OPENING OF NEW HIGH SCHOOL AT EASTLAND HELD

Two Thousand Proud Residents of City Get First Glimpse of New Modern Structure.

A crowd estimated at 2,000 people was present Monday night for the official opening to the public of the new Eastland High school building. From 7:30 until the spacious auditorium was opened at 8 o'clock people mingled in the halls and classrooms inspecting the modern educational building. They went from laboratories to lockers, from front steps to the study hall and from top to bottom. It is estimated that from 1,000 to 1,500 remained for the opening program held in the auditorium. The auditorium which seats 750 was packed, and many were standing in the aisles and on the outside.
The spacious building, which occupies a hill west of Eastland was lighted in every respect. The public was let in by members of the senior class and they acted as guides to show the people the main features of the building.
Modern Building.
The building is modern in every respect. The physics and chemistry laboratories are equipped with the latest additions to scientific research. An elevated lecture from separates the two laboratories. The rooms devoted to the new commercial department are imposing as well as practical. This department has just been added to the High school curriculum. The cafeteria, located at the east end of the first floor, will be one of the best in state high schools when all equipment has been received and installed.
All classrooms are well lighted and ventilated and equipped with modern blackboards and seats. The study halls are centrally located and furnish easy access to laboratories and classrooms. Drinking fountains are located on each of the three floors and clocks are placed at logical positions throughout the building. Another feature of the building is the enclosed individual lockers of which each student is given one for the year. The lockers are enclosed in the walls and equipped with combination locks. An enclosed trophy case is placed at the immediate entrance of the building.
Faculty Presented.
The building stands on a bed rock foundation and is constructed of reinforced concrete and steel. The floors are concrete slabs and stone steps lead all over the building. All the interior woodwork is of polished maple.
Allen D. Dabney was chairman of the program that officially opened the main wing of the building, the auditorium. The auditorium is the main interior attraction of the building. It seats easily 750 and has a balcony that is hung at the rear. The stage, although not quite finished, is an added attraction to the auditorium. Cream maple wood outlines the stage.
Mr. Dabney, introduced the faculty of the High school, the West Ward and the South Ward, the members present of the board of directors, Mrs. Whitehurst, president of the Parent-Teacher association, after the audience had sung "America" and Rev. L. R. Hoan had delivered the invocation. Mr. Dabney traced the High school in Eastland from the little frame structure of many years ago to the present one. He paid tribute to the Parent-Teacher association and talked of the asset to any community of good schools. Mrs. Whitehurst introduced Mrs. Turrentine of Denton and Mrs. Gleason of the College of Industrial Arts, prominent state Parent-Teacher association workers.

He said that the board had worked long and often and endeavored to give the Eastland citizens something that they would be proud of. He spoke of a dedication program to be given soon.
David S. Castle, architect was not present but was represented by his assistant, Mr. Hiner. Mr. Hiner congratulated the citizens for voting the bonds, and getting work started in time for this year's work. He thanked the board for the co-operation given the contractors and subcontractors. He said "we had in mind three things in this school, utility, durability and stability, and a dignified exterior and interior—and I think we have succeeded."
W. Z. Bates, superintendent of the Eastland schools, told of the different affiliations the departments had and of prospects for this year's work. He added that the English department received four credits for four years' work, an honor among high schools.

Mrs. Viola Fulco, who lives in Shreveport, La., at 1453 Laurel St., says, "I really owe half the pleasure I get out of life to St. Joseph's G. F. P. Before I started using this medicine, my work tired me so. I never felt like going out and enjoying myself. But now I have so much strength and energy, I get my work done in hardly any time, and am never too tired to go and have a good time."

In many instances St. Joseph's Antiseptic Powder used externally in connection with St. Joseph's G. F. P. will be found very soothing.

Women have used St. Joseph's G.F.P. for over 50 years!

Extravagances Both Public And Private Stressed

By United Press
BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 13.—Amazing changes in the economic life of the United States within the past few months were discussed in their relation to life insurance here today by Roger B. Hull, managing director of the National Association of Life Underwriters in an address to the Baltimore association of that organization. It was his first speech in the position which he only recently accepted.
Taking up changes in the national life and tendencies of the present day which must be considered by insurance men throughout the country, Hull dealt with unwise legislation, administrative reform and judicial construction which affect insurance. He declared that the profession of selling insurance had now been elevated "from the position of a business or an industry to a place almost among the arts and sciences."
"We must realize," he said, "that there have been some fundamental, some amazing changes in the economic life of this country within the past few months or perhaps we should say years, especially anent the adjustment of the period of post-war inflation."
"Take for instance the marked tendency toward extravagance in both public and private expenditure and also the undue expansion in installment selling with its accompanying dangerous extension of credit. Life insurance must relate and adapt itself to these economic conditions and we must remember that life insurance is really only one manifestation of American thrift and prosperity."
Warning of destructive regulation he pointed out that any institution which has grown until "taking only the legal reserve life insurance companies, the income of these companies in 1926 exceeded $3,500,000" is bound to have become a target for attack and a fair object for restrictive regulation.
He urged the insurance underwriters he addressed to bring about the time when every movement for good in the entire United States, whether of religious, legal, charitable, political or legislative character received their support.
Hull is a graduate of Yale and Harvard law school. He has served as special assistant to the attorney general of the United States and while practicing law in New York city was general attorney for the New York Railways company.

Age Will Not Be Item In Naming Next President

WASHINGTON.—Certain statistics have been cited tending to prove that most of the current crop of presidential possibilities is likely to be disqualified because of age, but such a contention is not very convincing.
A presidential candidate is as old as he functions and the country has had five of them in their sixties. Furthermore, men live longer in this day and none of the possibilities are exactly feeble. After Harding died a theory gained currency that the presidency was a wearing job which generally made a physical wreck of a man, but Coolidge has proved that a president can take care of himself, despite the exigencies of his office. No one has suggested that another four years after his present term would kill him.
Governor Al Smith is said to have told some of his friends that his health wasn't so good and there is some question as to Lowden's physical fitness for a campaign. Secretary Mellon is over 70, but he wouldn't be nominated in any event. That seems to cover the old age handicaps, if there are any. Smith is only 54, while Lowden is 66. Charles Evans Hughes at 65 stands up so well under the strain of abstruse and long-winded court arguments that he is obviously good for a few campaign speeches. Dawes at 62 is as peppery and perhaps more so when he was 30. Senator Jim Reed is 66, but there's more fight in him than in any other man in his party. Hoover and Longworth are in their fifties and in good health, but it takes more than youth and good health to win a nomination even though these assets in rare instances might tip the scales.

HUGGINS' BOYS HAVE CHANCE TO BREAK RECORD

Prospects Good for Yankees to Break 15 Year Record of Games Won.

An American league record that has stood for 15 years may be broken by the New York Yankees ere the 1927 season draws to a close. I have reference to the greatest number of games won.

Back in 1912 the Boston Red Sox won the American league pennant with 105 wins against 47 defeats. Two scheduled games were wiped out because of rain. The best previous record in the American League was 102 victories gained by Connie Mack Athletics in 1910.

With 21 games remaining to be played the Yankees had 93 wins out of 133 starts. To break the record, all the men of Huggins had to do was win 13 while losing 3, for a percentage of .618, practically 100 points below the rate the club had traveled up to that time.

"The Yankees are a much better ball club than last year. Unless handicapped by serious injuries, we should win 100 ball games this year," was a remark made to me by Miller Huggins about July 1. He also hinted New York might win 106 games, thereby breaking the American league record.

That Huggins knew what he was talking about is shown by the decisive manner in which his club has made good on his predictions.

Five Club Wins 100.
It is a rather interesting fact that only five clubs in the history of the American league, since its organization in 1900 have won 100 or more games in a season. The Yanks when they turn the trick, which seems certain, will be number six.

The first club to hit the 100 mark in the American League in games won was Connie Mack's Philadelphia team of 1910 with 102 victories. The same club repeated as pennant winners the following year, taking down 101 games.

In 1912 the Boston Red Sox upset the done by beating out the Athletics, highly favored to win for the third successive year. Jake Stahl managed Boston that year and set the record at 105 victories. Bill Carrigan in 1915, with much the same team, turned in 111 games to land the championship for Boston.

Clarence Rowland in 1917 with the Chicago White Sox, captured a pennant with an even century of wins and went on to win the world's championship from the New York Giants.

Thus only three American League cities, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago, can boast of pennant winners, with 100 or more victories to their credit. New York is on the way to join the select class.

Huggins is Deserving.
Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees richly deserved the distinction of belonging to the 100 or more

Going Great

Meet Fred Fitzsimmons. He's one of the New York Giants and his pitching is one of the factors aiding John McGraw's team in its effort to overhaul the league leaders. Fitzsimmons is counted on by the Giants for a few more victories this season.

victories class. Four times he has threatened twice falling two games shy, once six games and the other time nine contests shy of the mark.

Back in 1914, Connie Mack suffered two real disappointments. In winning the pennant, his club collected 99 games while Connie was shooting at a century. Then, his supposedly invincible team was beaten four straight games in the world series of that year by the inspired Boston Braves.

The most number of games won in a season by a National League club fell to Frank Chance and his Chicago Cubs in 1906, when his fast-stepping team won 116 contests. Like Mack's 1914 club, it was jointed in the world series, being defeated by the Chicago White Sox, then known as the Hitless Wonders.

The New York Giants were the last club in the National League to capture 100 or more games. McGraw's club won 101 in 1913. Not since that time has any team entered the charmed circle.

Some of our leading sports writers have regained considerable of their lost prestige during the last couple of weeks. They "see a great golf player" in Bobby Jones.

New Black Hope Looming Now On Fight Horizon

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor)
NEW YORK.—Should Jack Dempsey succeed in regaining the world's heavyweight championship, will he be pursued again by a black shadow? Or, if Gene Tunney is successful in holding the title after his coming fight with Dempsey, will he have to listen to the challenges of another black shadow?

It is quite possible, since George Godfrey, the huge Philadelphia negro knocked out Jim Maloney in one round, that he will be advanced as the logical challenger for the next heavyweight championship fight and all the will's sympathy gags will be refreshed.

Already those interested in Godfrey are claiming that he can't get a fight with the leading heavyweight contenders unless he agrees to "do business" and that he is the best man in the heavyweight division today.

It has been said that Godfrey is so good that he knocked out Dempsey during a sparring match in Great Falls when the then champion was training for the Gibbon's fight, that Jack Kearns grabbed his contract so that he couldn't annoy Dempsey and that Kearns later turned the contract over to a close friend, Jimmy Dougherty with the express stipulation that he was not to bother Dempsey.

Sparrred With Dempsey.
We do not know the purpose Kearns had in signing Godfrey or in turning over his contract or what arrangements were made in either case. But we do know that Godfrey never knocked Dempsey out in the training camp. Dempsey was knocked off his feet one afternoon but was done by a light heavyweight whose name has slipped us and it was the result of a half slip that threw Dempsey off his balance.

The real reason why Godfrey quit work suddenly as a sparring partner was that Dempsey smashed a couple of his ribs and he refused to work any more. Dempsey had him in his camp later at White Sulphur Springs and gave him plenty of beatings in public.

This is meant in no way in the spirit of personal malice because Godfrey is one of the most likeable personalities you would want to meet. He is a typical southern negro and a gentleman through every inch of his huge bulk. He is also a good fighter but he is not a logical challenger on the strength of his victory over Maloney. Godfrey's record is spotted in many places, just like that of Harry Wills.

Godfrey as a boxer and a specimen of physical manhood is a picture, a second edition of Jack Johnson, with whom he worked for some time as a sparring partner in a show. It is said that Godfrey got so good that he was too good for the ancient Johnson and Johnson turned him over to a manager to handle for him.

He is the biggest man in the ring today and perhaps the strongest, but his courage has been questioned on numerous occasions. As a front runner he is hard to beat but he doesn't relish being hurt.

Wins Pennant

Full credit for the winning of the Texas League pennant by the Wichita Falls club is given Manager Carl Williams, above. Williams thinks his team will beat New Orleans or Birmingham, whichever team wins in the South-ern, in the annual Dixie championship series.

Will be Pushed.
Godfrey no doubt will be pushed forward with the aid of the sympathy racket that got Wills a lot of sympathy but not much money. The public was largely for Wills while he was "chasing" Dempsey but it is probable that after the bust that Wills turned himself out to be the public will ask Godfrey to prove himself. If he goes out and cleans up everything in sight as Jack Sharkey did in climbing next to the top, he will not need the public to get him a fight.

Dempsey never was afraid of Wills and he would have fought him at any time during the period when he was champion. But as has been said two dozen times, the fight could not be staged.

Tex Rickard is the only promoter in the country big enough to promote a heavyweight championship fight and Rickard would have nothing to do with it. Rickard may have been cautioned by Washington or Albany or London or Rome not to stage the fight but that was not the real reason why he would not attempt it.

"I have enough trouble with the reformers as it is," Rickard said not long ago. "If I had attempted to match Dempsey and Wills during those particular times I would have played right into their hands and I would have been plastered with so many injunctions I would have been in court for the rest of my days."

In an unguarded moment, or in a preoccupied moment Tunney said last year that he never would meet a negro, but he wasn't the champion then and he didn't have the feel of a million dollars.

If Godfrey proves himself he will get the chance but it is a hard process, that of proving oneself in the ring.

Ray Morrison Is Rather Gloomy Over Football

By RICHARD C. WILSON, United Press Staff Correspondent.
DALLAS, Sept. 13.—It would be assumed that a football coach with 17 letter men available from his 1926 Southwest conference championship squad would be an optimist.

But with Ray Morrison, clever football coach at Southern Methodist university here, this pleasant assemblage of gridsters means nothing until—as he puts it—he can "fill that awful hole at center."

This somewhat pessimistic view of the Mustang pigskin tutor is not shared in the other six conference camps, however. The Mustangs are given favorable chances by the wise ones to win the 1927 title of the great southwest. The Methodist rooters believe the most important thing for Morrison to overcome during the two weeks training period is over-confidence, better known as "successful championship bogey."

Morrison's gloomy attitude should do much toward relieving the large crowd of aspirants for places on the Mustang squad of any tendency to feel that the 1927 title is in a sack before the season opens.

"We have about 50 men working out this week, including the 17 veterans from last year," Morrison said. "We hope to build two complete teams—not a first and second team."

This would indicate the coach plans to follow some of the football ideas expounded by the Notre Dame coach, Knute Rockne, during his coaching school here last summer. Rockne has always felt that by developing two teams he could prevent any of his men from feeling confident they were "first string" men.

There are several promising candidates for the gap at center left by Logan Ford, who graduated last spring.

Gerald Mann, third all-American end, is limbering his legs this week for another great season at snagging the bullet-like forward flips of Hume and Lynch, halfbacks. Love and Hume are again available for the kicking department. Roach, Trieg and Brown are on hand for tackle positions, and Tatum, Daniels, Bacus and Ray are ready for the guard positions. Ray is making a bid for the center position.

The Mustang schedule is very favorable. The three opening games should be easy enough to provide excellent workouts for the more difficult engagements later in the year. One interesting game will be with Missouri at the State fair here Oct. 22. A win in this game would increase prestige of the conference, the Missourians rating high in western football circles.

The complete schedule follows:
Sept. 24, Denton Teachers at Dallas.
Oct. 1, Howard Payne at Dallas.
Oct. 8, Centenary at Shreveport.
Oct. 14, Rice at Dallas.
Oct. 22, Missouri at Dallas.
Oct. 29, Texas at Dallas.
Nov. 5, Texas A. & M. at College Station.
Nov. 12, Baylor at Dallas.
Nov. 24, T. C. U. at Fort Worth.

One thing about flying across the ocean these days—there's lots of company.

The PENNY PRINCESS by anne austin ©1927 by NEA Service

BEGIN HERE TODAY Vera Cameron, efficient secretary, allows Jerry Macklyn, advertising manager for Peach Bloom Cosmetics, to transform her into a beauty thru the use of the company cosmetics. She consents only after she falls in love with a man who ignores her. Jerry proposes to use her photographs in advertising booklets. In transforming her, the beauty specialist copies a picture Jerry finds in his desk. Vera wants to be beautiful so she can spend her vacation at Lake Minnetonka and meet the man she loves, Schuyler Smythe. At the summer hotel, Smythe and other guests mistake Vera for the ex-princess, Vivian Crandall, who, after a Paris divorce, is in hiding. Vera tries to convince people of her true identity but is not believed. Nan Fedick, who it is rumored Schuyler is engaged to for her money begs Vee-Vee to leave the hotel, saying Schuyler loved her before Vera came. Nan and Mrs. Bannister, another guest, go to the city and Vera knows they will notify the Crandalls. That night, Schuyler and Vera go to the end of the pier to be alone and Vera determines to confess to him. He tells Vera of his love for her. Vera puts off confession and begs him to tell her of his boyhood. When he admits he is a secretary, she asks him if he would love her any less if he learned she was a nobody, without money. A bell-boy appears summoning Vera to meet two men who await her at the hotel. Schuyler says he will not let them take her away, that she must marry him tonight.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVII "How can we get away?" Vee-Vee's teeth chattered with fear and excitement. Schuyler said suddenly after a pause during which he had increased the speed of the car to 40 miles an hour. "Listen!" he commanded sharply. "Run along the shore road till you come to that little clump of birches where I got that birch bark for you yesterday. Hide among the trees until you see a car coming. I'll blow a signal on the horn and one short honk. Understand?"

"But where will you get the car?" Vee-Vee protested, seizing his arm as he was starting down the steps. "Steal it and notify the hotel in the morning where they can pick it up," Schuyler retorted grimly. "I'm not going to let anything stand in my way. That scoundrel Thurston had my car tampered with and I'll take his car to get away in if I can find it. He usually keeps it waiting at the rear entrance. Now—run along and be sure it's me before you run out into the road. Darling! Kiss me, so that I'll know it's real—that we're actually going to be married!"

"No! We—we must hurry!" While she waited in the shelter of the little clump of birches near the lake shore road, her heart was beating so fast with excitement that she could not think. She could only pray wordlessly, pray that Schuyler would not regret her as an impostor and a love-thief. A roadster which she recognized as belonging to Thurston, the hotel manager, came suddenly into view around the curve of the road. Vee-Vee crouched behind a tree until the reassuring signal came—one long foot of the horn, followed by a short one. She scurried across the road, and was in the car before it had come to a full stop. "Got it—Thurston's car!" Schuyler exclaimed. "I should have taken a closed car if one had been handy. Fortunately for me Thurston leaves his keys in his car. I warned him once that it was dangerous business, but he laughed at me, said there were no thieves at the Minnetonka. He'll laugh on the other side of his mouth, until he hears from me in the morning. Do him good to worry a little," he added, with a short laugh that jangled on Vee-Vee's overwrought nerves. She said nothing, but huddled low in her half of the seat, wrapping the white Spanish shawl about her head and shoulders to protect the carefully set wave in her copper-colored hair from the menace of the wind.

"How can we get away?" Vee-Vee's teeth chattered with fear and excitement. Schuyler said suddenly after a pause during which he had increased the speed of the car to 40 miles an hour. "Look over your shoulder, darling." Vee-Vee obeyed. "There's a car behind us, but of course they may not be following us," she reported, trying to keep panic out of her voice. "I'll lose them, whoever they are," Schuyler promised her grimly. The speedometer climbed from 40 to 45, hung there a moment, then wavered drunkenly to 50. Vee-Vee glanced over her shoulder fearfully, as the car swung at a perilous angle in taking the turn from the lake road to the state highway. "I think we've lost them, if they were following us," she cried. Schuyler above the whistle of the wind and the hum of the motor, "Where are you taking me?" she asked. "As far as I can drive before nine o'clock in the morning," Schuyler answered. "I'll try to make Connecticut—easier to get a marriage license in that state than in New York state."

"Schuyler," she began, desperately taking her courage into her hands. "I've got something to tell you. Please slow down! I can't talk against the noise and the wind." "A afraid of me?" She could see his smile in the light from the tiny electric globe set in the dashboard. "Yes," she answered shivering. "Won't you please turn into the first lane that we come to, so that we can talk unobserved? Please, Schuyler! It's vitally important." "If you're going to ask me to take you back to that hotel, where those damned detective are waiting to take you home, I can tell you now that I won't do it!" Schuyler shouted at her. "I love you and you love me, and nothing is going to come between us again. Do you hear?" "Are you trying to move that you are a masterful man?" she laughed shakily. "I don't want you to take me back to the hotel. I want to get as far away as I can, but first I have to tell you—the truth. Then, if you still want me, I shall be happy to marry you."

"Nothing you can tell me can make me change my mind," Schuyler assured her, but he slowed the car to a bare 15 miles an hour, leaning out to search for a lane turning off the main road. "There's a farmhouse ahead. See crackle of folded paper came to her faintly. Jerry's letter! The letter explained the whole miserable business was tucked away beneath the tight bodice of her evening dress. She pushed aside the folds of the Spanish shawl and groped for the letter. Her fingers felt icy against the warm flesh of her bosom. (Continued on page six)

Enjoy your food— as it nourishes your body If your appetite is not keen you owe it to yourself to take S.S.S. regularly before each meal. It will give you a good appetite.

In these days of fast competition, only full-blooded, robust, healthy people can keep to the front, and success comes to those who have the snap, vigor and magnetism that go with a wholesome, healthy life. Don't despair because others force ahead of you. Start right now to regain the health which will help you progress. A hearty appetite will restore your energy, build you up and give you "pep." Thousands have benefited themselves and kept their bodies in good repair by occasionally taking a course of S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles and it improves the processes by which the body is nourished. S.S.S. is time tried and reliable. It is made from the roots of fresh herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Many Americans, in France awaiting divorce, spend their time at the gambling tables of the Riviera. This gambling habit is hard to break.

Constitution week reminds us that there had to be something to tack those amendments to.

London Business Moving From East To West Of City

By United Press.
LONDON.—London's business is moving from the eastern part of the metropolis to the west. Just as New York's business quarter is gradually occupying a large section of Fifth avenue, despite the stubborn resistance of some residents, so are all the old landmarks of London's social life disappearing under a flood of stores and offices.

This fact was pointed out in the presidential address at Torquay, Cornwall, of A. J. Burrows, delivered before the conference of the auctioneers and estate agents institute.

"In New York," he said, "the problem of housing the business interests has been partly solved by the erection of skyscrapers. In London this plan is not practicable. The city cannot extend eastward, where the tightly packed population prevents it, and business firms do not move south of the river. The tendency, therefore, is to extend to the west.

"Cavendish Square, ten years ago the home of the then prime minister, is already invaded by commerce. In St. James' square about 50 per cent of the houses are now devoted to business, as are many houses in Grosvenor place, skirting the grounds of Buckingham Palace.

"Hanover Square has long been given over to offices and shops. The infiltration is steadily increasing. Banks, insurance, and shipping companies are all acquiring premises and the head office of a tourist agency has migrated westward.

"The hitherto sacred precincts of Park Lane (one-time recognized home of millionaires) now house a building society, and big blocks of flats are being erected.

This westward trend is no new thing. It has been going on for a century and a half without interruption but at varying rates. Even Holborn, just north of Fleet street, was once a place of fashion, and Gray's Inn gardens the favorite lounge. As far back as 1737 an act was passed for beautifying Red Lion Square, "which had run much to decay." The squares of Bloomsbury survived as mainly residential until far into the nineteenth century.

Some have succumbed to the boarding house and the hotels. Others are largely in genteel professional occupation.

The footprints are all one way. Soho and Golden Squares are memories only as places of the "bon ton"; Fitzroy Square, the youngest of them all, never even had its day, for it was so long in building that fashion turned off before it reached it.

PENNY PRINCESS
"Have you some idiotic idea of testing my love by telling me that you are poor?" Schuyler demanded in an odd voice. Then he seemed to pull himself together, laughed indulgently.

"Darling, I don't give a damn about your precious money. If you've lost 40 million dollars in four years of being a princess, why, all the better—for me, I mean. I can have the pleasure of showing you how the backbone of America lives!" He laughed again, but there seemed to be little genuine pleasure behind it.

"Don't laugh!" she cried out of her pain. "I haven't been trying to tell you that I've lost 40 million dollars, but—"

"I knew you were just trying to test me," he laughed with more assurance. "But I don't think you show much trust of the man who has loved you for five years."

"That's just it!" Vee-Vee cried. "You haven't loved me for five years, for you has never seen me before in your life when I walked into the Minnetonka dining room on Sunday. You did not see me at Palm Beach."

Elephant Hides for Dainty Women, Frog Skins Worn By Men

By United Press.
PARIS.—Milady now uses elephant hide for raincoats, shoes, bags and grips. A method has been found permitting to make the rough hide supple. Various hues are employed, tans and greys predominating. One raincoat of elephant hide with buttons of ivory from the tusks of the animal is selling fast.
But Milady's husband has to be content with skins of frogs as a novelty. This material is light and waterproof. The husband can carry a wallet or a cigar case made from frog skin or he can swing a cane covered with the same fabric. Silk butterflies are another fad which promises to be popular with American visitors. They are of sheer silk with the wings painted on. They can be fastened with a pin to a frock giving the impression of real butterflies which have just alighted. The wearing of a coat over the frock does not injure them. Several women have realized that the butterflies can be used on their shoes as buckles or as hat trimmings.
