FROM THE BIBLE.

The Lord's Doings: I waited patiently for the Lord; and he heard my cry. He brought me up also out of a horrible pit, and set my feet upon a rock. And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord.—Psalm 40:1-3.
Prayer: This is the Lord's doings and it is marvelous in our eyes.

TIMELY WARNING.

The other day while employes of Eastland county were busy at their work in the county courthouse plaster from the ceiling of one of the court rooms fell with such force and volume as to cause alarm. One of the district judges was in the court room at the time and narrowly escaped possible serious injury.

This judge and court attaches and attendants were there in the courthouse because they were sent there by the people of Eastland county. They are there as servants of Eastland county taxpayers and Eastland county voters.

Our responsibility to these servants of ours who work for us daily at the old courthouse is no less than the responsibility of any other employer to his employes. The courts of the state provide that an employer shall provide for the safety of those who work for him. He is required to carry insurance for them to provide for them in case of injury.

We do not necessarily advocate such measures in favor of county officials—those engaged in county work, but we do contend that the people of the county have a responsibility that should be recognized—the responsibility of providing a safe place for their servants to work.

In a few weeks now the people of the county will be given an opportunity to vote on the question of issuing $300,000 in bonds for the building and furnishing of a new courthouse, one that will be safe for its occupants.

What will the answer be? What are the voters and taxpayers of the county going to do about it? How are they going to vote? Will they accept their responsibility or will they side-step it?

We believe they will recognize the responsibility—we believe they will meet it squarely and vote for the bond issue.

A great many people of the county are anxiously awaiting the report of the grand jury which was recently instructed to make an investigation of the old courthouse and to report on its safety and adequacy. This grand jury is to meet again next Monday morning and is expected to make a report on its findings some time next week.

Of course we have no way of knowing what the report of this body will be, but whatever it is going to be, it should be given to the people of the county at the earliest possible moment. The commissioners' court has ordered an election which is to be held early next month, at which time the people will be asked to either favor or oppose the movement for a new courthouse.

The people should not be asked to vote on the proposition until they have been given some definite information—until they can vote intelligently.

CHICKEN BARBECUE ALL THAT THE NAME SUGGESTS

The chicken barbecue given on last night at the Ranger Country Club by the Ranger Lions in honor of their wives, mothers, daughters, sisters and sweethearts, was all that the name implies and then some. The menu of barbecued chicken, pickles, potato chips, ice cream, real cake, and lemonade, was not only satisfying but a marvelous revelation to housewives who toil and labor for days to put over a social affair, to see men prepare and serve such a menu in a few hours' time and with so little effort. Perhaps a chicken barbecue is enjoyed more than most any event by women because it's one time that the men do the work and the women respond only when it's on the table. Last night when a line of Lions emerged from the barbecue pit carrying great piled up pans of chicken, toast and gravy, the women present needed no other signal to get out of cars and take up their plates and cups and stroll toward the spot where the eats were being dished up.

Tables had been constructed under the trees near the club house and here by a multitude of electric lights, the Lions and their guests ate to repletion and then some. After dinner the entire party gathered in the clubhouse where the Tickville Band had already tuned in and there they danced a John Paul Jones or two, waltzed and danced some more, as this clever band played some new and old fashioned music.

The band proved very conclusively that they can sing as well as they can play, as they entertained their listeners with a number of songs that made one think of other days and brought hearty encores from their audience.

Each Lion present was a host and took it on himself to see that everybody present was having a good time, and in some way contributed to the evening's pleasure.

The night was ideal as the moon came up early and flooded the club grounds with its light and it was cool enough to make dancing most enjoyable. There were at least sixty-five present. Everyone of these had the time of their lives and the Lions once again scored a social success as super entertainers, even though one of the

SCHMUCK FAMILY TO LEAVE RANGER

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Schmuck, long time citizens of Ranger, announced today that they have bought out the Oak Grove filling station and tea room and a home in Arlington and will leave for that city right away. In fact Mr. Schmuck and Miss Laura Schmuck, one of their talented daughters, left yesterday for their new home and Mrs. Schmuck, Rudolph and Barbara will leave Saturday.

The news that the Schmucks are leaving Ranger brings a wave of regret for they have been identified with every upward movement in Ranger during their long residence here. In the business world Mr. and Mrs. Schmuck have carried on justly and honorably in every way. In the social life of Ranger they brought the same fair play. Mrs. Schmuck is a member of several Ranger clubs, being one of the oldest members of the 1920 Club and a charter member of the New Era Club, to which she was recently elected president. She is a woman that her friends call "a power," because whatever she turns her hand to she puts over with creditable success and does it in such a way that she makes no enemies.

In their church life they have always done their part well and their daughters, Christine and Laura, have given their time and talent often to church and social affairs. The three Schmuck girls, Virginia, Laura and Christine, have grown to young womanhood in Ranger and are among the best educated and most talented young women in this city. The former has married, Laura teaches in another state, but Christine will teach in Ranger next fall.

Randolph graduated at Arlington this spring and will be associated with his father in business. As a whole no family in Ranger has been more loved or more respected than the Schmuck family and although the saying is trite, it is none the less true, that Ranger's loss is Arlington's gain.

New Producer In Teatsworth Area Extends Field

The Teatsworth shallow pool on adjoining lands owned by the city of Eastland just east of the city limits was extended southeast 500 feet by the bringing in of the Dorothy Oil company et al's No. 2 W. L. Hargus. Pay in the Hargus was found at the usual depth for that section at 1425 feet. The amount of production has not been determined. The Texas company has just drilled in its No. 14 Gray-Hightower, a few miles east of southeast of the Teatsworth pool, from which it is swabbing seven barrels per hour, or 168 barrels per day. The pay in this well was found at the usual depth for the field of 1220 feet.

It's the cigarette of the age — the triumph of all smoking history. Just reflect—at the time when more cigarettes are smoked than ever before—Camels passed them all.

Why? Figure it out and you'll find that Camel is made for the particular smoker whose taste, day by day, is more knowing of quality. Camels are rolled of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown. And what blending! Camel's smoothness and mellowness are qualities distinctive to this cigarette.

If you haven't yet tried them, you'll find all your smoking wishes come true in Camels. Mild, clear and smooth from morning to night. Always so satisfyingly good! "Have a Camel!"

FLYING MOTORCYCLE AND AERIAL PASSENGER BUS POSSIBILITIES

NEW YORK.—The flying motorcycle and the aerial passenger bus will soon extend the suburban areas of our great cities for hundreds of miles. Men with homes in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts will work daily in New York, Michigan and Wisconsin will be within commuting distances of Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco, for business purposes, will be next door neighbors.

This is the vision of Glenn H. Curtis, pioneer airplane builder and pilot, presented in the July issue of Popular Science Monthly.

Aerial commuting already is well established among men of wealth who are using flying boats daily between their waterside suburban homes and water-front cities, Curtis points out. He sees as a logical development the introduction of individual and common-carrier machines which will put such transportation within the reach of the middle classes and permit thousands who now live in congested city blocks to enjoy the benefits of country life without loss of time.

“With the development of wireless transmission of power there will eventually be perfected a personal airplane so individual, so compact and so flexible that it will compare with airplanes as the motorcycle does with automobiles. This will be the type of aircraft chiefly used by commuters,” says Curtis.

Will Alight on Rollers.

“As I see the flying motorcycle, it will be built entirely of duralumin or other light alloy, with folding wings. The body will be just large enough for one man to sit comfortably. Rollers, rather than wheels, will be the landing gear. It will have a wingspread of about twelve feet, a lifting surface of say fifty square feet, and weight around forty pounds. It will have a lifting capacity of about 200 pounds, leaving 160 pounds for motor and passenger.

“For the long-distance commuter, traveling two or three hundred miles daily from home to office, the large multi-passenger plane, or flying bus, will be the main reliance. Such machines, dependable and economical, have already been built. Refinement in such matters as emergency control are well within the reach of present knowledge.

“The flying bus will also carry mail. It will be a multi-plane machine with two or three 500 horse-power engines, enclosed cabins, ample reserve power for storms or engine trouble. It will fly at high speed, up to a possible 150 miles an hour, and will be so designed as to be able to hover over one spot and practically stand still in the air.

“The dream often pictured by imaginative artists, of fleets of helicopters alighting upon or departing from the roofs of tall buildings, will always remain a dream, in my belief. I doubt whether it will ever be practical to utilize city roofs for landing areas. And so far as relief from street traffic congestion goes, a very few planes in the air at one time can produce much more serious traffic congestion than ordinary man imagines.”

MANY UNUSUAL RECORDS MADE LATE PLAYING

Only seven unassisted triple plays have been made by infielders in the history of major league baseball. That, in itself, is proof positive of the rarity of the play.

The feat was last performed by First Baseman Johnny Neun of Detroit on May 31 of this year. Cleveland was the victim.

It was only the second time that feat has ever been turned by a first sacker. It was also a strange coincidence, that George Burns, of Cleveland, the other first baseman to have pulled such a play, was on hand to congratulate Neun.

Likewise, Ernest Padgett, who as second baseman of the Boston Braves, made an unassisted triple play in 1923, the same year Burns did, was also present to join in the congratulations. He is now utility man for the Cleveland Indians.

Thus, of the seven infielders who have figured in unassisted triple plays, three were present when Neun jumped into fame inside of a very few seconds.

Collins Close to Record
In the same game in which Johnny Neun made his unassisted triple play, “Rip” Collins, pitching to Detroit, came mighty close to equalling another record.

Collins, aided by Neun's extraordinary triple play, won his game, 1-0, a rather unusual score in these days of heavy hitting. In so doing he helped his cause by making nine assists. He should have had ten.

Nine assists in these days of the “rabbit” ball, is almost as rare an event as an unassisted triple play, for it is not the habit to tap the ball back to the pitcher.

In the ninth inning Collins failed to handle a bunt for his tenth assist as it seemed he should, the scorers being rather generous in registering it as a hit.

The record in both major leagues is 11 assists, held by one pitcher in the National League and jointly by three in the American.

Some Fielding Statistics
That making nine assists in one game by a pitcher is decidedly out of the ordinary is proved by the following statistics:

HOLMES OLDEST SUPREME COURT JUSTICE ALSO IS MOST ACTIVE

By HERBERT LITTLE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The oldest of the nine justices of the U. S. supreme court, Oliver Wendell Holmes, is the most active and generally speaking the most liberal in viewpoint, judging by the number of important opinions written by him in cases decided at the present term of court, which expires Monday.

Holmes, 86 years old and bearing three bullet-wounds from his Civil War battles, writes short, concise opinions filled with terse, epigrammatic sentences. In the seven months of the court's session his decisions have been more numerous than those of any other justice, according to court observers.

Holmes' crony is Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis and together they make up what is known as the progressive wing of the high court. They are nearly always together in support of labor in disputes before the court, Holmes more generally voicing their opinion. Holmes, fierce-mustached scion of an old Massachusetts family, and Brandeis, the only Jew on the high tribunal, spend much time together outside of the court. Brandeis escorts the older man to and from nearly all sessions.

Holmes' health is apparently good, and his mental activities enhanced rather than diminished by the passing years. The son of the famous poet of the same name, he has made a name for himself in the legal world which may exceed that of his father in the literary world.

Two notable opinions which are typical of Holmes were read by him recently in the Texas negro primary law and Virginia sterilization cases, both of which are expected to serve as important legal precedents for years to come.

“Three generations of imbeciles are enough,” he said succinctly in announcing the court's decision in the latter case, upholding the Virginia law in an appeal brought by the guardian of Carrie Buck to prevent her being sterilized. The girl herself, her mother, and her illegitimate daughter were all feeble-minded, it had been testified.

“It is better for all the world, if instead of waiting to execute degenerate offspring for crime, or to let them starve for their imbecility, society can prevent those who are manifestly unfit from continuing their kind.”

In the Texas case, in announcing that a state law forbidding negroes the right to vote in Democratic primary elections, was unconstitutional, Holmes said it was “hard to imagine a more direct and obvious infringement of the Fourteenth Amendment.” Then he concluded: “States may do a good deal of classifying that it is difficult to believe rational, but there are limits and it is too clear for extended argument that color cannot be made the basis of a statutory classification affecting the right set up in this case.”

In the New York ticket-scalping law, decision, Holmes read a vigorous dissent asserting that the law prohibiting a profit of more than 50 cents each on the resale of theatre tickets, was “reasonable” and within the state's police powers. The 5 to 4 decision of the court was that the stage was not commerce, but amusement pure and simple, and state regulation hence illegal.

Holmes, however, stated that in his opinion theatres were a necessity to many persons and that if the people of New York wished to regulate them, they had a right to do so.

Holmes joined with Brandeis in dissenting to the Bedford Cut Stone decision, which more than any other case this term has drawn criticism from labor and progressive circles, Brandeis and Holmes argued that the action of union stone-cutters in refusing to work on Indiana limestone produced by non-union companies was “reasonable” and that only “unreasonable restraint of trade” was prohibited under the Sherman Anti-Trust law, under which this injunction action was brought.

In 1893, Jouett Meekin, pitching for Washington, set the record in the National. It has survived for 34 years.

In the American League, three spitball pitchers, Ed Walsh, George McConnell and Mel Wolfgang, share the assist record, made in 1917, 1912 and 1914 respectively.

It is known fact that spitball twirlers invariably have more assists on the average than the straight-away style pitcher. Topping the ball is a habit against a “spitter,” resulting in many easy rollers to the pitcher.

On the contrary, almost all of the assists made by Collins were on hard hit balls through the box that he broke down, making his performance all the more noteworthy.

However, had Collins handled the chance in the ninth that would have made his record ten assists, he would have wiped out the setting for the triple play, men on first and second.

Yesterday and Today

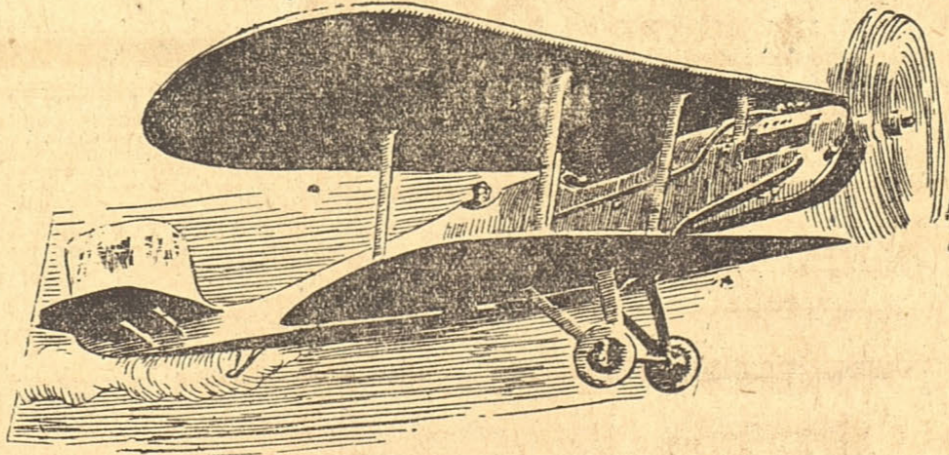

Man's work was from sun to sun, but woman's work was never done.

Horse drawn buggies and home-made soap and on Sunday “Home-made Ice Cream”—Trouble and more trouble.

Buy the ice and salt and milk and sugar and put in an hour's time of tedious toil turning the crank of our old fashioned ice cream freezer.

Is it any wonder that they only had it on July 4th and such occasions?

BANNER ICE CREAM

Pure, delicious and inexpensive. No trouble at all. Just go by the drug store or confectionery and get just how much you need and it's done—not even a dish to wash.

Pure, because it's pasteurized. Delicious, because we make it that way. The smoothness of Banner Ice Cream can not be attained in home-made cream because it takes high priced specialized equipment to do it.

Inexpensive, because of quantity production. Fruits and flavors from the four corners of the earth go to make Banner Ice Cream the perfect food.

Women Start Sale Of Season Tickets For Chautauqua
A dozen Presbyterian and Methodist women of Ranger started to work bright and early this morning selling Chautauqua tickets in the business district.

Street banners that were put up during the night across Main street are waving in the breeze, telling the story of two coming Chautauqua attractions, "The Firefly" and "The Patsy."

Miss Juanita Counsell, who is with the Redpath-Horner company, is in Ranger today acting as commander general of the big drive and Miss Counsell was stressing the importance of buying season tickets, explaining that money was saved by the individual and the town was better able to meet its guarantee to the company through the sale of season tickets.

Ranger, it seems, signed up $1,600 to get this fine Chautauqua program for its citizens. Through the sale of season tickets they get full credit but on gate receipts they get only 25 per cent. There are six days of the Chautauqua, with two attractions a day, so that the cost of each program for an adult, where a season ticket purchased amounts to less than 25 cents.

The women tomorrow will work the residence section and they hope by the co-operation of Ranger citizens to go over the top in great style in their ticket sale.

Singing Will Be Held at Merriman Church Sunday
The regular third Sunday afternoon singing will be held at Merriman, just south of Ranger, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The general public and especially singers and lovers of music, are invited and urged to be present.

For more than 30 years these Sunday afternoon community singings have been held in this county and their influence for good is always considered along with that of the church. A splendid program has been arranged for the Merriman singing and many of the best singers and leaders of the county will be there.

Chief of Police Jim Ingram of Ranger in compiling his report for the past 15 days, was not ill pleased with the record. It showed 53 arrests, and collections amounting to $307.10.

In the 43 days that Chief Ingram and his officers have been in charge of the police department, there have been 109 arrests made, 14 have been turned over to the county and collections for the city have amounted to $873.50.

Women spent nearly a billion dollars for hostery last year. Anyhow they got a run for their money.

Tillie the Toiler
Will be at Lamb Theatre Sunday

Russ Westover's nationally known "Tillie the Toiler" has been pictured and comes to the Lamb theatre on Sunday. The photoplay stars Marion Davies as Tillie, and the rest of the cast includes the equally well known "Mac" portrayed by Matt Moore. Mr. Whipples' role is in the comical hands of George K. Arthur and George Fawcett is cast as Mr. Simpkins.
Tillie's trials and tribulations at the office, including her many love affairs, as well as her troubles at home are comically and forcibly brought to the screen under the realistic direction of Hobart Henley, who made "His Secretary" for Norma Shearer.

Tillie, the Toiler
says—

Don't smoke, drink or stay out late at nights. Don't play cards, go to theatres or go to parties, and you'll live for 150 years. It may not be 150, but it'll seem like 150.

Motor Company
Manager Hit By Car, Injured

Chas. Moore, manager of the Oil-belt Motor company, Ranger, was painfully hurt late yesterday afternoon, when he was struck by an automobile on Railroad Avenue. The accident might have been much more serious had not Mr. Moore had presence of mind to grab at the auto lamp and thereby in a way, break the shock. As it was, the ligaments in his left knee were torn and according to reports from his home it will be sometime before he will be able to stand on the injured leg.
Mr. Moore, who was chairman of the Lions entertainment committee for ladies night, had been out to the country club perfecting arrangements, and with Leslie Hagaman was returning to Ranger. When they reached the Texas and Pacific crossing a freight was across the track, so Mr. Moore decided that he would run over to the Pickering Lumber company and do some phoning and save time as he was anxious to get back to the country club.
He finished telephoning and was on the way back to the car and passing the granite street marker, when the car struck him. Mr. Moore grabbed the lamp of the car, which turned, but evidently kept him from being hurt more seriously.

The driver of the car took the injured man in his car and carried him to a physician's office, where he was given treatment and then taken to his home on Pine street.

DAUGHTERS of MIDAS

by Anne Austin

© 1927 by NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED:

T. Q. Curtis takes three girls from his big department store into his home as his wards for one year because he wants to help them further ambitions each has expressed. Billy Wells, anxious to be a concert violinist, is the only one of the three that is serious. The others—Nyda Lomax and Winnie Shelton—lie to enjoy the old man's wealth and generosity.

Billy becomes infatuated with Dal Romaine, nephew of Mrs. Meadows, the hostess. Unknown to T. Q., the girls learn he intends to adopt one of them when the year is up, and Winnie and Nyda turn the house into a place of intrigue.

T. Q. begins to question the wisdom of his philanthropy when he observes that Billy is neglecting her music and Nyda is not after all interested in becoming a kindergarten teacher as she has said.

One night, Nyda, who is ill, asks Billy to get a book for her from the library. Billy complies, and while there breaks a string of beads. As she gathers them up, the butler, Sawyers, comes in and finds her stooping before T. Q.'s safe in which are valuable diamonds. When Billy returns to her room, she hears a low whistle, and stealing into the garden meets Dal Romaine. As she is returning from this rendezvous, she sees Eddie Banning, Nyda's former sweetheart, sneaking out of Nyda's room. The next morning when it is discovered the safe is robbed, Sawyers turns suspicion on Billy. She tells T. Q. about her visit to the library for a book for Nyda. When Nyda is questioned, she denies having sent Billy. She decides to tell Clay Curtis, who loves her, about her troubles. He is the son of her benefactor, who has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family, working in a factory by day and writing music at night. Billy tells him about everything. He agrees with her that Eddie Banning is probably the thief and he tells her to leave everything to him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER II.
Billy did not see T. Q. Curtis again until just before dinner time that night, when, on descending the staircase, she saw him in the front hall, in low-voiced conversation with his lawyer, Presley Warburton. The lawyer nodded to her grimly; but T. Q. greeted her with his usual grave courtesy. Dinner was a painful ceremony that night. Nyda was still very pale and subdued; Winnie, who had returned from her father's bedside with encouraging news as to his condition, had been told of the robbery by Mrs. Meadows, and sulked a bit at not being allowed to talk of the exciting event.

Just before dessert was served, Sawyers brought Billy a telegram, which she tore open with trembling fingers.

"Off for Chicago. Don't worry. Will wire developments. Courage, Clay," was the laconic message, but it was enough to make her heart beat fast with excitement and hope.

She offered no explanation of the telegram, and T. Q., though he had studied her face keenly as she read the message, asked for none.

When the meal was over, Winnie skipped to the old man's side, and, linking her arm in his and cuddling her cheek against the sleeve of his dinner coat, asked coaxingly, "Aren't you going to have a private detective to work on the robbery, Daddy Curtis? It's just an awful shame to lose all those lovely presents you gave us."

T. Q.'s smile was a little sardonic as he answered: "To tell you the truth, my dear, I hadn't realized until you spoke what the loss would mean to you girls. Let's leave it at this—if I don't recover the jewelry, working in my own way, I'll make your loss good."

"Oh, Daddy Curtis, darling!" Winnie cried remorsefully. "I didn't mean that! You know I didn't! But you always were the most generous dear in the world."

"I have every hope, however, that the things will be returned," T. Q. said distinctly, and Billy was sure that his eyes flicked an appeal to her.

"He thinks I'll confess and return the miserable stuff," Billy told herself, as she hurried from the room. She was profoundly grateful for the fact that she had an engagement for the evening with Bruce Kruger, Constance Bradley and Constance's latest young man.

When she returned at midnight, Sawyers met her in the hall and told her that T. Q. wanted to speak with her in the library.

She found the old man slumped in his chair. But when she entered he pulled himself up.

"Come in, my dear. I hope you have had a pleasant evening. I—wanted to look into your eyes before you went to bed."

She understood. She came quite close to him and, raising her chin slightly, gazed upward with candid, clear eyes, which did not flinch at the sad question she read in his. For the third time in their acquaintance Billy Wells felt as if she were looking at the naked soul of Thomas Quinn Curtis.

"Mr. Curtis," she began gently, after that searching gaze had held unblinkingly for a long minute, "I want you to try to believe that I didn't do this thing. I left the house today without your permission, and I think I started something that will result in the clearing up of the mystery. I can't tell you what I suspect, for if I'm wrong, I would seriously injure someone. If I am right, you are going to be hurt—dreadfully hurt—when the truth comes out. I don't see how you can be spared. I'm sorry—so awfully sorry for all the unhappiness and pain which have come to you this last year."

T. Q. Curtis' breast rose on a great sigh, but the sternness of his face had relaxed noticeably. "Thank you, Billy."

The tears that wet her pillow that night were shed for T. Q. Curtis—not her herself.

It was almost exactly 48 hours after the robbery had been committed when Billy received her second telegram from Clay Curtis. It was as brief as the first: "Driving from Chicago. Arrive about 9 tomorrow morning. O. K. Clay."

"I wish he wouldn't be quite so economical," Billy laughed, as she tucked the precious yellow slip of paper under her pillow. "I'd like to know just what he means by 'O. K.'"

Fortunately the next day was Sunday. There was little danger that Nyda or T. Q. would leave the house before 9 o'clock, the Sunday breakfast hour.

Billy was in such a state of nervous excitement that she could not eat a fact which Nyda, Winnie and T. Q. seemed to note, each with different emotions. They were still sitting around the breakfast table, each with a different section of the Sunday paper, when Sawyers threw a bomb into the quiet dining room:

"Mr. Clay Curtis is calling, sir."

T. Q. sprang to his feet, incredulous joy succeeding blank amazement on his stern old face.

"You say—my son—is here, Sawyers?"

"I've shown him into the library, sir. He has a—a young man with him, sir," Sawyers coughed, as T. Q. was plunging out of the room. "He also asked to see Miss Nyda and Miss Billy, sir."

Billy glanced swiftly at Nyda. The beautiful face went suddenly white.

T. Q. Curtis came slowly back to the table, his keen narrowed eyes studying Nyda's betraying face. "I don't know what my son wants, Nyda, but we'd better join him. Will you take my arm?"

But Nyda shook her head as she stumbled to her feet. Seeing that she was in a dazed condition, T. Q. grasped her arm, and, half supporting her, led her from the dining room, across the great reception hall, and into the library. Billy followed, feeling sick with dread.

"Hello, Dad. Would you mind closing the door? I don't want my friend here to leave unceremoniously. Sit down, Banning!" Clay turned from a quick handshake with his father to bark the order to the sullen-faced man who subsided into a chair in the middle of the room.

"You will pretty soon, Dad. Sorry, but will you stand aside? Do you recognize this man, Nyda?" His left hand fell heavily upon Banning's shoulder, but his right hand did not leave his pocket, which bulged with hideous suggestiveness.

Nyda passed her tongue over her dry, open lips, nodded and finally spoke in a gasp. "It's—it's Eddie Banning. I—I used to know him—"

"Used to know me, you damned double-crosser!" Banning shouted, his face livid with hatred. "Looka here—"

Clay sprang forward to grasp the raging man by the arm, while the bulge in his pocket prodded into Banning's ribs. "Sit down now, and stay there." He forced him into a any rate, I got on Banning's trail in short order—thought he'd light out for Chicago and he did—and I found him there, trying to pawn the stuff. He'd pawned two or three things here and there—I've got the pawn tickets with me—but the rest he still had on him when I caught up with him. No use going into the story of just how I did it. I told him Nyda had confessed to her part in the robbery—that she'd admitted letting him into the house and out again, and had given him the combination to the safe—

"It's a lie, Eddie! It's a lie!" Nyda screamed. "Oh, he'll kill me now, he'll kill me!"

"You're damned right I will!" Banning struggled to free himself from Clay's grasp. "A fine wife you are, squealing on your own husband! But you'll go to jail with me!"

"His wife!" Billy's sharp cry of amazement shattered the sudden silence in the room, just before Nyda Lomax Banning crumpled to the floor in a faint.

WAS RECEPTION OF LINDBERGH IN CAPITOL POLITICAL MOVE?

By RODNEY DUTCHER,
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—One of the most astonishing things about life in Washington is the fact that no man in public life can ever perform a gracious or meritorious act without hearing all the smarties brand it as inspired by politics. The trouble is, of course, that more often than not the smarties are dead right.

At any rate, it seems rather a shame that this stuff couldn't have been kept out of the picture with Lindbergh's return and triumphal reception.

Instead, many of the anti-administration folk long since began to voice the suspicion that President Coolidge had finally decided to take care of Lindbergh's home-coming lest he be nosed out of some important publicity and national good will by Governor Al Smith of New York, who might otherwise have done the honors in company with Tammany's mayor, little Johnny Walker.

Somehow, Calvin Coolidge's reputation as a good politician simply won't let his ill-wishers keep off his neck whenever he speaks or acts.

On the other hand, one correspondent here wrote seriously the other day that no man in the United States was more excited and thrilled over Lindbergh's feat than the president. This was quite absurd, for Mr. Coolidge hasn't been genuinely excited over anything whatever in recent years.

The fact that stands out just now is that Mr. Coolidge has done the correct thing by Lindbergh and has done just what the country wanted him to do. More could hardly be asked.

The court action which threatens to complicate the activities of the federal radio commission was predicted by Congressman Sol Bloom of New York in a recent conversation. Bloom expressed the belief that the courts would decide broadcasting to be a matter for state regulation and that the radio law, based on the idea that broadcasting was interstate commerce, would be cast out because in broadcasting there is no buying and selling. Bloom said he was in thorough sympathy with the commission's work, but feared that it had no right to interfere in broadcasting unless it was really interstate commerce.

Red Cross Worker's Letter Sounds Big Flood Zone Need

Mrs. R. H. Hodges, president of the Child Welfare Club of Ranger has received another letter from Mrs. Henrietta Ablard, who is doing Red Cross work in Washington, La., in which she states that the flood is still a menace.

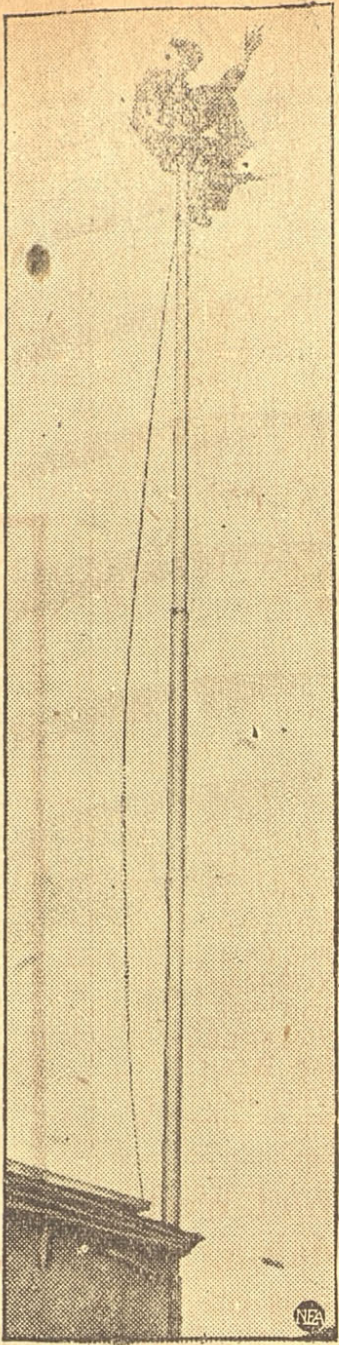

She states that it will be a long time before roads are passable as most of them are still under water.

She writes that every one is discouraged as the bayou has not fallen perceptibly.

Mrs. Ablard is still sounding the need for men's clothing. She said that a carload of clothes had been received but there were few men's clothes in it and they are still badly needed.

Several boxes have been sent from Ranger, one being sent by the Child Welfare club.

Modern Monk

In the old days monks used to do penance by spending long periods atop pillars. Now comes Alvin (Shipwreck) Kelly with an attempt to spend eight days aloft on a flag pole at Newark, N. J., just for the fun of an endurance test. Here he is on his foot-square perch, with radiophones on his ears to while away the time.

helluva time learning to smoke. From the age of three to the age of nine years and seven months, life was constant agony for me through stomach sickness brought on by trying to join the other boys and girls in this diversion and through the shame of my weakness. The other children would laugh heartily at me and finally I was too embarrassed to join them in their play.

"Then one glorious day, I discovered Mucky Bites! From that day to this a cigaret has never made me ill, but I shudder to contemplate what might happen were I to try another brand.

"Every night I retire with a pack-age under my pillow. Supreme happiness for my children is to have their daddy return home from a trip with a carton of Mucky Bites."

BOY WAS SICK

Texan Tells How He Got Acquainted With the Good Work of Black-Draught as a Laxative.

Glenflore, Texas.—"I had a sick spell when just fifteen years old," says Mr. George W. Maness, R. F. D. 2, this place. "Anyone who has had chills, like I had, is apt to remember them. I was a sick boy—just lay around the home, weak. My skin was yellow and I could hardly stand up. I had hard chills.

"My father gave me quinine. Someone told him to give me Black-Draught with it. He brought some home, and they fixed it up like tea. It wasn't very good, but I was so sick I would take anything.

"After a few days, I began to feel better. I was hungry and could eat. I kept on taking the tea for awhile, and I got well. I haven't had chills since then, but I have taken a lot of Black-Draught since that time. It is a family medicine with me."

Where assistance is needed in the way of a laxative or cathartic, Theford's Black-Draught should be taken, as often as necessary, to open the bowels and put them in a healthy and normal state of activity.

This Versatile Senator Should Be An Ad Writer

By RODNEY DUTCHER,
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—Senator J. Boom boom McWhorter is sorely miffed over the failure of the cigaret companies to approach him for permission to use his name and comment in their ads.

Not that Senator McWhorter is a grasping person, you understand. The money the cigaret people might pay to him means nothing to him. Nor is the senator so anxious to get his topography into the newspapers that he must sink to such means as that.

But it is just a bit humiliating to see the pictures of other senators in the papers, alongside their assertions that Mucky Bite cigarettes help them in public speaking and that they are bringing up their families on Mucky Bites.

Just as soon as he saw the first of these ads, Senator McWhorter dictated an elaborate encomium to these cigarets and had it all ready to send upon request. But although such senators as Wadsworth, Curtis and Watson made their bows to the public and contributed each his praise to this brand, there was no call for McWhorter.

The culminating blow came when a cigaret ad appeared quoting "Senator" Ralph Cameron of Arizona, who is no longer a senator. Surely the tobacco trust had no idea what an enthusiastic and loyal customer it had in McWhorter.

"Why I might even have given the $1000 to charity," said Senator McWhorter to your correspondent, with what sounded suspiciously like a snuffle.

Your correspondent held the senator's hand, patted him on the shoulder and asked if he couldn't read the tribute to the senator's favorite cigaret.

"Yes," replied McWhorter, reaching toward his desk. "I'll read it to you."

And the senator began:

"When I was but a lad, I had a

HOME IS AS NEAR AS THE NEAREST TELEPHONE

On Your Vacation Remember Those At Home

It is in the evening when twilight creeps over the landscape, in that calm interval between strenuous day and festive night, that thoughts of home come to us. Back there amid the familiar scenes, engaged in their accustomed duties—maybe you feel a little conscience-stricken in your vacation freedom. Cheer up and cheer them up—telephone. Reduced rates on station-to-station calls start at 7 p. m.

Go to the telephone and give the operator the name of your home town and your home telephone number. And for your convenience you can have the call charged to your home telephone.

TOURING

If you plan to tour this summer, remember that hotel accommodations are limited. Be sure of a place to sleep—call ahead and make reservations.

You can do this economically by using station-to-station service and placing your call during the evening reduced rate periods—after 7 p. m.

Just give the telephone number, or, if you don't know it, the name of the hotel in your next stopping place.

More Service

The talking period for trans-Atlantic telephone service has been extended four hours. You can now talk to London from 5:30 a. m. to 4 p. m., Central Standard Time.

Like Soldiers On Guard

To telephone people in the business of providing telephone service, most days and nights pass without event—giving telephone service, maintaining telephone lines, becoming a matter of well-trained habit. But suddenly danger looms and this habit of telephone service rises to courageous endurance. During the recent floods, telephone service was maintained throughout the inundated areas after other means of communication had been cut off.

Forgetful of self, operators and linemen continued at their posts, and their untiring efforts helped to relieve the suffering and distress of the flooded areas.

PROGRESS

The Bell Telephone Laboratories, located in New York City, are a part of the Bell System. In these laboratories, scientists and engineers work on problems of perfecting telephone apparatus, enabling the Bell System to give the best and most economical telephone service in the world. The convenient desk stand instrument, and, more recently, the dial telephone, are products of these laboratories.

The Southwestern Company, as one of the Associated Companies of the Bell System, receives the benefits of all inventions and improvements in telephone equipment and methods produced in the Bell Laboratories.

Why we sell the DUNLOP TIRE

FOR 39 YEARS Dunlop has been building the world's supreme tire. Dunlops wear longer because Dunlop knows how to build better at each vital point.

Take the hidden carcass beneath the tread. Dunlop owns its own cotton mills for no other purpose than to spin the best long-fibre cotton into the famous cable-twist cord that goes into this carcass.

The extra strength in these cords means an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

The extra "stretch" enables the carcass to give under severe blows, and to come back into its original position without internal injury.

The Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known—wears slowly and smoothly, making sure that you get out of your Dunlops, all the extra mileage that added care and longer experience have built into them. We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car.
