EARLY MORNING FIRE QUICKLY EXTINGUISHED

Brick Block In Ranger Threatened By Blaze In Office Of Oil Well Supply Co.

The Oil Well Supply company, Ranger, suffered an estimated loss of about $500 from fire about 5:30 o'clock this morning. The company's offices and store are in the brick block on North Rusk street, between Main and Walnut streets, which was saved by early discovery of the blaze and quick work of the firemen.

Mrs. R. B. Stroud, who has an apartment in the building, was awakened by smoke and, while Mr. Stroud was telephoning an alarm to the fire station, her daughter, Miss Alyne, located the blaze. The firemen were a little late in arriving, due to a misunderstanding that sent them to the warehouse of the Oil Well Supply company, but worked fast when they did reach the fire. For a little while the entire block was in danger.

Mrs. Stroud was awakened about 5:30 by a smothering sensation and the scent of burning pine. Her room was full of smoke which had seeped in through the cracks. She aroused her husband and daughter, who began search for the flames, which were soon located in the rear of the building where the company's offices are situated. Firemen broke into the building using an axe to cut through the wooden doors in the rear. Before they could extinguish the flames the office partitions were virtually destroyed, two desks burned to coals, an office table heavily burned, one typewriter destroyed, and other probably injured beyond repair, an adding machine and numerous other office appurtenances destroyed or damaged.

Fortunately all the company's records, except some correspondence files, were saved. Most of these were locked in fire-proof safes. Two waste baskets filled with waste paper were not burned, which gives rise to the conjecture that the fire must have originated in a short somewhere in the electric wiring, although all wires are said to have been in conduits.

Manager Abe Shaw, Walker Walters, Clyde Kilpatrick and J. O. Peyton of the company were all on the spot early, they having been called by Mr. Stroud as soon as the fire alarm was turned in.

BRIAND AGAIN IS INVITED TO FORM CABINET

May Invite Joseph. Caillaux To Be Finance Minister. May Be "Man Of The Hour."

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Aristide Briand, regarded by many as the "man of the hour" in France, today was engaged for the second time this week in trying to form a cabinet for France.

Recalled to the task he had surrendered, following yesterday's failure of Edouard Herriot to construct a ministry, Briand was believed in a position to get a group to succeed the fallen Painleve government. It was thought that by next Thursday he would be able to present a cabinet, which will be the eighth in his career. Meanwhile he is anxious to go to London for the signing of the Locarno pact next Tuesday.

Briand aroused some surprise when he summoned Joseph Caillaux, the finance minister—the first Painleve regime, and it was deemed likely that Caillaux would be offered the portfolio of finance. It was recalled that Caillaux's refusal to quit the Painleve cabinet had led to the unseating of that ministry.

Her son, James Monk, 14, who was driving, was only slightly bruised. He said he could not account for the accident. He was driving fast on a straight roadway, when the car suddenly left the road.

The daughter, whose leg was broken and back hurt, is in a hospital here.

AMON G. CARTER PUT OFF FIELD AT A. & M. GAME

Shouts "Hurrah for A. & M. and Dan Moody's" Too Near Governor's Box.

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 27.—Amon G. Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Recorder, was put off Kyle field, where the Texas Aggies and Longhorns played yesterday, for shouting "Hurrah for A. and M. and Dan Moody's."

Carter was said to have walked back of the box occupied by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and her party to do his roaring. President T. O. Walton of A. and M. College warned Carter to desist, threatening to call officers. Carter disregarded the president's warning and was escorted from the field.

The sports writer of the Star-Telegram says of this incident: "Speaking of parades, Bill Stripling sometimes called the Young Merchant Prince by his ball players, staged one. He and Amon Carter, after the Aggies began to slip through to victory, he and Carter marched through the stands, shouting 'Hurrah for A. and M. and Dan Moody.'" Incidentally, they marched directly behind the box occupied by Governor Miriam Ferguson and her husband, ex-Governor James E. Ferguson.

This parade for two ended with a speech to the A. and M. band and Cadet Corps, massed on the east side of the field.

Satterwhite Ready To Call Legislature If Governor Does Not

AUSTIN, Nov. 27.—"The fact that the governor of Texas is a woman will not stop impeachment proceedings," Speaker Lee Satterwhite of the house of representatives told the United Press today.

Satterwhite declared that if evidence warranted "there may be impeachment proceedings against the governor."

"But there must be sufficient evidence at hand before such an action is resorted to," he added.

Satterwhite said that if the governor does not issue her call before Dec. 10 for the legislature to meet, he would issue a call by Dec. 15, and have the house convene Jan. 6.

Death Claims Well Known Ranger Railroad Man Friday

Charles A. Hammond died at Clinical hospital in Ranger last night a little past midnight. His body will be given Masonic burial in Baird at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. It will be sent away on the Sunshine today, accompanied by his brother, Fred Baird of Chicago, who came in response to a telegram announcing his impending death, and his sister, Mrs. Eugene Neal of Winslow, Ariz. He had been with the line ever since it was built into Ranger and was for 15 years previously with the Texas & Pacific at Baird where, as well as in Ranger, he leaves a host of friends. ### STATE'S LEGAL ADVISER GIVES HIS OPINION

Counties Only May Award Road Contracts Involving Use of County Money.

AUSTIN, Nov. 27.—In a sweeping opinion, the attorney general's department held today that the state highway commission cannot make contracts for the construction of public highways where they involve the expenditure of county funds. The opinion was written by Assistant Attorney General L. B. Sutton for the county attorney of Shackelford county and is believed to accomplish, without a special session of the legislature, the demands made at a recent session of Texas county judges and members of commissioners' courts.

The opinion holds that wherever county funds are used, with state aid added, the contracts for construction of roads must be let by the county, although the plans and specifications must be submitted to and approved by the state highway engineer. The opinion contains six cardinal points, which are:

The state highway commission has authority to let contracts only when the work is to be paid wholly out of the state highway fund.

The state highway commission has no authority to award contracts for road work where county funds are involved.

The county commissioners' court has authority to make contracts for road work, even on state highways, but plans and specifications must be subject to the approval of the state highway engineer.

The state highway commission has no authority to compel counties to grant aid to state highway, but the commission may grant county aid projects, in which event the money becomes available to the highway commission and as part of the highway funds.

The commissioners' court has charge of the county monies, including aid granted to the county by the state highway commission, and the granting of county aid to the state is voluntary and discretionary on the part of the commissioners' court.

Where counties vote bonds or raise road funds in any other manner and desire to make road contracts with or without other aid, the county must advertise for bids and let the contracts, but plans and specifications must be submitted to the state highway engineer for approval.

MITCHELL WINS ANOTHER POINT AT HIS TRIAL

Witness For Opposition Forced Into Admission Favorable To "Flying Colonel."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The Mitchell defense turned the tables on the army prosecution at the Mitchell court-martial today, forcing an admission from Brigadier General Leroy Eltings favorable to the "flying colonel's" case.

After questioning by Representative Frank Reid of Illinois, counsel for Mitchell, Eltings testified that the commandant at Hawaiian Islands had failed to provide joint tactical maneuvers between the army and navy. One of Mitchell's charges was that there was a total lack of cooperation between the army and navy at the recent Hawaiian maneuvers.

Brigadier General Eltings was called to the witness stand as the first gun of the opposition. General Eltings is a former staff officer who had charge of defense plans and was asked regarding plans for the Hawaiian defense in the event of war. Mitchell has charged there are no such plans.

The prosecution introduced papers which, it was said, contained a secret plan for the defense of the Pacific. Frank Reid, defense counsel, inspected them and declared, "there is no war plan among the papers." This statement caused the court to become confused over the contents of the papers and Major Wilbur, general staff officer conducting the case, said they contained a war project for Hawaii and not plans for defense.

NEW TAX BILL.
 Because the new revenue act will be virtually non-partisan, indications are that the house rules committee, in co-operation with the republican steering committee, will have it introduced under a special rule which will so limit debate that the bill will be passed on Dec. 23.

Republican house leaders feel that the actions of the committee with regard to the new bill has been so nearly unanimous that there will be no more objections to curtailing amendments, for instance, from the democrats than from the republicans. It is also argued that the elements which were so prevalent last year can be held to a certain extent responsible for the "wide open" rules which obtained then and which resulted in the bill being changed many times over.
 Mr. Mellon's recommendations have been ignored to the extent of increasing reductions, but it has been impossible to meet all the demands of interests looking for special favors. The people will welcome the reduction at this time, but confidently anticipate a lighter burden on the small earners in the near future.

FRANCE FACES FACTS.
 With a bare majority of 32 in the French chamber of deputies, with growing disaffection among the radical and socialist components of his majority the Painleve government faces the country with the most unpopular of all governmental policies—a rigorous tax problem. Short of repudiation only brutal taxation can keep the French government solvent, its credit intact. The national industrial conference board, after most exhaustive and official investigation finds the per capita tax of England in terms of 1913 dollars is $58.40; United States, $45.27; France, $25.53; Belgium, $17.76; Italy, $14.28. One thing is sure—neither individuals or nations can have its cake and eat it, too.

In addition to banning the fez as a national headdress, Turkey has banished some 20,000 monks and dervishes, mystics of Islam, who have lived on the ignorance and superstitiousness of peasants and tourists. By whirling, spinning and howling these mystical monks worked themselves into an ecstasy of religious fervor and to an insensibility to pain which enabled them to pierce their cheeks with spikes and walk on white hot stones. This is perhaps the most far reaching reform yet attempted in Turkish life.

LATIN LEAFLET ISSUED BY UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS
 By United Press.
 AUSTIN, Nov. 27.—With a mailing list of 1,000, the Latin Leaflet issued by the department of classical languages of the University of Texas, reaches the 330 Latin teachers and the thousands of Latin students throughout the State, according to Miss Roberta F. Lavender, adjunct professor of Latin in the university, and editor of the bulletin. In its pages are suggestions for the study of the language, notes on various Latin authors which have proved helpful in the encouraging study of Latin in the public schools of the state to meet the urgent call for trained Latin teachers. Last spring the university teacher's appointment committee of the university alone received 107 such calls, only a small number of which could be filled, Miss Lavender said.

At the evening hour he will discuss the question "Should a Preacher Preach and Work for the Spiritual Welfare of His People or Merely to Please Them?" Don't miss these two heart-to-heart messages.
 A banner Sunday school, league, and junior church attendance is urged. Let each member of the Big Brothers' Bible class read Paul's letter to the Ephesians and be in his place at 9:45 sharp.

GERMAN REICHSTAG FAVORS TWO PEACE MOVEMENTS
 BERLIN, Nov. 27.—The German reichstag today took two far-reaching steps towards what is expected to insure peace in Europe when the government was authorized to sign the Locarno security treaty and to apply for membership in the league of nations.
 The Locarno pact was brought up in the reichstag for trial reading and, together with the league of nations membership, was endorsed by a big majority.

ROTARIANS ARE HOSTS TO TWO CISCO MEMBERS

Mayor Williamson and J. E. T. Peters Participate In "Ragging Match."

A "ragging" inclination, afterclap of the inter-city meet, no doubt, characterized Wednesday's noon-day luncheon of the Ranger Rotary Club, in which olives were put in members' pockets and booms started for members of the state highway commission.
 Mayor Williams of Cisco and J. E. T. Peters of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce were guests of the clubs. Both made remarks which had the ring of real appreciation of the work of ranger and her club.
 A letter from Mrs. Roy Jameson, secretary of the child's welfare club, in which she expressed appreciation of the work of the Rotarians in sponsoring the drive for that organization, and naming particularly Rotarians including Rotarians Coleman, Newnam and Maher.

Arthur Jury, by special request, read the paper recently read by him before the Texas Hotel Keepers' Association on "The Art of Hotel Keeping," in which he extolled art as a creative process which does not necessarily assume physical form but may produce mental effects and express itself on canvases, in stone or elsewhere. He then deftly turned the idea of art to the business of keeping a hotel which "provides a home away from home," "specializes in cozy mattresses," and provides even "good corners for the ladies" and made other happy allusions. The reading was received with prolonged applause, part of which, it was explained, was for the membership of that body of hotel men who placed the Gholson manager in line for automatic succession to the president of their body.

Rink-a-Dinks Take Exciting Game From The Ranger Bearcats
 The Ranger Ring-a-Dinks and the Ranger Bearcats met on the gridiron at Nitro Park this morning and the Rink-a-Dinks trimmed the Bearcats by a score of 25 to 6, but the Bearcats retaliated by scoring on the Rink-a-Dinks, which it was thought could not be done, as it had been only once before during the season. The Bearcats made their touchdown in the last part of the fourth quarter, but were unable to kick goal. Estes Horton made the touchdown. "Red" Long captured the Bearcats.

TWO ELIGIBLES FOR RANGER POSTMASTER

J. E. Meroney and Wallace Wagner Qualify For Office. Dreinhofer Has No Word.

"It would seem that I have been eliminated," said Postmaster Fred Dreinhofer, discussing the press dispatches which named as the eligibles who have qualified for the position of postmaster in Ranger as J. E. Meroney and Wallace Wagner. Mr. Dreinhofer, however, made it plain that he had as yet received no notices in the premises and knew nothing except what the Washington dispatches gave.
 The two known applicants for the position are both well known in Ranger. Mr. Meroney has been connected with the civil service for several years at the Ranger postoffice and he is now superintendent of that branch of the service—or was until he made application for the position as postmaster. Mr. Wagner is in the insurance and loan business on Rusk street. He was formerly postmaster at Side Springs.
 Mr. Dreinhofer said that he passed the former civil service tests of similar character without any trouble. He had little comment to make except to say that he would, apparently, be "looking for a job one of these days."

Nolan Queen of Weatherford who has been spending a few days in Ranger looking after his properties, expresses himself pleased with his investment in Ranger buildings. He built and owns the new brick block on Main street beginning at the corner of Main and Austin streets. There are seven store rooms in the building, five of which have been rented and negotiations are pending on the other two, it is said.
 These buildings are on the site of the old McCleskey hotel, which was burned down in the fire in July of last year. The new block was not completed until a few weeks ago. A waiting list of tenants took over and occupied a number of the store rooms as soon as available.
 Lloyd Dotighty, also of Weatherford, who accompanied Mr. Queen on his visit to Ranger, expressed his surprise at Ranger's recent rapid and apparently very substantial growth.

BEGIN HERE TODAY:
Barbara Hawley, 25, after teaching school three years, decides to go into newspaper work in order to see life.

When her fiance, Bruce Reynolds, objects, she breaks with him and gets a job on the Telegraph, of which Andrew McDermott, a close friend of her father before his death, is managing editor. She almost involves the paper in a libel suit during her first day at the office, when she erroneously reports Morris Pattinham dead.

Barbara becomes a friend of Bob Jeffries, rough and ready police reporter, who promises to "show her the ropes."

On her second day at the office the West Plains Limited is wrecked and 30 persons are killed.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER V.

The Telegraph office sprang into instant activity.

Wells flashed his desk telephone, sent the office boy into the composing room, summoned reporters about his desk.

"Get Jeffries on the wire," he said to somebody, and then his eye fell on Barbara, who was lingering in the outskirts of the crowd. "Tell Jeffries to wait for Miss Hawley, and then shoot straight out to Bar Junction. Give me a call at once, and then work toward a second extra by 11 o'clock."

Barbara could scarcely believe her ears. She found herself walking toward the desk, however, and in a moment was receiving instructions.

"We'll see what you can do, Miss Hawley," said Wells, looking keenly at her. "Jeffries will cover the fundamentals of the accident from the straight news angle. You will pick up heart-throb notes among survivors and wounded. Get us one long human-interest feature, and grab all the shorter sidelights you can. Write whatever you would read, if you were on the outside."

He was gone in a streak toward the composing room door, where the foreman was waiting for him.

Barbara took a step toward her desk. Her knees wobbled beneath her. But she went on.

As though from outside her consciousness came two voices. The society editor and a reporter were looking at her from a corner.

"Too bad Jensen is off," said the man. "This story would be pie for him. Golly, what a feature you'd spin out of it. And Dollar and Jones both out on assignments too. Kind-a tough on old Wells."

"Yes," said Miss Badger, not troubling to lower her voice. "That new girl can't get by on it. She looks like a total loss already."

Barbara stiffened. Miraculously her knees stopped their queer knocking, and her head felt cooler. She grasped her hat and coat and a wad of copy paper, such as she had seen other reporters carrying. Then she ran for the elevator. Just before the door of the lift closed on her, Jimmy made a rush for it and thrust something into her hand. "Wells says, 'Take a taxi!'" he shouted, as the door clanged to.

In the lobby downstairs Barbara looked at the article that he had put in her hand. It was a taxi book. She picked up a cab at the door.

"The police station," she told the driver, "and hurry."

Ten minutes later she ran into the white marble hall of the police station, to find Bob Jeffries just starting for the door, watch in hand.

He grasped her arm without a word, and they ran out to the sidewalk, where the crazy racing car stood at the curb. In a moment they were flashing through the city streets, over a bridge and out into open country. It was not until they had settled down to a steady speed that Bob tried to talk.

"Listen, Miss Hawley," he said to Barbara. "Now's your chance. Can you stand blood and things?"

Barbara uncertainly nodded her head.

"Well, you'll have to, because this smash-up is one of the worst in years. I'll do all I can for you, but if we get separated, you'll have to go ahead, pick up all the names you can, and the stories of families separated, and so forth. Anything you see that has a human-interest punch in it, put it down. But get NAMES and INITIALS and stay as cool as you can. If you keep very busy you won't have time to faint, as the other girl did."

"Pay this man," said Barbara, leaving an astonished police reporter staring at a suspicious taxi driver.

Barbara's eyes snapped. "Faint!" she tossed back. "Of course I won't."

Bar Junction was some 15 miles from town, and the racer pulled into sight of the wreck in just 20 minutes after Bob and Barbara left the station.

The wrecked trains lay just over a hill, and the scene flashed across Bob and Barbara's vision, like a canvas suddenly dropped before them. Barbara had a confused idea about Armageddon, steel and fire and sudden death. She did not stop to unravel it.

Before her eyes lay a mass of twisted machinery, with great jagged fingers of steel thrusting out, as though they pointed an accusation at the skies.

The mammoth engine of the limited lay on its side, in grips with the smaller engine of the freight train. They looked to Barbara like two bulls dead, with locked horns.

The cars of the two trains lay in long ribbons down the tracks on either side, some overturned, some still on the rails. The last two pullmans of the limited had overturned and slithered down the banks of a creek, where they lay half submerged.

Barbara caught her breath. She followed Jeffries over the rough ground to within 20 feet of the engines. A brakeman approached them.

"No sightseeing allowed, sir," said the man. "We've got to get rid of this crowd." And then Barbara saw that people were coming up from all sides and numerous automobiles were parked roundabout.

"Bob Jeffries of the Telegraph," said Bob, "and this is Miss Hawley. What can you tell us about the wreck?"

The man's attitude changed instantly. He began a detailed and rapid account. Bob took notes on his wad of paper, thanked the brakeman and turned to the girl.

"They think there are still living persons in some of these coaches," he said. "Some, perhaps, half-drowned in those two coaches in the creek. I'll have to leave you. You find the survivors in that improvised hospital over there and meet me here whenever you are ready. Don't make it later than ten-thirty, though."

He was gone. Barbara stared after him helplessly, then pulled herself up with a jerk.

She turned toward the tent-like hospital that had been rigged up a few feet away. She was still moving in a daze. The shouts and multitudinous sounds of the place blended in a confused murmur. She walked warily, constantly fearing what her eyes might light upon.

At last she saw it. They were lifting something out of a window in one of the overturned coaches, lifting it with infinite, needless care.

"SPINSTERHOOD"

Barbara came upon them without warning. It was her first sight of death—and death without the palliating influence of roses and satin and hushed solemnity.

For a second she closed her eyes and stood still. Again the thought of Armageddon flashed into her mind. All earth and heaven would some day go out like this, she thought—each man's heaven and earth all in an instant.

She looked again. This time she did not close her eyes. She gripped a long draught of fresh air, gritted her teeth and went on. "Is there anybody alive in that coach?" she asked one of the workers.

The man did not raise his head. "Couldn't say," he replied. "Barbara peered carefully through the windows of the wrecked carriages. Nothing was to be seen save darkness within. She hurried toward the improvised hospital. A brawny nurse blocked her progress, but an explanation of Barbara's mission gained a reluctant permission to enter.

When she emerged, her face white and her hands gripping a sheet of scribbled notes, it was 15 minutes after 10.

She hurried up the long line of coaches, turning her head away from the wreckage. Up the line, workmen were still chopping through debris and helpers were carrying stretchers away.

Barbara looked around for Bob. He was not in sight. At last she saw the brakeman whom they had talked to first. He could tell her nothing of Bob's whereabouts. The racer was not where they had left it.

She had heard Wells speak of an extra by 11. There was no time to be lost in looking for Bob. She must find transportation into town, on her own initiative.

At her left, a seedy looking man was sitting in a striped Ford. He was watching the workers. Barbara ran toward him. "Will you take me into town?" she called. The man looked at her insolently.

"Let's see your money," he said. Barbara opened her purse and stood transfixed. There was a lone dollar bill inside, that she had put in her bag for lunch. There was nothing for it but to tell him the truth and promise money when they arrived at the Telegraph office.

He listened skeptically, but, glancing at her clothes and the sheaf of notes in her hand, he decided to take a chance.

The old car belied its appearance. They made even better time back to town than Barbara and Bob had made on the way out.

As they rounded the corner of a street a clock in a drug store window said 10:45. The driver of the car following Barbara into the building. In the lobby they met Bob Jeffries waiting for the elevator.

"Pay this man," said Barbara and caught the first car up, leaving an astonished police reported staring at a suspicious driver.

Wells looked up when she plunged into the editorial room. "Well," he said, "you didn't faint, did you?"

Forty minutes later, when she laid her last sheet of copy on the city desk, the city editor had a smile for her, the first with which he had as yet favored her. "Now go and get some coffee," he said.

An errand boy coming in a few moments afterwards, announced to the editor, "There's a lady lying out in the corridor, Fair or I guess. But she must be coming to," because she's saying something about Armaged—something about Reynolds."

After-the-Game Entertainment Gives Fine Opportunity For Conversation

By BARBARA BROOKS, Home Economics Dept., Kellogg Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Crisp cold air! Ringers, lowers, colors, excitement! These are all a part of the football season. On the day of the game there is little time for luncheon but everyone comes home cold and hungry and then how good tea or supper tastes!

Many people make the game an occasion for entertaining their friends. There need be no plans for amusement because everyone will want to talk over the plays and plays.

Conversation is animated and the hostess need feel no responsibility on this score because everyone has an interest in common.

What can be served after a game? If you are giving a tea it must be a substantial one. For this reason her chocolate or cocoa is a good beverage to use. A satisfactory cocoa recipe for twelve cups calls for one half cup cocoa, one-half cup sugar, three tablespoons flour, two cups water and two quarts hot milk. Mix cocoa, sugar, flour and water together and cook, stirring until the mixture is smooth and thick. Add milk and cook in a double boiler for twenty minutes. Add one teaspoon of vanilla just before serving and use whipped cream or a marshmallow in each cup. The flour binds the mixture, giving it body. The cocoa can be made before the game and re-heated later.

If buffet service is used, electric chafing dishes may be on the table filled with hot creamed chicken, mushrooms, tuna fish, or Welsh rarebit. Olives, celery, salted nuts, sandwiches and cake will furnish enough food to fill up even the hungriest boy.

CATARRH WEAKENS WOMEN--DESTROYS THEIR WILL POWER

Veil of Mystery, Which Has Surrounded Suffering and Pain of Women Is Finally Lifted By St. Joseph's G. F. P.

As a great many women have already learned, it has now been proven beyond the least shadow of doubt that nine out of ten cases of so-called "female troubles" are the result of catarrh of the generative organs—a dreaded malady which can be brought on by colds, overexertion, exposure, or almost anything which creates an unusual drain on women's delicate system.

There is no end to the trouble which women can bring on themselves by failing to get rid of this terrible disease when it first becomes evident they are victims of it. So-called "sterility" is a condition which frequently results from the attacks of this terrible enemy; and even kidney, liver or bladder troubles often develop when women put off seeking relief too long.

St. Joseph's G. F. P. is believed to be the first direct specific for the relief of catarrh of the female generative organs. It has proven its merit, by overcoming and stamping out this awful malady whenever it is being used consistently. With its help, thousands of weak, nervous and pain-racked women are now experiencing surprisingly quick relief from so-called "female disorders" and a wonderful return of vigor, vitality and youthful buoyancy.

It is nice to have several kinds of sandwiches. White, graham and nut bread may be spread with different fillings. A good rule for sandwiches is one of an appetizer, one for a filler, and one for a sweet.

We suggest anchovy butter on white bread for the first, cream cheese and olives on graham bread for the second; and a sweet nut bread spread with butter or marmalade for the third.

All-Bran Fruit Bread. One egg, 1 cup brown sugar, 1-4 cup light corn syrup, 1 tablespoon melted shortening, 1 cup sour milk, 1 cup dates or raisins, 1 1-2 cups All-Bran, 2 cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Beat the egg well with the sugar, add corn syrup, melted shortening, sour milk, fruit and All-Bran. Sift the flour with salt, soda and baking powder and add to above mixture. Mix well and put in buttered tin. Let rise twenty minutes and bake in slow oven (250 degrees Fahrenheit) for fifty minutes.

Decorations for this kind of a party are easy also. Use the school or college colors and flowers. Suitable favors may be procured to fit the occasion. This type of party is of the jolliest in the year.

Lady Says She Took Cardui and Never Saw Such Improvement—Was So Weak Couldn't Stand.

Weathersby, Miss.—Mrs. James M. Hall, of this place, writes that she was "getting weaker all the time" when Cardui, the woman's tonic, was first brought to her attention.

After she had taken Cardui a while, she writes that she "never did see such an improvement."

"I suffered all the time and had pains all over," says Mrs. Hall. "I was so weak I could not stand. My skin was cold and flabby. I did not have any color. I had always been a very active woman—used to outdoor exercise, walking and going where I pleased, and to get down, not able to get myself a drink, was indeed a hardship."

"Nothing seemed to help me, till I began on Cardui. The first bottle began to strengthen me, and I sent for five more. By the time I had taken these, I was on my feet, going around, doing my work, gained in health and strength."

"I took two more bottles, and I am well and strong. Can work my garden. I haven't had any more sickness."

Ranger Bull Pups Win From Strawn By 33 to 13 Score

With Cooper and Glenn out and Walker allowed to play in their stead, the 1926 Ranger Bulldogs defeated the Strawn team yesterday by a score of 33 to 13. Ranger's six-foot line showed little if any better than Strawn's line but Ranger's aerial work was unexpectedly sensational. Mills, Walker, Whitehall, Hinman, Grubbs, Shipp and the little quarterback, Reeves (after getting over his first stage fright), featured for Ranger. "Red" Stewart, who played with a lame shoulder; Sherrod, who it is announced will play on the Ranger team next year; Austin McKeown, R. Waugh and Craddock featured for Strawn, Craddock making sensational plays for many yards' gain throughout the game.

Ranger's 1926 material showed better in Thursday's game than at any time since they have been given their try-outs. The most encouraging sign was the development of passing machines which were not perfected this season until very late and never up to the point where they could be depended upon.

The crowd was more than fair. The game was exceptionally clean. Ranger drew several offside penalties and Strawn none. Whitehall's interception of forward passes, Grubbs' work on the receiving end of one or two good passes, Reeves' interception of a forward pass after three Strawn men had kept the ball in the air, Whitehall's line plunges, two of which netted a first down, and Shipp's catch of a 30-yard forward pass from Mills, were among the things which made the game dependent of Mills and Walker's usual long end runs, passes and other distance gaining stunts.

The officials were Higginbotham (A. & M.), referee; Aubrey Jameson, umpire; Graham, head lineman.

Stewart's Washington Letter

BY CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—How many Americans can tell who represents them in Congress? "Very few," answers A. D. Fairbairn, and he tells a story which sounds as if he knows what he's talking about.

Fairbairn is a Washingtonian who recently had occasion to take a trip through 15 of the 48 states, and in the course of this journey accident started him on an investigation into the extent of the average man's familiarity with political personalities.

"Amazing ignorance" is what he found, "in all walks of life," he reports.

THE accident which started him? Well, while he was in Omaha it chanced that he needed to learn the name of the congressman from the second Nebraska district. Taking it for granted that almost any local voter could tell him, he asked one To his surprise, the voter didn't know. He asked another. Neither did the second one know. Curious by this time, Fairbairn kept on asking until he reached the 26th, a hotel clerk, "who," he says, "scratched his head, gave the matter about 3 minutes' thought and then found, to his keen delight, that he actually could name Judge W. G. Sears"—and Sears, by the way, is a congressman of more than average distinction. Not to know who he is, in Omaha, is something like not knowing who Calvin Coolidge is in Washington. At that, the hotel clerk was acquainted with Sears' politics.

HIS Omaha experience made such an impression on Fairbairn that he continued his questioning throughout the rest of his trip. It led to his discovery of the fact that "the Omaha incident was not unusual but typical."

It was the same way about senators. As for cabinet members, Fairbairn says he found hardly anybody who could name all of them correctly.

Seventy-four of the lighthouses maintained by the United States government were, during 1924, equipped with automatic electric systems. This cost $50,748 but resulted in a saving of $17,785 or 35 per cent of the cost of the electric installations.

The aggregate capitalization of the electric service companies of the United States five years ago was a little more than four billion dollars. Today it is approximately seven billion dollars and by 1930 it will be, it is estimated, nearly ten billion dollars.

Salvation Army In Ranger Making Plans For Its Annual Campaign to Raise Money to Support Activities

Accounting for the generous dollars donated during the Salvation Army drive in Ranger last year, the Ranger corps of the army will shortly make public a complete list of the charity work done by that organization. The Ranger advisory board composed of prominent local citizens are now completing plans for this year's drive and will meet within the next few days to appoint committees for the work.

Some idea can be gained of the amount of charity work done in Ranger by the Salvation Army during the year, when it is known that more than 700 cases of relief were handled or nearly two for every day in the year. Among these were 118 stranded unfortunates who were given meals and sixty-eight who were supplied with a place to sleep. No less than 161 pairs of shoes were distributed and seven families were given medical aid. Exactly 489 garments were given away to those in need to protect them from the elements and during the past summer ice and bread and milk were supplied to 29 families where little children were suffering.

During the year two wayward girls were sent to the Salvation Army maternity home and hospital at San Antonio from Ranger. This home is maintained by the Army has a record of rehabilitating more than 85 per cent of the girls entering and is one of the finest equipped maternity homes in the entire south. Due to its efficient and economical management only $100 is required from the amount collected at Ranger for our share in its upkeep.

Realizing that Ranger is an important post in the southwestern division the staff here has been augmented by the addition of Envoys and Mrs. Howard, experienced Salvation Army workers, who have been conducting meetings for the past few weeks and aiding Lieut. Gono in other army activities here. This will give the army a complete working staff here and the coming year will show increase in all branches of Army work here.

The members of the Ranger advisory board who sponsor the work here are: Arthur A. Diehl, Dr. Harry

A. Logsdon, Walter Murray, Sandford Dean, W. W. Housewright, J. M. Dodson, J. T. Killingsworth, R. A. Jameson, A. Joseph, G. P. Murphy, M. H. Hagaman, John M. Gholson, and C. C. Patterson.

County Agent R. H. Bush announces that he will hold a terracing demonstration on the John Hopper farm just southeast of Rising Star next Monday, which is Nov. 30. All farmers in reach of the Hopper farm and who are interested in terracing, are urged to attend this demonstration.

JUMPING HORSES.

I have ridden many horses against all kinds of jumps. I have made a horse jump a ditch 15 feet wide, four times in succession, as a punishment for refusing an easy jump. I rode him bareback at the time and the time and the jump inconvenienced me about as much as would the jolt from having a rocking-chair bump a lead pencil on the floor.

I sat that horse with my body leaning forward not more than 10 degrees from a perpendicular and when my horse landed I was not more than that much back of the perpendicular. I sat him like a postage stamp, with my heels hooked under his body.

I have had a cow pony jump down a four-foot vertical drop to a trail below, with me on his back, coming down a steep mountain side. I have jumped fences on a horse. I have ridden a horse at a fast gallop through a thick, hardwood forest, leading off cows, and jumped him over logs. In this case I sat a sheepskin, with thick wool on it, held by a surcingle, with no stirrups.

In fence jumping and the four-foot drop I rode a stock saddle. When I had the saddle, I made the balls of my feet take the bump, with the spring of ankle and instep acting as cushions.

I learned jumping without instruction from any one and I never had any trouble with a horse over it, after I had once gained his confidence and affection, a thing I always do with a saddle.—E. E. Harriman in October Adventure Magazine.

Since 1920 the people of Browncroft, one of the suburbs of Rochester, N. Y., have each Christmas been decking the spruces outside their homes with electric lights. At first it was but a few who did this but the custom grew steadily. Last year well over 10,000 electric lamps were used in Browncroft for these Christmas decorations and some 50,000 people came to view the sight of a suburban neighborhood specially illuminated for the Christmas season.

The proper use of electric household appliances is now being taught as part of the curriculum of the home economics department of Iowa State College. This new course not only embraces the proper use of such electric appliances as washers, cleaners, irons and ironers, fans and the like but making minor repairs and adjustments is also part of the course.

DON'T EXPERIMENT WITH 'PIMPLE CURES'

Do you think so little of your delicate skin and face as to allow yourself to become the subject for experiments. By all means use only the thing which has stood the test of time and public opinion to get rid of your pimples, blotches, bumps, "breaking out," eczema, etc. Black and White Ointment, and Soap, have not only stood this test, but you are sure of it—when you know that they are selling at the tremendous rate of more than two million packages a year.

The way they are economically priced, in liberal packages, has helped to make them so popular along with their dependability. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both Black and White Ointment and Black and White Soap, as they are called.—Adv.

Tulane's Star Guard

One of the best guards in the south is "Irish" Levy of Tulane University. He never plays with a headgear and usually cavorts with sleeves rolled up. In his three years of collegiate football he has not been taken out of the game once for injury. Down below the Mason and Dixon line they are "Irish" Levy is of All-America caliber.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By E. R. Waite, Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

That every citizen should heartily support any plan that is for the good and the glory of the home city.

That development does not come unassisted.

That if you don't keep your eyes open for the opportunities that pass your way, they will go on to some other city.

That some other city is always trying to entice them their way.

That cities must always be made attractive to people with capital before it can be developed very far.

That new industries won't tarry long in looking over a prospective city as a location unless living and business conditions are good.

That a city may have all the advantages in the world, but it can't get anything or anywhere until it shows a progressive spirit.

That as long as a city lacks that spirit and where the people show a lack of loyalty to their city, just so long will a city stand still or progress backward.

That in many cities the citizens seem to lack an appreciation of the worth of the home city.

That lack of home pride will hold any city back.

You should be proud of your city. It is worthy of your every thought and effort.

THOMPSON'S BATH TUB

Speaking of the past, have you ever heard of William Thompson? Here was a man who was able to introduce new hardware items.

He installed the country's first bath tub. It happened in Cincinnati in 1840. It was a great curiosity. It caused a great deal of comment. People came from far and near to see his bath tub. The newspapers took it up and commented seriously and humorously upon Thompson's bath tub—as they do with every new innovation.

Even the learned medical profession took up the debate and many doctors registered their opposition to the bath tub as the enemy of good health. So much sentiment was stirred up against the bath tub that the cities of Boston and Philadelphia in their great wisdom passed ordinances prohibiting the installation of bath tubs in those pure and learned centers.

Notwithstanding the opposition, sentiment favoring the bath tub grew. When James Buchanan was President, one was finally installed in the White House. It was a gorgeous affair. It became one of the leading attractions in Washington.

People came from all over the country to see it. It is probable that Lincoln made his first acquaintance with the modern bath tub while residing in the White House.

And so it has always been—new things come slowly. They even sometimes receive opposition at the hands of those who are reputed as leaders at the time.

But eventually the sensible, the sound—the logical thing—will find its way.—Editorial in Good Hardware.

The electric service companies of the United States during the first six months of this year generated 39,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of electrical energy which was an increase of 8.4 per cent over the total generated during the first six months of the preceding year. Further there is every indication that the total amount of electrical energy generated by these companies during the entire twelve months of this year will be considerably above that of the previous year.

The Woman Who Knows

Houston, Texas—"Because of my father-in-law having been benefited by taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery while living with us, I knew about his poor health and how he gained strength, could rest and sleep better and was more active and cheerful. Later on it became necessary for me to take a woman's tonic and I chose Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After the first few doses I felt better, and now recommend it very highly for women during middle age."—Mrs. Fannie Disher, 2211 Center St. All dealers. Liquid or tablet form.

Winter Nights Best For Star Gazing; Venus Magnificent In Early Evening

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—Though the state of the coal bin may cause natural doubts winter does not officially begin until 2:37 a. m. on Dec. 22nd.

Still, points out the American Nature Association, cold weather provides the best season of all for star gazing, and in the beauties of the skies the coal in bin may be forgotten.

In December the constellations come into their best view in the East.

says the association. Five stars of the first magnitude in all, may be seen at this time in the Eastern sky in addition to many of the second magnitude. Venus will be at her best.

Venus will be a magnificent object in the southwest for about three hours after sunset. All during December Venus will parade a brilliance that reaches a maximum Jan. 2.

You will find in the East Taurus, The Bull, with its well-known groups of the Pleiades and Hyades and the ruddy Aldebaran, that represents the Eye of the Bull, and there is the magnificent Orion with its many stars of first and second magnitude. To the North of Orion will be the brilliant Capella, The Goat, and her small kids of Boethi close by forming a small triangular group that makes it easy for us to identify this brilliant star. Castor and Pollux, the twins, in Gemini will be well in view in the northeast.

On Dec. 11 Mercury passes from East to West of the sun and after that will be in the morning sky and may possibly be seen in the Southwest before sunrise the last few days of the month when it will be at its greatest distance West of the sun. Saturn and Mars the American Nature Association points out will be in conjunction on Dec. 15.

In the North Cassiopeia is passing to the West of the meridian and the Big Dipper is swinging over to the East of the meridian though it is still too close to the Northern horizon to be seen to advantage. The Great Square in Pegasus covers a large space in the Western sky and will be found about halfway between the horizon and the zenith.
