Pop Plans Polar Dash

Many a hardy explorer has gone into the polar wastes and never returned. Starvation and cold have written more last chapters in the lives of explorers than the explorers ever lived to write in words.

But danger is the very thing that has induced Pop Gunn, of the "Mom'n Pop" comic strip, to sign up for a dash to the south pole.

Follow the story every day on the comic page of this paper. Even on these hot days, it will make you shiver just to think about the adventure Pop and the captain are planning.

Mace Silver Mine To Be Opened In Big Bend Country

ALPINE, Texas, July 27.—Work of sinking a shaft to open the Mace Silver Mine in the Big Bend, near here, started this week as a result of a mining yarn told 15 years ago.

The location of the shaft was given J. T. Mace of Presidio, 15 years ago during a conversation with a veteran prospector. It is near the location of the largest silver mine in the United States.

One day a prospector entered Mace's mining camp and was invited to spend the night. While sitting around the campfire talking, the prospector told Mace about ore he found on the surface near a large rock in Presidio country.

Mace thought nothing of the story until two weeks ago when he went to Elephant Rock to post signs. Examining pieces of rock on the ground, he suddenly discovered that they contained ore. After he returned home he recalled the story told by the prospector.

As a result, a company was formed and the mine promises to be one of the best in this section.

Lindbergh, New Town Located In Starr County

LINDBERGH, Starr county, Tex., July 27.—Laid out in the shape of a champagne glass and named Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, this city promises to soon outgrow its original shape.

The town, which officially became a dot on the map last week, shows signs of becoming as popular as its namesake. The sale of lots and business sites is surpassing expectations.

Official consent was given by Lindbergh for the town to bear his name, providing it was dedicated to his mother.

Both planes are nearing completion and it is possible the race will begin Friday.

Rev. Will Hogg To Give Lecture In Ranger Friday

Rev. Will Hogg, who held a revival in Ranger last summer, will play a return engagement here on Friday night, when he will give his famous lecture "Christmas on the Rhine" for the benefit of his Free Bible fund.

Rev. Mr. Hogg is now holding a county-wide revival in Comanche and has consented to come to Ranger for that evening.

The evangelist, a world war veteran, knows his subject well and is a speaker that needs no introduction to Ranger people. Sufficient to say that this man, who was stricken in the pulpit on the final night of his meeting last summer, will be here and there won't be any empty seats at the open air tabernacle on the corner of South Marston and Pine streets.

In gratitude to God who spared his life and gave him back the use of his hand after it had been paralyzed, Rev. Mr. Hogg, told God that he would give away Bibles everywhere he went. He has already given in the neighborhood of 150,000 Bibles away and if he lives he intends to give one million and then start on another one.

This lecture will be for the benefit of the Bible fund.

Both sides claimed "victory" in the outcome.

Two Sisters Are Reunited, Each Thought Dead

VERNON, Texas, July 27.—The world is small and filled with many tricks of fate, according to two reunited sisters here.

Mrs. S. E. Collins was seeking a house to rent the other afternoon when the temperature was soaring above 100 degrees. She stopped at the home of Mrs. Margaret Hamilton. Mrs. Hamilton invited Mrs. Collins to stop and rest a few minutes.

In the conversation that followed it was disclosed that the two women were sisters who had been separated 35 years ago. After they were separated each was informed that the other was dead.

Mrs. Hamilton moved here four years ago. Five months ago, Mrs. Collins moved here. She had been living those five months within four blocks of her long missing sister.

NEW YORK, July 27.—June Mathis, who has thrilled millions by the drama and tragedy of her screen scene, made a sudden and rapt exit from life which hundreds of spectators at a play looked on. Seated with her mother in the 48th street theatre, last night watching the performance of highly emotional play, "The Squall," Miss Mathis suddenly screamed, "Mother, Mother, I'm dying." They laid her in alley alongside the theatre and when a doctor examined her she was dead.

No explanation of the cause of her death has been made today pending a thorough examination but it was believed to have been due to heart disease.

June Mathis Expires While Seated With Mother In Theatre Watching Emotional Play

LONDON, July 27.—Temporary arrangements for the immediate future of cruiser building ought to be reached without difficulty Sir Austin Chamberlain the foreign secretary said today in a statement on the Geneva conference in the house of commons. He was emphatic, however, in saying that Britain cannot be asked to give any such temporary arrangements, the appearance of being treated as a precedent.

Champion Did Not Break World Altitude Record

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Lit. C. C. Champion's spectacular altitude flight Monday in which he fought flames in a 7 mile drop with his engine "dead" yielded disappointment today to those who hoped for another American record. The bureau of standards notified the national aeronautics association that the navy flier's barograph registered only 38,559 feet a half mile less than world record of 40,810 feet.

CHANGE LESS THAN EVEN LATEST VIEW

Situation Hopeless Unless British Can Make Concessions

GENEVA, July 27.—American delegates to the naval armament conference today considered the chance for the conference's success less than even. Awaiting the return of the British delegation from London, Americans apparently have become reconciled to a complete collapse of the conference.

The situation seems hopeless unless the British are ready to make some important concession. The Americans for their part are through making concessions. They have among other things brought up the total tonnage figures from 250,000 to 400,000 and they were standing pat on their latest proposals on cruisers and eight-inch guns.

Nor will they consider for a moment the possibility of a postponement of the conference. It is a question of how early an agreement or admission of failure can be reached.

LONDON, July 27.—Temporary arrangements for the immediate future of cruiser building ought to be reached without difficulty Sir Austin Chamberlain the foreign secretary said today in a statement on the Geneva conference in the house of commons. He was emphatic, however, in saying that Britain cannot be asked to give any such temporary arrangements, the appearance of being treated as a precedent.

Ex-Mississippians Have Bad Day for Eastland Picnic

Due to threatening weather the attendance at the third annual picnic and reunion of Ex-Mississippians of Eastland and adjoining counties, which was held at the Eastland city park today, was far short of what had been expected. Many of those who came left in the forenoon because of threatened rain.

W. D. R. Owen, president of the association, called the business meeting together about 10 o'clock this morning, and the business session was still in progress at the noon hour.

An old fashioned basket picnic was given at the noon hour despite the fact that lowering clouds threatened rain at any moment.

The pre-arranged program, which included addresses by Judge J. R. Stubblefield of Eastland, Judge Perry Sayles of Eastland and others, was only partially carried out.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: M. McCullough of Eastland, president; J. E. Spencer of Cisco, vice-president; Mrs. Lillian Behme of Eastland was re-elected secretary.

Eastland was chosen for the next meeting place and the association will meet in the City Park on the last Wednesday of July, 1928.

Rev. Geo. Shearer, pastor of the Methodist church of Ranger was among the ex-Mississippians who spoke during the day.

CAN'T IT BE DONE?

In a newspaper article of yesterday
 a man who is in position to know, pointed out that the people of Eastland county are not producing enough foods to supply their own tables, or rather that they are not conserving enough of it to supply them throughout the year.

Wayne C. Hickey, secretary of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, declared that there is annually shipped into the town of Ranger 144,000 cups of tomatoes. We do not question Mr.
 Hickey's statement, though it mentions an alarming figure, especially when it is a well known fact that Eastland county can produce enough good tomatoes every year for the entire population of the county and have a surplus easily large enough to feed another county with the same population.

In this connection it must be remembered that the amount of outside food stuffs shipped into Ranger is only a small percentage of that shipped into the county. Cisco, Eastland, Gorman, Rising Star, Carbon, Desdemona and even some of the smaller communities are supplied with foreign grown food products that are shipped into the county. Go to any country grocery store in the county and you can buy a can of tomatoes that were grown in some other state or at least in some other part of Texas that has been shipped in here for the tables of Eastland county people.

Eastland county people no doubt will be surprised to know the actual amount of money that is sent out of this county every year for eatables that can be produced right here at home. They no doubt will be inclined to question the conservative statement that at least $200,000 of Eastland county money goes out every year for the things that can be grown right in their own gardens.

Eastland county actually sends out more than $20,000 every year for canned tomatoes alone. This does not include the freight which is another large item, but it represents the draft paid at the bank that goes to some other state. Eastland county people pay considerably more than $40,000 annually for canned milk that is shipped in here, not including the freight. Another $20,000 is paid out for canned peas, $15,000 for canned fruits, $7,500 for canned beans, about $6,000 for canned corn and nearly $4,000 for canned sweet potatoes.
 These figures represent not more than one half of the money that the county is sending out annually for food that can be produced here, of a quality equal to that produced anywhere.

Mr. Hickey declares that a small canning plant to cost not in excess of $20,000 could be built in the county that would provide all these items with the exception of the canned milk, which requires the installation of expensive machinery. Wouldn't that be a good investment? Couldn't the business men and farmers of the county afford to make an investment of that kind, an investment of $20,000 that would permit them to keep ten times that much of their money in their pockets?

This is a suggestion well worth the consideration of every farmer, every professional and every business man in Eastland county. It would be well for us to find out just why we are sending out more than $200,000 every year that could be kept at home.
 In five years this amounts to one million dollars not counting the interest.

No doubt Eastland county produces thousands of dollars worth of tomatoes every year that go to waste because there is no canning plant here to care for them. To use Mr. Hickey's words, "Eastland county can produce pinto beans and black eyed peas until the country looks level," thousand upon thousands of dollars are sent out of the county every year for these two items of food.

Can't the county provide a canning plant that would meet these requirements?

6,700 CANCER DEATHS
 By United Press.

LONDON.—More than 6,700 persons died from cancer in London during 1926, according to the annual report of the London County Council.
 These figures show a slight increase over the death-rate of other years.

The report explains that these statistics do not indicate an increase in the number of cases of cancer but rather an increase in fatalities.

Music Program

 Rotary Luncheon

Ray Judia was in charge of the program at the weekly luncheon of the Ranger Rotary Club today. Mr.
 Judia was ably assisted in carrying out a splendid musical program by Miss Nell Tibbels and Gus Coleman.
 Miss Tibbels played the piano, Mr.
 Coleman, who is a member of "The Five Birds Going West" company, picked the banjo and Mr. Judia played the trumpet. "All the World is Waiting for the Sunrise" played by Miss Tibbels, was cleverly illustrated by Mr. Judia, as he is as free with a piece of chalk as he is with musical notes. An original song sung by Mr.
 Judia and "Gloomy" Gus Coleman, brought forth a big applause and each verse called for another.
 One new number, "Shrimp" Murphy, was taken into the Rotary fold at this meeting.
 It was announced that on next Wednesday Dr. T. T. Roberts of Cisco, who was delegate from Eastland

Shaw Spends His 71st Birthday House Hunting

By United Press.
LONDON.—July 27.—George Bernard Shaw, today, for the first time in his life spent a birthday yesterday house-hunting. After spending many of the years of his life in the quiet, retiring old district of Adelphi off the busy Strand, Shaw at the age of 71 has been forced to give way to modernism which plans to demolish the old structures of the section which has housed many literary high-lights like himself.
When it was first announced that the house-breakers would shortly begin the destruction of the district which Shaw has helped to make famous by his residence there, everyone asked, "Where is Bernard Shaw going to live now?" But Shaw is the least worried of anyone and has announced his intention of giving up to the house-breakers without a struggle and without a single Shavian epithet.
Despite his 30 years of residence in the old Adelphi, Shaw is now quietly house-hunting in some section of the city where he may spend the remainder of his days away from the destructive hand of progress. Even little does he seem to care that the house where he wrote most of his famous works and plays will not be left standing to bear the conventional laudatory placard when he has gone, nor is he apparently sorry that the house will not be there when he wishes to return and recall that it was the same place where Sir James Barrie hurled cherry pits across the courtyard at him as he sat at work by his window. (Much to his annoyance and Barrie's joy.)

It is understood that Shaw has his eye on a pleasant flat in Whitehall Court adjoining those of H. G. Wells, Sir Gilbert Parker and several other literary celebrities.
"Do you think they care whether I stay in Adelphi or in Whitehall?" Shaw asked. "Who cares? I have to go somewhere, for I couldn't stay and let them pull the house down upon my ears."
To his intimate friends and others who know him well, Shaw possesses none of the marks of the 71 milestones which he reaches today. His white hair and beard are a mere shadow over his splendid and active physique and his ideas and ideals which yearly become more youthfully progressive.
Early risers can still see the tall man with a slight stoop walking briskly through Trafalgar Square or along the Mall. When he is at his country home in Hertfordshire, Shaw adheres strictly to a program of exercise which keeps him fit for the long strenuous hours at his desk.
One of the most important events during the past year was the awarding to Shaw of the Noble Prize for Literature. Shaw immediately announced that he would not accept the large sum of money which went with the prize, but would establish a fund with it for the furthering of Anglo-Swedish relations in the field of literature.
Another event during the year, which probably caused as much amusement to Shaw as it did to any of his friends who chaffed him about it, was the rejection of the Hon. John Collier's portrait of the famous writer by the Royal Academy. Several of his friends chaffed him that he "probably wouldn't sit still long enough for the painter to make a good portrait."
Shaw was born in Dublin, July 26, 1856. He is a strict vegetarian and,

All Are Invited To Jubilee Mass Meeting Tonight

Every man or woman in Ranger who wants Ranger's Oil Jubilee which is to be held on October 21, to be a success, is asked to come out to the mass meeting at the American Legion Hall tonight.
The Retail Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce have both deferred any definite action on plans until after this meeting but are standing by ready to co-operate with the dictates of the general chairman or superintendent, who will be elected at tonight's meeting. Both commercial bodies have approved of the Jubilee and are very enthusiastic over the prospects.
Tonight after the election of a general chairman, various committees will be appointed, reports of prior plans made and those present will have a voice in deciding just what the manner of procedure will be.
Entertaining of such a vast number of people as will come to Ranger on October 21, will be a colossal undertaking but if Ranger could take care of the inpouring crowds ten years ago, she can surely take care of them again and at the same time show those who had a hand in Ranger's making that they build better than they knew.
The meeting for tonight is not for only the members of the Retail Merchants Association and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, but for the citizens of Ranger. It will be as the name signifies "a mass meeting."

Richard Dix, Hero Of Man Power To Be At Lamb Friday

Can you name thirty-three ways in which a woman's disposition resembles a sixteen-ton tractor? No? We can't either, but we can name at least one—the tractor and the disposition both get out of fix and nobody can tell what is wrong. The authority for that statement is Tom Roberts, the hero of "Manpower," Richard Dix's newest starring picture coming to the Lamb theatre. In his new role, Dix is a good-natured oom, who shaves off a week's beard and makes the dust fly because a perfectly strange girl (as perfect as she was strange) gives him one careless smile. Dix sees that smile and decides to hunt a job to be near her. The job happens to be manicurist for a sixteen-ton tractor.
Tractor and girl fall Tom on various occasions, but when you get the old manpower going it can't be stopped. Before the exciting climax of "Manpower" is over, Alice isn't so sorry she smiled that first careless smile; and to get even with the cranky old tractor, Tom drives it into a breach in a huge dam and saves a city from ruin.
although he is fond of walking, cycling and swimming, he openly boasts that his recreations are "anything except sports."

Itching Eczema Is Worst Of All

When you go to the theatre or whenever you are near many people and begin to scratch that eczema or itching part of your body, people become uneasy while they are around you and usually show their resentment to the annoyance.
You don't have to put up with this embarrassment because you can get rid of the trouble you are bothered with by using Black and White Ointment. It is the quickest way to relieve yourself of eczema, rash, "breaking out" boils, pimples, etc. Be sure to use Black and White Skin Soap when you bathe to keep the skin soft and smooth after that.
Black and White Ointment and Skin Soap are economically priced, in liberal packages. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap.—(Adv.)

Engineer Tells Why Lake Water Has Bad Taste

An unpleasant odor and taste to the city water, which has been most noticeable the last week or ten days, was explained by Engineer Blackmond of the Ranger Water company today.
Mr. Blackmond explained that there was an excess of Algae, or creek moss in Hagaman Lake and in order to destroy this he was forced to use a treatment of sulphur solution. During the process of dying, this moss throws off an excess of vegetable oil that pollutes the water as far as the taste is concerned, but in no ways affects the purity of the water.
Mr. Blackmond explained that in order not to kill the fish in the lake and thus incur a real pollution from dead fish, he had to proceed very carefully in his handling of the treatment, which necessarily made it slow, but that the odor and taste would soon be gone and the water is today just as healthful as it was before the treatment, if not quite so palatable.

Gripings

by Gus

Now comes a friend of ours (name on request) and makes a fervent appeal to us to gripe profusely about one certain thing, namely, the condition of the road on Eastland Hill.

A week or so ago we went up that road to see Ray Campbell who runs a store up there and we talked to Ray about the condition of the road and kindred matters.

Ray said he would like to see the road fixed even though it would practically cost him his business because lots of people have to trade with him on account of being afraid to risk their cars over the ruts.

And after a fellow successfully negotiates the hill going out of town he has to stop at Ray's and get him a cold drink before proceeding on the journey. It's just that bad.

If anybody is coming to town they lose whatever desire to be sociable they might have had and when they go back up they are sore at the town and everybody in it—no foolin'.

Well, what we goin' to do about it? The answers are two in number; first, what can we do and, second, what has been done?

Looking back in the files of our subconscious mind we find that a year or so back the city commission thought they had completed arrangements to pave the road. We don't think there were any jobs definitely promised, but, at least several were spoken for. Then they must have decided to wait until the brick factory got located here so they could patronize home industry or something and so the matter was dropped for the time being.

Well, anyway, long before that, the Rotary Club got out and raised the money so the Lion's Club could grade the road, which was done. But 'time and the elements and the heavy trucks have conspired to reduce the results of the efforts of these two worthy organizations to zero. The road is as bad as it ever was and maybe worse.

Not knowing the condition of the city's cash register it ill behooves us to take that body to task, for it is pretty thoroughly settled that the commission would like to see improvements wherever possible.

Still the customers on Eastland Hill and vicinity would like to have it fixed up either by the city or county. There's a nice highway to the city limits, but from there on it's like riding "Lightning" at the Dallas Fair only twice as long, three times as thrilling, and the Lord knows how much more expensive.

"OCEANIC GOLF" MORE POPULAR ON STEAMERS

By United Press. LONDON—Golf matches are becoming a popular recreation on board the Atlantic liners. The United States liners all have two or more miniature greens where one can play a passable imitation of one section of the true wild diversion of the links.

"Oceanic Golf" as it might be called, was however, made official only recently, when D. Campbell Lee, chairman of the American Society in London, who is believed to be the only man who is at once a member of the Middle Temple, London, a Counselor at Law of the New York Bar and of the Bar of the American Supreme Court, was presented with a memento of his skill at the game.

In addition to its numerous other resources, Texas has large iron ore deposits. These lie chiefly in the low hills of Cherokee, Rusk, Harrison, Marion, Cass and other East Texas counties.

Thirty-five blocks of paved streets are now open to traffic in Slaton, Texas. The paving project was finished recently. Brick laid on a heavy concrete base was the type used.

The West Texas Gas company is making progress on constructing the natural gas line from the Panhandle field to Slaton as the terminal point. Other towns to have the service include Plainview, Floydada, Lockney, Abernathy, Hale Center, Lubbock, Happy, Canyon, Tulia and Kress.

Chaplin Divorce

Trial Unlikely, Film Folk Say

HOLLYWOOD, July 27.—Hollywood still believes the troubles of the Charles Spencer Chaplins will never go to trial despite assertions to the contrary by all principals in the marital squabble.

Though all pre-trial steps have been taken, Mrs. Chaplin having filed a complaint, an answer and made a deposition and Chaplin having filed an answer and cross complaint, film-doms believe the case will be settled satisfactorily before August 22, the trial date.

Those high in the cinema world point out that regardless of the truth of the charges preferred against the comedian by Mrs. Chaplin, would be certain to suffer if they were aired in open court.

Documents on file in the case are highly sensational. In her complaint she charged the buffoon with 'funny' ideas of relations between man and wife, with consorting with other women and with marrying her only under duress. She repeated the charges and denied all his assertions when she filed her answer to his cross suit. Chaplin's answer refused all accusations and his cross complaint accused her of fondness for two unnamed men, with heavy drinking and with neglect of the two Chaplin children, Sydney Earle and Charles Spencer Jr.

It is generally held that a trial with testimony of the nature promised would immeasurably injure the comedian's popularity, a point which should aid in forcing a settlement.

Few, if any, film stars have weathered trial featured by unsavory testimony.

The late Earle Williams, after being one of the screen's most popular stars for a number of years, was playing second leads at the time of his recent death. The sensational breach of promise suit brought against him by the beautiful dancer, Roma Raymond, marked the waning of his popularity.

The tomato growing industry of East Texas has grown to such proportions that the nation depends on the section for this vegetable during the intermediate season between shipments from the early regions such as the Rio Grande Valley, Florida and California, and the later movement from the Northern states.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Attempts have been made on the life of Elise Marberry, an American girl who owns and manages considerable property near the little town of Porto Verde, in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, but so far she has escaped harm, due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, Vilak, who masquerades as her attorney under the name of Davis. Vilak is a curious mixture of American and Oriental blood and a student of criminology. He tries to persuade Elise to leave the country, leaving him there with his friend, Lincoln Nunnally, an elderly American chemist, to solve the mystery.

Elise at first refuses, but after her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped, to be found again by the alert Vilak, and another attempt is made on her life, she agrees.

Her departure is prevented by the threat of floods. Messengers ride through the countryside warning the natives that the dam at Avilos has burst. Then Vilak decides to proceed to the house of one Gaylord Prentiss and warn him of the danger. Prentiss is a recluse and a forbidding man, as well as an enemy of Elise's, and she suspects him of some knowledge of the conspiracy against her. Nevertheless, she agrees that it is her duty to warn him.

They learn that the flood warning is just a ruse to get Prentiss out of his house. Vilak persuades Prentiss to admit them and they barricade themselves in a small stone tower. Unknown attackers begin firing from the barricaded gate. Nunnally is wounded.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX
Vilak turned his blackened face from his rifle an instant, shot a glance at the chemist, sneezed his shoulder affectionately. "Hard luck, Nanny," he said cheerily. "Work for you, Elise."

He swung his head back to his rifle and began to redouble the rate of his already rapid fire. "Cheer up, Nanny. Needed another wounded man to keep me company. You with your arm and I with my wrist. I got the other night will go around singing with a grind-organ after we get out of this. Make more that way than you do with chemistry."

Elise had hastened forward to examine the wound. Nunnally tried to prevent her. "No—er—No," he stammered. "It isn't—anything—Just a scratch—a splinter of steel—a splinter. Fix it myself—Need you at the window."

Elise did not heed him. She looked at the floor, now in places covered with an inch or two of water from the spring trickling in the corner. She found a clear pool and in one instant had brought water from it and washed the wound, in the next had torn a strip of cloth from her dress and tied it in a tight bandage, checking the flow of blood.

The gray silk appeared like a great butterfly which had settled on his wisp arm. A bell began to ring in some far off part of the house. The dog bayed loudly. Prentiss' convulsed body writhed, his angular face contorted with fear, his eyes were the eyes of a trapped beast. "They've gotten in—" he panted. "Gotten in!" Vilak shook his head. "No, sure they haven't. I can see too plainly,

The besiegers' firing became desultory. Vilak took advantage of the interval of inaction to stretch his cramped muscles and light a cigaret.

A bullet must have cut one of the electric wires around the lock. A man's silhouette appeared on the barred wire which overtopped the wall. Vilak fired. The silhouette toppled. "Good idea that extra wire. Makes them perfect targets. Don't think they'll try that again even if they do know now that it isn't carrying high voltage."

The besiegers' firing became desultory. Vilak took advantage of the interval of inaction to stretch his cramped muscles and light a cigaret. The match sputtered into the water at his feet. He gazed at it philosophically. "Hope none of you are susceptible to pneumonia, with all this water on the floor. Seems to me I've been living in the liquid for the past month."

He splashed over to the box of cartridges, which for security against a stray bullet had been put behind a heavy wooden chest. He fingered the bullets thoughtfully. "No use losing our heads, but the cold fact has to be admitted that we're in a pretty situation. Our ammunition's running very low, our enemy is superior in numbers, at least four times ourselves, I should say, and shook their heads. Prentiss did not turn from his window, but kept his eyes fixed now on the gate, now on the house. Vilak stretched again, then returned to his post. A sound of chopping rose up from the creek, following soon after by the rumble of a falling tree.

Elise glanced at Vilak questioning-ly. "A battering ram, probably," he said. "About time they thought of it. They'll try to break down the gate. And at the loss of a few men they undoubtedly do it, for most of us can keep in the shelter of the wall."

A few moments later they heard the dull, muffled booming of wood against iron as a log struck the gate. They fired. The muffled thunder continued, in short, regular intervals like the reports of some distant artillery regiment practicing on the range. The pile of cartridges grew smaller.

The old man, despite his wounded arm, had resumed firing. His rifle jammed Vilak cleared it. "Gate can't last much longer," he muttered.

The spring in the corner gurgled softly, the water rose an instant, then trickled noisily over the stone door-sill. A brilliant green caterpillar, irritated by the acrid smoke of the guns, crawled out of a crack in the rocks and began climbing the wall. Some frightened, unseen nightbird dashed against the window; a jaguar howled far off in the jungle.

Vilak took bettle. He became absorbed in contemplation, his finger mechanically pressing the trigger of his rifle; his eyes became the dull, dreaming eyes of a philosopher in some Tibetan lamasary, the thin film like a bird's inner eyelid crept slowly over the white eyeballs again.

Suddenly he put down his rifle. "A perfect idiot," he flashed as he hurried to the other side of the tower and began surveying the low plateau back of Prentiss' house. "Completely losing my imagination. For the second time in a week I've ignored a means of escape when it was crying to be used. Any powder or dynamite here, Prentiss?"

The other whipped away from the window. The mark on his forehead was quivering. "Dynamite? — not much—a little," he whispered feverishly. "Left over — blasting — for wall." His face was flaming. "Got a plan? Got a plan?"

Vilak nodded quickly. "Where is it?"

"Little shed—few feet back here." "Let's get it."

They crept out the door, keeping to the shadows. They were not perceived by the attackers; in a moment they had returned to the tower room with two packages wrapped in dirty newspapers. These Vilak untied and, exposing a number of sticks of dynamite, examined them closely. "Still good all right. Not touched by dampness." He shot a glance toward the old man and the girl. "Fire fast as you can. Delay them. Time's the important thing now."

The log boomed monotonously against the gate. He took the piece of twine in which one package had been wrapped and began rubbing it with the explosive to make a fuse. "What's your plan? What's your plan?" Prentiss panted.

"Not mine, Nature's. Should have thought of it at once, with that spring gurgling there and soaking our shoes all the time. The water up in those little lakes on the high ground all around you is doing its best to break through and come down on us. We'll just give it a little assistance."

He searched among the newspapers for a detonator. "Blow up part of that retaining wall I noticed damming that first fairly large lake back of your house. Do it with a pick if we have to, but the dynamite's quicker."

Our friends outside said there was a flood. We'll give them one. Nothing original. The Dutch did it all the time when the country was invaded. Cut the dikes, if you remember. He tied the sticks in series of three. "Not so safe here. Taking chances. Long chances. A lot of water up there. Don't know exactly how much. And we're only ten feet or so higher than the creek bed. Perfectly apt to get us as well as the others. But it's the only chance we've got."

The booming of the log ceased, probably to allow the attackers to rest. Prentiss stared at Wilak, half fearful, half incredulous. "Going to let the lakes—down on us?"

"Yes."

"Wash us away—everything away."

"If you have a less dangerous plan, we'll be delighted to take it."

Prentiss shook his head sullenly.

Wilak swiftly rebounded the explosive in a newspaper and started toward the door. He turned to Prentiss. "Any way I can get through the wall? Don't want to climb over unless I have to. Almost sure to be seen."

"There's a place. Old drainage sewer. Barred up now. But can get through if you know how. Straight line from the kitchen."

Better come and show me. Save time."

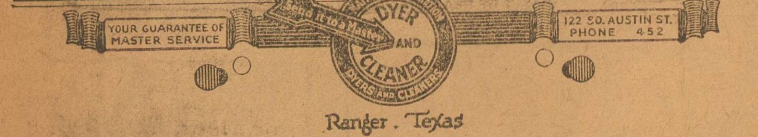

"All right. Want to get outside, anyway." The two men disappeared into the darkness. Elise and Nur-nally turned their black, sweating faces an instant to watch them go, then silently resumed their vigil at the windows. The battering of the log Wilak loses the flood. But when danger has passed, Prentiss is unaccountably missing.

RANGER COMMISSIONERS HOLD REGULAR MEETING

Ranger City Commission met in regular weekly session last night but did not take action on anything.

Several property owners on the blocks facing the Strawn Highway, the Spring Road, First Street and Pershing Street, appeared before the commission and asked for sewer to be laid in the alley between these streets.

The commission promised to see what they could do in the matter but deferred action until another meeting.

Interest Grows In Central Baptist Revival Meeting

Great interest is being manifested in a revival that is being held at the Central Baptist Church, Ranger, and conducted by Rev. J. R. Smallwood, of Dallas.

On Monday night Rev. Mr. Smallwood preached on "The Live Church" saying that a live church was an organized church and a church where Jesus is honored. "It is a progressive church, a church where a spirit of love and welcome is in abundance—a church which has discipline—a soul winning church," the preacher said.

On Tuesday night, to a splendid congregation Rev. Mr. Smallwood's subject was "The First Church." The speaker went back to the days following the crucifixion of Christ, took up the persecution of the church by the Roman government and said that while the first church did not have regular meeting houses, nor Bibles, as we have, it did have essential things, among these being prayer meetings, a united church, soundness of faith, the leadership of the Holy Spirit, a missionary spirit, a sacrificial spirit and a desire to save souls.

"We need today more churches of this kind, united, praying, sound in faith, endowed with the Holy Spirit, missionary, sacrificial-paying, soul winning," he said in conclusion.

The music, which is in charge of Leo Underwood, is very fine and both vocal and instrumental selections are given each night.

Services are held each evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Warranty deed, Mrs. J. H. Barnes to J. E. Samford, lots 6, 7 and 8, block 6, Nebellets addition to Eastland, consideration $30.00.
