REMUS MURDER TRIAL OPENS IN CINCINNATI

Daughter of Ex-Bootleg King Is Expected to Tell of Cruelty to Mother.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 14.—The murder trial of George Remus, one-time "king of the bootleggers," opened in criminal court here today with a colorful story of illicit gold, rum running, prison life and an alleged love affair woven into its background.

Remus is charged with slaying his estranged wife, Inogene, a few hours before her divorce petition was to have been heard in court here the morning of Oct. 6. He pursued her to a park where he fired the fatal shot and then surrendered.

He killed his wife, Remus said, "because I am a man of principle, despite what people have been saying about me." "I cannot stand for the things that woman has been carrying on for some time," he added calmly.

The former millionaire charged his wife with unfaithfulness and named the man he says was responsible for his sentence to Atlanta Federal penitentiary for bootlegging.

Franklin P. Dodge, Jr., a former department of justice agent, according to the case Remus has outlined in his own defense, plotted with Mrs. Remus to obtain the five or six million dollar profits from the huge rum running syndicate the one time struggling Chicago lawyer built.

Depositions will be presented, Remus said, to prove that his wife conspired to imprison him, gain possession of his vast fortune, cause his deportation on grounds of being an alien, and finally to kill him.

These depositions were taken in half a dozen cities throughout the country and included such persons as John W. Snooks, warden of the Indiana Federal prison, hotel managers, congressman LaGuardia of New York, Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general department of justice agents and operatives former convicts and others.

With the case Remus has defended himself in court hopes to show that while his wife was attentive to him during his life in the federal prison she was carrying on an affair with Dodge and that together they planned his ruin.

This constitutes justifiable homicide, Remus will argue.

In his defense, Remus was prepared to lay bare the ramifications of his bootlegging operations and to tell how with a few hundred dollars he started in the illicit business which in a few brief years made him a multi-millionaire.

His axiom of business was that "every man has his price" and on that principle he surrounded himself with an army of men, from the hijackers who robbed his own trucks as a ruse to circumvent prosecution, to a state prohibition director and business men in several cities who have been sentenced to prison as a result of his conviction.

Thus he will account for the fortune he amassed, and the mansion he erected here as a monument to the failing prohibition.

This mansion with its $10,000 Grecian bath and some 50 rooms was found looted when Remus returned from prison. He charged that his wife had removed everything even to the valuable door trimmings.

Charles P. Taft, county prosecutor expects to call Dodge as his "star" witness to deny the charges of Remus. The state hopes to prove that Mrs. Remus was killed because she had sought to divorce her husband following a long series of abuses.

Taft will have as one of his main supporting witnesses an invited bootlegger, politician and banker and together they rubbed elbows in the elaborate setting. Thus first was attracted the attention of government agents who wondered at a lawyer, a stranger in the community, becoming wealthy so miraculously.

The raid on Death Valley Farm, the name Remus had given to the headquarters of his bootlegging syndicate, was as sensational as the other climaxes in his varied career. There officers found the records of Remus always has had a flare for publicity. When he first visited Cincinnati as a lawyer appearing in a minor liquor case he enjoyed attention.

Then his mansion was a testimonial to his desire for publicity for, to his Christian party he invited bootleggers, politicians and bankers and together they rubbed elbows in the elaborate setting. Thus first was attracted the attention of government agents who wondered at a lawyer, a stranger in the community, becoming wealthy so miraculously.

The raid on Death Valley Farm, the name Remus had given to the headquarters of his bootlegging syndicate, was as sensational as the other climaxes in his varied career. There officers found the records of

Raid $500,000 Booze Factory

Federal agents under Thomas E. Stone, Detroit's federal prohibition administrator, the other day raided a subterranean brewery and distillery in the city's busiest section and confiscated nearly a half million dollars' worth of beer, liquor and paraphernalia. The picture above shows agents examining barrels in a room in which 300 barrels of beer were stored. The inset shows one of the raiders effecting an entrance to the cellar. In the underground brewery were eighteen 5000 gallon vats and three 30,000-gallon steel tanks, each filled with beer.

CROWDED HOUSE GREETS BEAUTY EXPERT MONDAY

Mme. Jeanette Serrec Emphasizes Own Personality and Individuality in Her Costume.

The American Legion hall, Ranger, was well filled with Eastland county women, who came Monday afternoon to hear the first lecture, given by Madame Serrec, famous beauty expert, who is conducting a school of charm this week under the auspices of the Ranger Times and Eastland Telegram. Madame Serrec, herself a mother, emphasized her own personality and individuality when she appeared before her audience in a green Chinese shawl, a real importation from the Orient, which displayed her perfectly molded figure, as well as enhanced the coloring in her hair, eyes and lips. After her lecture, she threw aside the shawl and clad in a handsome black bathing suit, showed her audience some of the exercises that would bring about some of the things she has talked of in her lecture.

Madame Serrec first of all stressed the fact that every woman is potentially attractive, stating that beauty is not a matter of original endowment, but a matter of knowledge, poise and spirit.

She brought out the fact as a background for beauty grooming and care are necessary requisites and that without these beauty of features alone is of little avail. She urged the women present to adopt for their slogan "water, internally, externally and eternally, taking up internal cleanliness first, pointing out that faulty elimination is the cause of sallow skin, lack luster eyes, melancholia and many other ills that are a serious handicap towards beauty of face, form or expression. Following this the beauty expert turned her audience's attention to the possible cure for this trouble, giving a talk on diet and stating some pertinent facts in regard to the part that water plays in the life and beauty of every human being.

Madame Serrec, who is a student of Chicago university, and holds an M.A. and B.A. degree, lacks only one semester of having her Ph.D. degree. She is also a mother and her lectures on child psychology, which will be given during her charm school will be of great benefit to mothers. Her work for years has been on psychology, dietetics, public health, and she has highly specialized in the work of child psychology. This vast knowledge enables her to bring to those who attend the charm school this week, a solution for many home problems.

In the course of her first lecture, Madame Serrec gave an abase to charm helps only homely remedies, that are in reach of all and are found in the kitchen cupboards, or at the turn of a faucet in every home—all everyday articles, but of great value to beauty aids.

"We all seek beauty," this disciple of charm stated. "No one chooses to be ugly—each of us constantly strives to attain a greater beauty, a greater expression of the spirit within, or the expression of our own individualities. We should know our type and know the kind of clothes that best express and emphasize that type. Beauty of features is not always a natural heritage but most everyone has some natural beauty. Sometimes it's beautiful eyes that we are endowed with; sometimes beautiful lips, complexion, hair, and sometimes nature does fall to endow one with even one beautiful feature. But grooming, study, the development of poise, of one's own individuality, the finding of one's own self, overcomes any handicap that a woman starts life with, if she is persistent and wants to find charm and beauty," and then followed a number of terse explanations as to how to travel this road of charm.

After the lecture and exercises, Madame Serrec conducted a round-table discussion answering questions that had been put in the question box. All the women present—young, middle-aged and old—listened with great interest to the first message.

PITTSBURGH IS ROCKED BY HEAVY BLAST

Fourteen Known Dead Hospitals Are Filled With Wounded

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 14.—Fourteen persons were known dead and at least a score were believed by firemen to be buried as a result of an explosion today which wrecked the 5,000,000-cubic foot gas tank of the Equitable Gas company.

The explosion devastated a large section of the industrial area of this city, wrecking factories and imperiling thousands of men and women at work.

Rescue workers were unable to reach hundreds reported trapped in collapsed buildings and it was impossible to estimate the death toll.

Ten bodies were taken to a morgue shortly after the explosion and three hospitals were caring for the maimed and burned workers, brought there in ambulances last night.

Officials of the Manchester gas works, where the explosion occurred, were unable to say how many workers were in the plant.

Huge chunks of steel were thrown through roofs of houses, caved in building fronts and fell on passing automobiles and street cars.

Others who had left their homes just before the blast to go to the stores, fought with police and firemen who endeavored to keep them from entering the danger zone.

Screaming for their children, the mothers fought their way past police lines.

For hundreds of feet about the wrecked tank, great pieces of steel lay half submerged in the water-covered street. They had been twisted like paper by force of the blast.

A network of twisted electric and telephone wires lay tangled in the debris-filled streets.

Thousands of people surrounded the hospitals where the injured were treated, demanding admittance to seek relatives and friends.

Police stood guard at hospitals but they were unable to preserve order.

 how he had dealt in liquor in wholesale quantities, hints of murders of men who threatened to dam the stream of impouring gold.

Even behind the walls of Atlanta prison George Remus became a familiar figure to the reading public. He rolled into the prison walls in a special Pullman car and stories came to the outside of his life of ease with a private valet and chauffeur and other luxuries for the privation of which men were sentenced.

Then came the breath of scandal at the prison and the removal to Remus and others in the "millionaires' row" to the jail at Athens, Ga., while the conduct of the warden and other officials was investigated and it was in part on the strength of the story that Remus told that the warden was ousted.

Remus played a prominent part a little later in the Jack Daniels whiskey distillery case for which respected men of St. Louis, Indianapolis and other cities received prison terms or fines.

The climax of his colorful career was a less dramatic one than Remus might have been expected to stage. He said he had planned it otherwise. His desire was to kill both his wife and Dodge at the same time and for weeks he trailed them.

Falling in this he finally followed Mrs. Remus from her hotel here to a down town park in the morning rush hours and overtaking her cab, fired the fatal shots.

Gripings

By GUS

And now it comes time to gripe a few pains after a very quiet Sunday. We spent most of the day recuperating from the hard work we did trying to use the power of the mine in assisting the Bulldogs to beat Cisco. Someone on the other side evidently had a more powerful mind.

We took time out and cleaned out the floor of the old Spirit of Ranger yesterday morning. We found many relics of by gone days in the excavating process, part of which was a Sunday Dallas News dated away back in August. We also found 41 cents in cash money which we figure more than paid us for our trouble.

One good thing about putting off these cleanups is that you can sometimes pick up a little change that way.

In case some of you folks don't know it, we have a championship football team close by and it's not only the Grey Eagles either. This gang down at Strawn is undefeated in the district and have beaten some class A teams, too. They are trying to arrange a game this week with Olney on the home grounds for the district championship.

They have gotten together a little money and built a nice park and playing field right on the highway and are going right at it. The hardest game of football we ever played was down there watching Strawn beat Cleburne a few years ago. Strawn had only 15 players and 13 uniforms and when a guy came out he had to give his uniform to a substitute, but they whipped Cleburne and made them like it.

Everybody said they had a wonder coach. He went o Breckenridge and made a flop because he couldn't produce a winning team there. He was a good coach either way, but, you know everybody can't win. Somebody's got to lose.

They have Shotwell at Breckenridge now. It won't be long until they'll be crying for a winner and if they don't get it they'll be crying for a new coach.

It takes something else besides a coach to make a football team. The best coach in the world can't win without men, and a poor coach can take a bunch of good men and get along pretty good.

There's something else to coaching besides winning football games. You'd be surprised if you knew the inside story of some of Blair Cherry's experiences with different players. Some of them have been headed the wrong direction when Cherry helped them out and used his good influence on them to get them right. There's probably as much satisfaction in that as in winning a game, but the public don't know all about it and never will.

Whenever one man can win the confidence of an entire football squad and maintain such discipline and get their sincere co-operation in training as Cherry has done with the 1927 Bulldogs, it must be a great source of personal satisfaction to him. Furthermore, the fact that they played the game for all that was in them takes most of the sting out of their defeat.

Naturally, victory would have been lots better but we beg to call to your attention the fact that there will be another game next year on Armistice day, and the Bulldogs will have had this year's experience behind them and some reserve force eligible to play, and if Cisco don't develop a better team than they have this year, it'll mean a different district champion.

Recognition Service Very Impressive

The recognition service, held at the First Methodist church in Ranger last night, for the members of the girls reserve corps, was one of the most impressive ceremonies ever witnessed in Ranger. To suitable music, some two hundred young girls, dressed in white middie suits, with blue ties, marched into the darkened church, carrying lighted candles and took their places in the center pier of the church, as they sang, "America, the Beautiful."

Mrs. Stanley McAnelly then asked the girls to put out the "Candles of Self" and take the pledge of service to Jesus Christ, who is the servant of man.

Talks were made by Miss Blanche Gilmore and Miss Ione Wright, both of Dallas, who are directors in the girls reserve work.

Florence Alice Palmer, Mary Edloe Davenport and Marguerite Adamson, all had parts on the program as did little Mavis Murray, who gave a fitting little verse, and Miss Helen Howdeshell sang a solo.

At the end of the program, the girls again lighted their candles and filed out, forming an almost perfect circle as they made their exit, after Miss Mattie Roberts had pronounced the benediction.

Sponsors of the girls reserve corp in Ranger are Mrs. Earnest Fletcher, and Misses Helen Howdeshell, Woody Graham, Lucile Hill and Miss Mattie Roberts, general sponsor and Miss Stanley McAnelly, chairman. Miss Wright will return to Ranger the last of the week and Miss Gilmore will be here all next week to help the corps complete its organization and launch its work.

Hospitality of El Paso Praised By Club Women

By RENA B. CAMPBELL.
The thirtieth annual convention of the Federated Women's Clubs of Texas which closed at El Paso Friday afternoon, might well be known as the Spanish shawl convention, as these graceful accessories were in evidence on every side.

The outstanding feature of the convention was the hospitality of the city of El Paso and especially the El Paso club women. When the special train arrived in El Paso on Monday morning it was met by hundreds of El Paso women wearing Mexican hats and shawls, who took charge of the incoming delegates and visitors and took them to their hotels. The Ranger and Eastland party had a whole wing at the Hussman, formerly the Orjoff hotel.

Tom the moment of the delegates' arrival in El Paso until their departure, cars of the El Paso women were at their command and on every occasion where meetings were held away from the Hussman, there were hosts and hostesses to take the party to one place to another.

The various entertainments afforded the convention took their color from the borderland. On Monday evening a reception at the hotel Hussman was held in the crystal ball room and on this occasion the El Paso women wore real Spanish costumes, and looked very lovely in gowns of lace, with mantillas draped over high Spanish combs.

A real Spanish fiesta at the Country club on Thursday evening was a beautiful feature, and a fine arts program on Tuesday night will never be forgotten. On Friday afternoon a trip to Juarez was followed by a real Mexican dinner at the Hotel Hussman and on Saturday the entire delegation was taken for a trip through the valley, where a luncheon was served at two community clubhouses, and the horse show at Fort Bliss brought that day to a perfect end.

These are only a few of the many courtesies that were extended to the visitors during the week—it would take another week to tell of all the nice things that the El Paso women did to make this convention such a success that every woman who said goodbye to that charming city brought home enshrined in her book of memories the happiest and kindest thoughts of El Paso's hospitality.

The election of course, was a disappointment to the supporters of Mrs. M. H. Hagaman and Mrs. D. L. Stevens, and it was rich, racy and ridiculous in many respects. An El Paso man reporter who was present at one stormy session played it up very well but even his facile pen could not tell the whole exciting story, nor can mine. There was lots of lobbying and plenty of politics. In some places even the Bible societies and the Parent-Teacher associations had been federated. Two years ago the old regime was defeated and a president representing the young women was put in. As a consequence, the old regime at once began planning to get back in power and the result was a steam roller process that flattened out the younger sides, just as a G. O. P. political machine does the democratic party every once in a while. Mrs. Potter, the newly elected president, is not an old woman, although she has a married daughter, as did each of her opponents, but she was backed by the old regime, women who have had the helm of the Texas Federation since its organization 30 years ago and the battle was as it was in Austin two years ago—May against December.

The keynote of the president's message on president's evening was reverence and even that was made irreverent by some of the veiled bits of sarcasm that crept into speeches prior to hers. There was little of reverence displayed for the presiding officer during some of the stormy sessions, but in due deference to the retiring president, she held her position with dignity and grace and her womanly attitude turned many a vote to her in her race with Mrs. Maggie Barry.

The Ranger and Eastland delegation took the defeat well. Flowers were ready and when the result of the vote was announced, they were the first to reach the new president, who made her first speech to the convention with the Ranger-Eastland delegation's flowers in her arms. Practically all of the Eastland county delegation returned home Sunday, a few coming in Saturday. Mrs. Hagaman and Mrs. Horjigan stayed over in El Paso and will leave

Methodists Open Week of Prayer On Monday Morning

Beginning of a week of prayer was observed today at the Methodist church, Ranger, by members of the Women's Missionary society. Mrs. Roy Jameson conducted the morning's program and gave the Bible lesson. Mrs. K. L. Hodges talked on the week of prayer home special. Mrs. Herbert Stafford on "Palmore woman's institute"; Mrs. Funk on "A Christian commercial school for women"; Mrs. A. W. Turner, on Letters from a Japanese student; Mrs. R. M. Davenport gave a recitation, "The Creed of brotherhood" and Mrs. L. H. Flewelling talked on the valley institute, during the program a number of prayers were offered.

At noon a delicious luncheon was served and the program under the leadership of Mrs. K. R. Stafford was taken up again at 1 o'clock. Mr. Edwards sang and offerings were taken for two mission schools that the society is helping to maintain. The attendance was very good. A number of the husbands dropped in at lunch time and had lunch with the members of the society. Among those present was Rev. Geo. Shearer, who with Mrs. Shearer will leave Tuesday morning for Fort Worth where they will attend the Central Texas conference of the Methodist church. Other members will go over for the conference during the week, especially next Sunday. Appointments of preachers will be given over the radio this year.

'Baby-Face' Wants Sammy's Title

They call Jimmy McLarnin a "baby-face" boxer, but don't think he's not a tough guy when in the ring. McLarnin recently knocked out Kid Kaplan and is now angling for a fight with Billy Wallace. McLarnin, like Wallace, is seeking a bout with Sammy Mandell for the lightweight crown.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON—Aside from those up for re-election, there are in these days two main groups of worried politicians. The first one, by far the largest, includes those who wish they knew which of the presidential bugbears in sight would develop into successful band wagons. The second consists of certain politicians who are afraid of losing control in their home states in case certain candidates are nominated.

Neither of these bugbears is the exclusive possession of one party, but the first is hardest on the republicans and the second is giving the most bother to some democrats. They all know that those who give the band wagon its first pushes, when momentum is needed most, will be rewarded with places near the driver's seat when the time comes to dish out the various brands of political delicatessen which make the game attractive.

Terrifying nightmares afflict some democratic bosses, senators and congressmen who fear that the nomination of Al Smith would turn congressional and other seats in their states over to the republicans next November. There are several such states and the most prominent example is that of North Carolina, where Senator Simmons fears damage to his well-oiled machine in case of Smith's nomination and hence is working against Al for all he is worth.

This would be a big year for floods, predicted Mr. Herbert Jaurin Browne, the long distance weather forecaster, among his other predictions, and now the New England flood has gone into 1927 history along with the vaster floods in the Mississippi valley.

Not all of Browne's predictions have come true but he was dead right in forecasting that this would be a heck of a year insofar as weather was concerned. Besides the floods, there have been quite a few tornadoes—"my tornadoes" as Browne would call them—and in many sections folks are still talking about the cold summer they had. The weather bureau continues to sneer at Browne but hard-headed business men and some agricultural organizations continue to pay good money for his forecasts.

Occasionally Browne sits himself down and writes Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, charging that the weather bureau has attempted to cover up the facts of weather conditions predicted by Browne long beforehand. He claims for instance, that last August was the coldest August ever recorded and that the bureau tried to obscure that fact in its bulletins.

Leaves Hollywood—Without Viola

Following rumors that his domestic life with Viola Dana, movie actress, had been unhappy, Maurice B. Flynn (inset) has forsaken Hollywood and is "batting" it on his 400-acre ranch at Craig, Colo. Flynn, former All-America Yale halfback, naval officer and movie star, says he isn't interested in what Hollywood is saying about a break in the Flynn's marital relations.

Mavericks Get Ready for Game With Loboes

The Eastland Mavericks will have the final battle with one of the league leaders before the district title is fought out at Abilene the day after Thanksgiving, Nov. 25. Friday afternoon the Mavericks will march upon the field for the last time this season and will be meeting a team that will go into the finals for the district championship, the Cisco Big Dam Loboes.

By losing their last game to the San Angelo Bobcats the Mavericks eliminated themselves from the race and regardless of the outcome of the Cisco-Eastland game the district championship title will still rest between the Abilene Eagles and the Cisco Loboes.

The Eagles are the favorites to win the race in preference to the Loboes. The Abilene crew has a team that is as a machine that functions with every part, while the Loboes have had more of the flash and brilliance of star players. The Eagles outpace the Loboes from every standpoint. The Loboes do not have a man that can pass with the accuracy that Walters displays upon the gridiron and there is not a better receiver in the district than the giant Salkeld. This pair literally passed their team to an unconditional victory over the Ranger Bulldogs, the Breckenridge Buckaroos and the Eastland Mavericks. From the standpoint of speed and shiftiness the Loboes receive the edge. Little and Keyes are two of the cleverest broken field runners seen in action this year and are deadly when perfect interference is given. On the other hand the Eagle backfield will outweigh the Cisco backfield and the how wide the edge line of the Loboes will stand up against the driving Eagle backs is undetermined.

The Eagles have played steady offensive football all during the year. Mayhew has no endeavored to have shining lights in his squad. He has tried to mould a mammoth score the Eagles have moved along smoothly, winning their games and settling to the defensive. Armistice day saw the Loboes up against the first real opposition they have had and the first half saw the game nothing to nothing and with Ranger pushing the Loboes for as they were worth.

Abilene and Cisco both have one more game a piece before the final bout. The Eagles meet the San Angelo Bobcats at Abilene this Saturday and the Loboes will come to Eastland Friday afternoon for a game with the Mavericks. The Eagles will probably have an easier time with the Bobcats than the Loboes will have with the Mavericks. The Mavericks have had a rather half way successful season. Their win over Ranger brought the team up to standard requirements for the upper positions but their defeat at the hands of the Bobcats, who hadn't won a game for two years, helped to push them down a few rungs.

It is being predicted that the score that Cisco makes against Eastland will not be as large as they made against Ranger, which was small enough in comparison with the scores they have piled up against the weak teams they have met this year. However, the Loboes are favored to win the game with the Mavericks. Eastland has made only 41 points against opposing teams this year while the Loboes have something over 400 to their credit.

Ranger and Breckenridge meet Friday, November 24, for their final game of the year and Ranger is favored to put a win over the Buckaroos.

The game between the Loboes and the Mavericks will prove to be another drawing card for this portion of the oilbelt. It is the only game that day and the fans will be wanting to see the Loboes in action once more before the title bout at Abilene.

The standing of the conference teams so far is as follows:

| Team | Played | W. | L. | Tied |
|--------------|--------|----|----|------|
| Abilene | 3 | 3 | 0 | 0 |
| Cisco | 3 | 3 | 0 | 0 |
| Eastland | 4 | 1 | 2 | 1 |
| Breckenridge | 4 | 1 | 2 | 1 |
| Ranger | 4 | 1 | 3 | 0 |
| San An. | 4 | 1 | 3 | 0 |

Thinks United States Capital Needed in Spain

By United Press.
 NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Spain is well on the way towards a twentieth century renaissance, and her relations with the two Americas will be the most intimate and vital in the near future.

Such is the opinion of Alexander P. Moore, Pittsburgh newspaper publisher and former United States ambassador to Spain, who was interviewed here by the United Press. Moore was the husband of the late Lillian Russell, noted stage beauty.

"There is a multitude of manifestations pointing to Spain's industrial and cultural renaissance," Moore said, predicting that Spain might be expected to recapture in one or two decades a large degree of her former glory.

"Commercially, Spain has progressed the last five years more than any other European nation. Germany excepted," he said. "The country is bristling with new perspectives, and this spirit pervades her current art as well as her industry."

"Spanish manufacturers are increasingly in demand, while her art, literature, drama and music are an international vogue."

"However, the factor which is handicapping Spain in her march towards an inevitable renaissance is Madrid's reluctance to permit enterprises sponsored by foreign capital. Spain might well look to the experience of young nations for an object lesson in this respect."

"The United States, when they were very young, borrowed money from England to launch many enterprises. Eventually our citizens paid this money back, and at no time were our early citizens in danger of losing their birthright to the London financiers who advanced these funds."

"Spain could borrow money in the international market without any more danger than that run by the United States. And Spain, to accelerate the recapture of her former affluence, needs money to build roads, rails and power facilities."

The two Americas are inseparably tied up with Spain's bright destiny, said Moore, adding that the Spaniards, more than other Latin nations, harbor warm sentiments for the peoples across the Atlantic.

Moore is in New York completing financial arrangements for the construction of the Columbus memorial to be erected at Palos, from whence the Italian navigator sailed for the "world's edge."

Although reluctant to comment on the Spanish political situation, the former ambassador said that General Primo de Rivera "has accomplished the almost impossible." He added that, although opposed to dictatorship, it was evident that Spain's most pressing need was the "centralization of executive authority."

MORE WOMEN PLAY POLO
 LONDON.—American women have given their English sisters a lead in taking up polo, thus breaking down one of the last barriers to exclusively male sports over here.

As yet, the number of women polo players here is comparatively small, mainly due to the recent decision of the Hurlingham Country Club that women are not eligible to receive a handicap or play in tournaments.

However, the game is gathering more and more recruits among the fair sex, and already regular matches are being played between women's sides.

Lady Maud Warrender, versatile sportswoman, was one of the pioneers and now Mrs. Mike Rimington, wife of a well-known player, has a team of women polo players.

Convention of South Texas C. C. In Brownsville

By United Press.
 BROWNSVILLE, Nov. 14.—Attended by nearly 12,000 South Texans, the first annual convention of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce which opened here today promised to be the largest assemblage ever held in this part of the state.

Amid blares of band music, hundreds of additional delegates were arriving on each incoming train. Many others came by automobile. The band contest for $2,500 in prizes attracted nearly a score of bands from South Texas cities.

An additional feature of the two-day convention was the formal opening of passenger service over the Southern Pacific railroad here. The railroad will participate in celebrating the completion of its line to Brownsville, which is the southernmost rail terminus.

The convention formally opened at 9 a. m. following a massed band concert by all the bands here for the convention. S. C. Tucker, president of the Brownsville Chamber of Commerce, called the opening session to order. It was welcomed by Mayor A. B. Cole of this city and Lie Emiliano Fernandez of Matamoros, Mexico. After the scheduled appearance of Governor Moody, President W. R. Morrison was to deliver his annual address.

Senator Earle B. Mayfield and R. B. Creager, state republican chairman, were to conclude the morning session with speeches. The afternoon will be given over to entertainment features, including a pageant at Port

AUSTRALIA MAKES RULE TO CONTROL AVIATION

By United Press.
 SYDNEY.—Action has been taken by the federal ministry of Australia to prevent attempts at long overseas flights in machines which are not suitable for the purpose, following the long series of tragedies in this year's attempts to fly the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

No aircraft, except seaplanes, flying boats, or amphibians, are now allowed to be used in flights over a longer distance than 50 miles in a direct line from coast to coast.

In announcing this action, Prime Minister Stanley M. Bruce said that he and his ministers were determined to promote the interests of civil aviation in every way possible, but that their efforts in this direction would be largely neutralized if public opinion was affected unfavorably through tragedies caused by long overseas flights in aircraft neither designed nor suitable for the purpose.

THE ROUGH RIDERS

WHAT THEY'RE SAYING

Andy Anderson in Houston Press:—At this particular moment if I were called on to pick an all-south-western backfield I would without hesitation select Joel Hunt, A. and M., Gerald Mann, S. M. U.; Pinky Alsbrook, A. and M.; and Redmund Hume, S. M. U. Alsbrook, had Hunt been out of the Aggie-S. M. U. game would have been hailed as a star. There is no question but that the Aggie backfield man is coming into his own. Mann is a far greater football player than he showed to be against the Aggies and you can't keep him off a conference team. Hume is unquestionably one of the finest ball carriers in the conference.

Harold V. Ratliff in Cleburne Times—Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey will meet again, says Eddie Eagan, close friend of the champion. It's strange. Dempsey gets licked twice and the same way by the titleholder and then he gets still another whack at the crown right off the bat. If that rule held true in football, Cleburne would have played Oak Cliff high school for the 1926 championship again.

Charlie Hall in Amarillo News-Globe—Every southwestern sport page you pick up is talking about Joel Hunt for all-American quarter back, and if everybody seems to think he is going to get it, why shouldn't it be given him. Chances are if the voices of the southwestern sport writers were considered the picking of this mythical team the elite east would not find them voting for so all-fired many from this section that there would not get the places they deserve on it.

Lester Jordan in Waxahachie Light—"Bleckie" Williams, Horned Frog captain, probably will make the first all-conference team, as he is a great threat man. He is being used at quarter at T. C. U. but is a great fullback also. It looks as if the conference backfield will be composed of Mann, Hume, Hunt and Williams. Hunt probably will be acclaimed the most valuable player in the conference.

Jim Tucker in Water News-Tribune—Just what complex is it that makes Nebraska invincible against inter-sectional competition, no matter how powerful, and yet prevents this team from winning the title in the Missouri valley conference. Annually Nebraska plays a big inter-sectional game, or several of them, and annually Nebraska wins. This year Syracuse was taken for the count and last year New York university, with a clean slate, was upset by the Cornhuskers. In other years Notre Dame has been Nebraska's victim. Baylor and Nebraska are endeavoring to get together on a date next year. Such a contest would certainly prove interesting, for the Bears are apt to be strong in 1928.

Bruce M. Francis in Brownwood Bulletin—Despite the annual attack of critics on the great gridiron sport more people become crazy about the game and in turn the "crazier" the game becomes. Once upon a time dopsters could attain a certain degree of proficiency in doping the outcome of football games but not so in this day and time. One week a sports writer will have a fair battle average and the next his average will look like S. M. U.'s score in the Aggie game. This is not said in reference to the Bulletin's sports department but is based on records made by sports editors who claim to be good.

Religious Leaders Commend Red Cross Service

Rev. S. PARKES CADMAN, President of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America; WILLIAM CARDINAL O'CONNELL, Archbishop of Boston; RABBI LEON HARRISON, Temple Israel, St. Louis.

All faiths endorse Red Cross Membership Roll Call—Leaders of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish churches in the United States call on their fellow-members to support the Annual Membership Appeal to be held from Armistice to Thanksgiving Day.

OUTSTANDING representatives of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths in America are unanimous in commending the American Red Cross for its good work and in recommending their followers to support that organization's Eleventh Annual membership enrollment during the November Roll Call, from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving. The Red Cross is asking this year for 5,000,000 members. In statements received at Red Cross national headquarters at Washington, three nationally known religious leaders declare themselves in unmistakable terms of praise and endorsement of what the Red Cross stands for and what it has accomplished. The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, President of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, in a statement entitled: "The Red Cross and the Churches," declares that the Roll Call assumes exceptional interest this year because of the extraordinary burden placed upon the Red Cross by the Mississippi Valley floods.

"It met the emergency so splendidly as to deserve the gratitude of the Nation," says Dr. Cadman. "Its continuing responsibility for dealing with the after-effects of the flood give it a special claim upon our generous support at this time." In Dr. Cadman's opinion, not since the great war has there been such a demonstration of the value of the Red Cross. "Surely every citizen who has caught the spirit of religion will desire to contribute a dollar to this great humanitarian service and with the gift breathe a prayer to Almighty God that the people of this nation may be lifted to higher planes of living through sharing with those who suffer in great disasters," concludes the well known minister.

His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, and the Primate of the Catholic church in the United States, is equally outspoken in his commendation. "This organization has comforted the stricken and the unfortunate of our nation and of other countries in untold ways and with unbounded success during the past year," says the Cardinal. "It has advanced the fine traditions which years of faithful service have merited in its favor. It has spent itself assuaging human suffering and deserves the unstinted co-operation of all in whose name it has endeavored to carry on the work of God and perform the highest of virtues, Charity."

RANGER HOME SLIGHTLY DAMAGED BY BLAZE

A fire in the bath room of the C. C. Craig home in the Gholson addition, Ranger, about 9 o'clock this morning, was put out by Mrs. Craig and Miss Alta Bearden but not before it had done considerable smoke damage to the house, which has recently been refinished. The fire which in some way started from a gas heater, was discovered by Mrs. Craig, and was smothered out by the use of blankets. Mrs. Craig sustained some slight burns in her efforts to extinguish the blaze. The Craig home is one of the prettiest in Ranger and during the summer was newly decorated.

Sleep is as essential to the preservation of youth and beauty as food is to the preservation of life. SERIES OF POULTRY MEETINGS BE HELD OVER EASTLAND COUNTY

For the purpose of arousing great interest in the Bankhead Poultry Producers' association and acquainting the members with new methods of grading eggs that are being put into use by the association shortly, the management has decided upon holding a series of meetings at various places throughout the county. Just when these meetings will be held has not been fully determined. It is announced, however, that a meeting will be held at Carbon next Saturday night.

Under the new system of grading the producer will be paid for his eggs according to grade. He will place them in the case as they come and when they are turned in to the association they will be candled and graded by the association manager. And when these eggs are sold to the dealer they will be sold to him according to grade and he is expected to sell them to the consumer by the same grades that he buys them by. The purpose of the association in doing this is to protect the producer, dealer and consumer.

SPEED'S BAKERY

THREE MEALS A DAY, SEVEN DAYS A WEEK!

No easy order, that. If any man thinks it is, let him try to plan just seven consecutive dinners without repeating a single item on any one menu. A woman must have considerable ingenuity to plan—and considerable executive ability to prepare—twenty-one meals a week.

In recent years, many new dishes have graced the dining tables in our homes. Delicacies that were once the secrets of restaurant chefs are now prepared quickly and easily in our town kitchen.

And advertisements have had much to do with adding to the variety of our national diet. A beautiful picture of a tempting dessert, with full directions for making it—another recipe for a luscious salad—a new use for an old familiar staple—in such ways do the advertisements continue to arouse the most jaded palate, and to save the perplexed housewife!

It is well worth while to read and study the advertising pages. To all that pertains to the home, to all that pertains to every-day life, the advertisements contribute. Whether meals, motor cars or music, let the advertisements help you make the choice. You will find them wise in counsel, trustworthy in service.

NORFLEET

WHAT HAS BEEN TOLD Frank Norfleet, a Texas rancher, is swindled out of $45,000 by a gang led by Joe Furey. Norfleet resolves to destroy the ring. Vague clues lead him across the continent several times in hot pursuit and three of his men are captured. He has yet to get Joe Furey and W. E. Spencer, two principals of the gang. Norfleet finds Furey's home in Glendale, California and two Los Angeles officers are assigned to watch it. Following another tip Norfleet pursues Furey to Jacksonville, where, assisted by his son Pete, he captures the man in a restaurant after a bloody fight. The Florida officers make an attempt to take Furey from the Texan but fail. Furey takes a headlong dive through the glass window of the Pullman drawing room but is recaptured and Norfleet is soon on his way to Texas with his prisoner. Norfleet learns that Furey had been captured by the two Los Angeles officers and had bought his freedom for $20,000. A mysterious Mrs. Street, who has followed Norfleet a great deal comes to him on the train and warns him that the men are plotting to kill him. Norfleet warns Fete to stay in the drawing room with the prisoner when they reach New Orleans while he goes out to size up the situation. At New Orleans, Norfleet, accompanied by Mrs. Street gets off the train and instructs two red caps to bring a wheel chair and to assist with the removal of the prisoner and luggage while he protects the situation from a short distance. As Norfleet and the woman reach the end of the train, two men step out and start to draw their guns. Norfleet's arms have been crossed, his hands beneath his coat grasping his pistols. He throws his arm out quickly and covers the men while Pete and the prisoner are taken to a waiting police car. Furey is placed in jail in the New Orleans jail for the night. Next morning Norfleet discovers that his prisoner has been removed from the jail over night. He learns that the Humane Society has come after him and he finds Furey propped up in a snow-white bed, surrounded by sympathetic women. He and Pete forcibly remove him to take him to their car. An officer attempts to obstruct the way.

Two Flood Spectacles in Massachusetts

Spectacular in the extreme was the Connecticut River, swollen many feet above its normal stage, as it roared thunderously over the Holyoke-South Hadley dam in Massachusetts during the new England floods (upper picture). The photograph was taken from the South Hadley side. Below is a view of the river at Springfield, Mass., with a Boston & Maine railway track completely washed out and a freight train strewn in the water and mud.

CHAPTER 39 Two policemen waited near the car. As we would have entered, they blocked our path. "Look here!" one exclaimed. "You can't take that man out of this institution without paying his bill!" He stretched out his hand as if to take hold of Furey. I took the outstretched hand and shook it warmly. "Good mornin', officer!" I said pleasantly. "There is no bill to pay." The Society came and got Furey without consulting me. He's my prisoner and I have no money to pay bills I haven't contracted. Right now, we've got a pressing engagement with a train that's leaving for Fort Worth. So long! See you again sometime, I hope." By this time, Pete had Furey in the car and we were on our way, leaving the officers and the women standing open mouthed at the curb. We reached the train without further interference and, next day, Joe Furey was delivered into the hands of the Tarrant county sheriff, Sterling Clark. I knew, then, that the devil and all his angels could not get him out. Ad astra per aspera! After long months of tense effort, of being away from my family, of the sort of physical and mental exertion which wears down one's endurance and adds years of age and many gray hairs, I was glad to relax, temporarily and turn to my home and loved ones. Spencer was the only one of my swindlers who yet was free and, naturally, I gave much thought to him and plans for finding him, but I was glad to rest and wait a little while. Never had my wife and children seemed so precious to me; never before had I drawn such exhilarating draughts from the strong winds of the plains. Home seemed to refill my body and mind with energy—with a keen appetite for the sharp experiences of life. Somehow, I had grown accustomed to things which had at first, produced bitterness within me and I felt able to cope with anything. The brief spell at home was my first opportunity for retrospection since I had been swindled. It was my first opportunity for devising a plan which might strengthen my family's financial affairs. I had changed considerably. I had always been a ranchman and all my thoughts concentrated on live stock. I hadn't thought much of farming. But, as I walked and rode about over the rolling prairies of my ranch, I seemed to visualize acre after acre of long staple cotton, cotton planted with the best of pedigreed seed and of a quality that would demand the market's highest price. I permitted myself a few dreams of the financial rewards which would come from the scientific cultivation of the highest quality of cotton. I allowed my thoughts to drift into a realm where no boll weevils threatened and where every stalk of cotton produced its highest yield. Cotton was high then, and I let the dollars multiply in my mind. I figured, for the sake of my dream, on getting a bale to the acre from a thousand acres. At $150 a bale, that would amount to $150,000. One year's income! Then I had to laugh at my own foolish optimism. But the dream would not let go. I remembered the yield in the cotton fields of the Imperial Valley of California. I had been assured that it was considerably more than a bale to the acre. Perhaps two bales! They irrigated. Perhaps that was the answer for me. I was sure there was an inexhaustible supply of sweet water at about three hundred feet beneath my land. I rode about mentally surveying the land for an irrigation project.

I was happy to be devoting my thought to constructive things again. I had always made money, and I was sure I could do it again. I received many letters and telegrams from persons all over the world. Many had been swindled; others were officers who had sought Furey and members of his gang for years. There was a cablegram from Paris, France, from my friend Argus, of Burger's Detective Agency, of Miami, Florida. He congratulated me on landing Furey and told me that he had just succeeded in capturing the notorious Roy McMullin, another member of the international ring. He had just pulled off a $100,000 swindle a few months before and Angus had pursued him to Europe. Many of my letters were from women—inexperienced, defenseless women who had been victimized by the confidence man. My little daughter got much pleasure from the voluminous mail and was more flattered by it than I had been. Her mother was more conservative—and sensible. "Where will it end?" she asked, for she was afraid that I would never again settle down to my ranch and home. "I'd better be pleased if your father would settle down at (Continued on page eight.)

Methodists of Eastland Make Good Showing

Sunday night's service was the closing service for the Eastland Methodist church for this conference year and the pastor, Dr. F. E. Singleton, will leave early Tuesday morning for Fort Worth to attend conference. Mrs. Singleton, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. B. A. Smith, who is visiting her, will leave about Friday for Fort Worth, where she will attend conference and visit relatives. She also has a special invitation to attend a banquet and reception tendered Mrs. Moore, wife of Bishop Moore, at the Texas Hotel in Fort Worth on Saturday afternoon.

In commenting upon his year's work in Eastland Dr. Singleton said: "It has been one of the happiest years of my ministry and there is not another station in the district that I would care to be moved from Eastland to."

The Eastland church this year, under the direction of Dr. Singleton, had two major objectives, first the organization and training of the church forces and second the completing of the new church building begun some time ago. Both of these have succeeded. The contractors are now on the job and will complete the new building, and the organization of the church forces has been so well done that this church made the highest average on organization of any church in the district when a check of all churches was made.

Financially the church has done well under Dr. Singleton's leadership. A total of approximately $16,000 has been raised and all church obligations for the year will be paid. Of the total amount of funds raised during the year the Sunday school, with a total membership of 482, raised $2,255 while the Women's Missionary society with a membership of 58, raised $1,900.

Additions to the church during the year totaled 78, 55 by letter and 23 by vows. The total enrollment of the Sunday school is 482.

The outlook for another year is exceedingly bright, Dr. Singleton said. The officers for the ensuing year could not be announced, but it was stated that there would be few if any changes. Dr. Singleton expressed his appreciation for the cooperation he has received in his work in Eastland.

An effort will be made to bring the conference, which meets this week in Fort Worth, to Ranger for its next meeting.

home than if he were to make a million dollars and become a great detective. I hope this Los Angeles trip will not keep him long."

I had almost forgotten that, I had resolved, as a matter of duty, to go to Los Angeles and present all the facts I had regarding Furey's bribery of the two officers who had doublecrossed me, to Thomas Lee Woolwine, mine district attorney. So I made my plans to go.

On the day I left, my little daughter came to me and said, "Daddy, remember the 'creed of the west.' 'Treat every man right, then make him treat you right.'"

I had sold a carload of thoroughbred hogs to a California breeder because I needed the money badly. To save railroad fare, I decided to go with the car myself, instead of sending a man to care for the animals. It was a long, tiresome trip, but I finally arrived and felt compensated in having made my way, for dollars were looking like wagon wheels to me.

As soon as the hogs were delivered, I proceeded to Los Angeles and straight to Woolwine's office. I presented all the facts to him, substantiating them with an affidavit Furey had signed, which gave all the details of the transaction. I added my own story to this and Woolwine was astounded. He told me a few things that had reached his ears, and, by putting two and two together, we were able to build an impregnable barrage of evidence.

"Norfleet, if all this is true, I'm going to go the limit with those two fellows. If you will give this case your undivided attention for a while, I'll give it mine!"

I agreed and the wheels of the law were set in motion to bring Lips and Anderson to belated justice. Without the slightest warning, warrants were issued and served upon them. They were astounded to find themselves locked in their own jail.

They employed an able firm and began a strenuous legal battle for freedom. The sheriff's office was thrown into a panic and was very resentful. It was intimated that this was less majesty and an offense against the dignity of officers who should enjoy a few privileges not given to common folk. I could hardly bring myself to feel like a criminal, though, for having forced this issue.

The cocksurenness of the officers themselves--their feeling that no court would convict them--was one of our greatest advantages. I understand bets were placed in gambling circles favoring acquittal by considerable odds. Community sentiment was strangely with the officers and pictures were flashed on the theatre screens, titled with brief references to the many daring deeds of the two officers in their zeal to enforce laws and to protect the citizenship. These might have been paid advertisements. I understand there was quite a slush fund for their defense. At least, it was little believed that the rogues gallery would soon exhibit likenesses of their many beauty.

Both men furnished bonds in the sum of $20,000 and the trial was set for several months ahead. I returned to Texas to attend Joe Furey's trial, which was held in Fort Worth about two months after I had captured him.

The Furey trial was uneventful. The chain of evidence was irrefutable, and the man decided to plead guilty, asking for the mercy of the court. Judge George Hosey gave him twenty years, and he was immediately taken to the state penitentiary at Huntsville.

Soon after his arrival at the institution, Furey was assigned to a clerkship in the machine shop, under Master Mechanic Bob Storm, who became well acquainted with Furey and heard many of his prisoner's confidences. Storm has helped me to correct a few statements made in the first edition of my book and based on information from other sources. Storm says that Furey made an ideal prisoner and that he tried, as nearly as he could, to adapt himself to the prison routine.

Storm claims that Furey had little to do with organization of a wholesale jail delivery which occurred about two months after the man had been sent to Huntsville. Others in authority have declared that he did.

FARMER NEAR RANGER KILLS WOLF AT HOME

Wolf hunters who follow the hounds all night and often come home without a pet, will rather envy the experience of D. J. Howard, who lives about one and one-half miles north of Ranger on the Caddo road.

Mr. Howard had been missing turkeys and chickens for some time. Sunday morning his wife called to him and told him that there was a dog out in the chicken lot, but when he looked out he saw it was a full-grown wolf. He took his gun and soon killed the marauder. Mr. Howard stated that the animal was full grown and very fat and had evidently been feeding on his poultry for some time.
