EXPLOSION ON BOARD MOTOR BOAT, GETS 2

Several Children Are Among the Victims Of Independence Feasts

By United Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 5.—Two dead and one injured was the total Fourth of July victims in Kansas City.
Vincent Nausedas, 50 years old, was drowned in a lake after his head struck a rock when he dived in shallow water.
Cecil Johnson, 19 years old, died presumably of heart disease while riding on the scenic railway at an amusement park. Johnson fainted shortly after the car started and was dead when taken off it, witnesses said.
Carl Stevens, 14 years old, was burned on the arm when a cap pistol exploded.

TWO ARE KILLED SEVERAL INJURED

By United Press.
AVALON, Catalina Islands, Calif., July 5.—The motor cruiser Una C, blew up in Avalon bay last night killing two of the party on board and fatally injuring another.
The vessel was owned by G. H. Chassee of Pasadena, a wealthy chain store owner.
Those dead are Mrs. L. Tyler of Altadena and Virginia Riggins, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Riggins of Pasadena. Herbert Riggins, the dead child's brother, is not expected to live. Nine others aboard the cruiser were severely injured.

BULGARIA FLOODSTAKE HEAVY TOLL

By United Press.
SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 5.—Railroad bridges and crops in the Struma Valley were ruined today by the flood of the River Struma which inundated the valley for almost its entire length of 150 miles. Thousands of head of cattle were drowned and railway traffic throughout Southern Bulgaria interrupted. In some places, whole sections of railroad tracks were swept away.

Eastward of Sofia, twelve towns were cut off of railway, telegraph and telephone communications. In the north several persons were reported drowned.

Not only is the entire region around Sofia suffering, but other sections as well. The region of the Danube also is underwater. The recent heavy rains and earth tremors have spread devastation throughout the Balkans. Rumania is suffering as well as Bulgaria.

The American Red Cross and other similar agencies are rendering all the possible in the stricken areas.

EUROPE NOW COUNTING UP COST OF FLOODS

By United Press.
LONDON, England, July 5.—Europe today began to count the cost of a fortnight of floods, while heavy rainfall still was reported throughout Europe and Asia.

Cloudbursts continued in Budapest, where it has rained every day for four weeks. In Svolno, Hungary, the rain weary and flood flayed inhabitants have petitioned the government to order all radio aereals taken down on the chance that they may in some way be responsible for the unwelcome condition.

JUAREZ HOTELS FILLED WITH TEXAS VISITORS

By United Press.
EL PASO, July 5.—Eight hundred visitors to Juarez were forced to spend the night last night in the Mexican border city, when they were "caught over" by the 9 o'clock curfew, closing of the international bridge.
Most of them were excursionists from Dallas and Fort Worth. With Juarez hotels over-filled, cafes and restaurants stayed open all night in order to give visitors an opportunity to sleep on or under the tables.

CISCO BATHING REVIEW DRAWS RECORD CROWD

Few Accidents Are Reported; Baseball Games Big Attraction

The bathing girls revue at Cisco, baseball games at Ranger and Breckenridge, the rodeo at Caddo and picnics galore, to say nothing of various sundry fishing parties coupled with the midnight German at the Country Club of Ranger furnished amusements for the oilbelt folks who did not go to Dallas, Fort Worth, Galveston or El Paso.

Some few fireworks were used Sunday evening and so far as known there were no casualties. On the whole it was a safe and sane Fourth for the Oil Belt towns. According to advices received from Cisco, there was an overflow crowd at the big dam to witness the parade of West Texas beauties. Every town in Eastland and adjacent counties sent large delegations to the revue, and practically every town, village and community had a contestant in the parade.

It was one of the greatest events ever pulled off in Eastland county, and rivalled the one held annually at Fort Worth, Galveston and other points.

The baseball game between the Eastland Tigers and Ranger Magnois drew a large crowd for the county seat to Ranger.

The Tigers hope to claw the Magnois into shreds for the various and sundry early in the season.

With the exception of a few arrests for reckless driving due to drinking heavily of spirits, rum, red lemonade, grape juice and other liquids, the police in Ranger and Eastland had an easy day of it.

Ranger sent a good delegation over to Caddo to the rodeo, which was one of the best ever held in this section of the state.

The business houses, banks and other public institutions closed for the day as it usually the custom.

Sailor Ponzi Caught

Charles Ponzi, get-rich-quick genius of Boston and Florida, is under arrest again after an unsuccessful attempt to flee the country on a steamer. This picture shows him in the center, with Sheriff T. A. Binford of Houston, Tex., at the left and Officer George Lacy, his captor, at the right. His capture was brought about by Lacy and Webb C. Artz, managing editor of the Houston Press. To disguise himself Ponzi shaved the top of his head and plucked out many of his bushy eyebrows.

ANNIVERSARY DEATH OF HUSS MAKES RELATIONS CRITICAL BETWEEN PRAGUE AND VATICAN

By United Press.
PRAGUE, July 5.—Throughout tomorrow's nation-wide commemoration of the anniversary of John Huss's death, nothing will be left undone by the authorities to prevent anti-Catholic demonstrations which might lead to a revival of the grave conflict between Czechoslovakia and the Vatican.

Although several million citizens throughout the country will participate in these celebrations, it is hoped to avoid incidents which renew the Holy See's disfavor.

It is more than a year since the Czechoslovakian Government decided to proclaim the death-anniversary of John Huss a national holiday. The Vatican, indignant at this tribute to the forerunner of Protestantism, promptly recalled the papal nuncio, Marmaggi, from Prague.

The Czechoslovakian Government, considering the Vatican's attitude as improper interference in the domestic affairs of the country and as an affront to the national hero, recalled the Czechoslovakian envoy, Pallier, from the Vatican.

Cummins Defeat Depresses Talent And Causes Woe

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—No funeral ever was more depressing than the session of the United States senate immediately following receipt of the news that Senator Albert B. Cummins had been beaten for renomination by Smith W. Brookhart, out in Iowa.

Not that there wasn't a lot of secret rejoicing over the Coolidge administration's bereavement, but everybody was so sorry, personally, for Senator Cummins.

The latter accepted his political demise gamely, but all his fellow senators knew how it must have hurt him. After 18 years as one of the biggest men in the upper house of congress, to be shoved under so unceremoniously!

Cummins always has been very popular in the senate, as it proved by picking him for his presiding officer during President Coolidge's fractional first term in the white house, when there was no regularly elected vice president.

He's a kindly, considerate man and as scrupulously fair and polite toward the opposition as with those of his own party.

From both sides of the senate chamber he was showered with words of sympathy. Members of the progressive bloc were especially warm in expressions of their personal regret at his defeat, though for them, of course, Brookhart's success was a victory.

Virgil Foster, deputy sheriff, gathered in 700 bottles of beer Saturday night when he raided a cold drink four miles north of Rising Star where he also arrested the proprietor who later appeared before justice of peace Tom Deans and was fined.

Foster also picked up a still in the bush near the stand. This was brought to Eastland where it was placed with other stills in the county jail.

Hoot Mon!

This is Marjorie Adamson, aged 3, who has won seven medals, no less, for her sword dancing and bagpiping. She lives in Boston, Mass., and is a popular figure at civic celebrations.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION; MONTICELLO

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, July 5.—A "feel-er" proposal that the 1928 democratic convention be held at Monticello, Va., home of Thomas Jefferson was made today by Clem Shaver, chairman of the party's national committee in a letter to the democratic women's league of San Joaquin county, California.

Shaver's letter said only that he "wished it were possible to hold the gathering at Jefferson's old home to give inspiration to our party and country as well."

Monticello is regarded as being unable to handle the housing and lodging system incidental to as large a gathering as this is expected to be.

Chicago, St. Louis, Denver and Baltimore are understood to be under consideration for the convention.

A large number of the leaders seem to favor Baltimore, although St. Louis is not without its backers. Because of the victory of Wilson after the Baltimore convention, it may be carried there. However, now, since Missouri is somewhat doubtful, it may be taken to St. Louis.

In the meantime Denver is going to be a strong bidder and will make strenuous efforts to land it.

Chicago also is in the running, because it is the general belief that a national convention in Chicago with the trend of events, and the fact the administration has been given a black eye in the recent primaries, may throw Illinois in the democratic column.

COOLIDGE SPEAKS AT CENTENNIAL

By United Press.
PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—President Coolidge arrived here today to deliver his Independence day address at the sesqui-centennial exposition. Besides Mrs. Coolidge, he was accompanied by Attorney General Sargent; W. Sporns, of Boston; Everett Sanders, his secretary; S. A. Chaney, military aide; Capt. Wilson Brown, naval aide; Major James Coupal, personal physician, and the usual attaché of the secret service operators and newspaper men.

The president was met at the train by the official reception committee, headed by Mayor Freeland Kendrick, president of the Sesqui-Centennial association, and was escorted to the exposition ground.

MAYOR WALKER PREPARES FOR THE EMERGENCY

Demand For Increase Cause; 400 Go Out In Indianapolis, Indiana

By United Press.
NEW YORK, July 5.—Arbitrary efforts failed today to postpone a strike called for midnight tonight on the subway lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit.

Seven hundred motormen and switchmen seeking wage increases will walk out at that time, crippling New York's transportation.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The threatened strike of the subway and elevated workers which would paralyze New York transportation will crystallize at midnight, thereby becoming effective, or through settlement, by arbitration.

Officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company which operates the principle subway and elevated lines of Manhattan and Brooklyn will announce at once their decision on a proposal to arbitrate demands of the motormen and switchmen for increase in wages.

Mayor Walker, who is remaining in New York over the holidays because of the emergency, perfected elaborate plans to relieve the threatened congestion. His program calls for commandeering of additional buses being used for pleasure purposes, thereby organizing a system of transportation along the Hudson and North Rivers, and diverting all street car traffic in north and south directions.

In addition, police vacations were cancelled and a program outlined for calling on reserves and recruits in case of necessity.

400 INDIANAPOLIS STREET CAR EMPLOYEES ARE OUT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 5.—A strike of 400 Indianapolis street car employees who are members of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees, started at 4 a. m. today.

The strike was ordered by an almost unanimous vote of the 400 men involved at union headquarters at 3 p. m.

Efforts were started by union leaders to bring the 15,000 employees of the streets car company into the ranks of the strikers.

FILM VERSION OF MELODIOUS IRENE

Embellished by the same lilted score that made the musical comedy version a great success on the stages of two continents for several successful seasons, "Irene," presented in picture form by John McCormick and released by First National, comes to the Lamb theatre today and Tuesday.

"Alice Blue Gown" and a dozen other songs that have been whistled and hummed by the thousands who have seen "Irene" on the stage will be heard again when the amplified story of the musical comedy flashes on the screen.

Lloyd Hughes, George K. Arthur and Charles Murray are featured in Miss Moore's support.

African Rats Four Feet Long Placed In London Garden

LONDON.—Judging from specimens of Kenya rats just received at the London Zoological gardens it is doubtful if the Pied Piper of Hamelin would ever had the courage of tooting his tune if he had lived in Africa instead of Germany.

The Kenya rats are between three and four feet in length with a row of teeth like a fox terrier. They are the Titans of the rat world. To add to their ferocious appearance they have cheek pouches which they can fill up with nuts, fruits and grain until their heads bulge out to twice their normal size.

NEIGHBORS' WIVES

BEGIN HERE TODAY
John and Fay Milburn buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract.

Noel and Vera Boyd, whose marriage is strictly "modern."
Pat and Marian Forbes who have three children and whose domestic life is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies.

John was fascinated on meeting Nell Orme, of whom Pat Forbes hints that she is having trouble with her husband.
When Fay took Judith, the baby, to visit her parents, John "ran around" a good deal, mostly with Pat Forbes.

When Fay returned, gossip had related some of his doings, and sharp quarrels between him and Fay followed, one of which drove him "out on a tear."

She fears John will get into trouble but John thinks she is beginning to dislike him. He becomes aware that people are talking about him, and Nat Graham, his partner, blames the loss of a client on the "damaged reputation" he charges John with bringing the firm.

Vera Boyd invites him to tea and overcomes his objections by holding out a "surprise" for him. It is a real surprise, for there he finds Nell Orme.

CHAPTER XLIII
Marian seemed startled. "Excuse me—where's Vera?" Her face had flamed rosy red.

Then, very deliberately, she smacked him full in the face.

It was Nell Orme who first re-covered her presence of mind. She disengaged her hands from John's and said, "Oh, hello, Marian. Vera's gone for a walk. Come in and have a cup of tea."

As for John, he was undergoing the emotions a man must feel who has been caught with his hand in another's pocket. He felt that some explanation must be due Marian, but could think of none that didn't sound asinine.

Well, he reflected, he'd certainly put his foot in it this time. What would Marian think, married to Pat whose indiscretions and numerous affairs were common gossip?

John shrugged his shoulders. "All right. I'm through now," and she turned abruptly away from him.

So she faced him again. "I told you some time ago," she remarked quietly, "that I was not going to continue to put up with these tricks of yours—and I'm not."

John shrugged his shoulders. "All right. I'm through now," and she turned abruptly away from him.

THE FOLKS BACK HOME

right. Hurry up and get the lecture over with.

"That's it!" she cried. "You think you can go out and carry on and escape with a lecture so you can go out and do the same thing over again. I suppose if you committed a murder you'd expect to get your wrists slapped."

"To hear you talk," John replied slowly, "one would think I had committed a murder and was in the habit of committing them."

"And to hear you talk one would think you had done absolutely nothing. Do you think I am going to sit quietly by forever while you go out and carry on outrageously with your women?"

"There are two things about that sentence that I don't like," he told her. "One is your reference to carrying on. The other is the way you say women. I have no women—not in the sense that you imply."

"Then what is Nell Orme? She isn't a little girl, you know."

"But it's hardly respectful to speak of her as a woman—not in the tone you use."

"Married men don't arrange clandestine meetings with other men's wives to talk about the weather, you know."

"I didn't arrange them," he said quickly, and then stopped.

"Of course," she observed scornfully. "Now, look here, Fay, there's no use barking at each other like this. I'm sorry I did it. We're only hurting each other, talking this way."

"I don't care. I'm not going to let it pass this time. I've tolerated too much already, and I'm through."

"Why don't you use some common sense?"

"Go to Nell Orme for your common sense. You seem to find something attractive in her. Perhaps it's her intelligence."

"Fay!"

"Then what is it? Is she so terribly fascinating that you can't resist her?"

"Freezing contempt was in her voice, and it fanned John's smoldering anger to a blaze."

"Yes she is," he said with a sneer. "A good deal more fascinating than many women that I know."

"All right, I glad you told me. But I'm through now," and she turned abruptly away from him.

Something in the gesture—it's finality—troubled him. Quickly he asked, "Through? What do you mean, Fay?"

"Just what I said." Her voice was calm; she was facing him squarely. "I'm going to leave you."

"But Fay"—he was shocked, as if someone had suddenly thrown cold water in his face—"you can't mean that. You can't, you know?"

"Can't? Why not, pray? What's to prevent me?"

"Why," he struggled lamely on, "there's Judith. What's to become of her? Fay, you're not serious. I shouldn't have spoken as I did, but you made me mad."

"What's to become of Judith? Why, I'll take her with me, of course. I'm going to take her home, where there'll be someone besides myself who cares for her."

"You can't do that. You have no business saying I don't care for her. She's my child as much as yours. I won't let you take her away."

"Suppose you try to stop me." Fay's voice had never sounded like this before. It was low, but into it had crept a quality like steel.

"Suppose you try to stop me," she repeated. "Go to a court and see if you can prevent me from taking my own child—after I tell the reason."

"I'll get a lawyer," he told her. "I'll get the best that money can hire, and I'll prevent you. If I don't actually prevent you, I can tie you up and delay you so that you'll get mighty tired of it."

"Oh, now you're being a baby, and punished. The trouble with you, John, is that you've always had your own way and you've never let anybody's feelings interfere with your having a good time. When I married you I gave up everything. I forgot every man that I knew. But you—why you seem to think I'm terrible because I resented being neglected while you gallivanted around with a lot of wild friends.

"And now you've got Nell Orme. Oh, I've seen it coming, and I wasn't entirely surprised when Marian Forbes told me what she had seen. And now I'm going to leave you to your Nell—and to the others."

"I tell you you have no business to talk like that. There's nothing but Fay made no answer, but stood there looking at him, and her eyes expressed a disbelief that infuriated him almost beyond his endurance."

But Fay's temper was out of control, too, although hers was a still, cold fury. A sound came from the next room, shattering the quiet that had fallen on them. It was Judith, and she had evidently stumbled and fallen, for she let loose an explosive little cry.

Fay turned her eyes away from John, and started for Judith, and her contemptuous disregard of him was more maddening than words.

John said slowly, "Fay, I won't stand for this sort of treatment. Do you hear me?"

She turned again. "You and your women!" she cried. Instantly her face flamed. She took two slow steps toward him, and then very deliberately she smacked him full in the face.
