The Telephone Girl Showing At Lamb In Ranger

To most people, the telephone is an instrument of convenience. An instrument through which messages are conveyed—a time-saving device. Have you ever stopped to consider what transpires over the wire? Do you realize that the business of milwhat transpires over the wire? Do you realize that the business of millions is sometimes decided by a telephone message. Marriages are made, agreements are reached, the plans of buildings are laid, and in the stock exchange, millions of dollars are won and lost, all by a simple message conveyed over the telephone. Elections have been turned from victory to defeat by telephone messages, and in "The Telephone Girl" which comes to the Lamb theatre, Ranger, today the governor of a state is defeated because of a telephone number! The telephone operator refused to give him the number he asked for, and when you see Madge Bellamy as "central" and Holbrook Blinn as the governor, you will understand the reason. Besides Miss Bellamy and Mr. Blinn, the cast includes Warner Baxter and Lawrence gray.

international hero, was developed in him early in life.

When he was one month old his mother took him back to the Lindbergh home at Little Falls, Minn., from Detroit, Mich., where he was born Feb. 4, 1902.

There the Lindbergh family lived on a farm on the west bank of the Mississippi River just south of the city limits of Little Falls. It was a farm of remarkable beauty. The house was a comfortable one-story white structure, with spacious basement, located on sloping ground, surrounded with trees and woods and the river near by. Charley was his father's only son and they became as closest companions. As soon as Closest companions.
