GERMANY'S FIRST ATTEMPT TO FLY ATLANTIC ENDS IN FAILURE

BREMEN GOES BACK AFTER REACHING IRELAND

Pilot Decided Not To Risk Plane In Heavy Fogs Over Atlantic

By United Press.

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 15.—Germany's first effort to conquer the Atlantic ocean in a heavier than air craft failed today.

The Junker airplane Bremen, one of two, which left here yesterday morning for the United States, returned this afternoon, the plane and pilot baffled by their task.

The plane Europa, sister ship of the Bremen was forced down at the city of Bremen last night.

Fog and wind defeated the Bremen. Pilot August Loose, told the United Press that he had reached the Irish coast when he decided to return.

Loose was at the control of the Bremen during the flight of 1,875 miles.

"After seeing the fogs of the Atlantic," he said, "we decided not to risk the airplane in a flight against adverse winds. We turned her nose toward home."

Almost immediately after the start Loose said, the Bremen encountered thunder storms. The Bremen was not damaged in the landing here.

Meet Vee Vee, She'll be here Wednesday

Don't fail to read every chapter of "The Penny Princess" the thrilling story of Vee Vee, the business girl who had no time for love—for men.

This interesting summer romance of the girl who thought she had no time for love begins in this paper Wednesday. Begin with the first chapter and read it through, for it is one of Anne Austin's best stories as well as her latest.

You will find Vee Vee a most interesting girl. To begin with she is just an everyday private secretary, a mighty good one, too, but not the type of girl that would make the men look twice. She was entirely too severe in her dress with long hair, business suits, specs and no rouge.

But now we find Vee Vee ready for her vacation—with enough pennies saved up to keep her at the fashionable hotel for three weeks and with her hair bobbed, too.

And by the way Vee Vee has had a long course of treatments at the beauty shop, too.

Don't forget that "The Penny Princess" starts day after tomorrow.

DAWES HAS EDGE ON HOOVER FOR PRESIDENCY

Washington, C. Correspondent Points Out Hoover's Opposition, Indicates Dawes is Hoover's Match Anywhere

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The Hoover presidential boom is likely to strike a snag in waters which will be comparatively smooth sailing for Vice President Dawes.

On the other hand, the Dawes craft can make good headway on any stream that the Hoover boat can navigate.

In selecting a presidential candidate, the omitts a man has incurred are taken into serious consideration. If a man can be found who has no enemies worth speaking of, he has an edge on the next fellow. A glance at presidential candidates for the last 20 years will confirm that as a general statement.

Thus when two men stand head and shoulders above the other candidates for the Republican nomination, as do Hoover and Dawes, the man who has the least opposition within the party seems likely to win. And it's a fact that while some important political elements which would stand for Dawes would put up a real fight against Hoover, the elements in the Hoover, strength would have little trouble in accepting Dawes.

Dawes Better Bet That is one of the principal reasons why, at this writing, Dawes seems the better bet.

The important anti-Hoover sentiment will be found among farmers, senators and other politicians. Among these classes of influence Dawes has been busy building up his forces. He is the strongest candidate who will appeal to all three, although any one of them might prefer someone else.

Hoover's great strength lies with the business and financial interests. He has had the aid of a matchless publicity machine and for a long time has appealed to the imagination of the ordinary man.

But is Dawes found wanting in those respects? Not at all. He is a banker himself and is tied up with big business in various ways. He has been his own publicity machine, but he is certainly as widely known as Hoover and he too has captured the imagination of the average citizen.

Both Men Want Job The two men are both believed to be extremely ambitious for the presidency.

With the foreign situation as it is, America's international bankers will be quite solicitous about the next president. It is predicted that the Morgan interests; for instance, will support Hoover.

But the Mellon interests and perhaps, generally speaking, the domestic financial interests, are likely to line up for Dawes. Dawes is one of their own. And these interests are probably much more potent politically than the others.

The general public is invited to visit the show rooms of the Oilbelt tonight and tomorrow and inspect these new Chevrolet offerings.

Massey Joins In Asking Receiver For West Adams

Charging that the directors of the West Adams Petroleum corporation have attempted to dispose of all the property of the corporation without giving him any notice of any meeting for such a purpose, G. A. Massey, who alleges that he owns $71,000 worth of stock—or more than one-fifth of the stock of the corporation—has intervened in the suit of Col. Robert D. Gordon against the West Adams.

He declares that "the purported sale" has resulted in the corporation being wholly depleted and rendered actually and notoriously insolvent, leaving it without any assets whatsoever.

Further he charges in his petition that in the "purported sale," the corporation received no consideration whatever except the assumption by Edwin Larson of the payment of the outstanding debts against the corporation in part "and which assumption carries no personal liability upon Larson and associates but only provides the indebtedness shall be paid out of production from the lease."

The value of the corporation's properties, Massey states, is $500,000 on a conservative estimate and that the indebtedness would not exceed $250,000.

Massey sets forth that he obtained the 200-acre Ramsower lease and as part of the consideration for transferring it to three purchasers who were to organize a Texas corporation, he was to receive $20,000 if the No. 1 came in as a paying producer and that Colonel Gordon was to be general manager. The No. 1 was a good well but the $20,000 was not paid, Massey says. Then last Friday, the board of directors removed Gordon as manager.

Therefore, Massey asks that the lease be cancelled or that he be awarded $91,000—$20,000 which was due when the No. 1 came in and $71,000 as the amount of stock he owns. Massey also asks that a receiver be appointed for the West Adams.

INTER-CITY ROTARY CLUBS MEET TONIGHT

Address of Dr. T. T. Roberts Inter-City Delegate To International Convention Will be Main Feature.

An address by Dr. T. T. Roberts, president of Randolph college, Cisco, will feature the program of the inter-city meeting of Eastland county Rotary clubs at the Eastland Golf and Country club this evening at 7 o'clock. Dr. Roberts was a delegate from the Eastland county clubs to the recent International Rotary convention held in Ostend, Belgium. It is understood that Dr. Roberts' address this evening will be in the nature of a report on the convention.

Committees having the matter in charge stated this morning that reservations for 50 plates at this evening's luncheon had been made by members of the Cisco club, 30 by the Ranger club and 40 by the Eastland club. Reservations were still being filed by members from Eastland at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rotarians, their wives, daughters and sweethearts are invited.

The Eastland club, which meets at noon on Mondays, postponed its meeting today until this evening. Only a few minutes will be consumed in the business of the club tonight after which the meeting will be turned over to the program committee of the inter-city meet.

Dawes vs. Young For President Is Possibility

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—Charles G. Dawes vs. Owen D. Young for president is not very likely—but a possibility.

And a very interesting possibility it is, at that—of the two men who worked together to devise the famous Dawes plan fighting each other respectively as the republican and democratic presidential candidates.

Young's friends have maintained privately that some of the credit for the plan for German rehabilitation and reparations payment which went to Dawes should have gone to Young.

Apportionment of the credit might furnish an argumentative sideshow in a campaign.

Unlike Dawes, however, Young is not a favorite for nomination as the situation stands now. But if Governor Al Smith were to follow the apparent lead of President Coolidge and decide that his health wasn't good, or something, Young's chances would look rather well.

Further, Young is exactly the sort of man to be trotted out as a compromise candidate in the manner in which Davis was trotted out in 1924.

Class Backs Young. Democrats have been talking about Young for three years or more. Some of the substantial democrats, too.

Senator Carter Glass has just suggested Young as a democrat who might win. The conservative and business element on the country, very strong in these days of comparative prosperity, would not be opposed to Young.

Still, when Glass admits that the democrats must pick up millions of republican and independent votes to win in 1928, he is not altogether consistent.

The independents regard Young, the head of the great General Electric, as closely tied up with the "power trust" and almost the perogressive constantly fighting "power grams" and extortionate electricity rates probably would have none of him. Others, including the old Bryan democrats, will think of him as too closely allied with the Morgan banking interests.

In this connection, however, reports may be worth noting that General Electric is seriously considering ending loose from the so-called "power trust" and coming out for cheap electricity in the homes. It is said that this great manufacturer of electrical devices for the household feels there is more to be gained from greater production and distribution of its wares with cheap electricity than a distribution limited by high rates now in effect. Young himself, according to the report, is strongly in favor of such a change in policy.

After he has qualified all nine entrants will have been given the stamp of official approval for the air derby over the Pacific.

FEAR OF RACE TROUBLE IS GIVEN AS CAUSE

Town Is Flooded With Unemployed Laborers Many Arrests Made

By United Press.

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—On call from the mayor of Childress, Texas, two rangers have been sent there. The report to the governor's office said race trouble was feared.

Rangers reached Childress from Fort Worth this morning at 7 o'clock according to advices here. There was no report of any trouble this morning.

Captain Tom Hickman in charge of the Ranger company at Ft. Worth is here. The men left Fort Worth before he started to Austin.

The message to the governor said that whites were trying to run out negroes.

No one had been killed. There had been several fights and the jail was reported full of persons arrested by local officers.

At Childress it was said today rangers were requested for this city to assist in maintaining order as a result of an influx of unemployed laborers. No evidence of any disturbances have been noted on the streets here although many have been arrested by police in a clean-up drive.

Construction of a new railroad line here and the recent oil development in Gray and Wheeler counties, have brought many itinerant workmen to this city.

Ranger C. O. Moore arrived at noon and Ranger Sergeant M. P. Gonzalos was expected later. A dog fight on the streets Saturday night precipitated the race riot "scare," Sheriff John Thompson said today.

As a result of the dog fight a small white boy started a fight with a negro. Several older youths became embroiled in a "free-for-all."

Thompson also said that he understood that a band of local youths had intended to scare away itinerant cotton pickers in an effort to increase wages for cotton pickers in this vicinity.

Ranger to Be Offered Port Short Line Route

Minter Ramsey of the West Texas Air Transport company, Inc., who was due to arrive in Ranger Saturday evening at 5 o'clock and confer with several representative business men regarding the Ranger getting in on the transport line, got hung up in Cisco and did not arrive until several hours after his scheduled time and after the committee had given him out and gone home or elsewhere. W. C. Hickey was waiting for him, however, at the Chamber of Commerce rooms and they had a long talk, which resulted in Mr. Ramsey's promise to return to Ranger relative to the same matter at a later date.

About nine months ago Ramsey and his associates organized the West Texas Air Transport company, Inc., with a capitalization of $88,000. They have three planes, carrying passengers and claim, so he stated to Mr. Hickey, that they have made 25 per cent on the investment in that time. Now that the Aero Transportation company of California is planning on crossing Texas with mail and passengers and making only one stop between El Paso and Fort Worth, that at Sweetwater, his company wants on line up Midland, Big Spring, Sweetwater, Abilene, Cisco, Ranger and Mineral Wells and make a short line mail and passenger route from Midland to Fort Worth, buy some more planes, and establish a two-way service daily for both mail and passengers.

Each town along the proposed short line route can get in by taking $10,000 worth of stock, except Abilene, which would take $15,000, thus raising the capital stock to $100,000.

It is stated that Abilene had subscribed for her quota, also Midland. The representative indicated that Ranger could come in with her quota, or the line would be routed by Breckenridge.

FARM RELIEF.

At last it seems that a farm relief measure has been born that meets the requirements—a measure that very likely meets the approval of President Coolidge and which likely will be submitted to congress for enactment. We would infer that Secretary of Agriculture Jardine had something to do with drafting the proposed bill and that other members of the cabinet might have made some suggestions.

It is still our contention that if the farming industry gets any relief it must come through its own efforts on the farm and not through the efforts of politicians in Washington and if one will read very carefully Secretary Jardine's explanation of the situation and the proposed relief measure, one can hardly be diverted from that conclusion. If the secretary of agriculture doesn't state so in so many words, he at least implies that the farming industry must work out its own salvation.

Mr. Jardine says or implies that the farmers must work out their own salvation through well organized marketing organizations and that the situation must be controlled largely by the farmers themselves rather than by some push-button methods in Washington. At last the bare truth of the situation seems to have been given the farmer.

It simply means that the government can do very little for the farmer. Of course it can provide funds but these can only be loaned the farmer on the product of his farm as security. And at present most farmers can borrow money on this kind of security from his local banker. So after all the situation reverts back to the farmer helping himself.

There cannot be much relief to the present farm conditions until farmers get it out of their heads that it is cheaper to buy their feed than it is to produce it—that it is cheaper to buy the meat for their tables than it is to produce it.

Every sack of feed, every pound of meat bought by the farmer has been produced by some farmer somewhere. And it is foolish to argue that a Texas farmer can buy this feed and this meat cheaper than he can produce it, especially since there has been tacked onto it the profit of the jobber and the retailer which the buyer has to pay.

We do not have to seek far to find examples of the farmer who believes it is cheaper to buy feed than to produce it. This year an Eastland county tenant farmer rented a 40-acre farm on the halves. He planted it in feed but he soon concluded that it was cheaper to buy his feed than to produce it and sold his 40-acre feed crop for approximately $40, just what he had spent in preparing the land and planting his crop.

The farmer who bought the crop spent an additional $100 working the crop and now declares he has at least $1,000 worth of feed on the 40 acres. In addition to this he has the very bright prospect for a second crop that will net him several hundred dollars should it materialize.

After all, Mr. Jardine is right. Any worth while and permanent relief that comes to the farmer must come through his own efforts.

JUDGE GARY DIES AT HOME IN NEW YORK

By noon brokers were convinced that bankers were in the market buying heavily. The trend of the market continued steadily upward.
Instead of breaking the price, United States steel went up during the hour following the announcement of Gary's death, almost with every sale, and by noon had touched 133 1/8. General Motors was selling higher and other stock which might have been affected showed much strength.
As the day wore on Wall street began to consider James A. Farrell, president of the steel corporation, as another possible successor of Gary. For years Farrell has remained in the background and directed the carrying out of the policies which Gary, as supreme chief of the company, laid down.

ALARM CONTINUES OVER U. S. ACTIVITIES IN NICARAGUA

Though Hostilities May Have Ceased Feeling Of Uneasiness And Discontent Continues In That Country

By NELSON J. RILEY,
United Press Staff Correspondent.
LIMA.—Although the clearing of the smoke of battle in Nicaragua and the final settlement of inter-factional disputes in that turbulent state may have closed the incident as far as the people of the United States are concerned, an entirely different reaction is being felt throughout the continent lying below Panama. Among thinking classes of this section of South America the prevailing feeling cannot be characterized as one of bitterness nor even of fear. Rather, the reaction here is one of mild alarm accompanied by a strong desire for the reorganization of Inter-American relations on a basis of mutual understanding to insure justice in future dealings.

Discounting the most bitter attacks with which the South American press met the declaration of armed intervention in Nicaragua, there existed and still exists a strong feeling that injustice has been done to a weak nation by a strong one. The Latin temperament is such that its first reaction to such intervention would be in the form of a sweeping indictment against the "Colossus of the North." In the case of Nicaragua, the first violent attacks from South America against the United States were quickly followed by a cooler study of the situation and the causes which brought about United States intervention. The conclusions of this reasoning are important.

In nearly every case the ultimate fault has been found not with the people of the United States, who are regarded by South Americans as eccentric but admirable withal, but with the state department and its alleged roughshod Latin-American policy. Even more explicit than this, the fault is usually declared to lie not in American diplomacy but in the general economic policy of the United States government. Summarized in a few words, solution for the complaints of South Americans against the state department of the United States would, in the opinion of South Americans available here, be based on the following:

Inasmuch as trouble arising between the northern republic and Latin-American states is almost invariably the direct or indirect result of differences between the governments of countries involved and private American companies, the state department of the United States ought to exercise a strict control over its nationals in foreign nations, to insure fair dealing on the part of private concerns with the countries wherein they operate.

It is declared that care should be taken to establish the responsibility of American companies and individuals previous to the extension of their operations by the government of the United States which, in the event of trouble, will be forced to take issue with the foreign governments who admit them. South Americans generally believe that the state department has, in the past, been too eager to take action in defense of Americans previous to having studied the background of the case and establishing the guilt of the contender at fault.

The remedy for such a situation is, obviously, careful scrutiny by the United States government of the organization, policy and responsibility of American firms entering foreign trade fields, and, even more, the close observation of their actions and dealings with governments of countries in which they operate. It is argued that, with the adoption of such a policy, only reliable firms and individuals could achieve official recognition and be held responsible not only by foreign governments, but as well by the government of their own country. Clearly, it is added, if a foreign government allowed itself to enter dealings with a concern or individuals lacking the endorsement of the United States government, that government would have no one but itself to blame in the event of trouble.

It is not inferred that all Americans and American organizations operating in Latin-America are regarded as corrupt or irresponsible. Many are held in the highest esteem and are respected by the people of nations in which they are established. However, it is strongly asserted here that there exist today certain examples of United States concerns, powerful ones among them, that profit hugely through questionable practices in their dealings with South American countries. The actions of these companies are wholly distasteful not only to the people of countries in which they operate, but also their own fellow countrymen who play the commercial game squarely.

Evidences of sharp practices in business have been repeatedly exposed by the American Chamber of Commerce of Buenos Aires and by other American trade organizations in South America. Unfortunately, these bodies are limited in their scope and cannot reach various parts of the continent in which some of the worst offenders flourish.

Such dealings, when they are exposed to the people of the victimized country, inevitably exert a strengthening of public opinion against the country that permits such practices by its nationals. Many South Americans hold that the United States ought to insure the proper and becoming conduct of its citizens operating in foreign countries. These assert that until the United States government assumes responsibility for its unofficial as well as official representatives in foreign lands, trouble such as has arisen in Nicaragua and elsewhere will continue to be the basis of growing mistrust and of disregard for American influence south of the Rio Grande.

Large Audience Hears Rev. Green Sunday Night

A large and appreciative audience greeted Col. Guy W. Green, who is conducting the "co-operative evangelistic" services on the Eastland High school grounds, Sunday evening and heard his sermon on "Seedtime and Harvest."
The song service for this meeting was unusually good and inspiring.
Col. Green gave what many thought was his very best address of the many wonderful sermons he had given thus far. In part he said: "The Ark had come to rest on Mt. Ararat, and the old skipper, Noah, had landed his cargo, the first thing he did was to build an altar, and offer up sacrifice to Jehovah. God was pleased with Noah's sacrifice, and he made a covenant with him and said 'while the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest shall not fail; there shall be a time for sowing and a time for reaping, and as a sign of this covenant God put the rainbow in the sky. Some one has so beautifully said 'God took the white out of the lily, the yellow out of the buttercup, and the blue out of the violet, and wove a garland of beauty, and threw it over the shoulders of the storm; and men call it the rainbow'. This is Jehovah's sign that the earth shall never be destroyed again by water."
Mr. Leo Underwood of Ranger came down and favored the audience with his cornet, also playing the offertory with Mrs. L. R. Homan at the piano. His selection was "The Last Chord," by Sullivan, and was wonderfully rendered. Mr. Zeuss sang two solos, his first was "Open the Gates" and the other was the words of Col. Green's text. Next Wednesday night the Odd Fellows and the Rebekahs will be the special guests. This is the last week of the meetings.
Tonight Col. Green will speak on the subject, "Excuses."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HAS SWIMMING PARTY.
The Christian Endeavor of the First Christian church had a most enjoyable swimming party Friday evening at the power plant at Olden. The water was fine and everyone enjoyed an hour's swim.

Rev. H. B. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Andy Anderson chaperoned the party which was composed of Misses Willie, Naomi and Mildred Matthews, Mattie Ben Shipp, Norma Hinton, Catherine Dunaway, Doris Barnes, and Zada Walton; Messrs. Tenders Support of West Texas Chamber of Commerce to Ranger in Making Homecoming Great Success.
Homer D. Wade of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, writes Wayne C. Hickey of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, that he considers the idea of Ranger's Home Coming and Oil Jubilee most unique and that he wants to see it go over big.
With this in mind he made some very good suggestions in a letter written Mr. Hickey and also told him that he would have E. H. Whitehead, publicity man of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, stop in Ranger and go over the program with him. He further promised that H. J. Adair, secretary and publicity manager of the oil and gas bureau, Wichita Falls, could come down and render any service the committee needed in putting the matter over.

New midway and carnival attractions will be features for the Texas-Oklahoma fair in Wichita Falls, October 1 to 6. It will be the first trip to the south by the Carnival company.

Wellington Gets Ready For C. of C. Meeting Aug. 25

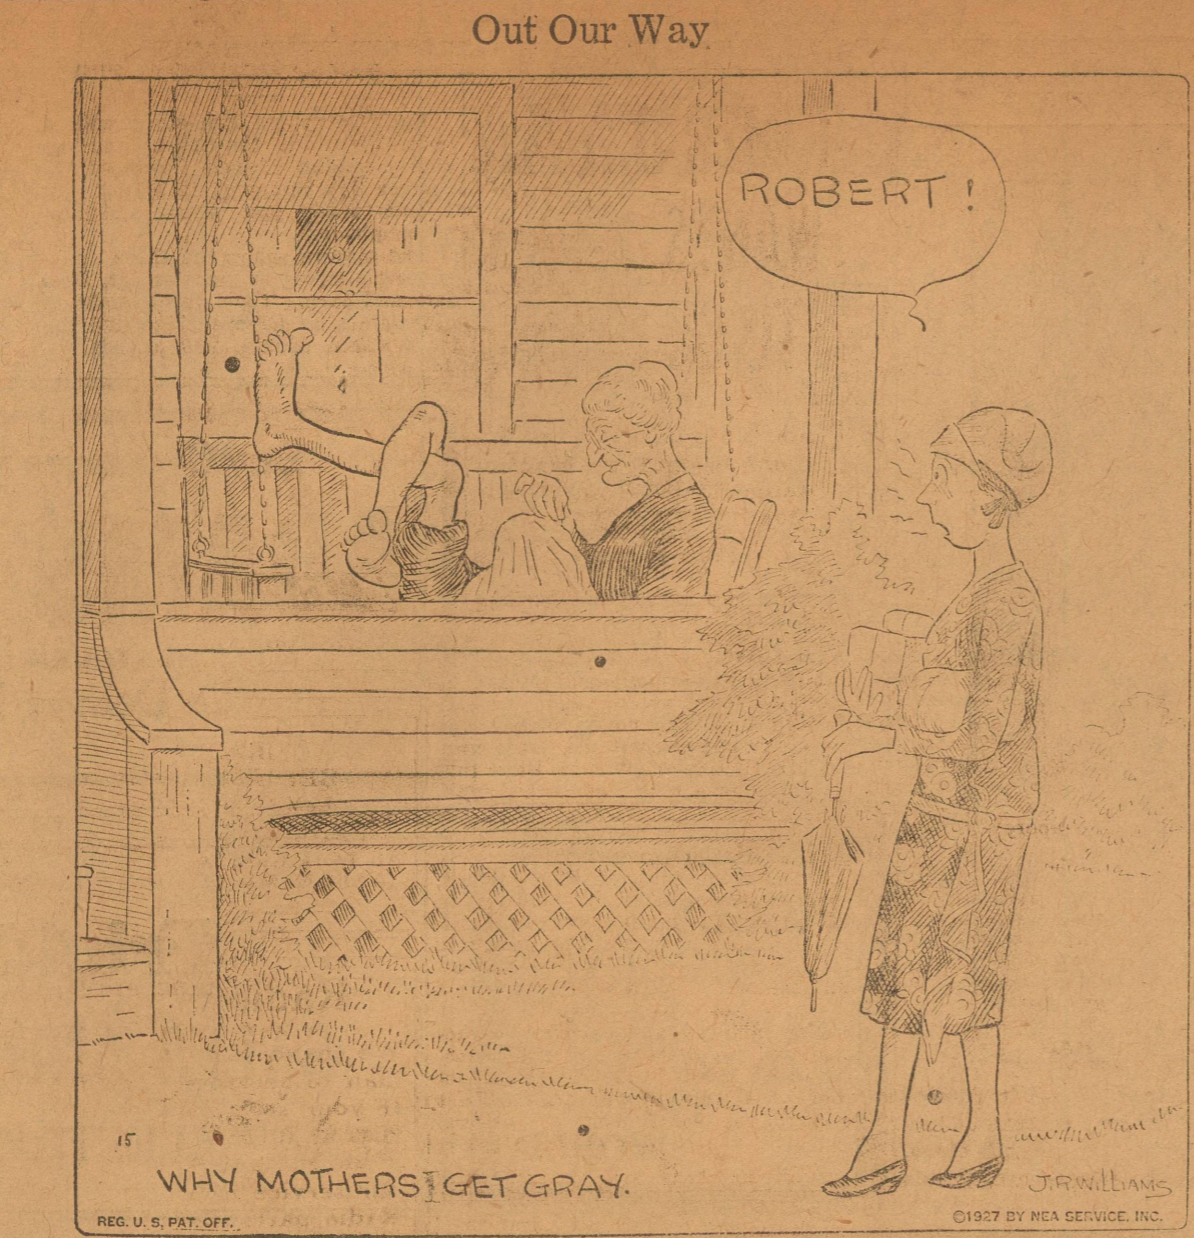

WELLINGTON, Aug. 15.—"Hogs and Hominy" to the "biggest problem" of the Panhandle-North Plains district, and other discussions by leaders ranging from a singing mayor to a college president, will be high points in features for the next regional convention of the West Texas chamber of commerce which is to be held in this city on August 25.

The gathering will mark the first district convention since before the big annual meet of the chamber held at Wichita Falls and will thus initiate the West Texas lawyer at the organization's helm since that time in to the workings of a district meeting. More than thirty towns of the Panhandle-North Plains section are expected to send live-wire delegations to Wellington for the conclave.

Martial notes of massed hands will call the assemblage together on the morning of August 25 at a local theatre where the first session will be held. S. R. Pinkston will deliver the address of welcome, to which J. W. Debenport of Childress will respond. The presiding officer is to be Judge C. C. Small of Wellington, who is a vice-president of the West Texas chamber of commerce.

Following committee appointments, addresses of the morning will be made, including an explanation of "The Object of District Conventions" by B. M. Whiteaker, exhibit-agricultural manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce, a talk by Col. G. C. French of the Fort Worth Stockyards company, and an address by Judge C. Y. Welsh of Quanah.

The luncheon hour will be enlivened by music and skits. S. R. Pinkston of Wellington will be toastmaster. R. E. Shepherd, the singing mayor of Wichita Falls, is to occupy a prominent place on the noon program. The principal speech will be made by Col. H. H. Haines, manager of the Amarillo board of city development, following which representatives from the various towns will make short talks.

Indians Invited To Be At Ranger's Big Homecoming

The hills and valleys surrounding Ranger may again echo to the whoop of the Comanches, Kiowa and Apaches, probably the earliest settlers of this country, if plans of W. W. Housewright, Ranger banker, go through.

Mr. Housewright realizing the eternal fitness of having the redmen appear at Ranger's Home Coming Oil Jubilee, has invited members of these three tribes which are said to have been the last tribes in this country, to visit Ranger on October 21-22.

FRANKELL

Mr. W. B. Cobb left for Temple Wednesday accompanied by his sister, Mrs. A. M. Tharp. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Byrne and son, Arthur returned home yesterday from a month's visit in Lubbock. Miss Vida Gardenhire is in Mineral Wells taking treatments for rheumatism.

Miss Pearl Harman spent last week in Eastland with Mrs. Chas. Harp. Rev. J. C. Moring and sons spent this week in Huckabay with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Wallace of Mineral Wells were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hines Thursday night. Mr. and Mrs. K. F. Herrington and Miss Gladys Hovins went to Weatherford to see Miss Myrtle Humphries baptised.

Hardeman County Exhibit Entered In T-O Fair, Oct. 1

WICHITA FALLS, Texas, Aug. 15.—Hardeman is the first county in West Texas to enter an exhibit for the sixth annual Texas-Oklahoma fair to be held here October 1 to 6. The entry blank properly signed by Carl Guin, manager of the Quanaah chamber of commerce was received this week.

Numerous inquiries from many counties in West Texas have been received and Mayor R. E. Shepherd, secretary-manager of the organization, is hoping that at least twenty counties will have exhibits this year. The numerous inquiries from all sections of West Texas regarding the live stock department also indicate that the exhibits in this division will be greatly increased over former years.

Buildings at the fair grounds are being remodeled and improved, so that all entries will be properly protected from the weather.

 they are certainly on the lookout for day with this offense. He pled guilty and paid a fine.

New York safety campaigners are jubilant. In the first six months of 1927 only 514 persons were killed by motor cars. Just the same, it was a bumper crop.

"What Martinelli Says Won Me to Luckies"

Regan Stewart remarks to Grace Dalton as he lights a Lucky Strike while waiting for a group of guests at The Riding Club.

Giovanni Martinelli, famous tenor of Metropolitan Opera, says:

"We who sing must be extra cautious about our throats. I get my greatest enjoyment from Lucky Strikes because I find they do not affect my voice."

Giovanni Martinelli

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

Soldiers Must Learn To Speak Chink Language

TIENSIN, China, Aug. 15.—American doughboys garrisoned with the Fifteenth U. S. Infantry here must enlarge their vocabulary beyond the present meagre assortment of grunts, nods and finger exercise.

So, in effect, did Colonel Isaac Newel, their regimental commander, declare in issuing orders today which require each soldier to learn a minimum of three hundred Chinese words before being classed as a fully trained member of the regiment.

This, the order explained would not only enable the soldier to make himself better understood to local merchants, thus reducing the possibility of altercation, but also would increase the soldier's value to his regiment if called into the field.

Jungle Breath

COPYRIGHT 1927 by NEA SERVICE

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of Elise Marberry, an American girl owning considerable property near the little town of Porto Verde, in west central Brazil. She has escaped harm due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, Vilak, who with his friend, Lincoln Nunnally, an elderly American chemist, is trying to learn the reason for the strange enmity for Elise.

Living near Porto Verde is one Gaylord Prentiss, a strange and forbidding character, who has evinced a hatred for Elise.

Tinky, Elise's 2-year-old orphaned nephew, is kidnapped. A native reports Prentiss has been seen with the baby. The trail leads into the jungle.

Calamity overtakes the expedition Vilak organizes in pursuit. Native trackers are injured or desert. Treachery breaks out. Their white friends are fever victims and are left with a friendly tribe.

Elise, Vilak and Nunnally finally emerge from the jungle. Presently they come to the outskirts of a strange city, resembling the old Inca civilization. Here they are made prisoners. They discover they are in the power of Carlos D'Albentara, whom they had known as an engineer back in Porto Verde.

The ruler of the city decides to marry Elise and to put Vilak and Nunnally to death. They are to be tortured at the feast of Raymi, as are Elise's nephew and Prentiss, who are prisoners also. A friendly Indian slips a dagger to Vilak, who cuts his bonds, then proceeds to awe the natives by walking through fire. D'Albentara is killed. Vilak starts to relate the strange story of Prentiss.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVII

"Merely this," Vilak answered. "The first quest for gold, and to my mind the much less important, was the attempt of Limey Potts, Pasquale Branza and Detto Cicerone. Three rogues working together, they believed—with reason—that they could easily get many thousands of dollars from you by kidnapping Tinky. That was why Limey was in the tree waiting for you to drive by the day Tony Barbetta was killed. He was going to cause you to have an accident or something of the sort and try to kidnap Tinky then. His arrest somewhat disrupted the trio's plans, but didn't block them.

"When Tinky disappeared the first time, it was the Italians who had taken him, one of them riding the horse with the injured foot which had belonged to Prentiss and which I afterward learned they had stolen. They were on the road to Furnass Caves when they were unfortunate enough to meet four mounted gentlemen who watch that place pretty closely just because it is such a haven for crooks and smugglers, and then had to run for it, being compelled at last to get rid of the child, which was crying in terror and otherwise embarrassing his flight.

"Falling in this scheme, Limey, after the others had aided him to escape from jail, decided on a much bolder experiment, which, if successful, he believed would be far more lucrative: that was to kidnap you yourself and threaten you until you gave them any amount of money they chose to ask for."

"Then, discouraged by the lack of success in their schemes to get money from Elise, they decided to abandon her in their plans, and follow up the information they had gained. Which brings us to the second and more important quest, the one which concerns Prentiss and D'Albentara."

"I was in that building with Batalagos this afternoon. In a great stone basement of it is gold."

The tom-toms began to sound monotonously. He listened keenly a moment, then continued, "I've told Nanny many times before that these people aren't Inca. Far from it. But they aren't living in these Inca ruins for many generations and naturally have taken over any of the Inca possessions which remained.

"If you remember your histories, you'll recall that the thing they had most of was gold. Gold in such enormous quantities that the Spaniards who first saw their cities wouldn't credit their eyes. Walls of the nobles' houses literally covered with it, great vases, and even furniture made of it. Called it 'the tears of the sun.'

He gazed off toward the chief's palace silhouetted against the starlit sky. "I was in that building with Batalagos this afternoon. In a great stone basement of it is gold. A tremendous amount of gold. Ornamental armor, carved flowers, all that sort of thing. How much it's worth, I couldn't estimate. Besides this there are rich gold mines a few miles away where it originally came from. I'm half inclined not to take you to see either. It's done too much harm, this gold. Killed too many people."

The hideous painted priests began a droning chant. "You know Prentiss is an archeologist. He's always specializing in Inca archeology. Some years ago he got into that trouble with the museum, you remember, and resigned under a cloud of scandal. He told me about it today. Got foolish over some woman, and sold a lot of the museum property which he had discovered to gratify her taste for money. No need going into details.

"But the effect of it was that he was pretty swiftly dropped by most of his friends and acquaintances and, embittered, went off to South America again, intending never to return

D'Albentara, after he found that Prentiss wasn't gold hungry, became friendly. Probably quite glad to see another white man, particularly an intelligent one. He invited Prentiss to see one of his excavations, which was a perversion of the old Inca practice of human sacrifice.

"Prentiss went. The victim whom the gods had supposedly selected for the occasion was a baby, the son of one of the lighter skinned Indian priestesses. A child just about as old as Tinky was at the time.

"Prentiss was a scientist, who had steadfastly maintained that it was a bad plan for an archeologist to interfere in local politics. But despite his bitterness, he was at heart a very decent fellow in many ways, and when the occasion was about to take place it was a little more than he could stomach. He darted forward, knocked one of the priests down—he was quite husky then—and seized the baby in his arms.

"Of course, they caught him immediately; he was condemned to be sacrificed at once, for his violent act had outraged every god they possessed. He was already on the sacrificial stone and the tattooers had just left him to begin work on the child when fortunately for him Batalagos and some of his priests decided that the sacrifice had badly folted the omens so that the time was no longer favorable. Consequently he and the child were thrown into prison to await a more favorable moment.

"I won't bother you with the details of how he escaped through the aid of friends of the child and, taking the baby with him, got to incredible hardships finally got to Diamantino in western Brazil.

"Back in semi-civilization, he naturally thought he was safe, but he had been there two weeks, trying to recuperate from a wretched fever he had contracted coming through the jungle, when he found that D'Albentara and his men were following him. Not that D'Albentara bore him any personal enmity. He didn't. But the child had become a symbol. If he didn't bring it back, and if Prentiss' act went unpunished, Batalagos' prestige would be enormously diminished, and likewise that of his chief adviser. While if D'Albentara did succeed in returning Prentiss and the child, the grateful chief would refuse him nothing. A fact which Batalagos may or may not have pointed out.

"To make a long story short—From Diamantino Prentiss came on east to Porto Verde and shut himself up on his father's old fazenda, letting no one know that he had the child with him. He hoped to throw D'Albentara's men off the track.

"He failed, of course. He tried to go back to the United States, much as he didn't wish to after his unfortunate affair there. But he was crazy with illness and shattered nerves, and had got into some complicated mess about his passport and citizenship. The consular officials, to whom he told part of his story, thought he was completely mad, and wouldn't let him out of the country.

"That's why he treated you the way he did, Elise. Remembering the bitter quarrel between your family and his own over the ownership of his fazenda, in his half-damaged state your visits only made him more frantic, for he was certain, with that terrible fixedness of mind of a nervously overwrought person, that you were trying to drive him out of his last refuge.

(To be concluded.)

Some more loose ends are to be picked up, after which Vilak comes to an understanding.

REV. RANDOLPH CLARK PREACHES GREAT SERMON ON 83d BIRTHDAY

Rev. Randolph Clark preached at the First Christian church, Ranger, Sunday, on his eighty-third birthday, on "What Think You of Christ?" and as this man of God, whose head had grown silver in the service of his Master told the simple story of what men had thought of Christ since His birth to the present time, he did not need to tell his interested congregation what he thought of Christ, for his every word, look and action reflected his thoughts.

REV. RANDOLPH CLARK

It was a sweetly solemn service. The slim, straight, gray clad figure whose life from earliest years has been the teaching of the gospel of Christ, standing before his audience and delivering a message that could only come from the heart of one who had known and served Jesus for almost four score years—the communion table, where the Lord's Supper was served by three sons, two sons-in-law and one grandson of the venerable pastor—the violin choir and then the two songs without instrumental music with Prof. R. F. Holloway, all blended together in a service of unusual inspiration and reverence.

Dr. Clark did not make personal references in his sermon. Most men who have lived to such a ripe old age would have been tempted to diverge and give of their personal experience, but he took his text and followed it closely, telling what Socrates, Talleyrand, Napoleon, Pilate, the Apostles and others had thought of the Christ, but at the same time impressing on each hearer that it was not what others think of Him, but what each individual thinks of Him that molds one's life.

After the service, the Clarke family and Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Johnson went to the new home of Prof. and Mrs. R. F. Holloway, son-in-law and daughter of Dr. Clark and thirty-six members of the Clarke family, which number included three generations of that family, set down to a birthday dinner, given in honor of the eighty-third birthday of Dr. Clark, the 67th birthday of his brother, Dr. Frank Clark of Iowa Park and of the 17th birthday of his granddaughter, Ester Hassler of Stephenville.

Mrs. Bascom Johnson surprised the honorees with a beautiful three tiered birthday cake. The first tier bore 83 candles, the second tier 67 and the last 17. The cake was white with pink candles.

Those present other than Dr. Clark were Mrs. Callie Crim, 82, of Stephenville, the only living sister of Dr. Clark's wife, who passed away some six years ago.

Dr. Lee Clark of Gainesville and his son, Joseph Clark. Dr. Clark is superintendent of the Gainesville public schools.

Prof. and Mrs. R. F. Holloway and two sons, Robert and Sterling Holloway.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Chandler of Stephenville and the following members of their family, all of Stephenville: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chandler and two children Henriann and Winters; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Colwick, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Colwick, Randolph Joseph, Earl Harrison and Slayton Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark and three children, Ruth, Annie Lee and Joseph Randolph Clark; Mr. and Mrs. Hassler and three children; Esther Sue, Lynn and Ellenblanche Hassler; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Clark of Huntsville, and Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Johnson.

On account of illness in his family, Dr. Clark of Iowa Park was unable to be present and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Chandler, the latter Dr. Clark's daughter, and two children of Stephenville were out of the state on a vacation trip.

Many beautiful flowers were showered on the honor guests, especially Dr. Clark and letters and telegrams and presents from old friends—ex-students and relatives, made his eighty-third birthday a most interesting milestone of his life.

Eastland Lions Club Luncheon Be Held Friday

W. S. Michael, president of the Eastland Lions club, announced this morning that the club's regular weekly meeting, which is held at noon Tuesday, has been postponed until Friday noon this week. The reason for this change is that Dr. Curran of New York City, who is making a speaking tour of the United States, will deliver an address at the next meeting of the Eastland club, and it being impossible for Dr. Curran to be in Eastland Tuesday, the date was changed until Friday noon.

The work of gathering and arranging an Eastland county exhibit for the coming State Fair at Dallas, is going steadily forward, according to Geo. W. Briggs, secretary of the Eastland chamber of commerce.

For the past several years the various chambers of commerce in the county have cooperated in arranging these exhibits and this one is being handled in the same manner.
