squad has complete photographic equipment including a dark room for developing pictures immediately after an accident, two officers to which principals and witnesses are often brought and quizzed, filing cabinets, and draughting materials to make sketches of the scene. This squad is said to be the only one of its kind in the United States.

Edward J. Donahue, traffic commissioner, who put the plan into effect, credits it with being one of the most practical safety factors within his long experience. Already the squad has secured many manslaughter convictions, while convictions on charges of reckless driving and fleeing from the scene of an accident run into the hundreds.

CHENEY NEWS

CHEANEY, Oct. 1.—Cheaney sure did have a fine rain Monday night and Tuesday it rained all day, so we are wet. It is fine on late feed and fall sowing. Some have their peanuts dug and some are threshing but it will be some time now before the threshers can run as the ground is very wet.

Cheaney school will not start until Oct. 17, so we all can be ready by then.

A good many Cheaney people attended the fair at Eastland last week and report the fair good and all well satisfied as Cheaney had an exhibit and won consideration.

We will try it again another year and try to do better next time.

Some Cheaney people went to Abilene Monday to be at the fair and to see Lindbergh, which they did. All report a good time.

Mrs. S. E. Powers and son, Sam, of Lorenzo were at Cheaney of late, visiting R. R. Browning and family. J. O. Calvert of Ranger is helping his son, Ernest, thresh at Cheaney this week.

Whooping cough is all doing fine around Cheaney just now. Still we have a good many with colds and they are severe this time of year.

"References! You Mean You Don't Trust Me"

Indeed the confidence man becomes highly indignant, if you mention references. You are ashamed to have doubted him—this man of "big affairs" who is offering you an opportunity to share in his profits. So the swindler leads you on, evades detection, and every year thousands of men, and women, are caught in their traps and fleeced of every cent of their savings by methods being revealed by Norfleet in his story appearing every day in this paper.

But there is one sure protection. Always before "getting in on the ground floor" of a wonderful new company; before risking a dollar in some "easy money" plan, consult your banker. Their business is to make safe investments. They can guide you to wise and sound profits.

ELKS MINSTREL AT EASTLAND TO BE BIG AFFAIR

Preparations Rushed For Two Big Shows Next Thursday And Friday Nights.

"Minstrel Echoes" which is the name of the production sponsored by the Eastland Elks club, to be seen at the Connellee Theatre, on Thursday and Friday night, October 6 and 7th, is something entirely out of the ordinary. It is the most unique and startling show that has ever been staged in Eastland. It is a radio minstrel and from the time the curtain rises until the close many special novelties having to do with this popular pastime may be expected. The show starts with broadcasting from the state WTAM in which the leading characters are a radio fan, Genevieve Lyons, the Radio Entertainers, George Thompson and Arthur Pearce and the announcer, W. M. Burgamy. The scene is the Hotel Connellee and it seems that the management has been disappointed in securing the services of a professional minstrel troupe. The guests are consoled by the announcement that the bell hops themselves will furnish the program and this is introduced in a novel fashion. The lead speakers or corkilogical funsters, or porters, are in black face and comprise the well known comedians "Catfish" Goodman, Earl Frances, Bobby Bates, Buster Massey, Marshall Knox and "Curly" Duncan.

The minstrel "circle" or bell hops comprise 19 more or less vocalists and some of the well known song hits are Red Lips, Kiss My Blue Away, "At Sundown," "Back, Back, Back to Birmingham," "Hello People," and "I Love the Land of Old Black Joe."

The second part of the show is devoted to fast stepping musical comedy and revue features. Among the novelties is a dance pantomime entitled "Echoes of the Past and Present." In this are the ermine girls and Beau Brummels of another generation, and it is a contrast of modern days and days that passed with the bustle and puff sleeves.

Couples taking part in this number are Elmer Liles, Veon Howard, R. L. Crossley, W. B. Crossley, Bobbie Bates, Walton Freeman, Novell Grubbe, Nadine Johnson, Glenna Gillespie, Ruth Morris, Mary B. Bates and Mrs. Earl Frances. Norma Frizzelle and George Thompson have the leads. Many feature numbers precede the famous "Dixie Derby" the feature part of the minstrel. Satan's Palace is depicted by Bessie Jones, Ruby High, and Nell Rosenquest, singing and dancing to "Pack Up Your Sings and Go to the Devil."

Another number is a minuet by Alma Williamson and Edna Clark. Other numbers that include a large portion of the girls in the show are Pretty Polly and the Chocolate Dandies.

The Dixie Derby is one of the cleverest skits ever produced off of a minstrel stage. The theme of the play seems to be rather mixed but the parance is of the best. Con Stolzenbach, as Rub Em Down, trainer of Bullet is perfect and Earl Frances and "Catfish" Goodman, as Sassafras Cain, just avoiding work, and Booker T. Lincoln Coolidge, respectively are relied upon to bring down the house, to use the vernacular. Other characters in the short play are Jazzmine, owner of the horse bullet, Mrs. Robert J. Bates, Tip Sells, Buster Massey, bookmaker, Bobby Bates, program boy, Walton Freeman, Old Black Joe, Curly Duncan, Mammy, Mrs. Earl Francis, hard boiled, Marshall Knox and the famous mechanical horse, Bullet, Forest Gerard in the front end and Elmer Liles in the terminating end.

The grand finale is the climax of the show and the entire company will reproduce the "Black Bottom" as used originally in George White's Scandals.

There are 125 characters in the minstrel and 12 scenes. Gorgeous costumes of colored satin will be used throughout the show. Draperies of blue and gold will be used during the first of the minstrel.

The advance ticket sales report a good patronage and it looks as if there would be a sell out at each performance. Tickets for the minstrel are on sale at the Corner Drug store and are good for any performance. The matinee will be given for children Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock and the price will be ten cents for all school children.

The night shows will start promptly at 8:15 and all seats will be reserved. The minstrel is an annual affair given by the Elks club for the benefit of the local charity fund.

CHRYSLER GOES TO EUROPE FOR BIG AUTO SHOW

Will Attend International In Paris and Will Be At Big Show In London.

Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Chrysler corporation, sailed from New York recently for Europe, to attend the international automobile show to be held at the Grand Palais in Paris, October 6 to 16 and also the international motor exhibition organized by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Trades, Ltd., in connection with the Royal Automobile Club, and to be held at the Olympia in London, October 14-22.

Meetings of Continental, Near East and North Africa distributors and dealers will be held in Paris, Oct. 17. Mr. Chrysler will address both meetings.

Before returning to America Mr. Chrysler will visit the Continental headquarters of the Chrysler corporation in Antwerp and also the Chrysler assembling plant at Berlin.

Before sailing Mr. Chrysler commented upon automobile business in general and of the Chrysler business in particular. He said:

"At the beginning of 1927 we had reason to believe that the year would be one of continued prosperity and that the automobile business would enjoy a volume of business comparable to other excellent years. Now that we are approaching the last months of 1927 we know that our predictions were well founded. The year has been a good one. The country is prosperous and there is every reason to believe that our prosperity will continue."

"It has been said that our prosperity has begun to show signs of fatigue. That may be true but there is still good reason to believe that 1928 will be another year of good times, with labor well employed, wages high and money well distributed."

"The Chrysler corporation views 1927 with satisfaction. Business has been excellent. With four new lines of cars—the new Chrysler "52," the Great New "62," the illustrious New "72"—together with the Chrysler Imperial "80" our distributors and dealers are placed in an enviable position. They have four great cars in four great makes and our records of sales are ample indication of the extent to which the public has approved of the cars."

"The Chrysler corporation is today selling automobiles in every country of the world where motor cars are used. Export business this year is greatly in excess of last year, in fact, almost double. We look for a continued growth in this department."

The Chrysler corporation is exhibiting a complete line of cars at both the Paris and London shows. The exhibit in the two cities is under the direction of E. D. Briggs, European Director of the Societe Anonyme Chrysler, the European branch of the Chrysler corporation.

Mr. Chrysler will be accompanied on his trip abroad by Byron C. Foy, of Colt, Stewart & Foy, Inc., New York distributors of Chrysler cars.

New Dodge Six Is Upholstered In Gray Leather

Will Attend International In Paris and Will Be At Big Show In London.

Dodge Brothers, Inc. today announce the addition to its Senior line of six cylinder cars of a five passenger sedan upholstered in polo grain gray leather. This is the first leather upholstered car in the company's senior line and contrary to the usual custom of the industry this car is priced lower than jobs done in mohair. It will sell for $1495 f. o. b. Detroit compared with $1505 f. o. b. Detroit for the same body type upholstered in mohair.

"This new sedan," says R. J. Ruthorford, "answers the requirements of many buyers who prefer leather to fabric upholstery. Leather has the advantages of being easier to keep clean and of offering maximum resistance to rough usage. Being of the high quality which has always been a feature of Dodge Brothers cars it will retain its newness of appearance throughout the long life of the car. To the family with small children, to the man who makes long trips over dusty roads and to the owner whose car frequently is called upon to make hunting and fishing trips, the new interior will make a strong appeal."

"The new car is particularly attractive in that the polo grain gray leather is in pleasing contrast with the Brunswick blue lacquer below and the black lacquer above the belt line on the bodies. The window reveals are deep and are set off with the same Brunswick blue lacquer in which the body is finished. Wheels are painted blue to match the body and the fenders and shields are finished in black baked enamel.

"Production in large volume, the factory has announced, allows this type to be introduced at a substantially lower price than that at which the other types of the senior line sell."

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Mom'n Pop

By Taylor

The PENNY PRINCESS by anne austin ©1927 by NEA Service

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 Vera Cameron, plain business girl, is transformed into a beauty by Jerry Macklyn, her boss, and the advertising manager for Peach Bloom Cosmetics company. Jerry falls in love with Vera, and his love endures even after he learns she consents to the transformation only because the man she falls in love with—Schuyler Smythe—ignores her.

Vera spends her vacation at Lake Minnetonka because Smythe is there. Smythe and other guests mistake her in spite of her denials for Vivian Crandall, ex-princess, who after a Paris divorce, is in hiding.

Learning of the supposed Vivian's whereabouts, Crandall detectives arrive at the Minnetonka late one night. Vera and Smythe flee in a stolen car. Smythe confesses his love and insists they be married at once. When Vera tells him the truth about herself, hoping he will love her anyway, he is furious, revealing himself to her as a fortune-hunter.

Two masked men kidnap Vera from the car and take her by airplane to a shack in the hills where the prince awaits them. The kidnapers double-cross the prince and announce they will hold them for a ransom from the Crandalls. Vera convinces the prince, furious at the discovery she is not his wife, they must "play the part."

In answer to a mysterious phone call, Jerry Macklyn finds Vivian Crandall hiding in the Bronx. She offers to help him find Vera and together they start out for the shack which Vivian remembers the prince was interested in. Meantime at the shack one of the kidnapers, returning from New York by airplane, is killed and the other flees, leaving Vera and Ivan alone. Vera flees. As she leaves the cabin she is stopped by Vivian and Jerry. The girls become friends. Vivian begs Vera to be the princess. Vivian a little longer, explaining she is in love with a poor man who will not marry her unless she demonstrates she can live on a modest income. She wants Vera to impersonate her so she can finish her three months' probation unmolested by her parents.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIII
 When Jerry Macklyn threw open the door the prince was discovered in fighting pose, with a stool raised aloft to strike the invader, whoever it might be.

"Don't be ridiculous, Ivan," Vivian Crandall called over Jerry's shoulder. "Drop that stool and then sit on it. But I don't believe I asked you to drop your jaw also. You might look a little glad to see me, since you made such elaborate plans to insure my visit."

Jerry chuckled and stood aside to let her pass. He stood with Vee-Vee, just inside the door, while Vivian Crandall took her former husband firmly in hand.

"What? No welcome, Ivan?" Had voice was cool, contemptuous, amused.

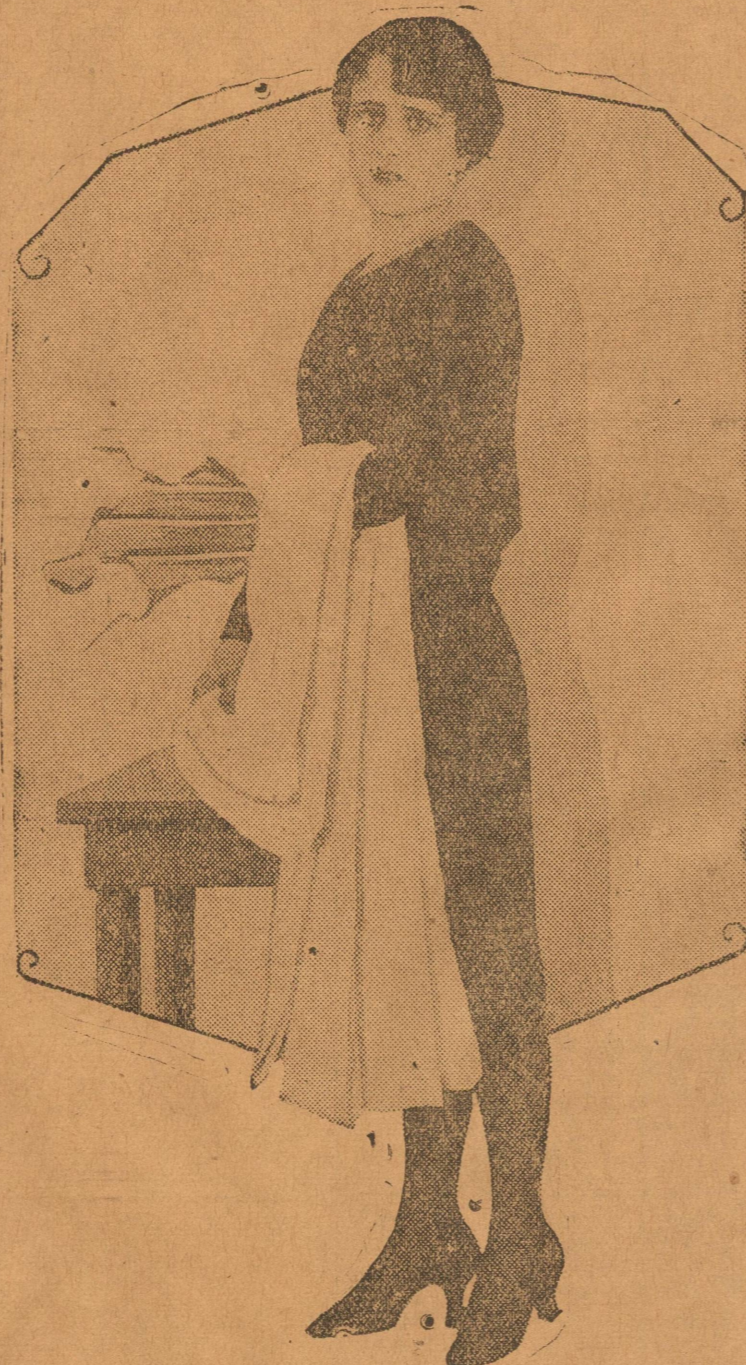

The prince had dropped the stool, obediently, and stood staring at her, his pale blue eyes almost popping from his head, his cheeks dyed crimson.

"Well, what are you going to do? How did you get here?" he asked at last.

"My dear Ivan, I am a very charitable and long-suffering woman, as you have good cause to know," Vivian Crandall answered him coolly. "I have come to get you out of a most embarrassing situation—for my own sake, not for yours. I dislike intensely being laughed at, and if the world knew that my divorced husband had succeeded in abducting me and holding me prisoner for two days in a shockingly primitive little cabin like this, I am afraid I should never be able to live it down. I don't seem to remember you as enjoying jokes at your expense, either," she mused, her eyes narrowing as she studied him.

"What the devil does this mean, Vivian?" Ivan demanded.

"Ivan!" Vivian chided him mockingly. Her tone changed abruptly, became hard and brisk. "How did you get here? By car?"

Vee-Vee paused in her work of folding up sheets and turned upon Vivian a look of fear and consternation.

"Yes," he answered surlily. "Unless those damned kidnapers stole it, it's parked behind the cabin."

"Will you see if the car is still there, Mr. Macklyn?" Vivian asked.

While Jerry was away on his errand, Vee-Vee slipped into the back room and began to pack her suitcase, after a word as to her intentions to Vivian Crandall. She heard Jerry return, could distinguish his words as he told the ex-princess that the car had not been taken.

"That is very good," Vivian Crandall replied. "Now, Ivan, you are at liberty to return to New York as fast as that car can take you. I think, however, that you will find the climate does not agree with you, and that you will be very glad to take the next boat to Paris."

"I haven't any money," the prince blurted out.

"You ever have any money," Vivian reminded him mockingly. "I should dislike to think of you as hungry, since you do so enjoy eating, so if you will be a very discreet little prince I feel sure that you will find a fairly respectable sum of money waiting for you at my attorney's in Paris. Will $25,000 tide you over until you can land another heiress?"

The prince gasped like a drowning man who sees a lifeboat thrown to him; then cupidry gleamed in his popping eyes. "That's a ridiculous sum for the story that I can tell to the New York press," he began.

"Story?" Vivian's voice and face expressed intense surprise. "My dear Ivan, did I wrong you when I said you disliked to be laughed at? Of course if you insist on making yourself ridiculous, on telling how you eager to be on his way—to Paris. "All I regret is," Jerry Macklyn mourned, "that I didn't have a chance to spank him."

When the early luncheon was finished, the two girls, who looked so strangely alike and yet were so different, cleaned house quickly but scrupulously, and Jerry made a thorough job of extinguishing the fire in the fireplace.

"We'll leave these canned goods in the cupboard," Vivian decided. "Some hungry wayfarer may find them and have his faith in the Biblical ravens restored. And now we'd better hurry. There's no telling what Paul will do if he gets home from work this afternoon and finds me gone. He has been urging me to tell my parents where I am, to relieve them of suspense. Of course he knows that it wasn't I who was kidnaped from the Minnetonka, and the quixotic darling may think it's up to him to go to the police or to my parents with the story."

Vee-Vee paused in her work of folding up sheets and turned a look of such utter fear and consternation upon Vivian that the heiress took pity upon her and reassured her: "I don't have the least idea, really, that he'll muddle, Vee-Vee dear. But I'm naturally anxious to get back to him as quickly as possible. He always has dinner with me in my apartment, and if he comes home and finds me away he will be worried, to say the least."

It was only 11 o'clock when they closed the door of the cabin and struck across the meadow to where Jerry's car awaited them in the little-used road.

"I'd like to spend the rest of the day nickerking," Vivian sighed regretfully when she had taken her place in the front seat of the car. "You sit here, too, Vee-Vee. If the police are really conducting the eagle-eyed search for me that the papers are giving them credit, they'll never dream of looking for me in an innocent picnic party. But to make sure, I'll pin on my braids and get out my spectacles. Mr. Macklyn bought a pair for you, too, as well as a motoring veil. I think we shall be safe enough."

When the two girls had put on their "disguises" they looked at each other and laughed like a couple of children playing make-believe. To complete the illusion, and because each of them had cause to be happy and immensely relieved of worry, the three sang poplar songs as the car speeded down the highway toward New York. They made no effort to escape attention, invited it rather. Vivian seemed to take a childish, irresponsible delight in waving at passing motorists and at the occasional motorcycle policeman whom they

The Smooth and Mighty Power of the Steam Engine

High Compression Performance with any Gasoline

In converting waste heat to power, the new companion invention to the Super-Six principle accomplishes the ideal performance of the high-compression type motor that is sought through the use of special and costly fuels.

The Super-Six principle transforms what otherwise is destructive vibration into useful power. The companion invention converts waste heat to power. Combined they afford the highest efficiency in power generation and transmission ever achieved within our knowledge. This makes Hudson the most economical car per pound weight in the world. No wonder such performance results have won for Hudson its greatest triumph. Hudson offers a genuinely new kind of performance. Drive it and you will know.

There is a full line of Hudson Super-Six models on the 127-inch Super-Six chassis. And with the new 116-inch chassis, a duplicate of the larger car in all particulars save length, there is also a car for those who want such signal quality and performance in a shorter, more compact car.

passed. Jerry, for his part, took care not to exceed the speed limit, so that his own greeting of traffic policemen was joyously unconcerned.

Most of their route to New York lay along the Hudson, on a road that was sometimes congested with traffic. But not once were they accosted.

It was not quite 5 o'clock when Jerry swung into the Grand Concourse in the Bronx, and headed the car toward the street where Vivian Crandall, heiress to 40 million dollars, was living in a four-room furnished flat under the name of Vivian Craig.

"Paul rarely gets home before five sometimes not until six," Vivian told them. "Let me out at the corner of 180th street, Jerry— for she was calling him by his first name at his request—and I'll buy provisions for dinner. Paul doesn't drop in until he thinks the meal is about ready. I've told him it makes me nervous to have him hanging around while I cook. Oh, by the way, can you lend me a dollar, Jerry? Tomorrow's payday, and I've spent almost my last cent. Heavens! I hope I haven't lost my job by garnished with different foodstuffs, was one of the prettiest dishes of the cooking school.

In conclusion Mrs. Chitwood thanked the students for their splendid cooperation in making the school a successful one and expressed hopes that she would return again next year.

She expressed appreciation of the many courtesies extended her by the different Eastland county and foreign merchants and jobbers.

Among the firms cooperating with the Telegram and Mrs. Chitwood in the free cooking school were, Eastland Creamery, which furnished fresh milk and butter daily and helped Mrs. Chitwood with all her milk and cream dishes by supplying the ingredients at all times; Calumet Baking Powder company; Gebhart's Chili Products, which furnished neat packages of chili products for distribution and preparation of dishes and furnished an abundance of new recipe books for the students, Texas Electric Service Corporation, which so willingly furnished one of the feature items of the school, the Frigidairo, Barrow Furniture company, which furnished the handy and complete Sellers Kitchen cabinet, which saved Mrs. Chitwood and her assistant many steps and made their cooking easier, Sattorwhite Hardware company for the wonderful Detroit-Jewell range, which Mrs. Chitwood said was the best stove she had ever cooked on or used in a cooking school, Eastland Gas company for furnishing the gas used in the school, Walker-Smith company of Ranger, which furnished three of the most important food items used in the school, White Crust flour, Pecan Valley coffee and Crisco, and the Eastland Grocery and Market which gave good service on furnishing the groceries for the school.

Mrs. Chitwood leaves immediately for Houston where she will conduct a school under the auspices of the Houston Post-Dispatch.

The Telegram feels that much good has been gained from the school and hopes that the housewives have benefited by it bringing such an artist as Mrs. Chitwood to Eastland, to assist them in their daily preparation of meals.

Graham Brothers Report Business Unusually Hevay

Graham Brothers, the truck division of Dodge Brothers, Inc. reports the largest business in the company's history with orders during the first three days of this week totaling 1,154 units. This amounts to more than $1,500,000 worth of Graham Brothers trucks ordered in 72 hours.

With a bank of more than 2,100 orders on hand to ride the new line of trucks recently introduced, Graham Brothers plants at Detroit, Evansville, Indiana, Stockton, Cal. and Toronto, Ontario are working at full capacity and production is at a record level.

This huge business volume follows the breaking of all monthly records for the year in sales shipments to Dodge Brothers dealers of 1 1/2 and 2 ton trucks and motor coaches during August. A total of 1,617 units of these two capacities were shipped during this month alone, Graham Brothers leading all other manufacturers in the 1 1/2 and 2 ton field. Shipments of 3-4 ton commercial cars and 1 ton trucks were also high, bringing the total shipments of all types of Graham Brothers vehicles in August to 4,365 units.

Cooking School Over, Much Good Is Accomplished

Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, the facile and accomplished lecturer and food demonstrator, was presented under the auspices of the Eastland Telegram, closed her five day engagement, Friday, when she spoke to a sincerely interested audience in the city hall auditorium. Some of those present had been attending the school for the first time while others dated their friendship from the years before when the Eastland Telegram first sponsored Mrs. Chitwood's Eastland appearance.

The cooking school this year has been a decided success as in other years. Many Eastland ladies expressed their appreciation of the opportunity given them and said that many helpful hints for better cooking had been gained as well as a rich supply of new recipes.

Mrs. Chitwood discussed biscuits and steaks at her last meeting. In speaking of biscuits Mrs. Chitwood told and explained the care of the hands and the way in which to handle the biscuit dough, the pans in which they were to be baked, the cloth covered rolling pin and the canvas table cover. She explained the use of all these items and their relation to bread baking.

In referring to the materials used in her different demonstrations throughout the week Mrs. Chitwood stated that she tried several things each year until she found what she wanted and that this is always the one that brought the best results. She insisted that the students use the material that got the best results regardless of who handled the goods.

In her discussion of better steaks she went into detail and cooked an appetizing T-bone steak that, when being absent today! I telephoned my boss I was sick," she explained to Vee-Vee.

"I'll buy the grub," Jerry grinned. "I'm hungry as a wolf and I don't want any penny-pinching housewife trying to put me off with one little lamb chop and a few leaves of lettuce. You two girls scoot in now and trust Jerry to provide the makings for a real meal. I know all the shops in this neighborhood and I bet some of them will remember me, too. They've got good cause to," he chuckled reminiscendly.

"I hope," said Vivian Crandall, as the two girls mounted the stairs to Vivian's apartment, "that Jerry's 'real meal' proves a pacifying one, for everything not depends on Paul. And Paul," her voice was tender but a little rueful, "is a very masterful man. He may refuse to let me go on with my plan—and I have good cause to know that when Paul says 'no,' he means 'no.'"

Will Paul retract from his stubborn stand? Will Vivian Crandall find the happiness she has missed for so long?
