WAS SENATOR MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS

From Plow Boy And Teamster to Senate; Was Power in Politics

By United Press. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 27.—Albert J. Beveridge, former United States Senator from Indiana and national figure in politics, died today. The former senator died at 6:30 a. m. Death was due to heart disease, members of the family said. The former senator has been suffering from heart disease for several years. In recent months he had been confined to his home with the ailment. Beveridge rose from plow boy, teamster and railroad section hand to the United States senate after a remarkable career, even in his democratic country where success from humble origin is more or less common. In the early years of this century, he was one of the outstanding men of the senate, famed for his oratory. He participated in much important legislation. Albert Jeremiah Beveridge was born in Highland county, Ohio, on Oct. 6, 1852. His parents moved to Illinois soon after the close of the civil war.

Beveridge was admitted to the Indiana bar in 1884 and for 12 years was active in state politics. In 1889 he was elected to the United States senate and served until 1910 when a democratic landslide defeated him for reelection. In 1916 he published his famous book, "Life of John Marshall," a biography of the chief justice of the United States Supreme court. He was the author of many other books.

Embargo Placed On Shipments To Flood District

Embargoes have been placed on the movement of freight of all kinds, and especially perishable stuff to points in the flooded area in Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri and Mississippi. In some sections shipments of oil and oil products in tank cars are received other commodities are under the ban. Lines affected are the Cotton Belt, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Kansas City Southern, North Louisiana and Gulf. The orders announcing the embargoes were received at the general offices of the Wichita Falls, Ranger and Fort Worth railroad. The interstate commerce commission has promulgated an order, which is effective since April 23, directing all railroads in the states of Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri and Mississippi to disregard orders of carriers or shippers of commodities or merchandise as to route for moving the shipment. That is, expedite the movement of freight, it must go over the best available lines. This order applies to shipments destined or originating in effected territory. Traffic must be moved regardless of orders of shippers or lines.

GHOLSON WELL HAS INCREASE IN PRODUCTION

Since receiving the dose of 60 quarts of nitro the Gholson et al. Duffer No. 5 in the Gholson pool, not only responded with an increase in production but continues to show gains. The latest information from the pool is to the effect that it is making around 150 barrels of oil a day or better with sufficient gas to cause the flow to be steady. The situation in the Parrish No. 1, three-quarters of a mile north of the pool, is nearing the pay horizon, and high hopes are entertained that it will come in good. The Simmons tract well soon to be spudded in will extend the field three-quarters of a mile to the southeast should it prove up. Should the Parrish and Simmons wells prove producers the Gholson field will be well defined and be given a big play when the crude oil market shows signs of advancing. The Lucas district is getting some play with the Pratt No. 2 going down and the well on the Gardenhire lease under good headway. Reports from the Carbon sector are optimistic in that the region will get a big play in all directions since the development of the Morgan and McAllister fields.

By United Press. AUSTIN, April 27.—The state highway commission figures that over $6,500,000 of federal highway aid is to be received by Texas this year as the result of approval by the federal government of the release of aid withdrawn last year. U. S. WILL GUARD AMERICAN LIVES AND PROPERTY PRESIDENT SAYS

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

By United Press. NEW YORK.—Here are some of the "Coolidgeisms" of President Coolidge's speech at the United Press Association's dinner: "The person and property of a citizen are a part of the general domain of the nation, even when abroad." "No American can profit by selling his own country for foreign favor." "Human nature provides sufficient distrust of all that is alien, so that there is no need of an artificial supply." "It would seem to be perfectly obvious that if it is wrong to murder and pillage within the confines of the United States, it is equally wrong outside our borders." "We are not making war on Nicaragua any more than a policeman on the street is making war on a passer-by." "It is a cardinal principle of law that private property should not be taken without fair compensation." "We do not wish to pursue any course of aggression against the Chinese people." "In our international intercourse we must hold ourselves up to high standards of justice and equity. We should be slow to take offense and quick to grant redress."

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK.—A United States policy of guardianship for American lives, property and justice will be followed in Mexico, China and Nicaragua, President Coolidge told editors at a dinner here last night commemorating the 20th anniversary of the United Press Associations. There can be no arbitration with Mexico, he announced, but that country has said it would not confiscate American property and there is every reason to expect an amicable settlement of outstanding controversies by negotiations. The United States forces in China contemplate no aggression against the Chinese but will safeguard our missionaries and business men, assured that in time adequate settlement will be made by the emerging victorious government for any wrongs done. With China's just aspirations, Mr. Coolidge indicated American sympathy.

Governor Asks for Cut In His Allowances

By United Press. AUSTIN, April 27.—In tune with his policy for economy advocated by him in the campaign last summer Governor Moody today asked the House Committee on Appropriations to cut the appropriation for his department below the recommendation of the state board of control. Moody is the first Texas governor to request a reduction of appropriations for the executive department. Moody told the committee he would pay the salary of the cook at the Mansion out of his private funds, and also that he would pay the iceman. Heretofore these expense items have been borne by the state. The committee was also asked by the governor to cut the appropriation for payment of rewards from $15,000 to $10,000 and to reduce his traveling expense from $750 to $250.

BISHOP GERKEN WILL APPEAR IN RANGER SUNDAY

Bishop R. A. Gerken will celebrate his first pontifical mass and confirm his first class as bishop, Sunday at St. Rita's church, Ranger. He with his mother, sisters and other members of the family along with a number of notable men in the Catholic church, including Dean Nolan of Fort Worth will be guests at a banquet to be served in honor of the bishop by the members of the faith, including the Knights of Columbus, Sunday evening. Ed Maher returned from Dallas, Wednesday along with the others and reported the services the most impressive ever held. Bishop Gerken probably will visit here for a day or two before returning to Amarillo to assume his duties. It was in Ranger that he made his success and developed a community of Catholics out of a handful. It was here that he served his people, and it is in Ranger that the devoted man wanted to observe his first pontifical mass and confirm the children whom he baptized as infants, children of parents that he had wed. According to Mr. Maher, the consecration services lasted three and a half hours and took place while mass was being celebrated by the consecrator of the bishop-elect. The following dignitaries took part in the ceremonies: the Rt. Rev. Joseph Patrick Lynch, D. D., bishop of Dallas, was consecrator. The Rt. Rev. Christopher E. Byrne, D. D., bishop of Galveston was first assistant consecrator, and the Rt. Rev. Francis C. Kelley, D. D., bishop of Oklahoma, was the second assistant. The Most Rev. Arthur Jerome Drossaerts, D. D., archbishop of San Antonio, preached the consecratory sermon, basing his admonitions on the divine command, "Feed My Lambs. Feed My Sheep." He pointed out that the new bishop was not lessening any of his burdens, but was taking on the heavy additional burden of the episcopacy.

Ranger Physician In New Orleans, Writes of Floods

Dr. Walter C. Palmer of Ranger, is in New Orleans where he is getting the full benefit and experience of the Mississippi floods. In a letter written recently to Walter Murray of the Ranger Times, Dr. Palmer states that he has already seen the city under from one to seven feet of water, due to a 14 inch rain. He was marooned in his hotel for one day and night. He relates the great danger to the city should the levees protecting it from the big river break, which was altogether probable until the decision below the city. At New Orleans the Mississippi river is considerably higher than the city and is protected only by the levee system.

STEPS TAKEN IN ORDER TO SAVE CITY

Crescent City Will Pay Millions Of Dollars To Indemnify People

By United Press. NEW ORLEANS, La., April 27.—Peacocks St. Bernard parish just outside of New Orleans is to be flooded through an intentional break in the levee, in order to save New Orleans from inundation, Governor Simpson of Louisiana announced. Already hundreds of residents of the parish are moving into New Orleans and the remainder are to be evacuated. Many of the residents are expected to protest against the inundation of their territory but they will be forced to move out immediately. The levee will probably be dynamited Friday it was said this morning. About 10,000 persons are expected to be made homeless by the dynamiting of the levee but Governor Simpson said that business men of New Orleans would make efforts to compensate them for their losses. New Orleans is to pay a two million to four million ransom to the Mississippi river to save itself from one of the worst threatened floods in history. It will cost the city this amount to cut the levee at Poydras, 14 miles south of here and relieve flood pressure from New Orleans, General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers estimated. In addition the city must care for 3,000 persons to be evacuated from St. Bernard parish and return them to their homes after the water recedes. As preparations were being made to cut the levee at Poydras on Friday and turn the waters of the Mississippi into the St. Bernard parish area, federal, state, and city and Red Cross officials laid plans to meet the emergency which will arise in a week or ten days. Full co-operation of the federal government and Red Cross were promised Governor Simpson, in coping with the emergency.

Fear is Felt For Safety of Scores Crowded on Bridge

By United Press. VICKSBURG, Miss., April 27.—The fate of scores of persons who sought refuge from the swift flood currents on a bridge across the Sunflower river near Hollendale, Miss., was unknown at the Vicksburg rescue headquarters today. Red Cross workers last night received emergency calls from Rolling Fork, Miss., saying that the bridge near Hollendale was crowded with refugees and that fully 2,000 flood fugitives were in that vicinity. The swift current was piling up debris of houses swept from upstream against the bridge and it was in danger of being out and carrying with it the scores on the structure, the reports to the Red Cross said. Two steamers hurried to the scene.

FROM THE BIBLE
 The light of the world.—The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Psalm 27:1.
 Prayer.—I will praise the Lord, according to His righteousness, and sing praises unto the name of the Lord most high.

SKYSCRAPERS
 Whether the American city should be built higher or wider, whether it will best serve economic and other purposes by growing outward rather than upward, is a question upon which business discussion will be centered at a special civic development session of chambers of commerce, at Washington, May 2 to 5.
 The skyscraper, which rears its lofty height against many a municipal skyline, will be on trial. Whether its advantages outweigh its disadvantages, whether the dense traffic, the congested transportation and the concentration of business it brings about are economies or extravagances, whether it serves the purpose for which it is erected better than a low building will be considered in the cold light of business scrutiny.

FIRE PREVENTION
 Evidence that well-directed effort can reduce fire losses is forthcoming in an analysis of returns from 303 cities in the United States participating in the nation fire waste contest, made by the insurance department of the chamber of commerce of the United States.
 The 303 cities with an aggregate population of 23,592,095 showed a reduction in property loss for 1926 of $4,146,282. A more striking reduction in the number of persons killed by fire is shown for the same cities. The average total number of fatalities for the five year period, 1921-1925, 663, was reduced in 1926 to 473. A slight reduction in injuries due to fire was likewise shown.
 The per capita property loss for 1926 showed a reduction of 14.96 per cent from the preceding five-year average, in the face of an increase for the country as a whole.
 Prizes for the winning cities in the four classes represented in the contest will be presented at the forthcoming annual meeting of the national chamber. The grand prize has been awarded to Albany, Georgia, for the second time, and other awards will be made to Milwaukee for having the best record in Class 1 cities, which includes those over 100,000 population; to Owensboro, Ky., for the best record in Class 3 cities, including those having a population between 20,000 and 50,000; and to Huntington, W. Va., for the best record in Class 2 cities, including those having a population between 50,000 and 100,000.

Boys Will Edit Ranger Times On Friday, May 6
 The issue of the Ranger Times on Friday, May 6 will be gotten out editorially by the boy scouts. Friday is boys' day, and they will have charge of all industrial plants, act as mayor and city commission, run the fire department and police force. Ranger will be turned over to the boys on that occasion, and Walter Harwell in charge of the industrial branch of the day is anxious to have all boys who want to take part, register with him what industry they wish to be connected with on that day.
 At a meeting last night in the American Legion headquarters, plans were formulated for the day. All boys and members of the boy scouts are urged to report at the fire station this evening at 6:30 o'clock to make preparations for the "Boys' Week" parade. Chief Murphy assures the boys' parents that the lads will receive special care and sent home as early as possible. Jack Armstrong will assist Chief Murphy in teaching the boys how to march in the parade.
 A period is only a dot, but it's the best thing to use in the end.

Whole Community Mourns Death Of Mrs. Peter Webb

One June 26, 1854, in Wise county, Texas, to Mr. and Mrs. Berry Foster, was born Lucy Jane Foster. Her childhood was spent in South Texas and one of her little acquaintances was Peter Webb, of Milligan, Texas. Early in 1871 she and Peter formed a closer friendship, and their sweetheart days terminated in their marriage, August 20, 1871.
 In 1884, Peter and Lucy and their little family moved to Eastland county, Texas, and settled what is known as "Pete Webb" place in the Flatwoods community. There they raised a family of thirteen children eleven of whom are yet living. There they established connections with the church of Christ, and for forty-three lovely years these two had lived there loving, sorrowing, and serving their Master in a glorious way few people are privileged to experience.
 Six years ago they celebrated their golden wedding and surrounded by their lovely family and host of friends it was a beautiful occasion, a crowning event in Peter and Lucy's lives. The other day, Saturday, April 23, death came and Lucy went home to the Master she had so faithfully served.
 Surviving her are her husband, C. T. Webb, eleven children, Ella Webb, Tom Webb, Mrs. Mand Collins, George Webb, Charlie Webb, John Webb, Mrs. Laura Browner, Marshall Webb, Mrs. Ida Burkett, Mrs. Ethel Harbin, Mattie Webb, forty-two grand children and nine great grand children. Pimples Cause Folks to Shrink from Attention
 Whenever you go out, you can't help but pity the many folks you see trying to have a good time, but are so shrinking and backward about coming near others where their pimply, blotchy and eczemic skin can be seen.
 You almost feel like going up to them and telling them that they ought to begin using Black and White Ointment and Skin Soap, which so many thousands of happy people are depending on to keep their skin clear, smooth and good to look at.
 Black and White Ointment and Skin Soap are selling at the phenomenal rate of more than two million packages a year. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap.

NEW OFFICIALS OF RANGER WILL GO IN ON MAY 2

The recently elected mayor and commissioners of Ranger will not be installed until Monday afternoon, May 2. This decision was made at a meeting of the city commission Tuesday afternoon when the vote of Saturday's election was canvassed and Raymond Teal declared elected commissioner for place No. 3.
 After a conference with the commissioners elect, it was deemed advisable to let the present body complete all the unfinished work possible, especially April business, before changing. There is considerable detail work that remains undone to be completed, and when the new commission assumes charge, it will begin with a clean slate.
 As to city appointments, the new as well as the old members of the board are keeping mum and having but little to say. However, no change is expected to take place in the fire department, and but few in the police department, with probably a dark horse being made chief of police.

Medium Sees Big Things Ahead For Ranger Next Year

"You may look for the greatest boom Ranger has ever had, since the halcyon days following the discovery of oil," said Madam LaBelle, spiritualist medium who is sojourning here now. "I can see another big building, and a great flood of people flocking here," she continued.
 "There will be more enterprises, more business houses and more wells. You may look for another good pool, maybe two pools. One will be to the north and the other toward the south.
 "This period of depression will not last more than 60 or 90 days, after that you will see the price of oil advance. Ranger now is on the verge of doing big things. Everything looks bright. It would not surprise me to see Ranger outdoing herself.
 "The hard days are over. Oil is sure to advance in price again. The fact that some of the companies did not meet the cut made by one of the big companies is evidence itself. This move is to get some of the little companies out of the way. Ranger will begin its growth the latter part of this year and continue through 1928."
 She said that there would be no war with China, that eventually the Chinese question would be adjusted just like the Mexican question is being adjusted.

MAY NAME COLLECTOR FOR ASSOCIATION

The proposition of employing a collector to look after all bad accounts of members of the Retail Merchants association is being given consideration, according to Mrs. Alice True, secretary of the Ranger organization. Something may be done in regard to the proposition at the next meeting of the board next week. One may be employed to work strictly on a commission basis without a salary from the association. The collector would relieve Mrs. True of a lot of detail that she now has and at the same time benefit the merchants.

Go ahead and persecute evolution and you will make it a cause instead of a theory. Reformers, please take notice!

ACHED ALL OVER
Was Suffering Dreadfully, Just "Wasting Away." Took Cardui, and Says It Helped Her.

Arlington, Texas.—A resident of this town for many years, Mrs. J. H. Jackson, says:
"I had suffered dreadfully with an aching all over my body. At times my head would give me so much trouble I could hardly stand it. I had been in bed for weeks and it looked like I was just wasting away. I took 9 bottles of Cardui and my strength began to slowly return. "Since that time I have used this medicine a good many times and it has always helped me. "At one time I took Cardui for several months regularly. I would be afflicted with sudden spells of dizziness when I could not stand on my feet. Everything would turn black before my eyes and I would feel as if I were going to faint. At times I would be quite nauseated. I turned at once to Cardui and took it till I was safely through. "Cardui is a mild, medicinal tonic, made from purely vegetable ingredients. It has been in use for over 50 years, and in that time thousands of women have written that Cardui helped them back to good health. Sold by all druggists. NC-182

VAST AREA FACES LONG SIEGE OF POVERTY AS RESULT OF FLOODS

The Flooded Region

By BRUCE CATTON, NEA Service Writer.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 27.—and I looked and behold a Pale Horse; and his name that sat on him was Death.
The Mississippi valley region today is one vast valley of desolation. Beneath the sodden rain clouds that a driving wind whips low over the great waste of waters, over 50,000 people are homeless and one who is so minded can hear the ghostly hoof-beats of three of the Four Horsemen of legend, riding on a mission of famine, pestilence and death down a thousand-mile pathway that cuts through the heart of the continent.

For mile on uncounted mile the horizon has dissolved in a gray waste of water. The Mississippi has become an ocean; its tributaries have burst their bonds, and towns, villages, plantations and homesteads are dissolving before their waves by wholesale.

A Great Disaster.
The rest of the country does not grasp the extent of the flood's devastation and the imperative need for relief.

It does not realize that southern financiers estimate it will take at least five years for the south to recover from this blow; that the flood probably will be the greatest in history; that the reconstruction problem the valley will face when the flood subsides—and bear in mind that the waters have not yet reached their crest—will be as serious as anything the south has faced since the reconstruction days following the civil war. Dire poverty for several years faces thousands who have lost everything in the swirling flood waters.

Fully 3,000,000 acres are under water today. The property damage probably will be at least $100,000,000. The death toll of storms and floods already is close to 150.

Five states lie directly in the path of the ghostly riders of desolation. The Mississippi and its tributaries have inundated western Kentucky, southeastern Missouri, the eastern half of Arkansas, western Tennessee and western Mississippi.

On Wild Rampage.
In most of these states the flooded area extends 25 miles inland from the full length of the Mississippi. In Arkansas a strip of 50 square miles known as the St. Francis basin is under water.

The Mississippi in its wild rise has abandoned its old channel, in many places, and is ruthlessly cutting out a new one, miles removed. It is making islands of whole cities. It is cutting some towns in half. It is transferring farms and plantations from one state to another.

Lands prepared for spring planting are under water. Thousands of farms will be totally unproductive this year and next. A huge section of the south will have to live on credit for many, many months—possibly a few years.

WHITE-HAMPTON
Hudson-Essex
112 Pine st. Ranger, Texas

This map shows the vast area affected by the Mississippi valley floods. The shaded areas indicate inundated regions.

But the credit machinery too is being swept away on the raging flood tides, carried downstream with the more tangible assets like barns and houses and corn cribs. The bad cotton year had already taxed banks in this region to the utmost. Nearly every farmer in the affected neighborhood was already in debt, either to the corner store or to his bank, before the flood came. Bank after bank has been forced to close its doors; when the flood is over many more will have to follow suit.

Fifty years of progress have been knocked out by the rising waters. Charity is needed, badly; but more than charity will be required in the Mississippi valley this summer. Outside capital must pour in if the whole region is not to sink into one of the worst slumps in history.

"When the flood goes down"—that is the phrase on everyone's lips. But the crest has not even been reached yet; and one gets the impression, in going through the devastated region, that the waters, somehow are not going to recede. It seems as if nature, dissatisfied with the Mississippi valley, had undertaken to make it over completely, turning valley into lakes and hills into islands, and wiping out the results of decades of soil.

A Contrast—Only the Red Cross.
One wonders, too, what the country at large would do if it could be made to realize the extent of the damage.

In Nicaragua something like a thousand Americans faced possible property loss, and upwards of 5,000 marines and bluejackets were hurried to the scene to protect them. In China American lives and property were menaced by civil warfare and a whole fleet, with three regiments of marines, went there as fast as they could be sent.

But here, in the heart of the continent, more than 50,000 people have lost their homes and every bit of property they own. They are huddled in refugee camps, where the pestilence and famine brought by the Four Horsemen are stalking in broad daylight. And the Red Cross is the only national organization on duty!

Freak Weather.
The worst of the story has not been told. The Missouri river is rising, giving alarm to a section as yet unvisited by the flood. Countless small, unheard-of streams are being transformed into miniature Mississippi, each spreading tragedy and ruin over the countryside. St. Louis and Kansas City are beginning to cast worried glances at the gauges that tell the water levels. What the next few days may hold no one can tell.

This spring has brought some of the freakiest weather in history. Torrential rains, as much as 14 inches in 10 hours, have increased the flood menace. One is reminded of the biblical torrents that fell for 40 days and 40 nights. The skies have remained leaden, day after day. In other parts of the country there are cyclones and tornadoes with premature "heat waves," quickly followed by almost zero temperatures.

PRESIDENT BICKEL AT PRESS DINNER PRAISES SERVICE

By United Press.
NEW YORK, April 27—High tribute to the efficiency of the American press association was paid by Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press, in an address at the twentieth anniversary dinner of the United Press association here Monday night.

In introducing President Coolidge who made the principal address of the evening Bickel referred to the fact that the president's words would be broadcast over one of the greatest radio hook-ups in history.

"Twenty years ago this month the initial steps were taken in the organization of the United Press association, and you have been good enough to gather with us here this evening to give some passing recognition to that event," said Bickel.

"Twenty years are but a moment in the world's history, but no two decades of modern times have witnessed so many events of vital consequence and far-reaching effect as the momentous years between 1907 and 1927. Indeed looking back through the intervening years, from the convulsion of the world war in the west to the dawn of a new civilization in the Far East, 1907 seems to belong to another era than our own.

"So the development of the United Press has come in a time of unprecedented change, when to be young and therefore to have less to forget, has not been a disadvantage. Surviving the stress and strain and the attendant growing pains of business childhood, the United Press is able to greet you this evening because it has sought always to learn from events, to gain wisdom from its errors, to welcome constructive criticism and to be keenly alive to the fact that to live is to be fallible—to become infallible is to die.

"The story of American journalism during the past 20 years has been a story of development and progress unrivaled by the press of any other nation.

"The American press association has played a significant part in this development. The newspapers of the United States—indeed the people of the United States—have been singularly fortunate; for at no time in our history has the press been cursed with the handicap of a governmental subsidized agency, holding or endeavoring to hold, by virtue of special powers and privileges, the deadening hand of monopoly over the news distributing resources of the country. The press has been free and the development of its news resources has been free. And because of this free competitive situation, the press associations of the United States have developed into the strongest and most comprehensive agencies in the world for the fast and accurate distribution of the last obtainable news fact.

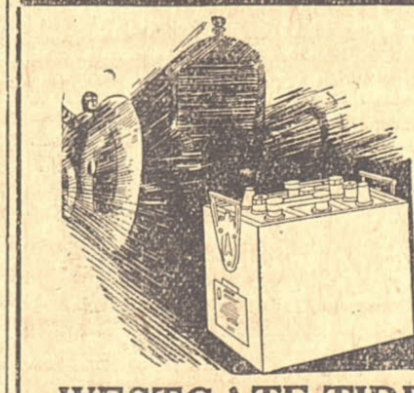

"We take a frank and, I trust, a pardonable pride in the part the United Press has played in this. The late E. W. Scripps on this principle of non-exclusive distribution of the news, to make the press of this nation free forever from any future threat of monopoly in news. The United Press has never deviated from this principle.

"The vision of the founder is attested by the unprecedented expansion of its service throughout the world. Established as a business institution and operated upon the same underlying principles that have been the foundation of all of America's greatest business structures, the United Press has grown from the handful of clients it served in the spring of 1907 until it is today

"Tonight, however, I have no intention of becoming a historian and reciting to you the detailed story of the United Press. Its history in the last two decades has been the history of the world.

"We are highly honored by the presence of the first citizen of our country, who has come from Washington, to be with us tonight. No greater distinction could be paid to us. I want to thank him for coming.

"In addressing us his voice will reach not only the audience in this room, not only the millions of American people who are now listening in by radio, but groups gathered on ships at sea, and the peoples of the countries of Europe and South America. Tonight in a number of the world's capitals United Press dinners are being held—in London, in Honolulu, in Santiago. A world-wide audience is waiting to hear the words of our guest of honor. Ladies and gentlemen, here and abroad, I have the honor of presenting the president of the United States."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VIII
Billy did not destroy the questionnaire. Some dim premonition, possibly born of her feeling that Clay knew more, or suspected more of what old T. Q. was "up to," stayed her fingers as they were about to tear the sheets to fragments. She retired a little huffily to her own room, and wrote a full page in answer to the question, "Why I work in the Curtis Store." She did not show what she had written to her mother or to Clay, but her rather truculent manner, when she returned to the living room, forbade questions.

As a matter of fact, Clay displayed no curiosity when she returned to the living room, for he was asleep, his head fallen forward on the keys of the piano, his tall, rather frail body, slumped in weariness. The flesh of his face was pallid with fatigue, and a stab of pity went through Billy's heart when she saw that the nails of one dangling hand were broken and faintly rimmed with black.

"It's a crime for him to take those fingers into a factory," Billy told her mother in a fierce whisper. "A musician's hands making barrels and packing boxes! It's a crime!"

But when Mrs. Wells woke him gently and sent him off to bed, Billy betrayed none of this softness to him. She just stood looking at him, a slightly scornful smile on her deeply carved, ripe young lips. She hated the thought of his tearing his sensitive hands on rough lumber, but she would hate him, despise him if he gave up his fight to earn his own living.

The next morning before she could give herself time to reconsider, she burned her bridges behind her, by dropping the questionnaire, with its queer mixture of impudence and common sense, into the padlocked box provided for that purpose.

who enjoyed being seen together for the sake of the contrast between Nyda's sultry brunet beauty and Winnie's flowerlike blondness, were comparing questionnaires when Billy entered the room.

"Eddie gave me a swell tip," Nyda Lomax was saying. "He was reading that Sunday article on the kids' nursery on the roof, and he said that was a dead give-away that old T. Q. was batty about kids. So he told me to put down that my life's ambition was to be a kindergarten teacher. Isn't that a scream? You know me, Win. I can't bear a kid in my sight. What did you say?"

"Miss Doran, the teacher, who boards with us, told me to say I wanted to take a complete business course and be private secretary to a big business man, like Mr. Curtis. Believe me, Miss Doran is the original soft-soap artist. Every answer in my list pats old T. Q. on the head. I'm going to give Miss Doran a pair of those new French nude silk stockings if I win a prize. Where's yours, Billy?"

"In the box," Billy answered shortly, a little sickened by the conversation she had been obliged to overhear. But she was fiercely glad that she had at least been honest, even if she had been impudent.

"I bet papa's black-eyed boy was able to give you some good tips," Nyda Lomax surveyed Billy with insulting, narrowed black eyes.

"He did, as a matter of fact," Billy told them coolly. "There's the bell. We'll have to hurry."

Within a few days the little flurry of excitement over the questionnaires had died completely away, lost in the larger excitement of the approaching party to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Curtis store. Prizes for the men, it developed were to be awarded on the basis of increase of sales during the anniversary sale, a time-honored custom which hitherto extended to the women employees also.

The Curtis store had practiced almost every evening; Miss Simmons, head of the personnel department and teacher of the classes in salesmanship, buzzed about frantically, immensely concerned with plans for the "Pageant of Progress," in which the store's prettiest girls were to take part; The Curtis store dramatic society daily rehearsed a one-act play, written by that jaunty, go-getting advertising manager, Mr. Brenner; and old T. Q. himself seemed to be so infected with the excitement of anticipation that he could not confine himself to his office, but prowled from floor to floor, smiling his wry smile at customers and appearing at embarrassing moments at the elbow of a girl who has lost a sale because she was too sleepy from late rehearsals the night before to care whether she sold anything or not.

On the day before the party Billy was exercising her prerogative as head of the glove department by giving Julie Barker, one of her two assistants, an impromptu lesson in salesmanship.

"I've told you no less than nine hundred and ninety-nine times, Julie that you can be pleasant to a customer without calling her pet names. That girl's name is Miss Dennen, not 'dearie' or 'honey'."

A low chuckle behind her caused her to whirl and face T. Q. Curtis. He had been watching her so frequently lately that she was not surprised, nor was she embarrassed, as a customer came sailing up to the glove counter she half turned her back on him, but as she did so, she deliberately winked one shining blue eye at him.

He remained near her counter, watching her make the sale, that familiar, wry smile tugging at the corners of his stern mouth. Then, while she was making out her sales slip, he moved away, and when she looked about her in a momentary perfume and cosmetics department, his bushy brows drawn over eyes that were fixed on Nyda Lomax.

"Funny," Billy told herself, as she began to stow away boxes of gloves. "He's buzzing around the pretty girls' counters like a lady-killing floorwalker. Don't know but what I'd better warn Clay if he doesn't hurry home he's likely to find a flapper stepmother there ahead of him. Who'd have thought that old T. Q. would turn sheik on us?"

But, she was forced to admit, if old T. Q. was really "sheiking," he was going about it in an odd way. He made no effort to talk to the girls; just stood at a safe distance, the again her queer conviction that old

T. Q. was "up to something" reared its head, and disturbed her more than she would admit to herself.

Stanley Powers, assistant credit manager, had dated Billy more than a month before the party, and he was hospitably invited for supper, since both he and Billy, as entertainers for the evening, had to be at the store early.

Mrs. Wells' casual mention at the breakfast table of their prospective guest had a queer effect upon Clay.

"Powers? Who's Powers?" he demanded, completely losing interest in the waffle which Mrs. Wells had just brought in from the kitchen.

"The boy friend," Billy told him calmly, though she was watching his face from under the long fringe of her red-brown lashes. "Stanley Powers, assistant credit manager. A nice little pet boy friend, who plays the cornet in the Curtis band."

"I won't be home for dinner," Clay told Mrs. Wells a few minutes later, after he had finished his third waffle in moody silence.

"Well, I like that!" Billy storned, after he had left the dining room. "What does he think this is? His own private home? Well, if he wants to squander his hard-earned money on cheap restaurant food he's certainly welcome to do it. I don't have to ask him when I want to have a boy friend for supper!"

"I think, honey," her mother reasoned amiably, "that he thought it would be embarrassing for Stanley as well as himself. You know Stanley wouldn't feel free and easy sitting at the same table with his boss' disinherited son—a son that's now working in a factory."

She wished she hadn't promised to go to the party, that she didn't have to play her violin for them—they didn't know anything about real music. If she could only afford a real teacher for a year or so, then throw up her job at the store and go to New York and force the managers to give her an audition!

But what a fool she was to plan! and dream like that! She wasn't even clever enough to win a prize in a department store contest. Impudent little smart-Alec! She'd probably be fired in a week or two—

"There's the doorbell, honey," her mother called from the kitchen. "You run and answer it. I'm making white sauce for the asparagus tips."

Billy stuck out her tongue at her own sulky face in the hideous golden oak sideboard before she turned reluctantly to obey her mother.

Darn Stanley Powers and his eternal chatter about the Curtis store! Darn the Curtis store. And—darn darn Clay Curtis for not coming home to supper! Stuck up idiot. (To be continued)

The big party and the announcement of prize winners in the questionnaire contest are described in the next chapter.

After the "Flu" is over
—you need a Tonic
Help Is Needed to Restore Your Wasted Strength and Energy.
"Flu" leaves the body weakened and rundown. In such cases, a tonic is clearly indicated. Restore the appetite and rid yourself of that let-down feeling.
"Flu" is a very enervating disease. It leaves its victims so weak and debilitated that there is as much danger from the after-effects as from the disease itself. In other words, after an attack of the "flu," you need a selective tonic to rebuild the system so that you may have your old-time strength and energy restored.
S.S.S. is unequalled for restoring strength and vitality.
You owe it to yourself and family to give S.S.S. a trial. It helps Nature build up red blood corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the body is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable. S.S.S. is made from the roots of fresh herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.
S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Coolidge Speaks

play in American dealings with other powers.
The Mexican ambassador has given personal assurance, the president said, that "Mexico does not intend to confiscate our property, that she has shown diligence in capturing and punishing those who have murdered our citizens, and expressed the wish, which we so thoroughly entertain, of keeping cordial and friendly relations."
Not only did Mr. Coolidge put an end to Mexican war talk with his expressed conviction that an amicable adjustment but he let it be known this government would submit to seizure of property provided Mexico pays fair compensation. He said this government had offered to accept bonds of the Mexican government in payment for damages awarded for land seized.
"Instead of desiring to pursue any aggression or to take part in any oppression, we are endeavoring through the most friendly offices to demonstrate to their government that their attitude in relation to property will not only result in economic disadvantage of their own people, by preventing the investment of outside capital so necessary for their development but will greatly impair their friendly relations with other interested nations," Mr. Coolidge declared.
"In this conflict between freedom and despotism, which is as old as humanity, and which constantly recurs in one form or another, both among ourselves and among other people, it has always been the policy of this government to extend its sympathy and, in so far as it lawfully could, its support to the side of freedom.
"There is nothing unfair, nothing imperialistic in this principle."
These Americanist policies Mr. Coolidge commended to the editors, saying that newspapers more than any other force held power of influence over the sentiments of the people of one country toward those of another.
"An American press which has all the privileges which it enjoys under our institutions, and which derives its support from the progress and wellbeing of our people, ought to be first of all thoroughly American," he said.
Following is the statement of the president's position toward the three countries which now are involved in our foreign affairs:

Mexico
"While it is well-established international law that we have no right to interfere in the purely domestic affairs of other nations in their dealings with their own citizens, it is equally well established that our government has certain rights over and certain duties toward our own citizens and their property wherever they may be located.
"When we permit foreigners to come here, when other countries admit our citizens, we know and they know that such aliens come and go not only under the right and duties imposed by domestic law, but also under the rights and duties imposed by international law.
"We do not question their (Mexico's) right to take any property, provided they pay fair compensation. With their efforts to secure a division of great estates, so that more of their people may be landowners, we have every sympathy.
"Everybody favors arbitration when the question at issue is arbitrable. Under the present circumstances I can see grave difficulties in formulating a question which the two governments would agree to submit to such a tribunal. The principles that property is not to be confiscated and that the duty of our government to protect it are so well established that it is doubtful if they should be permitted to be questioned.
"It has therefore seemed that we are more likely to secure an adjustment through negotiations."
China
"China is now undergoing a revolutionary convulsion.
"The friendship of America for China has become proverbial. We feel for her the deepest sympathy in these times of her distress. We have no disposition to do otherwise than to assist and encourage every legitimate aspiration for freedom, for unity, for the cultivation of a national spirit, and the realization of a republican form of government.
"We do not wish to pursue any course of aggression against the Chinese people. We are there to prevent aggression against our people by any of their disorderly elements.
"Ultimately the turmoil will quiet down and some form of authority will emerge, which will no doubt be prepared to make adequate settlement for any wrongs we have suffered."
Nicaragua
"For a dozen years we kept a force of marines in that country at the earnest solicitation of its government. During this time the people were peaceful, orderly and prosperous, and their national debt was greatly reduced. Almost at once after I withdrew the marines revolution was started.
"We are not making war on Nicaragua any more than a policeman on the street is making war on passers-by. We are there to protect our citizens and their property from being destroyed by war and to lend every encouragement we can to the restoration of peace.
"The revolutionary forces appear to have received arms and ammunition from some source in Mexico. With a hope that we might be furnished with information which would better enable us to deal with the situation, I have sent Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of war to that country. Meantime, it is reported that the government forces have apparently been successful in driving the revolutionists from the field."
Concerning Central American policies in general the president made the following significant statement:

Health in the community is very good.

Cheney News

CHENEY, April 27.—Everything is lovely around Cheney since the big rains of last week. We all lost our maize as it could not swim and lots of corn was ruined.
The frost made everything look hazy but did not ruin any stands that we know of. Now we have the beautiful sunshine and crops are looking better. Plowing corn and planting maize is the order of the day just now. Some are talking of planting peanuts soon but none planted yet.
James Howard placed his finger too near Mr. Browning's circle saw and lost part of it. He says it was done just as easy.
A good many have colds and some are real sick with cold and fever.
Mrs. Nancy Akers of Moran is visiting her son, Webster Akers.
Our entire community was made sad over the death of our neighbors' girls at Cross Roads by drowning, Mr. Ed Campbell's daughters.
Cheney teachers and pupils went to Bedford last Thursday night and put on the play they will put on at Cheney next Friday night, April 29, as school is out that day. They did real well at Bedford and are likely to do well at home. We think it is free to all. "The Path Across the Hill." See it.
Brother Jones of Desdemona preached at Cheney Sunday evening. Owing to so much sickness the crowd was small.
Let's all remember that first Saturday in May is set for cemetery working at Alameda, as usual we all want to go. The 3rd Saturday in May we work Howard cemetery and there is lots of work to be done.

"Toward the governments of countries which we have recognized this moral responsibility that does not attach to other nations. We wish them to feel that our recognition is of real value to them and that they can count on such support as we can lawfully give when they are beset with difficulties."
"It is a curious circumstance that some of those who have been willing to have us take mandates over far-off countries in Asia, where we have no interest that does not attach to all humanity, are most critical when we are attempting to encourage the maintenance of order, the continuity of fully established government, and the protection of lives and property of our own citizens under a general reign of law in these countries that are near at hand and where we have large and peculiar interests."
Then the president summarized his policy with these concluding words:
"The recent period has brought America into a new position in the world.
"In our international intercourse we must hold ourselves up to the high standards of justice and equity. We should be slow to take offense and quick to grant redress.
"In the attempt of your government to meet these great obligations by which alone an enlightened civilized society can be maintained, a united America must constantly respond with service and sacrifice."

Eastland To Get Shipment of Fish For Two Big Lakes

A large shipment of fish from the government fish hatchery at San Marcus was due to arrive in Eastland this afternoon for distribution in Lake Eastland and the Ringling Lake. This is the third large shipment of fish placed in these two lakes during the administration of City Manager Cheatham.
It was stated at the Eastland city hall this morning that large numbers of fishing permits for fishing in Lake Eastland were being issued. The fee for these license is $1 per month, or $5 by the year, and 25 cents per day. No fishing is permitted at night.
The game fish season opens May 1 and a rush for fishing permits at that time would not be a surprise.
East White street between North Seaman and North Lamar will be the first street to be paved of the Eastland paving program now just ready to be started, according to City Manager J. H. Cheatham.
The contractors, who have the contract to pave some three and one-half miles of streets in Eastland, are assembling materials to begin the work within the next few days.
