

WHAT HAPPENED IN MINERAL WELLS WHEN THE RANGERS WENT TO THE ROTARY MEETING THERE.

(From Mineral Wells Index.)

The Ranger Rotarians, to the number of 12, visited Mineral Wells and put on the program at the meeting of the local club on Friday. After a song by the Mineral Wells club, to the president of the Ranger club—"Old Gus Coleman Ain't What He Was 48 Years Ago," the Ranger visitors were welcomed by Manager Leeman of the Chamber of Commerce.

As fellow Rotarians from Mineral Wells' sister city, the speaker said, the Ranger visitors were thrice welcome; but even though not Rotarians and if from a far country, they would be welcome, anyway, for Mineral Wells is a city of welcome, and the books, "Ten Years Younger" (the name of the books that were placed favors) was not an idle phrase, but if the people of Ranger would come over and follow the instructions set forth in the book, they would find that it was verily true.

As a matter of important business, transacted before the Ranger program began, Allen Guinn, the president, was chosen delegate to the international convention in St. Louis, the meeting to be held in June, and John Chamberlin was chosen alternate.

Gus Coleman ("Gloomy Gus") took the chair and things began to happen. He called on Raymond Teal to talk on Mineral Wells, saying that Raymond was a great reader and had delved deep into the history of this place.

Raymond told how a New Hampshire wagon traveler had stopped here in the old days and his crazy daughter drank from the well he bored and got over her craziness. He also said that he was an hereditary booster for Mineral Wells, for his great grandfather had come through here in an ox wagon and drank this water freely for his kidneys and then went on to California, reaching there two years later, and that he died at the age of 103, but his kidneys which had gotten so well from mineral water, lived on for eight years after he died, and then folks had to take sticks and beat them to death.

Rotarians Coleman, Clegg and Gullahorn sang, after much preparation behind a huge music rest, a touching little set of verses about Dr. Eastland and Reese Harris and people's general ailments, and Pat Williams, who "charged you a quarter to lend you a dime," and Henry Russell and Will Wright, and several of the other home boys. The song sounded very well, even though, as they said, the bass had been lost on the way over, spoiling the quartette. But the information about the Mineral Wells Rotarians was all wrong.

Karl E. Jones, secretary of the Retail Merchants' association, made a most excellent classification talk, and proved, in the course of it, that "He profits most who serves best."

Tulane Smith of Mineral Wells Kiwanis club, with Mrs. N. H. Moore, accompanist, sang a very much appreciated song, the company joining him on the refrain. One verse will show the hearty boosting character of the words of the song entitled "Mineral Wells," to the tune of "Baby Mine":

By the mountains proudly tow'ring
Mineral Wells—Mineral Wells,
O'er the valleys brightly flow'ring,
Mineral Wells—Mineral Wells;
Comes the message on the breeze,
Health and comfort, pleasure, ease,
Healing Waters, joy and peace—
Mineral Wells—Mineral Wells.
Healing waters, joy and peace—
Mineral Wells—Mineral Wells.

The Ranger Rotarians, over for the occasion, were: Wm. G. Clegg, C. E. May, B. F. Bennett, E. Crawford, C. W. Harliss, Rev. W. H. Johnson, J. T. Gullahorn, Gus Coleman, Karl E. Jones, Raymond Teal and E. R. Maher.

CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIANS MEET NEXT YEAR IN AUSTIN

FAIRFIELD, Ul., May 19.—The general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church chose Austin, Texas, as the next meeting place.

A resolution was adopted opposing any theory of life or creation not in harmony with the Bible.

MCKINNEY.—John S. McKinney, chief of the local fire department, claims the distinction of being a member of the department for 29 years. The fire chief has been chief of police and fire marshal in addition to his other duties for several years. He has served with the fire department all but seven years since its establishment. McKinney is former president of the Texas State Volunteer Firemen's association.

HUNTSVILLE.—Huntsville engaged in a clean-up campaign this week, sponsored by the city officials. The members of the local American Legion post and the Boy Scouts of America assisted in the campaign.

Many sounds escape the human ear, scientists say, and that's something else for which to be thankful.—Indianapolis News.

Increase Revenues, Cut Appropriations Urges Davidson

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, May 19.—Reduction of appropriations made by the legislature of approximately $6,000,000 and enactment of an income tax law were proposed by Lieutenant Governor Davidson as a means of meeting a state deficiency of $10,000,000 in the next two years, in a statement issued tonight.

The following reductions in appropriations were proposed:

- General educational bill, $2,000,000.
- Rural aid, $1,000,000.
- Emergency school aid, $2,000,000.
- Reclamation and flood control $400,000.
- Departmental appropriations $600,000.

The latter could be accomplished, he said, by cutting down the expenses of several of the departments.

Davidson estimated that the income tax would bring $3,000,000 annually.

QUITMAN.—W. W. Fitzwater, national president of the Farm Labor union, addressed more than 500 Wood county farmers here recently. He also spoke at Peach, this county. Officials of the organization report more than 3,000 members in this county.

$798,849 IS AMOUNT ASKED IN SUIT AGAINST MAGNOLIA

EASTLAND, May 19.—E. T. Connelley and sister, Mrs. Dixie Williamson et vir., have filed suit in the Ninety-first district court against the Magnolia Petroleum company in which they seek to recover $798,849.18 alleged to be due them for royalties.

The plaintiffs allege that they are the owners of a part of the royalty in 524 acres of land in the John York survey between Eastland and Ranger, and known as the Tom Connelley place; that defendants have made $2,073,600 out of gasoline from oil wells on the farm.

In the alternative that the lease attempted to provide any royalty on gasoline it was inadequate and they are entitled to a one-fourth royalty, their portion of the proceeds amounting to $195,462.29.

In the second alternative they claim that gasoline is a part of the oil and at the time of the sales was worth the sum of 16 cents per gallon and that the total production was 12,000 gallons of gasoline per day for 1,080 days, and plaintiffs allege they are entitled to one-eighth of the oil and they pray for their pro rata part of the oil produced amounting to $97,731.15.

In the third alternative they claim that the lease provides for oil and gas and one-eighth royalty of net profits on all other minerals and that gasoline would be included in other minerals and that therefore they are entitled to their one-eighth less the expense of manufacturing and marketing, which amounts to the sum of $90,000.

The plaintiffs also sue for the rental value of the gasoline plant site, which amounts to $8,000.

Burkett, Orr & McCarty of this city represent the plaintiffs.

This cause of action has never been tested in the higher courts of the state and will cause considerable interest in the trial.

Quimet Promises To Try Again for British Golf Title

By Associated Press. LONDON, May 19.—Francis Quimet intends to make another try for the British amateur golf title as soon as he can. He decided to do so while changing from knickers into "slacks" a few moments after he had been eliminated by Roger Wethered in the Deal semi-finals.

"I am going to come back over here and get that trophy," the blithe Bostonian told the friends who congratulated him upon his hard and all but successful struggle.

The night before his last day on the championship course—the day he amazed the gallery with his brilliant triumph over Cyril Tolley only to go down a few hours later before Roger Wethered—Quimet felt rather certain that he would get into the finals.

"I'm going to take that big boy over the jumps tomorrow," he said, referring to Tolley. And sure enough he did. But, again using his own words, Quimet took the edge off his game in his dazzling display of perfect golf against Tolley, so that upon his return to the cold and windy links in the afternoon he was no longer able to master every club in his bag and every situation on the field.

It is true, of course, that Wethered played under the same conditions, but the British star has been living with English weather all his life, and any American tourist knows how long it takes to become acclimated to the chill that is Britain's.

NUGENT TO PITCH FOR C. & S. IN GAME TODAY

EASTLAND, May 19.—Thurber won the first of two scheduled games with Eastland today by a score of 7 to 1. Eastland used three pitchers, but was unable to keep the Thurber nine from hitting the ball and making runs.

MESSES. OCHILTREE AND MARTIN JOINT HOSTESSES

The mezzanine floor of the Gholson was at its loveliest Thursday afternoon when Meses. C. N. Ochiltree and J. A. Martin entertained at Bridge. It sparkled with its myriad of spring flowers, spring clothes, spring hats—in fact the whole scene was as colorful as a setting by Bakst and pungent with the perfume of honeysuckles and roses, for these two honey flowers played an important part in the floral decorations, vying with the wild flowers in beauty. A color scheme of lavender, pink and yellow prevailed. Lights were swathed in these soft shades, and refreshments carried out the same color motif, as did the mirth provoking favors, all day sucker dolls, with gum drop feet and hands. There were thirteen tables at Bridge—the lucky ones for the afternoon were Mrs. R. D. Lavery who received the high score prize, a cut glass bowl; Mrs. C. C. Craig, who received the second prize, a cut glass nappy; Mrs. Dabney, of Eastland, who was awarded the consolation prize, a set of tea coasters; and Mrs. R. B. Campbell, who won the cut prize, a French salad pitcher. After the game, refreshments of sandwiches, pickles, potato chips, angel food cake, iced in lavender, brick ice cream in three shades predominating in the color motif, and ice tea were served.

Mrs. Ochiltree wore a black gown, with sweet pea corsage, and Mrs. Martin black crepe, with a corsage of pink rosebuds. Since this is the first large party for several weeks, it was quite a dress affair and many lovely gowns were noted among the guests—and since everybody was glad of the occasion, it was a very happy affair.

Among the out-of-town guests were Meses. L. J. Marks and R. B. Craft of Fort Worth, Mrs. J. E. Noel and Miss Hazelle Dore of Abilene, Mrs. M. M. Harvey of Cross Plains, Miss Jewell Jones of Eastland.

BELLE BENNETT SOCIETY ENJOYS CISCO MEETING

The ladies of the Belle Bennett society met at the Methodist church last Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and motored over to Cisco to attend the first quarterly conference.

It was a most interesting as well as helpful meeting, as all points pertaining to missionary work were discussed and explained.

Songs and special readings were some of the interesting features. Rev. L. A. Webb gave a wonderful talk on "What the Missionary Society Has Done for My Church."

A delicious luncheon was served at noon.

All nearby cities were well represented and the afternoon was spent in a general discussion in regard to the work of each missionary society.

The Belle Bennett society was very proud to learn that it was the largest represented society present, as it is merely in its infancy, being barely a trifle over a month old.

One of the most novel and enjoyable parties of the season was given Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Woods when they entertained the senior class of the Ranger High school. Wild flowers in profusion decorated the rooms, while the class colors of blue and white were in evidence, and also used in the refreshments of brick ice cream and cake.

The party was a burlesque auto trip, and the guests were kept busy from the start fixing "blow-outs," "jacking up the car," and "repairing the engine." There were three groups for the trip, and prizes were awarded, all of them "take-off" prizes, for the group which finished the trip first. The first prize was awarded to the group led by Tom Alworth. A story with planks for the name of a favorite automobile, was part of the game, Gordon Gullahorn winning for the boys and Edna Clark for the girls.

It was also the birthday of Mr.

Marathon Dancing Exhibition Starts In Ranger Monday

Everything is now in readiness for the big marathon dancing exhibition which starts at the Summer Garden Monday at 10 o'clock a. m.

All of the dancers with their attendants, trainers, etc., will arrive today. Many who saw Antonio Cardens on the street yesterday picked him as a winner. He is a quiet unassuming little fellow with a pleasing personality and tries to answer most of the questions asked him.

According to Mr. Cardens one of the most common questions he is asked is "how do you stay awake so long?" and "don't you get awfully tired?"

According to J. B. Corrie, who is in charge of the dance, nearly $1,000 in cash prizes are offered the dancers in the exhibition here. An additional prize is offered the dancer from Eastland county who dances the longest period. The dancer from this county who stays on the floor the longest receives this prize.

Gus Coleman's orchestra will furnish the music and the public is invited to dance each evening. The exhibition will be open to the public from 8 a. m. to 12 p. m.

The judges for the contest are: C. F. Underwood of the Ranger Times, Harry B. Bolton of Dallas, Gus Coleman, J. B. Corrie and Dr. Clyde C. Craig.

The contestants will be under the constant care of local physicians and nurses.

COUNTY COURT FILINGS.

ESSAYS SUBMITTED IN HOME GARDENS CONTEST FOR AWARDS OFFERED BY THE 1920 CLUB

Plans for the 1920 club awards in the home gardens contests are about completed and R. H. Bush, county agricultural agent, will be in the city on Friday, May 29, to visit the gardens in company with Mrs. M. H. Hagaman and Dr. Hodges who will be judges, with Mr. Bush, of the gardens. Awards will be made that afternoon, the place of award to be announced later.

Essays on their gardens were written by the children of all the schools, the best ones selected being the following:

Report of My Garden.
(By Roger Shook of High School, 305 South Hodges Street.)

I selected a piece of ground about 25 feet wide and 100 feet long. This is divided into four plots, the first three being 20x25, and the last 40x25. In the first division are English peas and bush beans and in a bed on the south end are planted black-eyed peas. There are six rows of English peas and have been gathered from once. There are three rows of beans that are blooming now. The peas were planted yesterday so they have not come up.

In the second division there are tomatoes and cabbage and in a bed on the south end of the plot is okra. There are about 25 tomato plants and they are doing well. There are about 50 cabbage plants, most of which are doing well. The okra was planted about two weeks ago and is about two inches high now, and is growing fine.

In the third division is planted squash and cucumbers and in a bed on the south end of this plot contains four rows of lettuce, which will soon be ready to begin eating. The squash are about a week old and are beginning to bush out. It is planted in hills about two feet apart, and in rows about two feet apart. The cucumbers are about the same age and are beginning to run, and it is planted the same way the squash is planted.

On the south side and east end of the fourth division is planted three rows of pop corn which is nearly two feet high now. The rest of the fourth division contains eight rows of black-eyed peas. These peas have been up about 10 days and are nearly three inches high. This is all I have planted.

My Garden.
(By Frank Behning of Young School, Wilson and Terrell Streets.)

I have a garden about 30 feet square. It was planted rather early and most of it was killed by frost, so had to be replanted. It is bordered on two sides by flowers.

My first row consists of radishes, of which I have already used some for three bunches. Then I have the beets, which are doing fine. Then I have a row of English peas which were beaten by the wind, but are coming on just fine. Then the Valtine beans.

My row of onions is large enough, although I have not used any yet. The spinach I have planted is almost large enough to be eaten. Then a row of creases back beans.

I have planted three rows of corn, but some did not come up. So I had to replant some cucumbers, watermelons, and honey melons between the corn. I have a row of lettuce and have used quite a bit of it.

I have two rows of potatoes which are doing fine except for being beaten by the wind, making the tops bruised.

I have one row of carrots and parsnips, and pepper so that I don't know whether it will grow or not, but it is coming up.

In the last rows are the Kentucky wonder beans which are planted to run on the fence and are just starting to get runners.

The flowers which I have planted consist of bachelor buttons, larkspurs, phlox and stock. The bachelor buttons are about two inches high.

In My Garden.
(By Roy Jones of Central School, 506 Mesquite Street.)

The good rains of early spring have put the soil in excellent condition for working.

After deciding I would enter the garden contest I decided on the size of my grounds and planted my hot bed with McGee and Aeme tomato seed. Then I began to spade up one plot of ground containing 30x30 square feet. Then I spaded up my second plot, 19x30. I often raked this to smooth it down. This also broke the clods.

I then planted my first plot in rows 30 feet long and two and one-half feet apart as follows: Two and one-half rows of onion sets with radishes mixed, one row lettuce, one row beets, one row stringless green pod beans.

I bought three dozen ever-bearing strawberry plants and these I put in my second plot. They are all in bloom now and I am expecting to have strawberries soon.

I spaded up my third plot, which is 20x25 feet and set it out with McGee tomato plants from my hot bed.

I had sold several hundred tomato plants at 50 cents per 100 and still have about 100 plants for sale. I have radishes, onions and lettuce to eat and will replace the radishes with more seed as I pull them out. I will also plant more beans as I use my lettuce and beets out, so as to have fresh green beans all summer.

My Vegetable Garden.

Users of liquor are a danger against which the Bay state is fighting. Mr. Goodwin states: "The question of whether or not we should have had the Volstead act as a law of the land has nothing to do with the fact that no man who has a single drink of what passes for liquor nowadays has any right to drive an automobile upon the public highways. In 1919 we revoked and suspended 2,100 licenses in the state, 550 of them for intoxication. In 1922 we suspended 8,300 and 2,460 were of persons who were operating under the influence of liquor."

The Massachusetts authority concludes with a plea that every state analyze its highway accidents so the public may know the major causes.

MOST AUTO ACCIDENTS OCCUR ON GOOD ROADS AND IN GOOD WEATHER

BOSTON, May 19.—More auto accidents occur on good roads and in good weather than on bad roads or in bad weather because drivers are less careful, says the Massachusetts highway commissioner.

"The combined causes of snow and ice, mud and wet pavements," he reports, "only counted for 119 fatal accidents, 397 taking place on dry pavements."

Massachusetts' effort to solve the problem of accidents, points out the writer, has been made through such analysis and in taking steps to eliminate causes. For this reason a state law has been passed fixing the right of way on the highway. Drivers who come into a main street from an intersecting one must, for instance, yield the way to cars approaching from the right. They have the right

PERMANENT ENAMEL

BAKED ON STEEL

Eight years ago, when Dodge Brothers originated the all-steel motor car body, they took advantage of the absence of wood in the frame-work to bake an enamel finish on the surface of the steel.

In a vast series of electric ovens, especially designed and built by Dodge Brothers' engineers for this process, three distinct coats of black enamel are successively baked on the steel at an intensely high temperature.

The result is a finish so hardy and durable that it seldom requires more than a good cleaning and polishing to restore the original brightness.

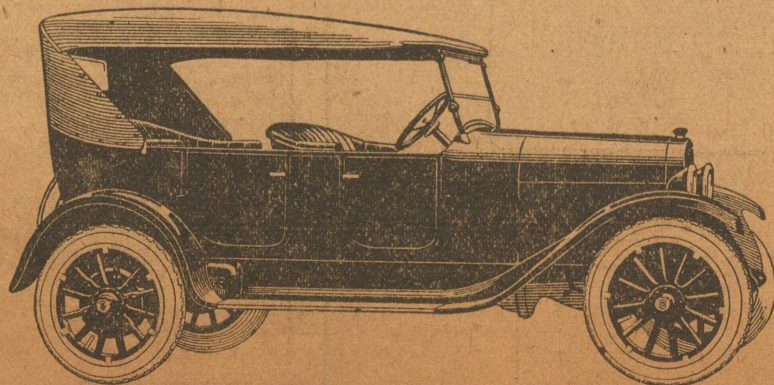

Even in sections of the Southwest where alkali in the soil is especially destructive to body finishes, Dodge Brothers enamel retains its beautiful luster after years of wear.

STYLE

A Most Important Feature of Costuming

Alert women take a very keen pleasure in keeping abreast of what is new in the costume world, and this Store takes a certain pride in the knowledge that these women look to it not only as a most reliable source of information, but as a shop in which the most fashionable costumes are to be chosen. It is on style correctness that this Store has built prestige in the past, and it is the style correctness embodied in this season's assortments to a greater degree than ever before that makes them so noteworthy.

Newest of Gowns

Expressing the essence of true elegance, the season's most notable collection of women's dresses is ready tomorrow.

The sleeve that is a mere band dropped from an unusual yoke, the sleeve that ripples gracefully from an upper half of lace, narrow panels in pleats or lace, beads and silks in rich embroideries, the Parisian drape, the pleated godet—these are the characteristics of dresses created by artist-designers in deference to a discriminating demand.

Emphasizing rich Silks, Chiffons and Laces. Topaz, Caramel tones and Grey the leading colors, with a smart profusion of Prints.

Uncommonly Winsome—Summer's Printed Frocks

These Printed Frocks are enticing. A flavor of sports clings in their straight lines. And no one denies the worth of their fabrics: Roshanara, flat crepe, Canton and Crepe de Chine. Plaited drapes serve to enhance as do waistlines that are slightly raised in front. For a Frock that you will grow fonder of as the season wears on, choose a Printed one from these at

SPOTLESSLY FRESH

Tub Blouses

Ready to wear with your sweater or suit are tubable overblouses and tuck-ins in charming taste. Some have bateau necklines, drawn-work in color, hand embroidery, frills and tucks. Many are all white; others are combined with color in material or decoration.

For trim, crisp Blouses one needs but make her selections from this collection.

It's Time to Dive In

Bathing Suits

$5.50 to $12.50

It's good—summer's first dip. It's good to feel the cool water surging around you. But of course a little old last year's Suit won't do. Only a bright, trim-fitting new one is in keeping with the occasion. Suits of wool Jersey in new styles are especially priced at $5.50 to $12.50.

Summer Hats, Exquisite With Flower Trims

Heaps of buds high in back, clusters of tiny roses at the sides, immense dahlias or daisies perched on top—these are the ways of posies with Hats. More lovely Chapeaux there never were, with contours, besides, so graceful. Good straws in black and rich bright shades make it quite certain you will be one to enjoy a flowery Hat this season.

Tub Frocks That Enrich a Summer Wardrobe

Frocks of linen that is supple and cool; Frocks of voile and organdie, sheer and crisp; Ginghams and of Ratives. There is a charm that makes itself felt at picnic and afternoon party alike. Quantities of lace frills and jabots, cordings, plaits, aprons, embroidery and sunshine colors make them truly delightful adjuncts to a wardrobe of summer things.

Summer Brins Hose in an Abundance of Types and Colorings

First of all, when choosing Hose this season, consider color. There is a vast variety; a few notable ones, beige, chow, nude, castor and mouse grey. Your selections here will include tones that harmonize with and weights appropriate to sports, tailors and formal wear, respectively. Your every choice will prove a satisfaction. For, here, dependable quality goes hand in hand with fashion rightness.

Dainty and Decorative—These Handkerchiefs

Never does the supply of Handkerchiefs seem large enough, either to supply milady's needs or her whims for novelties. Fine linen ones, when white, are handsomely monogrammed; when colored, are sometimes coquettishly round and net edged. Very brazen batik ones peeping from tiny pockets lend a bit of dash. Be sure you are properly Handkerchiefed before the beginning of your vacation.

A GOOD SPORTS OUTFIT Smart Skirts, Sweaters and Hats FOR EVERY NEED

Tennis, golf, invigorating hikes and motoring—spirited play that beckons each Summertime! How briskly confident the participant who knows she is well dressed! That smartness in her apparel and the comfort she feels in its wearing make her happy state of mind. Of such a rightness—Sweaters, Skirts and Hats are chosen here. Whether mild or intense your urge to Sports, your taste for good Sportswear is the same. Satisfy it here.

SWEATERS

A Sportswoman must own several Sweaters. New and unusual weaves make these interesting. A jacquette, golf type, or a slip-on, ever invested with new allures in color, pattern and fancy stitch.—$3.50 to $12.50.

SKIRTS

The best of fit, the best of fabric, the best of style in good looking new Sports Skirts. They may be circular, they may be wrap-around, or plaited. Perfect Skirts for sports—$5.50 to $18.50.

SPORT HATS

Eagerly they lend themselves to sports ensembles—little Hats of cock natures. Quills, ribbon trims, raffia ornaments, and leather oddities give them their airs. In Milan, felt or silk, they are priced as low as $3.50.

The House of Values

The Land of Manana

Being a Travel Story Reviewing Conditions in the Republic of Mexico

BY LYSTON S. BLACK

Cecil Rhodes, the famous empire builder, once said, "Mexico is the treasure house from which will come the gold, silver, copper and precious stones that will build the empire of tomorrow, and will make the future cities of the world, veritable Jerusalems." He has spoken with the voice of a prophet.

Mexico is sometimes called the Land of Manana because the Mexican has the reputation of preferring to do tomorrow what might be done today. But in a commercial sense, it is indeed the land of tomorrow. For the far-reaching light of recognition will gradually dispel the depressing darkness of more than a decade of revolution, dissension and political strife.

Old Order Changing.

Already "the old order changeth yielding place to new and God fulfilleth Himself in many ways." The country is slowly but surely wresting itself from the throes of revolution and arising from the depths of attendant despondency. Villa, in a way, is an example of this gradual transformation. He has beaten his swords into plowshares. With huge harvesters and excellent equipment he is developing a ranch in a manner that would arouse the admiration of any American.

But complete stability and commercial advancement cannot come until after recognition is accorded. Recognition by the great powers will be the morning star leading to the dawn of a day the like of which the world has never seen. Anticipation of this inevitable commercial, industrial, agricultural revival and trade expansion recently prompted a party of representative Americans to tour Mexico.

Starting out to see misunderstood Mexico these men endeavored to become as intimate as possible with every manner of man, to study him and his affairs in his natural habitat; to meet President Obregon and the various governors in their gilded palaces and on the other hand to hob-nob with the lowest peon in his lowly hut. For to do business successfully with the Mexican a knowledge of his peculiar psychology and characteristic customs is of tantamount importance. The writer presents the highlights and conclusions of this intensely interesting and instructive journey into our neighboring wonderland.

Rambling Rebels.

Little progress was made during the first night on Mexican soil; rambling rebels had set fire to a railroad bridge. Indeed rumbles from rebel rampages in different parts of the republic are often heard; and at intervals soldiers in full battle equipment mysteriously entrain.

Dinky little pueblos lay at intervals along the National railway; the town of Villadama at one time boasted 4,000 people. While a dozen peons, with possibly two or three families represented, often cram themselves into a single, windowless room, yet certainly that many do not now exist in the huddling group of adobe buildings. The ever-changing, nerve-racking experiences incident to the decade of appalling political strife caused souls to migrate cityward.

There's Always a Manana.

For strange enough the peon is meek, peace-loving, considerate—not naturally a bad bandit as he is oft-times pictured. True he is emotional, easily swayed, distrustful of strangers, but he is inherently quiet, inoffensive and steadfast to friends—a farm friend and a bitter enemy. A strain of cruelty might exist—may flash up like powder in a man when ignited—but he is generally gentle, passive, courteous, friendly. No matter how lowly the peon, he is proud. One mistake traveling Americans make is to assume the "holier-than-thou" attitude. No surer way can be found to cause resentment.

Generally speaking, this is true with a representative of the upper class. And he is shrewd almost to the point of cunningness. Fastidious, deliberate and easy-going, he is slow to do business with a stranger. But his heart yearns for friendship, the business can then be incidental. Nor can he be "rushed" into a proposition—there's always a manana. He becomes suspicious if anyone tries to force him to do anything. "The world wasn't made in a day"—that's his philosophy. And, singularly, the magic spell of this spirit often grips the hearts and souls of American in Mexico—so overwhelms them that they would not be happy in their native country.

Two Old Towns.

Being a mining, smelting, railroad and brewing center, Monterey, the first city visited, contains about 80,000 people and is normally prosperous. Adobe, stone and concrete buildings mark the city as an old one. Being near mid-day the siesta period, the large doors in lieu of show windows, were closed and the narrow streets and sidewalks decidedly deserted. Monterey is typically Mexican—to the center-of-town, and all. A cantina, or saloon, stood on one corner, a large, Villa "trade-marked" hotel on another and a lofty Catholic church on a third; the inevitable plaza occupied the block in the center.

The Sierra Madre, or the mother range mountains, hover over Monterey and Saltillo—as a mother would her offspring. Gradually the road climbs, southward from Monterey, and as the altitude increases so does a cool, invigorating breeze supplant the hot, sultry atmosphere. In fact the climate of Mexico City rivals in pleasantness that of Los Angeles or any city in the world.

The important personages who met us at pretty Saltillo heartily addressed us from the top of an express truck. One speaker, a professor in one of the several colleges and a graduate of a Massachusetts normal school, eloquently pointed out the natural relationship of the two countries.

Talks were in the respective tongues but ably translated, sentence by sentence, by a brilliant Mexican named Aguilar. For a long time he was a high officer in the Mexican army—being on the general staff. A good looking, cultured, brilliant and affable man, Aguilar is. On several occasions, by his quick wit and tact, he prevented or assuaged hard feelings.

One Successful Course.

"Learn our customs and do business with us."

An interesting picture of Mexican life presented itself at the depot in San Luis Potasi. Sombreroed men, with their beloved tight-fitting trousers, and mantilla manteled women selling laces and drawn-work; vividly garbed peddlers of every article imaginable; ragamuffin shine boys of all sizes; underfed cargadores with ropes and straps begging to carry baggage and pathetic muchachitas and muchachitos muttering and crying, "Centavos, centavos," literally swarmed around the station. A company of nondescript soldiers, loaded down with filled cartridge belts, and carrying loaded rifles lazily boarded a train. And as a fitting artistic contrast to this active scene, in a distant otherwise deserted doorway stood, statue-like, a dark-skinned, sandaled, heavily sombreroed, hombre—a bright, rug-like serape enshrouding the body, the loose end flung snugly over the left shoulder—a still, silent, sombre study.

The mayor and the president of the Chamber of Commerce officiated in the royal welcome to the visitors. A part of the interesting and overwhelming entertainment was a call on the governor. The governor's very attitude radiated cordiality and hospitality. In a conversational tone and in English, he said, "Despite malicious propaganda to the contrary, my people are naturally friendly toward the people of the United States of the North. It is true that we have been fooled by some unscrupulous adventurers; but that does not condemn your great people as a whole by any means. If you will but learn our customs and do business with us we will all be greatly benefited."

Not a detail was overlooked at the sumptuous banquet, furnished by the city. Music of many kinds resounded through the hall. A six-piece orchestra alternated with one of those famous red-coated bands. And along with this music sounded a medley caused by the clinking of glasses and the popping of corks from the bottles of champagne. A Mexican doctor spoke, a graduate from the University of Virginia. So enthusiastically friendly was he that he often caught himself lapsing into Spanish, from his otherwise perfect English—so anxious was he to express his feeling of regard and love.

"Great Internal Problems." Another highly intelligent Mexican, Senor Alvarez, insisted that the United States could help his people in many ways, and that the service would be mutual. "We are a country abounding in undeveloped wealth," he earnestly declared, "but we need your initiative, industry, capital, brains. You will be richly rewarded."

"We, as a nation, are crippled and need you as a big brother to lean on. You must know the facts, we face great internal problems. Most of our people are poverty-stricken. And I am ashamed to say that 85 per cent of them can neither read nor write; about forty per cent are pure-blood Indians, two millions of whom cannot understand our own language. If you will but recognize our wise and patient president, it will greatly help us in our evolution."

Indeed evidence pointing to the truth of his statements stood out on every side. Dr. J. H. McLean of Fort Worth, Texas was amazed at what he saw at one of the hospitals there. The hospital and surgical equipment was old, of crude design and limited quantity. A number of the interned patients were dying with the plague. But the leading men of the country are alive to the true situation and Dr. Dines Martinez is already planning a fine hospital in Mexico City. He intends to devote the whole of next year in touring the United States—gaining ideas and purchasing equipment for his institution.

Next morning green, well cultivated fields with an occasional mule-driven plow, and other evidences of civilization, not only informed us that we were approaching the largest old city in the Western Hemisphere but, by contrast, impressed upon our minds more thoroughly the nature of the country that we had already traversed.

Plowing With Crooked Stick.

Along the greater part of this road the natives use primitive methods of cultivation. For plowing a crooked stick is attached to a yoke of oxen. Sometimes cultivation is not considered necessary, the corn being planted by dropping it in a hole made by a stick carried in one hand. Sometimes la mauger, or the woman, does the plowing, but more often el hombre, with either his wife or one of the children accompanying him. Not only are plowmen usually accompanied, but burro drivers like to go by twos—and in the cities, jitney drivers habitually ride that way.

Doing without adequate water supply, all but the southern part of Nuevo Leon is of little value agriculturally. Because of the scarcity of grass, and bushes that cattle like, it is only a fair cattle country. But mining is an important industry—silver, lead and iron abound in the hills and low mountains. And these ores are found further south, as well as are gold and copper.

Beginning in the vicinity of Monterey and extending south of Saltillo, and then at intervals from San Luis Potasi are many small fields; with corn predominating. Large grain and cattle ranches—haciendas—and scattering fruit orchards, cover the landscape.

Drink Plants.

An important agricultural product, found pretty well all over the country, is the plant from which the well-known mescal and tequila are made. A strong drink is mescal—the most popular strong drink of the Mexican

—a good rebel drink, having a sharp sort of peppery taste. Tequila, more refined and fermented, is even stronger; but being more expensive, it is drunk less. Even the Maguay plant (a species of the century plant) is made another equally important drink, the milk-like, insipid, universally popular Mexican drink—pulque. Being weaker, it can be drunk more plentifully than tequila or mescal. As "dago-red" is the low class Italian, so is pulque to the peon. In fact natives often exist for months on an exclusive diet of tortillas (thin unsalted cakes of mashed corn), frejoles and pulque.

IT WILL OPEN JUNE FIRST

To Gas Users

Service is of prime necessity to every Natural Gas company. The consumers demand it. The company must give it or eventually go out of business. Natural gas service must be given 24 hours a day and 365 days a year. The same equipment necessary to provide for the peak loads of winter are in use during the summer. It costs money to provide this service and the consuming public should realize this fact.

Gas without service is worthless. When paying gas bills the consumer should take into consideration the service rendered as well as the gas used.
