MOODY IS FAR IN LEAD OVER STATE FINAL COUNT TO DECIDE COUNTY RACES

Will Hold Ferguson To Wager; 'Ma' Must Resign From Race

By United Press

DALLAS, July 24.—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson tonight faced the threat of possible elimination in the first state primary with the reiteration of her campaign prediction that she would retain her office by a majority vote in today's election. In a statement given the United Press from Austin Ferguson, speaking for his wife, declared he had nothing to say "other than that my wife will win by a majority, as predicted in her speech of July 15."

Ferguson indicated no further statement would be forthcoming tonight on a basis of available returns.

Holding a majority lead over four other gubernatorial entries Moody declared he was confident he would oust the woman governor and avoid the necessity of a second primary. He told the United Press in the event of his election he would insist on the governor living up to the letter of her challenge and resigning from office as soon as his election is determined.

Governor Ferguson, in her opening campaign speech, gave Moody 25,000 to 1 odds on her election, offering to resign in the event "he polled a single more vote than she did."

Moody in turn was to vacate his office if he trailed the woman governor by 25,000 votes or more. Moody accepted the challenge.

Lynch Davidson's headquarters said tonight Lynch would "sit tight in the boat" until the vote was recorded entirely.

CHINESE R. R. RATES INCREASED 24 PER CENT

By United Press.

PEKING—Railway authorities, in spite of the practical anarchy prevailing on every line and the extreme delays and discomforts to which travelers are subjected, have again raised passenger fares and increased freight rates one-fourth and excess baggage rates one-fifth.

Passenger fare on the so-called "express" from Peking to Tientsin is now at the rate of five and one-quarter cents a mile U. S. currency, with no guarantee of a seat and every assurance of numerous delays en route.

PACIFIC COAST DIRECTOR MUST FACE CHARGES

By United Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 24.—Charges of drinking and playing the role of host to parties in hotel rooms preferred against Col. Ned M. Green, prohibition administrator for northern California and Nevada were admitted by him today.

With the federal grand jury probe scheduled to open Monday to hear the accusation against Green, the dry chief stopped his cry "Frame up," which he has claimed, and admitted the truth of many accusations against him.

"Sure I drink," Green said. "I am no lily; I am a regular fellow." Green served through the Spanish-American war and in the World War and was promoted in the World's conflict before assuming the dry law post, he was in business in Los Angeles.

Col. Ned M. Green was suspended from office today pending the outcome of the charges that he had staged liquor parties in his hotel suite.

While confessing that he did have liquor in his room and served to guests of both sexes and parties, Col. Green carried with the declaration that "I cannot see where I have done anything wrong in living as a gentleman should live."

Green's suspension came from Washington, following in a few hours his revelations that the charges the grand jury will consider Monday are for the most part true.

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Press reports of a Mexican "mobilization" order for Aug. 1 were received without alarm by the state and war departments here today. The officials were confident the reported action had no connection with foreign relations.

The other sources believed it was a precautionary measure in connection with the possible Catholic protest demonstrations on Aug. 1.

In Eastland county only three completions were made one of them being a 150 barrel producer while the others were dry. Callahan county had three producers and one dry hole, while Brown county has a long list of good wells.

TEXAS COMPANY PURCHASES LOT ON MAIN STREET

A deal has been consummated between George McManus and the Texas Company, whereby the latter becomes owner of a lot on Main and South Commerce streets, 65 by 60 feet, on which the Texas Company will begin at once the erection of a splendid filling station.

The constructing engineer of the company is expected here in a few days and the tools already are beginning to arrive for the construction of the building, which will be a one-story structure, right up to the minute in every way.

There will be no car storage in connection with the building, as it will cater to the distribution of oil and gasoline altogether.

An auto air service, said to be the only one in Ranger, will be installed. This service automatically fills tires at any number of pounds of air that the customer may desire, thus relieving the operator of any blame in case of blowouts for over-filled tires.

All equipment will be the last word in scientific and approved apparatus and when finished, the company will have one of the prettiest and most complete stations west of Fort Worth. The lot and building will represent an investment of about $12,000, possibly more. The station will not be operated by the company, but will be leased out to some individual, however, the lessor has not yet been named.

This announcement comes after months of waiting on the part of Ranger people for the news that this building is to be a reality. It was rumored early in the year, but a company like the Texas Company, never closes a deal until it can read the titles clear, and it has just now reached the point when it will make an announcement to the effect that the deal is closed and work will begin at once.

This corner was occupied by the Harmon Drug Store in boom days, which as far as boom day buildings went, was passable, but since that building has been torn down, it has been merely a frog pond and a breeding place for mosquitoes, as water stood in the former excavations of that building all the time.

Inasmuch as it is right across from the Texas & Pacific railroad station, and on the Bankhead Highway, its location is considered one of the best in Ranger, and it will add more to Ranger's Main street, than any building that has been built in some time.

CONTESTS CLOSE FOR JUDGES AND TAX ASSESSOR

BY CHOPSIE S. WELSH

In a majority of the races for county offices it will take the final count to tell the results. The vote was unusually heavy at all precincts, with candidates and their friends not letting up in the work until the polls were closed.

In the governor's race, Moody maintained his early lead and as the count progressed increased it over both of his leading opponents, Ferguson and Lynch Davidson.

In several of the county races there was a number of upsets, and a second primary will be needed to decide several of the races in which there were more than two candidates.

The greatest interest was manifested in the contest for county judge between Oscar Chastain and the present incumbent, Judge Ed S. Pritchard, and at midnight last night not more than 200 votes separated the two men. Pritchard had a slight lead over Chastain. The two men fought to the last ditch on the hustings.

In the sheriff's race it appeared as if Hart had the present incumbent beaten for more than 200 votes. This race was an upset to the talent. Early indications were that Edwards would be the winner, and unless there is a great change in the count, Hart will be the next sheriff.

In the county attorney's race, Sparks is in the lead, with Lawrence second and Shropshire third. It will take a second primary to decide the winner.

For county clerk, Woods had a plurality of votes, with Jones second and Irwin a poor third.

In the county treasurer's race, it looks as Sue and Cooper will have to run over. These two are in the lead with neither having any chance of getting a majority.

The vote generally over the county was lighter than two years ago, according to the records kept by this paper.

In the tax assessor's race, it is Bryant and Herrington, with no chance for Collins. In this race, whoever Collins's friends flock to, he will be the winner.

For congressman, Tom Blanton had his opponent beat 40 city blocks. The Abilene man it appears will win in a walk in the district.

Floterial representative honors, it appears, will go to Gilbert, who made a campaign in Eastland county while Black remained at home.

Tax collector honors will go to Hearn. Hearn has a healthy lead that will be hard to overcome.

In the appellate court races, Davenport and Littler have good majorities over their opponents, with little prospects of that lead being overcome in either one of the other counties in this district.

For county commissioner of this precinct, V. V. Cooper, the present incumbent has Ed Castleberry beaten by a large vote.

Russell Scott May Cheat Ropes, New Confession

By United Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 24.—Russell Scott, under sentence to hang for the murder of Joseph Maurer, in a drug store hold up, today saw fresh hopes of escaping the gallows through the confession of his brother Robert, that he, Robert, fired the fatal shot.

Robert's confession stated that Russell had nothing to do with the murder except to help his brother escape. Robert's confession came as a startling climax to one of the strangest murder cases in Chicago. Robert recently pleaded guilty to the murder, but swore from the witness stand that he did not fire the shot which sent Maurer to meet his death.

MORE HOGS ARE NEEDED. Prospects are the brightest they have been in Texas for 25 years for the harvest of bumper feed crops, corn and sorghum grains. The question of what to do with the heavy crop of feedstuff can be easily answered and should be carried out. The farmers of Texas, and especially those of Eastland county should plant more hogs. They should feed more cattle. The world needs hogs. Despite the drop in other farm products, the price of hogs still hovers around $12.50 to $14 a hundred pounds on the Fort Worth market. The farmers of Eastland county should market their sorghum grains and corn on the hoof. They are insured large supplies, and if marketed on the hoof, they can return to the soil that produced the bumper crops fertilization through the manure derived from the animals fed.

Not only does the world need hogs but fat muttons always bring a good price, and generally the supply is inadequate to meet the demand. Wethers are selling around $8 a hundred and lambs from $10 a hundred pounds up. These prices were for the average run usually received. The farmers of Eastland county have a market right at their door. They can leave their farms early in the morning and reach the Fort Worth market with their trucks loaded with hogs, sheep or fat calves in time for the sales that day and get back home early in the evening. There is very little danger of the price of hogs dropping to any appreciable degree. Business surveys made by such banks as the National Bank of Commerce in New York reveal that industries generally are active, and that despite summer dullness, the steel industry shows little signs of much of a let-up. The steel industry is considered the barometer of the business world. The machine tool industry, according to that review, is good. The automobile industry is holding up fairly well despite the fact that preparations for new models and other seasonal adjustments.

The railroads are improving their facilities to handle a large autumn business. Money rates range from 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 per cent for commercial paper in the east. Ninety-day acceptance rates range lower than that. This speaks volumes for the healthfulness of business.

The farmers of Eastland and other counties in the oil belt, and in West Texas can derive enough profit from marketing their surplus sorghum grain and corn crops on the hoof to make their cotton and other crops clear money to be banked. The industrial workers in the east must be fed. Texas must feed them, and the farmers of Texas should do the feeding. The farmer who raises his own meat, meal and other supplies can ride in autos without going into debt for them. Hogs and poultry are known to be mortgage lifters and children of Mother Prosperity and Old Man Diversification.

In addition to raising more hogs, the farmers can raise more turkeys, more chickens, and at the same time feed a few head of dairy and beef cattle. The farmer who markets his surplus grain crops on the hoof derives profits from two sources. This is especially noted in hogs and sheep. When you sell hogs fed on kaffir, milo and other sorghum grains along with a little corn, which is unnecessary, he is getting from $12 to $14 a hundred pounds for it, and at the same time can use the fertilizers derived in enriching his land that is used for the production of cotton and other crops.

Officers have been trying for a week to get in touch with this man and had previously said, they believed there was no such man Hanger would disclose what the "mystery" witness had gone to see Norris about.

Shortage Felt Of Texaco Gas In The County

At noon Saturday Eastland county was practically out of Texaco Gasoline, on account of the big shortage in that product. Eastland was expecting two cars to arrive in the afternoon, and Ranger's supply of Texaco was being hauled from there. Cisco, Breckenridge, Strawn and Ranger, are all out, but according to Dick Elliott, of Ranger, wholesale distributor of Texaco products, there will be no effects of the shortage felt here, and no matter how far the hauling has to be done, the customers will be supplied. Increase in the sale of Texaco gasoline and oils, comes as a direct result of their national advertising campaign on "The New and Better Texaco Gasoline" and up to the fifteenth of this month their business over the United States showed a 33-1-3 per cent increase. To this great increase is due the shortage in their gasoline that now confronts them. The "Filling Station" and Petroleum Marketer, of June 25 states in an article written by Kent Riddley, that no other company in the world could have done what the Texas Company has done in this short period of time in introducing a new gasoline. It says that "it put over a new gasoline with a bang, sometimes with discomfery to some competitors, but open and above board, on a quality product basis and through advertising." From the Gulf of Mexico to the Great Lakes, and from the Atlantic to the Rockies, a national advertising campaign was carried on. Banners were displayed at all of their filling stations, every piece of equipment was used in advertising, newspapers carried full page advertisements, and national magazines told the story of Texaco, almost simultaneously—the result is the shortage that exists today.

'Ma's' Laundress Pleads Guilty to Vagrancy Charge

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 24.—If Gov. "Ma" Ferguson of Texas hasn't a laundress, it isn't because Susie Thompson, negro laundress, wasn't willing to pay $39.90 for the fee, postage and stationery to obtain the position, Susie revealed in municipal court here today. And the intimation that the Texas governor may have had in need of a good wash lady cost Lucy Ely, negro, up for vagrancy charges in the same court, $100. According to Susie, Lucy came to her several days ago as a special representative of the Lone Star state and offered Susie—admitted "best wash lady who is in a job washing Mrs. Ferguson's clothes. Lucy, in a moment of assurance, said her ancestors were slaves of the Ferguson family, according to Susie, complainant. Consequently, there was passed the $39.90 in fees.

Napoleon And Jesus Exerted Most Influence

GENEVA, July 22.—Jesus Christ and Napoleon Bonaparte have been voted by members of the Young Men's Christian association in 50 different countries as the greatest characters in history. The same young men have voted Premier Mussolini of Italy and Henry Ford, the two greatest men now living. The vote was taken in questionnaires sent by the world committee of the Young Men's Christian association last year to members of the organization all over the world, as part of the preparation for the nineteenth world conference of the Y. M. C. A., to be held at Helsingfors, Finland, Aug. 1 to 6. Replies came back from 50 countries written in 222 languages. In addition to naming the world's greatest men, the answers revealed a belief that patriotism holds a more prominent part in the mind of youth than religion. Existing political methods were severely criticized. The general opinion was expressed that there is no real Christian nation in the world today. The reports from England found that personality is now the dominating influence of the age upon boys. Almost without exception the thousands and thousands of replies sent in gave the first places in history to Christ and Napoleon. Other outstanding figures of the past who received many votes were Alexander the Great, St. Francis Drake, Pasteur, and Abraham Lincoln.

VISION OF SUDDEN WEALTH PROVES TO BE ILLUSION

LICHTENBURG, West Transvaal.—Glistening vision of sudden wealth from diamond claims having faded to the drab reality of sorting worthless pebbles, a considerable share of the 20,000 hopefuls who pegged out claims in May near here are straggling back to their jobs wiser, poorer men. Their ragged unshaven aspect is a far cry from the day when they lined up fifteen deep and a mile long awaiting the signal which sent them racing into the fields. Except for a few lucky finds the average earnings of European and natives alike have been less than $3.00 a week. Even the barest necessities of life have been extremely expensive, and water used in the process of washing out the pebbles has cost anywhere up to 60 cents a barrel.

Manatt is said to be in a serious condition. The men overpowered Manatt and were making their way to the prison wall when Guard Hanson, colored, opened fire. Th two killed were Ernest Hardwick, serving 10 to 15 years sentence, and Robert Edwards, serving 10 years for robbery. The four other men were recaptured.

Foreign Stars Now Threaten U. S. Athletes

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK.—Form shown by young foreign athletes in the big French and English tennis and golf championships brought witnesses back with a distinct warning to America—"Look out and get busy!"

The long continuation of successes that have been scored since the war by American athletes in international competitions and the possession of such stars as Bobby Jones, Bill Tilden, Bill Johnston, Vinnie Richards, Helen Wills and Glenna Collett have caused American athletics to doze into a trance of false security.

With the exception of Bobby Jones, who need fear no golf player in the world as long as he maintains his present game, the United States hasn't a single outstanding athlete in these sports who is not in acute danger of a foreign rival.

French Strong

Frequent mention has been made recently of the strength of the French Davis Cup team. Rene Lacoste, Jean Borotra, Henri Cochet, Paul Feret and Jacques Brugnon are not only a team that will be a decided threat for the cup but they are individuals, the first three of which have a game at present good enough to beat Tilden if he proves this season not to be the super-player of two years ago.

Borotra apparently has recovered from an injured back he suffered during the winter as there was no indication of physical disability in his match against Howard Kinsey when he won the Wimbledon tennis title.

There is no disposition to predict that the men's national championship at Germantown will be a three-out-of-four French affair as it was at Wimbledon and in Paris. The draw will have much to say about that. If those four or five Frenchmen should be scattered around in the four sections, however, it will take all the best tennis of Tilden, Johnston and Richards to subdue them.

Helen Wills

Helen Wills, who until this season, was looked upon as the only rival of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and a sure world's champion of the future has others on her hands now.

Senorita Alvarez, the Spanish champion and Mlle. Katrinka Bonman, the Holland champion, who may be seen at Forest Hills are two prospects just as good as the American champion was two years ago. They haven't quite as much pace and experience as Miss Wills but they have more strokes, better execution and much more speed.

The effects of the operation she was forced to undergo in Paris may handicap Miss Wills but on the other hand she may be a better player as she had been handicapped for a long time before the operation with a feeling of fatigue she couldn't diagnose.

Another star athlete in France, who is certain to be much in prominence in a short time is Mlle. Thione de la Chateau, the seventeen year old girl who won the French golf championship by beating Miss Cecil Leitch, who later won the British championship.

Foreign Stars

Miss Mary K. Browne, who is equally competent as a critic of tennis and golf saw the French girl in the championship and enthused about her.

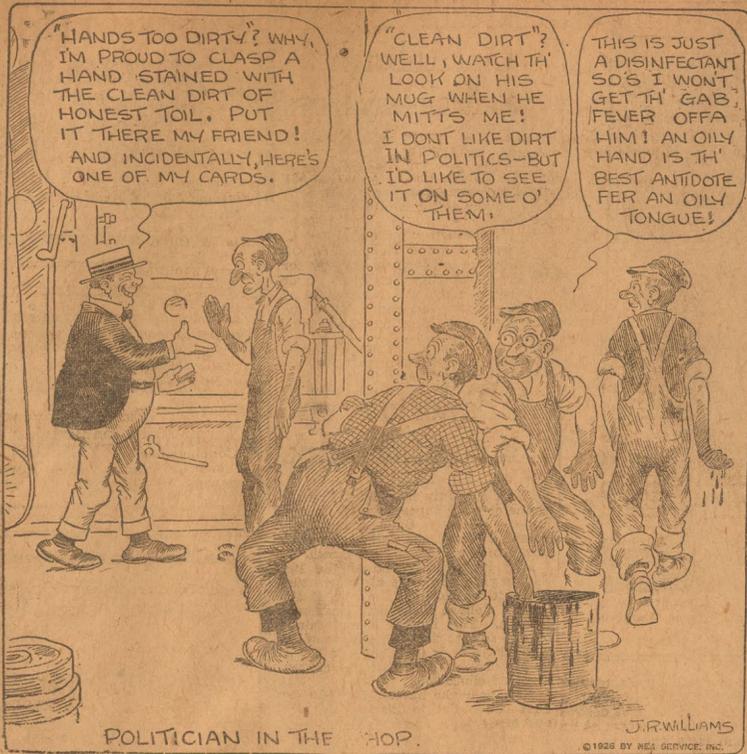

"She is one of the finest prospects I have ever seen," Miss Browne said. "Her form is perfect and her game is sound. All she needs is more strength for distance and more tournament experience and she ought to be a champion."

England also has two great youngsters coming along in tennis, Miss Betty Nuthall, a fifteen-year old girl and H. W. Austin, a young Cambridge student, eighteen years old.

Miss Nuthall is a pretty little miss, who has not fallen for the boyish bob and who wears long tresses hanging down her shoulders, somewhat mindful of the Helen Wills of the "pig-tail" days. She has the handicap of the underhand service, so popular with many British women but some of the older girls are training her to use the overhand.

Young Austin is a brother of the former Miss Joan Austin, who married Randolph Lycett, one of the veteran British Davis Cup stars and he has learned a lot from his brother-in-law. He is a most promising youngster with a game that is very much American in style and aggressiveness.

The Olympic games are coming on in two years and foreign critics are not bashful in predicting that the United States is going to be beaten in Amsterdam. Foreign nations are talking seriously about making plans for the next games but apparently the American officials believe that all that will be necessary will be to get the boys on some kind of a boat, send them over and let them knock over the foreigners.

MY FUNNIEST SCREEN EXPERIENCE
By NEIL HAMILTON

Sometime luck intercedes in behalf of art and the result in an unexpected bit of screen realism.

In one of the scenes of Herbert Brenon's production of the new Paramount picture, "Bean Geste", I was supposed to run along the ramparts of the deserted desert fort, peering into the faces of the dead sentinels who, even in death, are still holding their positions on the battlements, their rifles clutched in their hands. At one figure I stopped while a close-up was taken of the sentinel's face and my own behind him. Mr. Brenon had taken one shot but was not satisfied with the expression of the actor's face who was playing the part.

"Remember that you have died in agony," he shouted to the actor. "Try to look that way. Ready—Camera!"

Again the cameras began turning. Suddenly the actor's face became distorted in a grimace of acute pain and a stifled yell escaped his lips. A hornet had attacked the sentinel from the rear.

"Fine!" shouted Brenon. "Hold it!"

With the butt of my gun I brushed away the insect and the actor, in spite of the pain, held his expression. The result was a photographic gem. Mr. Brenon's suggestion that the other sentinels be provided with the same stimulus was met, however, with a threat of insurrection and had to be abandoned.

Here's another outstanding mark of the orthodox Virginian. With him the clan ties are unbreakable. He never forgets who his kith are, even to the ninety-ninth degree of cousinship. He lives in the shade of his family tree and he's loyal to every branch of it. Anytime let him but meet up with another Virginian and immediately he is tracing the ramifications and intricacies of his own line with a view to ascertaining where the other fellow's line crosses it, and if it does—and it generally does—he'll claim kin with him forever after.—Irving S. Cobb, in Hearst's International Cosmopolitan.

Excavators Find Beautiful Works Of Maya Columns

WASHINGTON.—New light will be thrown upon ancient American civilization when Carnegie institution excavators resume the uncovering and restoration of what is said to be the most beautiful example of Maya temple architecture, recently located at the site of the ancient Maya capital of Chichen Itza, in Northeastern Yucatan.

Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley, director of the expedition, who has just reached the United States on his return from Yucatan, in a report made public today told of the unexpected discovery of the temple, while engaged in completing the restoration of the "Temple of Warriors" and the "North-West Colonnade." The schedule of works, Dr. Morley said called for the completion of the restoration before the seasonal rains set in.

While examining a column imbedded in a border of the pyramid which supports the Temple of Warriors, the excavators discovered evidence of the existence of a beautiful temple of an earlier time which the pyramid builders had incorporated into the structure of the pyramid itself. Stone columns of this buried temple comprised feather serpents decorated in vivid colors of red, yellow, green and black.

Mural Paintings.

Further digging in the pyramid mass disclosed a side wall which was covered with mural paintings preserved in almost their original condition. These murals were found only after the rainy season had commenced. For fear that the storms of the next four months might destroy these paintings, if they were left exposed, the wall was covered to await the coming of the next dry season when a careful investigation will be made of these new aboriginal splendors.

The ancient Maya metropolis covers a space of more than nine square miles. It was abandoned in the middle of the fifteenth century and its buildings fell into disuse. Slowly, the mighty Yucatan forest, held at bay only by the unceasing efforts of man, began rapidly to advance upon the city. Giant trees sprang up and destroyed the buildings, until the city was completely ruined.

Mexican Government.

In the spring of 1923 a plan for an archeological study of the ruins of Chichen Itza, was presented to the Mexican government. The plan was approved and a contract signed giving exclusive right to the Carnegie institution to study the ancient Maya capital for a period of 10 years beginning Feb. 1, 1924.

During the 1926 season the excavators gave much attention to the Temple of Warriors, the excavation of which was begun the season before. Covering more than a half acre of ground, this edifice is said to be the most elaborately sculptured in the city. Supporting it is a pyramid 133 square at the base, which rises in four terraces to a height of 38 feet. Contained in Dr. Morley's report is an account of the digging out of the Northwest Colonnade which passes in front of the pyramid supporting the Temple of Warriors. In this colonnade were 59 square columns each sculptured on all four sides with figures of priests, rulers or warriors. One colonnade alone had an aggregate total of 236 sculptured figures.

Resemble Thrones.

Two platforms were discovered which resemble thrones in the excavation of this spot, built against its back wall. Both measure 16 feet long, 12 feet wide and three feet high and are reached by a stairway of four stone steps. This discovery, Dr. Morley said, was one of the most important features brought to light in 1926. Intertwining rattlesnakes were sculptured in the southern throne and also a procession of warriors.

Although three years have been occupied by rapid explorations of the Maya district, only a small portion of the city has been actually excavated. So large is the extent of this ancient city, that it has been necessary to concentrate excavation work in certain spots. This was done to enable excavators to secure more definite results within a reasonable period of time.

Germany Spends Money Developing Air Commerce

By FREDERICK KUH (United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN.—While other governments are spending fabulous sums on military and naval aviation, Germany is concentrating entirely on the development of commercial aviation.

Forty-five per cent of the total capital invested in the recently-created German aviation corporation "Lufthansa" is in the hands of the government. The remaining 55 per cent is divided between the Junkers company and the Deutscher Aero-Lloyd, whose amalgamation brought the present trust being. Although the exact total of the trust's capitalization has not been announced, it is authoritatively estimated at twelve to twenty million marks.

Both federal and state governments of Germany, will be represented on the corporation's board of directors. Meanwhile, the contract awarded to the Junkers Company in Persia (whereby many Germans hope to realize in the air the Berlin-Bagdad dream) which failed to come true on land has been ratified by the Persian parliament. It grants a five year monopoly to German aviation. Leaders of British aviation are reported to be disquieted by this expansion of German aerial routes into the Near East.

Reliable estimates of the aviation subsidies to be granted by the German Government during 1926 agree on the figure of 30,000,000 marks.

As a rule, these subventions take the form of a government bonus of approximately 2 marks for every kilometer flown, while the companies' operating costs are about 2.90 per kilometer. This clearly indicates that commercial aviation is still far from being a paying enterprise. More than two-thirds of the costs must be met by German taxpayers.

In the first eleven months of 1925, Junkers airplanes also are said to have flown 4,500,000 air kilometers. Junkers and Aero-Lloyd together are believed to have covered a distance exceeding 5,000,000 kilometers. This would yield a direct federal bonus of 10,000 marks.

Last Wild Horse Round Up Is Now Underway in West

By United Press.

ELMONTON, Alta.—Last roundup of wild horses in the west is now in progress on the range areas of southern Alberta between Medicine Hat and Standard. More than 10,000 animals will be driven into one central corral before the end of summer, according to an announcement by the provincial department of agriculture which is superintending the roundup.

SESQUI PLANS WORLD'S GREATEST AIR CONTESTS

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—Nineteen prize winning contests for the latest aircraft developed here and abroad will feature the National Air Races, to be held here Sept. 4 to 14. In what air officials declare will be the greatest meet in the history of flying.

According to announcement from Hollinshead M. Taylor, chairman of the Sesqui-Centennial committee in charge of the meet, the largest planes built for civilian use, as well as the smallest will be entered in the various competitions.

"Machines carrying a ton of cargo and many passengers, as well as the smallest planes in the world, some with only the power of a motorcycle engine, will be among the entries," he said.

A flying circus, a feature never before attempted in an aviation meet, will add thrills for the spectators. Assurance from the aviation branches of the army and navy of cooperation in the meet have been received.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS ON MONDAY NIGHT

Ranger school board will meet Monday night at eight o'clock. All trustees are requested to be present as this will be a very important meeting. With the new Central Ward Building imminent and the Juniors College clamoring to be a reality before school begins in September, a most strenuous session is in prospect.

As a man thinketh so is he in bad. Nothing's more painful than people who consider pleasure a duty.

Two fool jackasses—now get this dope—Were tied together with a piece of rope. Said one to the other, "You come my way, While I take a nibble at this new-mown hay."

"I won't," said the other, "You come with me, For I, too, have some hay you see." So they got nowhere; just pawed up dirt, And oh, by golly, how that rope did hurt.

Then they faced about, those stubborn mules, And said, "We are just like human fools Let's together, I'll go your way, Then come with me, and we'll both eat hay!"

Well, they ate their hay and liked it too, And swore to be comrades good and true. As the sun went down they were heard to say, "Ah, this is the end of a perfect day."

Now get this lesson—don't let it pass: Learn this one thing from the poor jackass: We must pull together—it's the only way, To put Ranger on the map and put it to stay.

This Cow Thrives On Diet of Nails And Cartridges

By United Press. KANSAS CITY, Kan., July 19.—A cow with a goat's appetite was found at a packing plant here when a Hereford was butchered. Articles found in the cow's stomach included: Eight brass shotgun shell caps, 14 pistol cartridge shells, 10 wire nails, one wire staple, one piece of saw blade, and scraps of brass, iron and steel. The metal in the cow's stomach weighed one and a quarter pounds. The animal was in perfect health, and had been approved by a government inspector before sent to the slaughter house.

Preacher Gets Job of Taster of English Ales

By United Press. CLITHERO, England.—The exalted position of ale-taster to the local court of Clarke and Mitton Manor, near here, has gone to a canon of the Church of England. The functions of the ale-taster, however, have become only nominal and the Vicar of Mitton, who was chosen for the position will not have to neglect his church duties to perform the duties of the new job, thrust upon him by admiring townspeople. The court was established more than 300 years ago and at that time had the entire legal administration of the community in its hands. The position of ale-taster was the most favored of all passed out by the body in the old days, for each bar keeper brewed his own ale and the court taster had to pass on all samples before it could be offered for public consumption.

ANTI-DRUNKARD LAW PROPOSED IN NORWAY

By United Press. OSLO—Norwegian temperance advocates are urging Parliament to enact an "anti-drunkard" law whereby the wives and children of men who spend too large a share of their earnings may find redress. They are basing their demand upon the successful results of the operation of a similar law which has been in effect in Sweden for the last two years.

Under the law they are seeking to establish, every town would have an officially appointed agent of the government to whom wives of drunkards could go for help and advice. The agent's first task is to try to persuade the husband to join a temperance union. Failing this, the agent has the power to order the offender sent to a special for a "drink cure." If he refuses the cure, he is jailed.

Statue To Ford Is Proposed In Rio Janeiro

By United Press. RIO DE JANEIRO.—Although Henry Ford has never been in Brazil, his name will perhaps go down in history alongside that of General Rondon and other pioneers who are today pushing the vast line of Brazilian wilderness further back from the sea-coast. A newspaper in the city of Uberabinha, state of Minas Geraes, has originated the idea of erecting a statue to Henry Ford in that town. The editor of the newspaper got in touch with all the Ford agencies throughout Brazil, and stressed his view that it being the starting point for all travel into the westernmost states of Goyaz and Matto Grosso, the city of Uberabinha should possess as a traditional landmark, a statue in honor "of the man who devised the handy machine that has conquered Brazil's wilderness." The idea met with general approval.

Defaulted Debts Of Confederacy To Be Discussed

LONDON (United Press).—Defaulted debts of the Southern States of the United States, international distribution and consumption of coal and worldwide trade problems are expected to be the principal points of discussion at the general conference of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce opening in Hull September 23rd and 24th. At its meeting in April, the Association adopted resolutions calling upon the Foreign Office to call to the attention of the American Ambassador at London the fact that the loans of British people to the Southern States previous to the Civil War had not been settled and asking that the resolution be communicated to the Government at Washington. It is believed that the cause of the British bondholders against the Southern States will again be revived at the coming session. The Association contends that the eight defaulting states, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia and South Carolina "are now wealthy and should meet their obligations." It is expected in the event the question is revived in September, that the Association will stand on its previous attitude that debts contracted by the States between the attack on Fort Sumter and the proclamation of the close of the Civil War will not be considered.

FLYING "FLIVVER" NEXT DECLARES SPANIARD WHO INVENTED NEW AIRPLANE

By KEITH JONES United Press Staff Correspondent. LONDON.—British aeronautical experts who have witnessed the performance of the new auto-gyro or "windmill" airplane designed by Senor de la Cierva, the Spanish inventor, are looking forward to the approaching day of the flying automobile. Cierva himself, and A. V. Roe, head of the airplane concern which has just completed one new auto-gyro to the order of the British Air Ministry and is at work on two others, are both optimists that airplane design is at last on the right track for the development of a machine that can land safely on a country road or a tennis court, the question of vertical ascent, however, has yet to be solved.

From the point of view of the development of a flying automobile in the near future, much depends upon experiments which will be conducted at Southampton in August with a 25-hp. horsepower auto-gyro now in course of construction.

Experiments "If it is as successful as we expect it to be," said Cierva in an interview with the United Press, "long studies will have been taken in the direction of the development of a flying automobile, for the difficult problem of a safe and practically vertical landing from any height will have been solved. There yet remains, however, the problem of vertical ascent. "This admittedly presents a number of problems that we have not yet solved, but theoretically, at any rate, if the same power which now causes the machine to rise by dragging it through the air with a tractor propeller, were applied directly to rotating the overhead vanes of the auto-gyro, the whole machine would rise vertically. This transference of the power from the propeller to the vanes is by no means unsolvable. Its solution constitutes the next stage of experimentation with the auto-gyro and if we succeed the day of the safe flying automobile will definitely have arrived."

Sold for $2,000. Such a machine, said Cierva—that is, one of 25 to 50 horsepower carrying one or two persons—if turned out on a mass production basis could be sold in the neighborhood of $2,000. Meanwhile the British Air Ministry is awaiting with interest the result of tests of the two other machines which are now being built to its orders and which will also be ready in August or early September. Both of these have been designated to carry service, air-cooled radial engines of approximately 200 horsepower. By the specification of a standard service engine officials of the Air Ministry expect to be able to obtain valuable data as to the performance of the auto-gyro as compared with service airplanes of the standard variety equipped with the same sort of power plants.

The British built auto-gyro which was privately demonstrated at Southampton, June 23rd, and publicly demonstrated at the Royal Air Force pageant July 2nd, is practically identical with first machines shown in England in the Fall of 1925. It consists simply of a standard Avro airplane fuselage and undercarriage and a 130-horsepower rotary motor. A post has been erected over the center of balance of the machine, and four freely rotating vanes attached to the top of the post. The new machines now building, however, have been designed throughout to meet the special requirements of an airplane of the auto-gyro type.

Well Equipped. "The undercarriage, for instance," said Cierva, "have been made very wide and very strong and are equipped with new devices for absorbing the shock of landing. In addition the aileron attachments used on the present machine for lateral balancing have been dispensed with in one of the new machines, in view of our belief that with the wind-mill form of airplane correct balance of the machine is automatically maintained by the gyroscopic action of the rotating vanes. Practically all external bracing of the machines have been eliminated and their lines have been beautifully 'cleaned-up.'"

In the present form of auto-gyro no power is applied to the vanes of the machine. It climbs or maintains its altitude in the air by virtue of the downward in much the same manner and at much the same speed of a parachute, though if the pilot desires he can glide the machine down at an angle and land it in the same way that an ordinary airplane is landed. Cierva said that he was not yet making any definite plans but that he hoped to demonstrate the machine in the United States and in South America some time next year.

GOLD RUSH TOWN IN CALIFORNIA IS DYING

By United Press. BRANDY CITY, Cal., July 24.—Brandy City has gone the way of many another of California's old-time mining camps. The town died hard. The contract with the government for operation of a postoffice here expired July 1, and Uncle Sam didn't renew it. With the discontinuance of mail service, the mail carrier moved away. The teacher preceded him by a month when school was closed. Now all that remains of a once flourishing town with hotels, saloons and stores, is one family, a few buildings and the sombre digger's that first put Brandy City on the map.

CORINNE GRIFFITH HAS COMEDY ROLE IN "Mlle. Modiste"

For the second time in her career, Corinne Griffith assumes the character of a comedienne. Her initial venture into the field of the comical occurred in "Classified."

She has a distinct comedy role in "Mlle. Modiste," her latest First National release, which is booked for today at the Lamb theatre. The picture is an adaptation of the famous Victor Herbert masterpiece.

In "Mlle. Modiste" she brings all of her pleasant charm into play as the irresistible model, sales woman and designer at the fashionable establishment of Mme. Claire in Paris. Later she becomes the manager of the shop and as "Mlle. Modiste" becomes the talk of the boulevards. Miss Griffith has surrounded herself with a cast of brilliant players and has seen to it that the atmosphere of the French fashion centers is maintained.

Miss Griffith's personal wardrobe numbers many gorgeous modish and theatrical gowns, most of which she personally designed, and during the length of the play scores of smart frocks, coats and evening gowns are worn by beautiful models. An elaborate costume pageant is but a portion of the colorful background for the fast moving story which is alive with mythical situations and surprises.

Norman Kerry is seen as Etienne, sweetheart of Pifi (Miss Griffith). Willard Louis assumes the comedy role of Hiram Bent, American hatter in Paris. Dorothy Cumming, Rose Dione, Paulette Duval, Vic Potel, Mario Carillo, Dorothy Dunbar, Tony Merlo, and Otto Lederer are prominent in support. Robert Z. Leonard directed Miss Griffith in this latest First National picture.

"Red" Lingle Holds Hitting Lions To Few Hits, 5 to 4

"Red" Lingle, of the salesmen had the heavy hitting Lions club of the Ranger Business Men's League, at his mercy, in Friday's game at Nitro Park, when the salesmen won 5 to 4.

The game was by far the fastest that has been played in this league and six and one-half innings were rounded out before dark.

Umpire Major George Nourse, in his characteristic way ran the game as only he can with a minimum of bickering and dispute.

Calvert of the Lions scored the longest hit of the game, a triple to deep center, which might have been stretched into a home run, had he not injured his knee before the game and it failed him on third.

Cox pitching for the Lions was in good form and more than once mowed the Salesmen down in order. His fast balls caused batter several times to let the third strike go by, not attempting to strike. The game was closely played. There were few errors, and both teams showed remarkable team work.

Score by Innings: Lions 110 020 0-4 6 1 Salesmen 201 020 x-5 8 3

This afternoon at 4 o'clock, the Salesmen and American Legion, the teams tied for first place in the standing of the teams for the first half of the schedule, will stage a playoff to decide which team will retain first honors for the first half. A good game is expected. This will be the final game in or around Ranger, Sunday, so a good crowd is expected to be on hand to watch the run off game.

GARDEN CITY, Long Island, July 24.—Mac Smith, Lake Field professional, today won the Metropolitan golf championship. He defeated Gene Sarazen, four strokes in their play-off of their prolonged tie.

In winning the championship, Smith turned a score of 66 which again broke the course record, he made yesterday, when he turned in a score of 67.

Prosperous Ever Since: Since then Miss Pickford—or more properly, Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks—has tasted nothing but success. She had the touch of Midas. She organized the Mary Pickford Company, of which she is the principal owner, in 1918. Today it is one of the best money-makers in the business and most of the profits go to Mary—in addition to the salary she pays herself.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? MILLIONS FOR MARYS BASEBALL

MOVIE FOLK HOLD IT A SURE SIGN OF GOOD LUCK

MARY ASTOR, MARY PHILBIN, MARY PICKFORD, MARY MEALLISTER, MARY BRIAN

By DAN THOMAS NEA Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—What's in a name? Millions—if your name happens to be Mary.

Out here in the film colony they're superstitious about names. And especially about Marys. If a film aspirant is named Mary, they figure her battle is half won.

Mary, as the song used to say, is a grand old name. Nothing fancy; just an every day, staple name, unpretentious and plain.

But it has it all over the Gwendolyns and Lynettes and Vyvians and Odettes. If Mary Smith comes to Hollywood to enter the movies, she'd better think twice before she changes her name to Dolores del Pippinor. Few Marys ever fail in the movies.

Perhaps the queen of them all is Mary Pickford. "America's sweetheart" made her bow as an actress in her native city of Toronto, Can., at the age of five. Her first appearance in motion pictures was with D. W. Griffith in 1912.

and the makeup box—have wiped out all traces of the smoky city. Mary's first bit in pictures was at Universal in 1921 when she was only 15. Now she has a starring contract with the same studio.

If you want to know what's in a name, ask any of those whom I have mentioned. None of them would give up "Mary" even for the proverbial "pot of gold."

From Chicks to Stardom: From taking care of little chicks on an Illinois poultry farm, Mary Astor has risen to a place among filmdom's notables. Success has met her at every turn in the road.

She made her debut in motion pictures in New York, playing in a series of one-reelers. With the signing of a contract with Famous Players-Lasky several years ago, Mary's future was assured. Her most recent appearance is with John Barrymore in "Don Juan," having been loaned to Warner Brothers by First National, whose contract she now holds.

"It was just in the stars that I was to get this part." That's what Mary McAllister thinks of her good luck charm.

She played opposite Harold "Red" Grange in "The Halfback," which has just been completed. Many of Hollywood's picture stars sought this role with the famous grid hero but it was just another case of a "Mary" victory.

Started When Only 15: Mary Philbin absorbed considerable quantities of soft coal soot while attending grade and high schools in Chicago. But Hollywood's sunshine—

MUTT AND JEFF CARTOON MADE FOR DOLL'S HOUSE

By United Press. PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—Bud Fisher is at work on a miniature "Mutt and Jeff" cartoon which is to be placed in Sir Neville Wilkinson's famous doll's house, "Titania's Palace," which is now being exhibited at the sesqui-centennial exposition in Philadelphia.

The work has to be done under a microscope, as the scale of the "Palace" is one inch to the foot, and the completed picture, frame and all, will be little larger than a postage stamp. The smallest picture in the Palace is an engraving of George Washington, which measures less than half an inch in diameter.

Cisco Negress Stabs Lover During Dance

Because her sweetheart had danced with another woman was the excuse given to sheriff's officers after they had arrested a colored woman in a dance hall north of Cisco, Friday night.

Deputy Sheriff Virgil Foster went to the hall on a call that a man was bleeding to death from stabs with a pocket knife and found the man lying on the ground with several stabs in the body and neck. He was rushed to a Cisco hospital while the woman was placed in the county jail.

"Dad" Carmen Back From Tennessee To Cast Ballot

"Dad" Carmen, 77 year old Times newsboy, has come home, to vote "for Ma," he said after a six weeks visit in Hartsville, Tenn. to the home folks.

"Dad" is a familiar figure, year in and year out to Ranger people, at his place in the front of the Ranger postoffice or on the streets and counts his friends by the hundreds. He has been selling papers here for several years and says that while that country looked fine, lots of wheat, oats and tobacco, he likes this country best, as its more open and an old man can make a better living here.

"Dad" is always on the job, winter or summer, and generally has a dog trotting by his side, and always has a word of welcome and a "Thank you" for his patrons.

Commoners Of England Get Sleepy

LONDON.—Night sessions of the House of Commons frequently make members so sleepy that they do things which they do not wish to do.

At the conclusion of a lengthy night session recently, which lasted long after 2 a. m., the house found itself in the very embarrassing position of having passed a law which it did not want passed just then.

Without intention of doing so, the house passed the Smoke Abatement Bill, designed to correct some of the "smoky evils" of London, without discussion and apparently without the knowledge of members whose votes made the bill a law.

Prime Minister Baldwin later asked the house to cancel the vote on the bill, that it might later be given proper consideration in the chamber.

Procrastination Invades England House of Commons

LONDON.—Governmental procrastination in England is beginning to rival that of the Orient, according to a recent statement in the House of Commons by Ronald McNeill, Financial Secretary to the Treasury.

McNeill pointed out that more than four years ago a committee, headed by Lord Meston, was appointed to investigate the grant system in education. An immediate report by the committee was expected immediately but each month the report was asked for. It was promised "in another month."

The final meeting of the committee was called in March 1923 and during the summer of 1924 a com-

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION PRECINCT 1

The convention of democrats in Precinct 1, Eastland to elect delegates to the County Convention was held Saturday afternoon in 83 district court room with a packed house when Milburn McCarty, county chairman, called the meeting to order.

Proceedings opened with the nomination of a chairman to take charge of the meeting, to which the chairman called for names. H. P. Brelsford moved that Frank Judkins be appointed, which was seconded by Judge Hill. Judge O. Funderburk rising to a point of order said that he understood that nominations were called for and that other names might be added to that of Judkins.

Chairman McCarty said that he understood he called for names after which Funderburk named Scott W. Key. On a rising vote Key was elected by 74 to 43. Frank Judkin was then appointed secretary.

Mr. Key in opening the business session said that he was informed the meeting was called to select delegates to the county convention which will be held in Eastland on Saturday next.

H. P. Brelsford moved that to expedite matters the chairman name a committee of five to select 25 names to represent the precinct. Brelsford said that this would save time. Mr. Scott Key then named Wilbourne Collier, Mrs. Rosenquist, John Turner, O. C. Funderburk and Judge Hill to retire and select the names of the delegates. Judge Hill refused to be a member and the others proceeded without him.

This committee returned with the names of the following who were unanimously elected to be the precinct delegates at the county convention: O. C. and Mrs. Funderburk, Mrs. J. C. Day, Scott W. Key, W. B. and Mrs. Collier, E. McCollough, Luther Bean, Elzo Bean, L. C. Brown, T. L. Overby, Mrs. P. L. Parker, Mrs. John Mayes, J. W. Turner, W. J. Barnes, J. R. Tourists Camps And Open Roads Call to Autoists

By RENA B. CAMPBELL
Its a far cry from the gypsy wagons, with their scrawny horses, and their multitude of dogs and children to the modern gasoline caravan of today, but what one loses in picturesque-ness they gain in speed and comfort.

Modern gypsy wagons are equipped with all the comforts of home, and large enough to accommodate the whole family and then some. A man's domain, when he loads his family in and starts his car, is as far penetrating as his time and money will allow and his car is his castle.

Most every one has a little bit of tramp or gypsy in them. Very few cars are deaf to the call of the open road and now that highways, graded roads, tourists camps, and information bureaus make traveling safe for the tourist, one can visit all the dream places of their desires and literally take the mountain to Mahomet.

Ranger as usual is contributing her summer gypsies to the great caravan—some of her folks traveling as far as Oregon in their car castles. And now that election is over and one's candidates are sipping the nectar of success or imbibing the salt water of defeat, what is better to forget the turmoil of the past week than to crank up Lizzie, or her more stately sisters, and start a gypsy trail of one's own.

A DAUGHTER ARRIVES AT COLE HOME

A daughter arrived on Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cole on Travis street. The little lady and her mother are reported as doing nicely.

A CLASS PICNIC

One of the most delightful affairs of the week, in which fifteen children members of the Sunday school classes of Mmes. D. F. Woodell and Earl Womble, participated, was enjoyed Monday night at the Lily Pond on the Desdemona road. The children were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Womble, Mr. and Mrs. "Ditch" Ervin and Mrs. Woodell. Mr. Ervin being superintendent of the junior department of the Central Baptist Church. A real old fashioned picnic lunch was spread, its menu consisting of all the things that appeal to both children and grown-ups, topped off with ice cream and cake.

After the lunch, games were played for two hours or more and then the party drove back to town, tired but happy.

HONORING A BRIDE AND A VISITOR

One of the prettiest parties of the week, was given Saturday afternoon at the R. R. Stafford home on Spring road, when Miss Helen Stafford, and her sister, Mrs. H. V. Heatley, of Mangum, Ok., entertained in honor of Mrs. Earnest Fletcher, formerly Miss Betty Jean Mangum, and Miss Irene Shattuck, of Beaumont.

A wealth of shasta daisies featured the floraling of the Stafford home and provided just the setting needed for the rather youthful crowd, as this was one party where the young ladies, or real young married women predominated over the older matrons. Daisies in all their white and yellow glory harmonized gracefully with the summer frocks and picture hats of the young women gathered around the bride tables, arranged informally about the entertaining suite of the home. A salad and ice course were served at the end of the game, and handsome prizes were awarded. Th honor guests receiving charming favors, as remembrance of the event from their hostesses.

At refreshment time, the party was joined by Mmes. J. T. Killingsworth, C. D. Woods, M. H. Hagaman and A. L. Duffer, who had the pleasure of greeting the honor guests, and enjoying a social half hour with their hostesses and other guests.

Other than these four who were present to welcome Mrs. Fletcher in her new role as a matron, and to meet Miss Shattuck, were Misses Opal Foute, Maymie Ruth Langston, Doushka Bobo, Gillian Buchanan, Eleanor Norton of Eastland, Joyce Connally, Hortense Ross, Emily Driehofner, and Mmes. Roy Jameson, H. B. Wilson, A. H. Allison, Tom Youker, E. L. Shattuck, Wood Shanklin of Desdemona, O. L. Phillips, Dick Phillips, Susan Hunt, J. M. Dodson, H. J. Stafford, McCaslin, Gus Coleman, John Knox Jr., W. J. Mangum of Henrietta, Aubrey Jameson.

MORNING BRIDGE AT ACORN ACRES

Mrs. Charles Conley, this week's hostess to the members of the Young Matrons Bridge Club, entertained them very delightfully Friday morning, at Acorn Acres.

At noon a delicious luncheon was served, thus culminating the morning's pleasure.

Mrs. J. Depp, Jr., of Dallas made high score and received a lovely pair of silk hose, and Mrs. F. J. Champion, received the low score prize, some dainty handkerchiefs.

Places were marked at luncheon, for Mrs. Conley's house guest, Mrs. R. Buddrus, of Breckenridge, Mrs. Paul Lacy's guests, Miss Lacy and Mrs. J. J. U. S. Cabinet Members All Endorse Greater Movie Season

The letters on this page endorsing Greater Movie Season were received by Mr. Will H. Hays this year. They pledge to the support of the campaign, government executives and important national organizations with membership lists numbering many millions.

Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State:
"I desire on the occasion of the thirtieth anniversary of the moving picture industry, to congratulate you and all concerned on the progress the industry has made, and to say that the Greater Movie Season, which, I understand, will be a feature of the celebration of that anniversary, is worthy of cordial endorsement."

Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War:
"I wish to offer my sincere congratulations to the Motion Picture Producers of America upon the occasion of the thirtieth anniversary of the first theatrical exhibition of a motion picture. Our extraordinary industry is now the most effective method of informing our own public of conditions in every part of our country, and also of informing foreign nations of American ways of living. This makes it essential for our national prestige that we develop a public opinion which demands only the best pictures, and I am happy to assure you of my own interest in the present movement with this aim in view."

Harry S. New, Postmaster General:
"I note with interest that arrangements are being made to observe the thirtieth anniversary of the motion picture industry with another Greater Movie Season similar to that of last year.
"The stimulation of greater interest in better pictures is a most laudable work, and I heartily endorse this second Greater Movie Season."

Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy:
"It is fitting that the thirtieth anniversary of the first moving picture ever shown be celebrated in the United States, because motion pictures are a peculiarly American product, and have reached their highest development in this country.
"The relations between the Navy Department and the Motion Picture Producers have been very cordial, and they have always co-operated heartily with the Navy Department in its endeavor to give sailormen fine, clean, motion pictures."

Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce:
"It gives me great pleasure to endorse the second Greater Movie Season which I understand is being held in conjunction with the thirtieth anniversary of the motion picture industry. Any means which has for its object the encouragement of worthwhile pictures both in the educational and entertainment field is certainly deserving of support."

James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor:
"When thirty years ago the first motion picture appeared on the public screens a new element of life was given to the people of the world. The motion picture began, as a world influence, where the drama left off; it was able to assemble the best of dramatic talent and make it available as inspiration, recreation and instruction alike to the tiny hamlet, the big city, the wilderness, the jungle, the island of the sea and the old centers of world population.
"The institution of a Greater Movie Season in commemoration of the thirtieth anniversary of the industry is an evidence of the high ideals which are being fostered."

MY FUNNIEST SCREEN EXPERIENCE
By WILLIAM POWELL

An amusing, unforeseen event occurred during the filming of "Aloma of the South Seas." I was supposed, in the character of the villainous Van Templeton, to enter the hut of Aloma, the island belle, played by Gilda Gray, and after a mad scramble around the furniture, cinch her in a firm half-nelson.

My dastardly designs are interrupted by the appearance at the door of the irate Percy Marmount as the lady's protector. I was wearing a spic and span white duck suit for the part and when the director, Maurice Tourneur gave the word, I began the chase. Everything went well, I grabbed Miss Gray, Marmount appeared at the door, and we moved quickly apart.

But, instead of scowling, Marmount suddenly doubled up in uncontrollable laughter. The cameras had stopped turning. I couldn't imagine what was the matter until I happened to glance down at my clothes. I was a smudge of brown from head to foot. When Miss Gray had pressed against me, the brown stain used to give her body the appearance of a native, had come off all over the front of my clothes.

Before the scene could be retaken I had to have a new white duck suit, and Miss Gray had to be decorated with a more adhesive brand of paint.

June Production Of Chevrolets More Than Ever

The gigantic manufacturing organization of the Chevrolet Motor Company rose to new production in heights during June when it built 77,241 passenger cars and trucks, a greater number of units than the company ever had produced in a single month.

No other manufacturer of modern three-speed transmission automobiles has approached this production, which culminates a series of monthly production records established by Chevrolet.

The months of April and May of this year saw Chevrolet reach successive record production totals of 71,157 and 74,617, respectively. The new record established in June exceeds the May total by 2,624 units and dwarfs the production during June of 1925 by a margin of 22,295 units.

The aggregate production for the first half of 1926 was 384,573 cars and trucks. During the first half of 1925, Chevrolet's greatest year, the company produced 249,834 units, a total which was passed early in May of this year, which is 134,739 units less than the first six months of 1925 production.

The surprising growth of the Chevrolet Motor company is indicated by the fact that half of 1926 equals the entire production during the first seven and one-half years in the company's history.

Details of the company's recently announced 10-million-dollar expansion program are going forward, and completion of this project will give the company a production capacity during 1927 of one million Chevrolets.

Prince of Wales Is The Dictator Of Mens Fashions

LONDON—King George has never been able to oust his son, the Prince of Wales, as unofficial dictator of Englishmen's fashions.

Although many of the "old school" still carefully watch any changes that the King makes in his wardrobe, the youth of England copies, as nearly as possible, styles dictated by what the Prince wears.

The King still makes all of his public appearances with his trousers very neatly creased at the sides. Bond Street has long since given up its attempts to introduce the side crease. Several years ago the "man about town" did adopt the fashion for a short time, but it was not generally accepted by the public and, consequently passed out as quickly as it had come in.

Mosquitoes must be looking for oil. Wonder how much these fish Coolidge caught really did weigh.

Experiments Show Textiles Can Be Made From Bugs

By LUDWIG E. POPPER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN.—June bugs are about to come into their own, compete successfully with the silk-worm and possibly revolutionize the textile industry.

As a result of experiments conducted by two German scientists, Professor Hezrog and Dr. Kunicke, the June bug may become the rival of the silk worm. The two scientists, working at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for Chemistry, succeeded in developing silk threads from chitin, the strength and resistance of which far surpasses that of silk worms.

Chitin is the hard and resilient substance which covers and protects the soft bodies of insects, as well as crabs, lobsters and crawfish. Its durability is almost unlimited and textiles made of chitin have proved virtually indestructible.

It is predicted that the discovery will create an entirely new industry which may vastly outpace the world's textile markets. Hitherto little has become known regarding the costs of production, although it is pointed out that the abundance of these assures a rich supply of raw material.

Congressional Record Is Least Read News Paper

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The world's strangest daily newspaper has temporarily ceased publication here a sigh of relief.

It is the Daily Congressional Record, one of the largest, most verbose and least read publications in the world. It is financed by the government as a journal of the doings of congress, but in the course of a year it publishes everything from the most complicated inverted fiduciary income tax payment provision to the poetry of members of the house.

It has more editors than any other journal—531 to be exact. Each senator and congressman reads copy upon his own notes. He not only furnishes his material but acts as the editorial judge who corrects it.

Special stenographers record debate of both houses as it occurs and dictate the material to typists in brief sections. Within 15 minutes after a senator has concluded a speech, the copy is brought to his desk and he "corrects" it. The corrections include deletions of thoughts spoken in the heat of debate which do not seem to be necessary in the official record of the proceedings. They also include additions, very often containing material not mentioned in debate.

In some cases the speaker is not satisfied at all with what he has said and may withhold it for several days to have it printed later in the appendix.

Olney City Bonds Bring Premium In Open Market

By United Press.

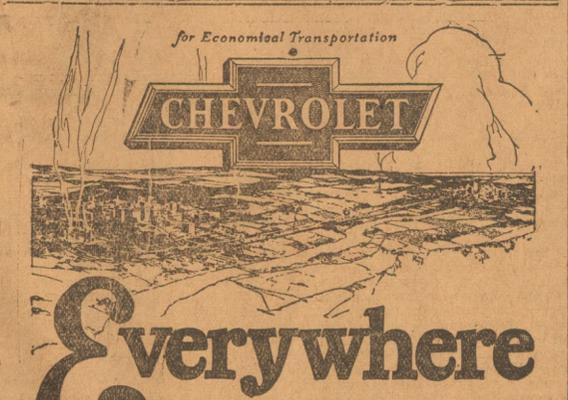

OLNEY, July 24.—The fact that Olney was able to sell its bonds several days ago at a premium while other cities of Texas are finding it difficult to dispose of their bonds except at a discount, is taken as a strong indication of the firm foundation of Olney's prosperity. The bonds brought 102 1/4 with accrued interest. Three bond houses were represented at the sale. The bonds were for the new city hall, additional paving and water works extension.

Two oil field accidents crippling young workers occurred in the Olney field this week. Richard Waggoner lost two fingers from the left hand and three from the right hand. Roy Hargrove, in another accident suffered a mangled finger which had to be amputated.

Something a little out of the ordinary in the way of trade trips was staged a few days ago when fifty cars containing the Olney band and representative business men of Olney visited Elbert, a prosperous agricultural community in eastern Throckmorton county. Preceding the caravan, an Olney airplane piloted by W. M. McAlister and propelled by Olney-made gasoline and oil made the flight to Elbert with Merle Gruver, Chamber of Commerce secretary, as a passenger tossing down circulars.

The trip took an unexpected turn when the flyers became lost and as a result of the extra mileage they landed at Olney at the end of the round trip with less than a gallon of gasoline.

Several New Models Already On The Market

By ROY C. HAYES
 DETROIT, Mich.—Business of launching the 1927 automobiles is occupying the attention of the larger motor car manufacturers this month. Several of next year's cars have already been accounted for, including Oakland, the Overland Whippet, Moon and Diana.

The Old Motor works of Lansing, Mich., today introduces its new line. At least four other new lines will be presented by the first of the month. Prices on the new cars remain the same as their predecessors in nearly every instance. In one or two cases, $10 to $15 is added to care for some additional equipment.

Most interesting among the coming developments is a wide acceptance of the steel body as a safety factor. Fenders generally are larger and more rolling. Motometers are being placed on the instrument board in some cases. New fitting, designed to appeal to the feminine motorist, find places in the majority of the newcomers.

Production, which has seen a tapering off in the last weeks of June and early July, is again on the up-trend. Nearly all of the larger producers with one exception will be at a capacity gait by the first of August, in an effort to take care of dealer organizations with a complete line of the newer cars.

One of the largest orders ever received by an automobile company was placed with the Chrysler Motor corporation Saturday when the John H. Thompson company, Detroit Chrysler distributors, ordered its year's quota of Chrysler cars, valued at 11 million dollars.

In a wire from South Bend, A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation, declares that the Studebaker plant will be operating at capacity by the first of the month. Four thousand men will be added to the pay roll in the near future, he declared.

With orders for 40,000 Whippets on hand, the Willys Overland factory in Toledo is sold out on its new car for sixty days. Not one dime has been appropriated for advertising the new Whippet in July, an unparalleled circumstance in connection with the introduction of a new car, so great has been the demand for the new light car.

June was the greatest month on record for Chevrolet. During the month the company built 77,241 cars and trucks, the greatest production achievement ever turned in by a manufacturer of three-speed-transmission cars. The company is speeding its expansion program toward an output of one million cars a year gait.

New Translation Of Book of Genesis Just Completed

By United Press.
 LONDON—British scholars are deeply interested in the reports from the Vatican that the official Biblical Commission of the Church of Rome has completed, after twelve years of labor, its new critical text—through the Book of Genesis—of the Latin Vulgate or "popular" Latin version of the Bible.

In three or four years it will be able to publish the "official" text for the remaining books of the Pentateuch.

By 1950 or so, it is said, should have the complete text of St. Jerome's Latin version of the Bible—a text freed from all the hit-or-miss additions of Mediaeval scholastics. In the meantime, however, the Church of Rome will make no attempt to modify in any way the familiar Vulgate now in worldwide use in the Roman Catholic churches. The new critical text will be solely for the guidance of scholars until the Church decides—if it ever does—that the new and purified version should go into general use.

Greater Oakland Six Line Has New Refinements

The Greater Oakland Six; introduced throughout the country this week, embodies seventy-seven important refinements, featured by smart new Fisher bodies in new and striking two-tone Duco finish, engine developments of a vital nature, and the rubber silenced chassis, an advanced Oakland engineering achievement ranking with the harmonic balancer, which was introduced to the industry last year on Oakland cars.

Although the new bodies by Fisher are characteristically Oakland, they have been refined to present an even more pleasing symmetry of line and contour. The one-piece metal back panel on the closed bodies curves gracefully upward to the roof, resulting in a modish appearance that harmonizes with the custom-built effect of the new, heavy full crowd fenders, wider and thicker running boards and new side shields. All cars have double leading and are finished with two-tone Duco.

The touring car has been discontinued and in its place is offered the sport phaeton, a five-passenger open car of distinction, completely equipped. The other cars in the line include the sedan, four-door sedan, landau sedan, landau coupe and sport roadster.

Among the general improvements and refinements on the exterior and interior of the car, aside from the body line changes, are the new, double filament, depressible beam headlights, which are so designed that the driver can depress the beam to a point which eliminates all glare to the approaching driver's eyes without reducing the light intensity.

Smoother and quieter operation of the engine itself results from the use of a new camshaft and new valve spring retainers. The velocity of the valve return is lower, thus eliminating valve clicking, also valve spring swishing and rocking are entirely done away with.

All the closed cars have the following equipment: Fisher VV one-piece windshield, windshield cleaner, regulators on all side windows, shades, dome light, nickel plated door handles, cowl lights, door locks, visor, rear view mirror and luxury type cushion springs.

Elimination Of Excess Tax Saves Car Buyer

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Elimination of the 2 per cent excise tax on automobiles is saving every car buyer this year an average of $11. The pertinent question, "What is he going to do with this money?" is raised by officials of the American Automobile association.

Will he put $11 back into the car in the form of some accessory or efficiency device? This course is regarded as unlikely in a vast majority of cases, because the 1926 automobile almost regardless of price class, is being put on the market fully equipped with all the fittings that contribute to the convenience and safety of driving.

With the accessory field virtually closed for this season, what is there left in the field of motordom for which this saving can most advantageously be used?

"Why not put it into organization, the most neglected feature in motordom in this period and one of its most important so far as the motorist is concerned?" asks Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A. "It is to organization, even on its present scale, that the car buyer owes this tax saving," says Mr. Henry. "The word 'owes' is used advisedly. It is literally true that the elimination of the excise tax was the result of organization. Car owner unity produced the volume in objection to this obnoxious levy that convinced congress of the wisdom of removing it."

"The average saving, in itself, looks like rather a small sum. It is estimated, however, that 4 million automobiles will be sold this year. If this figure is correct, it is apparent that elimination of the excise tax will result in a saving to car buyers of 44 million dollars. By any appraisal this is no negligible sum and it contains a significant and valuable lesson."

"That lesson is, simply that organization pays motorists huge dividends. The excise tax saving is small in comparison with the tremendous achievements that the future holds when a greater proportion of America's 20 million car owners become conscious of the advantage of mass action."

Pointing to the old adage that life is a conflict, Mr. Henry continued: "Everything about the automobile industry, the greatest in the world, is thoroughly organized, except the motor car owners. The individual nation was apparent in the industry's infancy. Dealers have their organizations. Garage owners have their associations. The great automobile firms have their national chamber of commerce.

"What is the purpose of this unity? It is simply progress and protection. Its results are manifest to even the casual observer.

concerns represent the acme in efficiency because the need for co-ordination already has impressed 800,000 individual car owners who are members of 815 local motor associations scattered from one end of the country to the other, and with a co-ordinating agency in Washington to speak the collective mind of this constantly growing group.

You see it on Every Highway

Study the Pontiac Six. Note the large engine with its 186.5 cu. in. displacement; the 46 lb. crankshaft; the costly bronze-backed interchangeable bearings; the superior Fisher bodies, panelled, beaded and smartly finished in Duco; the scientific distribution of weight—and score after score of features literally without precedent in a Six at $825.

That is why the "Indian head" is seen on every trail and highway.

That is why Pontiac leadership cannot be denied—why already over 35,000 Pontiac Sixes have been built—a six months record that exceeds the largest production ever attained by any new make of car during its first full year!

 COLLEGE STATION, Texas.—Texas pecan growers face losses of from 20 to 60 per cent of their crops this year, as the result of the ravages of the case bearer insect. Growers in the vicinity of San Saba, Wharton, Winona, Simonton, Bend, Jefferson, Milburn, Ellsville and other pecan growing regions, report infestations of the insects.

Texas Artist Plans Studio-Museum Heart of Dallas

DALLAS, Texas, July 23.—Frank Reaugh, Texas' own artist and one of the wisest known American artists of the present day, is to have a combined Museum and studio in the heart of Dallas' finest resident district. The site for the proposed Frank Reaugh Fine Arts Museum and Studio, in the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Flippen and Hugh Prather and is located in Highland Park.

Early last winter Mr. Reaugh, internationally known as the painter of Texas landscapes and Texas Longhorn steers, announced his donation of a large collection of his work valued at more than $50,000 to the city of Dallas. The donation of the collection was made with the provision that the collection remain at all times in Dallas.

In acknowledgment of their donation a movement was started to erect a worthy structure in which to house the collection. Construction will be started early in the fall.

It may be hot, but a fellow named Luke Warm was arrested in Chicago.

Europe's slogan just now is "Say it with tears in your eyes."

Government Gives Official Data On Surfaced Roads

Nearly 18,000 miles of road in the several state highway systems was surfaced in 1925, according to reports received by the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture from the state highway departments. In addition, 5,316 miles of earth road was graded and drained according to engineering standards, making a total of 23,152 miles improved during the year, of which a little more than 10,000 miles was constructed with federal aid.

The surfaced roads in the state systems at the close of 1925 were of the following types: Sand-clay, 12,677 miles; gravel, 64,408 miles; waterbound macadam, 4,804 miles; surface-treated macadam and gravel, 15,858 miles; bituminous macadam, 10,985 miles; sheet asphalt, 839 miles; bituminous concrete, 4,821 miles; cement concrete, 27,875 miles; brick, 3,111 miles; and miscellaneous, 131 miles.

Horse Pinned To a Tree Lives For Three Weeks

SYDNEY.—During heavy floods on the West Coast of the South Island of New Zealand, a racehorse was washed into a tree, and was rescued more than three weeks later, still alive.

The owner, believing the horse to be drowned, was searching for the body when he found the live animal in the fork of a tree.

Apparently the horse had been swimming through the flood water towards land when it became entangled in the branches of the tree. When the waters receded it was unable to extricate itself. It lived on the leaves of the tree, and when found, there was no foliage within its reach. The animal's rescue came too late. Despite careful attention, it died within a few hours.

Olney Without A Homicide in Last 35 Years

OLNEY, Texas, July 24.—The largest town in the United States with an unblemished homicide record is the town of Olney, which in its 35 years of existence has never had a killing.

Olney has been going through a period of intense oil development the past three years, which makes the record even more remarkable. There has been only one suicide here and that was many years ago. Olney has a population of 6,000.

Olney Reports 6 New Wells The Past Week

OLNEY, July 24.—Although there were six wells completed during the past week in the Olney district, the activity getting under way around the new Farmer pool overshadowed all else.

The first producer of the new pool which is midway between Olney and Marley is making fifty barrels a day at 812 feet after being in more than a week. It is the J. J. Moran No. 1, Graham Stewart, Moran No. 2 is drilling and the Robert Oil Corporation and Barclay & Wright are rigging up offsets, while the Texas Company is reported to have made an offset location.

In the Rogers pool four and one-half miles southwest of Olney, the Robert Oil Corporation brought in the No. 8 Rogers for 100 barrels at 860 feet and the Pandem Oil Corporation in the same pool has completed the No. 4 Whitehead for 80 barrels.

Three new wells were completed in the M. & V. pool two and one-half miles northwest of Olney. The M. & V. Oil Company completed the No. 7 A. M. Kunkel for 100 barrels at 1100 feet and the Nos. 3 and 4 C. F. Kunkel of Murchison & Fain were completed as small wells. East of town the Texahoma-Burton No. 2 Benson came in for 100 barrels at 900 feet.

It Will Take Autoist 3 Years To Cover Roads

WASHINGTON, July 23 (United Press)—Motorists in the United States have more than 400,000 miles of roads, suitable for automobiles, on which to tour this summer, according to the National Geographic Society.

When the "horseless carriage" first appeared 30 years ago the problem was to find roads on which they could run. Now the problem of tourists is which road to take, there are so many of them.

A tourist, driving 12 hours at an average speed of 30 miles an hour, could cover all the tourable highways of the United States and nearby Canada by extending his journey three years and 16 days.

America is now riding up the crest of its third renaissance of road building, according to the society. Roadbuilders, the mysterious vanished tribe in the Mississippi Valley, had the first roads built in North America.

The second high point in highway history came when the nation expended westward and trucking roads were constructed. The automobile brought forth the third, and most notable era of turn-pike construction ever seen in any nation of the world.

Careful Driver Causes Trouble To Reckless Man

There is nothing so exasperating to the motor car driver who loves trouble or who is anxious to go to heaven as the careful driver. If it wasn't for the latter, there would be no "motor car accident" or "pedestrian" problem, for in just a few weeks all motor cars would be in the ditch and the drivers in eternity, says a writer in the Louisville Courier-Journal.

That the careful driver constitutes a serious hindrance to the ascent (or descent) of the fellow in a hurry is proved by the fact that with more than 20 million cars and motor trucks in the United States, only 21,000 persons were killed and 600,000 hurt during 1925. That is a shameful record, for at this rate it will take some of us 1,000 years to get to heaven via the automobile route.

Rule No. 1, therefore, may well be: Never pay attention to your driving or where you are going. The girls on the sidewalks, with four garters—one pair to hold up her stockings and another pair to hold up the traffic—are so much more interesting than the telephone poles, safety islands, or other cars. This is one of the easiest ways to exterminate yourself and others.

2. Never grant the right-of-way. Why in the name of great hospital bills anyone should expect one to grant the right-of-way is one of the mysteries of life. Forcing the passing motorist onto the curb or into the ditch only proves that you possess real will power and should be respected.

3. Because tire chains greatly minimize skidding, these should be kept in the tool box. "A chained wheel gathers no damage suits," says the police inspector of Omaha. Obviously such statements are propaganda for safety, and should never be given serious consideration by motorists who enjoy wearing black crepe. The extent of such insidious propaganda is appalling. Several organizations, such as taxicab companies, have recently adopted the slogan, "There can be no compromise with safety." To counteract this all motorists seeking to shorten life should adopt the slogan, "We have to die eventually—why not now?" There are a few thrills like those of helplessly riding in a car that is skidding and utterly beyond control. Your heart sinks and your stomach becomes a vacuum—and then there is almost always the satisfaction of giving the poor undertaker or coroner something to do.

4. Always drive on the wrong side of the road. This denotes excellent judgment on your part and contributes to the good nature of the approaching motorist.

5. Never look back when you shift into reverse. If there is a little child or an elderly woman there—well, that is their hard luck.

6. Never signal when you turn or stop, and always be sure to cut in as closely as possible when passing another car. Doing this always gives you the desired trouble.

7. Be sure that you drink a large quantity of booze before starting to drive. One natural born fool, one pint of bad gin, and one high-powered motor car is a mixture that will invariably make itself known to St. Peter. All that is necessary is to soak fuel in gin, place in the car and let

CHAPTER LX

As John rode down to work the following morning, something inside him seemed to be whispering that this was to be an eventful day.

The sun was warm, and faces around him in the street car radiated good cheer; breakfast, in the old familiar restaurant next door to his office building, had never tasted better.

Omens. . . . A day—he recalled a familiar race-track saying to press his luck.

Briggs was at work ahead of him. "Well, partner," and the little artist wore a broad grin, "do you know who's Kelly and Jones' biggest client?"

"Schuyler and Lowry Hats?" "Right—and that's the client I've decided we're going to get. We'll aim our artillery at their biggest target."

"The boy's getting ambitious," John laughed, amused at Briggs' enthusiasm. "We've got a fat chance." Briggs frowned. "Now hold on. Did you know their contract expires shortly after the first of the year?"

"No." "Did you know that their public relations advertising this year amounted to something like two hundred thousand dollars?"

"That much? Where'd you get your information?"

"Never mind. Now, a friend of mine, who's a crackerjack salesman, is willing to go after clients for us on the regular commission basis. I talked it over with him last night, fellow named Harris. He's been selling automobiles, but he knows something about the agency business—and he's a great salesman, John."

"Well," John began, but Briggs went on. "Now, since you've made me a sort of junior partner I've been studying things. Out of your fifteen-secretary Menefee had promised to send over? The morning was still young, but already three young women had been in to see him, each of whom he had promised to interview later.

Where was this paragon, Dick had recommended? Oh, if it did happen to be someone with real intelligence, capable of running the office without asking questions—someone who wouldn't ask a fancy salary.

And suddenly he was clinging again to Fay.

What did it all amount to, anyway, without Fay around?

Suppose he did put this thing over—and the Schuyler business, give Kelly and Nat Graham a licking. Who was going to be glad of it besides himself and Briggs, and of course, Dick Menefee?

He went into Briggs' office to borrow the artist's shears and busied himself with cutting out the hat advertisements. Here, he was thinking as he studied one of them, was tone, say, of a pearl gray spring hat, lying on an elegant hall table, and a pair of gloves thrown carelessly beside it. And beneath it the slogan, "Hats for gentlemen."

And another one—a photograph of a man in a straw—with a decoration that Briggs could work out in water color. And still another—a painting by Briggs of a man handling his hat to a check girl in a restaurant. That could be done in water color, too, or perhaps in black and white oil.

So he was thinking as he clipped the ads, gathering ideas as he went along; visualizing layouts; thinking of copy. This would be a great account—he'd like to do it—always had liked hat advertising. . . .

Miss White came in noiselessly. "A lady to see you, Mr. Milburn. She said Dr. Menefee sent her."

Even Judith seemed to understand.

per cent is net, isn't it?" "That's about right."

"Well, is eighteen thousand a year worth going after? Say we deduct 10 per cent of that for Harris, if he helps us land it—is it worth while?"

"Briggs," and John sat down to explain, "it would be worth while if it were only half of that—or a quarter—or a tenth, even. But there are things about this business you don't understand—that I'm just beginning to understand myself. Now doesn't it strike you as rather odd that Kelly and Jones should have that Schuyler Hat business instead of one of the big, high-powered agencies? Does it?"

"You mean," he little artist suggested, "that Kelly has a pull?"

"I mean," John told Kelly, "there's more than one advertising manager who's getting his palm creased by Kelly and Jones. I mean that Kelly splits his commissions with the Schuyler advertising manager. . . . you understand now?"

"Crooked stuff, eh?" "Well, personally I'd be inclined to say the advertising manager was the crook—more so than Kelly. I've never done business that way and I never will, and the fellows that do it are just making it hard for the rest of us who care something about ethics. Now you see why I don't think it's any use going after Schuyler and Lowry."

"But," and Briggs was smiling mysteriously, "what would you say if I told you that Schuyler and Lowry were getting a new advertising manager?"

"You mean that?" John sat up in his chair.

"Harris told me they were making the change. That's what suggested the idea to him of going after them for us. He's acquainted with the man who's going in. But," and Briggs frowned a little, "he also says the new man will most likely want to let a big agency handle it."

"We'll go after it anyway," John got to his feet, his jaw thrust out. "Now you're talking!" Briggs approved. "I wanted to see if you were game to try it. Come in here and I'll show you a fairly complete file of their ads."

But where, John was thinking as he ran through the magazines Briggs had turned over to him, was the

"Where, Miss White?" "In the conference room. She has a little girl with her."

John frowned. "A baby? Humph—didn't want any married women!" And he was rather annoyed at Menefee. "Why didn't Dick let me know?"

But outside the little conference room he paused, his hand on the knob.

What was this strange sensation within him? This sudden constriction around his heart, followed by a breathless, fluttery feeling as if he were falling from a great height? Had Dick—did it mean that—no, no, it couldn't—he mustn't dare think it! God! . . .

And then pushing the door open, inward.

And halting abruptly, his heart giving a great leap, a cry on his lips, his knees sagging with sudden weakness.

"Fay!" A hoarse, choked whisper. This thing, then, that he had not dared hope for—it was true. "Fay!"

And Fay, standing beside Judith, whom she was holding by the hand as she sat on the table, said very slowly, "John, I've come back to you."

"Fay! Judith!" John was beside his wife now, sweeping her into his arms, and all the anguish he had known in those bitter months without her was suddenly swept away.

And with Fay's head against his breast, he raised his grinning eyes toward the sky.

"Daddy, daddy." It was Judith, crying herself, unable to comprehend it all but sensing something wrong.

And John, picking her up in his arms, kissing her fat little cheeks, holding her up admiringly at arms' length.

Fay, a shiny wetness in her eyes, said with a smile, "Judith forgot her cue. Here I had rehearsed this meeting and rehearsed it, and she was to say daddy as soon as you opened that door. But she forgot. You startled her, I guess."

"Did I?" John, happier than he had ever thought he had a right to be, continued bouncing Judith up and down, and listening to her gleeful laugh. Even Judith seemed to understand now.

"Yes," and Fay looked at him, taking him all in, noticing some new lines in his face, shadows beneath his eyes, a haggard look about him. "I had planned," she went on, "to make it as melodramatic as possible."

"And now tell me," he said, "how it all happened. Dick Menefee was behind this, wasn't he?"

Dick was, she confessed. "He met me at the railroad station this morning. I told him to keep it a surprise."

"And you were the one who advanced him that money. Fay, why did you do it?"

"Didn't you want me to?" "But I would never have dared to ask."

"Well, why shouldn't I? I had most of it—and Dad gave Judith a thousand dollars for a Christmas present."

"Now there's something suspicious about that, Fay."

But she placed a finger to his lips. "Now, don't ask so many questions. I'm tired, and I want to get into a bath tub."

"I'll take you to a hotel."

"No. Dick made me promise to come out there. You and I are to stay with them until the house is ready for us. Oh, yes—another thing. I forgot my lines myself when you came in the room. I was supposed to tell you that I saw your ad in the paper for a secretary and I wanted the job. Will you give it to me?"

John laughed. "I'm serious," Fay insisted. "Dick told me you needed someone really competent. And you know I'd love to do it—until you got on your feet once more, at least. Don't you think I'd do? You know, my old boss thought pretty well of me. It almost broke his heart when I left him the other day."

"Well now, Fay, if you really mean it, of course you'd be the best person in the world. But Judith, you know—"

"I can get a nurse for Judith. John, let me. It would be so much fun to help you in your fight. Dick told me of what you were up against. Please let me, John. You and I side by side, dear."

"Of course, Fay, if you really mean it." And he was glad, thrilled. With Fay once more by his side. . . . He suddenly threw back his head. Bring 'em on. . . .

"Briggs," he called, and the artist came running.

"Mrs. Milburn's back," John said, and watched Briggs' face turn red with embarrassment.

"Aw gee," mumbled the artist as he surveyed the happy scene. "Aw golly. . . . Aw hell," and he grabbed Fay's hand and retreated in confusion.

Then John, carrying Judith, went down with Fay to meet Dick Menefee, whom they found lounging in the lobby, grinning from ear to ear.

"Yes, of course, I wrote to her." Dick was telling John. They were waiting in the living room while Margaret and Fay prepared luncheon. "I knew you'd never do it, and that's all Fay was waiting for. She never stopped loving you a minute, old man. You should have known that."

"He flicked an ash from his cigar. "And you know why she was so willing to come back to you?"

"Why?" "Because you needed her. There's something about a man when he's in need of help that a woman can't resist. I don't profess to understand very much about the other sex. I'm no analyst of the female psychology—but you needed Fay, John. And so she's back."

"God knows I needed her, Dick," John breathed, and pressed the other's hand in both his own. "I'm grateful—more so than you'll ever know."

Two weeks passed—and Christmas with them. And it was the happiest Christmas John and Fay had ever known. Away from their people, true, but having each other, and Judith.

Fay had taken over the running of the office and John was free from bothersome detail and routine. Miss White helped, and Fay was sure that, properly broken in, the girl would become a competent secretary.

With Briggs, John planned a series of layouts designed to attract the eye of the Schuyler and Lowry advertising manager. Briggs' friend Harris, already had interviewed him, and sent back reports that were far from discouraging.

"It means," Briggs said, "that if we can hit them in the eye we've got a good chance."

"Well," from John grimly, "we'll hit them then."

And so they worked their heads off, knowing all along that Kelly, Jones and Graham were throwing everything they had into keeping the account and cleared by the knowledge that it was at least a fair fight now and that nothing Graham said about them would hurt them in any way, especially now that Fay was back.

Fay was called in time after time to criticize their ideas, especially those designed to promote the sale of felt hats for women—a business which with Schuyler and Lowry was little more than a sideline but which John felt sure could be made into a big thing.

And then John, loaded down with giant-sized brief cases, left town—as had Graham one memorable night when they were angling for the Mill—

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

In Harbor Gardens, Long Island, in an elaborate bungalow, lived Perry Heath, an artist, and his wife, Myra. Myra, a cold, blond beauty and wealthy in her own right, was not in love with her husband, but she tolerated him. Heath for his part found amusement in his flirtations with other women, and, despite an unruly shock of brown hair and owl-like tortoise shell glasses which gave him a Bohemian look, they found him not unattractive.

At the time the story opens, the Heaths were entertaining two house guests:

Lawrence Inman, a distant relative of Myra's, and, aside from Perry, her only heir, and Bunny Moore, young, vivacious, golden-haired, an old friend of Myra's. Myra Heath was a peculiar woman. She had never used rouge or any other cosmetics in her life. She never dressed in colors—nothing but whites or grays or other neutral tones. She had a passion for collecting rare old bottles and her latest was an old whisky bottle, which she was quite proud of but which aroused her husband to scorn.

There is a growing intimacy between Inman and Myra Heath and Bunny and Perry, and at a bridge game Myra is so provoked at Bunny's apparent infatuation for her husband that she reproves her sharply.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY: CHAPTER II

"Good gracious! I don't want him!" and Bunny hopped off the chair arm and pirouetted about the room.

"I know you don't," and Myra's voice grew sharper, "but you play with him, and he, poor fool, falls for it."

"Hoot, toot, Myra!" Heath cried in astonishment at this outburst, "let her play with he if she likes. I like it myself."

Perry said this merely to rouse his family fortune follows the family record, and at my death—

"Good Lord, Myra, you're not thinking of dying, are you? For heaven's sake, don't spring these shocks so suddenly!"

"I don't know when I shall die, but I have certainly made my will in Larry's favor. To my mind that is just and right. It is far more appropriate that my father's money should revert to my father's relatives than to a man my father never saw, and would never have accepted as a son-in-law, had he been consulted."

"The woman with a serpent's tongue!" exclaimed Heath, really surprised at this outburst, so unlike his calm wife. "Is this a parlor entertainment you're giving us? Whose stunt is next? I've had enough of this number."

"Don't try to be funny. You're not clever enough for that. The idea of the Country club wanting a man of your caliber for president! They little know your limitations!"

"Well, Myra, you're getting on fine! Proceed, go right along."

"Yes, do," urged Bunny. "When you get all wrought up like that, you almost get a shade of color in your face!"

"Yes, a touch of angry brick red," Perry remarked, looking thoughtfully at Myra, as if at a picture.

As a matter of fact, she was, if anything, paler than usual, and her cold gray eyes glittered in her intense rage.

The whole scene was unprecedented. Never had Myra Heath shown this phase before.

Larry Inman was dumb with surprise. Bunny was joyously excited; and Heath himself was frankly puzzled.

"Sam Anderson is a thousand times better equipped for such a position than you are!" Myra went on.

Anderson was another candidate.

"Anderson is a freak," put in Lar-wife's temper, for, as a matter of fact, Bunny rather bored him, unless he was just in the mood for her wiles.

"I know you do," Myra looked at him coldly, "you like any girl who flatters you and makes you think you're a devil. You gram at any flapper with dabs of war-paint on her face, who puffs smoke into your eyes."

"Try a dab on your own face," said Bunny, impudently, pushing her vanity case toward Myra.

"Clear out, Bunny!" said her hostess. "I'm fed up with you! And, unless you transfer your very marked attentions to some other man than my husband—"

"Well, well, was she jealous?" and Bunny threw her arms round Myra's neck and kissed her.

The girl was not a bit embarrassed by the older woman's outburst; in fact, she had been expecting it, and rather welcomed it. It added excitement to the situation, and Bunny glowed in a fuss.

"Let me alone," and Myra flung the girl from her. "I'm in earnest—"

"You seem to be," and Bunny stood a pace off, and scanned her critically.

Perry Heath laughed. "She isn't, really," he said. "One can't be jealous of a man one scorns—"

"Yes, I can, Myra declared. "I do scorn you—you're little and petty and mean. You're a trashy artist and a mere apology for a man. But you are my husband, and my dignity represents your foolish actions with other women. I refuse to put up with it, and—"

"Wait a minute," said Heath, in a drawing tone. "Before you proceed, what about your own actions with our friend and fellow artist here? What about your foolish actions in that direction?"

"Larry? Oh, he's my cousin—"

"Distant cousin by the family records, but a very near cousin in actuality," Heath said, but with more effect of amused chaffing than real accusation.

"He is my cousin and my heir. The family fortune follows the family record, and at my death—

"Good Lord, Myra, you're not thinking of dying, are you? For heaven's sake, don't spring these shocks so suddenly!"

"I don't know when I shall die, but I have certainly made my will in Larry's favor. To my mind that is just and right. It is far more appropriate that my father's money should revert to my father's relatives than to a man my father never saw, and would never have accepted as a son-in-law, had he been consulted."

"The woman with a serpent's tongue!" exclaimed Heath, really surprised at this outburst, so unlike his calm wife. "Is this a parlor entertainment you're giving us? Whose stunt is next? I've had enough of this number."

"Don't try to be funny. You're not clever enough for that. The idea of the Country club wanting a man of your caliber for president! They little know your limitations!"

"Well, Myra, you're getting on fine! Proceed, go right along."

"Yes, do," urged Bunny. "When you get all wrought up like that, you almost get a shade of color in your face!"

As a matter of fact, she was, if anything, paler than usual, and her cold gray eyes glittered in her intense rage.

The whole scene was unprecedented. Never had Myra Heath shown this phase before.

Anderson was another candidate.

"Anderson is a freak," put in Larwith them to that extent. If Perry chooses to go over there to play golf, because the links are better than the Garden links, let him do so. Let him be a member of the club so he can do so.

"But as to being president—no." "All right, old thing," said Heath, amiably, "I'll refuse the candidacy, since it pesters you so. We've been married six years, and I never before saw you so hot up. Give me a light, somebody."

He lazily held a cigaret to his lips, while Bunny picked up one of four lighted candles that stood on a refectory table, and held it for his use.

As she put back, she idly opened a portfolio of sketches that lay on the table. Inside was a card, which said, in elaborate lettering:

"The Work of Perry Heath."

"What's this for?" she said, taking it up and closing the portfolio.

"Oh, that's a work of art in itself," Heath told her. "There was a loan exhibition here last summer, and that was the card that designated my collection of masterpieces. It is such a gem of Spencerian work, I saved it."

The lettering on the card was ornamented with the old-fashioned Spencerian flourishes, and further embellished with the strange bird of unknown species, with which Spencerians were wont to decorate their pen work.

Bunny laughed at it, and gayly stuck it in the corner of the frame of one of Heath's best sketches that hung on the studio wall.

"All right, then, Perry," Myra said, more mildly now, "you'll withdraw your name from the candidates, and give up the idea of the club presidency?"

"Nobody, my darling, could call me a fussy man," sang Heath. "Of course I will, if your ladyship deprecates it. That will leave three names to vote on still. But I doubt if Anderson gets it. Seems to me Pinkie Garrison is a more general favorite."

"Nixy," Inman disagreed. "If not Anderson, then George Morton."

"Well, they're all Park men," Myra argued. "I don't care which of them is elected, if Perry doesn't run."

"I don't, I won't, I won't!" Heath reiterated. "Now, for heaven's sake, drop that subject. Come on, let's all go to bed. A spot of Scotch, Larry?"

"Sure. This has been an exhausting conference. Gosh, what a watery concoction! You take this, I'll mix my own!"

Inman set back on the table the mild highball Heath had compounded for him, and, his eye lighting on the card in the picture frame, he took it down and set it up against the tall glass, so that "The Work of Perry Heath" seemed to refer to the Scotch and soda.

town contract—and set out to lay down his cards and bring back an answer.

In his ears were ringing Fay's parting words: "Goodby, John. You'll win—I know it."

And all the way during that long train ride he was thinking if only he could put this over he'd be made. It would make little difference what other accounts Graham took away—he'd be made. And so he prayed a little, thinking of what it would mean to Fay, fingering with caress-ing touch the all-important brief cases.

And Fay, back in Jacksonville, typing letters, paying bills, interviewing advertising representatives of newspapers and magazines. Thinking that never before had she been so happy. Back again with John; a new John; a little haggard and worn, perhaps, and a little harder, but somehow a little finer.

Three days passed, during which she and Briggs, hoping and praying that John would get what he went after—more because of the effect it would have on John himself than on account of the business—hardly dared speak of the thing that was so close to their hearts.

And then one day Fay answered the telephone to be told that long distance was calling. A sudden sinking of the heart as she waited for John's voice. . . .

Then it came: "Hello—Fay?" And before he had spoken another word, she knew he had won.

U. S. Tourists Flood London Drink Parlors

By C. P. WILLIAMSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON.—The Yanks have taken London. Never since General Pershing and the first vanguard of the American Expeditionary Forces arrived here on June 8, 1917, have American tourists so completely captured the center of the British Empire as the present season. They are driving Englishmen out of spots which were formerly sacred British ground and impenetrable for foreigners.

With the aid of tourist agencies, they have invaded "Lincoln House," London's Bowery underworld, previously known only to tourists through moving pictures made in Hollywood. "Rubber-neck wagons," overflowing with Americans, nightly generate London's East End to make a comparison of the Ghetto, Chinatown and Poplar with similar spots in America.

The Strand, Trafalgar Square, Piccadilly, Bond Street and the Latin quarter of Soho in the West End have become the haunts of the early evening, followed by a round of London's famous night clubs after the saloons are closed.

Museums
Even the gathering places of England's newspapermen in the Fleet Street and Blackfriars districts have been turned into miniature museums with extensive displays and signs such as "Dr. Johnson's Favorite Seat," or "Charles Dickens first conceived the David Copperfield while sitting on this bench."

London's journalists, tiring of being jostled about their favorite haunts by American tourists, have deserted Fleet Street for quieter places. Pavement artists have varied their subjects to include drawings to attract Americans. Favorite winter subjects, such as the drawings of the Prince of Wales and King George, have been varied to drawings of American flags and American figures to entice pennies from visitors from the United States.

This influx of thousands of tourists from the United States has greatly upset the usually placid surface of England restaurants and public places. Accustomed to spending large quantities of Continental currencies, which can now be bought cheap for the American dollar, many Americans continue lavish practices after they reach here from the mainland.

Walters in some of the larger Strand and Piccadilly restaurants are now nightly receiving tips aggregating more than those of an entire week before the tourist season began. The American tourists is actually "spoiling" waiters and hotel servants, who have always been satisfied with a maximum tip of 12 cents for practically any service.

Americans, however, think nothing of tipping the waiters enough to cover the meal in addition to the bill. The result is that the more conservative English are being driven to spots where the American has not yet invaded.

Proprietors of restaurants frequented by Americans and managers of "American Bars," which have recently sprung up in profusion in all parts of the city, have judiciously stered all stray glassware and ornaments for the summer, on the assumption that "when an American turns loose the sky's the limit."

English newspaper are daily publishing reports from all parts of Europe of unusual actions of Americans. One recently told of three Americans who had completely papered the floor and walls of a compartment of a French railway carriage with franc notes.

Europe Plans Finished Fight On Films of U. S.

By C. P. WILLIAMS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON.—British, French, Italian and German film producers are sharpening their knives in unity for a "fight to the finish" with the American industry.

A conference of film producers of the four countries will be held in Paris some time in the Fall, it is said. The object of the meeting is to consider a co-operative agreement to meet American competition through development of the industry in Europe. American representatives will not be invited.

Internationalization for the British and Continental productions has not yet proven sufficient to meet the pressure of increasing competition from America and efforts will be made to produce pictures on a more unified basis. British producers are already producing pictures in France and French producers are making pictures in Berlin. German companies are producing pictures in Rome in an attempt to exchange knowledge of productions.

Great Britain is the best film market outside of the United States. There are 3,500 motion picture theaters in Great Britain, 3,400 in Germany and more than 2,000 in France. The present time, American producers have an almost complete monopoly on British theaters, where the "block-bokoing" system, recently investigated by the Federal Trade Commission in America, has practically excluded British pictures.

The German films are protected by a law providing that exhibitors must book one German film for every foreign film taken for exhibition.

English papers have recently waged a vigorous campaign against all types of American films shown in England. Film and dramatic critics are daily filling their columns with bitter criticisms of all points of American films. English weeklies and monthly magazines quickly took up the cudgel against American films following the lead of the London Daily Mail, the Daily Express and other prominent newspapers.

American distributors answer the charges of "monopoly through the block-booking system" by declaring that English producers are booking films that can best fill their theaters and that when booking these "best" pictures, exhibitors must contract to take other productions.

Russian Girls In Cabarets Of China Weary

By United Press.

SHANGHAI, China.—The plight of the Russian cabaret girl in the night palaces of pleasure in Shanghai is becoming nightly more discouraging. That the girls desire such a life cannot be said for a moment. They are "up against it" in the strongest sense of the word. They must eat. They must sleep. They must have clothes. But what they really want is a husband, some one who will care for them, marry them and take them to America or Europe.

If he will not marry, well, "Neitshevo," the Russian for nothing (technically speaking) or Kismet. They will follow him to the end of the world as long as he is good to them, and is willing to take them. Sometimes they follow on the next boat, if he has deserted them.

Their is an existence of pleasureless pain. They must dance for the commission they obtain. The gentlemen in the resort, spends 50 cents for a dance ticket, double prices for drinks, and sometimes when too exuberant a handsome price for cheap champagne. The girl gets 20 or 25 cents for each dance ticket, 10 cents for a small drink, $1 and $2 commission on small and large bottles of "wine."

Much as she detests the cheap booze, she must drink it to coax another bottle from her victim. If she drinks too much, she retires to revive herself with a drop of drug or anti-drink medicine.

Girls of five years experience, now faded and worn, are no longer looked upon by owners as the best attraction for the place. There must be new blood and new faces. The older girl now finds herself on out of the way streets, sometimes in public parks, one of which is only too close to the quiet-looking river.

Tombstones mark the graves of some. Some are never found.

Statistics Show Women are Most Careful Drivers

LONDON (United Press).—Women are more careful automobile drivers than men, according to an official of the Ministry of Transport here.

During May a total of 187 persons were killed on London streets, but despite an increase in the number of women drivers, the increase in fatalities is attributed to the carelessness of "jay-walkers" rather than the increase in woman drivers.

Vehicles responsible for the deaths were:
Private motor cars 61
Commercial automobiles 57
Motor buses 33
Motorcycles 10
Trolley cars 8
Horse-drawn vehicles 8
Taxi-cabs 3
Bicycles 3

New Blood Tester Counts Red and White Corpuscles

By United Press

WASHINGTON.—Now comes the haemacytometer tester, which will tell you whether the number of red and white corpuscles in your blood has been correctly counted. The portion of red and white corpuscles indicate the condition of the blood.

The tester is an instrument which has been installed in the U. S. Surgeon General's department and it is displayed at the Sesquicentennial Exposition at Philadelphia as another evidence of Yankee invention.

The instrument utilizes the interference of light waves in its operation and according to the Bureau of Standards will insure accurate blood tests.

Birth Control Only Salvation To Save Chinese

By RANDALL GOULD (United Press Staff Correspondent)

PEKING.—If China's present rate of population increase continues another century will see 900,000,000 inhabitants of the "Flowery Republic" or one-half the present world population.

The one alternative to this would be a voluntary restriction of the population increase, in the view of many close observers. In short, birth control among the Chinese masses.

Walter H. Mallory, secretary of the China International Famine Relief Commission and author of "China, a Land of Famine" which will be published in book form soon by the American Geographical Society, has come to strong advocacy of birth control in China as a result of several years of close study of the country.

Modern Sanitation

"All the work of modern sanitation, surgery, medicine, will only increase our problems in China unless there is a conscious effort to lower the birth rate," says Mallory.

"What is the use of saving a man from death by cholera today, only to see him die of starvation tomorrow? We are doing all we can for China in every way, yet that is precisely what we must see occur if the death rate decreases materially and the birth rate remains at the present level.

"We are spreading modern ideas of sanitation, we are teaching methods of controlling the spread of disease, preventive medicine and modern surgery are helping save lives—but all this will mean only increased misery if we are to see our work go to overcrowding still more a country already overcrowded. We should save lives, yes, but there should be a lower birthrate to correspond, otherwise calamity is ahead.

Help Solve Problems

"I view this problem with genuine concern. Modern science will do China a poor favor if it adds to her problems without helping to solve them. And one solution would be adoption of birth control methods.

"Teaching of methods of contraception should, in my opinion, be a department of the work of every Chinese medical institution. By this plan the birth rate might be cut down at the same time the medical men are lowering the death rate."

The problem is much less difficult than it at first appears, Mallory points out, if birth control can actually become a reality in China. While it takes centuries to build up a population even under the most favorable conditions, a population can be cut down within a single generation.

"If the people of China should be content to have just half as many children during the coming generation as they did during the last one," he suggests, "the population probably would be reduced by such a considerable proportion that the problem of maintenance would be very largely solved, even with a corresponding reduction in the death rate due to modern assistance in every day life."

In spite of the fact that China's over-populated condition renders birth control more necessary here than in any other part of the world, birth control in China on any extensive scale is at present "out of the question," Mallory admits.

"Birth control here at present can hardly be considered," he said. "Its widespread adoption would be a task of such magnitude, because of the present attitude of the people, that years of strenuous work and a change of basic social concept on the part of the Chinese would be necessary. From present indications it is now merely a utopian dream."

Chinese ancestor worship creates an impressive need for male progeny. This, coupled with the low cost of rearing children in China and the economic advantage of having children to act as support in old age, affords an almost unsurmountable obstacle to birth control work.

Convocations For Freshmen Are Planned

AUSTIN.—Plans for the annual convocations to be held Sept. 19-22 for all freshmen students of 1926-27 at the University of Texas have been completed, according to V. I. Moore, dean of men. The idea of the convocations for first year students was inaugurated several years ago and has met with great success. Dean Moore stated regarding the purpose of the meetings, he said:

"In order to make the experiences of the new student in the University as profitable as possible, it is the purpose of the convocations to acquaint the freshmen of 1926-27 with some of their university problems. The university has become so large and the regulations so complex that we think new students can make a better start if they learn in advance something about the university and its ways."

The series of convocations will begin on Sunday, Sept. 19, when special services will be held in all the university churches to which the new students are particularly invited. In the afternoon the students will be taken on an automobile drive over the city. Vesper services will be held Sunday afternoon.

The program for Monday, Sept. 20 follows: Invocation, Rev. L. H. Wharton, pastor of the University Presbyterian Church; greetings, B. F. Pittenger, dean of student life; welcome address, President W. M. W. Splawn; "Causes of First Year Failures," Dr. H. T. Parlin, junior dean of the college of arts; "About Registration," E. J. Mathews, registrar; "The Students' Association," President Ed Gossett of Post; "The Honor System," Miss Mary Hoyle Healy of Austin, chairman Women's council, Marion Olson of Cisco, chairman Men's Council. On Monday evening a faculty reception will be held for the freshmen students under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

Tuesday, Sept. 21, is registration day for all freshmen students. Those registering later are required to pay a late fee.

On Wednesday morning, Sept. 22, special convocations will be held for both freshmen girls and freshmen boys. At the former, Miss Ruby Terrell, dean of women, will preside, Miss Anna Hiss, director of physical training for women, and Miss Mary Walker of Cleburne, president of the Y. W. C. A., will extend greetings to the new women students. Talks concerning university regulations for girls will be given by Miss Terrell and Mrs. Florence Bell, assistant dean of women.

At the meeting for freshmen boys, at which Dean Moore will preside, talks will be given by Spurgeon Bell of Austin, president of the sophomore class, and Jim Stratton of Fort Worth, president of the Y. M. C. A. Special discussions will be conducted by William L. McGill on "Extra-Curricula Opportunities for Freshmen," L. T. Belmont, director of university athletics, on "Keeping Fit," and Dean Moore on "University Regulations."

Keep the Baby Comfortable in Summer Time

By SAMUEL W. KELLEY, M. D. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute CHICAGO, July 19.—To keep babies and children well in summer, first of all keep them comfortable.

Dress according to the weather, guarding against sudden changes to lower temperature. Keep them out of doors as much as possible, but when heat is excessive outside and the house is comfortable, let them stay indoors. Bathe children daily. Give plenty of pure water to drink. Avoid fatigue, excitement, crowds, dust, flies, mosquitoes, and all insects.

Breast-feeding is best for the baby. Weigh him once or twice weekly. If he does not gain weight, or is unhappy, restless, or fretful, he is not well.

Do not experiment with foods, nor give laxatives nor soothing syrups nor other medicines nor consult friends or neighbors, nor postpone decision in cases of illness. Consult a physician.

When cow's milk is advised, it should be the purest obtainable. If possible get milk certified by a Milk Commission of medical men, or recommended by the Board of Health. Milk should be so pure as not to need to be sterilized or even pasteurized. Milk should be kept at a temperature not above 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

The diet of children should be selected and prepared with extra care in summer. Use plenty of vegetables, and bread from whole-wheat flour, but do not be reckless with raw fruits. All foods and fruits to be eaten raw should be sound, properly ripened and well washed. Children need very little meat. It is easy to over-feed on eggs.

No tea or coffee nor alcoholic drinks for children or youth. No chocolate nor candy for those with poor appetite for plain foods. For drinks use water, milk, malted milk, buttermilk, koumiss, unfermented fruit juices. Avoid the syrupy or saccharine or highly flavored concoctions sold on every hand.

Meals should be served regularly. Avoid feeding between meals, and while playing about.

Have the children eat slowly, chewing well. Rinse the mouth and clean the teeth after the meal. If teeth are carious or out of line see a dentist. Even the temporary teeth need attention. Their condition not only affects the permanent set, but the present health.

40,000 Years Old Human Skull Is Found in Europe

By United Press.

LONDON.—A human skull, said to be 40,000 years old, will be one of the principal exhibits before the meeting of the British association, which opens at Oxford on Aug. 4.

The skull was recently unearthed at Gibraltar by Miss D. A. E. Garrod during excavations there. It was found several feet underground. Numerous Mousterian flint implements were found on the spot.

Discovery of the fragments will probably lead to the identification of another skull which was discovered in the vicinity in 1930 and which is believed to be a remnant of the Neanderthal race. The earlier skull is thought to have been that of a female and the recently discovered skull is expected to be accepted as proof that the race existed throughout Europe.

The race is said to be African in origin and the first indication of its wide scope at an early date was found in Germany in 1850 when a skull was found in the Neanderthal valley. Although these skulls have the raised eyebrow bones, similar to those found in skulls of apes, the race is accepted as human.

An ounce of argument is worth a poke in the eye.

Noted Authority On Health Gives Out A few Don'ts

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Take a hot bath and a cup of hot tea if you want to cool off, S. B. Grubbs, acting surgeon general of the United States health service, advised today in a new list of hot weather "do's" and "don'ts."

A hot bath, Grubbs said, opens the pores and causes natural "refrigeration." Cold drinks and cold baths make you hot.

Among hot weather rules Grubbs listed were:

Don't wear silk underwear, it will make you hotter. A mixture of cotton and linen "undies" absorbs perspiration and keeps you cool.

Don't go to bed naked on hot nights. You will catch cold.

Don't drink ice water. An overdose will give you cramps.

Don't eat foods rich in protein. Modify your diet and eat fruits and vegetables.

Don't talk about the hot weather. The more you talk about heat the warmer you will feel.

Don't stay in the water too long when you go swimming. If you feel chilly or depressed after a swim, you are not in good condition.

Malaria and typhoid is likely to result from drinking spring water on picnics.

HOW CAN THE PRICE BE SO LOW?

Why does the Exide Battery cost no more than ordinary batteries? Here is the answer: Exide was the pioneer automobile battery. High quality brought demand, and that meant big production and the economies of manufacture that go with it. Exide is the economical battery for you to buy, because the price is low and the length of service exceptionally long.

Jim Edwards couldn't see such Extravagance

By United Press.

HARLESTON, England. — Here in this little Norfolk town, the chief claim to fame of which is that it is only three miles from the Pullam airship station, has been found the ideal telephone operator.

She is Mrs. Anne Petty, aged 65. She has had the job for twelve years; and not for one minute during all that service has she been beyond the hearing of the bell of her exchange.

Mrs. Petty, who lives next to the postoffice, had a room to rent on the ground floor about the time that the telephone people wanted to put an exchange in Harleston. They persuaded her to house the exchange and operate it herself. Mr. Petty had passed away and the little work was just what she needed. Also, she suffered from asthma, which rendered her incapable of sleeping while lying down, so she slept in a chair. At night she moved the chair into the telephone room and gave twenty-four hours service in a most efficient manner.

Mrs. Petty was content with her interests over the phone and had no wish to move about town. Next door is a general store. She can stand at the door of the store and order her provisions without being out of hearing of her telephone bell.

In recent years the Harleston exchange has become very important with the growth of the Pullam aerodrome. Many great navigators of the air have appreciated Mrs. Petty's service, but to newspaper men who at times flock into her territory she is a darling because her service functions at all hours of the day and night.

With the growth of the service and the importance of the exchange at Harleston Mrs. Petty hired an assistant. But it is during the small hours of the night, when the assistant and most of the rest of the town sleeps, that Mrs. Petty, always on the job, gives service that lets the world know the movement of great airships.
