LINDBERGH IS BACK IN PARIS TO SAY GOODBYE

By United Press.
PARIS, June 3.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh returned today to the city of his original triumph, to say farewell before leaving tomorrow for Cherbourg where he will board the U. S. White Cruiser, Memphis to return to the United States.
The American landed on Le Bourget field at 10 a. m. after maneuvering over the field and performing a few stunts in the air. He had flown from London in two hours and 22 minutes actual flying time, including two take offs and two landings.
The extra take-off and landing were caused by the fog over the channel which compelled Lindbergh to drop down at Lympne on the Kent coast and wait an hour and 15 minutes for the fog to lift.

Unusual interest prevails at the convention this year, in view of the recent return from the United States of Dr. Besant and Krishnamurti, otherwise known as the "World Teacher," although no reference is made on the agenda to Theosophical conditions in America.

These Photographs Show Lindy's Reception In Paris

These first actual photographs to reach this country from Paris give a hint of the acclaim with which the French capital greeted Captain Charles A. Lindbergh. Above Lindbergh is shown in the middle balcony of the American embassy, waving a French flag and an American flag in response to the tumultuous shouts of the crowd below; the lower picture shows a human chain of French troops guarding his airplane at Le Bourget flying field after souvenir hunters damaged it.

Lindbergh brought joy to everyone in Paris but to the police he also brought lots of worries. Whenever he went abroad they had their hands full controlling the crowds which turned out to get a glimpse of him. Here's a throng typifying the woes of the Gendarmes, who are struggling to save Lindy from a mobbing as he arrives at the American club.

AUSTIN, June 3.—The report made to the senate today by Highway Commissioner Cone Johnson for the highway commission in response to a resolution requesting information concerning "lost" state owned road machinery was severely criticized by Senator I. D. Fairchild, author of the resolution.

Responding to a dose of nitro, Massman No. 1, Chestnut-Smith et al. located one and one-half miles southeast of Romney, came in yesterday afternoon making 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas and 25 barrels of oil per day.
The oil shot over the derrick about 25 minutes after the shot was administered and flowed for about 20 minutes. It was reported as being most spectacular by those who saw the column of black gold shoot up over the top.
It is reported that this well, which came in at 2,950 feet, looks most promising and since it is a mile and a half from other production, being that far from the Morgan pool, it will open up a large field heretofore undeveloped.

THREE SMALL TOWNS ARE IN FLOOD PATH

Downtown Sidewalks Elevated on Scaffold As Measure of Safety

By United Press.
NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—Its destructive march to the sea almost complete, the crest of the Mississippi flood made its last threatening gesture today before losing itself in the Gulf of Mexico.
The little towns of Berwick, Donner and Gibson were bearing the brunt of the flood's last attack. Gibson had been evacuated but Berwick and Donner were standing their ground.
Berwick with its 2,000 population was behind a seven foot levee which will protect the town unless it breaks before the flood crest can pass.
Sidewalks in the downtown district were elevated on scaffolds in preparation for the possible break.
Donner, a small milling town, east of Morgan City, was none too safe behind a six foot levee.
Every able bodied man in the town was at work on the wall, bolstering it to withstand the flood crest.

Texas Company Gasoline Pumps Being Painted

Painting the town red is said to be a pleasurable thing to do, but painting gasoline pumps red by steam pressure looks as easy as falling off a log. All the Texas Company gasoline pumps in Eastland county are being painted red today.
The paint wagon of the Texas Company was drawn up in front of the Black and White Garage this morning and the man in charge started a motor going inside of the big truck and proceeded to spray the pump red and so quickly that one hardly realized it had been started until the pump shone forth in all of its new red beauty as fresh as an automobile just out of a paint shop.
This visit is one of the periodical ones that the Texas Company's paint wagons pay Ranger and other Eastland county dealers in Texaco gasoline.

FROM THE BIBLE

The four fold Glory:—
Thy loving kindness, O Lord, is in the heavens;
Thy faithfulness reacheth unto the skies;
Thy righteousness is like the mountains of God;
Thy judgments are a great deep;
O Lord thou preservest man and beast.—Psalm 35:5, 6.

COURTHOUSE AND TAXES.

A reader of this column writes in regarding the proposed new courthouse for Eastland county and from his letter one might be led to the inference that there is somebody in Eastland county that might be classed as tax dodgers.

We are not in position to say. They may be or there may not be tax dodgers in Eastland county. But we are informed from a thoroughly reliable source that there are some people in the county who are not paying their taxes regularly—people who are generally classed as tax delinquents.

We take the position that Eastland county needs a new courthouse and that it should be built. But of course it takes money to build the courthouse and if every person in the county refused or failed to pay his taxes, the task of building the courthouse would be a hopeless one.

We also take the position that every property owner in the county should pay his taxes. Of course there are instances where it is not convenient to pay our taxes but the matter of letting them drag along for years should not be permitted.

The amount that a man owes the city, county or state in taxes is no less an obligation than the note he owes at the bank. But it is remarkable how much quicker he will pay the note. It is remarkable the effort he will make to keep himself in good standing with the bank while he is at the same time listed as a delinquent on the tax records and allows it to worry him not the least.

If Eastland county had all its back taxes collected and could collect its taxes 100 per cent for the next few years the new courthouse could be built without the slightest hint of a burden to anyone in the county.

If every municipality and school district in Eastland county had all their back taxes collected and could collect 100 per cent for the next few years there would be nine months school in every district and there would be no reasonable excuse for any incorporated community in the county being in debt.

WE WONDER.

We sometimes wonder if Charlie Lindbergh hasn't often regretted making his remarkable flight to Paris. We are told that young Lindbergh enjoys being alone frequently, that he rather enjoys his own company.

If that is the case he has certainly been robbed of a lot of real enjoyment since he landed in Europe. He has been lionized in Paris, Brussels, London and is now coming back to Washington for the same purpose. And it looks as though he is going to be forced to go to New York, for New York seems to have resented the idea of the young hero coming to Washington instead of New York.

Anyway, we bet Lindy will be glad to get back in the old U. S. where he can slip around the corner and put in his order for "ham an' nut" without being pestered with diplomats and hero worshippers.

"Last evening at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Galle, 2909 Harrison street, the marriage of their beautiful and attractive daughter Miss Edna Freida Galle, to Vaughn Baker was solemnized in the presence of relatives and immediate friends of the family, Rev. R. Thomsen, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church officiating.
"Promptly at the appointed hour Mrs. George A. McNeil, seated at the piano, began playing softly Mendelssohn's wedding march, which announced the entrance of the bride party into the suite where the guests were assembled. The bride entered on the arm of her father and made a most charming picture in a wedding dress of Nile green georgette with hose and slippers of the same shade. She carried an arm bouquet of roses and valley lilies with touches of other flowers in dainty pastel shades.
"Miss Galle was attended by Miss Mary Wilkinson, who was also charming in tan georgette. She wore a corsage of sweet peas and roses. The groom was attended by the bride's brother, Richard Galle. The group formed a pretty and impressive picture against a background of roses and ferns. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. R. W. Prentice sang very sweetly, "O, Promise Me," and during the ceremony Mrs. McNeil played softly. At the close, a reception was held at the Hillcrest Country club for about 75 guests, and dancing, bridge and "42" were enjoyed until a late hour. Refreshments of little individual wedding cakes and ice cream were served.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Eastland, Texas, June 2nd, 1927
Editor Eastland Daily Telegram:
Dear Sir:

I notice in your editorial in yesterday's paper complaining of the "Hush, Hush, Courthouse Issue," and offering an opening for the issue to be aired, so I submit the following suggestions concerning the issue:
I agree with you that there is too much "Hush" stuff in the issue, and suggest that it might be well for the people to casually and cautiously feel out the position of the "Hush, Hush" bunch on the issue and see if they are not the ones that hush, hush themselves up to the county pie counter, again it might be well to see if this hush, hush bunch is paying their just burden of Tax that will eventually pay the bonds off on the new court house, and while making this investigation it might be well to investigate the tax rolls as to the valuation of property rendered by not only the hush, hush but the promoters of the issue as to their value compared with the valuation of the man who owns a tin-lizzie, a small home in town or the boys 80 or 160 acres of land at the Forks of the creek, carry this investigation a little further and see if the valuation of the corporations in the county is in keeping with the value of the boys at the forks of the creek, then see where the heads of the corporations stand on the issue.
You know heretofore it has been somewhat the rule that the masses await an expression on such issues until the high collar city politician has indicated to him which is the right side of the question and created a sentiment indicating the popular side of the issue, then he walks up and casts his vote to be on the big side, making no investigation whatever as to whether the politician is his friend or has his hand in his pocket, this policy, however, seems to have changed somewhat in the last few years and the information passed out on the "hush-hush" method instead of creating general discussion of issues apparently noses have been covered before votes are cast. I believe if the people will start an investigation along the lines suggested above that this issue will get plenty of publicity before the election. I do not know how the press will view this letter as to its publication but if they are not on the hush, hush side of the issue and give it publicity I believe material good will come from so publishing and investigating. It has been said that when issues or officers appear to the public is doing things smoothly that the "graffers" are getting what they want but if there is a continual up-

Georgia Man Tells How He Found Relief for Many Complaints by Using An Old Home Remedy.

Athens, Ga.—"I have been married 51 years, and am the father of ten children," says Mr. J. C. E. Weatherford, R. F. D. "A," this city. "About the best home remedy I have ever found is Black-Draught. I can't remember when we haven't used it in the family, giving it to the children for colds and minor ills where a laxative is needed.
"We must have used Black-Draught for 40 years, anyway, and in that time we have tried it for many complaints. I would have dull, stupid feeling, and my head would ache and when I would lean over, I would get dizzy. I found that a couple of doses of Black-Draught would relieve this. I used to have gas on my stomach, and would spit up grease. Black-Draught relieved this.
"It is just an all-round good medicine. Now that I am 72 years old, I have to take a laxative, and Black-Draught acts easy and gives me satisfaction."
In use for over 85 years.
Costs only one cent a dose. NC-181

KOKOMO NEWS

Special Correspondence.

KOKOMO, June 3—Ila and Zeema Johnson and Quint Hagan attended the singing at Olden Sunday night, where the Leon singing league and the Eastland singing league had assembled to have their regular singing.

L. F. Johnson and family spent Sunday afternoon with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Johnson. The farmers were very glad to have the nice rain Sunday evening, but the crops are still needing more. Miss Hallie Hagan is spending the week with her sister, who lives at Olden. The program last Friday night was attended by a large crowd. The program was very interesting, but we were very disappointed about our musicians being absent. Mr. Andrew and Loal Pittman and Alton Grisham sang a song for entertainment between the dialogues. There will be a play here Friday night, which will last over two hours. Everyone is welcome. We are expecting a real large crowd present.

Ranger Chautauqua Association Is Organized Here

The Ranger Chautauqua association was organized in Ranger on June 2, with Walter Murray president, J. C. Smith, secretary and Hall Walker, treasurer.
The meeting was held at Dr. L. C. G. Buchanan's office and after the election of officers, plans for handling the chautauquas that come to Ranger each year were formulated.
The purpose of the organization is to look after all matters that pertain to putting over a Chautauqua program, its financing and advertising, in a business like manner.
This morning members of the Chautauqua committee were busy distributing hand bills and programs for the premier chautauqua which comes to Ranger on June 21, and ends on the evening of the twenty-seventh, with "Firefly" in which Ranger's own Laura Townsley McCoy has the stellar role.

EASTLAND HOTEL COMMITTEE MAKES REPORT ON PROGRESS

The committee, composed of J. E. Lewis, T. L. Overbey, Cyrus B. Frost and John D. McRae, and known as the "hotel committee," have issued the following statement concerning the starting of work on the New Connelley hotel to be erected in Eastland by the Jones interests of Houston:
"For the information of all those who contributed to the bonus for the construction of the Connelley hotel, but wish to state that on yesterday we had a conference with Mr. John T. Jones and his architect, Mr. Wyatt C. Hedrick at the latter's office in Fort Worth.
It will be recalled that the original arrangement was, that work would begin on the hotel by June 1, but as is usual in such cases, there have been delays in the preparation of the plans and specifications and the perfecting of other details. Without attempting to particularize these delays we wish to state that all of them have been caused by things which could not have been foreseen and prevented in the beginning of negotiations. However, everything is moving along nicely now and bids are being invited for the construction of the building and will be opened at the office of Mr. Wyatt C. Hedrick in Fort Worth at noon on June 15, 1927.
After considering the plans and specifications as prepared by Mr. Hedrick, Mr. Jones suggested some changes in the interior of the building which met our request that we have a larger hotel than was first planned and also will make the hotel a better paying proposition. This was accomplished by eliminating some of the dead space in the building and substituting thereof bed rooms. We can assure our people that the hotel, when completed in accordance with the plans and specifications and the modifications mentioned here, will have a modern up-to-date fire-proof hotel of which we all will be proud.
It is proper for us to state that Mr. Jones stated to us that he and associates were just as anxious to get the work of constructing the hotel underway as the people of Eastland and he impressed us with the sincerity of the statement."

LIONS' SHOW UP TO PREDICTION, GREATEST PERFORMANCE OF AGE

An audience of pleasing proportions filled the Liberty theatre, Ranger, last night to see the Lions strut their stuff in their seven act vaudeville.
The audience was not disappointed. They never quit laughing from the appearance of the Tickville Fiddlers' band until the curtain dropped on the final act.
Each number on the program was distinctive, different and mirth producing and the Ranger Lions really are entitled to their claim of the biggest show of the season. They had it.
There was such a diversity in the various acts that there was no chance for any one to complain of a sameness or become bored, as is often the case in home talent productions, and the beauty about the entire program was that it was all of home grown and not imported talent.
The Tickville Band, an aggregation of fiddlers directed by Sousa Coleman, was so dolled up that mothers could not recognize their sons, especially one medic, but were real fiddlers. They took one back to the old square dances when "Money Musk," "Arkansas Traveler" and others of those old time favorites really had the popular tunes of the day. They certainly tickled some tickly tunes, did some clever special numbers and won the hearts of the audience in their first round.
Tom Knight in Chalk Talk made the audience set up and take notice and wonder if Ranger really had such a chalk artist in its midst and while the young artist converted fathers-in-law into mothers-in-law and tea pots into Chinamen, they visioned a future for him that ranked him among the leading chalk artists of America.
As nimble on her toes as a wild flower that blows in the wind, was Florence Alice Palmer, who costumed like a "Mademoiselle from gay Paree," gave a beautiful dance number. She was billed on the program as "Mademoiselle Florence," a nimble footed dancer who should be on Broadway.
All that Brooks and Henry in "Camels Will be Camels" needed to live up to the name of their act, was a hump on their backs, especially Harry Henry, who walked like a camel and was otherwise camelsque. He twisted and turned his muscles until some of the audience thought he would fall to pieces. He lifted monstrous weights, pulled some clever cracks and was a real partner to his co-actor, Mrs. Ray Brooks. With a make-up that outvalued any girl Apache that ever trod the masses of Paris' underworld, and a wad of gum that would make any stenographer green with envy, Mrs. Brooks proved to be as double-jointed as her partner and while she talked off some witticisms, she thrilled the audience with the tricks she did with her fingers and hands.
The Four Musical Maids, sung and played themselves right into their usual place in the hearts of the audience. Mrs. R. W. Laprelle, B. P. Granger, Miss Gillian Buchanan and Miss Nell Tibbels were the four musical maids and lived up to their billing.
Mmes. Laprelle and Granger sang, Miss Buchanan played the violin and Miss Nell Tibbels the piano, all pleasing their hearers to the nth power.
As a real depiction of domestic life, "The Time Table" would be hard to beat at any time, but especially when given by two such actors as Mr. and Mrs. Marion F. Peters. It was only a one-act playlet, but it involved some mighty truths on which the domestic altar has often been

TEXAS TECH GRADUATES 14 STUDENTS

LUBBOCK, June 3.—Texas Technological College passed the first milestone of her achievements Monday when 14 students were awarded bachelor of arts degrees by the institution in its first commencement exercises which were held at the college assembly hall. Twenty-eight students are in the first class, the other fourteen are to receive degrees in August.
Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of Oklahoma University, addressed the graduates in the program which was attended by more than 2500 students, towns-people, and out-to-city visitors and friends of the school. Dr. Bizzell's address was on "Qualitative Education."
In true academic style with the entire faculty and class attired in the cap and gown, a very impressive ceremony was enacted as the procession filed into the hall. The graduates occupied honor seats.
Following Dr. Bizzell's address, Clifford B. Jones, of Spur, chairman of the board of directors, presented the first degree to be issued by the college to Mary Dale Buckner, of Lubbock. She was the lucky one in a drawing held prior to the presentation. Dean James M. Gordon, of the school of Liberal Arts then conferred degrees upon the following: Mayme Alexander, Lubbock; E. M. Barnett, Lubbock; E. W. Camp, Lubbock; Claude S. Denham, Shallowater; La Thaggar Green, Lubbock; Esther B. Groves, Lubbock; Annie Wood Howell, Lubbock; Kathleen Ingram, Lubbock; Charles W. Ratliff, Lubbock; Pauline Roach, Clarendon; Dewey H. Roberts, Ennis; Pauline Trippett Montgomery, Amarillo; and Mary Hope Westbrook, Sipe Springs.

CHAUTAUQUA TO BE IN RANGER WEEK JUNE 21

The Redpath-Horner Chautauqua will be in Ranger for one week, beginning June 21 and its coming this year will have a double meaning for Ranger, as its program includes a musical concert on the last evening with Ranger's own Laura Townsley McCoy, assisting artist for Madame Schumann-Heink as prima donna.

The program for this season is a most brilliant one and might well be called "Joy Week." It begins with the Premier Male Quartet, a program full of Scotch and Irish fun. Chas. A. Plattenburgone, one of the most loved of American speakers will give "A Modern Tale of Two Cities," Evelyn Gaston, talented reader will give "Patsy," a most successful New York Comedy. A. B. McDonald will talk on the possibilities of beer coming back as well as give a most intimate discussion of the whole liquor question.

Jey Johannes, happiness girl and Irene Yihen, expert dietician will appear on the fourth day and "Fine Feathers," featuring Pearl Gray will add a touch of human emotion at night.

George Vierra, Hawaiian, who first brought the music of his land to America, will be here with his concert company on the fifth day and Dr. Chester M. Sanford, recognized authority on vocational guidance will give his famous lecture "You and Your Job," after a musical prelude.

On the last night the brilliant comic opera "Firefly" will be given with Laura McCoy in the stellar role. Season tickets are on sale and cost very little in comparison with the quality of the program.

Ranger Knights Columbus Host At Country Club

Between two hundred and fifty and two hundred and seventy-five Catholics from Ranger, Eastland, Cisco, Pioneer and Breckenridge gathered at Ranger country club last night, enjoyed a chicken barbecue and a dance and proclaimed the Knights of Columbus of Ranger, master hosts.

How many spring chickens were barbecued by the experts in charge of that part of the program is not known, but it is known that all present had all they could eat of this delectable dish and the "trimmings" and no one went away hungry.

After the feast dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. The Gholson hotel orchestra furnished the music—the floor of the ball room was in fine condition, the night was cool, and everybody in fine feather after such a tempting meal, to enjoy the dancing.

The feeding of such a large crowd was a big undertaking but it went off without a hitch and was one of the most successful affairs given in Ranger for some time.

Bulldogs Will Meet T. C. U. Team Here October 7

Ranger Bulldogs will have a chance to cut their teeth on Texas Christian university freshmen on Oct. 7, according to Coach Blair Cherry, who was in Ranger today.

This game will be just two weeks before the first conference game, which will be played with Eastland and Coach Cherry said that he felt that the strong competition that the Bulldogs will go up against when they meet the T. C. U. freshman team would be splendid training for them and might help them greatly in conference games.

Coach Cherry said that he was most fortunate in getting a date with this team.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Billy Wells, Nyda Lomax and Winnie Shelton, employes of the big T. Q. Curtis department store, are taken into the home of their employer as his wards for one year, because he wants to help them further their ambitions. Billy, who wants to be a concert violinist, is the only one that is sincere. The other two lie to enjoy T. Q.'s generosity.

The girls accidentally learn he intends adopting one of them when the year is up, and Winnie and Nyda turn the house into a place of intrigue.

Billy is unwillingly drawn into the contest. She is infatuated with Dal Romaine, nephew of Mrs. Meadows, the hostess.

She fears Dal is "playing" both her and Winnie Shelton and her suspicions are heightened when the two are absent from the city during the same week end.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XL
"Well, what do you want?" Nyda demanded angrily, as Billy only stared at her, wide-eyed and frightened. "Let me come in, Nyda," Billy whispered, slipping into the room as she spoke. "Please close the door, Nyda, did I wake you up?" But a glance at Nyda's right hand, which held a half-smoked cigaret, told her that that could not be the explanation of the strange sight she had witnessed. "I—I saw a man climbing out of your window."

"That's a lie!" Nyda's sullen, beautiful face was suddenly distorted with fury. "I've been in my room for half an hour, and nobody's been here! I see! You're trying to frame something on me, to queer me with T. Q."

"Mignon, they won't let me see you," the note began abruptly.

"Nyda! I was frightened for you! I—I thought you might have been attacked—or robbed—I saw I tell you—"

"And pray tell me how you saw any such thing. Where were you, little angel? Poor little sick girl! Papa Curtis has to hold your hand and get doctors for you and send you flowers and give you expensive trips to Crescent Lake! Poor little sick baby! What were you doing out at midnight, so you could spy one me?"

One of Nyda's long arms shot out, her long fingers closed over Billy's throat.

"Let—me—go!" Billy gasped, under the pressure of those murderous fingers.

"All right—but get out of here! Take your damned lies to Dal Romaine or T. Q. Curtis or anyone you please! And I'll have a sweet story to tell! Then we'll see what dear Daddy Curtis thinks of his little angel genius child! Get, I tell you!"

Billy did not wait to be told again. She ran to the door and tore it open. It was only by catching at the door jamb that she saved herself from falling over a crouching figure.

"Mrs. Meadows!" she gasped, wondering if she had gone completely crazy.

"I—I thought I heard a noise—a burglar or something," Mrs. Meadows stammered, a dark flush staining her softly withered old face. "Is everything all right?"

"Of course!" Billy lied, doing her utmost to get control of her face and voice. "I've been out for a breath of fresh air. I—I couldn't sleep. Then I went to tell Nyda goodby. I'm leaving tomorrow for Crescent Lake, you know. Good night, Mrs. Meadows. I suppose I'll see you before I go."

Without another glance at the trembling old woman who was trying pitifully to get back her dignity, and to pretend that she had not lied and spied, Billy ran to her own door, fumbling with shaking hands for the key.

Her mind swerved sickly from the only interpretation she could put upon the bit of ugly drama she had stumbled upon. And why—why—was Mrs. Meadows listening at keyholes, spying, lying? Had T. Q. Curtis stooped so low as to hire a spy to report on the actions of the girls? Wouldn't T. Q. Curtis be justified in evicting them both from his home? Winnie would be left, then, to win that strange secret contest that was to end in the adoption of a daughter and an heiress for the Curtis millions. But who was she—she, Billy Wells, who had stolen out for a midnight rendezvous with the man whom T. Q.

Curtis hated—to judge either Nyda or Winnie?
And underneath her self-loathing ran a swift, dizzying current of delight that Dal Romaine had held her in his arms, had reminded her, as if there had never been any doubt of it, that she was to marry him. Engaged! Engaged! Dal loved her, wanted to marry her, expecting nothing else than to marry her when the year was up.

When Viola brought her breakfast to her the next morning, the maid almost dropped the tray when she caught sight of Billy's face.

"Why, Miss Billy, you worse!" she ejaculated. "Who been smudging black under your pretty blue eyes? And your lips—why, they're purple, Miss Billy!"

"I'm all right, Viola, I just didn't sleep very well." She struggled to a sitting position in bed, and watched Viola adjust the wicker tray stand across the bed. "Ugh, Viola! There's enough here to feed a family of day laborers. Take it away. It makes me sick to look at all this food. Wait, I'll drink the orange juice and the coffee."

Her train did not leave until mid-afternoon. Viola, sheerly voluble, finished Billy's packing for her, while the semi-invalid lay, dressed for the journey, on the chaise longue. Mrs. Meadows came in two or three times during the course of the morning, with polite offers of assistance and advice, and Billy was amazed to find that there was not the slightest change in her manner. "I must have been dreaming last night," she decided at last.

At noon "old T. Q." insisted on carrying her down to the dining room in his arms, for a farewell "family meal." Nyda and Winnie were both there, and, like Mrs. Meadows, Nyda acted exactly as if nothing had happened the night before. Both Nyda and Winnie pretended a great solicitude for Billy and promised, like the good little foster sisters they were supposed to be, to write her all the news.

"That's a lie! I've been in my room for half an hour."

T. Q. had a minute alone with her, after he had carried her back up stairs to her room.

Billy forced herself to smile at him sunnily, but her heart beat fast with apprehension, as she nodded assent.

"I haven't any right to ask it of you, but, as one friend to another, I'd like to ask you to make me a promise, Billy child."

"I want you to promise not to write to—to—well, to any man but me while you're gone. And you don't have to write to me unless you feel like it, of course. But I want your mind to be absolutely at rest for the next month. You understand, don't you child?"

Knowing that he meant Dal Romaine, she was grateful to him for not mentioning the name. "I promise to make up with Clay, and you'll get your appetite back and can throw away that bottle of sleeping tablets."

"I'm afraid it's not so simple as that, darling," Billy told her gently.

Mrs. Wells did not go to the station with the two girls and Billy knew that her mother refused Constance's offer of a seat in the Bradley sedan because she was shy of the aristocratic, reserved girl. But it was that very reserve, with warm, genuine friendliness underlying it, that made Billy feel more comfortable with her than with anyone she had met. She could be herself with Constance Bradley.

During the long, lazy month that followed the two girls became the closest friends, yet neither would have dreamed of intruding upon the privacy of the other. They occupied a luxurious suite in the most exclusive of the resort hotels, seeing just enough of each other to cement the friendship but not to endanger it, playing golf, usually in foursomes, with other guests of the hotel, which was not half filled and therefore extremely comfortable; reading, sleeping, enjoying the excellent meals; strolling in the spring evenings over flower scented country roads, or listening with quiet enjoyment, to the very good three-piece orchestra that played an hour an evening on the mezzanine floor of the hotel.

Billy did not hear from Dal, and his name was not mentioned in the few letters she received. As she had expected, Nyda and Winnie did not write her a single real letter; hastily scribbled postcards fulfilled the letter of their promise to Mr. Curtis. The spell which had bound her so painfully and so ecstatically to the mystic, dark man who looked like a Hindu, seemed mercifully to be lifted. She became normal again, flirted a bit, entertained her hotel ac-again could anyone "lay a spell" on her.

And yet her boyish cocksureness in her own strength was destined not to survive the first evening of her return to Golfax.

Banning becomes jealous of the fickle Romaine's attentions to Nyda, and Romaine exhibits his knowledge of another murderous art. In the next chapter.

Out Our Way

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY, (Copyright, 1927, by United Press.)

CHAPTER IV.

Two cats have won honored places in any story of Charles A. Lindbergh's career.

The first was a pedigreed Angora, aristocrat of the feline family. Lindbergh dropped it from a second-story window.

The second was a kitten of unknown antecedents. He treated it with such consideration that he has won commendation of humane societies and animal lovers the country over.

In addition to these two cats, which now have gained such great fame, dogs, horses and animals of every kind have had their places in Lindbergh's life, for he is one of those men who never is alone as long as there is an animal, preferably a dog, near by.

But to dispose of the cats. One of the earliest anecdotes of Lindbergh was told originally as illustrative of his early development of the experimental urge. Some one had told him that a cat, no matter how far it dropped, would always land on its feet. He was then aged 6 and the family was living in the upper flat of a "two-family house" in Minneapolis.

The folks downstairs had a valuable Angora. Charlie appraised it and decided that it would be a good bit of material for an experiment to determine the truth of the stories of cats always landing on their feet. He captured the Angora, took it upstairs and dropped it from a window.

"It landed on its feet," he explained to his mother, when she took him to task for his experiment.

The other cat was the one which adopted Lindbergh at Curtiss field, Long Island, New York, while he was preparing to make his trans-Atlantic flight.

He proved that his boyhood love of animals was still with him, for he never was too busy to stop a minute and play with the kitten. Often he was seen around the hangars, in those trying days, with the kitten on his shoulder.

"It may be cold and the kitten might die," he said as he insisted that, for its own good, it be left behind.

But dogs are Lindbergh's real companions. As a youth he wandered through the Minnesota woods, often being gone all day with only his dog for company.

He built a boat one summer in Minnesota and on it he and his dog embarked day after day on long excursions over the waters.

It was in those days in Minnesota that he became known first as a youth who always traveled alone. He did not dislike the company of others, but it was not necessary to his happiness and when he was engaged in the thing in which he was most interested he always wanted to be alone and have all the responsibility himself.

It is difficult to say whether this trait was a development of those days of patrolling the woods and the streams with his dog and gun, or whether a desire to be alone was the reason for such excursions.

There was hardly a tree or a nook in the woods around Little Falls, where the family lived, that Lindbergh didn't know by the time he was 15 years of age. He became a crack pistol shot and was also good with a rifle. But a cap pistol was one of his first cherished toys and he always seemed to prefer the smaller weapon. Later, when a student at the University of Wisconsin, the only trophy he had won up to that time in any important competition was a medal of the reserve officers' training corps for pistol shooting. He prized it highly.

Lindbergh's father was always a great admirer of Theodore Roosevelt and he told his son stories of Roosevelt's campaign in Cuba and of the Rough Riders. Soon Charlie decided that he was a rough rider. He added a horse to his list of animal friends and there followed a year or two of extreme anxiety on the part of his mother as almost daily she saw her son riding wildly through the country, alternating between the characters of a rough rider and a cowboy. During all this time he continued his interest in machinery and was following the development of the airplane. He became a motorcycle enthusiast later, but finally dismantled his motorcycle to apply the engine to a home-made ice boat, in which he rode the ice of Lake Mendota. The ice boat came to grief in a collision, but after a couple of weeks it was in commission once more, repaired through the resourcefulness of its youthful builder.

He learned to drive an automobile and his friends say that he is as skillful behind the wheel of a motor car as he is with an airplane.

With the family being forced to divide its time between Washington and Little Falls, Charles had his difficulties in the matter of his early schooling. He attended school part of the time in Washington, then, in the middle of a term, would go back to Little Falls and become a student there. His mother, who was a school teacher before her marriage, and now a widow, is again teaching, spent much time acting as his tutor, and it was through her efforts that he was able to keep up in his studies despite the many interruptions.

Then came a time during the world war when Charles' father was forced to devote practically his entire time to affairs in Washington and away from home. Conduct of the little farm where the family lived, accordingly, fell upon Charles. He took hold of it in his customary thorough manner, but soon decided that there was not enough use made of mechanical power. He set about to remedy the defect.

When he finished almost everything around the farm and farmhouse was mechanically operated and the farm became a center of much interest in the community.

About that time he was graduated from the Little Falls high school and entered the University of Wisconsin. He began the study of mechanical engineering, but college was not to Lindbergh's liking. He felt he was not learning there the things he wanted to know. He stood well in mathematics and he was an eager experimenter in the laboratories. But it developed that his interest in experiments was gone when he completed the laboratory work. He disliked writing up his notes and was continually behind. His main interest in college was in the pistol shooting competitions.

He took only a small part in college life, preferring to be by himself. Finally he gave up college in 1921, without completing his course, and soon thereafter began his amazing career as an aviator. (End Chapter Four.)

Coolidge Makes Three Remarks At Breakfast

By HERBERT LITTLE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—President Coolidge is continuing his "sausages and cakes" breakfasts for members of congress and government officials during the recess of congress, and the fare is reported as having been enlarged and improved.

The ones held during the congressional session were devoted to exposition of the President's attitude on legislation, but sometimes now, if there are no pressing problems, a breakfast will be held to discuss political conditions only.

The President is said to value the discussions for social purposes, although conversation of a social nature is reported to be entirely absent from the meetings. At any rate, the breakfasts apparently are a settled institution, and may in time come to be as well-known as Andrew Jackson's "Kitchen Cabinet" of advisors.

Democratic congressmen as well as Republicans are often invited to the breakfasts, which then are non-partisan.

At one recently, according to reports reaching Capitol Hill where most of the guests returned after the repast the following food was served: Grape fruit, scrambled eggs and bacon, hot cakes and sausages, and coffee.

The President is reported to have spoken just three times during the meal. After the food was eaten, he asked Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican national committee, to report on the condition of the party as disclosed to him on a recent trip to the far west. When Butler finished, he asked Secretary of the Interior Work to report on a similar trip. Both reports were reassuring and optimistic as to the regard of the west for the Coolidge administration, although there was no mention of a possible Coolidge candidacy for reelection.

When Work concluded, the president who has a national reputation for being silent, said: "Well, I guess that's all," and left.

Only two senators, Norris, Neb., and La Follette, Wis., both irregular Republicans, follow a policy of not attending such White House functions as these. Both have expressed the belief it would be a waste of time for them and for the President, because of their widely diverging views on most questions.

CHENEY NEWS

CHEANEY, June 3.—Everything is lovely around Cheaney. We had another nice rain Sunday afternoon and crops are looking fine. Most all are done planting cotton and peanuts and corn laid by. Lots of tassels so we are in hopes of a roasting ear soon. The berry crop was hurt badly by hot winds just as they were opening. They are about all gone. J. P. Strickies and son, Oscar, are making and painting a nice lot of benches for the tabernacle at Alameda.

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep? You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

James Thomas is having some improvement done on his house. Preparations are under way for the all-day singing at Cheaney next Sunday, June 5. Bro. Barrett failed to come to Cheaney last Sunday to preach from some unknown cause, though a large crowd gathered to hear him. Dutch Ervin of Ranger was at Cheaney accompanied by his sister-in-law, Miss Walker, looking after school interests. Mrs. R. R. Browning has a new canner. Cicero Rodgers gave a cream supper Saturday night that was enjoyed by all present. Mrs. W. S. Horn and boys of Abilene spent Sunday with her parents at Cheaney. Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Browning. Harlan Redwine and family of Albany are visiting his wife's people at Cheaney, Mr. Walker. Henry Walton and family of Waustell have moved on the Stevens place at Hunter. Let's all go to singing at Cheaney Sunday. T. A. Jones of Eastland has beautified his Cheaney home by having a nice paint job and it sure does look good.

Colony News

Special Correspondence

COLONY, June 3.—The box supper given by the Colony boys' and girls' 4-H club Wednesday night was, thanks to the business men of Ranger and Eastland, a huge success. The club is deeply grateful to them for their aid in making the supper a success and for the merchandise they gave to the club for auction. Owing to the fact that most of the people of this community are busy with crops and harvest work, the attendance was not quite up to the usual Colony standard. Miss Garby from Yellow Mound won the cake as the most popular girl in the house. The jar of sour pickles went to Mr. Whisenant of Eastland as the ugliest man. The club cleared $60 from the entertainment. The sum will more than pay the expenses of two of the club members for whose benefit the box supper was given, to the A. & M. short course. Several of the club members expect to attend the annual club encampment at Eastland Friday and Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Barrett and family from Corsicana visited Mrs. Barrett's mother, Mrs. Carr, last week. Mrs. C. H. Stuard has been ill for the last week. Mrs. Clarence Frasier and Misses Orie, Ola and Rena Frasier visited Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dean and family Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Pickett and family visited Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dean and family Sunday afternoon. Miss Esta Lee Carr spent Saturday with Miss Inez Pickett.

F. Weekes and family enjoyed a picnic down on the Leon river Sunday. Swimming and kodaking was enjoyed by the younger set. Miss Thelma McGlothlin who has been attending school at Triumph is at home now. We are all glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bolen and son back to this community.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

France. If a tourist in Paris happens to learn that a friend from back home is in town but does not know where he or she is stopping he need not worry. All he has to do is sit on the terrace of the Cafe de la Paix, in the shadow of the Opera building, and it is a hundred to one that the friend will wander by. This terrace habit is the spirit of the boulevardiers. You sit at a little table, the waiter brings your drink, with the price marked on the saucer, piling up saucer on saucer as you order, so that the amount is the bill is apparent, and you stay there just as long as you want, watching the boulevard strollers of every nation under the sun, the vendors of maps and postal cards and the so-called guides waiting for easy marks. You can see more of real Parisian life in an hour sitting at the terrace of a boulevard cafe than you would see in a month if you followed one of the "guides". If you take your afternoon coffee there you can see the "night workers" of Paris busy at their varied avocations. You may wonder the police don't interfere sometimes but you must remember that individual liberty is a sacred inheritance of the French revolution and unless somebody openly breaks the law in public he, or she, is free to do pretty nearly anything.
