ONLY SHORT MEETING IS HELD TODAY

In Wide Divergence Regarding Cruiser Seize and Armament

By United Press.
GENEVA, July 5.—Naval limitations conferences were confronted with a temporarily complete deadlock today.
The technical commission that met to tackle the difficult cruiser question adjourned after a short meeting in which it developed that none of the delegations had changed positions regarding either cruiser or few remaining outstanding submarine questions.
During their week end adjournment prolonged over yesterday so Americans could celebrate the Fourth delegates had been looking forward with concern to today's meeting because of wide divergence regarding cruiser size, armament and total tonnage.

Rio Grande Takes Land Gradually From Old Mexico

By United Press.
BROWNSVILLE, July 5.—J. Zolazzi of Matamoros, who bought some land on the south side of the Rio Grande in 1925 is wishing someone would tell him how to prevent the Rio Grande from giving all his land to the United States.
Shortly after he bought the land the river changed its course and took some of it away from him. Again in 1927 the river took more land from him and through this series of annexations Zolazzi says he has lost more than 500 acres.
Under a treaty between the United States and Mexico, the ways of the Rio Grande are law and when the river moves so does the border.

This combined photograph and drawing shows how the great air craft will look in comparison with the U. S. Arkansas. Construction will be started in the fall. Dr. Karl Arnstein of Akron, former chief of design for Count Zeppelin drew the prize-winning plans for the new air giant.

Hundreds Lose Lives In Big Celebration

START SEARCH FOR SLAYER OF ENTIRE FAMILY

CLARENDON, July 5.—Search for two negro farm hands employed by Frank Weatherby, farmer who lives 15 miles north of here was instituted by county authorities today following the finding of the decomposed bodies of Weatherby, his wife and their two small children in their home.
Although the family is believed to have been slain on June 24 the bodies were not found until last night when neighbors started an investigation.
The room in which the bodies were found bore evidence of a struggle. A hammer and an iron bar were found.
The negroes, a man and his wife, disappeared with the Weatherby automobile June 26, leading officers believe the murder occurred at that time. The negroes had been employed by Weatherby about a year.

AUTOMOBILE BLAMED FOR ACCIDENTS

Results Likened to Disasters of Major Floods and Hurricanes; Scores Drowned.
By United Press.
More than 200 persons lost their lives in the nation's three day celebration of the one hundred and fifty-first anniversary of its Independence reports to the United Press from every section of the country showed today. Literally hundreds were injured.
With some sections still to report the death list stood at 253 at noon.
The majority of the deaths were due to automobile accidents as people everywhere swarmed into crowded roads for holiday outings.
Drownings accounted for scores more.
Deaths from firecrackers, pistols and explosives used in the celebration were smaller, due to the universal appeal for "a safe and sane fourth of July."
The greatest toll was taken in the metropolitan New York area and surrounding New Jersey, where 19 were killed in traffic accidents, 17 drowned and one death due to fire works. More than 250 were treated in New York City hospitals for burns received from fireworks.
The next highest toll was in Indiana where 34 lives were lost.
The death list to date follows: New York City and New Jersey, 37; New York State (outside of New York City) 20; New England, 8; Pennsylvania, 21; Delaware and Maryland, 9; Washington, D. C. and Virginia, 5; North Carolina, 5; Tennessee, 4; Georgia, 1; Florida, 1; Alabama, 5; Ohio and Michigan, 12 each; Indiana, 34; Chicago, 11; Denver, 5; St. Louis, 3; Iowa, 4; Missouri, (Southside St. Louis), 3; Oklahoma, 4; Texas, 3; Kansas, 2; Nebraska, 1; Louisiana, 7; Minnesota, 9; North Dakota, 1; South Dakota, 3; California, 15; Oregon, 5; Washington, 6; Nevada, 1.

U. S. Navy Flyer Gets Altitude Of Seven Miles

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, July 5.—Lieut. C. C. Champien, Jr., United States navy, today had broken his sea-plane altitude record by nearly a mile.
He flew to an unofficial height of 37,500 feet over the capital yesterday, breaking his own mark of 33,455 feet achieved May 5.

COOLIDGE NIPS GET RICH QUICK LABORERS PLAN

Laborers Working On White House Repairs Found Ready Sale for Nails.
By RODNEY DUTCHER.
WASHINGTON.—You may have read in the newspapers that workmen engaged in repairing the temporary white house were selling nails from the torn-out sections to the souvenir hunters.
Well, President Coolidge heard it, too, and there hasn't been a nail sold since.
Prior to this profitable enterprise of the workmen, all good citizens of the United States and their wives and children were allowed to enter the white house grounds and, at some slight distance, to gaze respectfully upon the operation of putting a new roof on the white house and otherwise improving its safety and comfort.
But President Coolidge picked up the morning paper and read about the nail selling and his method of stopping this commerce was to bar all ordinary citizens from the grounds, although he himself was then still living at the temporary white house on Dupont circle.
The sequence of cause and effect has just come to light. It appears that only a handful of nails was sold, but now the workmen are deprived of the opportunity to make a few quarters and first-time visitors to Washington are denied a closeup of the white house and its alteration.
The business of keeping American citizens off their government's property is nothing new. It's done every day in many instances. One of the most extreme examples was the conduct of Admiral John McDorn, commander of the Pearl Harbor naval base at Honolulu, in barring photographers, newspapermen and everyone else from a glimpse of the plane of Pilot Grace as it prepared for a flight to San Francisco.
McDonald is known as one of the most hard-boiled officers in the navy and his martinet characteristics have not diminished with the approach of his retirement. All officers and men entering the gates are searched for liquor or dope and the violator of any rule may expect scant sympathy from the commandant.

Officer Shaw seeing a small boy playing in the yard asked: "Son, where is your uncle Gus?"
"In the house hiding under the bed," was the reply.
"Uncle Gus" now is in jail facing charges of forgery.

GOOD WILL TOUR OVER, RANGER MEN COME HOME

Special Arrives in Dallas Monday Night After Being Away Two Weeks.

With the arrival home this afternoon of Ranger's part of the "All Texas Special" that famous trip as far as Ranger is concerned will be closed, just as it will be in other towns when their various trippers get home, but the good that that the All Texas Special did for Texas will echo for many a day.
Tennessee and Texas exchanged greetings on July 4 when the special stopped in Memphis for an hour on the last lap of their long journey.
The party arrived in Dallas on Monday night and Walter Murray, President of the Times Publishing Company and L. R. Pearson, Police and Fire Commissioner of Ranger, phoned in that they would be in on the Sunshine this afternoon. I. H. Flewelin met the party in Dallas on its arrival there and will return with the Ranger contingent this afternoon.
A new vision of Texas has been given the people of the North and East through the medium of the good will tour of 120 Texas business men, headed by Governor Dan Moody. The wild and woolly West was brought to the effete East—but it was a dehorned West, able to wear its soup and fish" as well as the best of the East or North, to meet any occasion that might arise with grace and charm and to leave in its wake a host of memories and impressions that will rebound to the credit of Texas.

George M. Bailey, Veteran Editor Of Houston, Dead

By United Press.
HOUSTON, July 5.—Col. George M. Bailey, 62, editor of the Houston Post-Dispatch, died at 11 p. m., Monday at his rooms in a local hotel.
For 49 years Col. Bailey was a newspaper man holding almost every post in a newspaper shop from printer's devil to publisher.
The last of many honors given Col. Bailey was his appointment as one of 30 American editors to tour Europe studying its political, financial and sociological problems.
Illness forced Col. Bailey to announce that he would be unable to join the commission of editors.
Col. Bailey was born Aug. 28, 1864, in Wiscasset, Me.
He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Emma Webster of Mississippi, and their daughter, Mrs. Richard D. Eames of Chicago. A son by a former marriage, George M. Bailey Jr., of Dallas, also survives Col. Bailey.

SOCIETY

AND SOCIAL AFFAIRS

WEDNESDAY

Retary luncheon at 12.15, Chelton hotel.
Prayer meeting in the evening.

FOURTH IS OBSERVED MOSTLY OUT OF RANGER.

The great and glorious Fourth was observed by Ranger people, but mostly out of the city, as there was very little to offer in the way of amusement at home. Quite a number of society folks attended the midnight dance at Thurber, came home, rested until late in the evening and then made a dance at the Eastland Country club or at the Crazy Hotel in Mineral Wells. There were picnics galore and many traveled to Abilene or Haskell to see the races.
Noted in the lobby of the Crazy Hotel last evening were Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Craig, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Crawford, J. L. Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leonard of Eastland.
In Eastland the Rainbow Seniors of Ranger played for a club dance attended by the elite of several oil field cities. Misses Esther Yonker, Clara Haden, Vertie Shell, Doyle Barton and Mrs. Rural Murray attended the motorcycle races in Haskell.

TWENTY-FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED.

Some forty of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Higgs, met late yesterday afternoon and drove to Bass lake, where they joined in a celebration of the twenty-first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Higgs.

A wedding cake, angel food in texture, and large in size, was Mrs. O. G. Lanier's contribution to the feast, which was served soon after the arrival of the party.
The young folks in the crowd enjoyed a swim and the older ones played games until church time when the entire crowd went to a revival meeting that is being conducted in that city by Rev. Cleddy Wallace.

HIGHWAY FORGERIES INVESTIGATION DELAYED

By United Press.

AUSTIN, July 5.—Waiting testimony by a witness from Houston the Travis county grand jury investigating four state highway warrants of $125 each, alleged to be forgeries, probably will not make a report to judge J. R. Hamilton, criminal district court of Travis county until Wednesday or Thursday, it was said today.

FROM THE BIBLE.
Our Confession: God is our God forever and ever: he will be our guide even unto death.—Psalm 48: 14.
Prayer: O God, Merciful and mighty, Thou art God alone and we trust in Thee.

THE FOLLOW-UP.

The Texas good will tourists are back on Texas soil, after two weeks spent in the north and east acquainting the people of those sections with the possibilities—the opportunities in Texas.

It is safe to say that this tourist party composed of some of the leading business and professional men of the state, has done the state a great deal of good, but just how much good it has done will be determined largely by the efforts that are made to follow up what this party has started.

No doubt the people of the north and east have a vastly different opinion of Texas and its people from the idea they had before the Texans made their memorable tour. New York, Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and many other large commercial and industrial centers of the country now know that Texas is a great state, inhabited not by the traditional cow-puncher but by keen and intelligent business men.

But the work done by these traveling evangelists will not amount to the greatest good if it is permitted to stop now. Of course we don't know but that plans are already under way for a similar trip to some part of the country next year. If so that is all very good. But what is going to be done during the next 12 months to keep alive the interest that the north and east now has in Texas and its future development?

Annual visits by Texans to the northern and eastern centers of business activity are all very good and will result in a great benefit to Texas but they should be supplemented with other work.

Texas should start at once an advertising program calculated to reach every section of the country. Not a wild bombastic campaign but a dignified program that will tell the truth. A million dollars or two million for that matter spent annually in sensibly advertising Texas would be well spent.

Texas is a great state with wonderful opportunities and vast potential wealth. These should be told to the whole country in a sensible dignified advertising campaign.

J. C. Smith Moving Into New Store, Is Real Big Job

J. C. Smith of Ranger, who recently bought the Crestover stock and lease, discovered that moving a stock of merchandise was a bigger job than he calculated. The work of remodeling the store has been fairly well completed but all the stock is not in yet and what is in has not been arranged. Mr. Smith said today it might be the end of the week before they could open up.
For the time being at any rate, the store will be operated as previously, as the building that Mr. Smith had leased to move his men's clothing, shoes and dry goods in, was damaged by fire when Mead's art and novelty store burned, so possession of it in the immediate future is not possible.

Ranger Dealers Will Attend Meet At Breckenridge

Ranger is expected to have a one hundred percent representation of its retail automobile dealers, at the first regular meeting of the Oil Belt Automobile Dealers association to be held in Breckenridge on Thursday night, according to Mrs. Alice B. True, secretary of the association today.
Mrs. True would like for all who intend attending to notify her so that she may make reservations and advise the entertainment committee at Breckenridge how many will be on hand.
The Oil Belt Automobile Dealers association, formed in Ranger two weeks ago, is the first organization of its kind in West Texas.

RANGER PEOPLE WITNESS TRAGEDY NEAR LEUDERS

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hadley of the Hadley Clothing store, Ranger, witnessed a fourth of July tragedy, that spoiled their holiday.

They with their son and his wife, went to Leuders for the fourth and a farmer named Mercer, his four girls and 13 year old son went in swimming in a small pond.

The two girls got excited and came very near drowning, and while the father and son were trying to rescue the girls, the boy drowned.

The tragedy was witnessed by a number of people. A pumper got the boy's body out of the pond and it is said that his pulse was still beating but those who worked with him were unable to bring back life to the body.

Bankhead Bridge Across Brazos Is Repaired Monday

The bridge over the Brazos river on the Bankhead highway, which went to the bad early Sunday morning, was repaired sufficiently Monday for the thousands who went from West Texas or to West Texas to negotiate it in safety.
The West Texas coaches with their loads, were permitted to cross, and all light cars. No trucks were noted on the bridge. A danger sign on the west entrance to the bridge caused travelers going east to slow down and a guard at the east end gave warning.

CHARLES MOORE ABLE TO BE OUT AFTER ACCIDENT

Chas. Moore, popular member of the retail automobile industry in Ranger, was out shaking hands with his friends today, following an automobile accident several weeks ago. Charles was "stepping along" as he expressed it on two crutches and was "smilin' thru". He seemed to feel quite hopeful that the bum knee would soon be restored to its former usefulness.
When Mr. Moore was struck by an automobile on Railroad avenue, the ligaments in his knee were torn and it has been very slow work making them heal sufficiently to permit him using his injured limb again.

Simon Mitchell
Makes Studying
Votes His Hobby

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON—When the newspapers recently printed a schedule of the 1928 presidential primaries and credited it to Simon Michelet, a lawyer, one naturally wondered who the sam hill was Simon Michelet that he should know so much more about the subject than the Washington correspondents themselves.

Investigation indicates that Michelet has made himself the nation's leading authority on the primaries and other electoral matters. He is the former secretary and friend of the late Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota and he went into law practice here when Nelson died. Now he makes the study of how we vote a hobby and a recreation and every so often he sends out a masterly analysis of this or that angle to all newspapermen. He is a Scandinavian, born in Wisconsin and bred in Minnesota.

It appears that Michelet's motives are altogether altruistic. He has definite feelings about the fact that so many citizens fail to vote, but he does not pose as a reformer, even though he founded the National Get-Out-the-Vote club.

"Voting ought to be taught in the schools," Michelet says. "To all citizens to vote can't come from the sky; it must come from the precincts."

Michelet's studies have led him to the conclusion that the primaries are becoming more and more important to the national political system. He says that 41 states now have primaries of one sort or another, a fact doubly interesting in view of the primary election fight over the direct primary which is now shaping up over the country.

Michelet has pointed out that in many states the primary is already of more importance than the election. This is especially true in southern states where the democratic candidate for senate, presidency or other office never has any opposition.

In 17 of the 29 states which nominated senators by direct primary last year, according to Michelet, the primary vote settled the election. He lists Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Oklahoma and South Carolina, which elected democrats, and California, Illinois, Iowa, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Washington, and Wisconsin which elected republicans.

There were close contests in some of these republican states, but Michelet finds that in Alabama, Louisiana and South Carolina, the primary vote for senator exceeded the general election vote by from 100 to 500 percent. In nine republican states, the primary vote exceeded the general election vote by 40 per cent and in eight democratic states by 140 per cent.

Take the Joy out of Life

Girls, and boys, too, whose faces are "broken out," rough, pimply and blotched, imagine all sorts of weird things.

The worst fault it leads to is using just anything which promises them relief from their condition, which more often makes their trouble worse. Never put anything on your skin which has not been proven by the test of time and public opinion to be right. In this connection the phenomenal success, which is called Black and White Ointment, and the Skin Soap, too, offers sufferers from such skin diseases the one reliable and dependable means of relief and restoration of their skin to that clear, smooth and lovely condition it was in their youth.

Black and White Ointment, and skin soap, are economically priced, in liberal size packages. The 50c size of the Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the soap.

CURATIVE WORKSHOP IS FINAL STEP IN SURGERY SAYS DOCTOR

By FRED H. ALBEE, M. D.
New York City
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute
(Written for United Press)

An effective antidote to post-operative despondency and malingering, the Curative Workshop, is the final step in Surgery, and the high road back to permanent employment.

Like a frightened child stuck knee deep in a bog, many an adult patient, discharged from the hospital as "recovered" after a difficult operation, sticks in the mud of mental depression and physical weakness, gazing hopelessly at permanent employment which he can see but cannot reach.

You may shout to the child: "You're all right, dear. Come on out," and he will stand right where he is, crying louder and sinking deeper. But throw him a plank, and watch him shake the mud!

Just so with the patient. The surgeon dismisses him: "You're all right now. In a week or two go back to work." But a week or two finds him still sitting in his room, thinking of the days when he was earning a good weekly wage, and that he'll never be able to do it again. Thinking of how the beam struck him; describing to his wife the peculiar sensation he has about the wound.

He needs a plank. That plank is work, diplomatically and psychologically planned, but under actual industrial conditions, paid for each week on a production basis—no sheltering or charity. Work on a real man's commercial product—no effeminate basketry—yet offering various stages of difficulty. Such is found in the Curative Workshop, tucked away at 28 East 21st street, New York City, which for three years has led the discouraged back to industry and happiness.

"Why, this is a regular workshop!" exclaimed John Abbott, with reproachful eyes on his wife, who had told him she wanted to meet a Mr. Elton, who was interested in accident cases. It was the only way she could get him out of the house, where he had been sitting, morose and dejected, ever since that dreadful scalp wound received at the factory had been repaired by skilled surgeons. "You know I'm not able to work," and he started to back out the door.

Bill walks over on a cork leg. "Do you like radios? Come on over here by the window." John hesitated and went.

"I'm working on batteries. Dan over there with the lame arm is running a boring machine. He's as proud of that overhead swing as Babe Ruth is of a home run. You would be, too, if you'd had a dangle arm, thanks to someone shooting most of your shoulder away in a hold-up. The 'Doc' made him a new shoulder by taking some bone out of his leg and, after the wound had healed and the bone graft thoroughly united, sent him in here to develop the strength of the bone graft and educate his new arm."

John picked up some bolts and nuts which were lying on the bench. "Know how these go together?" ventured his wife. He withered her with a glance and assembled the simple parts. His face brightened. So did hers. It was the first effort he had made since the operation. In three weeks, confidence restored, he was back at his old job.

Woman Explores
Studies Native
Siberian Tribes

LENINGRAD.—Natalie Kotochikova has come back, after a solitary four months scientific expedition in the ice fields of Siberia. She went alone to visit Samoyeds and other primitive tribes of the frozen North to study them in the interest of science. She is a student in the Leningrad academy of science.

She set out with a scientific expedition headed by a woman savante, Dr. Rosa Mitsova of the Leningrad academy. Four scientists constituted Mrs. Mitsova's party, which stayed five months in the Arctic regions. The girl student, Miss Kotochikova, left the others after a month and departed by herself, riding a reindeer into the unmapped and unexplored territory of northernmost Siberia, where she learned the language of the native people.

Even in the ice fields, dodging the income taxes is a popular pastime, the party reported. The natives gladly answered all their questions but when the inquiries turned to the size of their reindeer herds, they became secretive, evidently fearing that their taxes would be increased if the number of their animals were known.

These were the people who astounded the soviet authorities several months ago by raising a clamor of protest because the government had decided to exempt them from all taxation. Epidemics had swept the reindeer herds and impoverished the people of the ice fields and the government wanted to help them by relieving them of all taxes. But the people sent an indignant delegation to Moscow to protest against the discriminations, on the ground that if they did not pay taxes, the soviet government might be inclined to overlook their rights as citizens.

By United Press.
MOSCOW.—Russia's intellectual awakening is shown by the enrollment of 102,000 students in the post-graduate universities and technical schools in the state of Russia, the largest unit of the soviet union. The statistics cover the year 1926-1927.

The largest number of students were enrolled in the technical courses, where 37,000 were under instruction for engineering, chemistry, science, electrical study, mechanics and allied subjects. More than 18,000 were registered in agricultural schools, 16,000 in the normal schools were being trained to become teachers, nearly 18,000 were students in the medical schools, 9,000 were listed in the social science and economics institutes and 4,000 were studying during the past year in the art schools where sculpture, decorating, drawing and music were taught.

HERO WORSHIP IS BIG FACTOR IN ALL SPORTS

By BILLY EVANS.
 Hero worship is a most important factor in the success and popularity of any sport.

Baseball is one of the greatest of all sports, the national pastime, and to its outstanding stars must go much of the credit for the immense hold the game has on the public.

Players like Walter Johnson, Christy Mathewson, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Rogers Hornsby, Eddie Collins, Tris Speaker and others of that ilk, have often made dyed-in-the-wool fans out of lukewarm rooters by their sensational work.

While I doubt if any player in the history of the game has been a greater favorite than Walter Johnson, to Babe Ruth goes the credit for creating more interest in the game than any one other individual.

A home run is baseball's greatest thrill and Babe Ruth is unquestionably the greatest home run maker of all time. It seems there is no other drive for the circuit quite like that of the Bambino.

Meeting Big Stars of Baseball.
 I had invited two youngsters, Richard and Bob Fallon, aged 12 and 8, respectively, to be my guests at one of the games. I told the boys we would make an early start, that I would introduce them to the stars of both teams and take them back stage, so to speak, showing them through the players' dressing room.

Like most youngsters, Babe Ruth is the greatest man in the world with the Fallon boys, while Lou Gehrig runs a close second. Anxious to meet all the stars, their greatest interest centered in the two home run sluggers of the Yankees.

On the St. Louis club George Sisler, naturally, was the outstanding hero of the Browns. They were delighted to shake his hand.

I am inclined to think I got as much enjoyment out of the affair as the youngsters, as I noted the smile of satisfaction and gratification that spread over their faces, as they shook hands with the various stars.

Hero Worship That Was Real.
 Babe Ruth had been out of the game for a couple of days prior to the game and it was doubtful if he would play. I so informed the youngsters. When the older one mitted the Babe, he said:

"I certainly hope you play today, Mr. Ruth, for my younger brother has never seen you make a home run and he would be terribly disappointed."

"Well, if you boys came up to see me play, I guess I better do it," said the Babe with a smile. "But I may not be able to make any home runs."

Then I introduced the brothers to Lou Gehrig and as a greeting the older boy said:

"Mr. Ruth doesn't believe he will be able to make any home runs today, won't you try to make a couple, Mr. Gehrig?"

"If two will be enough, I believe I will be able to satisfy you boys," replied Gehrig with a broad grin. Ruth played that afternoon despite a bad leg. He didn't make any home runs but Lou Gehrig made two, both being terrific drives into the right-center bleachers. After the game almost in unison, the two boys said to me:

"Wasn't that fine of Ruth to play for us and Gehrig to make those two home runs?"

No one in the world could convince the two Fallon boys other than that Ruth and Gehrig performed in honor of them. That's real hero worship, believe me.

Gripings by Gus

And so the "Fourth" has come and gone and we'll all look forward to Labor Day as the next holiday.

And the local team now has a chance to get into the play-off for the state championship of amateur baseball teams. Not so bad for a bunch of home boys, is it?

Most of the patriotic citizens that had flags had them out on display yesterday. Some of them left them out overnight.

It's possible that they didn't think that one of the main rules of flag etiquette is that it should never be allowed to remain hoisted after sundown.

Another is that the flag should never be allowed to touch the ground. Still one of our citizens was observed yesterday morning tying his flag to the pole with both the flag and the pole on the ground. It was unthoughtful, of course, but you know there has been lots of trouble caused by persons not showing the proper respect for the stars and stripes.

The Eastland country club held an elimination tournament over the week end and awarded some very useful prizes to the champion and near champion golfers, both ladies and gentlemen.

They topped it off with a dance at their club house last night which seemed to be thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

The main street checker game in Ranger goes on unabated. Mead has moved, Smith is moving—whose move is it now?

Lee Hoeker down at the central offices of the Wichita Falls, Ranger and Fort Worth railroad is trying to promote a mumble-peg tourney. Any one desiring to enter may see him for further particulars.

Now that radio has entered the business of transmitting pictures and messages by the square inch instead of by dots and dashes, it is interesting to note that within its first year of operation the speed of transmission has been doubled. Whereas last year 40 minutes were required for a single photograph of standard size, today it can be done commercially in 20 minutes. Under laboratory conditions the same accomplishment has taken but two minutes.

Will He Stick?

Here's George Grant, a former member of the St. Louis Browns, who is with Cleveland now. Grant says he is in the majors to stick this time and went out and won his first game against the White Sox as proof of his contentions.

THEVENOW IS HAVING LOTS OF HARD LUCK

By BILLY EVANS.
 This has been a tough season so far for Tommy Thevenow of the St. Louis Cardinals, batting and fielding hero of the 1926 world series.

Due to a salary difference, he was late in reporting. It was feared this might affect his play. On the contrary, he stepped right into the picture in the spring training games and hogged the spotlight from a batting standpoint.

While not a great batter, Thevenow has always been regarded as dangerous in a pinch. In the world series he accounted for five runs on timely hits. His single in the final game, driving in two runs, enabled the Cardinals to take the title by the score of 3 to 2.

Thevenow's great work in the exhibition games in the south this spring made it seem as if the late start wasn't going to affect his batting in the least.

Then came the unexpected, a batting slump just as soon as the season opened. In his first 40 games this year he drove across the plate exactly two runs.

Batting slumps are impossible of explanation. They just happen and the player emerges from them as quickly as he started to slip.

Salaries Depend on Hits.
 It is a rather unusual fact, but often when a player is in a batting slump he appears to be hitting the ball well but always right at some waiting fielder.

"It is not how you hit them, but where you hit them," is Joe Sewall's logical and original argument relative to the making of base hits.

Every fan has been at a ball game where some player would hit several line drives into the waiting hands of a fielder, while some other player would pop up two or three fly balls that would be just out of the reach of every fielder trying for them.

However, as the club owners gauge salaries largely on the base hit column, ball players are not particularly what kind of hits they get, just so long as they go safe.

Just as Tommy Thevenow, hero of the 1926 world series, was recovering from his batting slump he suffered a serious leg injury that has kept him out for several weeks and there is no telling how long it will be before he gets back into the lineup.

If the St. Louis Cardinals win the National league pennant this year, it must be done without the sterling play that Tommy Thevenow provided in the field and at the bat last season.

An Interesting Coincidence.
 It is an interesting coincidence that Mark Koenig, who opposed Thevenow at shortstop for the Yankees in the series of last fall, has experienced a directly opposite year as far as the playing end of the game is concerned.

Koenig, the possessor of remarkable natural ability in the field and at the bat, was alternately the hero and the goat of the last classic. He finished on the latter end because of a badly bounding grounder in the final game.

During the first half of the present season the work of Koenig in all departments of play has been little less than sensational. A year's experience plus the world series test, apparently made him.

Then just when he was at the top of his game a leg injury, although not as serious as that of Thevenow's, forced him out of the lineup. Shifting Lazzari to short and Morehart to second, proved just as effective a combination.

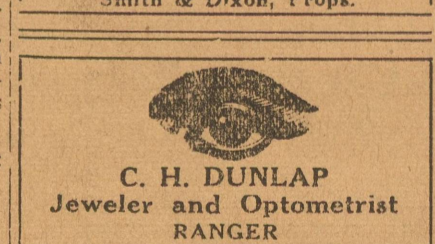

Baseball managers are superstitious. Despite the fact that Koenig is again ready to play, Manager Huggins refuses to break up a winning combination in order to let him resume his berth at short.

Now that it's vacation time, we wonder where the fish are going to take theirs.

RANGER UNUSUALLY QUIET ON JULY 4

Ranger, formerly the wild town of the oil fields, was one hundred percent perfect on the Fourth, as not a single arrest was made from noon on through the day. Evidently all the bad people had gone to greener fields and only the good stayed at home for not a thing happened to mar the pure white page of the police blotter, or to break the lethargy of the calm that hung over the town like a pall.

Jungle Breath

THIS HAS HAPPENED
To the queer little South American town of Porto Verde, in west central Brazil, a town ringed by dark, forbidding jungles, Lincoln Nunnally, a famous chemist comes. An air of mystery seems to hang over the place. This impression is accentuated when the porter who handles Nunnally's grips hints of strange deaths that have occurred and mumbles gloomy prophecies.
In the barber shop, the barber, a strange, dark man with an Oriental cast to his eyes, speaks to Nunnally, who then recognizes him as Vilak West, known as Vilak, a fellow American. He asks Vilak what he is doing in Porto Verde. To his amazement, Vilak says he has sent for him.
The barber business merely conceals his real activities. He and his cousin, Elise Marberry, need assistance in getting at the root of a mystery that already has cost several lives and threatened Elise's.
Another man is killed, Tony Barbeta, one of Elise's foremen. Before he dies, he accuses one Limey Potts of murdering him. Potts admits striking him with a club, but pleads self-defense. Vilak later astonishes Nunnally by saying Limey Potts did not commit the murder. He is silent as to his theory and asks Nunnally to accompany him on a nocturnal visit to the ranch of Gaylor Prentiss, a mysterious and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of Elise Marberry. Vilak insists that they wear raincoats, though the night is cloudless.
NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER IV
In a few moments Nunnally and Vilak were riding slowly up the road, their shadows dancing fantastically before them on the gray mud. Their course for the first mile lay over the highway they had taken in the afternoon. They crossed the bridge over the river, which was swirling hungrily between its low banks along which ran the railroad.
"River's getting high," said Vilak looking down as he crossed it. "If it keeps on rising like this in the mountains, we'll have a bad flood. They have them twice a year here, but this season there's been much more rain than usual and a few of the inhabitants are getting worried. An English company has a big dam about twenty miles up the river, which they built to develop water-power for the mines opening up in that section and everyone is certain the dam will let go some day."
"A similar dam broke about four years ago and killed two or three hundred people. A lot of water about here, as you've probably noticed. A lot of little lakes which have been dammed up in recent years to give a steady supply of water, for there's mighty little falls in the dry season. It's necessary, but it makes things a bit dangerous in an over-wet season like this. However, never life without danger. There's a man up in that tree, aiming a pistol at us I think," he added, without changing the inflection of his voice. "Pull back behind that bridge timber."
The chemist obeyed. Vilak leaned over in his saddle, snatched up a sharp rock from the roadway and hurled it at the lower branch of the tree he had indicated just at the end of the bridge. There was a sharp cry, then a crash in the brush.
"Who was it? Er—who? who?" The old man panted excitedly.
Vilak placidly brushed the mud from his finger. "Nothing to be alarmed about. Just the common garden variety of holdup man, I think. After you've been down in this part of the country a while you'll take it as naturally as your meals. The end of the bridge is one of their favorite places. They wait up there in the trees, point their revolvers at you without being seen and shout down to you to throw your money into the road. Then, after you're gone, they come down and get it. An easy and almost infallibly safe method, for, not being visible, their victims have no chance of resistance."
"Oh, they don't take chances,

Something's happened in the house," he said suddenly. "What was it? Come. Out with the truth."

These brave young bloods. A great improvement over the American method. In about another half a second we would have heard the Brazilian equivalent of 'hands up,' and if you were a good scared Indian you would have thrown everything you had in your pockets onto that road and run like mad. Either it was one of these thieving gentry or someone who wanted to kill me for reasons and motives unknown."
The chemist his little body taut on his horse, stared blankly in the direction of the crashing brush. "Er—why didn't you shoot at him? And why are you not pursuing him now—yes—pursuing?"
"I didn't shoot at him because a rock serves the purpose amply and I don't kill unless I have to. I'm not pursuing him because we've much more important things to do, where we may need every bit of energy we have, and we'd only be wasting it on a fruitless chase which would come to nothing. I know these jungles too well."
"That man's an eighth of a mile from here now and safe as if he were a thousand. If he's a thief, the police will get him—maybe. Theft's punished worse than murder here, anyway. If he's one of my particular friends, then undoubtedly we'll meet him again. Concentration, mon cher, is the best strategy. Stick to the main road. Or as an esteemed pugilist, who was once one of my intimates, told me, don't guard your chin and thereby expose your solar plexus."
Their horses stepped from the bridge onto the road. A quarter of a mile farther on, the men saw two dark figures shrouded in the bushes. As the riders neared them, they began to move farther back into the obscurity, but at a cordial salutation from Vilak, halted. Nunnally saw the gleam of knives, then recognized the faces of Pasquale Branza of the patched check and enormous Adam's apple and the one-armed Detto Cicerone of the broken teeth, the two men he had seen stealing off after Elise in the afternoon.
They grinned at Vilak amiably, the grin making the gaping hole that marked Cicerone's mouth wider than ever, for the figure of Attorney Davis was often seen at night on that road that led to the Marberry fazenda. But even the chemist, unskilled as he was in the study of human emotions, could detect a distinct uneasiness in their faces. "Buona sera, amici," Vilak said smilingly. "A beautiful night, is it not so?"
"Si, Meester Davis, si, si," Cicerone, the more active of the two, lisped between his broken teeth. "The night es ver' beautiful. The moon she beautiful like when she shine on sea at Napoli."
"You stand here and watch the moon."
"So, si, Meester Davis," they chorused anxiously.
Vilak casually offered them cigars. "Take care, my friends. The jaguar likes to strike in the moon. Is it not so? Buona sera."

The two men eagerly tipped their hats. Vilak and the chemist took the road again. They passed a cluster of trees set far back from the highway. Vilak called his companion's attention to it. "That's where Attorney Davis lives," he said. "I have a room at Elise's too, that I use when I need it." A short distance farther they reached a wide gateway under two castanjo trees. It was the entrance to the Marberry fazenda. They rode through and a few moments later reached a low building of white stucco surrounded on all sides by long, carefully screened verandas.
Elise Marberry came forward to meet them. The chemist had no difficulty in recognizing her as the black-haired young woman who had thrown a kiss to him from her carriage in the afternoon. Then she had been dressed in gray; now she wore a gown of yellow silk, embroidered with jade green which out-trivalled in brilliancy the flaming colored macaw which they comfortably stood on a perch inside the door. Around her supple neck, and hanging down upon her dress, was a heavy hand-wrought silver chain.
"Well, here you two are at last," she said as she took the old man's hand and squeezed it vigorously without waiting for the formality of Vilak's introduction. "It's a shame the way we've treated you. A great shame. But it's all the fault of the wretch of a cousin of mine. He insists on dragging you to this place that only mad creatures like myself inhabit; he won't let anyone meet you at the wharf, because he wanted to have you stumble against him as though by accident; then when you are here, he won't permit you to stay on my fazenda where I could see that you were comfortable, but insists that you live in that filthy den he calls a hotel. Good evening, my Lord Dictator," she said, turning to him suddenly.
"Not a dictator, only sensible," he retorted as they made their way to a gay low-ceilinged interior. "Which unfortunately is a virtue most women don't possess."
"You're undoubtedly a dictator." She invited them to sit down on a bright striped divan. "The only reason I pay any attention to you is because you're a criminologist and not many families possess one."
She began toying with a fan made of iridescent green feathers which brought out all the beauty of her dark skin. "But even your tyrannical orders couldn't keep me from saying hello to Mr. Nunnally, at least."
She turned to the old man again.

Women and girls realize more and more that to keep working and feel like playing too, they need the abundance of strength and energy which comes with good health. That's why you find so many women and girls using St. Joseph's G. F. P. when they become weak or run-down.
This vegetable compound contains such roots and herbs as Blessed Thistle, Blue Cohosh Root, Squaw Vine, Helonias Root, Life Root Plant, Star Grass, Cramp Bark, etc., which your family physician will tell you have been used for years in building up and strengthening women.
Mrs. A. M. Meeks, of 516 Pontotoc Ave., Memphis, Tenn., says: "I am now on my seventh bottle of St. Joseph's G. F. P. and am stronger than I have been in years. I want every woman to know about this medicine."
In many instances St. Joseph's Antiseptic Powder used externally in connection with St. Joseph's G. F. P. will be found very soothing.

Women have used St. Joseph's G.F.P. for over 50 years!

The movie salary cuts are a terrible blow. Some of the stars may even find they can't afford divorces now.

Moorman Starts Well On Thorpe In Gordon Field

Cull Moorman of Ranger, spudded in on the Thorpe lease, about a mile and a half north of the Gordon Pool, last night at midnight.

In the same neighborhood the Tee Pee Coal and Oil company's Higginbotham No. 2 is drilling at 3,300 feet.

This company also is drilling three wells in the Carbon area. The J. W. Cochran No. 1 is drilling at 2700 feet and the J. W. Cochran No. 2, at 1800 feet. The J. C. Swift No. 1 is drilling at 340 feet this morning.

Moody and Adams, Inc., who recently completed the big producer on the J. C. Dyer lease, about six miles southeast of Moran, have put up a steel rig over the McClelland well, which is an offset to the east of the Dyer. This well, it is reported, is producing from the first big gas sand found in that territory and is about 150 feet above the oil sand found in the Dyer well.

The McClelland well was brought in last summer and made a good gasser. The Texas Co. has been buying the gas since that time. At the time the well was brought in the company had the misfortune of losing the rig by fire and the rig was never rebuilt. Since the discovery of the oil in the Dyer well, the company has decided to drill the gasser on down to the oil sand, and is practically assured of an oil well. The company is rigging up the derrick and will begin drilling in the near future.

School Districts Consolidate, Ask For New Building

A consolidation of the Bluff branch and Cottonwood school district for school purposes was effected at the regular meeting of the Eastland county board of school trustees held Saturday afternoon in the office of the county school superintendent, Miss Beulah Speer at Eastland.

Immediately after the consolidation became a certainty a petition was circulated asking the county commissioners' court to call an election for the earliest possible time for the purpose of voting $4,000 in bonds with which to build a new school building in the consolidated district. The petition, with the required number of names, has already been presented to the county commissioners and doubtless will be acted upon at the very earliest possible moment. The election, it is stated, cannot be held sooner than 30 days from this date.

The board at its Saturday afternoon meeting made the following appointment of trustees in districts where no election for trustees were held: Union, Mrs. Mary Hazard and Lee Bourland; Griggsby, J. W. Fussell. At Shady Grove Clint Britton was appointed to succeed L. E. Johnson, resigned.

Tubercular Cow Found at Strawn, Ranger Supply O.K.

Dr. Ross Hodges, of Ranger, will tomorrow begin a test of part of the milk of Strawn, as a result of a cow in that section being found tubercular.

The cow belonged to a private family and was supplying milk to two children of the family. The parents, both college students, became suspicious of the animal and had a tuberculin test made. Although the cow was fine and fat and apparently in perfect health it was found to be tubercular.

Dr. Hodges stated today that there had never been much tuberculosis among cattle in this section and by constant vigilance of herds, and systematic tuberculin tests, there would not be any.

In regard to dairies in Ranger, Dr. Hodges said, when asked about their dairy stock, that all dairies in this city had been inspected less than a year ago and are in a good condition so far as the health of the cows are concerned.

Brings Suit For $5,000 Damages Against Katy Road

J. F. Bender has brought suit in the 91st district court of Eastland county against the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad of Texas for the sum of $5,000 alleged damages for personal injuries.

Bender alleges among other things that on July 5, 1925, while in the employ of the defendant road and while working under its orders he was hurt when a motor car on which he was riding collided with another one of the company's motor cars near Bartlett, Texas.

The petition of the plaintiff further states that at the time of the injury plaintiff was a minor only 19 years of age and that on July 7, 1925, he signed a release for a claim for damages to the railroad company, but that on March 8, 1927, plaintiff reached his majority and now revokes the release given the railroad company.

EASTLAND COURTS RESUME WORK TUESDAY MORNING

Judge Elzo Been of the Eighty-eighth district court this morning called the appearance docket for the July term, which opened Monday. There is no jury for this week in the Eighty-eighth.

Judge George L. Davenport of the Ninety-first district court will be engaged this week in the trial of such criminal cases as have been prepared for trial by the district attorney's department.

Lillian Gish Is Coming to Lamb In Scarlet Letter

Lillian Gish, celebrated star of the screen, has just fulfilled an ambition of some six years in playing the role of "Hester Prynne" in Nathaniel Hawthorne's classic romance, "The Scarlet Letter." For six years the actress has mentally rehearsed the role, hoping that some day she would be given an opportunity to play the dramatic heroine of one of the most famous romances in the world.

The fulfillment of her ambition will be seen at the Lamb theatre, when Merto-Goldwyn-Mayer will present her in the role. Miss Gish regards the role as a tribute to her ancestors, as she is directly descended from one of the original Puritan families. In fact, the family home at Deerfield, Mass., is being maintained by the Daughters of the Revolution as a museum where the ancient furnishings and possessions of the actress' ancestors are on public display. Miss Gish is herself a member of the D. A. R.

FORD PLAN MOVIES STUDIED IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW.—A moving picture film of the Ford motor plant in Detroit is going the rounds of soviet factories, under the auspices of the commissariat of education. The film illustrates the labor saving devices and the system of production of the motor manufacturer, which are held to be models toward which soviet industry should strive. Several Russian workmen who were permitted to visit the Ford plants and who spent several months there as workers, accompany the film and deliver explanatory lectures.

HUGE HELIUM PLANT BUILT IN KANSAS

By United Press. ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., July 5.—Construction work has been started on a $1,000,000 plant for the extraction of helium from natural gas at Dexter, near here. The plant is the second to be constructed in the United States, the other being located at Fort Worth, Texas.

Helium is a non-inflammable gas that is particularly valuable for inflating balloons and dirigibles.

The plant at Dexter is being built by the Kentucky Oxygen & Hydrogen company and will buy the natural gas from S. W. Forrester, oil operator of Wichita, Kan. Contracts have been signed, according to Forrester, for sale of a large part of the output of the plant to the United States government.

The helium field, which apparently extends for several miles in all directions from Dexter, was discovered during the world war and at that time the government surveyed the vicinity with the object of placing an extraction plant there. However, such plans were dropped when the war ended.

When may one call a child dull? asks a newspaper headline. The answer is when in presence of the neighbors only.

George Washington sponsored aeronautics, the historians now reveal. Surely, he sent a whole British army up in the air.

When you buy on time be sure to pay that way.
