

NAVAL LIMITATIONS CONFERENCE FAILS RANGER PLANS EXTENSIVE PAVING PROGRAM

COMMISSION WILL ORDER 40 BLOCKS PAVED

Practically All Will Be In Residential Sections Of City

Fifty additional blocks of paving will be added to Ranger's existing paving and at a meeting of the City Commission Wednesday night, forty were definitely designated. Work on a $200,000 paving program will start as soon as the necessary preliminaries can be worked out.

On account of the city of Ranger having adopted the state paving law in its charter, the city pays one-fourth of the cost of all paving and the property holders on each side of the street their proportionate three-fourths. While the cost of paving per block was estimated by figures given by Billy Burke, paving man who was present as to the cost of various paving, it was figured that the cost would run around $225 or $250 per fifty foot lot.

Ready to Sign
Some of the streets designated below will be paved without a hitch on the part of the property holders as they are already to sign up. Others may encounter more or less trouble but it is thought that in view of the fact of the additional value it adds to property and the long time payments, there will be little trouble in carrying out the entire program.

While only 40 blocks were designated last night the city will pave 60 blocks before it completes its program, but these blocks will be designated later.

The following streets were officially designated to be paved:
South Marston from Pine to Mesquite, 2 blocks; Elm from intersection of South Marston to South Hodges, 2 blocks; South Hodges one block north to Pine; two blocks south to Mrs. Sabina Tibbel's property line; intersection of Mesquite and South Hodges; 375 feet west on Mesquite, total eight blocks.

Cooper Edition
Blackwell road from the intersection of the Blackwell highway, across Texas and Pacific right of way, east to an alley beyond the Catholic church; south on Oddie to Blackwell street; east on Blackwell street to Desdemona Boulevard; south on Desdemona Boulevard to Vespuccius street, total 8 1/2 blocks.

Young street from the intersection of Strawn road to Blundell street; total 9 blocks.

Walnut from North Marston to Sue; Sue to Main street; total 3 blocks.

Extension of Pine street paving to South Hodges; South Hodges to Main street, total 2 1/2 blocks.

North Commerce to Cypress street; Cypress to North Rust street; Cherry one block to North Austin; total 3 blocks.

Homer street to Cherry; two blocks west on Cherry; one block east on Cherry to Lulu; one-half block north and south on Lulu in front of the Hodges Oak Park school; total six blocks.

CLARENDON, Aug. 4.—The Chevrolet automobile stolen from Frank Weatherby, farmer north of here on the day Weatherby, his wife and two children were slain has been recovered in Chicago, a telegram received today by Sheriff W. A. Pierce from the National Automobile Theft Bureau said.

The telegram gave the correct engine and serial number of the Weatherby car. No mention was made of who occupied the car when it was taken. The Weatherby car was stolen June 24, the day of the murder.

Simultaneously with the murder and car theft Shelby Dozier and his wife, negro employed by Weatherby, disappeared.

Sheriff Pierce today was awaiting arrival of pictures and finger prints of a negro, believed to be Dozier, who was arrested in Shreveport, Louisiana. Pierce expressed belief that the negro sold the car in Chicago and then went to Shreveport.

Condemned Men Told Last Hope For Life Gone

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—More than 10 hours after the rest of the world heard the fatal news, Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti learned today what appeared their last hope for life had vanished.

These words which formed the conclusion of Governor Alvan T. Fuller's decision, a 2,100-word document made public last night, were taken to the condemned men this morning by William C. Thompson, director of the legal fight to save them from the electric chair.

At his own request the chief counsel was permitted to be the first to break the disheartening news to the two men, who unless all signs fail will pay with their lives one week from today for a double murder committed in a holdup at South Braintree, seven years and three months ago.

Western Union Is Sued for Damages
Totaling $3,000

Mrs. Josie Morrison, who resides at Spur in Dickens county, has brought suit in the eighty-eighth district court at Eastland against the Western Union Telegraph company in which she seeks to recover $3,000 for alleged damages sustained by her because of the defendant's alleged failure to deliver a telegraph message to her promptly.

The plaintiff alleges among other things that on or about March 27, 1927, she had a son who was ill of pneumonia at Borger, Texas, and that a telegram advising her of his critical condition was sent to her at San Antonio over the wires of the Western Union and that if the company had delivered it promptly she would have learned of her son's condition in time to have gotten to him before his death and possibly might have been able to have nursed him back to health.

SAYS HYMNS CAUSE SIN
KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Six is something encouraged by too much singing of hymns, the Methodist district conference here was told by Rev. H. G. Williamson, conference director of religious education.

"Much of our defective theology has been sung into us through some of our hymns," he said. "Some of them drill the idea into children that they are blackened sinners."

Wales is to visit his ranch in the west and may tour the United States before returning to England.

Prohibition Is Still Great Big
Political Issue

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Whatever the benefits or damage accomplished by prohibition, the great "wet and dry" fight has completely altered the political situation of the republic.

Whether he is running for the presidency or a constabulary, a candidate for office today must meet the issue and declare himself. Regardless of his personal merits and the soundness of the rest of his platform, he must face the likelihood that he will be elected or defeated by a certain number of voters who will be swayed by his attitude toward the Volstead Act.

To be sure, he may straddle the issue, but many candidates have found that there is no safety in such a course when his opponents are straightforward about it.

Thus, a man may be a perfect wizard at catching stray dogs and lose his position at the pound to a partially blind and lame fellow who is better adapted to the pursuit of tortoises but who nevertheless "thinks right" on prohibition.

The country loses its Wadsworths and Lenroths and gains its Hefflins and Mayfields. Or it loses its Peppers and Butlers and gains its Vares, all with little regard to the actual merits of these men.

The great importance of the prohibition issue to a politician's career is matched, of course, by its importance to the two great national parties.

It threatens to wreck the Democratic party completely and it becomes more and more likely to cause serious trouble for the Republicans.

Both parties are subject to the tug-of-war between the two forces. The difference seems to be that the Democrats hold their dogfights in the open while Republicans, relatively speaking and insofar as national politics goes, keep theirs behind the scenes. At this writing there appears to be some faint talk of a wet bloc at the next Republican national convention, made up of delegates from such states as New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Illinois. But it's very faint.

PRECAUTIONS BEING TAKEN IN WASHINGTON

Steps Are Taken To Protect Embassies In Foreign Coun- tries Against Bombing.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—While precautions were taken to protect American embassies, legations and consulates abroad against "reprisals" following the Sacco-Vanzetti decision, extra guards were stationed at government buildings here today.

The first step in this direction was placing by secret service of additional guards at all treasury entrances with instructions to exercise "extra vigilance" and admit no persons carrying packages.

At the treasury postoffice a special guard was ordered to examine carefully all packages presented for parcel post to guard against taking in possible bombs.

Dr. Drehr Gives His Version Of Leboeuf Death

COURTHOUSE, FRANKLIN, La., Aug. 4.—Dr. Thomas E. Drehr, chewing methodically on a wad of gum, today told from the witness stand his version of how James Leboeuf was killed.

Drehr placed full blame for the slaying on Beadle, the silent trapper, who in his confession claimed the doctor was the actual slayer.

Drehr's testimony began where he said he received a note and a telephone call from the woman asking the doctor to meet Leboeuf on the lake to settle in a friendly manner the gossip linking the doctor's name and that of the woman.

His testimony followed closely that of the widow who was cross-examined yesterday.

Lions Launch Big Campaign, More Members Wanted

Ranger Lions at their weekly luncheon today heard Lion Hall Walker, who is incidentally street commissioner, tell of Ranger's new paving program in the residential section and waxed strong in enthusiasm, expressing themselves as thinking it the most forward step Ranger has taken for a long time.

In fact, they were so pepped up with the future of the town on account of its "to be paved" streets, that they felt like the Lions Club should keep pace with the growth of the city and with that in mind, they launched a membership contest, which will end the first Thursday in November.

The losers in this contest will either give the winners a chicken barbecue or some other form of entertainment to be decided upon later.

Pre Sacco-Vanzetti Scare Frightens Post Office Employees

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Two explosions in the postoffice department building here today caused 2,000 government employees to rush out in the mistaken fear that Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers were bombing the structure.

It developed the blasts were from a liquid glycerine gun fired in the solicitor's office by a man who wished to send it through the mails. He had been asked to demonstrate it before sending it. The vibration was strong enough to rock the building.

DELEGATES TO LEAVE GENEVA SOON

United States, Great Britain And Japanese Make Joint Statement

GENEVA, Aug. 4.—Failure of President Coolidge's naval limitations conference was announced today in a joint declaration by the delegates of Japan, Great Britain and the United States.

After declaration said the delegates deemed it advisable to adjourn the present conference and submit the problems raised to their respective governments for further study.

Announcement of the purpose to adjourn the conference was made at a plenary session which met this afternoon after having been postponed from Monday when the collapse of the conference was expected.

Hugh S. Gibson, principal American delegate opened the plenary session with an announcement that it would be the last meeting of the conference.

After detailing the American, English and Japanese proposals for naval limitations and explaining the points of agreement and disagreement the joint declaration announced that the delegations recommended that the points upon which agreement were reached be used as a basis for continuing the efforts to limit auxiliary war craft, cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

WATER RIGHTS.
 Down in San Saba county an irrigation district was organized for the purpose of damming the San Saba river and irrigating the rich valley lands, only to find out that the river could not be dammed because somewhere further down the watershed prior water rights existed.

A West Texas farmer decided he would build a little dam across a small stream in his pasture to impound flood waters as a provision for his stock against a reason of possible drouth, but he too found out that that prior water rights existed further down the watershed that included his pasture and he could not construct the dam.

The citizens of Brown county decided they would build a dam across a stream in that county but they too found prior water rights existing further down the Colorado river.

For at least the last quarter of a century the people of San Saba county have been clamoring for an irrigation system and now that a feasible plan has finally been accepted by the land owners they find that they are denied the use of the water.

Under the administration of R. Q. Lee of Cisco two years ago water conservation and irrigation was the main topic of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, along with a system of diversified farming.

Now what are the farmers of West Texas going to do? It would appear they cannot provide water for their livestock, much less for irrigation purposes.

What is going to be the decision of the board of water engineers? Are the people of West Texas going to be denied water rights altogether? Is the man who lives in West Texas going to be discriminated against? Is there going to be an economic penalty placed on the man who chooses to work a farm or operate a ranch in West Texas rather than in some other part of the state?

The era of agricultural development is just really getting under good headway in West Texas and a sensible program of water conservation is going to be one of the big factors in the agricultural growth of that section of the state.

There is no disputing the fact that West Texas has its seasons of drouth, which must be provided against and the only provision possible is the impounding of flood waters during seasons of heavy rainfall.

Surely there can be nothing that smacks of justice in denying the San Saba county application to dam the San Saba river or the Brown county application or any other application for a permit to build reservoirs and store the water that falls in West Texas.

MR. COOLIDGE.
 Mr. Coolidge proceeded to enlighten the people of this country the other day on the political situation. He reached his decision and then made himself very plain. In fact he made the situation just about as clear as it was before he went to the Black Hills.

Mr. Coolidge is certainly very grateful to the republican party for the honors it has bestowed upon him. He has told his party nothing. The party would like to know just what his attitude is. It would like to groom Herbert Hoover for the presidency if Mr. Coolidge is going to get out of the way. But who knows whether he is going to get out of the way of a big man like Hoover, who is very popular and whose standing and ability is recognized by democrats as well as republicans?

OLDEN BATHING POOL IS BECOMING POPULAR.

The new swimming pool just recently opened at Olden is proving a popular attraction for many people of the surrounding towns. This pool which is a large concrete affair, was virtually completed last season, but due to the bath house and pavilion having been destroyed by fire the pool was not opened at that time to the public.

EXACTLY TEN YEARS AGO MINE HAD TRAGEDY

Eight Men Are Known Dead And Others Are Reported Missing

By United Press.
 CLAY, Ky., Aug. 4.—Death again stalked the West Kentucky Coal company mine near here today after giving this little mining center a 10-year respite.

An explosion 170 feet beneath the earth's surface wrecked the mine shaft, trapping more than a score of workers late yesterday.

Eight miners are known to be dead and nine were missing in the same shaft where 61 miners lost their lives 10 years ago to the day in a similar accident.

A gas pocket in the shaft was blamed for the explosion which occurred as the employees were leaving the mine. Most of the 240 workmen had been hoisted to the surface. Because gas was collected in the passage, rescue workers were forced to use gas masks. It was feared those miners not killed by the explosion had succumbed to gas.

It may take three or four days to reach the missing men officials said. A dozen injured men were taken from the shaft and given first aid.

Eastland's New High School To Be Ready Soon

The new high school building in Eastland, which is to be one of the most modern in this section, will be completed within about thirty days and it is stated that school will be ready to open just as soon as the building has been completed.

While the time for the opening of school is drawing near, work of getting the athletic field ready for use, continues to draw. A meeting of the athletic committees of the various civic organizations of the town, has been called for at an early date, however, and it is hoped that work on the athletic grounds may be speeded up a bit.

Plans Made To Receive Ex-Foe Upon Arrival

By United Press.
 NEW YORK — Announcement that Captain Udet, second ranking German aviation ace, would shortly attempt a flight from Berlin to New York has aroused interest as to how he would be received by those who ten years ago went into the air to meet him as a most dreaded foe.

The American Society for Promotion of Aviation has selected a committee of accredited aces from among its members who will serve as a reception committee to meet the German ace when he arrives. One of the committee selected is Kenneth L. Porter formerly of the 147th Pursuit Squadron who had the distinction of meeting with Captain Udet on his first flight over the lines and engaging him in an aerial battle which lasted for over half an hour and was discontinued when both men ran out of ammunition.

GUILLOTINE IS USED TO DESTROY STILLS

By United Press.
 PITTSBURGH.—There's a guillotine at work in Pittsburgh. It's not used to chip off heads of convicted criminals, but to batter to pieces stills seized by prohibition agents.

The modern guillotine, located in the yard of the main warehouse for storing illicit liquors and liquor-manufacturing paraphernalia, is very similar to the one used in France. Instead of a sharp cutting knife, a heavy steel beam is used to batter stills into scrap copper.

A revenue of nearly $9,000 a month is derived for the government from this scrap material.

WEST TEXAS CHAMBER HAS OUTLINE FOR BUSY YEAR

Far Western Part of State Will Reap Much Benefit From Recent Motorcade

Special Correspondence.
 STOMFORD, Aug. 3.—Two months have been woven into the span of the 1927-28 year of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the year which will mark the completion of a historic decade of service to the great West by its regional commercial organization.

Following the close of the colorful ninth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce held in Wichita Falls the latter part of May, organization began its tenth year under the new president, R. W. Haynie, and the 1927-28 directorate with an auspicious board meeting at Cisco early in June. At this gathering, a record breaker in point of attendance and enthusiasm, a vigorous and constructive program for the year was outlined. To put this program into effect, the West Texas lawyer at the head of the chamber chose from the cream of the West, one hundred and twenty-nine business leaders and professional men to serve on the eleven active bureaus of the organization.

Among the first official actions for the tenth year of the West Texas Chamber was provision for creation of two new bureaus, enlarging the scope of its work. These are the Oil and Gas Bureau, already functioning, and the Poultry and Dairy Bureau, whose organization will be completed this fall.

Another monumental action taken by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce during the first month of its tenth year of operation was its intervention in the interest of the irrigation districts of Brownwood and San Saba. The case is still pending before the State Board of Water Engineers, and the West Texas body has announced that it will fight to a finish for its stand that West Texas is entitled to use its own water and rain fall in any manner it sees fit. This looms up as one of the most important considerations of the regional organization for 1927-28.

The most outstanding work of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for July, the second month of its tenth year of service, and one of the most successful of all its enterprises, was the execution of the motorcade to resort sections of the Davis Mountains of West Texas and to the scenic wonderland of Eastern New Mexico.

Much good for the entire Western section is already apparent from this tour which attracted the attention of the State Highway Commission, some of whose members made the trip, to needs of West Texas in the matter of road and highway construction. The whole territory of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce as a pleasure, health and vacation resort region was benefitted from exploitation of the idea. "See the Scenic West First."

In connection with the motorcade and a part of the July program of the West Texas organization, two district conventions of the body were held in the outer borders of its western territory.

August opens the third month in the tenth year span of work of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. One of the major considerations at the present time is the Panhandle-North Plains District Convention to be held at Wellington within the next few weeks.

Another project underway is organization of the All-Texas exhibit which is to be prepared by the West Texas Chamber in connection with the East and South Texas regional organization as a part of the Dairy-ling in Dixie Exhibit of the South.

Additional district conventions, completion of the Poultry and Dairy Bureau and other matters to be announced later will occupy attention of the regional organization of the West until Fall.

Gripings by Gus

Some things we write are original, but not many. We write mostly upon things that are suggested by other people because nearly always somebody gets sore at something we say and we would like to please somebody while we are making somebody else mad.

Take, for instance, a guy get off the westbound bus of the West Texas Coaches today back here in the alley where it was plenty hot. He mopped the sweat from his brow and said, "You advertise Ranger as the 'City of Flowing Gold,' but my first impression is that it is the 'City of Flowing Garbage Cans.'"

"If I was passing through, I'd never know there was anything to Ranger but this alley and the attendant trash piles and weeds."

We'll admit it does not look so very inviting but we didn't pass the law.

You gotta admit one thing, and that is that you get courtesy and service out of old Duncan McRae, their agent here, and if you can't get along with him you are pretty hard to please.

We can't see where its any worse

Women Are Taking G. F. P. for Strength

eph's G. F. P. to enable them to do it easily.

This vegetable compound contains such well-known roots and herbs as Blessed Thistle, Blue Cohosh Root, Squaw Vine, Life Root Plant, Helonias Root, Star Grass, Cramp Bark, etc., which your family physician will tell you have been recognized for years for their properties in building up and strengthening women.

Mrs. Ethel Allen, who lives at 3201 Nussfener Ave., in Dallas, Texas, says, "I don't know what I would do without St. Joseph's G. F. P. I was terribly run-down when I started using this medicine; but now I feel dandy. I have plenty of strength to do my housework and go out with my friends, too."

Women have used St. Joseph's G.F.P. for over 50 years!

for them to run their cars down main street than it is for certain other means of transportation to block the street entirely for several minutes several times a day.

Who wants to bet it won't rain next Wednesday?

The simplest problems in arithmetic are often the most difficult of solution.

Take, for instance the simple problem of the price of ham and eggs: If ham without eggs is 45c per order and ham without eggs is 40c, then how much is eggs? The answer is not two for a nickle as you might suppose, but is two for a quarter.

We thought we had accidentally discovered a solution for the high cost of living in ordering ham and eggs without the ham and thought we might get them for a nickle, but heck no. The only way you can beat a leasery is by drinking plenty of ice water, use plenty of sugar in your coffee and top your meal off with a handful of matches and toothpicks.

Listen customers, if any of you all was figurin' on making us a personal visit during the next week, please do not do so without our consent or invitation. Our wife is gone to the country—hooray!—and we are a bun housekeeper under those conditions.

We would probably join the stage and have a high heel time but we are getting too old for such foolishments and besides we have to get home early enough every night to empty the pan under the refrigerator so the water won't run down on the neighbors in the apartment below.

You are thinking we should ought to use a bigger pan and we would only use the bigger pan for other purposes most of the time.

The other day we got in a hurry and not paying the proper attention to the task in hand, which happened to be shaving. We used some bleaching cream for shaving lotion and the improvement in our complexion was such as to excite questions on the part of many of our admirers. Since there has been an epidemic of face bleaching with a certain kind of cream which name we would have mentioned only they have not come across with the customary three simoleons.

ENGLAND ENTERED THE WAR JUST THIRTEEN YEARS AGO

British Cabinet Sat Anxiously Awaiting Reply To Its Ultimatum Which Never Came

By C. P. WILLIAMSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Aug. 4.—Thirteen years ago tonight the entire British Cabinet assembled in the cabinet room at No. 10 Downing Street.

Some of the members of the cabinet sat calmly smoking, others anxiously watched the little mahogany clock on the mantel tick away the weary hours, still others were torn between a dwindling hope and a struggle to maintain confidence. The clock chimed the hour of eleven. The Prime Minister, Herbert Asquith, arose and addressed the Cabinet. There were tears in his eyes as he quietly, but firmly announced, "Gentlemen of the Cabinet, the time has expired, we are at war."

Much water has flowed under the bridge of time since that never to be forgotten night when the Cabinet held its vigil to await the last minute a reply from the Imperial German Government to the British Government's ultimatum demanding immediate recognition of the neutrality of Belgium and demanding the immediate withdrawal of all German troops from Belgian territory.

Millions of people from the uttermost part of Scotland to the remote cliffs of Southern England were thrown into a frenzy of excitement. Thousands crowded the streets of London, joyously overcome with patriotism. Sages gathered at street corners and predicted "the victorious end of it all within a month or two." Still more conservative elements extended the date of victory to "Christmas, 1914." A rare few, consisting mainly of those in the Foreign Office and War and Admiralty Ministers who had foreseen the impending climax in world affairs for many months past, actually knew of the extent of the conflict which the chiming of the little clock in the cabinet room at No. 10 Downing Street would bring.

For nearly five years there followed the most appalling spilling of blood the world has ever witnessed. During the first year following the actual outbreak of the war, Europe bathed and splashed in human blood, drunk with the sight of victory which ever seemed so near, but which was so far off. After that first year the play gave way to a grim slaughter which has left many nations to this day mourning the flower of its very existence which can never be replaced.

Steeped not only in blood from the last war, but still laboring under the heritage of the economic burden which it left, Europe has now sufficiently recovered to meet all comers, either neighbors or foreigners. Taking the continent as a whole, there are few countries which can be credited with the possession of sincere desire to profit by the lessons of the conflict which reached from 1914 to the end of 1918. These countries—virtually the same which maintained strict neutrality throughout the great war—are Denmark, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden, Holland and Portugal, each going its separate path, picking no quarrels and avoiding as well as possible those (that are picked from abroad. Placing these countries to one side and observing the rest of Europe, one sees a jumbled mass of petty bickerings, hatreds and animosities, the smallest of which might again involve the entire continent in a bloody conflict.

First in these can be mentioned Great Britain—too much involved with her own troubles at home to look for trouble elsewhere,—but standing ever ready to show any nation that "the Lion's tail cannot be trod upon."

France still bickers and bites with Germany, maintaining her right to keep a large army of occupation in the Rhineland "for her protection." Likewise she has her own troubles in the numerous clashes with the Riffian tribes of her territory in Morocco.

Italy is involved in the Balkans, probably more than any of the other great European powers. Liberal quarters contend that there are numerous sources of trouble for Europe in Italy's policy in Albania. Italy is also having continual trouble with her territory in Tripoli, where her troops suffer numerous conflicts with native tribes.

Spain, although pursuing a friendly attitude in general toward European powers is still waging an extensive and expensive war against the native tribes in her territory in Spanish Morocco.

Poland for years has been at odds with Russia over several problems and with the small Baltic state of Lithuania. Both Poland and Lithuania claiming the important city of Vilna. There is still considerable feeling between Poland and Germany over the question of the destruction of German's fortresses on the Eastern frontier. In this latter question as in many of her other international problems, Poland has the support of France.

In the melting pot of the Balkans is a constant possibility of war in Europe, each of the small countries of Southern and South-Central Europe being ready at a moment's notice to take advantage of a neighbor's weakness.

Underneath all of this which can be seen from the outside are a great tangled mass of intrigues, diplomatic bargains, secret treaties—unknown, unseen, but ever ready to involve nearly 300,000,000 in a war which could easily surpass the last one in its toll of human lives.

A section hand in New York state inherited $500,000, but finished the day's work after he had been informed of his new riches. Maybe he was trying to get a little publicity.

Eastland Host To Artist Studying Oil Field Scenes

S. P. Ziegler, head of the art department of Texas Christian University at Fort Worth, arrived in Eastland Wednesday afternoon for a few days and while here will make a tour of the oil fields with a view of obtaining material for paintings of oil field scenes.

Many novels that had their settings in the oil fields have been written, and numerous newspaper features, stories and magazine articles dealing with the oil fields have been published, but Mr. Ziegler, it is stated, is the first artist that has gone to the oil fields, especially the fields of this section, for material for his paintings.

Mr. Ziegler finally decided to come to Eastland and the surrounding oil fields upon the suggestion of Boyce House, newspaperman and publicity director of the Eastland chamber of commerce.

While in Eastland Mr. Ziegler will visit Charles G. Norton, Eastland newspaper man whom he knew when Mr. Norton was managing editor of the Fort Worth Record.

Ranger Dealers Are Welcomed To Cisco Meeting

Mrs. Alice True, secretary of the Ranger Retail Merchants association, has received a letter from J. E. T. Peters, secretary of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce, in which he welcomes to Cisco the Oil Belt Automobile Dealers' association tonight.

Mr. Peters would like for all Ranger dealers to meet at the Cisco Chamber of Commerce offices this afternoon at 5 o'clock and go for a boat ride up Lake Cisco and a swim in Cisco's swimming pool.

Mrs. True states that as many as can arrange to do so, follow this plan, but those who cannot leave early enough to make the boat ride and swim, to meet the rest of the party at the Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock. One hundred per cent attendance is expected of Ranger dealers.

Lou Gehrig, New King of Swat, Is Sober, Studious Lad

DISCOVERED BY HUGGINS WHILE AT COLUMBIA

Never Will Be Colorful, Money Player Like Babe Ruth, Is Not Raging Kind

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Staff Correspondent. NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—One afternoon several years ago, so the story goes, Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, said to Pipp, his first baseman:

"Wally, we're not playing tomorrow and you can do me a big favor by going up to Columbia and looking over a fellow named Gehrig who they say can hit like hell."

Pipp, being an obliging fellow, went up to the university grounds where the varsity was practicing and what he saw caused him to hesitate not a moment. Gehrig, with a most natural style, was hitting the ball all over the lot.

Approaching him Pipp asked if he had ever thought about playing professional baseball.

"Yes, I have decided to give up college (he was then a sophomore) and try the professional game."

"Has anybody been after you?" Pipp asked. "Yes," he answered, "I have had several offers but I'm going with the Yankees because I think there's a better future with them."

"That's fine," Pipp went on enthusiastically. "What position do you play?" "First base," Gehrig said.

With a horrified expression on his face, Pipp took it on the run over the hill to the subway. Pipp's report to his chief was: "Guess I'd better start hitting home runs if I want a job."

Gehrig reported to the Yankees but, unlike Frank Frisch and Joie Sewell, he couldn't make good without schooling and he was sent away to the Hartford club where he proceeded to break all the fences in the league. He was recalled by the Yankees but he had to wait around on the bench. Huggins knew he could hit but he was aware also that he had many fielding faults and Pipp was a very good first baseman.

Joie Sewell, fresh from the college field, was forced into a regular position at short for the Cleveland Indians, after Ray Chapman was killed and Frisch, just down from Fordham was thrust on second base for the Giants when Larry Doyle broke his leg.

But Gehrig had to sit around and wait until Pipp faded and when he got the regular job he wasn't a wow as a fielder. But he kept his ears open, accepted advice whenever it was offered and by a plodding study of his position he has become a fielder above the average.

Billy Evans, the American league umpire, was the first to offer him advice. Evans was umpiring at first base in one of Gehrig's early games and he noticed a serious fault in fielding.

Taking a chance on being rebuked Evans told him "Young fellow, you're putting the wrong foot back on the bag on every play."

"Thanks, Mr. Evans, watch me on the next play," Gehrig said. On the next play the young first baseman put the proper foot back but he had to hesitate to think. The ball players say he still has the same fault in a minor degree, but he has to think his play while natural ball players of the Ruth, Lazzeri type make the play automatically. But they say that he will get there because he is willing and a hard worker.

Since Gehrig has become a serious rival of the Babe Ruth for the season's home run honors, many fans are curious as to the relations between two rivals on the same club. The players say there is but the friendliest feelings between them. The Babe even has coached him. Ruth is quite a first baseman along with his other talents and in fact it is his favorite position. He has taken pains to coach Gehrig not only in fielding but in hitting. The tips were offered in the typical Ruth spirit of friendliness and accepted by Gehrig with the highest gratitude and appreciation.

The Babe was asked some time ago what he thought of Gehrig and he replied, "He's a great kid. If he keeps on pasting 'em he'll be in the big dough." Incidentally, it is understood that Gehrig is drawing $7,000 a year. But next year:

"Ruth," Gehrig says of his rival, "is the greatest hitter and ball player that ever lived."

Discussion has arisen as to the relative power of the two stars. "Ruth is the stronger hitter," Miller Huggins says.

American league managers agree that Ruth hits a ball harder but they say they would rather pitch to Ruth than to Gehrig because they can't play Gehrig like Ruth. They never know where Gehrig is to hit or how long a hit it will be.

Eventually Gehrig may equal or better the Babe's record but he never will be a Babe because he lacks Babe's color. The Babe is an overgrown boy, Gehrig is a studious-minded young man who is in baseball for a business. The Babe makes a business of baseball but he loves baseball above everything.

Gehrig, most unassuming, selects friends from his own circle and prefers home life. The Babe likes to parade in Atlantic City. She is 18. Who said Gary was a sooty, grimy old town?

From Indiana

Miss Anna May Owens, fair daughter of Gary, Ind., will represent her home town in the September beauty contest in Atlantic City. She is 18. Who said Gary was a sooty, grimy old town?

Cleveland Club Misses Speaker Declares Evans

By BILLIE EVANS. Managing a big league ball club has many unpleasant moments, and owning one is not far behind in the matter of worries.

In a sense, however, the tribulations of manager and owner differ widely. Managerial work is largely mental because of inability to win, while that of the owner is largely financial.

In the American League the Cleveland Indians are offered as mute testimony to the vagaries of baseball and its ever shifting conditions.

The Cleveland club finished second in the American League last season. When I looked it over in the spring training that year I fancied it would do well to head the second division. I was not alone in my opinion.

Yet Cleveland, after an ordinary start in 1926, settled down and played excellent ball from about June 15 to the close of the season. At one stage of the race, late in September, the Indians almost caught the Yankees, despite a 10-game lead enjoyed by that club in mid-season.

Value Different Now. That finish of only three games away from the leaders in what seemed to be an evenly balanced league made the Cleveland franchise appear a most desirable one.

Last winter a number of offers were made for the Cleveland club. I am told by Mr. B. B. Johnson that one of the bids was for $950,000 in cash. At that time I believe a valuation of $1,250,000 was placed on the club by its owners.

Other offers were made but Mr. Johnson tells me the above one was bona-fide, made by wealthy sportsmen, regarded in high favor by the other American League magnates.

None of the deals went through. Probably the several owners of the Cleveland club were desirous of such a happening, they got a very bad break, since various conditions make the value of a major league club a fluctuating one.

Club Misses Speaker. The sixth place Cleveland club of today is, with the exception of Tris Speaker, center fielder and 1926 manager, exactly the same aggregation that pressed the Yankees for the pennant last year.

In spring training this year the Indians looked no more impressive than last season. It struck me as about a fifth place club. Mindful of what it did last season, however, I realized most anything could happen.

This year it again happened, but with a reverse English. Instead of being a pennant contender all the way, the club has been floundering around in the second division since the start.

The unexpected failure can largely be traced to lack of good pitching. Last year the twirling of the Cleveland club was consistently good, with George Uhle starring. He won 27 ball games. This season it has been correspondingly erratic.

The value of a baseball franchise is based almost entirely on results in the pennant standing, which controls the gate receipts. This year the Cleveland club has been neither an artistic or financial success.

A society known as the Irish Jews of America has been formed in Brooklyn. We're waiting to see what the Irish Lithuanians are going to do about this.

The time has come, it seems, to talk of cabbages and kings; and the well known "crystallizing" political sentiment.

Eastland may soon have a bathing pool supplied with an abundance of salt water.
Salt water bathing is very popular with many and for this reason Eastland citizens are considering utilizing the water from mtwo gushing salt water wells near the city for furnishing bathing pools. As yet no definite plans for such bathing pools have been made but the matter has been discussed by committees appointed for that purpose by the Chamber of Commerce.

Ranger Elks Have Charge of Myers' Funeral Service

Funeral services for George Myers, who died yesterday in Ranger, were conducted by the Elks Lodge this morning at 10 o'clock at Evergreen cemetery.

Aubrey M. Jameson, acting in the place of Exalted Ruler Harry M. Lorgsdon, read the funeral service of the Elks and Rev. H. B. Johnson assisted in the ceremony. Other Elks taking part in the service were, Esteemed Leading Knight, Julius Krause, Esteemed Loyal Knight, Al Tune, Esteemed Lecturing Knight, W. A. Leith, E. F. Gilmore, secretary, H. O. Pope, esquire and S. E. Harrell, chaplain.

Bell bearers were, Elks Al Tune, Wade Swift, W. W. Carlin, Arthur Flahie, J. A. Reeves and John Butler. All that was mortal of George Myers was left to await the call of the trumpet in Evergreen Cemetery, in a grave covered with flowers, the center of which was a purple and white clock wreath with the hands at eleven, the sacred hour and emblem of the Elks lodge. To George Myers, this clock and the things it stood for were more than a symbol, they were his life and his religion and in death his heirs, for it was his verbal wish, expressed many times, that his entire estate go to the charity fund of the Elks club.

S.S.S. is unequalled for restoring strength

In these days of keen competition, the people who are run-down, quickly fall behind—while their healthy, vigorous rivals, who comply with laws of Nature and keep their blood supply rich and nourished, get ahead. Good blood is health's foundation. When your blood is poor, you are dull, weak, slow, and pale—your brain cannot work effectively. But you glow with health when your blood is rich and strong! You look vigorous! You fairly sparkle with winning magnetism! Don't despair if others are forging ahead of you. S.S.S. will help you. It will bring back your appetite, will help Nature build up your red blood corpuscles. This is how S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished. S.S.S. is time-tried and reliable, and is unequalled for restoring strength and vitality. It is made from the roots of fresh herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Attempts have been made on the life of Elise Marberry, an American girl owning considerable property in West central Brazil.
Several mysterious deaths have occurred, but so far she has escaped harm, due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, Vilak, who masquerades as her attorney under the name of Davis. Vilak, a curious mixture of American and Oriental blood, is a student of criminology. He tries to persuade Elise to leave the country, letting him stay with his friend, Lincoln Nunnally, an elderly American chemist, to solve the mystery.
After her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped, to be found again by the alert Vilak, and another attempt is made on their lives, Elise agrees.
Her departure is prevented by threat of floods. Messengers ride through the countryside, warning the natives. Vilak decides to go to the house of Gaylord Prentiss, a recluse and a forbidding man and an enemy of Elise's, whom she suspects of a knowledge of the conspiracy against her. Nevertheless, she agrees it is their duty to warn him.
Vilak learns that the flood warning was a ruse to get Prentiss out of his house and so informs him. The party is besieged in a small stone tower by armed attackers. Vilak finally disperses them by dynamiting a dam and causing a real flood. When the water recedes they discover Prentiss has gone.
The next day, Tinky, Elise's little nephew, is stolen again. The trail leads into the jungle. A native reports Prentiss has been seen with a baby. Vilak makes preparations for a long pursuit, and with native trackers they take up the trail. They come upon a tribe which has never seen white men.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVI
The caravan set out next morning. The withered chieftain, clutching the box of matches tight against his breast, sadly bade them goodbye. "You never come back," he murmured. Devil gods on red mountain kill you. Kill sure. Better, must better, come and live with Bagarundi. Me, Bungarundi, never hurt."
The travelers saw him watching until the thicket blotted him from view.
Up to this time they proceeded without accident. But they had been out of Bagarundi's tiny settlement only three or four hours when they met disaster.
They had reached another river lined on both side by low cliffs of the interminable red volcanic rocks. Paulos and one of the Indians were standing on an apparently solid rock at the edge of the nearer bank, looking down at the brown water below. Without warning the rock toppled and dropped into the stream.
The two men tried to leap to safety. But their panic-stricken efforts were too late; both tumbled to the water thirty feet below. They were rescued by Vilak and one of the Indians twenty minutes of strenuous and dangerous labor in heaving off the coral pianhas, the small but fierce flesh-eating fish that infest most of the waters of the Amazon valley.
When they were finally brought to shore, Vilak, examining them expertly found that Paulos had suffered a badly broken leg in falling against a projecting rock; the Indian was bleeding at the mouth from serious internal injuries caused when he struck flatly against the surface of the stream. Obviously they could not accompany the expedition farther.
He gave medicine to one, made a splint for the other, and sent a messenger back to Bagarundi to send bearers to bring them to his village. Thus having made sure that they would not be left to the mercy of some strange beast, he gave the order to proceed. Several times in the afternoon, Nunnally noticed him wheel round and glance quickly up when there was a slight crackle or rustle in the black mat of vegetation hiding the sky.

"I couldn't hear what they said. It was something about—er—killing, I think."
Calamity, once it had showed its ugly head, began to strike repeatedly. The next night they were compelled to pitch camp in the midst of a huge swamp, where great stretches of enormous reeds alternated with patches of gigantic water-lilies, beautiful with brilliant but unwholesome coloring. The following morning Schwartz and Wilson and one of the half-breeds were helpless with fever, and after a vain attempt to carry them with the expedition, had to be left behind in the care of natives who would take them back to Bagarundi's. More men were lost a day or two later when two of the Indians, who had gone off on the pretext of searching for some berries when the expedition was halted at noon, failed to return. From their actions a few hours previous, Vilak was certain they had deserted.
The losses necessitated a readjustment of the caravan; some of the mules and the canoes which had proved an onerous and practically useless burden were abandoned. The reorganized train pitched its first camp on a low, wooded ridge. Elise and Vilak silently played Canfield by the light of the flickering fire.
The old man, who in the unpacking had noticed a small harmonica about to be thrown away and under a sudden impulse had thrust it into his pocket, now drew it out and after considerable hesitation put it into his mouth and began to play. He ceased after a few plaintive and discordant attempts, despite the vigorous applause of the two card players, and off in a corner, began listening to the muttered conversation and the blood-curdling stories of the superstitious natives huddled in a fantastic circle a few yards away. A little while later he arose and walked over to Vilak.
"I think—er—we're going to have trouble," he said furtively. "You had better—better keep a sharp watch on those two—er—fellows." He cau-erally carried in his pocket.

At dusk they camped on the shore of another river, wide, clear, attractive. Vilak and the old man decided to take advantage of the few remaining minutes of daylight to bathe. They strode up the bank to a grassy spot a few hundred yards above the camp. They stripped. Vilak peered into the depths of the shining water, then satisfied that no pianhas were about at the moment, stepped in.
"We're taking chances, Nanny," he said to his companion as they waded out toward the middle where the water was deeper and the bottom lined with smooth white pebbles. "There isn't one of these rivers that isn't cursed with pianhas. But I do need a bath. And I think you do, too." He drew a deep breath of contentment. "Um-m-m!" is luxury. Splash around as much as you can. Noise is apt to keep them off. They're afraid of it."
He was assiduously scrubbing himself with a thick bar of soap when he turned sharply to glance at one of the albinos who had followed them up the shore and taking a seat at the water's edge had begun lazily to whittle a twig with a knife.
"Wonder what that chap's up to?" he murmured.
He went on with his washing. Suddenly he commenced speeding toward the land, taking great plunging steps through the water which came half way to his waist. The albino saw him; began to run. Swiftly Vilak caught him. The other wheeled, struck viciously with his knife. But Vilak was too quick. In an instant he lay on the ground, whimpering with pain as Vilak's steely fingers dug into his flesh.
The old man had followed at a crouch command from his friend. He noticed that the water at the river's edge was tinged with red; saw that the albino's finger was bleeding profusely. "What's he done?—er—done?" he stammered.
Vilak did not answer, but motioned that he wanted a stout, rope-like liana hanging from a nearby pecoava tree. Nunnally cut a section of it free. Vilak bound it securely about his captive's quivering limbs. "I'd be justified if I hung you for this," he grunted. (To be continued)

The Sunset Derby Is Coming to Lamb Theatre Friday
Mary Astor and William Collier Jr. are seen in the leading roles of "The Sunset Derby," which will be seen at the Lamb theatre Friday and Saturday of this week.
Racing scenes for the picture was made on the track at Tia Juana, with some of the leading jockeys and the fastest mounts in America lending the authentic atmosphere.
An unusual feature of the production is the fact that Collier participates in an actual race, with the spectators unaware of the fact that they were serving as "extras" in a motion picture.
In addition to Collier and Miss Astor, the cast of "The Sunset Derby" includes Ralph Lewis, Lionel Belmore, David Kerby and other well known screen players.
