

DUELING PERMITTED ONLY TO GENTLEMEN FRENCH COURT HOLDS

PARIS, July 22.—The privilege of "gentlemen" to fight duels has been denied to ordinary mortals by the superior Seine court.

Maurice "The Terror" was sentenced to six years' imprisonment for slaying "Charlie the Assassin" in a duel with knives "a la loyale"—started before two witnesses and with both men getting an even break.

One of the loveliest girls in the Paris underworld—Loulu La Finarde—was the cause of the duel. Maurice the Terror and Charlie the Assassin had been rivals to her hand for years. She began by dividing her favors, but one day Charlie the Assassin discovered Loulu in the arms of the Terror.

The dueling code provided that Charlie should forthwith withdraw his kid gloves and smite the Terror across the cheek with them. Not having even worn a pair of kid gloves the Assassin used his fist. The Terror promptly challenged him to a duel with knives and the challenge was accepted.

Apaches See Duel to the Death. That night a dozen Parisian apaches formed a ring about the two men who, stripped to the waist, flourished long knives. Loulu La Finarde was given a place of honor in the circle. Alternately she cried words of encouragement to each of the rivals. The rules of the duel—no pause, no quarter, a fight until one or other of the men was slain—made the finicky, courteous affairs of the Paris des Princes seem an afternoon tea by comparison. The rules were followed to the letter, and amidst the tense silence of the fierce audience Maurice the Terror drove his knife into the heart of Charlie the Assassin.

So far all had gone according to the code. By the unwritten rule of the underworld Loulu La Finarde was now the property of Maurice the Terror. But before she could declare her submission a whistle sounded and a dozen policemen intervened.

"You are arrested for murder," announced the sergeant. "Murder? But it was 'a la loyale'—it was perfectly fair. He could have killed me had he been just a bit quicker."

"Who do you think you are—a senator or a duke?" retorted the policeman. And Maurice the Terror was locked up in the Sante.

The trial lasted three days. A strange procession of denizens of the half-world passed in the witness box. They told of their code of honor—that they could not be punished for doing what "gentlemen" were allowed to do with impunity.

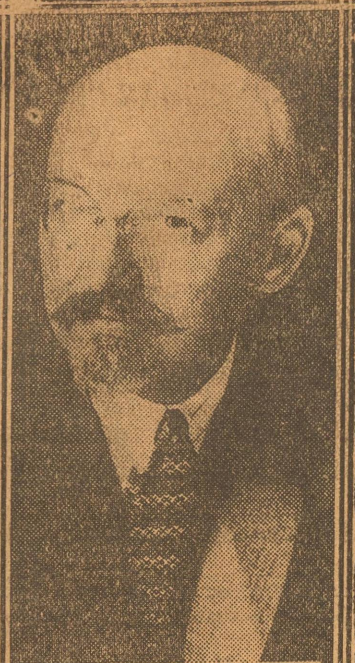

"But all dueling is forbidden," observed the severe Judge Drioux.

"Yes, but when two counts fought last December they were not punished," retorted Maurice the Terror. "This is a free republic. I have as much right to slay a man in a duel as a count or a duke."

"Henceforth," announced the court, in delivering judgment, "there will be no more discrimination. Anyone who fights a duel, whether he wears a silk hat and fights with a rapier, or whether he wears a cloth cap and stabs with a knife, must go to prison."

If Advertising Sells Chewing Gum It Can Sell Religion, Minister Says

OMAHA, Neb., July 22.—A certain double-page advertisement costs a chewing gum manufacturer $11,000, Rev. George F. Schmidt of New York, told the thirtieth international convention of the Walther league, an association of young people's societies of the Evangelical Lutheran Synodical conference in an address recommending church advertising. "To regain the mere investment he must sell 2,200,000 sticks of gum, and a million people must chew gum for a day to pay for it," he continued. "Certainly advertising must pay. Why, then, should we not do the same in a dignified way, and advertise the goods or the product we have to sell, salvation and personal peace, the bread of heaven, the water of life, the sweet and blessed balm of Gilead?"

"It may startle some to think of 'selling' salvation, but after all that is what every preacher and personal worker does. To sell the product of your church, as much active work is needed as to sell the product of any factory in your community. Too many churches establish their 'factory,' wait for 'customers,' and make no effort to distribute their products. "There are about 40,000,000 men and women above 10 years of age in the land who are outside the pale of the church. What can we do to reach them? "People who scoff at advertising the church and Christianity should remember that four of the greatest men to whom the founding of Christianity was largely left were reporters or advertisers. They wrote the gospels."

LITTLE THINGS.

In making ice tea never make it with boiling water. Early in the day fill your pitcher with cold water, add the leaves and set aside until ready to fill the glasses. This makes a most delicious flavor, as less tannin is extracted and gives a much milder drink.

If the dishes in which ice cream or salad to be served are chilled in the refrigerator, the problem of melted ice cream or wilted salad is practically solved.

Take a fruit jar, put all the ingredients into it for French dressing, shake until it thickens, and then you have it ready for use at any time. This will keep indefinitely in a cool place.

When an egg is beaten for fish or croquettes, add one tablespoon water and it goes farther.

To keep meringue from falling add one-fourth teaspoon baking powder.

Keep a small box filled with quick lime in pantry and cellar. It will keep the air dry and pure.

HELP THOSE WHO HELP YOU. There is one movement recently inaugurated in Ranger which can well have the 100 per cent indorsement of Ranger people.

That is the "Buy in Ranger" move of the Rotary club.

There are persons in Ranger, as everywhere else, who patronize the mail order houses on the assumption that they save money thereby.

At first glance, all of these reasons appear plausible to the individual, but under close examination, they do not hold up very well.

The main reason that persons patronize mail order houses is because they think they are saving money.

In the first place, what is a town? It is a place where a number of persons have grouped their habitat for purposes of convenience.

Now what do the mail order houses contribute to these things? Nothing. What do they give to the Ranger band? Nothing.

On the other hand, the merchant DOES give to all these things. He gives not as an individual but more. The popular mind conceives it the duty of the business men to support all these things.

If everyone patronized the mail order houses, there would be no merchants. If there were no merchants, there would be no civic enterprises that must be supported by local subscriptions.

Think it over. Do you get lower prices from the mail order houses? Are you hearing your share of the community expense when you trade with them?

BERLIN SWARMS WITH SWINDLERS OF ALL NATIONS

Crooks Chiefly Russians Driven Into Exile: Police Not Vigilant.

BERLIN, July 22.—Berlin, at the present moment, is a city of international riff-raff. Swindlers of all nations thrive and prosper in the suspiciously tolerant atmosphere, and they abuse the hospitality extended them by the long suffering city, they, in turn, provide no end of penny-thrillers.

Russians figure conspicuously in the criminal records, as no means has yet been found for preventing foreigners from eastern Europe from entering the country by underground routes. This objectionable element also displays diabolical cleverness in eluding the none too vigilant republican police, and often succeeds in spending months in comparative safety, until emboldened by their success, they commit an indiscretion which leads to their undoing.

Russian Family Held for Fraud. In this category belongs a Russian family consisting of an eighteen-year-old baron, his mother and sister, who have just been hailed before the criminal courts to answer to the charge of fraudulent manipulations running into the millions.

Upon the solemn assurance—"on the word of honor of a nobleman"—that the family had been deceived in the value of the pearls, they were released and kept under cover for some time.

His sister, so he said, had just arrived from Moscow, bringing with her her entire capital in cash, which she wished to turn into precious stones. The jeweler by arrangement arrived at the apartment, bringing with him a collection of valuable stones.

Mother Accuses Jeweler of Theft. While he was absent the mother suddenly turned upon the jeweler, accusing him of having stolen a half million marks which were to have been invested in the precious stones.

The entire quartet was arrested when the "truth" came from the mouth of a babe—a little Russian girl, who testified to having seen the stones in the possession of the young baron. His criminal career has now been exposed, and the interesting fact has come to light that the family is really of Russian origin, but deprived of its patent of nobility at the beginning of the war, whereupon he entered the soviet service, being detailed to the famous Russian organization of the "Tscheka."

Here he was used in the department for the confiscation of property and learned his lesson so well as to acquire the habit of confiscating property that did not belong to him.

When the air of Russia grew too warm for him he did what all other hard-pressed Russians do—fled the country with Germany as his objective goal.

FOURTEEN GIRL INMATES SCRATCH WAY TO LIBERTY

DETROIT, Mich., July 22.—Police remained on duty at the House of the Good Shepherd, a girl's detention home, Friday, to prevent a recurrence of the break for liberty which resulted in fourteen of the inmates gaining temporary freedom.

Other officers and officials of the juvenile court started an investigation to determine the cause of the uprising, which threatened, before police reinforcements arrived, to result in scores of escapes.

The institution, presided over by Sister St. Francis Xavier, usually is unguarded, and when the girl inmates, ranging in age from 16 to 19 years, made their break for liberty, only a fourteen-foot wall stood in their way.

A fight with the officers ensued in which some of the bluecoats sustained scratches, lacerated shins and bites. To add to the confusion, water faucets were opened by the rebellious inmates and the first two floors of the building were flooded, while many windows were broken.

The sister superior announced Friday she had been unable to elicit a complaint from her charges, but believed the trouble was incited as a protest against the recent transfer of a sister who had been directly in charge of the inmates and to whom they had become attached.

Two of the girls, believed to have been the leaders of the revolt, were transferred Thursday night to the women's detention home for investigation.

PRE-WAR PRICES NOW AT HAND IN MEN'S CLOTHING

NEW YORK, July 22.—Men's clothes have fallen in price about 25 per cent below their status of last year.

"Prices still so consistently on the toboggan that clothiers here Thursday stated that pre-war figures are likely to be established within the next six months, barring unforeseen conditions."

"Quality of materials and workmanship remains the same. All demands of the newest quirks of fashion in up-to-date lines, colors and individual touches are met."

"The suits we are selling at 25 per cent under the prices of last year and about 80 per cent below the figures of war days, are identical in every way with those higher priced garments."

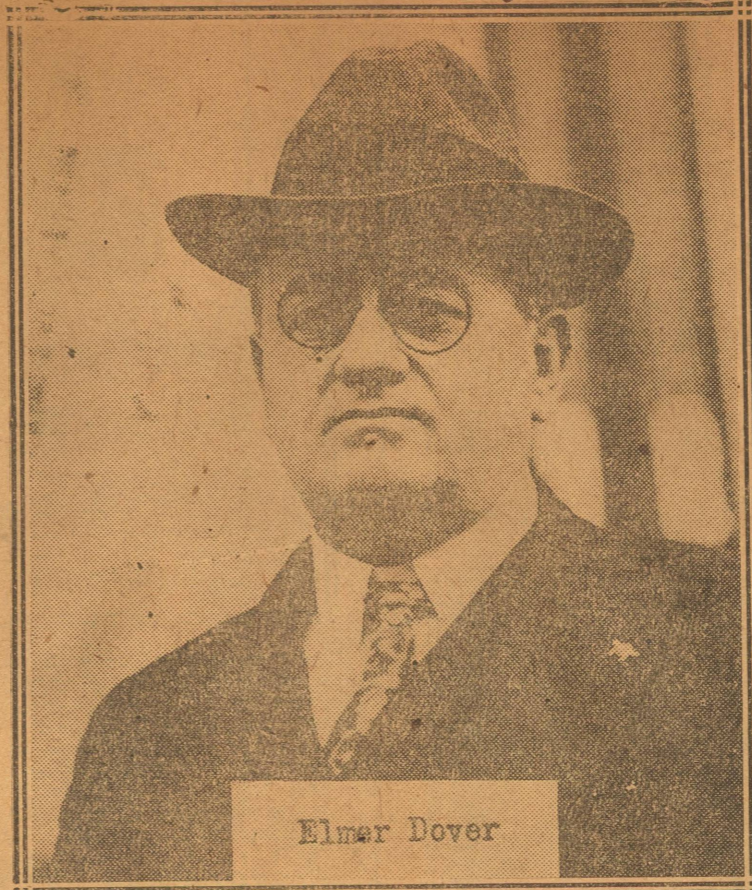

Suits of excellent quality of serge, whipcord and many other popular materials today were priced at $35. One year ago they were $60. Three years ago each and every one sold for $120.

Overcoats are reasonable accordingly. The $40 garment of today was $75 last year. During the high price period it was anything over $100. The average price was $150.

OXFORD ADMITS WOMEN STUDENTS TO DEGREES

LONDON, July 22.—Oxford university now admits women freely to its degrees and to university membership, but Cambridge still locks its doors against them.

The women from the Cambridge colleges of Newnham and Girton have demanded admission to degrees and university membership on the same terms as men.

Within the last two years Cambridge has voted and counter-voted on various proposals to admit women. The only proposal which it has actually carried—and to this practical effect has not yet been given—is that women who are qualified for degree status may obtain "titles of degrees," but not real degrees.

In making this half-hearted offer Cambridge is proposing to treat women just as it formerly treated

Jews and Nonconformists, whom also it tried to satisfy with the titular degree until parliament stepped in and compelled the university to abolish its discriminations of creed.

CHILDREN'S PARKS FINE EXAMPLE OF RANGER WOMEN'S ENTERPRISE

In spite of the thermometer doing a marathon with Pike's Peak, a lady has been quite busy all this week. Not only have social affairs consumed a great deal of her time, but she has been taking a flyer in politics also. In the good old days when there were real statesmen and when all office holders were men beyond reproach, mothers stayed home and raised boys and girls whose influence in private life was such as to render the purifying of politics an unheard-of issue.

However, women in civil life are wonderful factors toward the good of any community and the public will read with pleasure the announcement of the opening of the two parks that have been equipped under the sponsorship of the Child Welfare club, on next Wednesday evening from 5 to 7 o'clock. The children of Ranger will be their guests and there will be ice cream cones, galore for the kiddies and everything possible will be done to make each guest happy.

The opening of these parks, one in Hodges Central addition and one in Hodges Oak Park, is one of the many concrete things that the Child Welfare club has to show for its efforts. When one contributes money to a cause, it's natural to see a result, yet how many things are given to charity that are never reported on, nor accounted for. When Ranger people pass these parks they will feel a flow of gratification that they helped to make them possible and for the indomitable will of a club of working women who have made their dreams come true.

MRS. GREGG ENTERTAINS FOR VISITORS.

Mrs. Saunders Gregg entertained the members of the Twentieth Century club and other guests at bridge, in honor of her guests, Misses Lucile Gregg of Houston and Gladys Cornell of Sherman, on Friday afternoon at her home on Pine street. House decorations were those lovely blue bells, that are grown so abundantly around Ranger. The same flowers, placed in tiny baskets, formed the centerpiece of each serving tray, which took the place of the card settings, and bore a delicious salad course. In bridge the club high score was made by Mrs. John Thurman, the club low score by Mrs. A. Neil and the high guest score by Mrs. Garrett Bohning. The guests and club members present numbered about twenty.

FORTY-TWO CLUB HAS PICNIC.

The members of the Forty-two club prefer outdoors affairs to indoor ones these days and are turning quite a few of their regular meetings into picnics and swimming parties. Thursday night they held a very enjoyable outdoor affair at Winsett lake. Swimming was enjoyed and a picnic lunch, which included ice cream and ice cold watermelon was served by the ladies of the party.

Those participating were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter West, Walter Harwell, C. L. Webb, B. A. Meek, J. L. Heydon, Miss Evelyn West, Masters J. L. and J. C. Heydon.

MISS WEST HAS PRIVATE DANCE.

In a summary of the week's events, no affair stands out more prominent. Miss Evelyn West on Wednesday night had a private dance given by evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Raborn. A victrola furnished the music and dancing continued until a late hour. Punch was served throughout the evening, with midnight refreshments of cream and cake.

Those invited were: Misses Esther Yonker, Margaret Novakovich, Helen and Lydia Albin, Oreta Smith, Clara and Nannie Haden, Lois Mangum, Mary B. Williams, Mary Massa, Bertha and Ritta Davenport, Marion Stubblebine, Doris Watson, Jewell and Bertha Jones, Blanche Garber, Thelma Collins, Azaline Cox, Mary McRay, Phyllis Williams, Catherine Shea, Dousehka Bobo; Messrs. ## Harding Appoints California Woman

Mrs. A. B. Spreckles and Her Children

Mrs. A. B. Spreckles of San Francisco, has been appointed by the President to be a special representative of the department of labor, and commissioned to investigate conditions among women in industry in Europe. The appointment is similar to that of the late Lillian Russell (Mrs. Alexander P. Moore), who also investigated immigration conditions for the department.

WRINKLES ARE INTENTIONAL IN NEW WRINKLED DRESS MATERIALS

By HEDDA HOYT.
By United Press.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Quite the newest and most unusual materials which have been shown in some time are the blistered silks and the heavily wrinkled materials. If the predictions of Dame Fashion prove true we will soon appear in gowns that look as though they had undergone a mustard plaster treatment. They will be as wrinkled as the sun-dried prune. At present the blistered material is used mostly for the new short coat effects which are becoming so popular. As summer advances, we are growing weary of the fringed capes which have been so popular and the chic little box coat of cloly or blistered silk offers a successful relief.
Paris has been using the short coats for some time and has achieved remarkable results with them. Their odd treatment of the collars and sleeves brings a distinction which the short coat has never had before.

Sleeves may be large at the armpit and end in cuffs that are like inverted funnels; they may be extremely wide and gathered into narrow wrist bands or made in full kimono style. Collars may circle the neck in loose folds or be just snug little collar bands.

Novelty strikes, embroidered clothes and blistered silks all tend to make these new jackets convincingly smart.

Organdie Evening Gowns.
Organdie has always had a place in the heart of the American girl who is often at her best in this sheer, summery fabric. Of late years it has been considered to fluffy for daytime wear and has been crowded out by dark silk gowns, which women prefer to wear in spite of the heat. Now, however, it is offered as one of the latest materials for the summer evening gown and one is entirely surprised at what is being done with it in this line.

The organdie gown of today is not ruffled, tucked or lace-trimmed, but is used with one color over another and trimmed with self-toned flowers and peccotting. Rose over lavender gives a two-toned effect that is lovely. Yellow over orange is also very attractive.

One of the prettiest combinations is shown in a frock of pale green made over a foundation of old blue. The usage of these two colors gives a bronze effect. Twisted about the low waist is a sash composed of folds of deep organdie.

These organdie gowns are at their best when made simply with the snug fitting bodice that is sleeveless and with quite a full skirt which may be peccotting in scallops. The neck and armholes finish in peccotting. Stockings should match the color of the under-slip.

FARWELL COUNTY RAISES FIRST COTTON

FARWELL, July 22.—Between 500 and 700 bales of cotton will be produced in the immediate area about Farwell this season off 1,000 acres. Approximately 2,000 acres were planted to cotton this spring, but about half of it was ruined by a hail. The nearest gin is thirty miles away, but there is prospect of a gin being erected here shortly. About 2,000 acres will be planted to cotton about here next season. This is the first year that the staple has been grown for commercial purposes.

LET SOUTH SETTLE NEGRO PROBLEM, ADVICE OF GEORGIA SENATOR

WASHINGTON, July 22.—"There is more lawlessness in New York City in one week than in the State of Georgia in a year," declared Senator Harris, Democrat, Georgia, when the matter of lynchings came up in the senate. Senator Calder, Republican, New York, had inserted in the record a newspaper account of the recent lynchings in Wayne county, Georgia, of two negroes under sentence of death.

Reading from a New York newspaper, Mr. Harris recited a few of the crimes committed in that city within the last few hours.

"Yet the senator from New York," said Mr. Harris, "talks of lawlessness in Georgia and refers to lynchings. It is dangerous to walk abroad in daylight in the senator's city. It is not dangerous in Georgia.

"The South should be left alone to settle its negro question. It is doing the best it can and interference from outside will not help. The good people of the South and Georgia deplore lynchings, just as do the good people of other states."

WOMAN OF 29 RISES FROM JOB AS TYPIST TO PLACE AS GENERAL MANAGER OF BIG LUMBER FIRM

CHICAGO, July 22.—A few weeks ago a brief bulletin was posted in the several branch factories and departments of a great industrial corporation. It was a notification that a new general manager had been elected, and that hereafter all executive orders and all changes in the routine of the company's great plants must be signed by her.

It was that one word "her" that caused the most astonishment. It seemed preposterous that a woman should have in her hands the direction of a specialized force of experts and direct a business involving many millions of dollars annually.

New Manager Only 29.

There was still a deeper shock due those interested in the bulletin. It was that the woman thus set apart to control the destinies of the company was only 29 years old. And she was neither stern nor freakish. She proved to be a most simple, wholesome young woman, exceedingly attractive, given to smiles and frills, and left at dance steps.

It was further learned that the new "G. M." had worked her way to the top; that she had begun a few years ago with the most humble employes.

Her name is Elsie Lempke. Her firm is the Aladdin company, operators of great lumber and building mills, in which complete houses are constructed for shipment in parts.

Her First Goal $15 a Week.

Miss Lempke was not a college girl. Quitting her public school as soon as she was old enough she had a term or two in a business school, where she learned shorthand and typewriting.

"I remember," Miss Lempke said, "there was an awe-inspiring tradition around the office in which I first went to work that there once had been a young woman in that office so expert and efficient that she actually had reached the dizzy height of $15 a week.

"I wondered how she had accomplished it, and to appease my curiosity I began to do more than transcribe my employer's letters. I began really to read them. For a long time most of them were Greek to me, of course, but eventually I hit upon the plan of first reading the letters to the boss, which he would hand me as a guide to the address for the answer, and then I would carefully read his reply after I had typed it. If I could not understand I would wait until another letter came along from the same source. Then I would get the old copies out of the files and refresh my mind upon the first correspondence and study the later letters.

Catches Boss Making Error.

"Before long I began to understand the sentences of the boss. I could almost tell in advance just what he would write in answer to a given letter. I caught myself one day giving vent to an exclamation of disapproval when I caught, in taking down my shorthand notes, the boss giving a prospective customer a promise that certain goods that had been ordered would be shipped within a certain time.

"What was that you were about to say?" he asked sharply.

"I hope you will pardon me—but I remembered you had written only a few days ago to Mr. So-and-So that the materials for the making of those goods would not be available for three months. I was surprised when you promised Mr. So-and-So in this letter today that he could have his goods immediately."

"Ahem," said the boss, who was absent minded at times and had forgotten the incident, 'change that last sentence to read—I am sorry, etc.'

Begins to Learn Business.

"Somehow my employer remembered and, I suppose, began gradually to take advantage of information I stored up. I really began to learn the business by making myself become acquainted with the meaning and import of every paper that passed through my hands."

There was another factory of the same kind not far away. It was larger, employed more stenographers. Miss Lempke believed she understood enough now for the lumber business—both factories were lumber mills—to go marketing for a larger field. She was given the other position and began all over again learning by thoroughly reading and understanding every document that came to her.

She acquired the habit of reading lumber trade bulletins and watched the fluctuations of prices as appearing in orders she handled. She sought diligently for reasons for these fluctuations in the trade reports. She studied books. She set herself the task of each day watching the trade reports and bulletins and predicting the price changes which would appear in the letters and reports of her employers next day.

Always Ready to Study.

She was always willing to help other girls in the office—she wanted to read the letters of the other bosses just to detect any new subjects for examination.

Inevitably a little thing brought the certain reward. Miss Lempke's immediate superior one morning suggested that she run through the morning's mail by herself and sort out such letters as she might answer without troubling him. He meant, of course, that she should winnow out the unimportant letters.

A few hours later he asked her how many of the letters she had been able to answer.

"All of them, sir," was Miss Lempke's astonishing reply.

He was incredulous, of course. But when he had read the last of the typist's replies, some of them letters involving factory orders running into thousands of dollars, others dealing in trade matters of the most technical character, he was astonished.

"Why, Miss Lempke, every letter is just what I would have written myself. One or two are distinctly better."

That was just the beginning. In two months she was called into the office of the president. He pointed to a little private office adjoining his own.

"That is the office of my private secretary, Miss Lempke," the president said. "If you wish you may go in there and make yourself at home."

Directed Southern Sales.

The private secretary's first promotion came as dramatically as had the promotion of the typist. The president asked her if she ever had been far from Bay City (Mich.), the home of the executive offices. She had not.

"Then you would enjoy a trip to Tampa, Fla.—go down there and be general manager of the company's offices there."

The Florida offices were sales headquarters for the South. As sales manager Miss Lempke almost doubled the business in that territory.

HOUSING SHORTAGE ENDS IN N. Y. MANY APARTMENTS BEG TENANTS

NEW YORK, July 22.—Thousands of "To Let" signs throughout Manhattan and Brooklyn.

Hundreds of new apartment buildings and houses building in all five boroughs.

Rents down 10 per cent under what they were a year ago and another 10 per cent decrease indicated for the last of August.

This is the renting situation in this city today. Not for five years, or since before the war, according to city officials, welfare workers and others interested in living conditions here, has the outlook been so bright.

concessions granted in the days when quarters were more plentiful than tenants to fill them.

"This, in effect, was the statement of Herman Torborg, assistant corporation counsel, acting for the mayor's committee on rent profiteering. To borg mentioned examples indicative of reductions:

"The man who paid $125 for his rooms last year will remain in them this season for $100 or less. The 100 renters will find something for about $80.

"Eventually this reduction will go all the way down the line. The man who pays only $50 also has something to look forward to."

Torborg commented upon the large number of apartments now being somewhat haphazardly paraded before the eyes of prospective tenants. Their number is said to be four times that of vacant apartments last year.

Tenants Holding Off.

"To Let" signs are displayed upon at least every other apartment house in every section of the five boroughs. Many landlords are offering to waive the rule of rent in advance. Some even are willing to offer a month's free residence, a concession not heard of since before the war.

Torborg continued: "Many vacancies are occasioned by tenants holding off till fall to sign leases, when, it is rumored, rents will have fallen still lower.

"Others are deserted by vacationists who wouldn't have dreamed of leaving their quarters last summer, but who have moved to seashore or country, feeling perfectly confident that they will have no difficulty in finding homes when they return."

Furthermore, a building campaign, involving many millions of dollars, has lowered rents in Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx. One big real estate firm is putting up apartment houses to take care of more than 300 families, each one of which already has signed a lease.

Small apartments, the one or two-room, kitchenette and bath arrangement, are also becoming popular in the medium and lower medium priced houses.

At one time these belonged only to the theatrical district and the art colony. Now they may be found in any quarter of the city, where old-fashioned homes are being converted to them, at astonishingly low rents.

GOLD IS MINED NEAR WASHINGTON

The millions in the U. S. mint and treasury in Washington, D. C., do not constitute the only gold near the nation's capital. The first hit of gold near Washington has been found at Bull Neck Run, just across the Potomac, in Virginia, and U. S. Senator William H. King of Utah, is pictured "shooting the gun" at the placer diggings.

survey in the mountain district, he came upon a young cub suffering from severe burns on feet and body. The youngster was whimpering from the pain and the forester took pity on it, lifted it into his car and there made it fast with some rope.

The patrolman started on his journey only to discover that the mother bear had appeared and was in hot pursuit. As the track ran uphill at this point, the bear, making long strides, gained steadily and the need for strategy was clearly indicated. The forestry book of instructions does not cover a situation such as this, but the ranger was resourceful and decided that the best plan would be to throw the cub overboard. His attempts to untie the knots on the lashings which secured the youngster to the machine, however, proved futile. Pursuer and pursued came to a yet steeper grade, with the advantage all with the former. Finally, with one mighty effort the old bear threw herself on the back of the car, holding on by her claws and paws.

This is where the forester decided to retire in favor of the enemy. He dove off the car, and regained his feet in time to see it continuing its journey eastward, with a mother and child happily reunited as its passengers. Later the automobile was found, run down and everything intact except the side of the seat where the cub had been tied, the old bear having torn it out to release her offspring.

STARVING HORDE OF RUSSIANS TO FLOOD RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 22.—Rumania considers that her frontiers are threatened with a Russian invasion, not necessarily of armed men, but rather by starving thousands who may be driven in August from the Volge basin by crop failures. She fears a repetition of the movement of the trekking multitudes which left the Volga last summer, driven out by hunger.

What steps should be taken if this happens? These people cannot be shot down with machine guns as they cross the boundary line, and it may not be possible otherwise to stem the flow to any appreciable degree for the frontier is long and the Rumanian army is not large.

Poland is equally interested with Rumania. She is subject to the same invasion. The recent visit here of President Pilsudski of Poland was to consult as to a course of mutual action. In August the Rumanian and Polish crops will be ready for harvest, and neither country wants its food supplies to be depleted by the thousands of Russians who may make a last effort to save their lives.

Rumania has today six army divisions on the Dniester frontier, and, even so, many hundred Russians are slipping over the boundaries each week.

Fire-Crazed Bears Battle Mule and Automobile in British Columbia

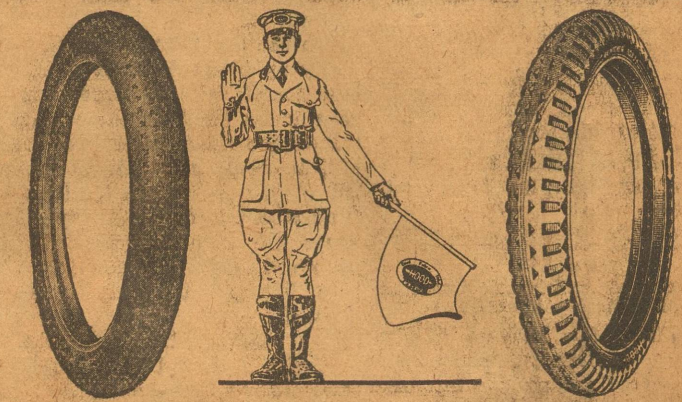

PRINCE GEORGE, B. C., July 22.—Two amusing bear stories, both vouched for by reputable eye-witnesses, are going the rounds here. Forest fires in northern British Columbia during the past month have had a peculiar effect upon some of the wild animals of the woods, judging from some of the stories brought in to Prince George.

A fight between a fire-crazed bear and a mule, in which the bear was worsted occurred at L. Mason's ranch, at Bednesti, B. C. The forest fire routed the bear from its lair, and in its dash from the flames into the open country it collided violently with a jack-mule. The bear was promptly stretched out on the ground by a double tattoo from the capable hind hoofs, and the mule calmly resumed its interrupted grazing.

Thoroughly angered, the bear picked itself up and cautiously approached the mule from a different angle. The huge paw was brought down with a resounding thwack on the mule's ribs. This was unfortunate. The hoofs were again brought into play, after a quick, accurate manoeuvre for position, and the fight was called off so far as the bear was concerned. Mr. Mason, who had witnessed the unusual encounter, dashed to the house for a rifle to finish the bear, should any life be left. Before he could get back to the scene, however, Bruin managed to get groggily to his feet and return to the less exciting environment of the forest fire.

A fire patrol ranger is sponsor for another bear story. While making a
