COLD WAVES SWEEPING DOWN ON SOUTHWEST

STRIKERS BLAMED FOR BURNING COLORADO RAILROAD BRIDGE

MORE ARMED MEN ARE PUT ON DUTY

Practical Lockout In Freemont County Reports Say

DENVER, Nov. 11.—With a score of armed men sent to reinforce state police in Colorado coal fields authorities today were investigating an attempt to destroy a five span railroad trestle near Walsenburg.

Investigation was pushed on the theory that the fire was set to cripple the main lines of the Colorado and Southern railroad and hamper shipment of coal being produced despite the I. W. W. strike for the Jacksonville wage scale.

The fire started just ten minutes before a south-bound passenger train was scheduled to pass over the bridge. A party of tourists discovered the fire and reported it.

Following complaints of working miners that they have been visited by small delegations of strikers who warned them not to continue work additional state law enforcement officials were ordered to Walsenburg by Governor Adams.

The strike assumed the aspects of a "lockout" in Freemont county where all the larger mines have closed indefinitely.

Approximately 40,000 Students Have Attended U.

AUSTIN, Nov. 11.—Since the University of Texas first opened its doors to receive students in 1883 there have been approximately 40,000 students who have registered for courses in the institution, according to John A. McCurdy, secretary of the Ex-Students' association.

Mr. McCurdy said that there has never been an exact count made of the total number of ex-students. Among those who have attended the university there has been a representative group of out-of-state students with a sprinkling of students from about a half dozen foreign countries registered in the university each year.

THE GREAT WAR TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

By United Press. Nov. 11, 1917. Regiments loyal to Kerensky march on Petrograd and fighting with Maximilians is reported under way in the capital. Italian troops and their allies plan to fall back to the Adige river to make a definite stand against the Austro-Germans.

COMPTROLLER SAYS BALANCE TO BE CUT DOWN

Prospects of An Overflowing State Treasury May No Be Realized.

AUSTIN, Nov. 11.—Predictions of an overflowing state treasury may not be borne out, State Comptroller S. H. Terrell says in a statement issued defending the fixing of the present state tax rate. Sighting the statutes he points out the automatic tax board had no option to act other than as it did in fixing the rate. Many obligations yet to come due he says will cut down the balance.

Oklahoman's Body Taken From Lake, Gone Since Nov. 1

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 11.—The body of R. E. L. Brown, mechanical superintendent of the Oklahoma Publishing company here was found in Northeast lake today by firemen.

Bernice Stevens Condition Is Now Regarded Serious

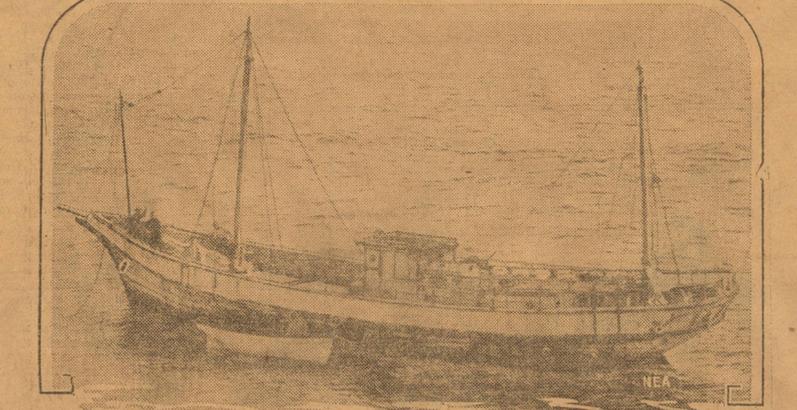

The condition of Bernice Stevens, who was injured in an automobile accident some weeks ago, and who has been in the hospital since with serious injuries, took a decided change for the worse yesterday and little hope is held for his recovery.

Electricity And Smokers Are Big Fire Hazards

AUSTIN, Nov. 11.—Smokers still are Texas' greatest known fire hazards, outside of electricity, the latest monthly report of the city fire marshals to the fire insurance commission shows.

Failure To Ask Interest Will Prove Costly

AUSTIN, Nov. 11.—Failure of the state to ask for interest on the value of oil taken out of the Harris county oil fields by trespassing oil companies will cost the state hundreds of thousands in the verdict in the Blaffer oil suit.

Adjutant General Suggests Tear Gas For Bank Robbers

AUSTIN, Nov. 11.—Use of tear gas to prevent bank robbery is suggested by Adjutant General R. L. Robertson. Effects of the gas are not serious, he said, so bank employees need not fear its use.

Bernard Cherry Dies of Injury From Accident

HOUSTON, Nov. 11.—All the speed of this jazz age that knew him for his syncopeation failed to save the life of Bernard Cherry.

U. S. Judge Sued

Federal Judge James C. Wilson (top) of Fort Worth, Tex., and 19 others are defendants in a suit for $2,500,000 filed in Dallas by W. B. Slaughter (below). The plaintiff, for years a Pueblo, Colo., bank president and a brother of the late C. C. Slaughter, Texas millionaire ranchman, charges Judge Wilson and the others with conspiring to defraud him of his rightful share of the ranchman's estate.

Nine Years Ago—And Now

Fall-Sinclair Case Developed Odd Situation

By RODNEY DUTCHER
(NEA Service Writer)

WASHINGTON.—The blow-up of the Fall-Sinclair trial turned the spot light on more peculiar situations and circumstances than any incident in Washington since the Teapot Dome, Doheny and Daugherty scandals were first uncovered.

For instance, it brought that most astonishing person, William J. Burns, back into the stocks of notoriety. Only one brief sequence of events is needed to show that the Burns career has been without parallel.

In 1912, it was revealed that Burns had been involved in the picking of a jury which convicted a man named Jones. In pardoning Jones, President Taft accented the conclusions of Attorney General Wickert about Burns' activities and referred to them as "the most barefaced and unfair use of all machinery for drawing a jury" which he had ever encountered.

Yet, when Harding became president and Daugherty was named attorney general, Burns was put in an extremely important position of trust as head of the investigation bureau of the Department of Justice.

Now we have Burns, again a private detective, involved as an employer of men whom the government charges were used in a plot to influence the Fall-Sinclair jurors.

Burns never was a respecter of persons. The attempts of his bureau to "get something on" senators who sought to expose corruption in the Interior and Justice Departments should be recalled. Investigation of the Senate inquiries revealed some hair-raising sidelights on methods and results of the Justice Department's attempts to "get something on" others little of which was never publicly exposed because of the prominence of persons concerned.

Now, as a grand jury investigates the Fall-Sinclair trial fiasco, the government reveals that Burns may shadowed and reported on an assistant attorney general of the United States while his comrades were trying to establish contact with jurors. It is charged that one of Fall's counsel used another department official to investigate this assistant attorney general.

The question continues to be asked why as many as 16 men were trusted with the very delicate job of jury shadowing, with apparent disregard of the possibility that one or more might spill the beans. It seems obvious that if anyone was trying to tamper with the jury, such a method would indicate either sheer desperation or indifference as to whether or not a mistrial were declared.

Your correspondent talked for half an hour with Henry Mason Day, now under $25,000 bond as an alleged fixer, before he went before the grand jury. Day is a tall, almost swarthy, apparently powerful and sartorially immaculate man of the world, not cultured but suave. He seemed alternately steady or penetrating and boyishly naive. One felt that one would rather have Day as a friend than an enemy. His official title is vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Co., and organization of Sinclair geologists. Day is not a geologist, he is much more.

One gathers that Day is commander-in-chief of Sinclair's foreign forces—a fixer, as it were, who has mixed with cabinet members in various parts of the world where there is oil of interest in it. He has represented Sinclair in the latter's bids for vast fortunes in oil. For instance, Sinclair left him in Russia in 1923 to negotiate a huge concession from the soviet government. Until a few days ago, Day was better known in Europe and Asia than in the United States. He is devoted to Sinclair.

SOCIETY AND SOCIAL AFFAIRS

SALVATION ARMY WILL HOLD TWO MEETINGS.
The Ranger corps of the Salvation Army will hold two meetings in Olden tonight. The first service will be an open air service and will be held in front of the Central Drug store at 7 o'clock and this will be followed by a meeting at the Church of God.

GIRLS RESERVE TO HAVE SERVICES.
The Girls Reserve will hold recognition and installation services Sunday night at 8 o'clock at the Methodist church. A good attendance is requested.

CIRCLE TWO, CHILD STUDY CLUB, MEETS.
Circle two of the Child Study club of Ranger met in a business session Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. A. Smith.

All officers of the club were present. The president, Mrs. C. P. Standard, appointed members of the various committees and plans for the club's year book were completed.

Two new members were added at the meeting.

LEGION DANCE IS WELL ATTENDED.
The opening number of Armistice day, in the form of a dance given at the American Legion hall by the Carl Barnes post, Thursday evening, was well attended and the crowd made merry until early in the morning. The club rooms were beautifully decorated in the Stars and Stripes. Colored caps and novelties were given to the dancers. A buffet luncheon was served during the evening.

CHARM CHATS
with Mme. Janette Service

BEAUTY, YOUTH, CHARM.
(One of a series of articles showing that charm is partly without and partly within; how beauty may be obtained by improving mind, health and personality.)

Eyes may be round and big and long-lashed, but if there be not within them the spark of intelligence and sympathy, they win no more than a passing glance. "A mouth may have a cupid's bow and red, red lips, but if it is not mobile with understanding, and if from it does not issue well-phrased ideas and interesting speech, that mouth might as well be carved on a statue. Personality is greater than beauty. Charm is vastly preferable to prettiness.

A girl with a sallow skin, irregular eyes, a doubtful nose and an ordinary mouth may leave far behind her sister who has no irregularity of features, and who has an unblemished complexion. She may cultivate a well-modulated voice, a gracious carriage and radiate the light of intelligence and the warmth of sympathy. By diet, and by utilizing the modern scientific aids to the skin, she may expand her points of beauty and her other shortcomings. A wise choice of dress and perfume will add glamor; vivacity and poise will eclipse irregularities of form and features. Such a girl, if she but use her brains and her heart and her mind, may achieve charm.

You will meet the girl I have pictured; you will find her a responsive listener, and an engaging conversationalist, full of life and animation. You will like her, you will want to see more of her, and all this in entire forgetfulness of her snub nose; all this without being mindful of the many ways in which she differs from a beauty.

Charm is greater to be desired than beauty, and charm comes from the mind rather than from the surface. Because beauty is only skin deep its possessor is only a picture on a printed page, but charm is personality, and the possessor of charm is a girl to take to, whose companionship is to be sought, a girl whose personality over-suggests the beauty that may be lacking.

National Draft Act Being Urged By Legion Chief

By United Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11.—The establishment of the principle of the Universal Draft into a law will be a step on the part of the United States going toward peace, Edward E. Spafford of New York, National Commander of the American Legion, said today in an Armistice Day message to legionnaires.

Spafford lined with his appeal for enactment of such a law a demand that the army be built up to the 5-5-3 ratio quota established by the Washington Disarmament Conference.

"Nine years now have passed since the last guns flashed on the front in France," said Spafford's message. "New trees are growing in the Argonne. Plows have smoothed the trench scars from the fields around St. Mihiel. On the heights above the Meuse vineyards are green, and children play on the river banks at Chateau Thierry.

"But in clustering groups all the way from the North Sea to the Adriatic the crosses still mark the spots where men died to bring peace out of war. Representative thousands of the Legion who have been returned from France have seen them and in their serried rows have read a message.

"Those men beneath the thickening sod at Romagne, Thiaucourt, and other hallowed spots, died that men after them might live in a just and lasting peace. As they fell they passed to us who survived the task of realizing that ideal. Until the permanence of peace is assured, until the possibility of war is made utterly remote, it is for us to carry on if we would keep the faith.

"On this Armistice Day, when so many of us are fresh from a visit to those graves and battlefields, it is a fitting time to repledge ourselves to the cause in which our comrades gave their lives. There are concrete things at hand to do. One, which the recent Legion convention, held close to the scenes of sacrifice in France, designated as most pressing, is the enactment into law of the principle of the Universal Draft. This act, which mandates service for all and profit for none, placing the burden of sacrifice on all, will be a necessary step for peace. All who hate war should join the Legion in speaking out firmly for the adoption of this measure.

"The American Legion believes in an adequate national defense in keeping with the dignity of our country. This is not a militaristic policy, for the Legion proposes to live and die in peace. It believes that every effort should be made for the development of friendly understanding, which is the basis of lasting concord, and through the Fidac and other foreign relations we are working to that end, but none the less preparedness is the keynote of peace and the Legion will not still its voice until the Defense Act of 1920 is enforced to the last clause and the Navy has been built up to the five-five-three ration established by the Disarmament Conference of 1921. In striving for these

Eastland Closed For Armistice Day Celebration

Virtually all of the business houses in Eastland closed today for Armistice Day. The grocery stores and many of the larger places of business did not open this morning, while the drug stores and others closed at 1:00 o'clock.

At the Eastland county courthouse a number of the offices were closed while others remained open for at least a part of the day. In the 88th district court an important criminal case was on trial Thursday and this morning. It was not believed that it would be possible to finish the case before late this afternoon, if before Saturday.

All offices at the city hall were closed at noon and the employes took a half holiday. There was no school anywhere in the city today.

Ranger Chairmen For Golden Rule Sunday Named

Governor Dan Moody has just appointed several well known persons in this city to serve as chairmen for their respective churches for the observance of Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 4. Governor Moody is honorary chairman and Dr. Charles C. Selcman of Dallas is active chairman of the state committee. This internationally known Sunday is set aside to aid the 33,415 orphans under Near East relief care in Bible lands.

The following people have been selected by the governor: Mrs. L. H. Flewelling, Methodist church; Mrs. J. M. White, Baptist church; Mrs. R. F. Hollofax, Christian church; Mrs. J. M. Baker, Presbyterian church.

The appointment letter to the local chairman of this city says in part: "International Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 4, observed last year in all states and scores of foreign countries is now firmly established.

"My earnest desire is that Golden Rule Sunday be observed in all of the communities in the state, and appreciating that this cannot be accomplished excepting through strong, local leadership, I hereby appoint you chairman and ex-officio member of the Golden Rule state committee, of which group I have the honor to preside as chairman."

AUSTIN.—Modern schools are more efficient than those of the three "R's" days, according to Dr. B. F. Pittinger, dean of the school of education of the University of Texas.

Children might have spelled tongue-twisters better in those days, he admitted, but he contends they did not average as well as present day pupils in spelling the words in ordinary use.

Modern teaching, said Dr. Pittinger, is directed at specific purposes and grades learning accurately. He gives Texas' best schools a ranking with the best in any state.

Junior College Meets Plowboys At Stephenville

Ranger Junior college meets a new opponent Saturday when the local college squad journeys to Stephenville to play the purple and white Plowboys of John Tarleton.

John Tarleton has been for a number of years one of the strongest contenders for the state junior college championship and with the zeal and fight that the Rangers have displayed in every game this season the game will be interesting from every standpoint.

Both teams have the purple and white colors but as is customary, the visiting team will wear its jerseys, while the Plowboys will be content in donning their "sweat jackets."

It has been three weeks since Ranger college has played a game, that being with the powerful Badgers of Randolph college of Cisco. Having come out on the small end of a score of 7-0, the Rangers are determined to make up for lost time.

Charlie Cooper, last year captain of the Bulldogs and mainstay center of the local college stars will be missing in the lineup, but Coach Trickey Ward has filled up all gaps and molded his men into a real fighting machine.

Out of 16 men who report for practice, eight have been captains of some Ranger or other city team, which proves that the squad is not lacking in athletic experience. The squad will leave in the morning at 8 o'clock.

With the John Tarleton game off their minds, the Ranger will face two more strong teams before the season closes. On Nov. 17 the North Texas Agricultural college of Arlington will make its bow in Ranger and the Rangers will tangle with them at Lillard field in one of the greatest intercollegiate games of the season in the oil belt district. The last game will be with the T. C. U. freshmen at Fort Worth, Nov. 23.

Gripings

By GUS

Well, this is Armistice Day and as far as we know we are at peace with the world. The Spirit of Ranger had a chance of heart and started at the kick-off this morning. It was probably due more to a change of a minor adjustment than anything else.

We hope you all enjoyed the paring Buzz Johnson gave us in the Gripings yesterday. In case the same had been a tie Charlie Milliken was to write the Gripings and pan both of us.

We are busy getting things ready for the flag raising this morning. We are a bum writer. The first piece we ever wrote that we thought was good was the little piece about the flag raising yesterday. We were the only one that thought so.

But, nevertheless, that was the ceremony and if you didn't read it we'll never know the difference. We tell a lot of people we noticed their stuff when we didn't even know they had any, and you can do us the same way. The flags will go up just the same.

If the Bulldogs should win the game this afternoon we are going to let you all in on a little secret. If they don't win we won't let you in on it because it didn't work. No, you are wrong—it has nothing to do with the old traditions in regards to changing one's luck.

One of the principle topics of discussion this morning around town is under the heading of "various Armistice Day celebrations I have seen." It is generally conceded that the one two years ago ranks mighty high if not highest.

That was the time the Spirit of Ranger drove itself home with Abe Shaw and us aboard.

Whenever Pop Boone runs out of something to write about he writes his singular experience with Grappo and the peculiar effect it has upon dormant desire to sing. He says he watched the other fellows sing that night, but other witnesses testify that Pop warbled a few notes himself.

There goes the parade. It is being led by legionnaires. They have a German gun that some of them might have helped captured. Just think some of them who were barely 21 when they went to the army are 31 and over now.

Behind them is the Bulldog band followed up by the pep squad. When the armistice was signed most of those kids were too little to know what it was all about. Time certainly flies. In a very short time those kids will be big enough to be soldiers in case of war. And some of the girls "war brides."

It's no wonder that the Legion is powerful in Ranger. During the boom this was the best place for a newly discharged service man to go. Thousands of them came here. Hundreds of them stayed. They did their part in making Ranger and have a right to their part in keeping it.

There's no town in the world that any greater respect for ex-service men than Ranger. A good part of it is self-respect, for a good part of Ranger is composed of ex-service men.

The legionnaires have been kind to us, even though we were a stay-at-home. They count us in on everything they have. We appreciate it, too. They appreciate frankness. We told them we had a perfect alibi for not being in the army, but it was not necessary to offer it because they would think it was bull. It probably would have been. Anyway, we like to see them celebrate Armistice day in any way they see fit and like to help them celebrate and generally do help them to some extent and it cramps our style to see them criticized.

AUSTIN, Nov. 11.—Statistics regarding the production of stone in Texas during 1926 have been recently compiled by the bureau of economic geology of the University of Texas in co-operation with the bureau of mines of the United States department of commerce. According to the figures obtained by these two organizations, the total valuation of stone products in the state for that year is $2,595,018. This total includes the following: Limestone, $2,210,828; granite, $186,765; basalt and sandstone combined, $197,425.

This production was in excess of that for 1925 which was as follows: Limestone, $1,898,185; granite, $178,375; basalt and sandstone, $186,800.

Granite was produced in 10 quarries in the central mineral region. Counties producing limestone are: Brown, Cameron, Comal, Dallas, Eastland, El Paso, Travis, Bell and Wise. Basalt is produced in Uvalde county.

STAGE SET FOR BULLDOG TILT WITH LOBOES

Cisco With Advantage On Her Side Is Confident of Victory, Dogs Will Fight.

The stage is all set for the annual football classic of the oil belt district—the Armistice day game between the Ranger Bulldogs and the Cisco Lobos.

Both teams have added the final touches to their practice and training and both teams are ready for the fray. The game will be called at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Lillard field before what will be in all probability the largest crowd this year.

The Cisco Lobos are, of course, confident of victory. They have shown up much better than have the Bulldogs in prior games and they have the advantage in experience. Besides that, their team is probably in the better physical condition due to the fact that they had a light game last week and the further fact that David Whitehall and Garland Hinman each have a bad ankle.

The Bulldogs are "ready." They have worked hard in training for this game and it means more to them than any game they have played or will play this year. In the dressing room all this week they have been faced with a big placard which says "I'll give my best against Cisco."

They will give their best too at Lillard field this afternoon. A few changes in the lineup have been made necessary due to injuries but it would be better for you to go out and see for yourself than it would if the changes were given here. However, the Bulldogs will fight with the true Bulldog tenacity and will give the best they have and their loyal friends will be out there to cheer them on to greater efforts.

Turkey Day Tilt At A. & M. To Draw Largest Crowd

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 11.—With the advance ticket sales indicating the attendance at the Texas Aggie-Longhorn football classic to be played on Kyle Field Thanksgiving Day will be larger than was expected, more temporary stands are being erected so as to make possible the handling of 25,000 people. Additional stands will be erected if it is found necessary, James Sullivan, business manager, said.

The annual battle between the Longhorns and Aggies is looked upon as the football classic of the Southwest Conference and it attracts a tremendous crowd every year. It is believed that the attendance this year will shatter all previous attendance records at Kyle Field.

Special trains to College Station will be run from all sections of the state to accommodate those who wish to see the game, one railroad having already scheduled twelve trains, according to announcements, and there is a possibility of scheduling more should the demand be greater.

An added attraction at the Thanksgiving contest will be the dedication of the new Aggie stadium since it was at the Aggie-Longhorn tilt in Austin last Thanksgiving that the Texas University stadium was dedicated.

John D. as He is Today

John D. Rockefeller recently for the first time permitted his picture to be taken as he played golf on his private course in Westchester county, New York. This likeness was the result of a photographer's hours of tireless effort. The financier, who is 88, soon will be leaving Pocantico Hills for his winter home at Ormond, Fla.

This Chap? He's Wheezer, That's All, Just Wheezer

Who's dis bloke? Wheezer. What's his other name? Wheezer. He's one of the new stars in the "Our Gang" comedies which are made in Hollywood. Looks like he's giving the director a little back talk. Wheezer is two years old.

I am positive that all the teams in the southern conference greatly regret that Bill Spears passed up the Annapolis appointment.

Has Gained Plenty.

Spears is the ideal triple threat man. He is without a superior in the south as a passer, has developed into one of the most feared runners and can more than hold his own in the kicking game.

A concrete proof of the above statement, I offer these statistics. In the first six games of the season he gained a trifle better than 600 yards from scrimmage. This figure does not include the several hundred additional yards he gained in running back punts and from kickoffs. In only one game did he play the full 60 minutes.

A 90-yard return of a kickoff, an 80-yard run after intercepting a pass and a 77-yard run through a broken field, are Spears' three best performances of the year.

What Publicity Can Do.

Getting back to the original thought that the publicity a player receives for meritorious performance is largely decided by the geographical position of the college he attends is proved by the case of Bill Spears.

Had he gone to the navy and played for that team the brand of football that he has turned in for Vanderbilt, he would be the talk of the country, a headliner in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and scores of other newspapers. "Red" Grange doing the same stuff he did for Illinois for some team not centrally located wouldn't have gotten the space he did on the sports pages for three years. I might add that in Mike Tobin, "Red" had the advantage of one of the best publicity directors in the country.

This effusion is dedicated to Bill Spears in an effort to spread his fame and deeds to any of the localities where the young man isn't so well known.

DALLAS, Nov. 11.—Bell boys at a local hotel were greatly relieved when Franz Brzezowski, Chicago, checked out.

Brzezowski is president of the Moran & Hastings Manufacturing company. Despite his name, he was born in the United States. His father was a Polish count before coming to this country.

"I'd have had to quit my job if anyone had wanted that gentleman paged," one of the bellboys said, heaving a sigh of relief when the room clerk informed him the guest had left.

CHILDRESS—Joe Woodward, 13, is the champion cotton picker of Childress county.

Joe, however, doesn't claim the record from the amount of cotton he picks but because he weighs 200 pounds and manages to do a good day's work in spite of it. He picks from 150 to 200 pounds of cotton daily.

LONGHORNS AND KANSAS AGGIES MEET TODAY

Horned Frogs Hope to Trim Centenary in Biggest Non-Conference Game

By RICHARD C. WILSON, United Press Staff Correspondent. DALLAS, Nov. 11.—Three conference tilts feature the semi-windup of the Southwestern conference season today and Saturday.

Texas university plays the Kansas Aggie squad of the Missouri Valley conference at Austin this afternoon in the feature game of the week. Over at Fayetteville, Ark., the Arkansas Razorbacks will battle their ancient foe, the Oklahoma Aggies, tomorrow. The Aggies also are members of the conference.

Texas will have a busy afternoon with the Aggies. The Aggies long have been the dope upsets of the valley. But Texas will be out to duplicate the feat of S. M. U. in defeating valley teams. The Mustangs trounced Missouri severely a few weeks ago. S. M. U. also beat Texas. But Missouri beat Kansas Aggies so the dope leaves the teams rather evenly balanced.

Arkansas by right of their recent victories over Louisiana State and T. C. U. should be able to handle the Oklahoma Aggies.

T. C. U. plays Centenary at Shreveport this afternoon in the third non-conference affair this week. Centenary is undefeated this season and their victory over S. M. U. early in the season makes them the favorites in today's game.

S. M. U. plays Baylor here tomorrow in a conference game. S. M. U. angered by their defeat at the hands of Texas A. & M. last week, will be expected to unleash a vicious offensive against the Bears. Baylor has improved in recent weeks as was attested last week when Texas escaped them with a 13 to 12 victory, and they may afford the Mustangs reasonably stiff opposition.

The Texas Aggies should have no trouble in piling up a score of any size they desire against the Rice Owls. Being defeated has become a weekly habit with the Owls.

Spears Is Rated Best Football Player In South

By BILLY EVANS. Bill Spears of Vanderbilt is perhaps the greatest player in the south. In that section every one is familiar with his gridiron prowess.

It seems that Bill Spears turned down an appointment to Annapolis in order that he might attend Vanderbilt.

While Bill Spears is fairly well known nationally in football circles, had he decided to become a rear admiral he would have been one of the most widely advertised players in the game. No all-America would have been complete without him.

There is no getting away from the fact that the selection of a college has considerable to do with the prestige that the outstanding star gets.

Colleges located close to the bigger cities in the United States invariably get more attention from the noted experts of the grid game and naturally the stars of such teams profit thereby.

"Yo uDon't Think About the Danger"

ENGLAND'S SERGEANT YORK IS LANCE CORPORAL AMEY

Armistice Day Recalls Heroism of Man Who Captured 50 Germans.

By MILTON BRONNER
(NEA Service Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 11.—If you were introducing William Amey, former lance corporal in the Warwickshire infantry, to an American, the best way to do it would be to say: "This man is the Sergeant York of England."

Sergeant York, who will recall, was selected as the greatest individual hero of the A. E. F. Similarly, William Amey could easily be picked for a corresponding rank among England's heroes. And Armistice Day is an excellent time to tell about him.

Hard Prize to Win
Amey, to begin with, holds one of the most highly-prized decorations in the world—the Victoria Cross. The V. C., granted only for deeds of the highest heroism, usually goes to a man after his death, for the simple reason that a deed that merits the honor usually ends fatally for the doer. An officer has to recommend the hero for the V. C., the colonel of the regiment, the brigadier general and various lieutenants and major generals have to approve the recommendation, and finally the king himself must pass on it.

But Amey got one—and is alive today to tell about it. Amey joined up in 1916, at the age of 35, from Leamington. His army career was without any unusual incidents until the closing fortnight of the war, when the 13th British army corps was engaged in the last "big push" in the vicinity of the St. Quentin canal, near the spot where Quintin Roosevelt lost his life.

At 5:30 on a chilly, foggy morning Amey's battalion went over the top, with the village of Landreatics as its objective. "The whole country was wrapped in a thick blanket of fog," says Amey. "Part of our outfit went forward so fast that it failed to mop up, and our men were falling victims to machine gun nests that had been left undisturbed. It was easy to get lost or separated in that fog. Directly, I found myself accompanied by only one man, stumbling along through a muddy field.

"On one side of the road was a thick, high, tough hedge. Judging by the lights we saw in the fog we concluded that German gun fire was coming from that direction.

"Come on," I said to my pal. "We're going to see what's on the other side of that hedge."

Seven Machine Guns
"So we busted through, at the cost of some scratches. Crickey! There behind that hedge were seven machine guns, sticking their snouts through the hedge while the Germans, safe and sound, were peppering our men. I took my rifle and shot down one crew. The others saw us, but they couldn't pull their machine guns out of the hedge and turn them on us, and they didn't have time to pull their service revolvers. They just ran for it and disappeared in the fog.

"Come on," I said to my pal, "we're going after them." "You know, when your blood is up you don't think about danger or the odds against you or anything of that sort. You just keep going. Well, we went. We saw no trace of the gunners. But directly we saw something big and dark loom up in the fog. I thought it was a little fortress, but it was only a French farmhouse.

"There was no sign of life, and I barged in through the open door. The rooms were empty, but there was a stairway that led down to a deep cellar. I shifted my rifle, took a hand grenade and started to tiptoe down that cellar stair.

"For a minute I was dazzled by the light. The Germans might have been short on food but there certainly was no candle shortage. In one corner of the cellar there were 50 Germans, and it seemed like every one of them had lit a candle. Near the stairs huddled the French family—two old men, two old women and some kids.

"I raised my hand grenade and told that German crowd to put their hands up and keep them up. They did.

Captured Whole Crowd
"One of the old women was so glad to see me she kissed me, and one of the old men slipped me a glass of cognac. I told him in my best French—which isn't much—to go upstairs and call my pals. Then I told those Germans I was going up and that they were to follow me in single file, every man with his hands up. Every man was to leave arms of every kind down in that cellar. I said that the first man that disobeyed would be shot dead.

"They came up, the whole 50. By that time some of the soldiers of my section had been summoned by the old Frenchman and we bagged the whole lot.

"I suppose I owe my life to a fluke. The enemy soldiers probably thought the farmhouse was surrounded by our men and if they tried anything on me they'd be killed like rats in a hole by hand grenades. Lucky they didn't know I only had one man with me."

That's Amey's story. But he didn't tell the whole of it. The colonel in command of his regiment finished the tale in an order of the day, posted up for all the regiment to see:

"Later, single-handed, he attacked a hostile machine gun post situated in another farm house. Exposed to a heavy fire he advanced unhesitatingly, killed two of the garrison and drove the remainder into a cellar until help arrived.

Took Another Chateau
"Again, later and unaided, he attacked a chateau in Faubourg Soyers, which had been strongly held and was holding up our line of advance. With determination and disregard of personal safety he rushed the chateau, killed two Germans and holding the remainder until reinforced. This gallant action was instrumental in the capture of a further 20 prisoners, and cleared away the last of the opposition in the sector.

And now? Well, William Amey, today a quiet man of 46, his dark hair just streaking with silver threads, has his pencils sharpened and is back at his old job of curf accountant, just as if there had never been a war.

IZAAK WALTON LEAGUE OPPOSES PROJECT TO DAM POTOMAC RIVER

Vigorous opposition to the proposed use of the Potomac river in the vicinity of Washington for power dams and general commercial development is voiced by the Izaak Walton League of America through the current issue of Outdoor America, magazine published by the League.

The national executive committee of the League has lodged a protest with the Federal Power Commission, and the fight is conducted in the magazine by Horace W. Peaslee, chairman of the national committee on the plan of Washington and environs of the American Institute of Architects, Robert Sterling Yard, executive secretary of the National Parks association, and John Barton Payne, national chairman of the American Red Cross.

In an article called "What Price Power?" Mr. Peaslee points out that there is now pending before the Power Commission application of a private corporation for prior rights to the power development of the Potomac river.

"The site of the project," he says, "is the most picturesque section of the river, by historic association and by practical use a part of the Capital recreation system. Included in the section are palisades, gorges, lakes, islands, and finally, the Great Falls of the Potomac. Here, too, are the crumbling records of almost forgotten American pioneering. It seems almost incredible that we, who have such a relatively limited background as a nation, should even consider wiping out these records."

That the commercial despoilation of a major part of the scenic charm of the National Capital should be so much as considered is viewed as surprising by others writing in the magazine.

"This is cut house and back door stuff to the Capital city of the United States," declared Mr. Yard, "who wants Washington as a manufacturing city? It is enough that it should be capital of the United States."

"The Potomac river as it now is," said Mr. Payne, "is an asset to the city of Washington, and is susceptible with proper development, of such great beauty as to make Washington the first of Capital cities. To spoil this by a power scheme not intensively demanded is indefensible. Washington is not a commercial city. It is our capital. America is entitled to a great non-commercial residence capital."

Texas usually ranks first among the states as a winter cabbage producer.

Goes on Talking

Bishop Barnes of Birmingham was just beginning a sermon on creation the other day in St. Paul's cathedral, London, when a band of men, led by a minister, marched to the front of the cathedral and demanded that he be cast out of the church for upholding Darwin's theory. After the protest the men marched out and the bishop, shown above, went on with his sermon, in which he affirmed his belief in evolution.

NORFLEET

The Manhunter's Own True Story

As told to Gordon Hines

ALL RIGHTS RESERVED - IMPERIAL PRESS - SUGAR LAND, TEXAS

WHAT HAS BEEN TOLD

Frank Norfleet, a Texas rancher, is swindled out of $45,000 by a ring headed by Joe Furey, resolves to destroy the gang. Following vague clues, his chase leads him back and forth across the country several times until he finally locates the home of Furey in Glendale, California. He leaves two Los Angeles officers to watch and follows a tip that Furey has scuttled to Florida. Stopping on the way to get his son, they proceed to Jacksonville where they find Furey in a restaurant. After a bloody fight the man is captured and Norfleet attempts to rush him out of the city to avoid legal complications. A deputy advises them to go to a flag station a few miles from the city and wait to flak the limited. Here Norfleet learns that the two Los Angeles officers had captured Furey and that he had bought his freedom for $20,000. The Jacksonville deputy sends a group of men with riot guns to attempt to rob Norfleet of his prisoner but they fail. Norfleet attempts to flag the limited and it refuses to stop. Pursued by the men from Jacksonville he rushes his prisoner back to that city and boards a train for New Orleans. Furey makes a spectacular break through the glass window of the Pullman drawing room and catches a switch engine back to the city. Norfleet and Pete follow in another engine and catch their man as he steps to the ground in the Jacksonville yards. There being no other train Furey is placed in jail for safe keeping until Norfleet learns that habes corpus proceedings are being prepared. Assisted by a friendly officer, he rushes his prisoner to a private home in the country, planning to leave for Texas next night. The officer promises to try to recover Norfleet's luggage and to restore his transportation. The next night they are safely aboard a Texas bound train with Furey chained to another officer who volunteers to help them. After Pete and Norfleet have rested and slept, the assisting officer returns to Jacksonville and Norfleet gets much valuable information from Furey regarding the bribing of the Los Angeles officers. He also learns that an officer in Fort Worth was responsible for his own swindling after the crooks had taken $20,000 from him this officer insisted that they rap him for $25,000 more, threatening them if they refused.

"After we rapped you a second time," Furey went on, "I paid $2,500 to this one officer and $100 each to four plain clothes men whom he had engaged as 'bodyguards' for me. He seemed to be afraid that I wouldn't go through with it and he wanted to make sure. This is the truth. I'd never have told you but it looks like I have been double-crossed. I've followed hunches a lot and I never had a stronger hunch in my life than I had about going after you a second time. Spencer will tell you the same thing. I told them this was the deal that was going to put the Indian sign on all of us.

"Goldie," I said to Gerber, "this cash'll put the jinx on us."

"They laughed but you see I was right."

My anger at the crooked Fort Worth officer was seething, but I could not help watching Furey's face as he spoke. He had a splendid countenance and undoubtedly, a splendid mind. Some sort of abnormality had probably caused him to devote his talents to swindling. What a politician he would have made! He was eloquent and one of the most persuasive men I have ever known. He must have been to have duped so many reasonably intelligent people and have kept an organization of unreliable crooks under such perfect control.

Perhaps I should have hated the man. He had treated me outrageously, but I too, was captivated by his magnetism and I found it hard not to sympathize too much in his then uncomfortable circumstances.

He was a master crook, an arch criminal, yet I never heard him refer to a woman except in the most respectful manner. He didn't care for alcoholic liquors and he seldom used profanity. Society had suffered a real loss when Joe Furey had reached life's diverging paths and chosen the wrong one. The thought interested me. Why had he chosen the wrong path?

"Joe, perhaps this may be a presumptuous question. Perhaps you won't answer it. Why, with your brains and ability, your uncanny gift for leadership, are you not the Governor of New York today? You could have accomplished anything. Now, you're just another broken criminal."

Tears welled in his eyes and coursed down his fat cheeks. He looked at me, then away and he could hardly speak. Then he murmured, in a choked voice:

"My God, Norfleet, what wouldn't I give to be able to start all over again. First, I didn't know better; I thought I was a pretty smart young man to be able to get by so well on my wits. Then, when I grew more sensible and might have changed, I found myself enmeshed in the coils of a swindling organization that wouldn't let me go." He was quiet for a moment and I could see that he was laboring under a great emotional strain. "My baby boy," he murmured, almost to himself. "What will become of my little boy? He thinks his daddy is a great man and a gentleman. What chance will the world give to him, with his daddy in prison?"

I was deeply moved by his honest grief, although a little consideration of the inevitable end might have caused Furey to change his course long before. For a moment or so I would feel sentimentally sympathetic, and I was sincerely sorry for the man's child, but, considering Furey himself, resentment would well up in my soul and I would be tempted to condemn him bitterly for the misery and poverty he had caused to other men's sons.

"Your wife quit the business when her baby came. Why didn't you quit then and make a new start?"

"Oh, damn it, I don't know! I should have, but the excitement gets into your blood and thills become a part of every day's routine. A conservative, everyday life would run a fellow crazy after a few years of my sort of living. I had to keep seeking new thrills to stifle the memory of things I had done. Memory is a luxury that only those who go straight can afford, I couldn't afford it. I had to go on."

For several minutes neither of us spoke. I watched his face and I could see that he was doing more introspective thinking there, in that brief half-hour, than he had probably done in the rest of his lifetime.

"Norfleet, if you want a man to be good, you've got to start him young. When life steals and nibbles a youngster's youth, he usually turns crook to get even. It's a sort of resentment against the order of things which have presented his early life. I was never a boy. It was the instinct for self-preservation which first blurred my conception of property rights. You've got to start at the cradle to make men, or even before that. Someone, somewhere, said that to make a gentleman, you must start with his grandfather. I never had a chance."

These observations moved him into a morbid state of self-pity and I became rather disgusted. He was certainly sorry for himself, but I never heard a word of pity for any of the poor devils he had swindled. One minute I liked the fellow and was swayed by his powerful personality, the next found me seething with rage and resentment. It's too bad he hadn't awakened a little of that in me before he got my $45,000.

At Pensacola, we had to change trains, with a two-hour layover at the station. I wondered if Furey's slick lawyers would have thought of heading us off there with a habes corpus proceeding. I'd never rest till we got out of the station. I realized that it was improbable, but Furey was always doing improbable things and it would not be hard to charter an airplane at Jacksonville and head our train off at Pensacola. I didn't want to take a chance of having my prisoner taken away from me. They would have to serve the papers on me personally, so I decided to leave Pete to care for Furey and to exercise him; a little on the station platform while I hid out till train time.

I dropped off the observation platform as the train drew into the station and ambled off to find a place to pass the time. There was a church a few blocks down the street and services were going on. They would never look for me there, so I stepped inside and took a seat in the rear. I got out of the sermon with a spite. The music was soothing. It was still some time until our train was due to leave, so, for once, I found no fault with the length of the sermon. The preacher was a good one and I could understand why his congregation held its patience, even though the hour was late. After the last hymn was sung and the crowd was dismissed, I strolled out among them, shaking hands here and there with friendly persons.

After that, I hadn't long to kill time. A few moments before the train was to leave I went back to the station and motioned to Pete to put Furey aboard. I loitered in the shadows of the platform's pillars until the last "Board!" was called and swung up to the rear platform. Safe again. We would soon be out of Florida and I would breathe much easier.

Time dragged and we stayed as close to our drawing room as possible. Late in the afternoon of the day we were to pull into New Orleans, a gentle tap-tap-tap sounded on our door. My heart stopped beating for a moment but I rose and went to the door; I spoke through the panel, asking who was there.

"It's I."

An illuminating reply. I opened the door and peered through a tiny crack. Mrs. Street stood there, smiling coyly. I stepped outside, closed the door carefully and walked down the aisle of the car to her own section. I was beginning to wonder about our paths. Why had she quit the train we were on when Furey escaped? Why was she on this one now?

This time she was acting strangely and I wondered what was up. She soon informed me, in a confidential whisper, that she was suspicious, on my account, of two men in a car ahead. She had passed them a short time before and overheard them talking about bumping off some party who was also on the train.

"Oh, Mr. Norfleet!" she leaned close, her voice trembling. "I'm sure they mean you and your boy!"

That was not impossible. Such things had happened before. It was worth investigating, although I could not do so. Mrs. Street's actions. She seemed very friendly and anxious about my welfare, yet she seemed, for some peculiar reason, to be dogging my steps from coast to coast. Such things are usually prompted by motives. It couldn't be for my benefit, for I meant nothing to her.

But that could wait. Perhaps I would find out the truth about her some day.

I went to the drawing room and told Pete to stay close by Furey's side and let no one enter until we reached New Orleans. He was putting cold towels on Furey's sore and bruised head. The man had battered himself up considerably in his headlong dive from the car window. We were nearing New Orleans and I told Pete that I would stay outside for the rest of the time, watching. He was to wait in the drawing room until I could get a wheel chair and some red-caps to assist him in getting our prisoner off the train. I warned him to let the porters carry all the luggage and to keep his hands free and near his guns.

I reasoned that, if we were to be attacked, the attackers would expect us to alight together and that they would have the drop on us. I could cover the exit of Pete and Furey from the train and also take care of myself if I were where I could keep an eye on the whole situation.

R. C. HANNAH OF DALLAS DIES SUDDENLY TUESDAY

R. C. Hannah, 49, of Dallas, died suddenly in that city Tuesday morning. He was the father of Mrs. V. E. Dominick and Miss Louetta Hannah of Ranger, both of whom attended the funeral in Dallas Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Hannah was well known in Ranger where he frequently visited his two daughters.

AUSTIN.—Texas is playing father to a large number of children who do not properly belong in the state orphan home at Corsicana, according to Dr. H. H. Harrington, chairman of the state board of control.

Reports, he said, show 89 children there, whose fathers have abandoned the mothers and children.

The proper place for such children, Harrington contends, is in the school for neglected and dependent children at Waco.

EL PASO.—An honest automobile owner has been found by local police.

When Francisco Ochoa's automobile was stolen he reported to police who subsequently found it and took Raul Guerrero into custody. Ochoa admitted the car was only worth $300 and charges were filed against Guerrero in county court instead of district court.

The beauty killer

HERE, it strikes a beautiful woman—and in a few years her charm will have fled. . . . Here, it grips a promising man—soon he will sink, with blighted prospects, into obscurity.

What a deadly affliction constipation is!

Thief of youth. Robber of strength. Evil forerunner of disease and misery! It destroys health! It kills beauty!

What a blessing that there is relief from this dreadful scourge! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—promptly.

Why ALL-BRAN alone is effective

ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it through the intestines, gently distending them—cleansing, eliminating poisonous wastes. How different from part-bran products which contain so little bulk that there is hardly enough to have any effect at all. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because ALL-BRAN is 100% bran.

Different from habit-forming drugs

And contrast ALL-BRAN with dangerous drugs and pills—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Let it soak a few moments to bring out all its nut-like flavor. Serve it with other cereals. In soups. Recipes on every package.

Don't risk a part-bran substitute. Insist on genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants and cafeterias. On diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

BOY WAS SICK

Texan Tells How He Got Acquainted With the Good Work of Black-Draught as a Laxative.

Glenflore, Texas.—"I had a sick spell when just fifteen years old," says Mr. George W. Maness, R. F. D. 2 this place. "Anyone who has had chills, like I had, is apt to remember them. I was a sick boy—just lay around the home, weak. My skin was yellow and I could hardly stand up. I had hard chills. "My father gave me quinine. Someone told him to give me Black-Draught with it. He brought some home, and they fixed it up like a tea. It wasn't very good, but I was so sick I would take anything. "After a few days, I began to feel better. I was hungry and could eat. I kept on taking the tea for awhile, and I got well. I haven't had chills since then, but I have taken a lot of Black-Draught since that time. It is a family medicine with me." Where assistance is needed in the way of a laxative or cathartic, Thedford's Black-Draught should be taken, as often as necessary, to open the bowels and put them in a healthy and normal state of activity. Try it; 1c a dose. NC-185

Deeds His Farm to Coolidge

Former State senator Luke Duffy, of Indiana, finding he "couldn't sell his 176-acre farm, trade it to creditors or give it away," because of farm conditions, has deeded the tract "to President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon, Secretary Hoover, Secretary Jardine, Senator James A. Reed, Simon Fess and Pat Harrison, Representative Finis Garrett and Julius Barnes, former president of the United States chamber of commerce." Farm experts say the president could make the farm pay if he used the intensive farming methods used by his Vermont ancestors.

BEAUTY AUTHORITY GIVES RULES TO ACQUIRE CHARM

Famous Wars and Heroes Fade Into Oblivion In Contrast With Womans Beauty.

One of the most absorbing branches of historical research in these last centuries of civilization has been concerned with inquiring into the intimate life of the world's famous women. What sort of woman was it who could rule and rule an empire? What was the charm of Helen of Troy and did the power and allurements of Diana de Poitiers lie in the curve of her finger nails?

From the time of Eve to Duse, women have had an appeal for men and have won their right to happiness through giving a free outlet to their personalities, and to cultivating those assets which they innately possess. Such are the secrets which take a woman out of the type class and place her as a poised, intelligent, magnetic individuality who attracts those things she most desires.

And these are the requisites:

First—Daily exercise of some kind to bring to the body a warm glow and thus burn up superfluous food.

Second—A daily bath—hot, tepid or cold—as best suits the individual.

Third—Wholesome food at regular hours, and much less than the average person eats.

Fourth—Sufficient sleep for the nerves and rest for the body.

Fifth—Half an hour a day invested in making the most of the face and hair.

Sixth—A costume that is a fitting frame for the personality.

Sally forth on an afternoon with the knowledge that you look your best; and with complete forgetfulness of the things that can not be helped. Suppose your nose is too big; give people a smile to look at and they'll forget the nose. Suppose you are overly plump or a bit too slender; people don't care how much you weigh if you are graciously yourself. If you pity yourself for some physical shortcoming, real or fancied, people will pity you, too. If you glorify such charm and attractiveness as you have, people will see only that.

Italy Observes King's Birthday With Big Fete

ROME, Nov. 11.—King Victor Emmanuel's fifty-ninth birthday was officially celebrated throughout all Italy today. The occasion, coinciding with the allies' armistice day, had an added significance.

The royal salute of 101 guns, fired at sunrise from every fort and military and naval station in the country, was the first thing to recall the attention of the public to the fete that was being celebrated.

In Rome, all public buildings, which will be illuminated tonight, were flying the tricolor bearing the arms of the House of Savoy. The trolley cars were decked with streamers made up of the colors of Italy and the municipality of Rome.

King Victor, riding his favorite black charger, attended the review arranged in his honor in the Macao barracks in Rome. Detachments representing the various regiments stationed in the capital passed before the king who, surrounded by the generals commanding the Rome army corps and division, took the salute of the troops as they marched past.

Congratulatory telegrams were sent to the king by the premier, the cabinet and the civic and legal authorities.

Similar messages from the heads of foreign states began to arrive at Villa Savoia at an early hour this morning.

GAINESVILLE.—Father and son, both lawyers, battled over their stenographer here the other day.

The fight, however, was a legal one and the son, Cecil Murphy was prosecuting attorney while his father, W. E. Murphy, represented the defendant.

The young lady in the case was charged with violating the city parking ordinance. The two men have their office together and she is employed by them.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty and assessed a $1 fine and costs. The defendant gave notice of appeal to the county court.

Parentage of Harding Denied

That Warren G. Harding was the father of her child, claimed in a recent book by Nan Britten, formerly of Marion, O., has been denied by a spokesman for the relatives of the late president. Nan Britten and her daughter, Elizabeth Ann, are pictured above.

Beautiful but Dumb

A regular profile, clear skin and an attractive figure will of themselves win for the possessor much of the joys of life—invitations to dances and social gatherings, admiration and passing attention of men. But these alone, without the vibrant sympathy and keen intelligence of an active mind, are swiftly burned out leaving the ashes of disillusion and emptiness of life—Classifying the possessor as beautiful but dumb.

You can develop beauty! You can develop your personality! By simple, yet scientific knowledge as taught by the noted authority, Madame Serrec, who is going to bring, in person, all of her beauty, health and charm secrets to the women of Eastland County.

MME. SERREC

The women of this city are most fortunate that this newspaper has been able to arrange a personal visit of this beauty expert. Not one should miss any of her lectures.

Madame Serrec THE INTERNATIONAL AUTHORITY & WRITER ON Beauty-Charm & Health Culture

She will tell you in a series of five remarkable lectures how to really become beautiful through the proper care of the body. She will define for you charm and personality and show you how they may be acquired by the girl or woman whose mirror reflects many minor physical shortcomings.

Borger Prepares For Convention Fifth Division

The fifth division convention of the American Legion of Texas convenes at Borger, Texas, Nov. 12 and 13. Since this is Borger's first convention elaborate preparations are being made to entertain one of the largest crowds that ever gathered anywhere in the Panhandle on any occasion. The program includes dances, boxing matches, banquets, a trip through the oil fields, free shows, etc. Many prominent men in public and Legion affairs are scheduled for speeches and a good time is guaranteed every one attending this convention.

This convention will afford many people an opportunity to visit the "Wonder City of the World." A reduction of one and one-half for the round-trip on the "certificate plan" will apply for those attending this convention of the American Legion from any point in Texas. Tickets for the going journey must be purchased on Nov. 10, 11 or 12. A certificate receipt from the ticket agent at the point of origin is necessary to purchase a return ticket for half-price.

All cattle in Texas are not on farms. The latest census report shows more than 200,000 head of cattle within incorporated towns and cities.

South America's Mary Pickford

Most Nurses Use New Face Powder

MELLO-GLO, the new wonderful French Process Face Powder, is preferred by nurses because of its purity, and they say it does not make the skin dry and drawn. Stays on longer, keeps shine away, and is very beneficial to the complexion. You too will love MELLO-GLO when you use it. Phillips Drug Store, Ranger, Texas.—Adv.

CHEANEY NEWS

Special Correspondence.

CHEANEY, Nov. 11.—The mist has cleared away. Nice weather prevails. The threshers continued to hum until Cheaney was all threshed. All is done. The Strickler thresher has gone to Cross Roads to thresh them out. The Weeks thresher is idle. We were blessed with good weather to save our hay, as well as nice peanuts, and as we made a failure on cotton, peanuts are a great help.

Singing was well attended at Cheaney Sunday evening, considering two threshers were running nearby and as threshing is all done we can all attend singing and Sunday school now.

Bro. J. F. Skaggs will preach at Cheaney Saturday at 11, Saturday night and Sunday.

Our school is progressing nicely
