

LOST AVIATOR LANDS IN MIDST CARIBOU HERD

Yukon Airman Is Rescued by Search Party After Trek Across Mountains.

By Associated Press.
DAWSON, Y. T., July 31.—Full of the thrills of a "best seller" is the story of the experience of Clarence O. Prest, aviator, while attempting a flight across Yukon Territory and Alaska.

Prest flew with his moving picture camera above a great herd of caribou and was forced to land in their midst. He slaughtered one to keep from starving. The herd is part of the great body of caribou which annually trek across the region near Dawson and Eagle.

Prest took a roundabout way from San Bernardino, Cal., to the far north, and his own story of his experience is told in the following dispatch from Eagle:

Caribou Surround Plane.
"Thirty minutes out of Eagle, my engine bucked. I looked for a landing place and picked out what looked like a level spot. It was Niggerhead Flat, at the head of Deer Creek, eight miles south of Seventy-Mile river. I fixed the engine and noticed a couple of caribou. I set up my movie camera so as to get them. More of them were coming, so I began to see about taking off.

"Turning I noticed five or six hundred caribou all around the plane and camera, and rushed back expecting to find the latter ruined, but no damage was done. I got ready to take off, but the plane went upon its nose in the soft going and broke the propeller.

"I had been debating about killing one of the caribou, and the debate ended when the propeller broke, so I killed one with my .32-calibre pistol and butchered him with a pocket knife.

Couldn't Find the Trail.
"I was overhauling the motor when a puff of wind finished the job by turning the machine over on her back and breaking the radiator. So I deserted it, stripped off the instruments and magnets and started to pack down the river. I got down with one load and saw I could not make it with the grub I had. Then I cached everything and went back to the airplane and slept in its tail Sunday night.

"I had left my compass in a cache at the mouth of Bamey Creek, so I started without it. I was further out than I thought, couldn't pick up the trail and made a lot of unnecessary circles, climbing mountains for observation. It was raining steadily, but I had equipped myself with a small can of gasoline, and started a fire.

"My shoes and feet were giving out, and I was afraid to lie down to sleep. Finally, on Wednesday, I struck the trail at Nimrod Bar and shortly after a search party hove in sight."

PREDICTOR OF CYCLONES U. S. ENTRY IN AIR RACE

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 31.—"Cyclone Bill" Reed, as his associates in the navy flying service know the man who will represent the United States navy at the international balloon races at Geneva, Switzerland, in August, is one of the foremost lighter-than-air pilots of the service. He got his nickname from his service in the weather bureau, where he became famous as a predictor of cyclones, especially along the gulf of Mexico.

Lieutenant Reed, upon whom the navy will rely solely at Geneva, is 46; he is a reserve officer. He was commissioned in December, 1917, and because of his long meteorological experience, was assigned to the Pensacola flying station where he was an instructor in aerology during the war.

He joined the weather forecasting service when but 15 years of age and served 25 years with it. Fourteen of those years were spent at the Pensacola weather station, as weather observer and forecaster, where his studies of cyclone disturbances earned him his name. At one time when a free balloon from the naval station was lost for several days, Reed's wide knowledge of the air currents and conditions there enabled him successfully to predict where the balloon would be found.

Eloping Minister Is Forgiven by His Wife

The Rev. W. W. Culp, former Spring Valley (O.) pastor, who eloped with Miss Esther Hughes, 18, a boarder in his home, pleaded guilty in Xenia, O., to abandoning his family and was sentenced to one year in prison and to pay a fine of $500. He is shown in the upper right-hand corner, and Miss Hughes in the upper left-hand corner, between them being Culp's former church. In the two lower pictures are shown Mrs. Culp and their nine children. Mrs. Culp forgave her husband after he had been sentenced. Culp, in pleading guilty, said he had married at 19 at the advice of his parents and had stuck to his wife, though he did not love her. "I was always embarrassed by my wife's actions until Esther came into my life. Esther was an active worker in the church and inspired me."

CHICKEN BARBECUE.

On Saturday night several couples motored out to Wiles, where they had previously spotted a very attractive spot, and enjoyed a chicken barbecue. At this place was a very attractive natural lake, so swimming was also one of the features of the evening's fun. Chickens were barbecued in the open, by experienced chefs, and the feast that followed was all that the name implies. There was everything that goes with barbecued chicken, as well as a freezer of apricot cream, which was served just before the party left for home.

Participants were Dr. and Mrs. Lauderdale and son, Miss Mears, Messrs. and Mmes. Ernest Albright, John Thurman, Karl E. Jones, Frank Rarey, S. B. Tunnell, Paul Lacy, A. N. Harkrider and children, Messrs. Gus Coleman and Ira Thurman.

ICE CREAM SOCIAL.

The members of the Woman's Missionary union of the East Ranger Baptist church, will give a benefit ice cream social Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. S. B. Plummer. Everybody invited.

CLOVER-EATING ALLIGATOR FOUND IN SUSQUEHANNA

SUNBURY, Pa., July 31.—This city is excited by the finding of a strange animal in the Susquehanna river here. The beast looks like an alligator and feels like one, but makes a strange hissing noise at night. It refused to eat meat and saiffed at young fish. A little green clover was put before it and the beast nosed around and chewed a little.

Death Hides Secret of Night Watchman Who May Have Been Self-Exiled Peer

NEW YORK, July 31.—The body of an eccentric old night watchman and odd-job man, lying unclaimed on a marble slab in Kings county morgue tonight, locked a secret of heritage that authorities of two continents were seeking to solve.

Was Edward Euston, as he was known in the little Brooklyn lodging house where the body was found, a lineal descendant of Charles II, and the "black sheep" eldest son of the late Duke of Grafton—entitled to the vast estates and all the heritage now enjoyed by the second son of the late Duke? Was he a member, at all, of the ancient family of Fitz-Roy? Or was it merely coincidence that the man of mystery should have selected clippings dealing with the affairs of the Fitz-Roys to cherish among his dearest possessions?

These are a few of the questions police, the British consul and the public administrator have been attempting to clear up since they found beneath the tattered carpet of the room the treasured newspaper clippings.

Euston, who was night watchman for a steamship company and erstwhile applicant for odd jobs at Salvation Army headquarters, died several days ago after languishing behind the closed doors of his room for nearly a week, repulsing the proffered attentions of his landlady and scoring suggestions that a physician be sent for.

His death caused little comment until a detective found his treasure cache.

The treasure consisted of a dime-a-week life insurance policy, to "assure me decent Christian burial," a photograph, obviously of the dead man, though taken years ago, when his subject was in his prim and when he wore the clothes of an English gentleman as one to the manner born; the clippings, and a faded Masonic apron.

One of the clippings regarding the present Duke, which Euston had pasted to the back of his photograph—as if he would have said, "There but for the curse of fate go I"—the authorities began to build up the theory that the dead night watchman might have been the real Duke of Grafton.

Sherman L. Whipple, senatorial candidate in the Massachusetts primaries against Henry Cabot Lodge, has been mentioned in the suit brought by investors in the H. V. Greene company, First People's Trust company and affiliated organizations, charging conspiracy to defraud, with more than $15,000,000 involved. During one of the hearings Mr. Whipple's name was mentioned as one of the alleged defendants, who number thirty of the most influential men in the state.

GORMAN HOST TO PHYSICIANS, TUESDAY WEEK

A watermelon feast, music and a 6 o'clock luncheon will be among the entertainment features of the joint, regular meeting of the Eastland and Comanche County Medical societies in Gorman on Aug. 8. Gorman physicians will be the hosts of the occasion. The joint meeting, it was announced this morning, will open at 2 p. m. at the Gorman hotel. Both sides have prepared a highly interesting program and a night session will be held if necessary.

Three Ranger physicians are on the program. Dr. Holland will lead in the discussion on "Sycopaths Consideration of Sick Women." Dr. Lauderdale will lead the discussion on "Fibroids" and Dr. Stackable will lead the discussion on "Cancer." Papers will be read by Marlin, Temple, Dallas, Abilene, Comanche, Hico, Stamford and Waco physicians.

OH, HOW THOSE MEXICAN TOTS LOVE THEIR SCHOOL!

JUAREZ, Mexico, July 31.—More than 100 small children voluntarily banded themselves together and stormed the city hall here, asking for the city schools to be opened. They had tried to go to school, but had found all doors closed.

For two months there has been little money in the city treasury, so the teachers, in dire need, decided to quit teaching as a means to force city and state officials to pay and re-employ them.

The chamber of commerce has agreed to help obtain funds to permit the reopening of schools.

Death Cell Prisoner Shoots Jailer and Is Killed; Fifth Death Over One Still

JACKSON, Miss., July 31.—Two hours after Mrs. Henry Bond had visited her condemned husband in Hinds county jail here he and Russel Harris, jailer, were dead, and Mrs. Bond was locked in jail, charged with having supplied her husband with the pistol.

As Jailer Harris went to feed three condemned men on the third floor of the jail Bond shot him through the breast. Harris then pulled his pistol and sent three bullets through Bond, after which he walked half a block to the sheriff's office, gave up his keys, exclaimed, "Old Bond got me!" and died.

This makes five men killed over one still in Green county, the first being Jacob Green and J. F. Dunham, prohibition agents sent to raid the still. The third was Nancy Kelly, condemned to die on the gallows two months ago for murdering Green and Dunham, who cheated the gallows by cutting his throat two minutes before his execution was due. Bond was being held here for safe keeping.

BURIED GREEK STATUE FOUND ON N. Y. ESTATE

YONKERS, N. Y., July 31.—Buried three feet below a water main which had not been disturbed since it was laid, 38 years ago, workmen have found a statue, declared to be "pure Greek and 2,000 years old" at Greystone, Samuel Untermyer's country place.

Isidore Konti, sculptor, after a careful examination today, declared that, in his opinion, the work not only was real Greek, but it was too good to have been done by any but a real master.

The statue is of a woman and stands 4 feet 6 inches without the head, which had been broken off. The head was found first. Later the left hand was found and still later the rest of the body, all intact.

No theory for the presence of the statue has been advanced either by police or art experts who have seen it.

THE ART OF PRINTING
ORIGINALITY IN PRINTING nowadays is one of the most difficult of qualities to attain. You must use the types and blocks and papers and colors which have been in use for ages; hence it is extremely unlikely that rearrangement of all of these things in a manner admittedly satisfactory and at the same time quite original can be achieved by those lacking experience.
It requires years of thought and study to master the art of printing. Novices can "print" in a way, but compare the product with that of a student of the work.
We claim to have mastered the art, and take pride in the fact that our work cannot be equalled by the ordinary printer. Of course, it takes money to manufacture a product of quality, the same as in any other line. Our prices are made up to quality, not down to price.
