Bug Infestation Grows, Damage To Crops Minor

County Agent Gives Guideline For Action

Corn leaf aphid populations in grain sorghum have greatly increased over the area as a whole. Counties in which corn leaf aphids have been observed or reported to be heavy include Hale, Crosby, Flody, Lubbock, Bailey, Lamb and Hockley. Light to medium corn leaf aphids are reported from Terry, Lynn, Carson, and Deaf Smith counties. Greenbug populations remain relatively low and have not been observed or reported to be causing significant damage.

Insecticide applications are being made in some areas for corn leaf aphids and cornear worms or fall armyworms in the whorl. For this reason this insect report will be used to discuss in more detail the present insect situation in grain sorghum. A description of the pests involved, the damage they cause, and an explanation of the complexity of the situation relative to their control will be discussed.

Corn leaf aphids are common in grain sorghum each year. These insects are different from the greenbug both in appearance, habits and nature of damage. Corn leaf aphids are greenish blue in color. The wingless females are somewhat ovate in form and about 1/12 inch long. They have black legs and antennae. These insects reproduce by giving birth to living young which become adults in a few days. There are several generations annually.

Dr. Don R. Rummel commented, "The young and adults suck the plant juices, which frequently cause yellowish mottling on the leaves. Since corn leaf aphids feed primarily deep within the whorl of the middle leaf, some browning or reddening along the leaf edges and tips may be visible as the leaf emerges from the whorl. These insects do not inject toxins into the plant during feeding as does the greenbug. Honeydew, common with the greenbug, is also excreted by the corn leaf aphids.

"Even though corn leaf aphids often appear to severely affect sorghum plants, research conducted on this insect on the High Plains has not shown an increase in yield following insecticide application. Poor control is often obtained, and this is generally attributed to the fact that these aphids feed primarily deep within the whorl where they are protected from insecticides. Research data have shown that even when corn leaf aphid populations were significantly reduced by insecticides, there were no increases in yields.

"Corn leaf aphid infestations are usually heaviest during the preboot stage, but generally decline rapidly during the boot stage.

"Careful consideration of all the factors that might be affected should be made before controls are initiated for corn leaf aphids. Attempting control of corn leaf aphids may result in more serious problems later in the season. This statement is based on the following reasoning. Corn leaf aphids serve as an excellent food source for beneficial insects and allow for early development of predators and parasites. Once a field is completely eliminated of its beneficial insect population it is subject to rapid buildup of other pests with no means of defense other than additional insecticide applications. Controls initiated early for corn leaf aphids allow greenbugs to build rapidly with no beneficial insects to suppress them; consequently additional insecticide applications may be required. Based on the past observations, buildups of secondary pests, such as the Banks grass mite and cornear worms in sorghum heads, have most often occurred in fields of grain sorghum which received more than one application of insecticide."

He also explained: "Greenbugs are also aphids, but are light green or yellowish in color. Usually they have a dark stripe

Rodeo Fans Flock To Earth Contest

The small community of Earth, 18 miles east of Muleshoe, was bulging at the seams this weekend for the 27th annual Amateur Rodeo, sponsored by the Earth Roping Club. Earth's normal population of slightly more than 1,000 persons suddenly became approximately quadrupled as rodeo fans poured into the community for the popular rodeo, parade and barbecue.

Cars, horse trailers and people began to pack the small town shortly before 5 p.m. preparing for the parade to get underway. A number of riding clubs entered the parade, as well as floats centered around the theme for 1971 "Agriculture and Water." Convertibles, beauties and bicycles specially decorated for the parade were also noted moving into place to begin the parade down the main highway in Earth. The parade began at the east city limits of the town and moved west to the rodeo grounds just west to the city limits with the parade route packed with enthusiastic fans who braved the heat to watch.

Immediately following the parade, long lines formed at the show barns on the rodeo grounds where the Earth Lions prepared to serve a free barbecue to several hundred persons who had purchased a ticket to the first night of the rodeo.

Preparing the barbecue were Gene Templeton, Tub Angeley and Glenn Vining, who reportedly worked many hours preparing the several hundred pounds of beef served the large crowd.

Outside the show barn, another crowd gathered at a dunking board and tank of water where "The Earthquakes" a community choir from Earth, were sponsoring a chance to dump three Earth residents to raise money. Sitting on the dunking board and hopeful of being left intact (and dry) were Rev. David Hartman, Rev. Charles Dammann and Ricky Knox, who volunteered for the chore of being dunking board sitters. They all got wet ---- several times, as enthusiastic youngsters paid their quarter for three chances to dump the sitters into the water.

The 14 rodeo queen contestants were introduced to begin the rodeo and the queen was announced, Pat Cleavinger was named queen. She is the 15 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Cleavinger and a sophomore in the Springlake-Earth High School. The new queen was sponsored by Pounds Pharmacy.

First runner-up for the honor went to Jo Ann Coker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Coker and second runner-up was Melissa Been, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Been.

Other contestants included, Suzy Temple, Gay Ellis, Phyllis Smith, Lesa Morgan, Marilyn Eagle, Renay James, Sheila Lewis, Lisa Clayton, Becky Smith, Denise Temple and Jennifer Templeton.

Winner of the Pony Relay Race held during the first night of the rodeo was the Tullia team. They were narrowly edged out in the first of three races by the Earth riders, but came back to win a squeaker on the second race and by a good margin in the third to take the series.

Declared winner in the riding club senior division was the Lamb County Sheriff's Posse; Cochran County Sheriff's Posse, second and the Bovina Roping Club, third. The Y-L Saddle Tramps won the junior riding club division, with honorable mentions going to Hart and Plainview riding clubs.

Melissa Been. The queen and runners-up were presented gifts of buckles and flowers for their titles. Other contestants were Jennifer Templeton, Sheila Lewis, Gay Ellis, Renay James, Denise Temple, Phyllis Smith, Suzy Temple, Lisa Clayton, Becky Smith, Lesa Morgan and Marilyn Eagle.

Red Raider Day Termed Successful

A delegation of around 25 men from Lubbock were led into Muleshoe Wednesday morning by Burl Huffman, J. T. King, Polk Robinson and Leeete Jackson, to officially begin Red Raider Day in Muleshoe.

After being officially greeted at the Mule Memorial site around 11 a.m., the Lubbock group visited downtown stores, coffee shops and businesses until noon.

During a noon luncheon, jointly hosted by the Lions, Rotary and Jaycees, Huffman spoke to the group about sports, and the part athletics play in a person's life. He emphasized God, country, school and self during his talk.

In the afternoon, approximately 50 golfers teed off at the

Girlstown To Play Host For 25th Anniversary

Girlstown, U. S. A., located nine miles south of Whiteface, will celebrate its twenty-second anniversary with an Open House and Barbecue, Sunday, July 11. Girlstown moved to the Whiteface location in July of 1949, after a beginning at Buffalo Gap.

Over 1,000 girls from infancy to maturity have made Girlstown their home. Many of the former residents will be returning to the campus for a reunion with their "family" members.

Expansion of the home's facilities include a campus now at Berger and Austin. A total of 130 girls can now be cared for by Girlstown's three campuses. The girls from Berger and Austin will travel to the Whiteface location for this annual event.

Located on farm land nine miles south of Whiteface on Farm-Market 1780, the home provides a rural home-like setting for girls from throughout the United States, said home manager, Marshall Cooper.

An Old-Fashioned West Texas Bar-B-Que will climax the day's activities. Tours of the facility will begin at two p.m. and at 3:30 p.m. Bar-B-Que tickets are being sold for one dollar. The rest of the activities are free.

At 3:30, the new Miss Girlstown will be selected. Candidates are Sundai Ford, Beaumont; Shanna Holland, Pampa; Kathy Stull, Cisco; Debarh Kildow, Monahans and Dawn Bowman, Baltimore, Maryland.

Farm Bureau Secretary Back From Workshop

Nellyne Morris, office secretary for the Bailey County Farm Bureau, attended an area discussion meeting June 30-July 1 at the Holiday Inn Parkway in Lubbock.

The workshop-type conference was one of four held across the state by the Texas Farm Bureau, said Mrs. Morris. She added that the purpose was to provide county secretaries and state Farm Bureau office personnel an opportunity to discuss ways and means of improving office procedures at both levels.

In addition, the office secretaries heard lectures and viewed a slide film on the history and purpose of Farm Bureau. Concluding speaker on the program was TFB Executive Director O. R. Long who reviewed the overall organization structure and outlined opportunities for office secretaries.

Mrs. Creola Wobbe, Waco, TFB assistant secretary, discussed general office procedures and the processing of membership transmittals. J. D. Jordan, Mason, TFB field services department discussed finances, board agendas and reports, and screening mail.

Millard Shivers of Dallas, director of rural development for Blue Cross/Blue Shield, spoke at a banquet meeting and conducted a discussion on group medical care programs. Some 198 county Farm Bureaus sponsor Blue Cross/Blue Shield groups for their members, commented Mrs. Morris.

Other sessions included a discussion of county Farm Bureau newsletters and other expanded program activities such as commodity activities, marketing programs, and group accidental death insurance.

WELCOME TO MULESHOE--Muleshoe Mayor Irvin St. Clair, left, greeted Burl Huffman of the Red Raider staff of Texas Tech University to Muleshoe last Wednesday when approximately 25 persons representing the Red Raiders visited Muleshoe for the annual Red Raider Day. Huffman was noon speaker at a luncheon held in honor of the guests.

FIRST PLACE FLOAT FOR EARTH RODEO PARADE--This float, entered by the Earth Roping Club was first place winner in the float division of the parade which officially kicked off the three days of rodeo action in Earth this week. The theme of the float division was "Agriculture and Water" and judges decided the Roping Club was the most original and carried out the theme. Second place was the Earth Rainbow Club float and the third place float was entered by the Springlake Co-op Gin.

down their back. Their legs are green except for the tips which are black. Greenbugs give birth to living young, and all offspring are females. Newly-born greenbugs begin reproduction in about seven days. One female can produce about 80 offspring during a 25-day reproduction period. Greenbugs thus can develop enormous populations in a short time.

"Greenbugs suck plant juices as well as inject toxins into the plant during the feeding process. Greenbug infestations in sorghum are detected by reddish spots on the leaves caused by small greenbug colony feeding on the underside of a leaf. The reddened leaf areas enlarge as greenbugs increase. Finally, the leaf begins to die, turning brown from the outer edges toward the center.

"Due to the nature of damage caused by greenbugs, heavy populations may result in yield loss. However, experience and research data have shown that greenbugs can effectively be controlled with available insecticides. Decisions to apply control should be based on field inspections so that chemicals are applied only when necessary. When greenbug populations begin to increase, predators are generally abundant due to their buildup on corn leaf aphids. Maximum benefit should be taken of these beneficial insects. If insecticides are needed, proper timing of the application is very important in order to avoid multiple applications. More than one application of insecticide for greenbugs may result in a buildup of Banks grass mite or bollworms as discussed previously."

"Cornear worms and fall armyworms cause similar damage to sorghum plants, and are generally present to some degree each year. Fall armyworms appear to be the most common of the two this year. A fully grown fall armyworm is about 1 1/3 inches long and varies from light green to almost black. The front of the head is marked with an inverted Y that is usually prominent. The larva has three yellowish-white lines down the back from the head to the tail: on each side next to each outer dorsal line is a wider dark stripe below which is an equally wide, wavy, yellow stripe, spotted with red," added the entomologist.

"Both the cornear worm and the fall armyworm are pests of many crops and feed on different areas of different plants. On sorghum they are known as "budworms or whorlworms" because they feed within the whorl of the sorghum plants. The unfolding leaves from the whorl are perforated and ragged in appearance. Actually, most of the damage has already occurred before it is visible because the insects have fed on the leaves while they were still deep within the whorl.

"These insects usually are not considered of economic importance and research data have shown that yields were not increased following the application of sprays. Difficulty in control may result from the fact that the larvae feed deep within the whorl of the plant and are protected from insecticides."

Banks grass mites have not been reported in any significant numbers in grain sorghum this year. However, fairly large populations of this pest have been observed on corn, according to the entomologist report.

Mite damage to grain sorghum appears as discoloration, drying and premature death of the leaves. Subsequent lodging has also been observed. In 1970, mite populations, though generally distributed throughout most of the High Plains area, were confined to "hot-spots" in a few localized areas.

This mite has developed resistance to insecticides in the Trans-Pecos area and there is due concern about this pest on the High Plains. Relative to the Banks grass mite, of greatest concern is the development of resistance to insecticides for corn leaf aphid and greenbugs have greatly intensified the mite problem. Mite populations last year were particularly heavy in fields which received more than one application of insecticide.

The bollworm will sometimes attack the heads of grain sorghum. These larvae feed on the developing seed. Generally a large amount of excrement and frass is found in heads infested with these larvae.

Damaging infestations of cornear worms are erratic and in the past have created problems only in localized areas. Like damaging populations of Banks grass mites, cornear worms have appeared to be most severe in grain sorghum which received multiple applications of insecticides for aphid control.

Light thrips infestations are reported from Lynn, Floyd, Lubbock, Bailey, Hockley and Terry counties. Thrips infestations are light to medium in Hale County.

Fleahopper populations are very light over the area as a whole. Counties reporting indicate very low fleahopper numbers even in old cotton.

No weevils have been detected above the Caprock. A few adult weevils have been found in the earliest planted cotton in Kent County and in older cotton in Stonewall and Haskell counties.

Forward-looking workers are now making plans for their summer vacations.

Club personnel and judges were introduced following the grand entry.

Winners in the float division of the parade were Earth Roping Club, first; Earth Rainbow Girls, second and Springlake Co-op Gin, third.

Action and spills marked the first night of the annual rodeo, with the bucking stock, broncs and bulls, probably coming out on top in most cases. It was a night of action plus which seemed to please the more than 2000 persons at the rodeo.

Group lessons for junior golfers are continuing at the Muleshoe Country Club. The lessons begin at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, July 13 and Thursday July 15. Boys or Girls wishing to take the lessons are asked to contact the Pro Shop to register.

pl-around muleshoe Very little activity was recorded in the local law enforcement offices over the holiday weekend. The Texas Highway Patrol logged three persons for drunk and one person for driving while intoxicated.

City police handled several fireworks violations but no charges were filed.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Pool and Mike traveled to Kingsland over the Fourth of July weekend to return their three year old grandson, Ronny Blevins, who has been visiting for the past six weeks with them, to his mother, Cynthia Blevins. They were met there by another daughter, Sylvia.

While there they attended the Aquaboom Fourth of July Celebration. During their visit, Mrs. Pool reported that they ran into quite a few Muleshoe people at the lake including the Tom Berrys, Carl Bamerts, Bert Mathis' and B. R. Putmans. They visited friends on Inks Lake and came back home through Seminole where they visited with their son Roger and his family.

House-keeping is a lot of work for the women who actually keep house.

WASHINGTON NEWS REPORT

The Pentagon Papers-Stealing Secrets-Printing Secrets-Historic Turning Point!

Washington, D.C.--It may be that the New York Times and Washington Post, and other papers which helped them, have finally pushed the federal government and the courts too far, and that the 1971 test of the power of the press will clarify just where freedom of the press ends.

Just as freedom of speech does not include the right to shout, "Fire!" in a crowded theater, freedom of the press doesn't include the right to steal secret government documents or encourage such theft by printing them, without allowing the government to know what is going on.

Freedom of the press doesn't include--though the two most powerful newspapers in the country would make many think so--the right of the editors of those newspapers to decide on questions of national security and violate laws as they see fit. The truth is that reporters and others on these newspapers could be found guilty of serious violations of law and receive jail sentences. And it might take a few examples of this kind to restore sanity among those editors who now feel they can do as they please regardless of the people's government and that there is no power which can restrain them.

President Lyndon Johnson believes the action of recent days is close to treason, according to reports, and also believes the documents in question have a political flavor, were written in part to give the late Robert Kennedy ammunition with which to run against Johnson--when it appeared that the two might be opponents.

The Times and Post have struggled mightily, with editorials, columnists and all they can influence in the news media field, to convince the nation that their printing of secret information was a fine act, in the tradition of a free press.

But they have more likely pushed things so far that clear limits will soon be established as to press liability. In the nuclear age, it is unrealistic to trust the national security and national secrets to the discretion of newspaper editors all over the country, who see as their role the right to publish anything they please.

In World War II one newspaper went so far as to publish the news that the nation had broken the secret Japanese naval code, at a time when the enemy wasn't aware of this vital information. An editor made a mistake--and it might have cost many American lives.

Governments must be enabled to carry on negotiations with representatives of other governments in the secure knowledge that all they say will not appear in print, if anyone can possibly steal the records. Otherwise the U.S. press will degenerate into sensationalism.

In the current case, the two giant newspapers originally involved appear to have circumvented government efforts and those of some courts, as certain classified information appeared in other publications after they were restrained.

A wise man's country is that one where he is happiest. -Italian Proverb.

GI Addicts

President Nixon's latest effort in the war on drugs is represented in a military decision to require addicted soldiers to spend three weeks in West Coast rehabilitation centers on their return to the United States from Vietnam.

To learn which soldiers are addicted to heroin, the major serious abuse among soldiers in Vietnam, the Army has rushed special testing machines to Vietnam. It is hoped that by the 15th every soldier departing for the United States will be tested. The 250,000 Americans remaining in South Vietnam have been told the test will be required before they depart. The machines, urinalysis devices capable of testing a thousand people daily, will tell medical officers which G.I.'s and officers are addicts and they will be required to report to rehabilitation centers in America upon their return.

The program is not only in the best interest of the soldiers but in the national interest and should also do much to discourage unaddicted Americans remaining in Vietnam from beginning the drug habit.

4-H'ers Have Fun Creating A Place of Their Own

SPECIAL - Today's youth take pride in doing their own thing. And pride mixes with pleasure when they have a place of their own, a spot where they can play records, meet their friends or hang a groovy poster. Helping young people create a space of their own is the national 4-H home improvement program. Supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service and sponsored by The S&H Foundation, Inc., 4-H members in the program plan and carry out numerous projects and activities. They learn the principles of good design, value and use of color and proportion. And the 4-H members, both boys and girls, learn useful skills as they paint, hang wallpaper, build and complete scores of jobs like those done by Peggy Lindsey, 19, of Laurel, Miss.

A 1970 national 4-H home improvement winner, she recovered chairs, refinished furniture, painted pictures, arranged flowers and selected new furnishings over an eight-year period. Recently, Miss Lindsey also completed a three-month interior decorator course prompted by her 4-H home improvement interests. And the 4-H members may not be limited to improvements only at home. Dixon Chang of Honolulu, Hawaii, also a 1970 national winner, led his 4-H Club in redecorating and refurbishing a church lounge area. Young Chang, Miss Lindsey and hundreds of other 4-H home improvers share their skills, knowledge and leadership with other 4-H members, neighbors and friends.

Humor is a rare gift. If you can laugh at the world and at yourself you are lucky.

Narrow-Row Cotton Uses Water Efficiently

LUBBOCK--Studies on the utilization of soil water show that cotton planted in narrow rows is the most efficient.

Yields from field tests at the Deltapine Farm east of Lubbock point to a significant difference between row spacings, reports Dr. Charles Wendt, associate professor at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center who conducted the study. Cotton drilled in 10-inch spacings yielded 928 pounds of lint per acre compared to 687 pounds for double-row and 454 pounds for single row cotton on a 40-inch bed.

Varieties planted on the Amarillo fine sandy loam soil for the 1970 tests included Deltapine 16, Paymaster Dwarf, Rilcol 90, Deltapine Experimental Strain 6311-46652 and Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Experimental Strains CA-971-86-3 and CA-491-69-1. All were planted on May 15 and 16 on 40-inch beds with spacings of single rows, double rows and four rows 10 inches apart.

According to Wendt, the cotton was irrigated on July 15 and August 7 and received no appreciable precipitation during the growing season. Soil water extraction by the crop was determined with a neutron probe during the periods July 18-August 4 and August 11-September 4.

In general, the amount of soil water used increased as row spacings increased, points out Wendt. However, the amount of water in the soil was also higher as row spacings increased since there was some difficulty in irrigating the drilled cotton. There was no difference in the ability of the different varieties to obtain water from down to four feet in the soil.

The various varieties and strains showed little difference in the amount of soil water extracted in a particular row spacing with the exception of the two Experiment Station strains. Less water was extracted by these "CA" varieties in the drilled rows, Wendt says this was due to differences in plant populations. The other varieties and strains had populations greater than 200,000 plants per acre. Although all seeding rates were the same, the poor seed quality of the "CA" varieties accounted for the smaller populations.

The one-year study shows that cotton planted in close row spacings can use water throughout a four-foot deep soil profile, points out Wendt. The crop can extract four to four-and-a-half inches of water from a saturated soil profile. If irrigation water is available, current varieties can be grown in narrow rows to increase yields without affecting fiber properties.

South Plains Fair Enlarges Premiums

LUBBOCK--Catalogs listing more than $38,000 in cash premiums for the 54th annual edition of the Panhandle South Plains Fair are now being distributed.

Steve L. Lewis, manager, said about 4,500 copies of the catalog, slightly larger this year, are being mailed to prospective exhibitors, superintendents and others.

The fair is slated Sept. 27-Oct. 2 this year.

The bulk of the premiums are earmarked for the open livestock show, which is expected to draw record numbers this year. A total of $21,777 is being offered in the swine show, which is expected to draw show and Angus, Milking Shorthorn, Jersey, Holstein and Brown Swiss cattle divisions.

In addition, $3,100 is tabbed for the junior livestock show, including premiums for breeding pigs, Brown Swiss, Holstein, Jersey, Milking Shorthorn, Hereford and Angus cattle judging.

A quarter horse show is offering $2,350 and $990 is pegged for the Appaloosa horse show. In addition, an open horse show also will be presented during the weeklong fair run.

Exhibitors in the rabbit show will be competing for nearly $2,000 in premiums and $4,127.50 is being offered in the ever-popular women's division. Agriculture exhibitors may pick up as much as $1,668.50, while a total of $2,075 is earmarked for other fair events, including $1,250 for the big parade of bands.

Lewis said that persons interested in obtaining copies may stop at the fair office on the fairgrounds or request them by mail by writing to the Fair Association at P. O. Box 208, Lubbock, Texas 79408.

Special days for city and area students, college students, military personnel and others are being planned again this year.

Tennessee Ernie Ford, who set and still holds the box office record for a weeklong engagement at the fair, returns to headline the Fair Park Coliseum slates this year. He will be presented on the first three days of the fair.

On Thursday, an all-star Mexican variety show featuring songstress Luch Villa and recording star Jose Alfredo Jimenez and the Guadalajaras, will be in the spotlight.

On Friday and Saturday, Merle Haggard, who has climbed to the top in the country and western music field, will appear along with his wife, Bonnie Owens, and The Strangers.

A free attraction--the daredevil Sky Kings, who perform on sway poles--has been scheduled at 5:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. daily.

Ticket purchases prior to the fair opening will be accompanied by free gate admission passes.

Mail order requests now are being accepted by the Fair Association.

Lamb County Farm Checks Go In Mail

A few government checks to farmers went into the mail last week, but Lamb County ASCS officials said only about 20 percent of the county's farmers had certified so far this year.

Tuesday, July 6, was the final date to request prevented planting history credit on dryland farms that cannot be planted to grain sorghum due to the drought.

Certifying is slow this year due to the added questions. Less than one month remains for producers to certify. It takes 21 days to get the checks back and into the farmers' hands after certifying is completed.

August 2 is the final date to certify cotton, feed grain and set-aside acreages. Failure to measure and report exact acreages can result in loss of part or all of the price-support payment. Acreages reported must be acreages present at the time of certification and not what producers intend to have after additional plantings or adjustments. Farms are subject to spotchecks immediately after the certification is filed.

According to a survey made by Plains Cotton Growers, Lamb County now has an estimated 175,000 acres in cotton. The 1971 final paying base is on 144,291 acres. Standing acres for the county on September 1, 1970, measured 162,000 acres. The new cotton program in effect for 1971 imposes no limit on acreage farmers can plant above their allotments.

Something over a third of this year's cotton is planted on dryland farms and the conditions of these crops is highly erratic. Parts of the dryland areas are said to have fairly uniform crops with sufficient moisture to hold them until late July or even later. But many dryland farmers report that they will have to have rain soon or they will be gone.

Generally speaking, irrigated crops are in good condition, giving rise to hopes for average to above average yields. Extension of the livestock feed program and the Hay Transportation Assistance Program has been granted through September 30.

Haying and grazing set-aside acreage has been extended to November 1. Haying and Grazing Cropland Adjustment Program acreage has been extended to September 30. Irrigated set-aside or CAP acreages as well as dryland can be grazed or hayed without a charge. Producers that have paid for haying or grazing irrigated

A Potential Cattle Feed

COLLEGE STATION --

Broiler litter may someday be a valuable feed ingredient for wintering beef cattle on many farms in East Texas according to results of a Texas Agricultural Extension Service study in Shelby County.

In a nutrient recycling study, 14 crossbred heifers were put on a 136 day drylot program that began November 27, 1970 and ended April 13, 1971. The heifers averaged 364 pounds initially and averaged 528.5 pounds per head at the end of the study.

Average daily gain on the maintenance type ration was 1.21 pounds on 8.67 pounds of feed while the total average gain of the heifers was 164.7

Obituaries Jerry Milburn John W. Dyck

The initial ration consisted of 1460 pounds of broiler litter, 440 pounds of ground milo and 100 pounds of molasses plus one pound of vitamin A supplement. This ration was not readily consumed by the heifers until 25 additional pounds of molasses was added. Besides the basic ration, 130 bales of hay and salt and minerals were fed free choice.

Total feed cost for maintenance was 17.57 cents per head per day while feed cost per pound of gain was 14.5 cents. The heifers were wormed at the beginning of the study and appeared in excellent condition when turned on spring pasture. No sickness of any type was apparent during the feeding period.

The study was supervised by Fredrick Thornberry, area Extension poultry specialist, Randall Grooms, Extension livestock specialist, and Rex Youngblood, Shelby County agent.

Graveside services for Jerry Ronald Milburn, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Milburn, 1818 W. Ave. E, were held at 10:30 a.m. Friday, July 9 at Babyland in Bailey County Memorial Park.

Services were conducted by Rev. Doug Dubose, minister of the First Baptist Church of Muleshoe. Funeral directions were by Singleton-Ellis Funeral Home.

Jerry Ronald Milburn was stillborn at 11:46 a.m. Wednesday, July 7, at South Plains Hospital, Amherst.

Survivors other than his parents include grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Williams, Muleshoe and Mrs. Margie Milburn, Brownfield; great-grandparents, Mrs. Myrtle Williams, Muleshoe; S. M. Fowler, Brownfield and Mrs. Annie Milburn, Pasadena (Tex.).

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

The first official effort to assess 1971 cotton acreage in the 25 High Plains counties places "standing or planted acreage with a good chance for emergence" at 2,293,000. This compares with an estimated 2,147,200 standing acres in the same area on September 1 last year, and is the largest acreage in cotton on the Plains since 1962 when almost 2.4 million acres were devoted to the fiber crop.

The estimate was jointly compiled by the Lubbock Cotton Exchange and Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., using information gleaned from county agents, county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office managers and others close to the cotton scene in individual counties. Farmers are not required to certify the acreage planted to various crops until August 1, so LCE and PCG officials agree there is room for error in their July 1 estimate.

Early this year estimates of "potential" cotton acres on the Plains, based on the assumption of seldom-seen but always-hoped-for ideal weather conditions, ran as high as 2.7 million. But wind, hail and lack of moisture made it impossible to reach this potential.

The "paying base" allotment for the 25 counties, adjusted upward to include a net 187,973 acres brought in through leases and purchases of allotments, total 1,818,195 acres. But, contrary to previous years, the new cotton program in effect for 1971 imposes no limit on acreage farmers can plant above their allotments.

Something over a third of this year's cotton is planted on dryland farms and the condition of these crops is highly erratic. Parts of the dryland areas are said to have fairly uniform crops with sufficient moisture to hold them until late July or even later. But many dryland farmers report "We'll have to average yields. The county by county list below shows standing acres on September 1, 1970, the 1971 paying base allotments and estimated acreage in cotton on July 1 this year.

THAT LOOKS GOOD--The hungry member of the Lamb County Sheriff's Posse watches as he is served barbecue at the free feed following the parade and preceding the first night of the annual rodeo at Earth. Several hundred pounds of barbecue were served in the show barns at the Roping Arena west of Earth.

Better Cotton Yield Meetings Scheduled

LUBBOCK, Tex.--The first of two meetings of the Texas Cotton Task Force established to work on the Better Cotton Yield Campaign for 1971 will be held here July 8.

Donnell Echols of Lamesa and Dr. J. E. Hutchison of Texas A&M University, state co-chairmen, announced that the meeting in Lubbock will be held at the Plains Co-op Oil Mill beginning at 2 p.m.

A second meeting will be held July 9 in Dallas at the Baker Hotel beginning at 10 a.m.

The campaign goal is to increase yields and grower profits and obtain the cotton needed to meet market demands at home and abroad. It is being coordinated by the National Cotton Council and the Extension Service. Industry-government task forces which will extend the drive into each cotton-producing county have been established in 14 states. "Members of these task forces will play an important role in keeping growers informed on making top yields and profits from cotton this year," Echols said. "There have been questions as to whether there can be an adequate supply produced this year, but we have the capabilities to assist the growers in a better, more profitable yield effort."

The outlook for cotton, supply and demand, and practices which might increase production will be discussed at the Texas meetings.
