

DUFFER NO. 3 IS MAKING 1,200 BARRELS PRES. COOLIDGE EULOGIZES WASHINGTON

NATION HEARS COOLIDGE'S VOICE ON RADIO

Memorial Ceremonies Are Held by Joint Session of Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Treading the same historic ground as George Washington trod at the birth of the republic, President Coolidge today led the nation in commemorating with a brilliant ceremony, the one hundred and ninety-fifth anniversary of Washington's birth.

A chain of forty two radio stations carried the president's voice from coast to coast and from border to border, as he reminded a joint session of congress of the ideals of the nation's founder.

While modern pilgrims thronged down the Potomac to Mt. Vernon, the old home where Washington and his wife are buried, and while patriotic mass was held throughout the city bearing his name, the new pageant of the nation assembled in the house of representatives for the president's address and memorial ceremonies.

Wives Present.

Wives of supreme justices, senators, cabinet representatives, and government officials were garbed in splendid attire; justices wore their black robes and senators and representatives carried silk hats to set off their cutaways.

Not a vacant seat was left as Mr. Coolidge began his address, the first within the congress halls since his inauguration.

Proration.

In concluding he paid this tribute to Washington:

"Washington has come to personify the American Republic. He presided over the convention that framed our Constitution. The weight of his great name was the deciding factor in securing its adoption by the States. These results should never have been secured had it not been recognized that he would be the first president. When we realize what it meant to take 13 distracted colonies, impoverished, envious, and hostile, and weld them into an orderly federation under the authority of a central government, we can form some estimate of the influence of this great man. But when we go further and remember that the government which he did so much to bring into being not only did not falter when he retired from its administration, but withstanding every assault, has constantly grown stronger with the passage of time and been found adequate to meet the needs of nearly 120,000,000 people occupying the greatest continent and confederating the greatest power the world has ever known, we can judge something of the breadth and soundness of his statesmanship.

"We have seen many soldiers who have left behind them little but the memory of their conflicts, but among among a great people a form of self-government which the test of experience has shown will endure was bestowed upon Washington, and Washington alone. Many others have been able to destroy. He was able to construct. That he had around him many great minds does not detract from his glory. His was the directing spirit without which there would have been no independence, no Union, no Constitution, and no Republic. His ways were the ways of truth. He built for eternity. His influence grows. His stature increases with the increasing years. In wisdom of action, in purity of character, he stands alone. We can not yet estimate him. We can only indicate our reverence for him and thank the Divine Providence which sent him to serve and inspire his fellow men."

SHANGHAI IS SHELLED BY REBELLIOUS SHIP

FOREIGN TROOPS ARE MOBILIZED FOR PROTECTION

Shots Pass Through Houses in The French Concessions of The City

SHANGHAI, China, Feb. 22.—At 5 o'clock this afternoon the crew of a Chinese warship rebelled and began firing on Shanghai. The shells from the guns of the rebels fell in the outskirts of the city. Foreigners rushed to water front as the sounds of the firing echoed over the international and French settlements. Members of the foreign civilian volunteer defense companies were mobilized. The British forces sent here to protect the city prepared to discharge their duty.

Some of the shots struck in the French concessions, and passed through two houses, but so far as known there were no casualties. The soldiers of Marshal Sun Chuan Fang replied with a desultory fire from machine guns.

'TEEDY-EYE' FACES TRIAL FOR ASSAULT

The case of C. A. Johnson, charged with assault to murder, has been set for trial tomorrow in the Ninety-first district court. This trial will in all probably attract considerable interest.

J. Lee Cearley of Cisco has been retained as special prosecutor in this case to assist the district attorney, J. Frank Sparks, and his assistant, Sterling C. Holloway. The defendant will be represented by Judge Tom J. Cunningham and R. N. Grisham.

Johnson was tried in the first part of the month in the Eighty-eighth district court on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of John Harris at Pioneer early in 1926, resulting in a hung jury.

Oil Strike Lures Old Timers Back, Once Owned Well

S. V. Rust of Weatherford and J. M. Rust of Abilene, old time Ranger citizens were in Ranger today, lured here by the reports of the oil strike. The well was plugged years ago.

All the ground shown in the picture is under water and some of the residents are trying to drag their belongings to higher ground.

HIJACKER HOLDS UP STATION

The Crouch service station in Eastland was held up and the cash drawer robbed of $9.30 about 7:30 o'clock last night.

F. W. Crouch, who was on duty at the time had just stepped around the corner on some business and heard the drawer bell ring. At first he thought it was one of the employees of the place, but when he approached the door he was met by a hijacker with a pistol. He backed out. The bandit then made a quick get away. A search immediately was made and the police notified. No arrests have been made and no clue found.

WET AND DRY FIGHT LOOMS, REPUBLICANS

Butler and Borah May Hook Up In Wordy Duel; It's Prohibition

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The hide of the republican elephant is tough.

It will have to be parboiled into comparative tenderness before the efforts of Nicholas Murray Butler and Senator Borah to turn the next G. O. P. national convention into a wet and dry bedlam can have more effect upon it than the assault of a gentle zephyr on a granite cliff.

It may be that these two figures in the party—one cannot call them leaders—will fulfill their threats and flood the convention hall with their outbursts of oratory.

But if the republican convention does anything more or less than to toss in a perfunctory plank for "law enforcement," some very significant development will have introduced itself into the situation in the meantime.

And there need be no astonishment should Senator Borah subsequently announce himself as thoroughly satisfied with just such a plank and perhaps even refer to it as a "ringing declaration of principle" or something of the sort.

Butler and Borah are individuals within the party. Their following, to all political purposes, is now insignificant. Their individualism is only more emphatically stressed by the fact that Butler, in howling at the party's indifference to prohibition and insisting that Calvin Coolidge wants but two more years in office, is unique among the brethren and dry cause as a party policy, is equally

2 LOCATIONS STAKED OUT MONDAY BY ENGINEER

Gulf Preparing To Bring in Offset To Discovery Well, Pool

The most sensational oil news of recent days in the Gholson pool south of Ranger—in fact the most striking since the early discovery of the Carter pool, two years ago, is the news that Duffer No. 3, in this pool came in yesterday is flowing steadily 1,200 barrels a day.

It was predicted early Monday morning that No. 3 would be a better well than either Nos. 1 and 2, but even the most optimistic had not expected such a gusher.

While Duffer No. 2 which came in just a little before Duffer No. 3, and is 660 feet due east of Duffer No. 1, the discovery well, just as Duffer No. 3 is an equi-distance west, flowed by heads, estimated to be around 25 barrels an hour, Duffer No. 3 had sufficient gas pressure in it to cause the oil to flow steadily, just like a stream.

Beehive.

The new field was as busy as a beehive yesterday afternoon. A force of surveyors were making new locations, representatives from the Prairie Pipe Line company, who are taking care of the oil, were on the ground making preparations for taking care of the added production, oil operators and lease holders, owners, drillers, crews and visitors, were walking from one well to another and rejoicing over the rich strike.

The Gholson pool will be extended east and west and two locations each 660 feet east and west from Duffer Nos. 2 and 3 respectively were made yesterday afternoon.

Gulf Sets Casing.

Just east of the discovery well, Gulf Duffer No. 1 is setting the six-inch casing at 3,263 feet and expects to drill in about Thursday. The Parish No. 1, five-eighths of a mile north of the Duffer, that is being drilled by Gholson et al., will be, if it is a producer, a northern extension of the pool and the Gulf No. 1 to the southeast of Duffer No. 1, about one mile, which is having its rig changed at 2,200 feet so that the deeper pay may be sought, will be watched with much interest, as its coming in a producer will have a very important bearing on determining the extent of the pool.

The Gulf has made two blind locations as offsets to Duffer Nos. 2 and 3.

History of Tract.

This tract was bought by Dr. A. L. Duffer's father many years ago, and was used solely as a pasture. A plow has never turned a furrow in it and the timber and underbrush is so thick as to be almost impenetrable. The old Duffer homestead was on the Leon river further down the road, and the double log house still stands there. The elder Duffer always said that there was coal on this land and predicted it would be valuable some day. Before his death he deeded the land to Dr. Duffer and his daughter, Mrs. Jones of Eastland, who were his only children, and they have never sold a foot of it.

John M. Gholson had a hunch that oil was on that land. Some geologists held with him; others did not. Just what finally determined the location of the discovery well is not known, although they tell it as a joke on the pioneer oil man, that he hunted all over the field until he came to a tree with an owl's nest in it, and then he looked up and said "Here she is," and here she has proven to be, at the rate of some 2,000 barrels a day and still going strong.

FROM GOD'S WORD.

THE OUTLOOK.
 The outlook in Eastland county was never brighter from all viewpoints. Excellent winter rains put good seasons in the ground for another crop and early pasturages. The development of the poultry and dairying industry were never brighter with an increase noted in both and also that the farmers of the county are buying stock hogs to raise their own meat.

The development in the oil industry was never brighter since the discovery well was brought in 10 years ago. Although this is only the second month in the year two outstanding deep fields are in prospects of development. The Gholson pool five miles south of Ranger on the old Desdemona road and the McAllister pool near Carbon are outstanding features to say nothing of the Ramsower equidistant between Eastland and Cisco and the several shallow pools like the Parsons and extension of the Olden. Unlike the early days in the development of this section, the work is being done by oil men.

It means a steady growth for the towns in Eastland county. It means employment for a large number of men in all branches of the oil game.
 It means that the farmers of Eastland county must raise a surplus of food crops, especially vegetables to feed the army. It means good business for the merchant. Already the hotels in the various towns are filling up with oil men from all over the country. The roads and highways are filled with trucks loaded with well supplies en route to the various fields.

In the Lacasa section, north of Ranger, just across the line of Stephens county the Pratt field is in course of development.

Business prospects were never brighter. Already the merchants of the various towns are being kept busy. Workers need clothes and food. The oil belt towns will show a steady growth built on a solid foundation.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS.
 With prospects as bright as they are in the oil belt, it behooves every town to get busy and begin a campaign of street paving, and extending the lighting system. They must get ready to take care for the newcomers. More neat cottages are needed.

The streets need not be paved but may be gravelled and the gravel streets kept up. But it is absolutely necessary to lay more sidewalks. Well lighted streets are a big advertisement to any town.

Already the hotels are filled each night to overflowing with representatives of big oil companies here looking over the field. Get ready for the influx and put on a spring dress in your town.

SURFACE SCRATCHED.
 When oil was first discovered in Central West Texas, an oil man of national reputation and a banker remarked in an interview with the press that the surface was just being scratched. That prediction is proving true. At the same time, Fred Gillett, a representative of one of the largest oil companies in the country said that oil development will continue through the ages and that fields and pools that have been overlooked will be brought into playing. His prediction is coming true. Gillett also remarked that the oil towns in Texas should prepare to take care of the new comers. That admonition we are giving the property owners now.

We want to see the scratching of the surface continued, and instead of shacks want to see substantial homes and business houses erected.

dom's youth to cut. (Your census of this gang will come to only fifteen

 On Own Word
 By Justice

Two young boys were arrested in Ranger in connection with theft of bananas from the Traders Grocery store, on North Rusk street, last night.
 The two boys who were arrested said they came by the store and four other boys were on the outside of the store with some bananas, and told them they could get some by reaching inside an open side door. This they did, and one of these boys was caught by the son of the proprietor of the store, and this morning the other youth was apprehended. The four others ran away and have not been identified.
 The boys were released on their own recognizance.

 that Borah, as he roars for the bone dry cause as a party policy is equally singular.

The republicans know just what a good internal wet-dry fight is like.
 They saw the democrats sweat with it in New York in 1924 after they had finished their own sweet, unrolled convention with dry collars. They see it every other day in congress, as dry senators and wet senators drag out the party's dirty linen and wave it desperately. They see it raging on its morry way, month by month, as the 1925 democratic convention draws nearer.

And if there is anything that makes the standpatters laugh more hilariously than this spectacle within the ranks of the minority party, it is the thought of a couple of party irrespon-sibles like Butler and Borah pushing them into the very same sort of a free-for-all.

NEGRO HELD FOR THEFT OF CHECK

In Justice of the Peace J. N. Mc-Fatter's court, Sunday, charges were filed against Will Cook, negro, in connection with the theft of a check made payable to W. A. Cook for $140 and signed by the McLester Oil company.

Last week two Ranger negroes went into the E. H. & A. Davy's rein Fort Worth and one of them claimed to be Will (Bill) Cook, of Ranger, and wanted to cash the check. Now, Abe Davis, former Ranger merchant, knew Bill Cook, and knew that the man presenting the check was not the Bill Cook he knew, he also looked on the back of the check, saw the items enumerated thereon, for which payment was being made, and knew that Cook, colored, of Ranger, was not in that line of business. The check was not endorsed, so Davis notified the officers.

Sunday Will Cook, colored, was arrested here, in connection with the theft but is out on bond.

Bulldogs Win Lisless Game From Gorman

Although the Ranger Bulldogs played like they were on dress parade yesterday afternoon, when they played with Gorman High school team, they defeated their opponents 18 to 13. But, boy howdy, they moved around like automatons. No dash. No fire. Utterly lacking in the love of the game. There was no spirit in the Bulldogs work and no fight in their tactics.

If Ranger is going to have a team next year that will even be able to capture one conference game, Coach Cherry and Assistant Coach Davis are going to have to do something in the nature of a miracle to effect a change of heart and spirit in this prospect for a team.

The game was witnessed by a number of fans, all anxious to see what timber the team was composed of. Among the number present were a number of ex-captains of the Bulldogs, including Captains Phillips, Shell, Wilson, Harvey (basket ball captain), and Captain Hamblen of the Junior college.

The Gorman team put up a good game and the work of their team predicts a pretty good season for them in the fall. Cherry used about 40 men, most of whom were green. Hinman was the Bulldog captain.

Eastland High Debaters Contest Held Monday

Last night beginning at 8 o'clock an elimination contest in debating was held at the auditorium of the Eastland high school to determine who should represent the school in the county interscholastic league contest. R. L. Speer, principal of the high school, presided over the exercises.

The judges selected for the occasion were: Grady Owen, Judge Tom J. Cunningham, and J. B. Hooper.

The winners announced in the girls' contest were, Jane Katramet, first place; Maydell Sikes, second; and Katherine Hoffman, third.

Boys—Wayne Castleberry, first; Jack Frost, second; Fletcher McWilliams, third.

The first two in each group will represent the school in the county contest while the winners of third place will go as alternates.

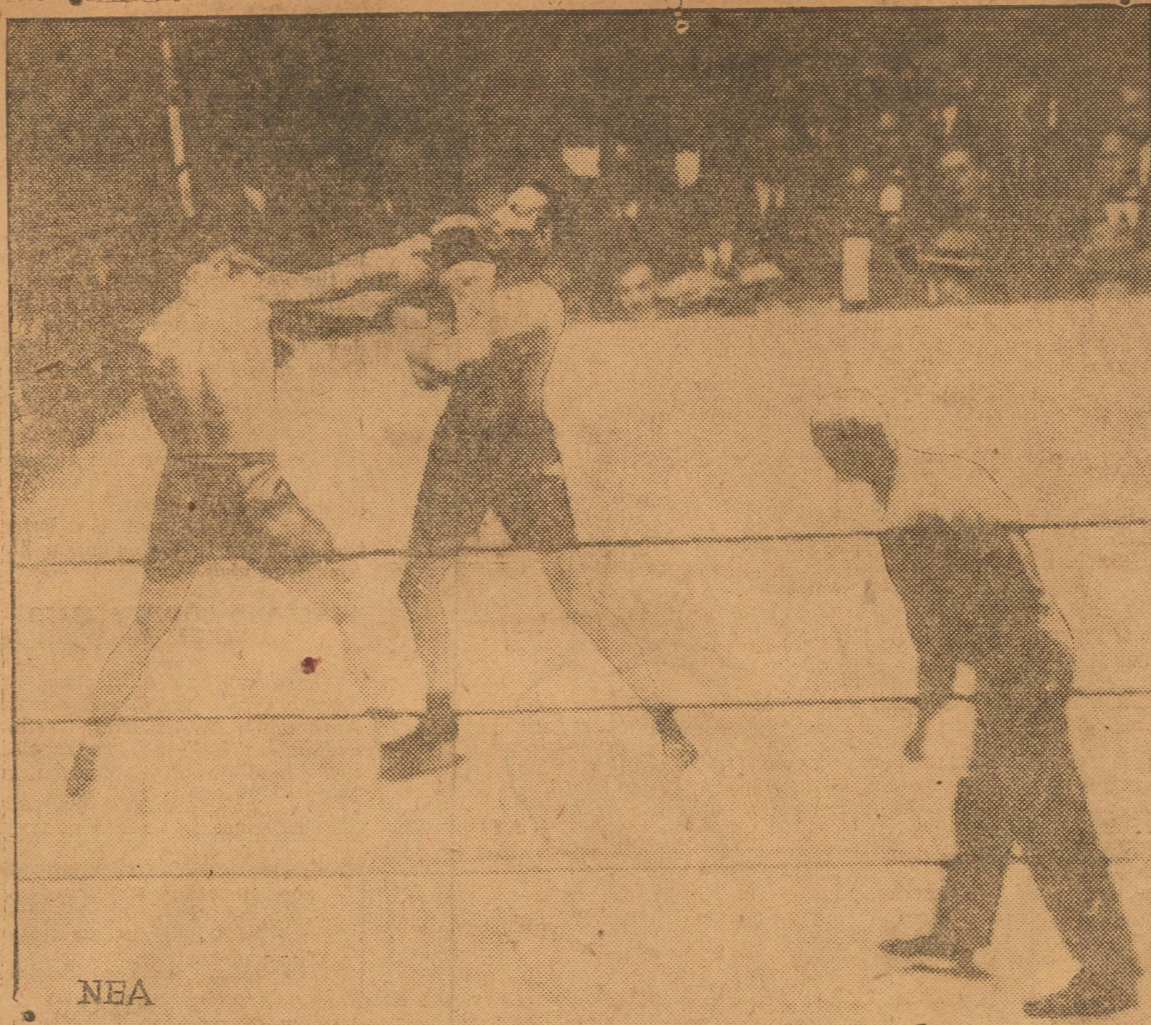

Summer School For Texas Tech Is Announced

LUBBOCK, Texas, Feb. 22.—A twelve weeks summer school at Texas Technological college has been announced here by school officials. Classes will begin for the summer session on June 7 and will close Friday, August 26. The session will consist of two terms of six weeks each.

Both regular and special courses will be offered and credits earned during this summer session will count towards a degree.

A large attendance is expected.

When Maloney Beat Delaney

This telephoto picture, taken by NEA staff photographers at Madison Square Garden, New York, shows one of the lively moments in the Jim Maloney-Jack Delaney fight, the biggest scrap since the Sesqui-Centennial exhibition of Dempsey and Tunney. Delaney, the light heavyweight champion entered the ring 31 pounds lighter than Maloney and this concession proved too much of a handicap. The bulky Maloney, who weighed in at 203, took every round and won the fight by a decision. This picture shows Maloney (left) and Delaney slugging at each other in the first round. The referee at the right is Louis Magnolia. Delaney's title was not affected by the decision because of the disparity in weight.

COLLEEN MOORE MAKES FILM OF 'TWINKLETOES'

One of Thomas Burke's most charming stories of London's Limehouse comes to the screen at the Lamb theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday, with Colleen Moore in the stellar role. It is "Twinkletoes," produced for First National by John McCormick and directed by Charles Brabin.

Versatile and sweet Colleen makes a departure from her black-haired Dutch-bobbed character to play the title part, appearing as a blonde with gorgeous golden curls that give her a new piquancy—and an even saucier, more lovable personality.

The story, too, gives her splendid opportunities to display her acting ability and new sides of her personality. Previous critics have rated it her greatest acting role.

ARTHUR DUGGAN NOW BOY SCOUT LEADER

LITTLEFIELD, Feb. 22.—President Arthur P. Duggan of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, was recently elected first vice president of the South Plains Scout council. Duggan has had active part in putting the Boy Scout movement over in this section of the country. His election as vice president was made at a meeting held in Lubbock at the chamber of commerce offices there.

Abilene schools will not compete in any of the events as they are placed with the cities and not in the district.

The counties in this district are: Callahan, Fisher, Haskell, Howard, Jones, Kent, Mitchell, Nolan, Shackelford, Stonewall and Taylor.

Jensen Displays Moose's Antlers Cholson Hotel

Pete Jensen, of Ranger, and a resident of the Cholson Hotel, has on display in its lobby, a moose head of very beautiful proportions. The 14 point antlers are forty inches apart in their spread.

Mr. Jensen killed the animal while on a hunting expedition in British Columbia last summer but the mounted head has just now reached him.

This modern age likes the mellow mildness of Camels

TRY Camels and you'll know why they win the modern world. Mildness and mellowness. The smoking wish of this exacting age is realized in Camels. Such taste and fragrance as never came before from a cigarette. A mellow mildness that can result only from superb blending of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos.

This age demands the best of everything—and it finds its ideal smoke in Camels. Nowhere else can you find such smoothness, such ever-dependable goodness as here—

Four Horsemen May be Exhibited In Ranger Soon

The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, probably may appear in Ranger at an early date. J. T. Hughes, manager of the Lamb theatre, asked yesterday that fans of Ranger and near by towns express themselves freely as to whether or not they would like to see Rudolph Valentino again in this his first world famed picture. "Yes," has been the answer to this question and the manager is convinced that it is the wish of many patrons of the theatre that this picture play a return engagement, however, he is still waiting for more answers to his inquiry.

Australia May Not Send Team Davis Cup Matches

By United Press.
SYDNEY—The question of whether Australia will compete for the Davis Cup, or whether, like last year, she will not enter the play, is exciting considerable interest in this country. Australia's lawn tennis strength has been considerably reduced by the defection to the professional ranks of J. O. Anderson, who just before turning pro, reached his best form, and displayed tennis that would have extended even Bill Tilden or the French cracks to beat him. Tennis fans here were delighted with showings, and the news of his decision to desert the amateur ranks was a bombshell to them.

Selection for the other two places would lie between old war veteran Pat O'Hara Wood, Robert Schlesinger and Fred Kalmis, both of whom have made trips with Davis cup teams. Jimmy Willard, who represented Australia at the Paris Olympic games and did fairly well, Edward Moon, a Brisbane, Queensland, star, who defeated Patterson in a match last year, and 18-year-old Jack Crawford, of this city. The last-named is a new star, in the tennis firmament. After annexing all the honors possible in the junior ranks, he graduated to championship class, and at once established himself as a comer by beating all but Patterson in the Victorian singles championship. He has an ideal match temperament, and an excellent repertoire of first class shots, and hits hard and fast. Anderson is said to have him in hand with a view of making him a world-beater.

Finances.
Finance will be the deciding factor in the sending of the Davis Cup team, the United States recaptured the Davis Cup from Australia, there have been no gate-attracting overseas stars, and trips have invariably resulted in losses. Public opinion undoubtedly supports the sending of a team, and this view is voiced by the "Melbourne Herald," which urged its despatch to preserve the prestige of Australian sport.
"The Australian attitude," it says, "may be easily regarded by other tennis nations as that of a spoils-baby. The suggestion to the foreign mind will surely be that, having dropped from world's champions to runners-up, and from runners-up to third place, Australians have grown sulky and won't play because they cannot win. Rivals are often only too glad to adopt a mental attitude of that kind, and the fact that we have paved the way to such a belief is not a good thing for us nationally. Other countries are big enough to pursue a forlorn hope. Why cannot Australia, whose chances are much better do likewise?"

Spit Pitchers Are Tabooed In Coast League
By United Press.
PORTLAND Ore., Feb. 22.—Slowly, surely, the damn delivery boys of the baseball world are fading into history. The time is near at hand when a jaw full of chewing tobacco or a generous helping of "Wriggle-mint" will no longer be a pitching asset.
With the departure of "Doc" Crandall, noted right hander of Los Angeles, the list of spitball pitchers who will start the season dwindled to four.
The four nitchers who may moisten the horseshoe on the coast are: Ray Kestine, Sacramento; Frank Shellenbach, Hollywood; Al Gould, Oakland, and Harry Krause, Oakland.

Plainview's building program completed during 1926 represented $1,614,450.

Chinese General Turns to Poetry For His Solace

By United Press.
PEKING—"The cold wind from the west blows my old battle garment."
"To look upon the bloodstain on the clank brings sorrow to my heart."
"My only possessions now are loyal heart and brave soul."
"These will be with me forever, despite the ice and snow of the present situation."
The foregoing is a sample of the latest verse received from the pen of Marshal Wu Pei-fu, who virtually wiped from the military scene in Honan province, turns as usual back to his classical education for relief and in this instance commemorates the death of a faithful soldier who died in battle recently at Ting Su Chiao.

It is said that the blood of the dying man stained Marshal Wu's robe and that he will not allow the stain to be removed.
Another poem to his wife, who because of her husband's reverses insists on wearing an inadequate old cotton garment, reads:
"The thief has not been slain.
"The people have not been saved.
"Old people will go on together
"Fighting the cold and starvation
"Daily we wear the horse-skin and the skin of the bull;
"Only a good and bright soul can bring real peace."

Prince Turns Down Invitation Fort Worth Show

By United Press.
FORT WORTH, Feb. 22.—Edward, Prince of Wales, missed an invitation to the Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth March 5-12, when he refused to talk over long distance telephone Tuesday to T. G. Shaw, oil operator. Shaw who wanted to show the heir to Britain's throne how cow punchers from the Texas cattle ranges could ride—and keep their saddles—placed the London call but the Prince told the operator, "I don't know anyone in Fort Worth, Texas."
Shaw says he met the Prince in the East when Wales made his last American visit.

EDISON AT 80

Thomas Alva Edison celebrated his 80th birthday from his usual daily routine upon his 80th birthday anniversary. A visit from his old friend, Henry Ford, and his annual meeting with news reporters and photographers were the outstanding events of the day. Here (left) we see the inventive "Wizard of Menlo Park," arriving at the laboratory with Ford from the Edison home. The trip was made in the stock Ford touring car which Ford gave Edison and was marked by the ceremony

...of crossing the laboratory grounds through the main gate, which is opened for Edison to pass only on his anniversaries. (During the remainder of the year he is driven in through a rear gate.) Ford isn't kissing his aged but still vigorous chum in the picture above; he's telling him something in the only manner Edison's life-long deafness will permit him to hear. An extraordinary likeness is the portrait below.

"Tardy at Pearley Gates? Not Me!"
GABRIEL WILL NOT HAVE TO CALL ISAAC SMITH TWICE
BUILDS OWN SHAFT; PICKS WOMEN AS PALLBEARERS

Isaac Birdseye Smith and his self-built monument

The six old friends whom Smith has chosen as his pallbearers

(By NEA Service)

PLEASANT LAKE, Ind., Feb. 19.—When Gabriel sounds his horn and the pearly gates swing wide, Isaac Birdseye Smith, 78, Civil War veteran, wants to be there on time. So that he will not keep St. Peter waiting, Smith has issued detailed instructions as to his interment.

"Leave my casket unlocked and my grave unsealed," is his usgase to his kinsfolk.

Six women pallbearers recently were chosen by Smith for his obsequies. All are daughters of Civil War veterans. "I want to be patriotic to the last," Smith explained.

The six live in the Pleasant Lake community, and are Smith's lifelong friends.

A Monument? "I'll Build My Own."

A year ago Smith decided it was time to assure himself a handsome monument. He was suffering severely from rheumatism at the time.

Monuments are costly. "I'll build my own," said the veteran. Day after day he journeyed around the little lake town in quest of multi-colored rocks for his memory shaft. He had some knowledge of masonry, and as the monument rose, stone on stone, it became the pride of Smith's heart.

He hauled the stones in his own cart. Early and late he labored. Today, on the crest of a knoll in the little village cemetery, Smith's work stands complete, the stones so arranged as to display the national colors. At the top of the shaft an eagle spreads its wings.

The work cured Smith of his rheumatism. The color of uniqueness and romance thus will mark Smith's passing. His death and burial will not differ, in this respect, from his life.

At the age of 15 he left his home with Company D, 118th Indiana infantry. Behind he left Susie Rhodeffer, childhood playmate and sweetheart.

There were numerous Isaac Smiths in the Federal army. Many love letters from Susie to him went astray. In his distress Smith appealed to his father. This occurred about the time the name of James Birdseye McPherson was prominent throughout the north.

The quick witted father suggested that Susie's letters be addressed to Isaac Birdseye Smith, for prior to that time Isaac had no middle name. Thereafter Smith got his mail all right.

The war passed into history, and along with it went Smith's love for Susie. His attention shifted to the sister of two brothers with whom he fought. After the close of the war he brought her here from Ohio as a bride.

Susan turned to another, and she, too, was married. After fifteen years Smith's love ship went on the rocks. Susie, too, was left alone.

Light of Old Love Burns Anew.

In less than two months after his divorce from his wartime bride, Smith journeyed to Auburn, Ind., where he and Susie were married. Death parted them five years ago. Today Smith cares for the graves of both of his wives.

Vivid, too, is his political career in Steuben county. His vote-getting prowess won him the job of doorkeeper for the state senate.

He next sought the postmastership of Pleasant Lake and got it, holding office four years and then resigning.

At this time came what he terms his "biggest fight." To reward James Matson, his mail carrier, Smith sought to land him the postmastership. He did.

Smith revels in telling of his eventful life. "I'm feeling fin, and I'm gonna live to be a hundred," he declared as he danced about in the three-room hut where he lives alone.

Patriotism and friendship dictated Isaac Birdseye Smith's choice of his six pallbearers, pictured here. In the upper panel, left to right, are Mrs. Nanie Case, Mrs. Josie Howd and Mrs. Minnie Bennett; below, Mrs. Addie Carey, Mrs. Millie Tuttle and Mis Lottie Tuttle.

How Much Do You Know About Life of George Washington?

Every schoolboy knows the general outline of the life of George Washington.

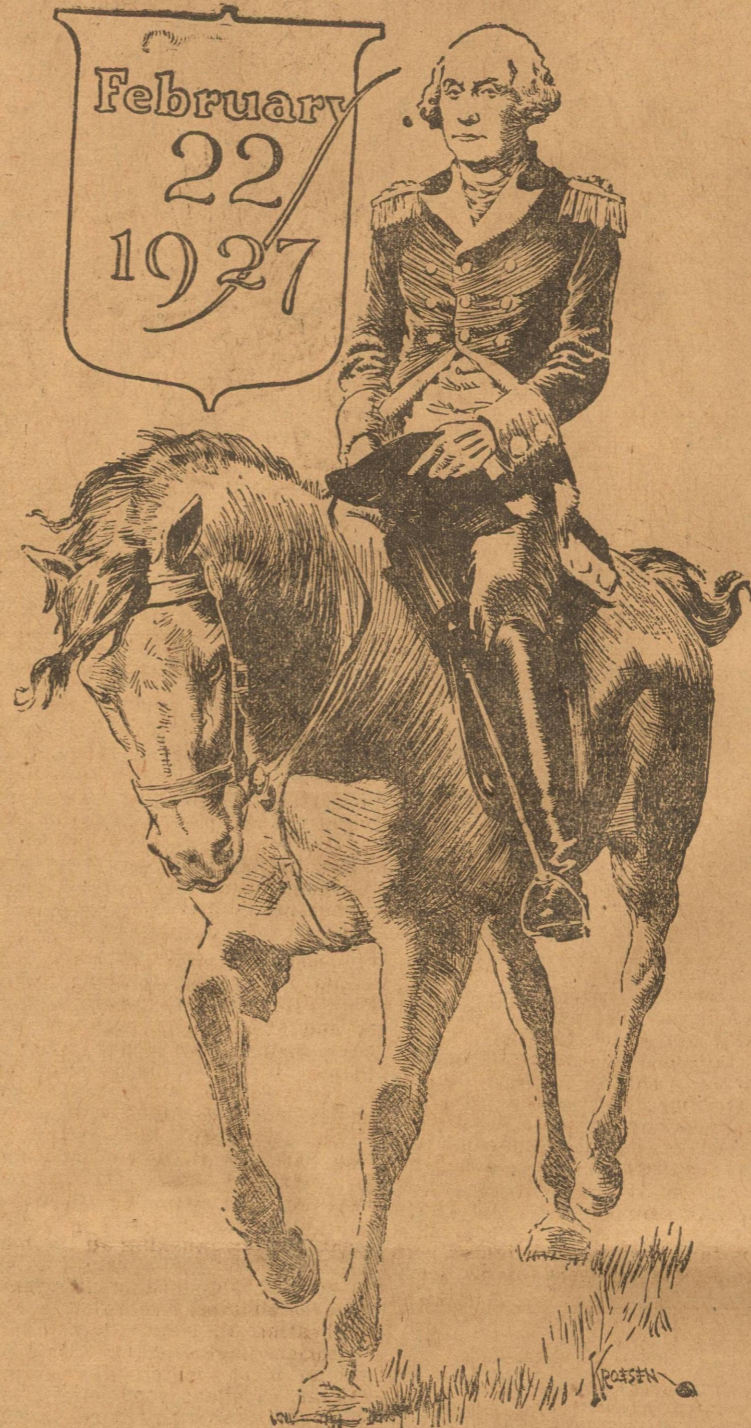

He knows that Washington was a surveyor, that he lived at Mount Vernon, that he led the Revolutionary armies and was finally made president.

But Washington's life is crammed full of interesting incidents that many well-read people don't know anything about. In addition, a surprising number of people have forgotten some of the major events of his career.

So this paper has compiled here a list of questions about Washington. Probably very few, if any, will be able to answer them all. But reading them and the answers, will give you a lot of new information about Washington and what he did.

- 1—When and where was Washington born?
- 2—Why did Washington make a journey across the Alleghenies in 1753?
- 3—How did Washington save the life of an unknown Indian on that trip?
- 4—Under what circumstances did he nearly lose his life in the Allegheny river, also on that trip?
- 5—How long did it take Washington to travel from Virginia to the site of Erie, Pa., and return?
- 6—When and where did Washington's first battle take place?
- 7—Did Washington side with the French or the English in the struggle between the nations for the control of America?
- 8—Under what circumstances did Washington serve under the British General Braddock?

Steel Eater

Razor blades are a pet dish of Samuel ("Bubbles") Becker, 17, of Newark, N. J. After grinding away the sharp edges, he chews them into little bits with quick, short bites and then gulps them down with more than the usual sufficiency of saliva. Sam did it the first time on a bet—and now he can't rid himself of the habit.

All at Sea

CHAPTER I

Of all the scenes of sheer gaiety, of relaxed conventionality, of utter freedom from responsibility, care or trouble, there is no spot to compare with an ocean bathing beach.

The wine-dark sea may stretch its dangerous depths to the far horizon in one direction; the land, with its soothing spots of civilization, may yawn with equal dangers on the other side; but at the joining, the foam-fringed bit of No Man's land between earth and water, all is excitement and abandon.

Bars are let down, restraint flies, caste is forgotten and high and low, good and bad, real and imitation are made free and equal by the one touch of salt water that makes the whole world akin.

Among the beaches best adapted for sea dipping are those on the coast of New Jersey, and of those one of the finest is the great resort called Ocean Town.

Its habitues contend that nowhere else is the temperature of the waters

"You can learn. I'll teach you. But no more today. You're a bit winded, and we must be getting back, or we'll be late for lunch on Divine graciously." And he turned up beside Robin, and with long, capable strokes they made their way to shore.

"There they are—I see Maddy's cap!" the girl cried, as they came nearer the line of rope climbers. "Let's go there."

Assisted by a friendly wave, they reached their goal and scrambled to their feet, seeking a vacant space on the rope. But it was crowded, so they laughingly moved over toward the next rope.

"Better go in now," Ned Barron called to them, and a wave of her hand told him that Angelica had heard and would obey.

"Wonderful swimmers, your two young friends," said a voice next him, and Barron turned to see a stranger smiling at him.

"Yes," he replied, a little curtly, for he had a deeply rooted aversion to making friends in the ocean.

But the friendly stranger wouldn't accept rebuff, and went on, affably: "Haven't been here for some years. Quite a lot of change. Mostly in the women's bathing suits—for the better, of course."

The speech grated on Ned Barron's taste, but the voice was cultured and the man's appearance both civil and correct.

A clubman and a gay one, Barron sized him up at once.

"From the looks of you, I'd say you're more perspicacious than tact," he said, with more perspicacity than tact.

"Yes. That is, Chicago? You alone?"

As he spoke, he leaned forward to see Barron's next neighbor. It was his wife, Madeline, and Ned leaned his own big body forward to intercept the stranger's regard.

"No, not alone, my wife is with me," he said, and perhaps no such short sentence ever carried greater weight of advice.

The curtness of the speech, combined with a direct glance straight into the other man's eyes, carried understanding, challenge and a note of warning that was unmistakable and definite. Only a dumb brain would have failed to grasp Ned Barron's intent, and Garrett Folsom's brain was anything but dumb.

"Where's Roger?" he asked, turning back to his own party, who were at his right hand.

"There he is," said Carmelita Valdov glancing admiringly at Neville, swimming with long clean strokes toward them. "I know you're just dying to swim away, Mr. Folsom. Go ahead, if you like. I'll stand guard over the Duchess."

A smile of gratitude thanked her for this, and Folsom let go the rope and swam into an oncoming wave.

But he quickly returned.

"It's too hard on me," he exclaimed, laughing, while he puffed and panted for breath. "I must get used to it by degrees. I'm not as well in condition as I ought to be."

She had saved his place on the rope for him, and he slipped in between her and Barron again.

"Who's this chap on my left?" he said to her. "Do you know?"

"I know him slightly, yes. He's a Mr. Barron, from New York. I think, or near New York. Why?"

"No reason at all. Idle curiosity. I thought I saw him at our hotel last evening."

"Yes, they're staying there. A party of several. Don't you think we better be getting along home now? I've had about enough."

"Yes, let's collect Neville and get out. Who-oo, Roger?"

But no one responded to his summons, and Mrs. Barnaby began to fret.

"Let's go on out, anyway," she said. "That's Roger all over. He always runs clear off, just when we want him most. Come, Mr. Folsom, help me to shore. I'll have to let go the rope, it's so full of bumps this morning. I never saw such a crowd on this beach before!"

"Oh, yes," Carmelita said, "often and often. But these days just before the Fourth of July bring extra hordes of people."

"Wonderful sight!" and once more Garrett Folsom gave himself over to admiring it. "I've bathed on nearly every beach in Europe, but none of them can touch this for magnitude."

"Not at all exclusive, though," and the Duchess gave a fastidious little sniff. "All sorts and conditions of men, I call it."

"That's part of its charm," laughed Folsom. "I like to rub shoulders with the proletariat, now and then. Especially when I can't tell them from patricians! And who can, in the ocean?"

Ocean Town was not exclusive. It held out welcoming arms to anybody and everybody who could pay his prices and would behave properly.

But as a spectacle, as an enigma, it invited attention, and with something of the lure of a crossword puzzle, it intrigued the imagination of those who saw it as a form of mental entertainment.

One man in particular never tired of watching the ocean showing from the coign of vantage which was his chosen resting spot.

The great Hotel Majusaca had, in common with its neighboring hostels, a large deck, as it was called, the same being an enormous veranda or platform extending partly over the boardwalk.

Strong the Family Praise!

Houston, Texas.—"I wish to say Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been a blessing to our family, especially in one daughter's case. She was in a serious condition with woman's weakness and just about past going when we decided to try one more remedy we had heard of—the Favorite Prescription. Well, a few bottles of this helped her so she has never had any more trouble of the kind. So it is no wonder that we have depended wholly upon this one remedy ever since for all our ailments."—Mrs. Emma Allen, 313 Hoxan St. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. MOTHERS NEED HELP AFTER STORK'S VISIT

Women are often robbed of the happiness Motherhood should bring, because of a weakened and run-down condition which often follows this wonderful event of bringing a new life into the world.

Nature foreseeing this, provided certain roots and herbs of peculiar strengthening properties, such as Blessed Thistle, Blue Cohosh Root, Squaw Vine, Life Root Plant, Helonias Root, Star Grass, Cramp Bark, etc., which the makers of St. Joseph's G. F. P. combined into a vegetable compound and which women and girls have been using for more than fifty years.

How successful G. F. P. is proving is best shown by the words of thousands of women and girls who are now coming out in public to praise it.

Mrs. Pearl Conn, of 7639 Avenue F., in Houston, Texas, says, "I started using G. F. P. right after my baby came and now I am as strong and healthy as I ever was. I wish every young Mother knew about St. Joseph's G. F. P."

Women have used St. Joseph's G.F.P. for over 50 years!

Riggs saw the guards carry from the crashing waves the helpless form of a man and lay their burden down on the beach.

always as it should be, and the adjustment of the sun's rays a counsel of perfection.

Year after year, the lovers of the place return with joy and leave with regret.

July opened auspiciously. Everything was in readiness for an enormous celebration of the national holiday, and those who could do so came a few days ahead of the crowds, to get, as it were, a running start.

The noonday sun shone down on hundreds of human hands in long straight rows, human fists, rather as each tightly clasped itself round the hard, thick rope, that shot its way far out into the ocean.

With many the sea bath consisted in a continuous frantic clutch on the life-line, while the more adventurous dared let go, and buffet the spent waves near the shore.

Others still, and these were the ones that turned gray the hair of the life guards, were possessed to swim far beyond their depths, and beyond all bounds of wisdom or safety. But the lure of the surf is a subtle spell and its danger seems negligible when the great waves call.

On the other side of the last laced frill of the combers, the beach groups sat about in utter bliss of contentment.

Here a family from an inner county of the state; there a small crowd from the middle west; yonder a gay bunch from New York City itself.

A quiet, sophisticated-looking group of five consisted of three men, a young woman and a girl.

The girl wore a modish swimming suit of wool jersey, flowered in quiet colors, with a rubberized silk bathing cap and hemp-soled sandals.

Her lithe eagerness proclaimed her a swimmer, and she was manifestly impatient to start.

The other woman, only slightly older, was garbed in an elaborate bathing costume of flowered crepe de chine, with a coquettish beret that fell over to one side of her curly bobbed hair. Clearly she had no intention of dampening her newly marcelled locks. Her frock was ruffled and sashed, and a smart beach cape of flowered silk fell from her shoulders.

Her lovely face was alight with fun, her eyes dancing with laughter when, suddenly catching sight of some men and women approaching, she gave a stifled, startled exclamation and swung the gay parasol she was holding round till it shielded her face.

"What's the matter, Maddy?" cried the girl by her side, "coy?"

"Sun in my eyes," was the reply, but when the parasol was again pushed aside, the dark eyes with their heavy brows, lacked all hint of laughter, and the red lips paled beneath their red, and called for a fresh application from the enameled vanity case she carried.

The oldest of the three men rose and shook himself like a big dog.

"Come on, people," he said; "what are we waiting for? I suppose, Robin, you and Angelica will take your life in your hands as usual."

"Yes, rather," and the girl in the swimming suit scrambled to her feet. "Today we're going way out—farther than ever before."

"Fools!" growled the older man. "I wouldn't mind, only it's so expensive to subsidize a guard to pay exclusive attention to you two idiots. Well, go to it."

They all rose then, the beautiful Madeline Barron, in her French costume, and her adoring husband, Ned Barron, the copper king.

The pretty girl, Angelica Fair, was her friend and guest, and the other two, father and son, were Croydon Sears and his boy, Robin.

But, about to start, Madeline was delayed by the appearance of her three-year-old daughter, with her nurse.

The baby was in bathing rompers and gleeful at the prospect of going in paddling. Both parents stopped and sat down on the sand again.

"Go ahead, you people," Barron sang out. "We'll come along in a minute. Want to play with Popsy?"

So the others went on, Robin and Angelica, who were expert swimmers, to brave the waves out to a daring distance, and Croydon Sears to stand at the rope and jump up and down until the Barrons joined him.

Another group on the beach that morning was keyed to a somewhat different pitch.

The dominating spirit was Carmelita Valdov, a beauty as exotic and alluring as her name.

Her beach pajamas were distinctly Parisian and a step or two ahead of American fashions.

But then Carmelita was a step or two ahead of most things and most people and her oriental costume and Japanese parasol made a picture that was as attractive as it was colorful.

Her woman companion made a perfect foil, for Mrs. Barnaby was fair, fat and forty, and dressed the part.

Also she was of great importance socially and possessed of a sharp tongue so her favorites fawned on her, while her enemies gave her a wide berth.

"Duchess," said Carmelita in languid accents, "Aren't you going in this morning?"

"Of course," returned Mrs. Barnaby, who bore the noble nickname. "Shall we toddle now?"

"No hurry," put in Garrett Folsom. "I only came yesterday you know. I want to look about a few minutes."

He was a big man, and his bathing costume of worsted shirt and trunks was becoming to him. The color was a silken gray, with three black stripes across the chest, and a white belt with black stripes.

Perhaps fifty, his hair was gray at the temples, but his face was unlined and his eyes clear and bright.

Deep set, dark eyes they were that had looked upon much of this world, for better and for worse, and whose shrewd appraisals were rarely at fault.

Now, he was observing the beach crowd, the young girls and women in their alluring costumes, and the men in their scarcely scantier garb.

"The bathing suits grow prettier every year," he said, with an appreciative glance at the passing throng, and then at the two women in his own party.

"Oh, come on," said Neville, the other member of their quartet, "you can look at them in the shop windows on the boardwalk later. I assure you, Garry, they have some stunning rigs on show."

"But perhaps it isn't only the garment that pleases the eye of Mr. Folsom," Carmelita Valdov suggested, wishing now she had worn a more décolleté effect than her chic pajama suit.

"Everything pleases me," he declared smiling, and nose, stretching himself luxuriously as he feasted his eyes on the gorgeous scene. "I haven't been down here for three years, and the place is renewing its charm for me. I always did revel in it. I only wish I could swim in the surf. Look at those chaps way out beyond the breakers! That's the stuff."

"Don't you swim?" asked the duchess. "I'm glad, for then you'll stay with us. I hate men who get me clutched to the rope and then say 'Excuse me a moment,' and the next thing you know they're out beyond the three-mile limit."

"Nothing like that!" Folsom smiled at her. "I can swim all day in still water, but not in the surf. Probably could, after a little practice—"

Students Must Repay Russia in Services to Land

By United Press.
MOSCOW.—Under a new decree, students who have been lavishly assisted from public funds in pursuit of their studies will henceforth have to repay the benefits in service. Trades unions and public treasuries have been used since the revolution to help students attend universities, mostly for specialized training in engineering, medicine, industrial management and agriculture. Students have also been favored in room rents, many paying only five cents a month for lodgings.

Now it has been decreed that students receiving public benefits must work at assigned tasks after graduation, and they will be sent to localities where the need for trained directors is great but to which capable persons do not normally choose to go.

Mongolia, Siberia, some islands of the White Sea, the Astrakhan steppes and the land near the Finnish border are districts to which agricultural and medical students will be sent, to serve one year for each year's help they received as students.

By United Press.
LONDON, Feb. 22.—Horace Lee Washington, American consul-general here and descendant of George Washington, recently presented the Sulgrave Manor board with an impression of Washington's seal.

The impression will be displayed at the Sulgrave Manor House—the home of the Washingtons here before they emigrated to America. The house is open to visitors and many American tourists visit it annually.

The recent report that the house would be torn down and taken to America in pieces to be set up there, is denied here.

"O. Henry" Held
Up as Model
For Prisoners

By United Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 22.—"O. Henry" was the pseudonym used by W. S. Porter after July 24, 1901, and it was under that name he won his reputation as one of the world's greatest short story writers.

But the pen name before July 24, 1901, was not a name but a number. From April 25, 1898, until 3 years and 4 months afterwards, W. S. Porter was known as Number 30664 in the Ohio penitentiary. He won all honors possible under his first name-plume.

The "O. P. News," the newspaper of Ohio Penitentiary holds up W. S. Porter as an example and a model to the 3229 convicts now incarcerated behind the gray walls of the prison, in a recent editorial.

The parole system, based upon the indefinite sentence law now in use was not in force at that time, and prisoners were given definite periods of imprisonment, with days deducted for good behavior.

O. Henry earned more than 600 days off for good behavior, in a little more than 3 years.

The prison paper also used O. Henry's later achievements in the world of letters as an example to the men in prison, suggesting that "a record" need not prevent them from attaining success.

O. Henry was 31 years old in April 1898, when he entered Ohio penitentiary. While in the penitentiary, Number 30664 was assigned to work in the pharmacy. Early training as a pharmacist enabled him to fill such a position.

Although biographers generally agree that O. Henry was not guilty that he was not even employed at the Austin, Texas, bank on one of the days upon which he was charged with embezzling $1,153, and that he was convicted largely because of his flight to South America, the "O. P. News" concerns itself but little over that possibility.

It only mentions that W. Sydney Porter "served time" behind the walls of Ohio Penitentiary, and left behind him a record that all prisoners would do well to emulate.

Telephone service to London is now available to every telephone in Ranger and Eastland. At 7:30 Thursday morning it was extended over a wide area in the middle west, according to Phillip Pettit, district manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, who sat in the directors room on the twenty-sixth floor of the Bell Telephone building in St. Louis, and spoke the first greeting to Col. H. E. Shreeve, London representative of the Bell System.

Following that conversation, Mr. Pettit said, "commercial calls were taken up in order in which they were filed and now every telephone in Ranger and Eastland, is a potential vehicle for communication with the British Isles."

Rates for three minute calls will be $24 and $28 will be charged for each additional minute. There will be a charge of $10 in case the telephone is reached but not the designated party. Calls will go through just as effectively as one to the next town. Operators will handle calls to London in the same manner as all long distance calls with the exception that when a request is received here, it will be passed to New York and filed with the Trans-Atlantic operators. Then it will take its turn with calls from other sections of the country.

"Ready on your call to London," will soon be the reply from the New York operator to the local operator and a conversation can be carried on with the greatest distinctiveness.

Scotch Dances Replace Jazz At Swiss Resort

By United Press. KANDERSTAG, Switzerland.—Charleston has given way to Scotch foursooms and eightsooms in Swiss sport centers.

A group of Scotsmen, attracted here by winter sports and curling, insisted on dancing the national Scottish steps and the entire foreign colony soon adopted the old dances.

Dancing teachers doubt, however, if the slow music of the Scottish reels can hold out long against the popular jazz.
