SUPREME COURT JUSTICE DENIES STAY OF EXECUTION FOR REDS

ONLY HOPE IS RESPITE BY FULLER AGAIN

Massachusetts Chief Executive Will Give His Decision Monday

By United Press. BEVERLY FARMS, Mass., Aug. 20.—Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States supreme court, today refused to grant a stay of execution to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

His refusal to intervene made it virtually certain that the men will die shortly after midnight Monday unless Governor Alvin T. Fuller grants a third respite.

Justice Holmes announced his decision at his summer home here after a long conference with Arthur Hill of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense forces. The petition probably will be filed with the clerk of the supreme court Monday.

A stay of execution would have to be granted to permit the court to act as it does not convene until October. Governor Fuller has an application for the stay and announced he will make his decision Monday.

Sacco-Vanzetti Play Last Cards

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti today played out what may be the last cards in their game of life and death.

Attorney Michael Angelo Musmanno, declaring himself "confident and hopeful on the basis of the justice of the case," lodged two petitions for writ of certiorari with the United States supreme court.

These petitions stressed the defense contention that Justice Webster Thayer of Massachusetts, presiding justice in the Sacco-Vanzetti murder trial, was "prejudiced" and that his state of mind had robbed the two condemned men of "due process of law" as guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment to the United States constitution.

The proceedings in the Norfolk county, Massachusetts, superior court leading to the sentence of death were bluntly called "a naked form of law and not in truth and fact due process of law within the meaning of the fourteenth amendment."

RECORDS ARE HURRIEDLY RUSHED TO WASHINGTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Michael Angelo Musmanno, attorney for Sacco and Vanzetti, declared emphatically on his arrival here tonight that a petition for a writ of certiorari on behalf of his clients now was on file in the United States Supreme Court in Washington.

Lindbergh's Pal Killed In Crash Near St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 20.—Lieutenant George Stumpf was killed and Lieutenant Cliff Hutchinson seriously injured when their airplane crashed near here today.

The two aviators were members of the Missouri National Guard Air Corps and comrades of Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh.

Stumpf helped Lindbergh to prepare for his trans-Atlantic flight. Hutchinson was piloting the plane over a summer resort when the machine struck a flag pole and was disabled.

It plunged to the ground a short distance from the park. ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla., Aug. 20. (United Press).—Yachting enthusiasts from seven states will bring their craft here on September 3 for the three days of racing for the Linton 85,000 yachting trophy. Yachts and crews from New Orleans and a score of Gulf Coast cities have already entered the fall water classic.

Quake Shakes Windows, Makes Women Faint

EUREKA, Calif., Aug. 20.—An earthquake of pronounced intensity occurred here at 12 p. m. today. Buildings were shaken and windows broken. Several women fainted. There were no fatalities.

Communication lines were put out of operation for a considerable period. The tremor was the most violent experienced here since 1926.

Chimneys were shaken down and in the composing room of the Humboldt Standard, afternoon newspaper, a linotype machine was toppled over. The operator was uninjured except for black and blue marks on his knees and legs.

San Antonio's New Airport Swept By Devastating Fire

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 20.—Six airplanes, a hangar and aircraft equipment valued at $15,000 were destroyed by fire late Saturday at Stinson field, San Antonio's new municipal airport.

The planes and equipment were the property of the Southern Airways, Inc. W. F. Long, official of the company, said the fire probably started from a cigarette thrown in some dry grass near the hangar.

The blaze lasted only a few minutes, the inflammable aircraft equipment, mostly airplane wings, making quick tinder for the fire.

Communist Paper Threatens Legion If Reds Executed

PARIS, Aug. 20.—The communist newspaper, L'Humanite today published a threat of reprisals against American Legionnaires in Paris if Nicola Sacco and Vanzetti are executed.

The first contingent of 500 legionnaires arrived in Paris Thursday to attend the convention of the legion which will take place next month. Several thousand legionnaires will be in Paris for the convention.

No Trace Found Of Geologist Lost In Nick-a-Jack Cave

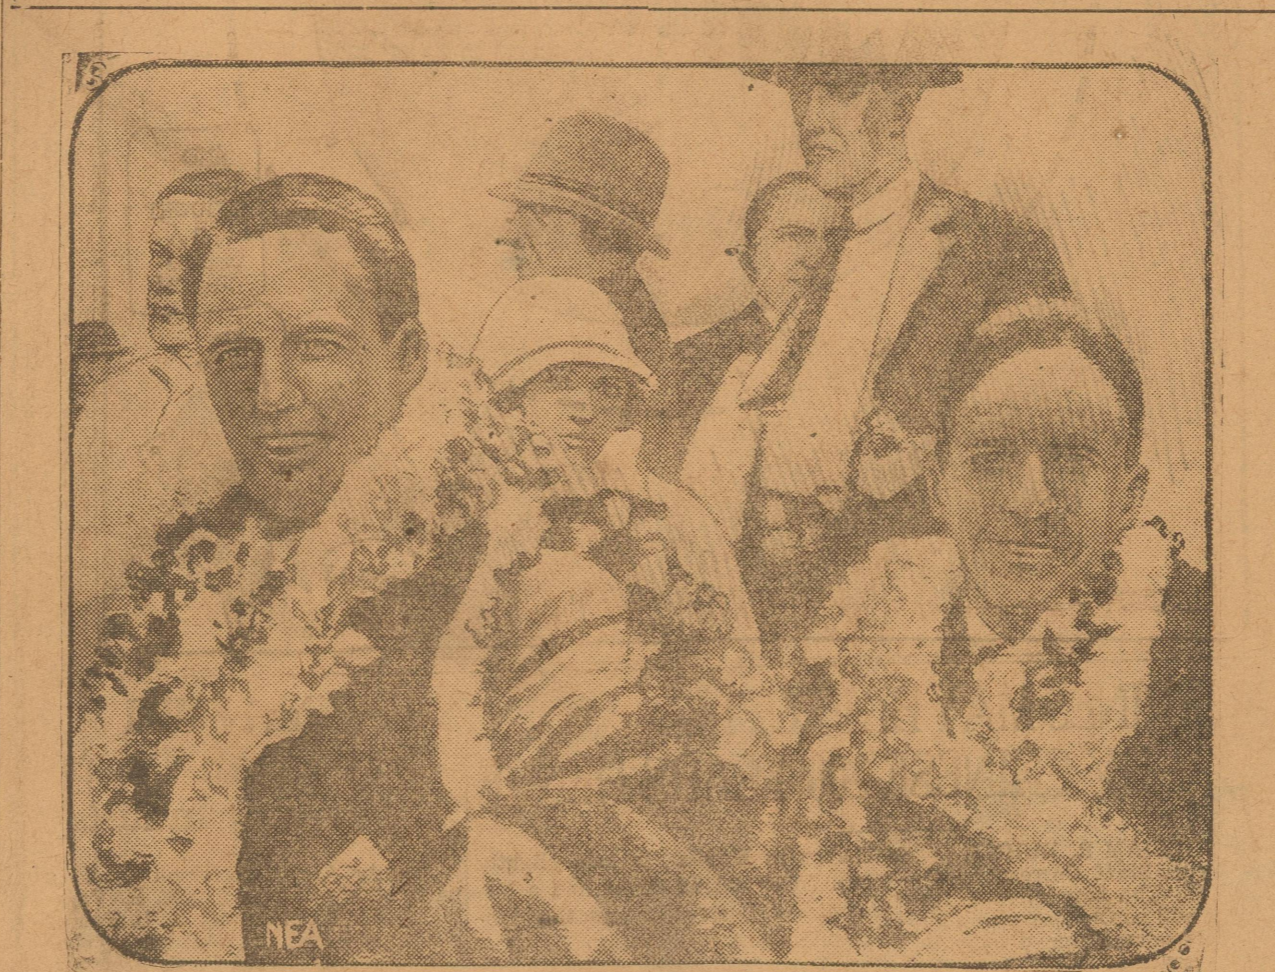

SHELL MOUND, Tenn., Aug. 20.—Nick-a-Jack cave, continued to hold secret today the fate of Lawrence H. Ashley, geologist and explorer who entered the cavern Monday and has not been seen since.

Searchers are dragging the river of Dartmouth which flows through the cave in the belief that Ashley fell into the stream and drowned.

PAUL TOMLIN CASE NOT IN COURT'S JURISDICTION

In the habeas corpus hearing in which Paul Tomlin, an inmate of the state reformatory at Gatesville, was seeking to obtain his freedom on the ground that the county court of Shackelford county, from which he was sentenced, did not have jurisdiction, Judge Bean of the 88th district court of Eastland county held that he did not have jurisdiction and remanded the boy back to the reformatory.

Finish of Hawaiian Air Race

Wearing the festive leis that Hawaii bestows on all visitors, Art Goebel, left and Lieutenant W. V. Davis, grinned broadly after they brought their plane, Woolaroc, to earth at Honolulu. The two flyers landed at 5:23 p. m., eastern standard time. Less than eight hours later this picture, the first to reach this country of the winners was transmitted across the Pacific by the radio process.

New Wells Will Start Soon In Sibley Pool

Mook Texas, States Oil, and Barkley Have Locations. Parsons et al Probably Make Location On Blackwell Land This Week

Considerable activity is getting under way in the new Sibley pool along the Leon river and Colony creek in the Staff community of Eastland county. Among the new locations made there, are two by the States Oil Corporation, three by the Mook-Texas Oil company and one by Barkley and others of Fort Worth. Parsons and Delaney of Fort Worth have some nearby acreage and doubtless will make a location within the next week.

The new locations by the States and Mook-Texas are all within the pool proper and all are along an east and west line between leases of the two companies, States on the north and Mook Texas on the south. The States is building the rig for its No. 3 Sibley and is moving material in for its No. 4 on the same lease. These locations are 450 feet and 900 feet east respectively of the company's No. 2 Sibley, a good producer.

The Mook-Texas company's Nos. 5, 6 and 7 Sibley are south offsets respectively of the States Nos. 4, 3 and 2. Mook-Texas will drill its No. 7 first, it being a south offset to the States No. 2 producer. The company is rigging up now on the No. 7 and is building rigs for its Nos. 5 and 6 on the Sibley.

Something like a half mile south of the new Sibley pool proper and across the Leon river, G. C. Barkley of Ranger is building the derrick for a well to be drilled at once on the Duffer lease. This well will be drilled to the level of the Sibley pay which is found slightly less than 3,100 feet.

Across Colony creek and to the east of the Sibley pool and about a quarter of a mile distant Ed V. Parsons and R. O. Dulaney of Fort Worth hold the lease of a part of the Blackwell lands. Parsons was in Ranger the past week surveying the situation in the new gusher pool, but stated he had not made the location for a well as yet. However a location is due to be made and drilling started within the next week or ten days.

According to latest reports from the W. U. Fox well of Hurdleston and others south of Olden and a quarter of a mile north of production in the Parsons pool, the well was making something like 100 barrels of oil daily and 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas. Late in the week the well had been drilled only one foot into the pay sand which was topped at 1,618 feet.

The Gordon pool north of Eastland and on the Breckenridge highway the No. 2 Higginbotham of the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil company which came in originally as a gusher, is making an average of 12 barrels of oil an hour.

Here are the "back-seat drivers" of the Pacific flight—the navigators of planes in the San Francisco-to-Honolulu air derby. Knope is navigator for Miss Mildred Doran and Auggie Pedlar; Schluter for Martin Jensen, who finished second, and scott for Jack Frost.

HARDING GIVEN AUTHORITY TO BUY BUS LINES

Will Act As Trustee For Company to be Formed by Fort Worth, Dallas And Boston Men.

By United Press. AUSTIN, Aug. 20.—Formal order authorizing R. E. Harding of Fort Worth to take over the bus permits of H. C. Thatcher and fourteen other Red Ball operators between Fort Worth and Dallas was issued by the state railroad commission Saturday. Harding acts as trustee for a company to be formed. The order does not name the company further than to say it will be made up of "four reputable citizens of Fort Worth, one of Dallas and one of Boston."

It is understood that some of these men are officials of the Northern Texas Traction commission which operates the electric line between Fort Worth and Dallas. An opinion was secured from the attorney general that their participation in such an organization would be lawful.

It is unofficially reported that the purchase price of the lines was $96,000.

Rain As Ordered Latest Comfort For Hotel Guests

Guests at the Adolphus Hotel, Dallas, can find a rainy day most anytime they want to, regardless of the weather man, for R. B. Ehrfritz, manager of that hotel has arranged it so that a private rain shower for some of the enclosed courts can be had on short notice.

People living in courtrooms are surprised to see drops against windows and hear the tinkle of rain. They rush to look out, and see the sun shining and people down below walking as usual.

The gentle shower patters on the roof and cools the hot air and settles the dust. Several times a day the private shower comes and cools everything and disappears and at night the patter of the never very heavy rainfall gives guests that "hulled to sleep" feeling, so much sought after.

On investigating, the source of the rain is found to be a spray of outside Bamboo land, which serves as a colored fountain and descending helps the atmosphere and temperature below.

Mr. Ehrfritz says that this is the newest method of cooling and keeping pleasant court rooms in eastern hotels and that he had had many compliments on the private rainfall of the Adolphus.

Flood Danger At Wichita Passed Survey Shows

By United Press. WICHITA, Kans., Aug. 20.—Wichita and vicinity face no further flood danger. Following a survey of county and city conditions and backed by statements of S. P. Peterson, at the United States weather bureau, county officials are confident that all danger has passed and will center their activity on repairing bridges and roads and watching dykes.

Peterson said all danger in this section of the Arkansas river has passed and the situation at Arkansas City is not alarming.

Corpus Christi Boy Is Killed By Speeding Boat

CORPUS CHRISTI, Aug. 20.—Lynn Hunt, 18, was fatally injured early last night when struck by a speed boat while swimming near the local bath house.

Witnesses said Hunt apparently saw the boat driven by J. L. Wilcox and dove under it in an effort to escape. Wilcox said he did not see Hunt until after the boat struck him.

VALUABLE PAINTINGS LOST FOR YEARS HAVE BEEN FOUND

MOSCOW.—Four original Rubens paintings have been discovered in the church of the village of Lobanova, formerly the property of the immensely wealthy Lobanova-Rostovsky family of landlords.

MESSAGE IS PICKED UP BY ARMY RADIO

Amateur Stations At Honolulu Also Pick Up Fragmentary Message

Way Is Cleared For His Landing

Unconfirmed Reports Say The Dallas Spirit Passed Trading Ship

HONOLULU, Aug. 20.—Radio operators on duty at the army corps station at Wheeler Field reported at 5:20 p. m. Pacific time, that they had intercepted a fragmentary message signed "K. G. G. A." the call letters of the missing plane, "Dallas Spirit."

The message was addressed to station 6-C. L. C. This is an amateur station listed as owned by Edward Doel, of Berkeley, Calif.

Amateur stations in Honolulu as well as the signal corps picked up fragments of the message including the address and signature. The signals failed several times during the transmission.

Pending investigation Major Miller at Wheeler Field would make no official announcement of the interception.

Station Named Got No Message

BERKLEY, Calif., Aug. 20.—Edward Doel, owner of amateur radio station 6-CLC told the United Press that he had picked up no messages today addressed to his station by KGGG the lost Erwin plane.

"There must be some error," Doel said. "I don't know why the 'Dallas Spirit' should try to reach my station. I haven't been doing much with my equipment for a year although I did listen in last night when Erwin was still OK and broadcasting."

Wheeler Field Is Made Ready

HONOLULU, Aug. 20.—On the basis of entirely unconfirmed rumors that the "Dallas Spirit" had passed a trader 600 miles at sea, Wheeler field today was ordered placed in readiness for an airplane arrival at noon today.

Emergency organizations were ordered to "stand by."

This would indicate that the reported passing of the ship and plane occurred late this morning as the distance of the freighter from here was reported as 600 miles.

The Dallas Spirit piloted by Capt. Wm. P. Erwin and navigated by Alvin Eichwald took off from Oakland airport at 2:15 p. m. Pacific coast time Friday.

Earlier Report Is Given Denial

HONOLULU, Aug. 20.—Officials at Pearl harbor today announced that the naval radio service advised them that the Radio corporation at San Francisco said it believed it had intercepted signals from Captain William P. Erwin's lost plane, "Dallas Spirit," at 5:30 a. m. Pacific time.

The signals were weak, according to navy officials, but the words "Longitude 134," were clearly picked up.

Advices from San Francisco said that the rumor that the Radio corporation station had communicated with Erwin was current there, but was flatly denied by officials of the company.

SPLendid IDEA

Peace and quiet seems to have fallen over the county the past few weeks since the courthouse issue was settled. We are glad that this is now the case and that the communities of the county will once more begin to function for the good of the entire county. Eastland county is so diversified in its interests that it is time for us to think of selling the entire county to the world instead of just some one community. A county chamber of commerce merged from the various organizations of the county would be a good thing for the county and would be a worthy thing for all of us to get behind. Gorman would do her part on such an organization. There is a place for it in the county life and while it might not get something for any particular town still it would be a thing that would benefit every town in the county. When one of the other towns grow the least bit then all are helped and it is time for more growth in this county. Oil wells are coming in faster now and then at any time since the boom days. But there ought to be some permanent thing coming into the county to give the county more payoffs. Factories ought to be easy to interest in the cheap gas right at their doors and a united effort made now will bring some mighty good things into Eastland county. Why not a county organization that will really function for the good of the county?

The above is taken from the latest issue of the Gorman Progress and we are inclined to regard it as one of the most timely suggestions we have had for many months for the development and progress of Eastland county. Eastland county is one of the wealthiest counties in the state, aside from a few of those that are centers of large population the county could in a few months show a stride of progress such as is not seen in any other county in the entire state. Eastland county does not have to look up any section of the Southwest when it comes to diversity of products. It produces plenty of crude oil, gasoline and natural gas, the cheap fuel that is essential to modern industry. In addition the county is capable of producing a wide variety of farm products. But what is the county doing to interest outside capital in the possibilities of the county? Gorman, Rising Star, Cisco, Desdemona, Eastland, Ranger each is doing its individual bit, but these individual efforts are of necessity limited. How much more could be done for the county if, as Editor Cockrell suggests, there was a county Chamber of Commerce? Another thing, there are some towns or communities in this county whose inhabitants are so steeped in jealousy that they would rather see an industrial project located a 1,000 miles from them rather than in some community of this county other than their own. That is the spirit that is holding Eastland county back and that will continue to clog the wheels of progress in this county so long as it exists. There are some communities in this county that are entirely too narrow minded to be classed as progressive communities. Such communities no doubt would favor a county Chamber of Commerce if it was to be located there, but if it was to function from some other point as a center they no doubt would regard it as detrimental to the county. Mr. Cockrell's suggestion is a very good and very timely one but it will never be practical until Eastland county has been rid of petty jealousies that exist between one community and another.

Ladies, Try This On Your Husband It Ought To Work

By HEDDA HOYT (United Press Fashion Editor)
 NEW YORK, N. Y.—A man may relish a rouged, smeared mouth but a cold creamed eyelid ruins his appetite for romance!
 Cold cream has been the blight of many a happy romance. The business of keeping beautiful is a losing one unless carried on in private. All men like to come home to a well-kept, clean home but the wife is rare who likes to be around when the lemon oil is being applied. Men admire wives who resort to artificial means of beauty, whether they are aware of the artificiality or not, but they don't like to see women applying the grease-paint. Faces in the cocoon stage have no attraction for them.
 The clever woman conceals her weapons. Cosmetics are listed among the most poignant of feminine weapons in this day and age. Romance, with women is of stronger stuff. A man can wield a shaving stick over his face producing a Santa Claus effect without driving his wife into hysterics. She'll remove the soap-suds and wash away without turning a hair. Man, on the other hand, wants to see the reconditioned article at all times. A mascara-ed teardrop fills him with dismay.
 A man will grow a two week's beard for the fun of it. But if his wife's bob starts neckward he'll tie her to the barber. He feels that he can get on an old army shirt, a pair of grimy fishing trousers and an old fedora and start out on a vacation. But, friend wife, must have on proper sporting clothes. No old calico for hers!
 It may be well enough to hold a man's love by culinary art. Facts prove, however, that the woman who keeps him blindfolded to her artificiality does a better job of holding. A kiss from a rouged mouth is better if one hasn't seen the applying of the lipstick. A cold-creamed pillow may dispel crow's feet, but it is a knock-out blow to marital bliss.
 You can write your own wisecracks about the equinoctial storms over Chicago on Sept. 22.

Little Hope Now For Other Planes

 By United Press.
 WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Officials here believed there is little chance of finding a live plane or the aviators lost in the Pacific in the "Miss Doran" and "Golden Eagle."
 A desperate hope still prevailed, however.
 The navy's 42-ship search augmented by airplanes and passenger ships will continue at least until Tuesday.
 At 3 p. m. today it was pointed out it will have been 96 hours since the planes left Oakland airport for Hawaii.
 Navy officials feared that the canvas wings of the land wings might be water-soaked and the rubber safety bolts be overturned or broken by heavy swells in mid-Pacific.

MIST BANKS HAMPER SEARCH EARLY IN DAY

By United Press.
 SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Banks of mist, surrounding the steamer West Sequana, on the mid-Pacific early today prevented her crew from searching the surface of the ocean at the position where she reported at 1:20 a. m., she had seen a signal flare.
 "We are continuing to stand by," she reported to the federal telegraph station here.
 "Will start search when visibility improves."
 The West Sequana's position is 350 miles northeast of the position governed by the plane Dallas Spirit last night with its last SOS call. Because of this position it is believed the possibility that the West Sequana flare reported by the West Sequana may have been set by one of the other two missing Dole race planes, Miss Doran and Golden Eagle, unless the Dallas Spirit turned and headed for the West Sequana after sending her emergency call.

DENY REPORT GOLDEN EAGLE IS SIGHTED

By United Press.
 SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 20.—A totally unconfirmed report was current here at 10 a. m. that an unnamed ship at sea had reported to the army signal corp at Honolulu that it either sighted or picked up the missing plane Golden Eagle.
 The navy radio service here advised the United Press that it had intercepted no message in the report.

TWO DESTROYERS ARE CALLED OFF SEARCH

By United Press.
 WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Two destroyers were called off the search for the missing aviators in the Pacific today.
 The submarines engaged in the hunt are ordered to continue their efforts until next Tuesday when they will make ready to return to Pacific coast from Honolulu. Reports of this were received by navy department from Admiral R. H. Jackson, Pacific fleet commander.

PHILIPPINES MAY BE PEOPLED BY CHINESE 200 YEARS HENCE

By WILLIAM R. KUHN (United Press Staff Correspondent)
 MANILA.—The population of the Philippines will be Chinese within 200 years unless some force diverts the present currents of emigration and immigration.
 Each month, 1,000 Filipinos leave for Hawaii or the Pacific Coast of the United States.
 Each month, 1,000 Chinese arrive in the Philippines from Amoy and Foochow.
 These figures vary from month to month but represent a fair picture of the movements of population. Doubtless the number of Chinese spilling into the Philippines every month from the swarming coast of south China exceeds 1,000 by a good margin but there is no means of obtaining an accurate check.
 Chinese immigration in to the Philippines is legally barred by the same law that forbids oriental immigration into the United States. Despite this fact, ships loaded to the captain's bridge with Chinese are constantly arriving in Manila. It happens that each Chinese is armed with papers intended to inform the immigration officials that they were born in the Philippines. In other words, all that a Chinese resident of Foochow or Amoy requires to vault over the American immigration laws in the Philippines is a birth certificate, dated at any remote point in the Philippines and carrying a few signatures which cannot be identified without sending a special investigator into some corner of the archipelago.
 The stream of Chinese into Manila is only a fraction of the flood. The Philippines have a coastline as long as that of the United States, because of the number of islands. The only means of guarding this coastline against smugglers of Chinese or opium are two or three overworked crafts used alternately for transporting letters to Cullion and repairing inter-island cables.
 The emigration of Filipinos to the cane fields of Hawaii and the ranches of California is easier to explain. The top wage for Filipino farm laborers in the Philippines is never above one peso, or fifty American cents daily.

PHILIPPINES MAY BE PEOPLED BY CHINESE 200 YEARS HENCE

Labor in Manila is paid slightly more. After a long strike and a bitter controversy stevedores on the Manila waterfront receive from 85 cents American gold, to $1.10 daily.
 Hawaii and California look like the end of the rainbow to Filipino laborers. The proposal to charter a ship and take a complete load of Filipino field workers to Honolulu inspired such a rush of applications for passage that the promoters had to close their doors.
 The good ship Consuelo has just been backed up against a pier ready to receive 800 Filipinos with their kerchief bundles and travelling baskets. Within a few days, say the promoters, it will be on its way to Honolulu in the face of repeated protests from labor officials of the territory saying that the Hawaiian labor market was being overstocked.
 It is fair to include the importation of Chinese as one of the "big businesses" of the Philippines. Here, it corresponds economically and proportionately, to the importation of some important commercial product into other countries.
 Catgut, contrary to its name, does not come from cats but is prepared from the intestines of sheep, according to an answered question in this week's Liberty.

Hope Inspires The Current Reports Smith Won't Run

By RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON.—These recurrent rumors that Governor Al Smith will not seek the Democratic presidential nomination probably are inspired by hope.

The truth seems to be that with William G. McAdoo pushed away well out of the picture, many Democrats—especially in the south—feel that their brethren who have supported Smith should also eliminate the governor in the interest of party harmony.

What happened was that the southern Democrats, realizing that no good would come out of a repetition of the Madison Square Garden mess of 1924, decided that the party must start with a clean slate, so that chances of a successful campaign would not be ruined by bitter warfare over prohibition or religion.

They practically disowned McAdoo as the candidate of the "dry, Protestant south," no doubt much to McAdoo's disgust, but it does not appear that they obtained any promise from the Smith folks to do as much on their side of the fence.

Smith Has Largest Following
The trouble was that the greater part of the McAdoo strength was enlisted in behalf of a cause, while the bulk of the Smith strength was attracted more by a personality. Thus, southern and western Democrats could disown McAdoo and choose another standard-bearer with few regrets, but the northern Democrats might be expected to fight to the last ditch for Smith.

The general result of the change in the Democratic lineup is that while a majority of the party prefer someone other than Smith, the governor can command a much larger bloc of delegates at the next convention than any other candidate.

It will be much more difficult for the bone dry and anti-Smith people to organize behind any one candidate than if they had all decided to stick with McAdoo. Undoubtedly there will be many aspirants for the McAdoo mantle, ranging all the way from Senator Carter Glass to Senator J. Thomas Hefflin.

Two-Thirds Rule in Way
In a half-dozen representative southern states the plan now is to elect uninstructed delegates. Several delegations may vote for favorite sons on the first two or three ballots, but they will be all set to hop onto the first hand-woman that inspires their enthusiasm. The Smith leaders see in this situation a chance to pick up a healthy assortment of delegates from southern states, but this factor seems likely to be negligible. Such delegates will be uninstructed, but precautions are being taken to see that they are also dry.

If it were not for the two-thirds rule, Smith might well hope to crash over to victory in the early balloting. But the two-thirds rule will surely be maintained and it seems likely that it will throttle Smith's ambitions.

Sailing Vessels Decrease Rapid In Twelve Years

By HERBERT LITTLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON.—The world's sailing ships have decreased by nearly one-half in the last 12 years, but the day when the schooner and barkentine as commercial vehicles join the stage coach and the pony express as obsolete appears a long way off yet.

The United States, with 909 sailing vessels of more than 100 tons gross, has more than one-fourth of the 3,523 vessels registered in all nations in 1926, according to statistics just compiled by the bureau of navigation of the commerce department.

In 1914, a total 6,392 sailing vessels were registered, of which this country had 1,408. Then as now, the United States led the world in number and tonnage of such ships.

American sailors of 1,000 gross tonnage and over number 331, of which 259 are old-styled wooden ships. There are likewise 259 wooden ships and 30 steel ones of 500 to 999 tons.

Only 88 of the sailors are listed in the foreign trade; the others are coastal carriers for lumber and other commodities.

However, the American sailing ships of more than 1,000 tons, have actually shown an increase in tonnage and numbers since 1914. Part of this increase is credited to "schooner barges" which are listed in the same class, but the increase gives rise to the belief that the bark and barkentine and schooner of sea-story and romance will survive a long time yet.

The 259 large wooden sailers have a tonnage of 420,348 compared with 242 ships with tonnage of 387,485 in 1914.

Nearly 40 sailing ships have turned from bizarre cargoes of spices, slaves and gold and silks of old days on the way to oil transportation.

In comparison with these figures, the wartime expansion has increased the total number of United States steamships from the 1914 pre-war figure of 1,692 with 4,287,349 gross tonnage to 3,621, with 4,287,349 gross tonnage to 3,621, with 13,400, 099 gross tonnage. Before the war, this country had about one-sixth as many ships with one-fifth the tonnage, of Great Britain. Now we have one-third as many merchant steamships, and well over three-fifths the tonnage of the "Mistress of the Seas." These figures include all vessels of more than 100 tons gross.

Germany was the second nation in steamship numbers and tonnage in 1914, but now the United States is second and Japan third. Germany is fourth in numbers of ships, with France, Italy, Holland and Norway close competitors with her.

Of American steamships, 2,060 are of more than 1,000 tons displacement and 42 of more than 10,000 tons.

MANY PEOPLE ARE TAKING TO THE AIR FIGURES SHOW

Survey of Passenger Airplane Services Indicates That Travel By Air Is Gaining Wide Popularity In This Country

By THOMAS L. STOKES

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
AVIATION SERIES No. 7

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Just a glimpse into the numerous aviation activities of today, as new commercial concerns send their planes into the air over an increasing net work, gives an indication of what may be expected in the future, and explains why Assistant Secretary of Commerce William P. MacCracken, in charge of commercial aviation, urges youth of today to "go up."

Transporting mail in contract with the government are 13 corporations, some of which carry passengers and freight on their own hook. That is the situation at the present. But the Post Office Department has let contracts to other companies which will begin to operate very shortly, and is advertising other routes which will be snapped up by other concerns. East and west, north and south, the planes fly every day, every night, as regularly as the rising and setting of the sun.

In addition to these corporations, which have contracts to run over definite routes, there are nearly 400 companies which operate a "taxi" service, and transport freight and passengers, but not on scheduled routes.

As an indication of the size of this business, the air mail operators carried during the fiscal year 1927, ending June 30 this year, a total 1,146,595 pounds of mail, for which they are paid on a pound basis. During 1926, six contract air mail companies which also operate a passenger service carried 7,251 passengers, while five contract lines doing an express business transported 1,734,468 pounds of freight. The Commerce Department estimated that 236 "taxi" companies carried 221,163 passengers, while 36,749 were carried free. The figure on passenger service show very clearly that people are taking

Rates paid the air mail lines by the government vary, as transportation in some cases is more difficult than in others. The government can not pay over $3.00 a pound for the first 1,000 miles and 30 cents a pound additional for each 100 miles or fractional part of 100 miles. The poundage payment is below this generally, and much below in some cases, as competition is keen.

Air mail postage is 10 cents for each half ounce or fraction regardless of distance.

These contract air mail lines, which will branch out more and more into passenger and freight service, will have openings for capable young pilots. Some of the best aviators in the country are to be found among the air mail pilots. Lindbergh was one. So was Clarence Chamberlin, Lloyd Bertaud, who was to have flown to Europe with Chamberlin, and plans to fly soon to Rome, is still in the air mail service, being on leave now.

At the present time, there are 7,526 miles of airways in the United States, and by Dec. 31, this year, this is expected to be increased to 10,554 miles, according to figures and estimates compiled by the Commerce Department. The daily mileage is 16,592 miles, nearly the distance around the earth at the equator. This will be about 22,648 miles by the end of the year, it is estimated.

The distance flown over a yearly period has increased from 4,128,772 for the calendar year 1926 to 5,500,000 for the fiscal year 1927. Seven companies now operate a passenger service. There will be 10 in this field by the end of the year, it is predicted by Commerce Department officials. There will be about 250 airplanes, a veritable fleet, operating on contract routes by the end of the year, it is estimated.

Eighty corporations today are engaged in manufacturing airplanes. Twelve are engaged in building engines. The sidelines are numerous. Flying has developed to the point where "strips" maps are available for aviators. The Commerce Department already has issued several, and is engaged in making more. In time, an aviator can secure a strip map for any flight he desires to take. They show mileage, landing fields, and altitude, so that a pilot can tell, by glancing at a map before he sets out on his journey just what he will encounter.

Siren and Tom-Tom Played in Music on Lindbergh's Flight

By United Press

NEW YORK.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's flight from New York to Paris has been immortalized in music by James Philip Dunn, New York composer. His tone-poem of the epic flight is entitled "W." and will be given its first public performance at Lewisohn Stadium by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under Willem von Hoogstraten on August 27.

The composition takes approximately ten minutes to play and requires the services of a fire engine siren, tom-tom and a wooden rattle in addition to the regular instruments of an orchestra. Dunn says of the work that it is "not so much a description of the airplane, its tuning up, take-off and the solitary flight across the ocean as it is a tonal utterance of the indomitable courage, perseverance and will power of Colonel Lindbergh."

The first oil well in the United States was discovered in 1627 by a Franciscan missionary who found on the site of the present Seneca Indian reservation, near Cuba, N. Y., a spring out of which oil was bubbling, according to an answered question in this week's Liberty.

ANOTHER AD—

Last Sunday's page carried a small ad for us which stressed our high regard for two of our favorite merchandise items—Pangburn's candy and Karess toilet preparations.

The ad, however, was not set up as ordered and George has agreed to run it again free of charge.

It is not necessary, frankly, to repeat the ad since it was intended to serve only as a reminder that large shipments of both had just arrived. The unusual merit of Pangburn's candy and Karess toiletries render extensive advertising of them a superfluity.

Anyway we will accept the free ad with thanks and hope it will be read by a lot of particular people whose good taste demand the best and who are interested in knowing where it is obtainable.

OMAHA RESOLUTION IS CAUSE OF DIVISION OF RELIGIOUS WORKERS

By RANDALL GOULD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PEKING.—Sharp division among foreign religious and educational leaders here has received added material for discord through arrival from America of a "pacifist resolution" adopted by the twenty-second national council of congregational churches of America at Omaha.

This resolution brings into focus the problem which is increasingly faced by foreign missionary workers of China—the problem of whether they shall stand or fall by their own merits, or expect armed support from home governments.

Supporters of the Omaha resolution declare that it embodies the new thought in mission work in all parts of the world. They believe Christianity must win its way upon its own merits, and that a background of military force actually handicaps Christian work rather than helps it.

Other missionary leaders cling to the feeling that treaties in China have long conveyed special privileges which cannot be lost without grave danger to foreign lives and valuable property held here. Many of these leaders adhere to a viewpoint not far removed from that of the conservative business man, and it is interesting to note that the most outspoken of this class make their headquarters in Shanghai, the great mart of China.

The "pacifist" portion of the Omaha resolution reads:

"Resolved—That we publicly and definitely affirm our unalterable opposition to military intervention in China and to the use of force in promoting business or protecting missionary work, and at the same time reaffirm our faith in conference and arbitration as a method of settling all international questions, our belief in the inherent right of China's patriotic citizens to determine for themselves the future of their country, and our strong desire that America should immediately take the initiative in moving toward new treaties by inviting China to appoint delegates to enter upon negotiations with American delegates."

Local missionary leaders here have on several occasions—notably at the time of the famous "Taku Bar affair"—when the United States joined with other powers in an ultimatum designed to keep a way open from Tientsin down the Hai Ho to the sea—gone to the American legation to urge that traditional American policy of non-interference in Chinese affairs be followed.

It is far from a secret that these efforts have not increased the popularity of the leaders in question so far as official circles in the Far East are concerned. But these leaders declare that such efforts and such expressions at home as this latest "Omaha resolution" have done much to convince the Chinese with whom they are primarily concerned that American policy in China has not altered in spite of occasional appearances to the contrary. Probably the most weighty government's firm refusal to undertake punitive measures after the Nanking affair. Tension has markedly slackened since the negotiations of this crisis, and in spite of continued political uncertainty in China, missionary leaders in the liberal camp insist upon viewing the situation with considerable optimism.

The word "mausoleum" is derived from King Mausolus, whose magnificent tomb at Halicarnassus, Asia Minor, was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, according to an answered question in this week's Liberty.

It's Results That Make Managers Heroes Or Bums

The second guess can very often raise havoc with managerial strategy, since so-called inside baseball is good or bad according to the results attained.

Injecting a pinch hitter into the game, thereby causing the removal of some pitcher who is going along well, is one of the tough spots for a manager, particularly if the succeeding pitcher or pitchers fail to deliver.

Recently in looking over the major league box scores, I noticed two such happenings on the same day, one in the American league the other in the National. In each instance, the manager played proper baseball but the breaks went against him, making his strategy look bad.

It is a baseball axiom that a team cannot win a ball game no matter how good the pitching unless there is batting assistance. That is why a manager often is forced late in the game to remove a very effective pitcher in an effort to start a batting rally.

When a manager demerits a pitcher who is going great, he courts disaster if his strategy fails of its objective.

What Often Happens.

In a certain American League game of a recent date, the home pitcher, despite a wild streak, was getting away in good style, due to his ability to pitch himself out of the holes.

In the eighth inning of the game with one down, the home pitcher walked the next two men. He had done the same thing twice earlier in the game, but managed to keep the opposition from scoring.

The score at the time was 2-2, so the manager of the home team decided this was the spot to yank the starting pitcher, a youngster. He sent his best bet, a veteran star, to the rescue. A hit followed, scoring a run.

In the ninth inning the visitors staged a rally that netted three runs off the ace of the staff. This made the score 6-2. In the last of the ninth the home team scored a run, making the final score 6-3.

That evening no doubt, the manager was soundly toasted for the shift, it being argued that the worst the home club would have gotten otherwise would have been a 3-3 tie.

Results Tell Tale.

In the other game, a National league contest, two of the pennant contenders were in action. The home team started the game with the star of the staff doing the hurling.

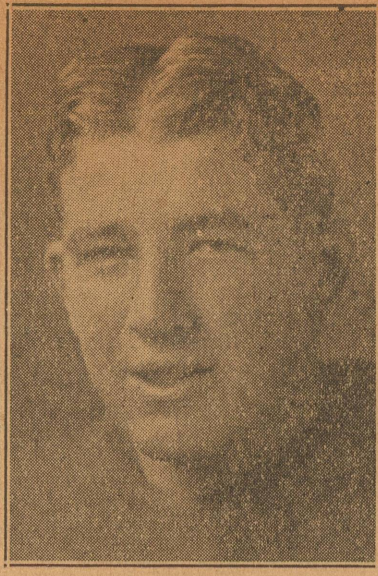

The visiting club made two runs in the first inning, but were blanked in the next six sessions. Going into the last of the seventh with the score 2-0 in favor of the visitors, the home team, with the bases filled, discovered it was the pitcher's turn at bat. He was removed for a pinch hitter, who came through with a single.

At the close of the inning, the home team had made three runs and taken the lead 3-2. The manager had played proper baseball by removing the pitcher, regardless of his effectiveness, since there was a two-run handicap to overcome.

He then substituted his next best bet to hold the one run margin, but he failed. Three other pitchers were rushed into the breach in an effort to check the opposition. Six runs resulted, the final result being 8-3 against the home team.

It is easy to imagine what the second guessers did to the home manager that evening, despite the fact that he played proper baseball. Managerial strategy is good or bad, according to the results.

The world's diamond production for 1926 was 5,649,100 carats, an increase of about 25 per cent over 1925, according to an answered question in this week's Liberty. Brazil furnished about 50,000 carats, Borneo 5,000 carats, and Africa the remainder. South Africa alone produced 3,202,100 carats.

The fact that he's gained in weight, strength and knowledge of the general principles of modern day football will make him stand out in the foreground this season as a probable all-state tackle.

Blair Cherry To Head Athletics Again This Year Oil Belt Teams Getting Ready For Big Scrap

According to Supt. R. F. Holloway, Blair Cherry has consented to head the junior college-high school department of athletics this year.

Everything is in readiness for a junior college eleven this season with the exception of a few plans which will be completed upon the return of Mr. Holloway next Thursday. On his campaign for more students this year, Mr. Holloway comments that everything looks favorable, and he is much pepped up over the idea of putting a team on the gridiron this fall.

The boys who are going to attend Ranger junior college this year are circulating a petition pledging themselves to attend on several conditions. The most important being the football coach and uniforms. A meeting of all junior college prospects and the business men of Ranger will be held some time next week, according to Mr. Holloway and there a conclusion will be reached.

A schedule for the junior college team was made out last spring by Blair Cherry at the meeting of the Texas junior college athletic association.

Several boys who intend to go are determined to see the football team idea go over and are visiting boys of Caddo and Rising Star who have announced their intention of coming to the junior college.

Sport Odds and Ends

JOHNNY FARRELL

By HENRY R. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—For several years, dating from the time that Gene Sarazen popped up and won his first national championship, golf fans had been asking—what's the matter with that Johnny Farrell?
Many critics figured that Farrell had a better game than Sarazen and other ranking professionals, but he never won anything in major match or tournament competition.

One of the most striking qualities in Sarazen's game was its cocky confidence and gameness and in whippers it went around that Farrell's handicap must have been a lack of courage.

The fans heard it so often they accepted it as being fact. The players figured it out for themselves and began to take the greatest advantage of it.

No one would dare tell Johnny to his face that he was yellow, not only because he would be a good two-fist in any company but because he was too well liked by everybody. But Johnny heard the whispers and it finally whipped him into a fury.

Whatever the influence may have been that weighed him down in the important tournaments, it has disappeared this season and he is piling up the most impressive record a golfer has made in years.

Farrell was asked recently if he could offer an explanation for the striking reformation of his tournament play.

"They used to say I was yellow and perhaps I did give that impression," he said. "But I think my trouble was a lack of physical condition and a tendency to admire the game of the other fellow too much and to try to pattern my game after his."

"Many times I have been playing with Jones and Hagen and I was wrapped up in admiration of their strokes and their grace and I wasn't thinking of Farrell's game. I then became convinced that if I was to get any place I would have to get the other fellow's watching my game. I'm playing Farrell's game now."

"The factor of physical condition also is important. I never knew how to eat properly and I was playing too much golf. I laid off all last winter and spent hours a day in a gymnasium. It put solid flesh on me, steadied my nerves and got me to believing in myself. Artie McGovern works on his patients mentally as much as physically."

The intimation that Farrell lacked courage is the result of what is becoming a natural tendency among expert critics of athletes. When they don't know just what is the matter with an athlete's particular game they say he is chicken hearted.

It was even said of Jones once that he would curl up in a tight place and after he had won the British open last year he said his greatest happiness was the personal conviction that he had a heart. He had heard the other stories so often he may have become doubtful himself.

You hear the same thing most frequently about fighters and baseball players at times.

They said that Jack Sharkey dogged in his fight with Jack Dempsey; that Kiki Cuyler melts when he gets two strikes on him; that Rogers Hornsby is not as bossy in the dressing room as he is on the playing field; that some of the leading jockeys will not try for a hole and that Suzanne Lenglen is first and always a front runner.

But in the majority of these cases you will find the one making the

The days until the 1927 football season opens can be numbered on the fingers and the fast Bulldogs, Buckaroos, Loboos, Mavericks and Eagles are getting ready to bite, buck, moo, chew, and claw, respectively.

There seems to be a lull in the oil belt football dope, for every team in the oil belt has the championship cinched. But everybody knows it is going to be one of the hottest and most successful seasons in football history.

All coaches of this district are attending coaching schools or have already attended and it appears as though everyone is getting ready for the grand opening.

The Bulldogs are anxious to get started but everything will be at a standstill until Cherry returns. The stadium needs a coat of paint or two to help preserve the lumber but the field is covered with green grass and everything is in readiness.

Coach Pena of Eastland called his Mavericks together last week and told the boys a few facts about the coming season. Although handicapped last year by a light team, he put out a fighting team, considering its size. This year he will have many of last year's veterans back but he will have to make a number of changes in order to give the other district teams any real competition, which it looks as though he might.

Brockridge is boasting of a good coach this year while the Cisco Lobos are going to be handicapped for the lack of a fast and bulky team which it has boasted of heretofore. The twenty year rule seems to have hit the teams of the liveliest football district in the state. It will give the public a chance to see boys play against boys, an opportunity that many fans have never had in football history.

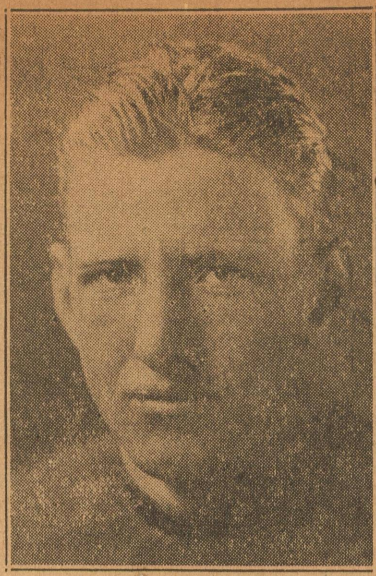

charges to be one who would fall over in a faint if some one shouted—"Boo"—behind him.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL
BELFAST, Ireland.—Association football in Ireland, although played under the same rules as in England, is by no means the national pastime that it is in the latter country.

Nevertheless 12 teams, members of the Irish League, were engaged in matches against each other today, the opening date of the Irish season, and a week before the game begins in England.

Naturally enough in a country whose life is governed to such an extent by its politics, professional football in Ireland is a complicated affair. Quite recently the action of the finance ministry of Northern Ireland over the matter of the entertainment tax aroused a good deal of feeling, and it was not until the matter had been thoroughly discussed and protested against, that the minister for finance decided to forego the tax on certain forms of outdoor sports, including football.

The saxophone was named after its inventor, Antoine Joseph Saxe, of Belgium and Paris, who invented several reed instruments about 1840, of which the saxophone was one, according to an answered question in this week's Liberty.

M. B. TAYLOR

Whether or not Mr. Taylor, the boy with the red nose and flaxen hair will learn as much as his tutor, Blair Cherry, from Rockne, remains yet to be seen. Taylor was the pile-driver of the Bulldog machine last year and can smash the line with an easy count from five to twenty yards at a clip.

Knute's coaching school will help him considerably in this year's new gridiron tactics. M. B. is the lad Cherry picked from those who went out last year and developed into a dashing, fearless back.

S. M. U. Missouri Game This Year To Be Open Play

Special Correspondence.
DALLAS, Aug. 19.—"No scouting!"

That gentlemen's agreement between Missouri and S. M. U., it is expected, will result in a football game at Fair park stadium here, Oct. 22, during the 1927 State Fair of Texas, that will be replete in spectacular open play.

Each outfit has agreed that it will receive no information on the other, and that likewise there shall be no "spying out" in the effort to get onto the other fellow's current style, new plays, original formations or anything of the kind. The only "dope" either will have will be newspaper reports on the games in which both may have figured prior to Oct. 22.

Both Missouri and S. M. U. were placed in national ranking last year as a result of their respective showings, and it will be remembered that the scored result at Columbia was a 7-7 tie, in the contest in which Chris Cortemeglia so distinguished himself in defensive play.

Missouri has a coach well known and highly valued in this territory, in Gwynne Henry, former Howard Payne and Southwestern star, and it is reliably reported that he was sought by the University of Texas to replace Doc Stewart when that gentleman went to the El Paso School of Mines.

In-Laws Rank First In Causing Marital Snags, Official Says

By United Press.
 BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Success in marriage depends less on the principals than on the in-laws Mrs. Jessie B. Arrasmith, chief clerk of the country court of domestic relations, believes.
 The court handles 1,000 or more desertion cases each year and Mrs. Smith is convinced she knows what she is talking about.
 "If young married people could just stay away from their in-laws they would be far more certain of a successful marriage," she said recently.
 Desertions occur, Mrs. Smith said most often in the months of April and November. "I can't tell you just why but it seems to be something in the air," was the clerk's explanation.
 Here are her figures on the reasons husbands leave home in Alabama.
 In-laws—60 per cent.

 Infidelity—five per cent.
 Extravagance—five per cent.
 Disillusionment—one per cent.

HOPES TO LIMIT SCOPE OF HUMANS' STUPIDITY

By United Press.
 UPSALA, Sweden.—Human stupidity is the subject of a masterly treatise published by Professor Hjalmar Ohrvall of the University of Upsala. Although despairing of entirely abolishing stupidity the Professor hopes to restrain its scope by demonstrating the way it originates and spreads.
 There are two types of stupidity, he says, the individual type and the collective. As examples of the latter type, he mentions excessive drinking of intoxicants, the use of tobacco, exaggerated sport competitions and some of the freak features of fashion. For a young lady to wear painted shoes and high heels is a most stupid thing, according to Professor Ohrvall. The origin of this mode, he says, was a desire to give an impression of having small feet, which was supposed to be a sign of noble breeding. To obtain this thousands of girls use shoes which give them corns and aching feet and destroy their normal gait.
 Neither can the professor understand why many tailors still continue to sit on a table with their legs crossed. This uncomfortable position was perhaps necessary in the olden times when small dark rooms were used, but not now. Besides, it is a purely masculine habit, he says, adding that a seamstress never sits on a table with her legs crossed.
 The youngest president of the United States was Theodore Roosevelt, who was inaugurated at the age of 42, points out an answered question in this week's Liberty.

WALL STREET BELIEVES MILLER WILL HEAD UNITED STATES STEEL

The New York Stock Exchange is proverbially skittish. Let a day's course of events deviate from the normal path ever so slightly, the stock market is apt to respond with a gyrating succession of falling price quotations.
 Yet when Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, died suddenly, the market remained firm, U. S. Steel common dropped five-eighths of a point; then, before the day was over it rallied and even went up a trifle.
 There probably are several reasons why the death of one of the nation's leading industrialists failed to disturb the market. One of them ers' boys of that generation were spent—in long days of toil, with no luxuries. He had the ordinary schooling of his day—approximately three months a year—and he had no time to learn any sport except boxing. This, it should be stated, was forced upon him. As a boy he was undersized, and had to learn to defend himself from the town bullies. He learned so well that by the time he had reached his teens his associates had learned to respect his abilities.

 Became a Republican.
 When young Nathan was 16 two things happened to him; he decided to enter the law as a profession, and he became a republican. Born the son of a die-hard democrat, who was

THERE IS MUTUAL SYMPATHY BETWEEN FARM AND INDUSTRY

By FOSTER EATON
 (United Press Staff Correspondent)
 LANSING, Mich.—The outstanding development of the recent conference of governors at Mackinac Island, Mich., was the "sympathy with which the agricultural districts and the industrial sections looked upon each others' problems," in the opinion of Governor Ralph O. Brewster, conference president, of Maine.
 Agricultural relief, and federal aid for an American merchant marine, were two of the major topics under discussion at the conference. Western governors came out strong for the McNary-Haugen bill, while eastern governors, notably Brewster, advocated a merchant marine.
 Historically the west, especially the interior sections which now feel the pinch of the agricultural situation, had opposed the East's plea for a merchant marine. By the same token, the chief opposition to the farm relief plan has come from the industrial centers of the country.
 Self-interest was the rock upon which the opposing sections split, but in the leveling atmosphere of the annual conference of governors there developed a new spirit, according to Governor Brewster, in which was featured the apparent belief that self-interest perhaps included consideration of other demands.
 The conference president referred to a round-table discussion led by Governor Theodore Christianson of Minnesota, in which Christianson went so far as to suggest that "perhaps these two aims formerly fought by rival factions, may now present the basis for some sort of trade."
 Brewster regarded that statement of a farm-relief, McNary-Haugen advocate as highly significant, especially since it followed Christianson's specific reference to the demand of industrial centers for a nationally supported merchant marine.

Miss Devern became Mrs. Nathan Miller.
 Miller was admitted to the bar the same year he became school commissioner. In a few years he had developed his practice so that he was considered the county's outstanding attorney. Due to this and his ability as a stump speaker, he became chairman of the Cortland county republican committee in 1898 and in 1901 was elected Cortland corporation counsel. And in 1903, so favorably was he known to the leaders of the New York republican party, he was made an associate justice of the state supreme court.
 Judge Miller remained on the bench for 12 years, graduating to the court of appeals in 1913. In 1915 he retired to re-enter private practice, pleading that he could not support his family—he had seven daughters—on a jurist's salary.
 On his resignation he moved to Syracuse, where he became counsel for a large corporation at $50,000 a year. In 1920 the republican party drafted him for governor. He served two years, suffering defeat by Al Smith in 1922. Then he re-entered private practice, moving to New York City and entering an alliance with the steel industry that grew closer and closer as the years went by.
 Known as "Czar."
 Judge Miller has the reputation of being a "czar," of riding over suggestions of his subordinates and of insisting on following his own ideas regardless of opposition. Those who know him best, however, say that these reports are wrong; that he is a capable, firm executive but that he has a markedly "human" side, however little the general public may see of it.
 And, although he is very conservative in his views on business and politics, he could not be classed as a reactionary—not, at least, by his own definition.
 "A reactionary," he said, "is a man living in the past, a man who is looking backward instead of forward. I believe in looking ahead—although I also believe in using the light of past experience as a guide."

Seaplane Popular Sport Now Days at Catalina Island

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Southern California continues to make its bid as the one perennial holiday land of the country.
 Despite Leckenings from other sections of the country, Southern California is going ahead in construction of almost every means of entertaining the fun-loving vacationists who pour to this North American Riviera for a holiday. Construction work on all these holiday land prospects is going on at a great pace.
 All along the broad beach in this immediate area, marvelous swimming clubs are going up. Two of the novel ones are the Gables and Casa del Mar. The former now has a small and beautifully decorated lodge facing the front where crowds gather to swim during the day and dance during the night.
 But plans already have been completed for construction of a giant club building back in the Palisades where club members may live. The little lodge on the sea front will be maintained but the major functions will be at the bigger club.
 Catalina still shares in the prominence of vacationland with the airplane coming into its own as part of the entertainment program. Short trips in sea planes are vying in popularity with the old fashioned trips in glass bottom boats.
 Aviation as a part of the entertainment program is growing with considerable strides over most of the district. Trips in the air may be made now as cheaply as one dollar, with excursions to nearby cities costing not a whole lot more than the ordinary train fares.

Phone Expansion Tells Story West Texas Progress

ABILENE, Aug. 20.—Telephonic expansions are telling figures of West Texas progress. Of a year's activity and record expenditure in increasing the area served by telephones over the state, nearly one-half was made in West Texas during the past year, particularly in those regions where oil play has developed.

Though a large amount of money has been expended in the west on improvements and extensions, it is expected that good returns may be obtained during the coming months as business prospects seem very favorable.

Most noticeable telephone development has been made in the following towns: Lubbock, Amarillo, Slaton and Big Spring. The dial system is to be installed in Amarillo.

The fact that telephonic improvement of the whole state was more in evidence in West Texas than in any particular section has been taken by R. W. Haynie, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce as indicative of a general trend toward the "bigger and better west" aimed at by his organization, especially during this, its decadal year.

SHANGHAI.—An order has been issued by the political bureau of the nationalist army here forbidding the use of the name of Dr. Yat-sen as a trade mark. Of late Sun Yat-sen watches, towels, underwear, socks and shoes have appeared on the market. The bureau holds that the use of the name of Dr. Sun for commercial purposes is profaning the name of the "father of the Chinese republic." Severe punishment is provided for those who violate the order.

ENGLAND SEEKS ISOLATION POLICY AS WAR THREATENS

Old European War Pot Continues To Boil In Southeastern Sections of The Continent

By J. W. T. MASON. (Written for the United Press.) Southeastern Europe again is sustaining its reputation as the plague spot of Europe.

Austria continues to exhibit antagonism between socialists and nationalists that may start a war, involving Italy. Rumania is threatened with civil strife over the Prince Carol question which contains possibilities of involving Russia and the Little Entente in hostilities. Hungary is watching for an opportunity to reclaim her citizens who were forcibly annexed to Czechoslovakia and Rumania by the short-sighted allied diplomats after the world war.

These three menaces to peace are seriously troubling European statesmen. There has developed since the war a more complicated system of interlocking diplomacy in Europe than existed before 1914 and a match struck in Austria, Hungary or Rumania might light powder trails leading to the four points of the compass.

Great Britain is beginning to take precautions to keep out of any embroilment which does not threaten the English channel. Warnings are being printed in London newspapers notifying the continental diplomats that the next European war must end at the channel and whatever be the consequences to any individual continental nation, Great Britain will not permit herself to be embroiled in European quarrels among the nations made or unmade by the world war.

This growing desire in Great Britain to return to a policy of "splendid isolation" marks the same tendency of British diplomacy which existed before the menace of Germany forced the English to associate themselves actively with continental alliance. The German threat against Great Britain no longer existing, the British have no duty to themselves involving the dispatch of hostile expeditions across the channel. The continentals, therefore, if they create a conflict, will do so to the enrichment of England, just as the world war enriched the United States while America remained neutral. Great Britain is giving the continent enough warning in advance to make it impossible for any foreign office to affirm afterward that the British encouraged belligerency and therefore ought to assume part of the responsibilities.

In adopting her present course, Great Britain is obeying the same instinct that is keeping the United States away from the European trouble makers. If the continental statesmen desire to challenge fate again and risk all in a mad effort to gain wealth and power by a new war, the conflict can be shortened by the neutrality of Great Britain and the United States, and made far less damaging to civilization. The continental countries are short of cash and if they find themselves unable to count on British and American gold to finance their campaigns, it will not be possible for them to fight very long, while existing conditions prevail.

The most serious threat to continental peace is the autocracy which has been established in Rumania following the refusal of the new refency to allow Prince Carol to return home and claim the throne. The Britain brothers are trying to establish themselves as the Mussolini twins of Rumania. Their hold on parliament is insecure because it does not exist with the consent of the electorate.

The peasant people's party is antagonistic to the present rule and if it declares for Prince Carol Europe may soon be in a turmoil.

Civil strife in Rumania, weakening the Rumanian army, might well serve as a signal both to Russia and Hungary to attack for the purpose of winning back territory, populated by their nationals which Rumania holds. Facing such a situation, Rumania would call on Jugo-Slavia and Czechoslovakia, her Little Entente allies, for help. But, the powerful racial influence in these two Slav countries might well prevent them going to war against Russia. Rumania would then bid for the support of Poland, since the Poles, equally with the Rumanians, hold Russia their enemy. Poland would obey orders from Paris, since French money flows largely the Polish army. If Poland went in, France would have to stand by, and Italy would then be unable to see her protege, Rumania, whipped.

So, the conflict might spread in all directions. But, a change in the balance of power in southeastern Europe would not affect Great Britain seriously, any more than it would endanger any American interests. So, with both these countries out, there would be some blood letting among the others, financial distress and increased taxation all around, leaving every participant worse than before.

Joseph Back From New York Market Tells of Styles

As a visible proof of D. Joseph's recent trip to the New York market, for the purpose of purchasing goods for Joseph's store, Ranger, are some very lovely Persian bed spreads and table covers. These are hand-made and woven in many colors with "In God We Trust" interwoven throughout the intricate designs. These are not the only evidences of Mr. Joseph's shopping tour, for new dresses, hats, bags, shoes and hosiery are already on dress parade in the big department store, and bolts of shimmering goods are tempting those who make their own clothes.

Mr. Joseph said in regard to colors that black and blue were the favored colors, georgette and satin back crepes, the favored materials, with velvet also being quite popular and felts taking the lead in headwear.

Fur-trimmed coats are as popular as they were last season, Mr. Joseph said, and furs are being used on both sport and dress coats.

Metal cloth is popular again this year, coming in many shades and rhinestones and flowers are used to finish off many costumes, as some of the dresses that have already arrived at Joseph's indicated.

"Shoes are black, either satin or patent leather, but colored hose are being shown," Mr. Joseph stated.

What's become of the Europeans who used to complain that Americans drank only ice water?

A Sick Husband Is Like Unto a Typhoon--A Sore Headed Bear and Restless As the Wind

Belles and Beaux OF THE FUTURE

MARYANNA ROGERS

Here is the first little belle to appear on this page. Isn't she a beauty though? Her name is Maryanna Rogers and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Rogers of Ranger.

The little belle to be, already has most taking ways, although only fourteen months old. She weighs twenty-three pounds, walked when she was eight and one half months old, thus getting an early start in life and has a mass of rich brown curly locks.

She is the first baby in the Rogers home. Her mother was formerly Miss Eulalia Wolfe of Ranger.

Women Depreciate Illness While Men Make the Most of It

By RENA B. CAMPBELL.

When a woman gets sick she tries to make as little of it as possible. She insists that she is not very ill and will be all right—all she needs is just a little rest and she only sends for the doctor when all home remedies fail.

When a man gets sick he thinks he is going to die before the doctor gets there. He has his wife, unless she knows him pretty well, simply scared to death and the children down on their knees asking God not to take Daddy away from them. He calls out frequently, "O, wife, I'm a dying, why don't you get a doctor here?"

When the doctor breezes in he gives his wife a look that says "You'll be all right tomorrow—just pull yourself together" and then friend husband often gets up and goes down to the office because he feels that the world has no sympathy for him.

A woman can nurse a man until she is ready to drop on her feet and then he thinks he lacks attention—but a woman when she's sick asks for so little. She is ashamed that she is down and out and tries to make it as easy on everyone else as possible. A sick man in a home is as restless as a typhoon, as grouchy as a bear. He thinks his wife a cut—his nurse a witch, but not the kind they burned at stakes.

A wife can nurse him back from death's door and then he'll vow if it had not been for his strong constitution he'd never pulled through—but a wife thrills her unmarried friends by the tales of tender devotion she relates of her husband's treatment to her when she is ill and vows she would never have lived to tell the story had dear Tom not been such a wonderful nurse.

Mrs. Garvine Chastain, president of the 1920 Club has called a meeting of that club for Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, on the mezzanine floor of the Cholsen. Every member is expected to be present. This will be the only meeting before the year book goes to press, some vacancies are to be filled and several other important matters demand a called session of the club.

THREE TABLES OF BRIDGE AT FRANK KING HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank King entertained three tables at bridge at their home on Pine Street Friday evening. Their guests were Messrs. and Mmes. Roy Allen and Argie Fehl of Eastland, and Messrs. and Mmes. Ralph Arnold, Mickey Sloan and Albert Beasley of Ranger.

Mrs. Sloan won as ladies' high score trophy, a vanity compact and Mrs. Fehl ladies' low score favor, a handkerchief.

Mr. Fehl carried off men's high score honors and was awarded an Eversharp pencil and Mr. Arnold was consoled with a cigarette case, as men's low prize.

Dainty refreshments followed the games.

MORNING BRIDGE AT TEA ROOM FOR TUESDAY CLUB.

Mrs. Ray Brooks extended her hospitality to the members of the Tuesday Bridge Club and a few other guests, Thursday at Acorn Acres, entertaining with bridge, which was followed by a charming luncheon at noon.

Mrs. Harry Logsdon made guest high score and received an attractive mayonnaise set; Mrs. Jimmie Holland made second high guest score and received a set of salt and pepper shakers. One of the features of the morning was the presentation by Mrs. R. J. Norman to Mrs. Tom Combs, a member who will soon leave for a new home in San Angelo, of a set of paraffin glasses, a gift of the entire club.

Club members and guests present were: Mmes. Jack Price, Sr., Jack Price, Jr., E. J. O'Donnell, R. J. Norman, Jimmie Holland, I. A. McCaslin, Tom Combs, H. A. Logsdon, E. W. Maben, J. A. Martin, W. H. Cash and K. C. Jones.

CARRIER BOYS ENJOY SWIM AND MANY EATS.

Twelve Ranger Times carrier and independent route boys qualified for the swim and watermelon feast tendered them by the circulation manager of the Times, on Friday evening. The party left town about six o'clock, stopping at the Banner Ice Cream Company for their first round of refreshments, and Sandless on sticks and then proceeded to Lake Cisco, where a swim was enjoyed. After the delight of that part of the program began to wane, the party motored back to Hollywood Barn and enjoyed hamburgers, cold drinks and watermelon. Miss Cordymae Sandefur and Ernest Shelton, of the circulation department sponsored the outing.

No Squalls Here!

Now you know why they call some boats tubs! The cause of many a "Blue Monday," however, furnishes little Madeline Waeldin, of Port Jefferson, Long Island, with the only motor craft of its kind in captivity. And what a swell time she's having!

THURSDAY BRIDGE CLUB WITH MRS. HARKRIDER.

Owing to a number of the members of the Thursday Bridge Club being out of the city, only two tables were arranged at the home of Mrs. A. N. Harkrider, for this club meet, on last Thursday afternoon. The lack in numbers, however, did not lessen the pleasure of the afternoon, as it was a most delightful club meeting, resulting in Mrs. John Thurman getting the high score prize, two amber headed lamp shades and Mrs. J. I. Gullahorn the low, a smaller pair of crystal beaded shades.

Refreshments of chicken salad sandwiches, olives, chips, iced tea, angel food cake and ice cream were served to Mmes. John Thurman, J. T. Gullahorn, Jack Price, Sr., Harry Logsdon, R. B. Campbell, E. E. Crawford, D. H. Barnett and Saunders Gregg.

Mrs. C. A. Jones to Build Fine Home On Main Street

Another beautiful home is to be added to Ranger's roster of new homes. Mrs. C. A. Jones has given a contract to W. N. and C. I. Bourdeau, Ranger contractors, for a six-room residence to be constructed of Oriental stucco and located on the corner of West Main and Lula streets.

Marshall Whitley is the architect in charge of the work which will begin on Monday morning.

The house will be Spanish type, a design entirely new to this country. It will have hardwood floors, tiled bath, built in features, Frigidaire, and the walls will be finished in Textone. It will cost when completed, around $7,000.

The garage will be of the same material and style, be double, with servants rooms in connection and scenic drives will connect it with the two street entrances, one drive coming in from Main Street and going out on Lula.

Landscaping will be in conformity to the type of the house and garage.

Mrs. Jones is one of Ranger's builders. During the past few months she has erected three nice rent houses on Main Street, a brick building on South Austin street, now occupied by the Love Motor Company and is now starting on a beautiful home for herself.

Full will be ushered in with the announcement of other building contracts, Mr. Whitley stated today, as well as the announcement of several completions. The R. S. Balch brick home in Hodges Oak Park is almost completed and is a beautiful home and the W. D. Conway home will be completed in about six weeks.

Ranger has had a big building program this year, which according to Marshall Whitley is not a building boom, but a normal demand for better housing facilities and more stately mansions. In a few days the Ranger Times will announce plans for its Home Beautiful, and in addition to the new homes that have been erected during the past few months, a large number of Ranger homes have undergone extensive building improvements.

There is no doubt that 1927 has seen more building permits issued than any year since the boom and all of the buildings erected are of the substantial kind and not the shack variety.

The West Texas Clinic building and the Pearson-Flewellen building will probably feature the fall building activities in the business district.

T. M. Combs Goes to Oil Supply Branch At San Angelo

T. M. Combs, of Ranger, has been appointed assistant district manager for the Continental Supply Company, with headquarters at San Angelo.

Mr. Combs has been in Ranger since 1920 and has served in the capacity of field man for the Continental Supply Company since that time. When the new West Texas offices of the company were opened up in San Angelo, Mr. Combs was promoted to the position of assistant manager of the district and transferred there.

Mr. Combs' successor has not yet been appointed. Mr. Combs is already in San Angelo, where Mrs. Combs and baby will join him soon.

M. Borodin Denies He Would Turn China to Communism

By RANDALL GOULD, United Press Staff Correspondent. CHINA SURVEY NO. 3. PEKIN.—"Why is soviet Russia so busy in China? Hasn't Russia enough trouble at home? Do China's soviet advisers really want to help her or are they trying to tear the country apart? Are they urging communism and murder of foreigners?" These and similar questions literally rain upon the head of anyone who has traveled through the Yangtze region of late. It is plain that to the average American or Briton in China, the status of soviet Russia here is a profound and disturbing mystery.

Certainly soviet Russia is outstandingly important in developing China of today. It is quite fair to ask why this is so, what it means, and what the future holds; but it must be emphasized that conclusions drawn are necessarily personal and based on subtle factors which might be interpreted otherwise by other observers dealing with identical facts.

Michael M. Borodin, high advisor to the nationalist government at Hankow, says he is not working for immediate communism, and the talk of communism in China today is foolish because there is nothing to communize until wealth can be crean interesting guide to the future, and the fact that such men as Borodin and former Ambassador Karakhan did not fall in with the extremist policy of favoring violent anti-foreignism in China—a policy which lost out in Moscow but which unquestionably was strongly supported—gives ground for hope that similar common sense will be shown in times to come.

It indicates that Borodin is a cool and scientific individual, unlikely to fall in with primitive notions however superficially attractive.

Borodin seems definitely to realize that China cannot be made a modern or a super-modern state overnight and that a radical course at present would mean ruin of the country. And neither Borodin nor any other intelligent Russian wants to see China ruined, for good reason.

The reason is plain—that a strong China, tied to soviet Russia by bonds tangible and intangible, can be a great asset to the soviet; whereas a ruined China can be of no value to anybody. While other nations back-osing horses in China, Russia has quietly stolen a march by picking the cause of nationalism as the winning horse. To ruin China, or to ruin the cause of nationalism, would under these circumstances be plain insanity on the part of soviet Russia. The very fact that Russia is having trouble on other fronts is all the more reason why she should wish to have her sanest, coolest, most constructive intelligences working to help the nationalist cause in China.

Pretty soon the only place to see an Indian chief will be some city hall or federal building.

New Cotton Pest Appears In Knox County Fields

GOREE, Aug. 20.—A new variety of cotton pest for this part of the country has been reported by farmers of this community in Knox county. It is a whitish green in color, being about one-fourth inch long and enlarged about the middle. The worm feeds upon the cotton bolls.

Despite presence of the pest in a number of fields, the cotton is very good, and the general corn outlook is promising. Maize and corn are showing up well; most of which is early and is now being headed or gathered. Corn acreage is larger than ever before.

There is a very appreciable increase in poultry in this section, and many farmers are now keeping nice flocks of chickens, most of them being the white leghorn variety. A gradual increase in dairy cows is also perceptible. Plenty of good hogs are in evidence, there being more on the farms than at any time since 1918.

Last year's crops are being shipped out by Goree farmers in order to make way for new products. Two cars of corn have been shipped, being the first to be sent out in ten years. Sixty-nine cars of maize have been shipped. One hundred twenty-three full cars of Goree trade territory products have been shipped out to date.

GENTLEMEN DETECTIVES APPEAR ON BROADWAY

By United Press.
NEW YORK.—If you visit a New York night club during the coming winter, do not wish or shove the long coat tailed gentlemen on your right, for he may be a "gentleman detective."

Of the "Detective Squad" of ten men has been re-organized. The men have been picked from various precincts of the city and their equipment is:

A figure that will not look ridiculous in evening clothes.

A dinner coat or a long tailed costume.

A manner of getting about which will permit one to mingle with the best "gentlemen crooks" of Broadway.

It will be their business to sip ginger ale in the night clubs, to see that dance halls are conducted with the proper attention to morality, to prevent a watch being lifted here and there and otherwise to keep the Broadway playground above reproach. Needless to say the "gentlemen detectives" like their work, for Broadway is an interesting place even if one is detecting.

TOWN WHERE DOUGHBOYS DUG IN AWAITS LEGION

By United Press.
PARIS.—Among the little French war towns which are preparing to welcome back the American soldiers is Dormans, beside the Marne. There is the right wing of the American army dug itself in and launched itself onward in the allied offensive of July and August, 1918. Hundreds of Americans fell there. Dormans has reason to remember the ex-doughboys and eagerly to await their return.

When they get back to Dormans the Legionnaires will find much that is the same as in those last months of the war: the shell torn village church, still bearing its same ugly scars, shattered walls, scattered heaps of refuse, for Dormans saw the two battles of the Marne and was almost completely destroyed. Most of its ruins lie low and crumbled—from repeated fire across the town.

But the veterans will also find a new Dormans with fresh brick houses, entirely new, gardens behind them, flower beds, in front, and near the main street a chapel being built. The villagers of Dormans point to it with pride.

FRIEND OF CUSTER AND CODY ON ANOTHER TOUR

By United Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo.—With long curly hair that hangs almost to his shoulders, and with bushy whiskers of the same hue that almost hides his face, Col. Ray E. Gardner, better known as "Arizona Bill," is a living proof that all the old Indian fighters and pioneers of the West are not dead.

Col. Gardner, 80 years old, is enraged at present in making a ninth, and he says his last, transcontinental tour. He was in this city a few days ago, headed to ward Flagstaff, Ariz., which he hopes and expects to make by the latter part of September. He and his three horses, Dynamite, Temporary, and Sloan, travel about 20 miles a day when they are on the road. Stops by the quartet are frequent. For all four are old.

The occasion of Col. Gardner's last trip East was to visit the sesquicentennial held at Philadelphia last year. He left there last November.

He was a personal friend of General Custer, Col. William Cody, and Pawnee Bill.

A STORM PROOF BEDROOM

By United Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo.—C. Edwin Overly of Kansas City expects a tornado. For more than 40 years he has awaited its coming. And when he built his small cottage he also was determined to realize a lifelong ambition and to have a tornado cellar.

The expected tornado has not arrived—yet. But the tornado cellar is a reality in the home of this Kansas City livestock trader.

A storm-proof bedroom and bath were built in one section of the basement. The walls and ceiling were made of 8-inch concrete, reinforced with 1-2-inch iron bars. A 10-foot passage, also of reinforced concrete, was constructed under the backyard to connect with the tornado cellar, 10x10 feet and 7-1-2 feet high.

An American captured by Mexican bandits was released for only $100 ransom. We can remember the time when Americans used to bring at least $1,000 any day, but, as the reformers say, we've come to the dogs terribly.

MIGHT AS WELL SLEPT

By United Press.
HARBIN.—A track surveyor on his daily round felt the need for 40 winks and elected the railway track as the most convenient resting place, trusting the humming of the rails to awaken him in case of an approaching train.

The driver of an incoming freight train noticed the man and brought the engine to stop a few yards away from the sleeper. An especially shrill blast from the engine whistle brought the man to his feet, and so dazed was he that he rushed headmost into the engine. He sustained heavy injuries to the head and was picked up unconscious.

You can find plenty of tire dealers who'll be glad to dicker with you, tempt you with all sorts of "special" deals.

I can't. It goes against my grain to pad up list prices in order to give you a discount or a "long trade"—to make myself a good fellow at your expense.

I've been in the tire business for a good many years. I've watched the "bargain boys" and the "long discount" fellows come and go. Every year my business has increased.

Every year more shrewd tire buyers come to me for Goodyears—and they "stay put" on Goodyears.

Announcing the Illustrious NEW CHRYSLER 72

A Statement from Walter P. Chrysler:

In announcing the Illustrious New Chrysler "72," we are confident that our latest product is as great an advance over today's fine cars as was the famous "70" over the best of four years ago.

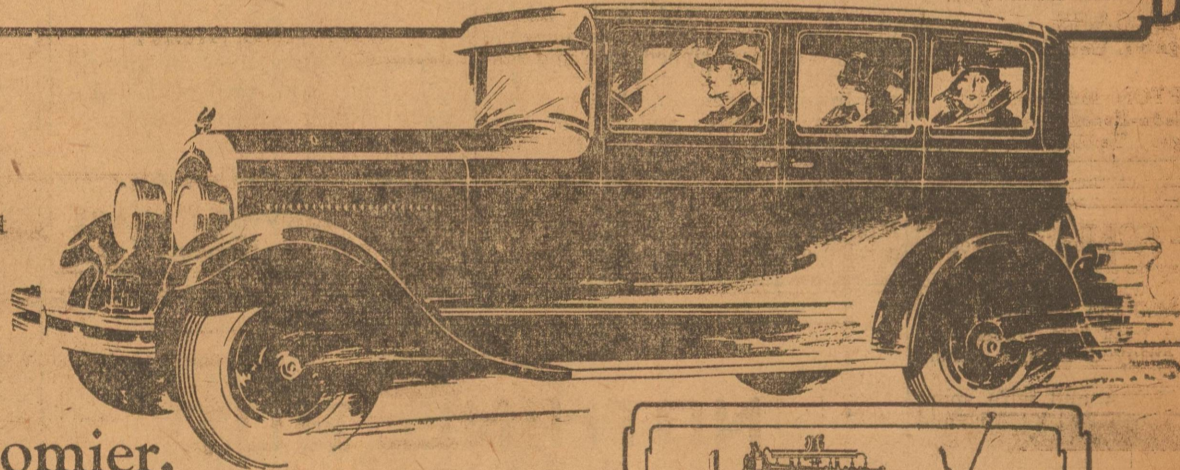

The New "72" is ultra modern — again setting new standards, establishing new results for the industry to follow. The New Chrysler "72" with the Great, New "62," the New "52," and the magnificent Imperial "80" — are Chrysler's covenant of faith with the public which has so generously demonstrated its faith in us.

W. P. Chrysler

$1495

to $1745, f. o. b. Detroit

Longer, Roomier, Faster, Handsomer

The Illustrious New Chrysler "72" — longer, roomier, faster and handsomer—but that tells only a touch of the "72" story.

For the first time, in a car costing less than $2000, the New "72" gives an engine of 75 horsepower, with counterweighted 7-bearing crankshaft and rubber engine mountings to wipe out every last vestige of vibration.

It gives you speed of 72 and more miles an hour, pick-up of 5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, hill-climbing ability that sweeps you up even mountain grades at constant acceleration.

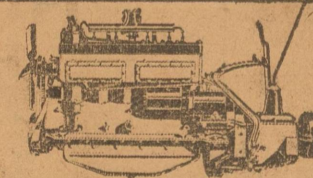

It gives you rubber shock insulators, pioneered with such great success in the Chrysler Imperial "80." The spring ends are anchored in blocks of live rubber, eliminating wear, noise and the need for lubrication. These insulators, with the special Chrysler spring suspension result in riding smoothness hitherto unknown.

It gives you longer, more beautiful bodies, tastefully appointed, luxuriously roomy, and fully equipped with saddle-spring seat-cushions and adjustable steering wheel to give you the utmost in comfort.

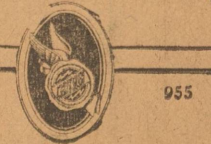

Test it to your satisfaction in every conceivable manner. Only then can you appreciate just how much wider is the gap which the Chrysler "72" has placed between itself and all others in this class.

Illustrious New Chrysler "72" prices—Eight body styles, $1495 and upwards, f. o. b. Detroit. Chrysler dealers are in position to extend the convenience of time payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

"Red-Head" Sets Chrysler Performance Farther Ahead

For those who seek supreme performance—speed, pick-up, hill-climbing ability, going beyond even the qualities of its standard sixes—Chrysler furnishes its new "Red-Head" high compression engine. . . . The New Chrysler "Red-Head" will be regular equipment on the Illustrious New Chrysler "72" Roadster, giving even greater speed and acceleration than the standards announced. It is also available for all other "72" body models.

Catholic Women Opposed To Birth Control Ideas

By United Press.
LONDON—At least 20,000,000 women, in all parts of the world, are opposed to birth control, according to the Catholic organ "The Universe."

This huge army of women, all members of the International Union of Catholic Women's Leagues, have issued through their leaders a combined protest against the proposed measures of legislation in certain countries, claiming to possess a high standard of culture, which would formally sanction birth prevention.

They make their protest on four grounds:

(1) Artificial birth control is immoral, a violation of Divine and natural laws.

(2) It arises from a pagan and purely materialistic view of life, which, denying any future existence, weakens the moral sense and replaces a generous disinterested outlook by a weak selfishness, which seeks to evade responsibility.

(3) It mocks at the age-long morality of marriage; it tends to weaken the marriage bond, diminish mutual respect and conjugal fidelity, and leads inevitably, as experience shows, to divorce, to free love, to prostitution, and to abortion.

(4) It undermines the strength of the people. Large families, far from being a danger to society, form its strength.

"Artificial birth control," continues the protest, "is an anti-social evil, which must eventually—indeed, rapidly—lead to depopulation. The lessons in history of Greece and of ancient Rome, prove that the fear of child-birth is a certain sign of the decadence of a people seeking to destroy itself."

"The danger of over-population is much exaggerated. In such places where such danger might temporarily exist many remedies may be applied which are not immoral. We may mention, among others, the cultivation of waste lands, of contenting oneself with a reasonable standard of living, and the forming of prudent schemes to encourage emigration."

GORMAN NEWS BRIEFS

GORMAN, Texas, Aug. 20.—Gorman will have its annual one-day free fall fair. This was definitely decided at a recent meeting of the Gorman Luncheon club, which gave its approval and pledged the support of its members. Exact date for the fair has not been determined. It will be either on the first or fifth week in September, however. The officers for this year are the same as acted last year. Committees are now at work securing attractions for the event.

A revival meeting will begin Sunday at the Gorman Baptist church. The pastor will do the preaching, while Roy Camp of Fort Worth will have charge of the song service. There will be five services each day. Preaching in the morning at 10 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock. The ladies will hold prayer meeting, the pastor will hold a personal workers council for both men and women, the singer will hold a young folks' meeting.

J. L. Lary, who has been in the banking business in Gorman for the past nine years, is going with his family to Clovis, N. M., where he will be connected with a bank as director, active vice-president and executive manager.

While digging a sewer connection Oscar Ash found some peculiar shaped rocks that have attracted considerable attention. Apparently shaped by human hands, two of the sets of rocks resemble the human figure while the third looks like a dog. They were found about two feet underground and there were no other rocks about them.

FRENCH AND AMERICAN PUPILS TRADE LETTERS

By United Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Dr. A. I. Roehm, a professor of Romance languages in Peabody College here, by fostering and building up an organization whereby international correspondence is carried on between students of different countries, has acted in the role of pioneer in developing international friendship and quickening interest among students in the study of foreign languages. Since Dr. Roehm began his activities in 1920, he has promoted the writing of letters between more than 150,000 students.

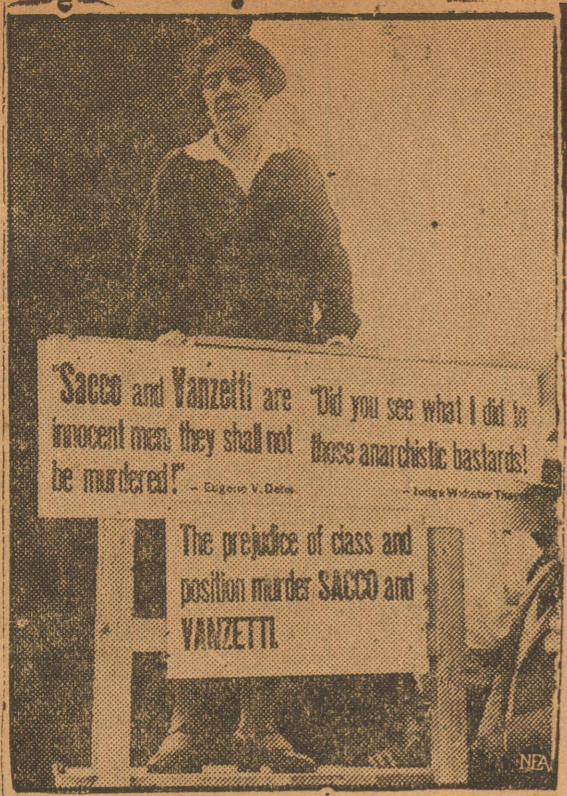

Each year the minister of public instruction in France sends Dr. Roehm the names of 25,000 of the ablest students in the schools of France. In return, Dr. Roehm sends 25,000 names of American students to France. The names are then matched, care being taken so that as nearly as possible the two different students will have similar interests and inclinations.

The American student writes his French correspondent in English, while the boy or girl in France responds with a letter written in French. Because of the personal interest instilled by the letters, an interest in the language of each country is developed.

In no case is a boy ever matched with a girl. This was provided for in an arrangement with the French minister of public instruction.

The first United States postage stamp, issued in 1857, bore the portrait of Benjamin Franklin, according to an unanswered question in this week's Liberty.

DIPLOMATIC SERVICE IS GAME FOR MEN OF VERY LARGE MEANS

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—The Hon. Joseph C. Grew, our new ambassador to Turkey, comes from an aristocratic and wealthy family, but the Hon. Mr. Grew encountered many hard knocks as he clambered up the promotion ladder to his recent post as under-secretary of state.

You sometimes hear of the career service in diplomacy as a sort of graduate school for tea hounds, but Grew, graduated from Groton and Harvard, would have found things much softer had he headed the family urge to enter business.

The family came in handy when Bellamy Storer, ambassador to Austria-Hungary and a friend of the Grews, asked President Roosevelt to make the young man second secretary to Vienna. But Roosevelt refused. Then an assistant attorney general, a friend of Grew's brother, went to work on Roosevelt. After two or three unsuccessful attempts—Roosevelt pleaded "political pressure"—this official told Roosevelt about Grew's tiger-hunting in China. Roosevelt immediately appointed Grew as third secretary at the embassy in Mexico City.

Grew cites his own experiences as evidence that the service is no bed of roses.

Diplomatic Hardships. While serving at Cairo he married and had a large consignment of valuable wedding presents shipped to Cairo. The ship went down off the Barbary coast. When the Grews started for Mexico, Mrs. Grew became ill in Italy en route. Grew took her to France and left her to recuperate. As he stopped off in Washington, a kind assistant secretary of state told him to go right back to France and stay with his wife until she recovered.

Meanwhile their trunks remained for months on the Vera Cruz docks because the embassy hadn't moved them to Mexico City as requested. When Grew arrived and claimed diplomatic free entry for the baggage, customs officers ripped open and ransacked the trunks and before they got to his residence he had lost half the family silver and all of Mrs. Grew's wardrobe. He sued the Mexican government and paid the costs of the suit.

Six months later, the altitude made Mrs. Grew seriously ill and she was carried out of Mexico on a stretcher.

completely paralyzed. Transferred to St. Petersburg, he telegraphed the embassy at Mexico City to forward baggage and a lot of fine old furniture he had collected there. Some of the baggage arrived five months later but the furniture was never heard of. It's Rich Man's Game.

Grew's early troubles make a story which isn't at all isolated. Other members of the foreign service tell even more harrowing tales.

Grew happened to be a man of means. Less fortunate members of the service in his case, dependent on their salaries, have been forced out of the service or sorely crippled by similar complications.

Political pull is not now so necessary in entering the service and salaries are somewhat higher, but without private means find the business of diplomacy virtually impossible. Even if they have no such hard luck as Grew's, they can't meet the entertainment requirements for which the government provides no allowance.

New Chryslers Being Shown At Hodges Motor Co.

Rarely unusual features of chassis and body are presented in the "Illustrated New '72'" brilliant successor to the famous original "70", just announced by the Chrysler Sales Corporation and on display at the salesroom of Hodges Motor Company.

It is confidently predicted by Chrysler officials that the "72" will receive the most enthusiastic welcome ever accorded any creation of the company's designers and engineers.

The principal features of this remarkable new car include an entirely new, larger and more powerful engine mounted in rubber at both front and rear, and featuring a seven-bearing crankshaft which is counterweighted, similar to the crankshaft used with such phenomenal results in the Chrysler Imperial "80"; a longer chassis fitted with rubber shock insulators replacing metal spring shackles; and roomier and more handsome bodies.

In appearance the new "72" is an improvement even over the original Chrysler which so influenced automobile body design upon its introduction more than three years ago.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Vera Cameron is promoted to the position of assistant to the new advertising manager of Peach Bloom Cosmetics.

The first day she is in his office, her boss, Jerry Macklyn hits upon the brilliant scheme of transforming the plain looking Vera, with the air of her company cosmetics, into a beauty. He proposes to photograph her and to use her pictures in the company advertising. Vera is furious and leaves his office, resolved to resign.

On her way down to lunch she sees a man in the elevator with whom she falls instantly in love. She overhears a conversation and learns his name is Schuyler and that he is to spend the latter part of June at Lake Minnetonka, a suddenly obsessed with the desire to be beautiful in time for the Minnetonka in June, goes back to Jerry and tells him she has reconsidered. She submits reluctantly to Jerry's examination of her long braided hair, her mouth, her nose, her classic nose, and her freckles. He orders her to remove her glasses and she tells him she can see without them but fears eyestrain. He is elated to learn she has sea-green eyes. In her ecstasy at the thought of becoming beautiful, Vera forgets the price she must pay until Jerry reminds her that they will visit the photographer for the first picture at once.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V

"Well, what do you think, Miss Proctor? Am I crazy or can we make a hawling beauty of this girl?" Jerry Macklyn demanded, his eyes darting from the embarrassed Vera to the cool, professional pretty little demonstrator of Peach Bloom Cosmetics.

Miss Kitty Proctor cocked her boyish-bobbed head and surveyed Vera critically from head to toe with calculating but friendly black eyes, cunningly enlarged and brightened by Peach Bloom Star Lash.

"Sure! It will take a lot of work, but it can be done. I'd start right in with a course of facials first, using our Peach Bloom Skin Food and Peach Bloom Bleach, to get rid of those freckles, you know, and to tone up the skin. Her hair would have to be bobbed, of course."

"Oh! Vera wailed, her hands flying to her long braids, as if to defend them against vandals. 'I'm not the bobbed-haired type—'

"Oh, shut up! You don't know what type you are!" Jerry Macklyn interrupted her with brutal rudeness, alleviated with one of his wide grins. "Go on, Miss Proctor, shoot the works!"

"And the color of her hair is terrible," Miss Kitty Proctor continued, nibbling at a highly manicured forefinger reflectively. "We've got a swell line of hair tint—"

"I won't have dyed hair!" Vera cried passionately. "I—"

"Will you shut up! Remember, I'm your boss!" Jerry Macklyn commanded her sternly. "Wait a minute, Miss Proctor! Got something to show you!"

He yanked open a drawer, rummaged among a great stack of pictures and newspaper clippings, uttered an exclamation of triumph, and called Miss Proctor to his side.

Vera saw that their heads were bent over a clipping from the pages of a Sunday supplement, the kind that is printed on heavy glazed paper in four colors, and that specializes in the reproduction of painted portraits of society women and of old masters.

"There you are, Miss Proctor! There! your model! Can we do it? Lord! Jerry breathed reverently.

"Look out or you'll be falling in love with a picture," Kitty Proctor giggled. "Wonder who she is? Starfordcut off the caption."

"One of those imported movie stars I suppose," Jerry mused. "But I'll tell the world she's the slickest arcle I ever looked at! Green eyes, to! That's what made me remember the picture."

"Aren't you going to let me see?" Vera demanded icily.

"Your curiosity amazes me. I might even say it pains me," Jerry laughed, taking out his pocketbook and depositing the picture tenderly and reverently in one of its folds.

"I know just the man to give her that bob," Kitty Proctor told him, ignoring Vera as if she did not exist.

"With that picture to go by, he can give her a permanent and a bob that will make her look like that girl's twin sister. Now, Mr. Macklyn, how are we going to work this stunt? She's going to need a lot of work done on her, and I suppose she'll be busy during the day—"

"I should say she will!" Jerry agreed. "We're going to be snowed under with work. This is just one of my bright ideas, and I'm bursting with a million others. You're not going to put her out of commission, temporarily, while you work on her, are you?" he asked anxiously. "By the way, Miss Proctor, this whole thing is to be kept a dead secret until I'm ready to submit my series to Campaign."

"Let me see," Kitty Proctor considered, drawing her plucked brows into a thoughtful frown. "We'll let the permanent and the bob go till the very last thing, so the bunch here won't get wise. Where do you live, Miss Cameron?" she whirled upon Vera.

"With my aunt, at Seventy-ninth and Riverside Drive. But I don't want her to know a thing about it until I'm made over," Vera confessed. "She'd tease the life out of me. Oh, I think the whole thing is silly and impractical—"

"Don't think so darned much," Jerry Macklyn frowned at her. "What were you going to suggest, Miss Proctor?"

agents I could let her have my girl friend's room and I could give her the treatments myself. I've got a lot of beauty parlor equipment in my place."

"How long would it take? Vera asked weakly.

"Well," Kitty Proctor considered, "those freckles aren't going to come off in one night, and your hands and nails and skin need a lot of work. I should say it could be done in three weeks, if you put yourself absolutely in my hands. Of course you'd go right on working during the day, and about all anyone would notice would be that your complexion was clearing up. At the end of that time you could get your permanent and your bob, and be all ready to step out as a new person. You'll be new all right. I can guarantee that. And if I decide to peel your face—"

"Peel it?" Vera asked.

"Oh, it doesn't hurt, and it's much quicker than the bleach pack. You'd have to stay in the house for three days, but I guess Mr. Macklyn could manage without you from Friday night to Tuesday morning."

"All right," Vera gasped and took the plunge. "I'll do it. I'll move to your apartment tonight, if that's convenient for you. I'll have to see my aunt first—"

When Kitty Proctor had scribbled her address upon sheet of Peach Bloom Company stationery, she thrust out a friendly hand and gripped Vera's cold fingers cordially.

"Don't worry, honey. It's going to be great fun. You're not going to jail, you know. And remember this—a million girls and women in these good old United States would be glad to pay a thousand dollars for what you're going to get free, gratis, for nothing."

But when Jerry Macklyn jammed his hat on his head and told her briskly that it was time for them to hustle over to the photographer who was to make the first picture of the series, Vera Cameron realized with sickening thoroughness that her "beautification" was not to be "free, gratis, for nothing." She would pay and pay and pay, in soul-searing humiliation every time her pictured face stared up at her from the glossy pages of a magazine.

"I must be crazy," she moaned to herself, after the photographers had made half a dozen pictures of her bespectacled freckle, unpowdered, braid-crowned head. "If anyone had told me yesterday that I would consent to let my face be used to advertise cosmetics I would have been arrested later for assault and battery."

When Vera and Jerry left the photographer's studio, she turned to him anxiously. "Mr. Macklyn, when do you plan to—run this new series of—advertisements?" She had to drag out the words and her tongue felt burnt with them.

"Let him take all the silly pictures he wants to. I'll vamp him into not running them."

"Oh, not before fall. Why? Anxious to see yourself in print?" he chuckled.

"Anxious!" She echoed. "I—I'll be so ashamed that I'll probably commit suicide when they do come out."

"Say, wait a minute!" Jerry Macklyn laid a hand on her arm, and halted her in the lobby of the Fifth Avenue building. "If you really don't want your pictures to be used why are you going through with this stunt. It's not too late, you know, to back out—"

"I can't back out!" Vera told him desperately. "There's a reason—but I can't tell you—"

"Take off those windowpanes," Jerry ordered her gruffly. "I want to see what your eyes look like when you cry. Here!" And regardless of passersby who eyed them curiously, he reached up and yanked off her spectacles for the second time that memorable day.

Vera's green eyes shimmered at him behind a magnifying lens of tears.

"Whew!" Jerry Macklyn whispered, whipping out a handkerchief and mopping his suddenly damp brow. "I know now why you wore those goggles! You had a decent, womanly pity for poor susceptible males."

"Are you susceptible?" Vera surprised herself by asking.

"Did you ever see a red-headed Irishman who wasn't?" Jerry retorted. "But say, young woman, why didn't you tell me the truth in the first place—that you were in love with another chap that you wanted to hook with the fatal beauty I promised you?"

"Why should I have told you that, even if it had been true?"

"Why? You ask me why?" Jerry groaned with mock bitterness. "Here I get all set to turn you into my own ideal of feminine beauty and you floor me with the news that it's all for someone else. Is that nice—now I ask you?"

"I thought it was all for the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Company," Vera laughed.

"That's right. Put me in my place" Jerry urged her glumly.

Vera's heart was wickedly light when she took her seat before her desk again. Automatically she adjusted her spectacles after Jerry had skinned the door upon himself in his private office, and began to type fast and furiously on the last of the letters that her new boss had managed to dictate between the more exciting events of that extraordinary day.

Outwardly she was the same girl who had entered the offices of the Peach Bloom Company that morning. But the extent to which she had changed inwardly could have been accurately gauged by a mindreader. For Vera Cameron was saying to herself, while her mouth dimpled and her green eyes sparkled behind her yellow-tinted spectacles:

"Let him take all the silly pictures he wants to! I'll vamp him into not running them! It will be good practice!"

...I'll need it if I'm going to be ready for Schuyler by the middle of June. Schuyler—dear!"

CHAPTER VI

When Vera Cameron returned to the apartment that evening, she found Flora Cartwright devoted to the serious business of dressing for an evening out.

"Hello, Vee-Vee, darling. You're just in time to powder my back and shoulders. Do try to spread it evenly. This evening—" she turned dramatically upon Vera, who had laid aside her hat and coat and was regarding her pretty aunt with searching calculating eyes—"is one of the most important evenings in my life."

"Important?" Vee-Vee raised her heavy brows inquiringly.

"Absolutely vital," Flora Cartwright smiled. "Peter Darrow is going to propose to me tonight, and I've got to dress for the occasion."

Vee-Vee—she had determined to think of herself as Vee-Vee instead of Vera Victoria, since her prospective rebirth demanded an entirely new outlook upon life—took the great fluffy powder puff from the dressing table and began to dust pearly-tinted powder upon her aunt's shoulders. "How do you know he is going to propose tonight, Aunt Flora?" she asked casually, but her aunt would have been strait-laced to know that the girl was hanging on her words.

"Because I have planned for him to do so," Flora Cartwright laughed. "Would you wear the new black chiffon with rhinestones, or do you think black will remind him that I have two poor dear husbands in the grave? The Nymph pink georgette now—I bought it for this special occasion, but I'm getting to be just a tiny bit afraid of pink. After all, I am thirty-eight, though I'll say you in cold blood if you dare tell a soul. What would you say to the jade green—"

"Aunt Flora," Vee-Vee interrupted in a tense, determined voice. "Are you going to marry Peter Darrow? Do you think it's fair—"

"Marry Peter," Flora Cartwright's laugh rang out joyously. She opened a tiny jar of lip salve and began to retouch her lips. "My dear Vee-Vee who said anything about marrying Peter? I said he was going to propose to me tonight, and he is. A proposal at least every six months is absolutely necessary to my piece of mind. It's Peter's turn now, and I'm going to have a perfectly lovely time, listening to him tell me that I am fascinating and young and beautiful and that he loves me madly. That will keep me young for another precious six months, and will do the darling infant no harm at all. But—as for marrying Peter, why, darling, I'd worry myself into the grave trying to keep up with him and to keep him from finding out that I'm ten years older than he thinks I am. No, Vee-Vee, dear, when I marry again, it will be a nice, comfortable middle-aged man who will adore me before breakfast as well as under the dinner table candles. I don't dare let Peter see me in the sunlight now—"

"Aunt Flora, how do you do it? Make them propose, I mean?" Vee-Vee interrupted, still in that tense, determined voice.

Mrs. Cartwright dropped her hand-mirror, sprang to her feet, and flung her arms about the astonished girl unyielding body. "Darling! You're in love! And you weren't going to tell your old aunt a word about it! Who is he, Vee-Vee? Oh, my dear, I've simply prayed for this day to come—"

"Aunt Flora, please don't be ridiculous!" Vee-Vee spoke indignantly but with entirely too much emphasis to deceive her aunt, who was wise in the ways of women. "All right, darling," Flora kissed her niece on both cheeks, then turned back to her dressing table. "I'll tell you how I do it when you tell me who it is. Oh—I forgot to ask you, and you're probably sulking because I forgot—did you get your promotion dear? Oh, dear, which dress shall it be? Peter hasn't seen the pink, but he said that I looked like a Naiad in the green. If he only weren't so young—but tell me, dear; Aunt Flora's listening. You won't mind if I go on with my dressing?"

"Certainly not, Aunt Flora. But it does happen that I have some rather important news for you. I was made assistant to the advertising manager today—"

"That isn't the position you expected, is it, dear? But it sounds very important. Excuse me. Go on, darling. Let's see—shall I wear these crystals or not? I'm almost sure I told Peter that Nicky gave them to me for an anniversary present. And Peter's so sensitive. Just a tiny thing like that might scare him off—yes, dear, I am listening," she interrupted herself contritely.

"The new advertising manager is Mr. Macklyn—Jerry Macklyn—"

Vee-Vee began valiantly. "Jerry, did you say, darling? There I knew it! You have fallen in love! I never could resist a Jerry sort of man myself! Tell me all about him, Vee-Vee, or I'll strangle you with Nicky's crystals."

"He's my new boss, Aunt Flora, and I'm not in love with him," Vee-Vee cried desperately. "He's positively homely—has the most amazing red hair you ever saw—and eyes as blue as—blue crystals—"

"He sounds adorable," Flora sighed. "I don't blame you a bit. Would you wear nude or silver stockings with this jade green dress?"

"Silver, with your silver slippers," Vee-Vee answered desperately. "Please listen a minute, Aunt Flora. I'm trying to tell you that I shall have to be away for at least three weeks on work on the film—"

"Why didn't you say so?" Flora Cartwright demanded with shrill indignation. "Three weeks! You know good and well if you leave me alone that long I'll marry some one in sheer desperation. I always do! You know I can't bear to be alone. If I make a fool of myself and accept Peter when he proposes tonight I will be all your fault, Vera Victoria

"If Jerry Macklyn doesn't make good I'll snatch his red hair out is handfuls."

Cameron! Where in the world are you going?"

"Out of town, on secret business connected with the advertising department," she smiled, glad that Kitty Proctor actually did live "out of town"—for if Astoria wasn't "out of town" what was it?

"Of course if you want to be mysterious," Flora pouted, and observed her expression in the mirror with interest. "Do you think I am getting too old to pout charmingly, Vee-Vee? Of all creatures, I detest the kittenish middle-aged woman. If I'm not permanently married by the time I'm forty, I'm going in for a career. Nicky says I ought to write advice to the low-down for a newspaper. When do you leave, darling?"

"Tonight, I shall be gone when you get home, Aunt Flora. I'll leave a check for my share of this month's rent on your dresser, dear. I'll come back as soon as I can. Promise me you won't do anything foolish while I'm gone—like getting married."

"And you want to benefit by contrast with my plainness," Vee-Vee laughed. "All right, I'll be your foil tonight, but I warn you it's the last time," she added, as she opened the door that led from her aunt's room into the living room of the small apartment.

"Now what did you mean by that?" Flora demanded, startled. Then, "Oh, there you are, Peter! You look stunning tonight, man dear! Did you ever see anything so handsome in all your life as my Peter, Vee-Vee? A gardenia in his button-hole and everything."

If Vee-Vee really wanted to know how her aunt "did it" she was getting a perfect object lesson. Flora Cartwright fluttered up to the tall boy who looked scarcely older than a college sophomore, raised herself on tiptoe to touch the shining smoothness of his thick chestnut hair, and trailed her soft, scented fingers down his blushing young cheek.

"Did you ever see anything so handsome in all your life as my Peter, Vee-Vee?" she demanded again, her blue eyes wide and adoring, her voice as soft and caressing as the spring breeze outside. "If I didn't like him so well myself, Vee-Vee, I'd make you happy by giving him to you. Then maybe you would not run away from me on stupid business."

"Don't say that even in fun, Flora!" Peter Darrow said sternly, trying to make his voice sound very deep and mature. "You know I can't see anyone but you—"

Vera turned sharply to leave the room, but not before she had seen her small, pretty aunt swept into the circle of ardent young arms, a handsome brown head bent low to meet a blond one—she realized that they didn't know she was gone, would not have cared if she had stayed, that to Peter Darrow she simply did not exist.

And for the first time since she had known him that realization made her fighting mad. Not that she cared a whoop for Peter Darrow, as she told herself furiously when she had shut herself into her room to pack—

"But I'll see Mr. Peter Darrow again in three or four weeks and then—we'll soon find out if he can't see anyone else but Flora Cartwright! I'm going to need a lot of practice before I see you, Schuyler!"

Then she caught sight of herself in the mirror of her dressing table, saw herself truly for the first time—an old-fashioned, prim, spinster-looking business woman. She tore her spectacle from her eye, ground them under a furious heel, then ran to her closet and began to jerk down dresses with frantic haste.

"If Jerry Macklyn doesn't make good his promise to turn me into a beauty I'll—I'll snatch his hateful red hair out in handfuls!" she sobbed as she stuffed her clothes into a suitcase.

New Geological Information To Be Available

Special Correspondence.

Austin, Texas, August 19.—An important addition to the geological information concerning counties of West Texas will be available for the general public soon. It is in the form of a bulletin which is now in press. It deals with the geology of the Fort Stockton region of Pecos county and is the result of a survey recently made by W. S. Adkins, associate geologist in the Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas.

This survey and report specifically covers approximately 225 square miles of the northern part of the county, but it also contains a compilation of approximately 150 oil wells, most of which are situated in the eastern part of the county. This list of wells embraces all except those that were drilled more recently.

The compilation gives a description of samples taken from the wells. In this connection, it is of public interest and importance to know that practically all of the companies now operating in West Texas carefully keep samples of any noticeable size which may be encountered in course of drilling and it is by analyzing these samples that it can be determined whether they are of potash content.

Mr. Adkins will begin another important survey September 1. He will make a complete contour of the central mineral region, embracing Llano, Mason, Lampasas, San Saba and parts of Travis and Williamson counties. In this proposed survey he will get the dip of cretaceous formation and determine how much uplift there has been since cretaceous times. This information will be important in connection with oil possibilities.

Another important feature of the survey will be that of arriving at additional facts in connection with the "bond arch" which runs north from the central mineral region, through the Ranger and other oil fields and extending to the Red River. Mr. Adkins will also investigate a similar structure which runs northeast from the central mineral region, through ward Lampasas. This latter "bond arch" has never been explored. It is regarded as possible that the structures of this kind may be found extending in other directions from the central mineral region. It will take Mr. Adkins several weeks to make this survey.

The Bureau of Economic Geology also recently completed a survey of Tom Green county, and at present G. G. Henderson, temporarily employed by the Bureau, is tracing the San Angelo formation northward through Coke county.

TELLS OF POLAR COLD

By United Press.

NEW YORK.—When Commander Byrd flies over the South pole he will not find the atmosphere as cold as that directly over the equator, says Professor Alexander McAde of the Blue Hill observatory near Boston, in the September American Magazine. "The coldest region that has yet been found in the air is in this equatorial bulge of the lower layer of atmosphere," said Professor McAde. Experiments with a sounding balloon sent up from the world's hottest spot to a height of ten and one-half miles showed a temperature of 130 degrees below zero. At an altitude of 16 miles the mechanism of the balloon registered a temperature 60 degrees less than at the previous height.

"The coldest spot yet discovered on the earth's surface is the village of Verkhovansk, Siberia, with a temperature of 90 degrees below zero. Yet the air over that place is not as cold as that over the equator. The figures have been fully confirmed by subsequent tests at all seasons in various sections of the earth."

BUSINESS IN ANTHRACITE AREA WORSE NOW THAN DURING STRIKE

By ARTHUR N. SUVERKRUP

ASHLAND, Pa.—The anthracite coal industry is in the process of an economic readjustment and business conditions in this section are said by veteran business men and miners to be worse than at any time since the administration of Grover Cleveland. Miners declare that times are worse today than they were during the longest strike on record—the strike which ended in February, 1926.

During July the average wage earned by the miners in this section was $25, hardly enough to pay rent on the current rates in this section. "The average of one day's work per week is general in the mines and collieries of this section. Not only the Reading collieries, which are in a majority, but the Lehigh Valley and small independent operations as well are working on that basis if at all.

Every one connected with the mines in any way today is suffering from financial difficulties. "Any business man who can meet his overhead expenses at the present time should not complain. If he does complain he is expecting too much from the hard coal region," declared Dr. J. L. Hoffman, 70-year-old president of the Ashland borough council in a statement to the United Press.

Dr. Hoffman is a life-long resident of Ashland and a close observer of conditions in the anthracite fields. During July the miners worked just four days.

When the last and longest anthracite strike was called in 1925 the people of the hard coal regions were prepared. They had saved some money. But their savings dwindled during the strike and today they have no reserve.

Hundreds of miners who had purchased furniture and other commodities on the installment plan are being forced to pass their payments and return the goods.

Business men say that the business depression in this section is a great deal worse than during the strike. Mine operators have never directly given out a statement assigning a reason for the unprecedented conditions which exist today.

It has been learned, however, from sources close to the operators that there is no market for the anthracite product.

One mine superintendent here told the United Press that "Every ton of coal we mined last week is standing in coal cars in the yards."

He said that his mine is under orders to close down entirely within a few days.

Another mine official in discussing the situation said: "Regardless of what may be said to the contrary substitutes used by

Miss Parramore Is Selected As Spirit Of Abilene

Special Correspondence.
ABILENE, Aug. 20.—Miss Mary Parramore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parramore, one of Abilene's most charming young women and a member of an honored pioneer West Texas family, will appear as "The Spirit of Abilene," when Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the trans-Atlantic flight pioneer, visits here Sept. 26.

Announcement of Miss Parramore's selection, made last night, was the first of scores that are expected to be received during the coming fortnight from mayors of West Texas towns and cities. Each mayor has been asked to select a young woman to represent his community and Miss Parramore will be hostess to the entire number of a round of social functions being planned for them. Their visit here will not only be on the day of the visit to West Texas by the fair-haired boy who rocketed to Paris not so long ago and, all unwittingly, wooed and won the love of the entire civilized world. These daughters of West Texas will be called upon on the opening day of the West Texas Fair and will be treated as the most distinguished of the thousands of West Texans who will then be congregated in Abilene.

Miss Emily Frances Key, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Key of Lampasas, crowned "Miss West Texas" at the Wichita Falls convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, will share with "The Spirit of Abilene" the honor of hostess, when she comes here to be "The Spirit of West Texas."

"The Best Town on Earth"

Delegates From Japan Seek Cut In Press Rates

By MILES W. VAUGHN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
TOKIO—Japan will be represented by a number of journalists including S. Uyeda, director of the Nippon Dempo Tsushin sha (Japan Telegraph News Agency) at the Conference of Press Experts to be held in Geneva, under auspices of the League of Nations, Aug. 24.

Uyeda is proceeding to Geneva via Siberia, arriving in advance of the opening of the Conference. Preparations for the Conference, which will be virtually an international Press Congress, have been completed and invitations sent to governments, organizations and newspapers. Uyeda, whose agency is allied with the Independent News Agencies, that is, agencies not having any connections with governments, will make no special effort to obtain adoption of resolutions by the Conference urging improvement in communications facilities throughout the Far East, and a reduction in the press rates between Asiatic countries and nations of Europe and the Americas.

"We plan to submit concrete evidence regarding the exorbitant rates per word on press telegrams between the different capitals and principal cities of the East, and between these capitals and Europe and America," Uyeda told the United Press before leaving. We will show that the rate per word on press telegrams between Peking and Tokio is more than twice as much as the minimum rate between New York and London—although the distance is much less. We will show that the other press rate charged between Eastern cities is out of all proportion to that charged in other parts of the world.

"It is our contention that the existing communications must be vastly improved, and that press rates must be low enough to enable the newspapers throughout the Far East to print daily complete news reports from the other Asiatic countries as well as from the rest of the world.

"Another question we hope to place before the Conference is that of the radio tangle, is well known. The press should insist that it be settled so that radio stations may be throughout China, enabling us to get news from that country quickly and cheaply."

RIN TIN TINS UNPOPULAR

By United Press.
SYDNEY—Rin Tin Tin is popular among Australian film fans, but his prototype in the flesh is not so highly regarded among sheep breeders who contribute the major portion of Australia's national wealth.

Rin Tin Tin has contributed greatly to the popularity of his breed, the Alsatian, among people of this country. Scores of his kind have been imported from England, America and other countries, and several breeding kennels have been established. But sheep breeders declare that because the Alsatian is but comparatively newly evolved from the wolf, he would be a danger to Australian sheep flocks, should he ever break loose and breed in the wild. They assert that this is more than probable and that a few years of freedom would soon wipe away the Alsatian's thin veneer of domestication. Hence representations are being made to the Federal Government to prohibit their importation, breeding and sale.

TRAFFIC TIUP AFFORDS HORSE A PLEASANT REST

By United Press.
LONDON—Impatient pedestrians in traffic "jams" might well take a leaf from the book of "Willie," the horse. "Willie" created a good deal of amusement in Cheapside, one of the busiest streets of London. He was trotting unconcernedly along, pulling a cart, when suddenly he found himself in a traffic tiup. "Willie" made no bones about it, but at once sat down on his haunches, and waited for the police signal to go on, when he got to his feet and continued his trot. According to the driver, "Willie" is a very intelligent and hard-working animal, but he always sits down when he is held up this way.

Rum Chaser Caught in Niagara Rapids

The officers and men on this U. S. coast guard rum chaser, stationed at Buffalo, N. Y., narrowly escaped death in Niagara Falls. The boat was patrolling the Niagara river above the falls when engine trouble developed, and the crew barely got ashore before it was caught in the rapids. It is shown here grounded a few hundred feet above the falls.

POLITICS BACK HOME WILL CALL STATESMEN FROM NEXT CONGRESS

By HERBERT LITTLE.

WASHINGTON.—Active politics back home will start the 1928 campaign going before the seventieth congress gets half-way through its session this winter.

Compilation of the dates for selection of delegates and nominees for national conventions and offices to be filled by the November, 1928, election, shows that many members of congress will be compelled to mount the stump at home, instead of their comfortable senate and house seats, during much of the session.

Under the involved South Dakota primary law, party precincts will elect "proposal men" on the second Tuesday in February. These proposal men meet several times in succeeding months to decide on platforms and candidates, for jobs from president of the United States on down, but the February election generally is counted as the nation's first political indicator. A direct primary is held in May, on candidates.

Seventeen states will hold direct primaries in March, April, May and June to elect delegates to national conventions, which meet in June, and likewise usually to instruct the delegates.

These states and the dates of their primary election, are as follows:

New Hampshire, March 6; North Dakota, March 20. Michigan, April 2; Wisconsin, April 3; Illinois, April 10; Nebraska, April 10; Pennsylvania, April 24; Massachusetts, April 24; Ohio, April 24. California, May 1; Maryland, May 7; Indiana, May 8; New Jersey, May 15; Oregon, May 18; West Virginia, May 29; South Dakota, May 22. Florida, June 5.

One-third of the 96 members of the senate will prepare for expiration of their terms by March 4, 1929, and hence must stand for re-nomination or announce their retirement next year. The terms of all 435 members of the house expire at the same time, and a similar procedure must be followed.

Twenty-four of the 96 senators live in states which nominate for the senate by direct primary, and six in states which stick to the convention system.

The senatorial primaries in prospect are as follows: Pennsylvania, David A. Reed, republican, incumbent, April 24; Nebraska, Robert B. Howell, April 10. Maryland, William Cabell Bruce, democrat, May 7; Indiana, Arthur Robinson, republican, May 8; New Jersey, Edward I. Edwards, democrat, May 15; West Virginia, M. M. Neely, democrat, May 29.

Florida, Park Trammell, democrat, June 5; Maine, Frederick Hale, republican, June 18; Minnesota, Henrik Shipstead, farmer-labor, June 18; North Dakota, Lynn J. Frazier, republican, June 27.

Montana, Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, July 17; Texas, Earle B. Mayfield, democrat, July 28. Missouri, James A. Reed, democrat, Aug. 7; Virginia, Claude A. Swanson, democrat, Aug. 7; Tennessee, Kenneth McKellar, democrat, Aug. 24; Ohio, Simon D. Fess, republican, Aug. 14; Mississippi, H. D. Stephens, democrat, Aug. 21; Wyoming, John R. Kendrick, democrat, Aug. 21; California, Hiram W. Johnson, republican, Aug. 28.

Nevada, Key Pittman, democrat, Sept. 4; Wisconsin, Robert M. LaFollette, republican, Sept. 4; Michigan, W. N. Ferris, democrat, Sept. 4; Arizona, Henry F. Ashurst, democrat, Sept. 11; Washington, C. C. Dill, democrat, Sept. 11; Vermont, Frank L. Greene, republican, Sept. 11; Massachusetts, David I. Walsh, democrat, Sept. 13.

The convention in New York to nominate candidates for the seat held by Royal S. Copeland, democrat, is to be held Sept. 23. Conventions, to be held at dates fixed later, will be held in the following senate term expirations: Delaware, Thomas F. Bayard, democrat; Rhode Island, Peter Goellet Gerry, democrat; New Mexico, Andrieus Jones, democrat; Utah, William H. King, democrat, and Connecticut, George P. McLean, republican.

The terms of 21 democratic senators, 10 republicans and one farmer-labor, are in this list. The 10 republicans include several administration critics, LaFollette, Howell, Frazier and Hiram Johnson, so the campaign is expected to be featured on the part of these and the democrats, by an extensive series of attacks on the Coolidge administration, from all sectional and national angles which offer themselves as vantage points.

PLANS AIR LINER TO CARRY 500 PASSENGERS

By United Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Five hundred passengers in one giant air liner, hopping off from San Francisco for a tour of the world, appear in the aviation dream of Claude H. Freeze, San Francisco inventor.

Freeze worked years in the Zeppelin plant in Germany and has made a life study of aeronautics. He began negotiations in Detroit in the hope of interesting some manufacturer in his super airplane-dream.

The giant air liner, in effect, would be a dirigible with airplane wings, according to Freeze, the machine would be heavier than air, but the buoyancy afforded by its semi-driftible construction would enable it to rise easily, to land on air or water, and would give it a cruising speed of 130 miles per hour.

The machine would be powered by eleven motors, would be 750 feet long and 144 feet wide. Its inflating gas capacity would be 4,569,000 cubic feet and five wings across the top would be hollow, for the storage of gasoline. Carrying thirty tons of gasoline, the ship would have a net-stop cruising radius of 7,000 miles, Freeze said.

It will cost $2,000,000 according to Freeze's estimate.

Coolidge waited till Wall Street was closed before "choosing" not to run. It was also considerate of him to wait till the straw hat season was nearly over.
