OHIO EDITOR VICTIM OF ASSASSIN'S BULLET

PAPER MADE WAR ON LAWLESSNESS, OUSTED POLICE

Was Threatened By Letters, Bullets Fired Into House.

By United Press.
CANTON, Ohio, July 16.—Don R. Mellett, 36 years old, publisher of the Canton Daily News, one of the newspapers owned by former Gov. James S. Cox, was shot to death by unidentified assassins outside of his home here early today. Fourteen shots were fired by the assassin, some went into the house where Mellett and his wife were entertaining a party of friends.

Two of the bullets lodged in Mellett's head, killing him almost instantly. The party and returned late to the Mellett home, and were in the house where Mrs. Mellett was preparing a lunch. Mellett had gone outside to the garage to put his car in and the shooting took place when he started back to the house.

Mellett had been active in municipal reforms since he came here a year ago to take charge of the Cox newspaper. He was a central figure in a controversy that raged for months over the ousting of Police Chief S. A. Lengle.

Mellett had received a number of threatening letters last week and until yesterday had a special officer guarding his home, but when no violence was attempted, he concluded the letters were idle threats to stop his fight against vice and bootleggers and dismissed the officer.

CAR PROBLEM IS SERIOUS ON PLAINS

By United Press.
AUSTIN, July 16.—Reports received at the Railroad Commissioner's office here, are that the problem of furnishing cars to move the immense grain crop from the Plains country of Texas, has been solved according to railroad commissioner Lon A. Smith, the railroads have been intensively active in providing cars and Commissioner Smith said that it appears now that grain will be moved in the next few days without damage or delay. It was stated that the temporary delay in getting cars to move the crop, resulted from an unusual early harvest and an unprecedented wheat crop.
Information received at Austin is that the railroads are rushing cars from all parts of the country for quick movement of the crop. In some places where elevator service is inadequate, it is said that grain was being piled on the ground awaiting shipment.

JUNIOR BANKERS ORGANIZATION IS EDUCATIONAL

By United Press.
DALLAS, July 16.—Detroit was chosen for the 1927 meeting place of the American Banking Institute and Paul R. Detwiler of Philadelphia and T. R. Williams, were formally installed as president and vice president, respectively of the institute for the coming year without opposition.

DALLAS, July 16.—American bankers of today should be the envoys assigned to the task of lessening the age-old breach between capital and labor.

This, in effect, is the paramount aim of the American Institute of Banking, which closed its annual convention here today, according to Richard W. Hill, of New York, secretary of the convention.

While the institute was originally formed for the purpose of educating young bankers to keep the profession manned by competent officials, it has gradually become evident that the banker should have other tasks aside from keeping the accounts of the nation, Hill said.

Scott Brothers, Two Murderers, Greet Each Other

By United Press.
CHICAGO, July 16.—One visiting the gallows on which he is to die, the other starting into a blank future of a life imprisonment, the Scott brothers, Russell and Robert, today faced each other in adjoining cells. They met yesterday for the first time since one of them shot and killed Joseph Mauer. That was more than two years ago. They shook hands casually that night and started out to defeat justice. Last night they shook hands again casually with justice the winner.

The first greetings the brothers extended to each other was merely an informal, "Hello Bob," which followed Robert's, "Hello Rus."

The meeting of the brothers was allowed when Russell told his father, "Since I am going to hang soon, I would like mighty well to be near my brother," henceforth, he will.

CLOUDLESS SKY INSURES FIGHT FOR BERLENGACH

By United Press.
NEW YORK, July 16.—Bright sunshine pouring from a cloudless sky, and a promise of clear and warm weather from the forecasters made it appear almost certain that the world's lightweight boxing contest between Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney, scheduled for tonight at Brooklyn would not be postponed. The bout was postponed late yesterday because of a heavy rain storm. The delay seemed to increase the interest in the fight, as there was a larger crowd of ticket-seekers today.

Dopesters generally believe that Berlenbach would be benefitted greatly by the postponement. Delaney was a 11 to 10 favorite in the late betting.

WEALTH SPOUTS OUT OF GROUND IN NEW SECTOR

Numerous Producers Reveal Attractive Spot for Fraternity.

An acre of diamonds lies between Ranger and Eastland, with each claiming the honor. However, it matters little which city it lies nearest to, since the good that comes out of it is all for the good of Eastland county and its citizens.

The Parsons pool as it has been named, is a veritable "acre of diamonds" but instead of the black stones, that when cut and polished, represent riches untold, these acres yield liquid gold.

Few people realize how easy of access this new field is. To go from Ranger one can go out by Merriman, or to Olden, cross over to the Staff road, follow it for a short distance and be in sight of the field very quickly.

Drilling Everywhere
There is drilling everywhere. It seems like an active beehive in its activities. A number of the wells drilling and producing are on each side of the road and the large number of cars that are parked alongside of them show to the most uninitiated how many people are reaping the fruits of this new field.

The old J. D. Hanson's home bid fair to give way to the encroachment of oil as the wells are getting nearer and nearer the little home that has housed this family for many years. From the house one can see a number of derricks and the producing and drilling wells can be easily pointed out. Their No. 6 well, is almost within a stone's throw of their dwelling.

Surrounding Territory
Drilling is not confined to the Parsons land however, as a well is drilling on the McFadden, at about 500 feet, a well of 100 barrels is in on (Continued on page 3)

EXTERMINATION DEMONSTRATION ON COOK FARM

A demonstration of the Niagara cotton dusting machine will be held tonight at the L. G. Powell farm, also known as the Cook farm, at 9 o'clock. This machine was bought by L. G. Powell of the Lone Cedar community and W. L. Mallard of Staff, who bought it for the protection of their own crops against the cotton flea and boll weevil.

This is the first cotton pest exterminator to be brought into this county and on account of this fact, the Chamber of Commerce of Ranger made a substantial contribution to its purchase, and the Ranger State bank and Moss Ginning company both contributed $25 to the purchase price, which was $225 f. o. b. Ranger. The machine was sold through Bobo & Bobo of Ranger.

The test is made at night, when the dew is on the leaves and stalk, in order that the dust may stick to them and it does not require so much of the poison as if it were used in the day time. It stays on until washed off by the rain and when the weevil shoots a square he gets his death warrant, as does the flea when he comes out for his morning's morning.

Powell lives on his own farm and Mallard lives on the John M. Gholson farm. The Powell farm where the test will be held tonight, is about a half mile east of the Lone Cedar (Continued on page 3)

Fortune Wiped Out Man Kills Self With Gun

INDUSTRY PAYS 60 PER CENT OF COUNTY TAXES

Gasolines Is The Most Important Commodity The Nation Over

That oil in Eastland county is of more value to the county than farming was pointed out at a gathering of oil men this morning, where it was freely stated that the oil men resent the insinuations that oil is of secondary importance and that farming is the premier industry of the county.

One speaker stated that the matter was an issue of dollars and cents and said that if this is taken into consideration oil leads by a long way especially in Eastland county.

Eastland county people do not realize that the oil industry in Eastland county is paying 60 per cent of all the taxes paid in the county. How much is the county getting of the other 40 per cent, the oil men asked. Some of the oil men declared that the county is not getting 20 per cent of gas taxes outside of that paid by the oil industry.

Sells on Pre-War Basis.
Gasoline today, it was stated, is the most important commodity of commerce that is selling on a pre-war basis of value. A pound of cotton, a bushel of wheat, a thousand feet of lumber will all buy more gasoline today than they would before the war.

The industry pays in direct and ad valorem taxes at the same rate and in the same proportion as all other property does. In addition to all of this the industry pays to the state on every barrel of oil produced, a gross production tax which last year exceeded $7,000,000. The oil business, in its total taxes, is paying over 40 per cent of the total taxes paid in the state and these taxes equal the total taxes paid by the state 10 years ago.

Payrolls of Companies.
Further it was stated that the payrolls of the oil companies in the state aggregate approximately $250,- (Continued on page 3)

DOTY DRAWS 8 YEARS AT HARD LABOR

By United Press.
BEIRUT, Syria, July 16.—Bennett J. Doty of Memphis, Tenn., today was sentenced to eight years forced labor by the court-martial at Damascus, which tried him for being absent without leave from his post with the foreign legion during the fighting with the rebel tribesmen in Syria.

He is the son of Lemuell Doty of Memphis, Tenn.

Word reached the United States in June that a 25-year-old soldier of fortune had been arrested and might be condemned to death, as he had been charged with desertion.

Through the influence of the American government the charge was reduced to absence without leave on which charge he was declared guilty today.

John Harvey, an Englishman, was arrested with Doty on the same charge and received the same sentence.

FASHIONS
 By HEDDA HOYT
 (Written for the United Press)
 Clothes make the woman—sometimes!

But all the fine clothes in the world won't make a woman attractive if she waddles like a game-legged duck or waves her hands like a trained seal. Carriage and posture are far more important than stunning clothes. The woman who holds her shoulders upright and walks with a graceful natural stride may be sure that though her dress is tawdry she will not have a protruding abdomen. Her arms will swing naturally at her sides and she will be unaware of her hands.

Savage tribes often have perfect postures because they are accustomed to balancing bundles on their shoulders and heads. Grace with them is natural. It is only among civilized people that we find women trying to conceal their curves and mincing along with short unnatural steps.

Women are ever aware of their hands and feet and they never seem to know just what to do with them. Unless a woman holds a purse in her right hand the hand hangs like a heavy unornamental appendage. The hands and arms are the most graceful parts of the body if properly used. Most motion picture actresses, for example, learn that hands and feet are quite as important as facial expression.

How often we see some pretty girl sitting with her knees and feet wide apart under a tautly stretched skirt. The feet should always be held together when sitting and the knees should be as close together as possible. The feet, when sitting should be crossed with one foot placed straight on the floor and the other foot crossed behind it. Try sitting before a long mirror in your natural position and see how ungainly you look. Find the most becoming manner of placing your feet and legs and then remember to sit that way. Swing the hands in rotary movement from the wrists each day with the fingers relaxed and you will develop graceful hands.

Women have tried to gain a flat busted appearance until the majority of them now droop their shoulders, sagging the busts and crowding the lungs. A low, flabby bust is homely to say the least. And by drooping the shoulders we not only lose the use of the muscles which hold the busts firm but we cause the abdomen to protrude and the shoulder blades to stand out.

Slab-sided hips, hollow chests, protruding shoulder blades and abdomens will be a thing of the past after a few years when women find what incorrect postures have done to their figures. Remember that the styles that will last are styles that are made for feminine figures. Figures can't hope to conform to styles when the health is involved.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE
 Pioneer, Tex., July 15, 1926
 Ranger Times and Telegram Publishing Company, Ranger, Texas.

A circular entitled "Why Our Whiskey Law Is Not Enforced," by W. J. Barnes, county attorney, has just been handed to me with a request that I should study it carefully, and see if I could ferret out its political significance, and upon its face it seems to be an excuse for the governor's pardoning record, but we are told that they endorse Dan Moody, so my first impression is bound to be an error. So we will have to look further; we notice that the name of every candidate who signed Harry Atwood's petition for a pardon is in black type stating that he is a candidate, for so it must be that this circular is intended to get votes for the candidates who failed to sign said petition. But in that case, it will fall far short of its intentions as it is a well-known fact, by all voters that said petition contains the names of some of our very best, ablest and fairest minded citizens, and I desire to state here that I would have signed Harry Atwood's petition if I had a chance, and I don't think the governor of Texas or the board of pardons acted democratic when they failed to act favorably upon said petition, as it would be a much safer procedure to act upon the judgment of those 720 men than upon the judgment of two or three hundred klansmen. In conclusion, we beg to state that we have studied the names on the petition carefully and we can't tell why, and we further find that there is not a name on that petition that we would be afraid to follow in the dark and it is absolutely clear of the names of people whom I even suspect of being bootleggers.

Respectfully,
 Box 806, Pioneer, Texas.

Heroine of Flood Of Dry Cimarron To Get Monument

People who know the Southwest—the country where floods are infrequent but spectacular and tragic—will understand the story of the flood in the Dry Cimarron River in 1903 which destroyed many homes in Folsom, New Mexico. That flood had its heroine. She was Sally Rooke, a telephone operator. At the time her name was printed in hundreds of newspapers with the story of how she had stuck to her switchboard in the rising flood and warned hundreds of people of their danger and saved their lives. Sally Rooke stuck there at her job and lost her life in the flood that she helped others to escape by telephoning her warnings.

Now this heroine of the switchboard is to have an enduring monument. More than four thousand persons from all parts of the country have contributed ten cents each to pay for the monument. They are telephone people—people who understand the sacrifice Sally Rooke made.

The monument is a huge granite boulder from the black granite deposit near Salida, Colo. This boulder weighs three and a half tons. On its face will be set a bronze tablet telling about the heroism of Sally Rooke. It will rest on her grave in Folsom.

Kahn Predicts Chicago To Be Cultural Center

CHICAGO, July 15.—The bulk of the United States soon will be tributary to Chicago—America's mecca of culture and art, Otto H. Kahn of New York, patron of music and art, believes. Kahn came to Chicago to attend the opening of the Ravinia opera, Chicago's annual musical event.

"The city is evolving its own school of art, music and literature out of its great commercial prowess, ambition, great life and strength," Kahn said.

"There is no conflict between great commercial power and cultural ambition. All demonstrate this. Even in the smaller cities there has been a great advance toward the greater things of life. Prosperity gives an tie to realize that there must be something better and he strives to find it."

Chicago's position in the realm of art will be independent of Europe and the east, Kahn believes and will be the expression of the life of America, mostly of the middle west.

UP on the wooded slopes of the Adirondacks during the long, hot days of July, the President of the United States has established his Summer "White House."

The famous Kirkwood estate with its sylvan seclusion has been invaded by secret service men, servants, stenographers, visitors—and reporters. Telegraph wires thread through the ancient trees and the click of the sounder vies with the woodpecker's r-r-r-r-r-rat-a-tat-tat.

With the President is J. H. Montgomery, UNITED PRESS reporter of the Washington Bureau who each day files the news story from the Coolidge summer home, which you read in this newspaper.

Of the major news-gathering organizations, the UNITED PRESS is one of the largest. Actually the UNITED PRESS is a great international importing and exporting business, in which facts are the cargo and radio, telegraph wires and cables are the carriers.

The UNITED PRESS directly serves newspapers in thirty-six nations and operates more than 85,000 miles of leased wires on the North American continent alone.

The newspaper which prints news "BY UNITED PRESS" is always a distinguished newspaper.

Extermination Demonstration On Cook Farm

school on the Staff road. The direction says to turn at the Lone Cedar school and go east about one-half mile.
A large delegation is planning to go from Ranger to see the demonstration tonight, as the business men and the Chamber of Commerce are very interested in stamping out all pests of this nature, as shown by their hearty and generous contributions to the purchase of the first machine.

The Niagara cotton dusting machine is used in large numbers on the big Taft farm, some 40 or 50 being in use and it is also used exclusively in the state prison farms to combat these destructive pests.
These enterprising farmers deserve much credit for their zeal in blazng the trail by the purchase of the dusting machine, which doubtless will be of benefit to many who follow in their footsteps.
Anyone interested in the demonstration can attend the test tonight.

Lions Special Makes A Stop For Rangerite

A total of eight cars composed the long Lions special that came into Ranger today at 1:36 and spent 15 minutes greeting friends and brother Lions here.
Walter Murray of the Times Publishing company, representative of the Lions club of Ranger, joined the party here for its long trek to San Francisco, and Dan Dudley of Oak Ridge poultry farm also took passage, bound for Petaluma, Calif., where he goes to study poultry conditions and raising, under the auspices of the Bankhead Poultry Producers' association.

The train will stop in El Paso, according to Passenger Agent B. A. Tunnell, where they may go over to Juarez and see the sights and possibly slack their thirst. From El Paso they will go to Williams, Ariz., where via the Santa Fe they can take a side trip to the Grand Canyon. Thence back to Williams and on to Los Angeles for a one-day sight-seeing trip and then on to San Francisco for the national convention of Lions clubs.
From a local standpoint it was a joyous crowd, all fresh from the first leg of their journey toward the land of the setting sun and when they reached here a number got off the train, grabbed Walter Murray and with him in the lead marched up to the corner of Main and Rusk and back again, singing "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and several other fitting ditties.
The men wore civilian clothes, of course, but their hats were rakish affairs of what, turned up on left side and in the center of them was the word "Texas," while the band carried the letters, "L-I-O-N-S."

The men wore civilian clothes, of course, but their hats were rakish affairs of what, turned up on left side and in the center of them was the word "Texas," while the band carried the letters, "L-I-O-N-S."

EASTLAND LIONS LEAVE FOR MEET

Eastland Lions making the trip are George Briggs, Virgil Foster, R. H. Bush, Harry DeLane, and several others.

Grain and Gasoline Movement Heavy On Ranger Lines

Both railroads in Ranger report that they are not being embarrassed by a shortage of cars in moving out the grain crops. To date the Ranger line has moved about fifty cars of wheat coming from Wichita Falls and vicinity and moving to Galveston for export and expect more shipments. Their line shows no congestion or shortage of cars and using the movement of the cars as a gauge the amount of grain shipped from this vicinity is double that shipped last year.
The Texas & Pacific also reports that they have no car shortage and are able to furnish their patrons equipment one hundred per cent.
Gasoline, they state, continues to move daily, most of it going to South East Texas or the Northeastern part of the United States, where it is blended to make gasoline for commercial consumption.

Colony To Hold Singing School For Fortnight

Mr. Stewart of the Colony community has notified Secretary C. C. Patterson of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce that starting tonight at 7 o'clock, there will be fifteen nights of singing conducted at Colony school and friends and those interested in singing are invited to attend any or all of these evenings of song.
On Aug. 2, he states, they will begin a singing school as a happy conclusion to the fifteen nights of practice, which will also last fifteen nights.

Wealth Spouts Out Of Ground In New Sector

the Bob Wright, and another drilling, and P. Green Wright's farm h. production and several wells drilling.

The J. D. Parsons tract shows the following wells: No. 1-A the discovery well, which came in for around 300 barrels; No. 1-B 110 barrels; No. 2 due in about Monday, No. 3 came in last Tuesday, the twins No. 4-A and 4-B, within twenty feet of each other, but both small producers; No. 5 which had a production of 180 barrels, and No. 6 is drilling at 7-10 feet.
The location of this field is very attractive. A number of the wells are right on the hillside and are visible for a long distance.

Cheesecloth Pest Duster Exhibited

The Chamber of Commerce, Ranger, has on display a dusting apparatus, made by Moss Ginning Company, for the extermination of cotton pests, which may be made by any farmer for a cost not exceeding one dollar, and maybe less.

Two bags of cheesecloth, in which the dust is carried, are tacked on a long bar, hanging full length from each end of the bar, and maybe carried on the back of a horse dusting each side of the cotton plants as he moves down the row.

The Chamber of Commerce will be very glad to show this to any farmer interested as it is the desire of the agricultural committee of the local chamber to do all they can to help rid Eastland county farms of the destructive pests.

AMERICA MORE GENEROUS THAN FRANCE TO DEBTORS.

WASHINGTON, July 16. — The pending debt settlement with France, is more generous to that country, than terms granted France by any other credit nation, according to a statement Melton issued here today. The statement was given out to correct erroneous information in the British and American settlement, it was said.

The institute, which embraces a membership of approximately 56,000 also stands out as a distinctive organization of employees, Hill said. It is composed of junior bank officials, representative of the embryo financiers, and it is an association of employees, banded together for the welfare of the profession and not for the interest of the employe as against the employer, Hill said.

Hill divided the general objective of the institute into three leadings: 1. Training of the individual banker. 2. Elevation of the general standard of service and efficiency of the banking profession. 3. Education of the general public in banking principals and co-operation with all moves designed to reflect credit to the nation.
To promote the general public relations and popularize the banking profession, the institute has founded chapters in many of the important cities of the United States, where district instruction is carried on. Institute members are urged to take part in public affairs "always striving for the right of things, careful not to antagonize where antagonism would do more harm than good, and unalterably opposed to anything which smacks of anarchy, radicalism or revolt against the principles of government and law," Hill said.

Industry Pays 60 Per cent Of County Taxes

000,000 yearly, while the amount of money spent on leases and bonuses is over $225,000,000.

Farming must talk in big figures when they say they can match these figures, it was pointed out.

The cotton growing industry raising 4,000,000 bales of cotton last year, had a gross value of $750,000,000, 90 per cent of which was shipped abroad and the east, all of which would probably be shipped back in the form of finished products. The textile industry has not been developed and is not being developed anything like it should be in keeping with its opportunities, it was said.

The oil industry in the state has been built up with foreign money, that is money from outside the state, it was stated, while the property and values are all in Texas, paying Texas taxes, and despite this, there is this continual grumbling that the oil operators take exception to. Further this bickering is another reason why eastern money houses look with disfavor upon Texas.

All the oil men ask is to be treated justly and left alone to conduct their own business, they said.

How To Prevent Exhaustion From Heat Discussed

By JOHN WYCHOFF, M. D. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute (Written for the United Press)
 CHICAGO.—Heat exhaustion is the commonest form of illness resulting from individuals' being subjected to high temperatures for long lengths of time. Most people have experienced it in milder forms. In its graver forms it is a very serious disease and not infrequently causes death. It frequently attacks children and people who have been in poor health. It finds a ready victim in the individual who is intemperate in his use of alcohol.

The symptoms begin with a feeling of giddiness and frequently of nausea. The legs feel unsteady, the patient looks pale and may become unconscious. Externally the body is cold and clammy. The temperature is below normal.

One of the oldest diseases on record is heat stroke, or sun stroke as it is more commonly called. It is usually brought on by direct exposure to the sun's rays in extremely hot weather, particularly if the person is exposed for a long period of time.

Its onset is sudden and in rare cases it seems to cause almost instantaneous death. Usually, however, it is ushered in with a terrific headache, dizziness, a feeling of oppression, and sometimes nausea and vomiting. Patients also complain that objects appear to them as "being peculiar colors."

The victim of sun stroke looks altogether different from the heat exhaustion patient. In that condition the skin is cold and clammy; in sun stroke, the skin is hot and fiery. In the former condition the patient is pale; in sun stroke they are red. The temperature rises rapidly frequently going to 110 degrees.

Enough has been said of the seriousness of the diseases of heat to show you the necessity of taking certain precautions in hot weather. Wear clothing of thin texture to allow the perspiration to evaporate readily, and of light color to reflect the sun's rays instead of absorbing them. Avoid clothing as loose as possible, particularly about the neck, so as to avoid interference with the circulation.

As far as possible take things easy. Do not hurry. Don't run for street cars—wait for the next one. It is better to be late than to have to go to a hospital.

Don't Eat Much
 Don't eat too much in hot weather. Particularly do not eat hot things. Avoid pastry. Eat meat only once a day. Drink plenty of cool water, but no alcoholic drinks.

Bath
 Showers are particularly good. In hot weather, as far as possible, staying out for long periods in the sun. If this cannot be avoided be sure to wear a hat, preferably a straw hat.

If you are called, in an emergency, to help someone who has been overcome with heat, summon a doctor as soon as possible. Then if the patient is cold and clammy, has a pale face, covers him with a blanket, give him a warm drink and put a hot water bag at his feet.

If on the other hand the patient's face is red put him in a cool place. Apply ice to the head, give him a cool drink and sponge his extremities until the doctor arrives.

Gigantic Bone Found Throws A Town Into Row

By LUDWIG POPPER (United Press Staff Correspondent) BEKLIN.—This is the tale of a marvelous bone that threw a whole Bavarian district out of joint.

The little medieval German town of Neustadt in Bavaria decided to modernize itself and to acquire a sewer system as a first step toward this end. A gang of workmen at once started to dig, and during the excavations a worker discovered an object, which, after long discussions was pronounced by the foreman to be a bone.

The head foreman was called, the assistant engineer appeared, even the chief engineer was aroused from his afternoon nap, and the entire congregation decided to bring the bone to the town hall and lay the whole matter before the burgo-master and the municipal council. This they did; a special session was called, and the burgo-master, who was known to possess the acutest brain of the town, carefully inspected the bone, did some hurried but deep thinking and declared the relic to be the thick bone of a prehistoric human being of gigantic dimensions.

Spread Everywhere
 The news of the wonderful find spread over the town. Crowds besieged the town hall, demanding a peek at the venerable relic, and the general excitement grew until the burgo-master, in order to calm his flock somewhat, decided to celebrate the historic event by the customary beer fest dear to all German hearts.

To be held the same evening, the burgo-master got up and delivered a stirring address, carrying the audience to ecstatic heights.

"This bone," he said, "will carry the glory of our town through the whole world. New York, London and Paris will envy us our possession. Scientists will throng before our gates. Gentlemen, our bone, the pride of our town—Hoch, Hoch, Hoch!"

The frantic applause had scarcely died away, when a sinister stranger entered the hall and approached the high seat of the burgo-master with determined steps.

"I," he said, with an ominous frown, "am the representative of the country railway. This bone has been discovered upon the premises of the railway, and is therefore its property. Hand it over!"

The assembly was speechless. But only for a moment; then threatening murmurs arose, brawny hands took a good grip on steins, and in the background the familiar noise of clanking legs being wrenched off was distinctly heard.

But the burgo-master had the spirit of Locarno. He did not want war; he was past that age. Therefore he stopped the rush of the infuriated defenders of the bone with a battery of fresh beer kegs and persuaded them, as right was undoubtedly on their side, to leave the decision to the courts.

Placed In Vault
 Finally, this was agreed, and the bone, which had become a real bone of contention, was transferred with due honors to the vault of the town hall to await its fate, properly guarded by the Schutzen Verein.

Now it was up to the courts. In consideration of the importance of the case, the courts started to work and after a year or so it became known that the first hearing of the case might be expected in a few months, thanks to the courts' special efforts to rush the matter through.

But just at that time—the fame of the bone had been spreading far and wide—a scientist happened to visit Neustadt, and the burgo-master was towns treasure to somebody able to appreciate it to its fullest extent.

The scientist looked at the bone; then he looked again, and smiled.

"What's the matter?" the burgo-master asked him anxiously. "Don't you think that this bone might have belonged to one of my prehistoric ancestors?"

"It might, at that," replied the scientist. "It is the leg bone of an ox."

One vacation postcard you'll never see is from Coolidge to Congress saying, "Wish you were here."

Prince of Wales is writing poetry. It's a symptom of matrimony.

Engineer Plans To Use Gas To Generate Power

By United Press.
 AMARILLO, July 15.—A plan to generate electricity from the gas from the oil fields which will be used for power to irrigate the Panhandle section and convert it into a country of irrigated farms, is proposed by C. Berg, Detroit engineer and a group of Amarillo business men.

With the electricity generated from the gas would be gained the power to be utilized in pumping water for irrigation purposes throughout the shallow water belt. The committee which has already been formed is composed of Lee Bivins, mayor of Amarillo have set aside consideration of the construction of the first super-power plant in the Amarillo gas field at a cost of $1,000,000. Other units would be erected as the necessity arose, according to tentative plans.

Most of the Panhandle area lies over the shallow water belt, it was pointed out, and such an undertaking would be of inestimable benefit to the section.

It is just as essential for good teeth to eat foods that will nourish and make them grow as to keep them clean.

HUMAN EYE CAN SEE BULLETS AS THEY LEAVE THE GUN
 The Old Adage That Anything Is "Quicker Than The Eye" Stands Exploded.

"Seeing is believing" used to be regarded as a truth. The advent of the movies, however, have compelled us to behold many things take place before our eyes that we know could never happen. Now the public stands stunned again.

"Slow motion" pictures are a mystery to many movie fans. They rejoice in the retarded grace of the dancer or skill of the athlete, but they cannot fathom the method of slowing down these actions. It is really very simple, and no trick at all.

Motion pictures are photographed at the rate of sixteen per second and then thrown upon the screen at the same rate. That gives the normal tempo of action.

"Slow movies" are photographed at 32, or 64, or 128 per second (or whatever speed the camera will stand), and then are screened at the usual pace of 16 per second, which makes them appear slow, because the camera has caught and is able to display such a vastly greater number of poses.

Government experiments with special lens shutters and an electrically-driven camera have shown it possible to take more than 5,000 pictures a second. These, when projected at the ordinary speed, trace the flight of the fastest projectile, its impact against armor plate, and show the exact manner in which the armor is split and shattered.

"Fast movies" are made in exactly the opposite fashion. Instead of "cranking 16" the photographer "cranks 8," or 4 or 2 to the second. When screened at 16 per second, these pictures take on the proportionate speed increase.

EASTLAND COUNTY BAR FOR JUDGE HAWKINS

In recognition of the splendid ability, painstaking care and fidelity to duty which have characterized and distinguished the service of Judge F. L. Hawkins as a Judge on the Court of Criminal Appeals of Texas, we, the members of the Eastland County Bar commend him to the favorable consideration of the voters of Eastland County and to the voters of the State at large, believing as we do that no man within the limits of our great State can be named as his successor who possesses more ability, greater faithfulness in the discharge of duty, and more appreciation for the preference of his fellow citizens than does Judge Hawkins.

BOBO & BOBO HARDWARE

NEIGHBORS' WIVES
 by ERNEST LYNN, author of THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

John and Fay Milburn buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are:

Noel and Vera Boyd, whose marriage is strictly "modern."

Pat and Marian Forbes, who have some children and whose domestic life is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies. Previous chapters told how:

John was fascinated on meeting Nell Orme. Forbes hints she is having trouble with her husband, Howard Orme.

Fay took Judith, the baby, to visit her parents, and during her absence John "ran around" a good deal. When Fay returned gossip had retailed her doings and sharp quarrels followed, one of which drove him "out on a tear," and caused Fay to threaten to leave him.

John later encounters Nell Orme at Vera Boyd's—a plot of Vera's, who takes a keen delight in promoting "affairs"—and resolves not to see her again as he realizes she is carrying him off his feet. But he does, and the day comes when he takes her madly in his arms.

Fay learns of it and goes through with her threat and leaves him. John closes the house and takes an apartment. When Paul Davidson, a friend, makes an unfortunate marriage and then deserts his wife, leaving her all his money, gossip begins to say Paul and John has his hands full defending him. He is nearly crazy with grief because of Fay's action, while Fay is nearly heart-broken herself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
 (The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER LIII

There was an invitation to dinner at the Menefees, and John though he hated to inflict his miserable company on Dick and Margaret, could not very well refuse.

Clara was there, and she was quite sympathetic. Clara, according to Dick, was quite happy these days, with three or four ardent suitors on the string, and she had received at least two proposals. Dick was not sure out that it had been more.

"And by the way," Menefee added when he and John had been deserted for the time being by the women. "I don't want to offend, of course, but what about this couple named Orme?"

John hardly knew how to take this. It was not sure that Dick was not trying to quiz him.

But he told Menefee all he knew—that Nell Orme, a lovely woman, apparently was unhappy with her husband and he could not begin to explain it, for Howard, sphinx though he was, still seemed to be a fairly decent sort of fellow. There was some mysterious trouble between them that John couldn't fathom.

"Both the unusual people," he added, "quite unusual."

"I have only met Howard Orme a few times, and although I don't profess to be a mind reader, John, I think I can guess at part of the trouble. I'm fairly certain that the man is a victim of melancholia."

"Now don't laugh," he admonished as he fished out a cigar, "for I'm not to be held professionally accountable for the haphazard diagnosis. Nevertheless, I'm quite satisfied that Howard Orme is just naturally despondent."

"Melancholia present, an interesting study. Here is a man, young, fairly prosperous, handsome, possessed of a wife who is uncommonly attractive—and yet—" He stopped, puffing reflectively on his cigar.

"It's something hard to explain. Very often the victims labor under the delusion that the rest of the world is in actual conspiracy against them. They feel that everyone is talking about them. And it is quite amazing, too, the various kinds of mentalities that it attacks. Orme, of course, is highly intelligent. Yet the last case that came to my attention was entirely different. He was a janitor, a rough, phlegmatic sort of fellow. Hard working, silent. When he committed suicide it was found that he had a lot of money. Strange stuff, John."

"But what's the cause of it, Dick?" John asked. "There must be one."

"Oh, yes, there's an explanation for everything. But I have no idea what it is in this case. I presume he has some fancied grievance. Has his wife ever hinted at it?"

"Hinted, and that's all," John answered. "I think they quarrel a lot."

"Naturally," said Dick. "What a peculiar thing, he thought as he made his way back to his apartment. What was behind it? Why should Orme be despondent? He sat up for hours before going to bed, his mind dwelling on Nell Orme."

Once more in the camera of his brain was the picture of the graceful Nell, flashing through the air in one of those beautiful dives from the springboard. And another picture of her with her hand resting on his arm, her lips upturned to his to receive that mad, impassioned kiss.

But why, he had asked Menefee, didn't Nell get a divorce—and Dick didn't know. But now John suddenly remembered something Pat Forbes had once said in answer to this question—Nell had been brought up on the theory that divorce was wrong.

"And it is wrong, too!" he cried aloud at the sudden thought of Fay.

Sooner or later, he saw, he must make some explanation to Nell for his steady refusal of Vera's invitations. Did Nell really care for him? He found himself a little warmed by the thought, in spite of his new knowledge that there would never be another to take the place of Fay. Yes, he owed it to Nell, at least, to talk things over with her, to explain the uselessness of their going any farther.

Two days after his talk with Menefee, Vera Boyd called him up and was terribly insistent, so that he had to repulse her almost rudely.

"I'm no angel, but I haven't forgotten that you're another man's wife."

"But John," she said at last, "you really ought to come. Howard's beginning to make trouble."

"I'm sorry," was all he had to say, and hung up the receiver with the feeling that he had acted like a boor. Not until several hours later did the thought occur to him that by "Howard making trouble" Vera might have meant he had learned somehow of what existed between himself and Howard's wife.

This, indeed, was danger, and from an entirely unexpected quarter. What if Howard, like Fay, suspected them of something much more serious. Well, he didn't see how things could get much worse than they already were.

He was busy with Briggs early that afternoon when Nell Orme dropped in the office, and John's first impulse was to be angry with her for this intrusion. But a reproachful look in her large eyes stopped him and forced from him a polite smile. And, despite himself, he again felt that thrill that he had always experienced in this woman's presence.

"You won't be angry?" she asked, a little hesitantly, and he smilingly shook his head and shrugged, thankful, just the same, that Nat Graham chanced to be out at the time.

"I hadn't seen you in such a long time," she was saying, "and I did want to tell you how sorry I was." She added hastily, and a little confusedly, "I happened to be down town shopping and thought I'd drop in. You think I'm bold, of course."

He assured her, a trifle uncomfortable, he thought nothing of the kind. She was obviously very much embarrassed. After another awkward moment or two, she took a few steps toward the door, John following, and at the threshold paused to say, "I really must see you. It's about Howard."

"All right," he agreed. "At Vera's. Any time you drop."

"All right," he smiled his goodbye, and walking slowly back to his work the thought struck him of how unpleasant it would be to go to Vera's again after the words he had had with Noel. Well—

So it was that he half feared to answer the telephone every time it rang. But strangely enough the expected call did not come, though a week passed. He was beginning to think that the incident with Nell was closed, that perhaps his coolness toward her had frightened her off, or piqued her.

But he was wrong. Alone in his apartment one night, he heard a low knock on his door, and when he went to open it Nell Orme, her eyes reddened with weeping, stood before him.

"Why, Nell!" he exclaimed. "Oh, John," she cried, "you must let me in—you must listen to me." Her voice trailed off as she began to cry violently. At first he thought she was simply acting.

But supporting her with his arms, he led her to a chair and with nervous fingers found and lit a cigaret before he spoke again.

"Now for heaven's sake," he said, "compose yourself and tell me what's the matter."

"Howard—" she began and again fell to sobbing.

He saw then that he would have to wait, so he stood nothing for quite a while but stood where he was, half leaning against a table, and watching her.

And finally, between fits of tears, she made John eye-witness to the scene she had just gone through with Howard.

There had been a violent quarrel—not the first by any means, nor was it the first over the same thing. Howard believed, and simply insisted, that John had come between them, and he was threatening divorce.

Finally, so maddened did he become by Nell's persistent denials, that he struck her.

"And, John," she sobbed, "I didn't know what to do, or where to go. He struck me. Oh!" and she was sobbing again, unable to speak.

It was hard to believe that the half-hysterical woman in front of him was Nell Orme. Where now was all her poise, all her swagger? Funny thing; he supposed all women did cry—but Nell Orme?

He said, "I don't know what to do about it, Nell. I think, though, you'd better go home. I'll see Howard, if you want me, and explain to him."

"No, no!" She had risen and was approaching him, dabbing at her eyes with her handkerchief. "No, you mustn't do that—never."

"But Nell—"

"Oh, John," she cried, and was plucking helplessly at his coat sleeve. Her hand crept up to his shoulder. "You've changed so," she complained. "So changed, John. Don't you care for me at all any more?"

"But Howard," he reminded her, not knowing what else to say, and thought, "Well, I have got into a mess, sure enough."

"I don't want to talk of Howard—I don't want to think of him. I want YOU, John."

Her arms were around his neck, her lips seeking his, but instead of yielding he kept thinking, "What a rotter I am—what a rotter."

Gently, yet forcibly, he took her wrists in his hands and pulled them downward. "I'm no angel," he said grimly, "but I haven't forgotten, Nell, that you're another man's wife. I—I guess I've been a fool."

She was hurt, he could see it, terribly hurt. And while he was thinking of something to say to her there was a sound behind him. And turning quickly around he saw Howard Orme standing in the doorway.

GILVIE HUBBARD First Assistant

Eastland, Texas July 14, 1926

Mr. C. C. Hamilton, Ranger, Texas.

Dear Uncle Ted:

My attention has recently been called to the facts that several of the grocery stores of Ranger have been staying open on Sunday and selling goods all day. This is an open violation of the law and is a separate offense when each article of merchandise is sold. A grocery store may stay open until 9 o'clock but each sale after then is a violation of the law.

Notify all grocers of this and take the name of all men keeping open after 9 and also the name of each person making purchases after 9 o'clock. You may file complaints either in the county court at law in Eastland or in the justice court in Ranger and if you will furnish me the names, I will write out the complaints and take the full responsibility for filing them.

Sincerely,

W. J. BARNES, County Attorney, Eastland County.

Air Mail Helps Chicago House Collect a Bill

By United Press.
DALLAS, July 15.—A new advantage of using the air mail has been found by a Chicago dealer who, as a last resort, chose the air mail as a means of reaching one of his negro creditors who had moved to Dallas.

According to the dealer, the negro had bought a diamond ring on time for his girl. Shortly after presenting his spouse with the stone, he was jilted by her and fled to Dallas to forget his troubles.

The dealer tried every means of extracting the payments from the negro but the negro igno red the collection letters completely.

As a last resort, the jeweler turned to the new air mail service to reach the transient debtor. The result was surprising.

The officious appearance of the red, white and blue envelope so impressed the negro that he not only sent the installment that was due, but the entire amount. He explained later that he thought the "government" had taken the matter up.

16 Days Enough For Con O'Shea In Dear Old Ireland

By United Press.
DALLAS, July 15.—Sixteen days on the "Ould Sod" was too long said Con O'Shea, veteran of the Dallas police force and one of the first traffic policemen this city ever had, after returning from a visit to Ireland which at its beginning was to be an indeterminate stay.

Ireland may be all right to wax sentimental over, said O'Shea but its nothing like Texas.

O'Shea left Dallas June first for a visit to his home town of Chairciveen, County Kerry, where he was born and which he had not seen for forty years. He had saved for many years to make the trip.

After an absence of thirty-one days eight of which were spent in his boyhood home he returned announcing to the world that he was glad to get back because politics had ruined the country.

"They are not fighting now over there," O'Shea said, "but it's only a peace of exhaustion, as soon as they catch their breath they'll be at it again."

"Everybody wants to get back now."

Under the protection of England there are two sets of policemen; those of the new government and those which serve the king. The king's men, several thousand men have been pensioned by England and set around and do nothing for their $15 per week. The Irish Free State men receive also $15 per week but they have to do all the work which makes them dissatisfied.

"Prices for most all of the commodities including whiskey are very high in Ireland," said Mr. O'Shea.

Fishing Hobby Of President Causes Talk

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, July 15.—President Coolidge's new hobby—fishing—has become the talk of the capitol. Not since Mr. Coolidge was pictured astride his electric hobby horse has the discussion of the president's diversions attracted such universal comment.

Friends of the chief executive today expressed themselves as pleased that the president has taken to sports so vigorously.

The president's fishing experiences, they point out, that Mr. Coolidge enjoys sports as much as anyone, at the proper time and occasions. Plunged deep into the affairs of the nation the president, heretofore has taken comparatively little interest in sports. Consequently he was pictured as different—a person without "hobbies."

Fishing also does much to contradict Mr. Coolidge's reported statement that "fishing is only a small boys play." The president later explained this statement by saying he was referring to a small pond here inhabited principally by minnows, but where, incidentally, Senator Ernst, Republican, Kentucky, baits his hook.

"I don't think that there is any question that Mr. Coolidge has always liked sports," said Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, farm bloc chieftain. "Any man who will risk his life on a hobby horse, must have some sporting blood."

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, said, "I am inclined to believe that there are fishes and fishes. Perhaps some of the correspondents have been seeing too many."

Beach Costumes Make Up for Noise On July Fourth

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for the United Press)
NEW YORK.—There may have been little booming of firecrackers on Fourth of July in the cities but the beach costumes were noisy enough to make up for lack of fireworks.

The one-piece bathing suit this season that hasn't wide contrasting stripes of bright color is treated as a step child. Silk suits reflects all the colors of the rainbow. Beach wraps and coats in vivid-patterned cretonnes or chintz are selling as low as $2.98 so there are many of them represented on the shores. More costly wraps of bright colored rubberized material in both plain and patterned styles are extremely gay. Some of them have painted ships on painted oceans forming a hem border. Black cotton coolie coats with vivid printed chops at the center back and Japanese lettering down the front are worn with Japanese wooden sandals by some of the smartest beach habitués. Legs are left bare when the wooden sandie is worn. Japanese parasols of heavy oiled paper also offer an Oriental touch.

Taffeta bathing suits of dress type come in a wide assortment of colors among which are yellow, red, burnt orange, sky blue and green. Some of them are too lovely to be worn in the water.

Among the beach accessories which are new are rubberized parasols which when folded form a bag for the wet bathing suit. They come in black and gray colors. Water-proof vanity bags are worn on rubber cord about the neck so that one may have rouge, powder and lipstick handy. Bracelets, flower corsages and huge choker beads of colorful rubber are among the beach novelties.

WHITE AND GREEN NEW COLOR SCHEME FOR LICENSE

AUSTIN, July 15.—The State Highway Commission is expecting to register more cars in 1927 than in 1926 and has increased the order for number plates.

The new plates are to be new in design, the color scheme for passenger cars being green and white. Ordinary passenger cars next year will display license plates of white figures on a green background—975,000 pair have been ordered. Commercial cars will have plates with the opposite color scheme. 125,000 of these were ordered.

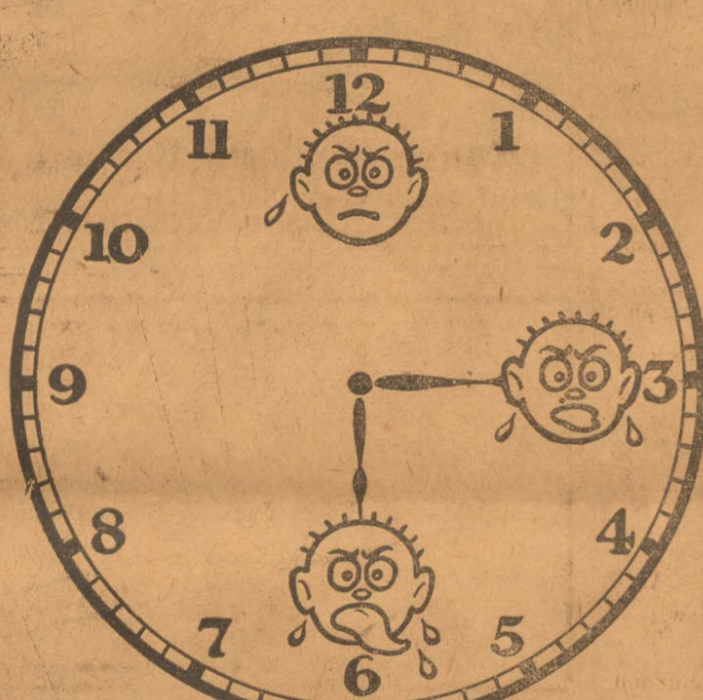

They are recovering the bodies of good swimmers who wouldn't believe the current was too swift.

"THE TWO-GUN MAN"

FRED THOMSON

Featuring the story by Stewart Edward White, and some of the most striking scenic backgrounds ever used in making Westerns, Fred Thomson's latest F. B. O. release, "THE TWO-GUN MAN", will be shown here at the Liberty Theater Saturday only. This is probably the first time the work of as noted a writer as Mr. White has been utilized as western material, and the distinctively different treatment accorded the production makes it by far the best thing Thomson has yet done. The entire company spent several weeks in a remote part of the Sierras in making the film, and the superb mountain scenery furnishes one of the most glorious backgrounds for a strong story that could be imagined.

The part which has been written in for Silver King gives that four-footed John Barrymore a real acting role—one of which he is quick to avail himself, and Fred Thomson's own part sparkles with the glittering touches characteristic of Stewart Edward White at his best. William E. Wing adapted the original story to the screen. David Kirkland's direction of a good cast, which includes Olive Hasbrouck, Sheldon Lewis, Frank Hagney, Joe Dowling, William Courtwright and little Billy Butts—the latter appearing again in a Thomson production by popular demand—is all that his three previous pictures for this popular star has taught the public to expect.

How President Is Spending His Days In Camp

By United Press.
PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 16.—President Coolidge plays as he works on schedule. Here for his vacation among the Adirondack lakes and woods, he has a set time to fish; a time to walk; a time to eat and sleep.

He goes about his play deliberately, just as in Washington he goes deliberately about the receiving of callers, signing of bills or conferring with his cabinet.
Here is his vacation schedule for a full day:
At 7 a. m.—Awakens. At 7:30 a. m.—Breakfast. At 8:30 a. m.—Goes fishing. At 11 a. m.—Returns from fishing and reads mail, dictates letters and confers with the staff. At 1 p. m.—Lunch. After lunch he takes a nap. At 3 p. m.—Awakens and goes fishing again. At 5 p. m.—Returns from fishing and walks around the grounds of his camp. At 7 p. m.—Dinner. After dinner he reads, plays with the dogs and chats with Mrs. Coolidge. At 10:30 p. m.—Retires.

He dresses appropriately for every occasion. When fishing he wears a pair of rawhide boots, a rough riding suit with rough riding breeches and an old felt hat, with his fishing badge given him by Governor Al Smith of New York, displayed on the crown.

Walking, he displays a like costume. Before dinner he changes to a lounge suit, the kind he always wears in Washington.
On rainy days he carries a worn black slicker. When the sun is particularly warm he often wears an old leshorn hat, with its rim pulled down all the round.

Mrs. Coolidge, on the other hand, wears much the same clothes as she wears in Washington. She is usually dressed in a light frock which she wears all day. When she goes walking, generally once a day, she often wears a pair of boots similar in type to those worn by her husband. On several occasions, however, she has worn pumps while walking.

IF THE SULTAN HAD ONLY SEEN THIS HAREM SCENE

DOUGLAS MACLEAN IN "THAT'S MY BABY"

Rivalling in lavish beauty the Far-Eastern models on which it was patterned, the oriental bazaar setting in Douglas MacLean's new comedy "That's My Baby," would have delighted the ex-sultan of Turkey. As for the bevy of beautiful harem girls, they would have inspired him to divorce his entire staff of wives!
The setting, which serves as the background for one of the funniest episodes in this Paramount picture, is regarded as unique in the field of comedy because of its stupendous size and unusual beauty. It covered one entire stage and in it more than five hundred people were used as minor players.
The harem girls represent the pick of Hollywood's justly famous beauties. Because of the extreme costumes and the story requirements the two score girls were chosen by the same standards set by Flo Ziegfeld and other musical comedy entrepreneurs—beauty of face, figure and ankles.
"That's My Baby" is now being shown at the Rialto Theater. It was directed by William Beaudine.
Ambition is fine stuff. But be careful. Salmon are goldfish that grew big enough to be eaten.

Grocers Warned Against Sunday Sales After 9 A. M.

Constable C. C. Hamilton of Ranger is in receipt of a letter from County Attorney W. J. Barnes, calling his attention to the fact that he has been informed that several grocery stores in Ranger have been staying open all day Sunday and selling goods, which is a direct violation of the law.
According to Mr. Barnes, a grocery may stay open until 9 o'clock on Sunday morning, but each sale after that time will be a violation of the law, and a separate offense with each article sold.
Mr. Hamilton is directed to notify all grocers who are keeping open on Sunday and to take names of all keeping open and selling goods after 9 o'clock and to file complaints, so that they may be prosecuted, according to the law.
Elsewhere in this paper a copy of the latter sent Mr. Hamilton is being printed in full, so that all who are violating this law, may have notice.

Tourists Climb Washington's Monument

WASHINGTON.—Many tourists still climb the 555 feet to the top of the Washington Monument, despite the new speedy elevator that makes the trip in one minute and 15 seconds.
Of 1802 persons who went to the top the other day, 322 walked; on another day, 717 walked out of a total of 1997.
The old elevator took five minutes. The new one goes so fast that the passengers notice pressure on the eardrums, due to the rapid change in altitude, which was not perceptible on the old one.
Women are so silly. Kick up almost as much racket over a bridge prize as a man does over a golf cup.
