The stand that is being taken by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is causing considerable criticism. The French are persecuting Americans, and frequent clashes have been reported between American tourists and French in cafes and clubs.

Cotton and Grain Also Feel the Effects of The Drop in Francs

By United Press.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Stocks broke badly today in the late trading on the announcement of France's financial minister, Anatole De Monze's statement that the Bank of France might be compelled to suspend payment to the government on Friday. The announcement was followed closely by a precipitate drop of 3 7-8 points in General Motors, one of the market's leaders. United States Steel and other big leaders also fell, as well as the shipping and other stocks.

The news also affected foreign ex change and caused a decided tumble in all of them. However, it was the stock market that was hardest hit by the announcement.

The cotton and grain markets also felt the effects of the prospective collapse of the French money market.

Cotton and wheat both displayed weakness at the close of the day.

Practically all of the barometer stocks, led by United States Steel and General Motors weakened immediatestocks at the decline.

LOCAL THEATRE MANAGER GIVES TERSE EXPLANATION OF GREATER MOVIE SEASON

For the enlightenment of our many readers, we herewith reproduce a terse, interesting explanation of the meaning of 'Greater Movie Season," about which the press of the nation is filled, kindly furnished us by Mr. Jack Taggart, manager of the Lamb Theater of this city.

Motion pictures are celebrating self. In a letter to Will H. Hays, their thirtieth birthday by means of the industry's leader, Mr. Collidge a Greater Movie Season, which begins in August. It's going to be a big and long continued party, the picture makers say, for the festiving this tremendous enterprise is an ties will being during that month with a showing of the finest photoplays they have and will keep right on with the pictures getting better and better.

What have they to celebrate? Here the the most important thing that the industry is celebrating, perhaps, is the fact that the most important in pictures, is the fact that the most important in pictures, is What have tkey to celebrate? Here are the outstanding facts:

The first motion pictures were shown in 1896 at the tail-end of a vaudeville theatre program. They were merely little flashes of action—a dancer, a chorus from a musical comedy and some waves breaking on the shore. They told no story. There was no drama about them. They were simply pictures that moved—although even that seemed like a miracle in those days. These first pictures ran for less than one minute apiece. They were registered chapters of drama, of history, of comedy and tragedy, that run for more than two hours, and form a whole evening's entertainment. The works of the world's most famous authors and playwrights are sought for picturization and are made into photodramas that generally are more interesting and vivid than the original novels or stage plays. Although 6,000 feet is the usual length of the feature picture we see night after night at the movie houses, the big "specials" frequently are 12,000 feet is frequently are frequently are frequently are frequently are f

The advance in the art and entertainment value of the pictures is one of the things—although perhaps not quite the most important—that the industry is celebrating by Greatz. Movie Season. The real extent of this advance, however, has been so evident that it has brought comment from no less a personage than the President of the United States him.
